"God Rest You Merry Gentlemen."

On the eve of Christman 1978, into world struggling inder the storm and stress of an economic crisis, ant a time when the problems both of the capital and labor appear to be insurmountable, the happy words, "God rest you merry gentleman" from the old carol fall upon the ear with a particularly welcome appeal, for Christmas is a familiar and beloved casis in a desert of strange and trying difficulties. It is a recess from the fight for material existence. an inn of respite on the year's stronuous highway where both the spirit and the body can be refreshed, a glorified Sunday with a lovely golden halo around it, a rest for that not always "merry" gentleman, the man in the street.

Two thousand years ago another man of humble origin, a carpenter by Irade, set out on a memorable journey, a journey that was to change the entire course of world history. Joseph of Nazareth and his wife, Mary, left tinlilee, on a trip they could ill offord to take, for Bethlehem because Caesar had ordered all his subjects to go to the hearsat city and register for taxes. When Mary and Joseph arrived, there was no room for them at the inn and they found shelter in the stable where Christ was born. The homely beauty of this scene with the baby lying in the manger, his mother bending over him, and the patient cattle, the shepherds, and the wise mes, is so lovely that it has survived unmarred throughout the centuries. Piven during the periods in history when kings of governments and of finance reigned supreme, the story of this haby whose first crib was a manger and whose only mattress was the sweet-smelling hay, has been told and re-

And today, we paint and point again this same scene When your Christman fires are in the stable and it miraculously retains its original loveliiness and what Matthew Arnold called "sweetness and light." No speaker, however hombastle and florid his sentences, no writer, however rococo and ornate his phraseology, no pseudo-artist, however elaborate and exaggerated his style can destroy the beautiful simplicity of the original picture. There is something vital, something rugged, something so characteristically of the soil in it that it cannot be loved spoiled. The crudest Christmas card executed by the most junskilled fingers cannot but be touched with at least a Who long since have passed spark of the magic that shone in the star of Behlehem two thousand years ago.

So let us take the two days that we have this Christmas and make the most of them, laving care and worry uside and singing with the carolers:

"God rest ye, merry gentlemen, Let nothing you dismay. For Jesus Christ, our Saviour, Was born on Christmas Day.
