But Little Time Left

With just two weeks remaining in which the legislature can save the state of Florida, it is small wonder that traces of nervousness are to be noted among leading citizens who view with alarm the great lack of accomplishment which so far characterizes this session.

The complaint is often made by members of Florida's law making body that too many objections are raised against various measures, and not enough constructive criticism. Undoubtedly it must be true that every bill which has been introduced during the past few days has met with a storm of protest from every section of the state.

These protests rightly come from the taxpayer. The taxpayer has been taxed to death. He has no desire to see additional taxes placed upon him, whether in the form of a six cent tax on his cigarettes, or a four dollar tax on his telephones.

With more than two-thirds of this session already a part of history, no measures have been passed consolidating counties, or cities with counties, or the offices of tax collectors with tax assessors, or abolishing judicial circuits, unnecessary courts, or superfluous boards, commissions and departments.

There would be no necessity for additional tax bills if state operating expenses were put down on a par with most of our municipalities, and if tax laws already existing were fairly enforced.

Preparing For War

The familiar adage that "discretion is the better part of valor" is often introduced in discussions pertaining to preparedness to indicate that an adequate supply of dangerous armament is not the surest way of avoiding difficulties.

The Monitor believes that all countries can find greater security in other means than forts, cannons, and well trained infantry. It is a sort of Eutopian theory which persists despite the "scrap of paper" incident which marked the violation of Belgium's neutrality.

In the meantime, what a splendid opportunity this depression affords our Uncle Samuel to prepare for war! Basic materials so necessary in the construction of forts, cannons, shells, airplanes and warships are cheaper now than they have been in many years, and probably cheaper than they will ever be again.

It is almost inconceivable to us now that the United States could ever be so foolish as to engage in another war, but it is just as sure as it was in 1914. Civilization needs at least another thousand years to become truly civilized.

"BOY, I HAD TO DIG"

There is a direct and timely application to conditions in Tampa and in Florida generally in these wisdom-weighted lines from the Detroit Drug Journal: Said the little red rooster: "Believe me, things are tough. Seems that worms are scarce, and I cannot find enough. What's become of all those fat ones, is a mystery to me. There were thousands that rainy spell—but now where can they be?"

NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 19—The gambling at Reno, Nevada, may be more legal and more sensational, but a month's turnover of risked gold in Reno certainly would not be a drop in the bucket compared with single day's in New York. This city is the gambling center. Where wealth constantly rubs elbows with hopeful poverty, the urge to get rich quick is powerful and widespread.

A Park Avenue banker, the other day, found it necessary to lecture almost everyone in his personal menage. His valet made an incalculable inquiry about a certain stock, then tattled on the rest of the staff. The cook was playing the numbers in the Harlem lottery. The maid and butler were down on the second race at Adcock.

All Gambling, except in the stock market, is illegal in New York, as is also the sale of alcoholic liquors. It is done on trust. Pari-mutuel machines are forbidden at the race tracks. The servant girl trusts the collector for the Harlem lottery to pay her dollars for her pennies if her dream-book has rightly interpreted the "numbers." The race track book maker trusts his customers and the customers trust the bookie.

Some bookies have achieved both wealth and fame. It is said to be true that John W. Gates would actually back his judgment on a single race to the extent of one million dollars and be right on hand to pay off if he slipped up. Until recently, cases of washing on the part of either bookmakers or their clients have been rare.

Within the past few weeks, several bookmakers, prominent at Belmont and Aqueduct race courses, have thrown their pads away and quit the tracks. The reason is said to be that racketeers have suddenly discovered a neglected field of operations. The gangster muscle-man, when they pick the wrong horse, just laugh it off and refuse to pay.

The backgammon fad, which has swept the swankier sections of the town and country, is no more passing away over at Snug Harbor on Staten Island. There, in the quaintly stately retreat for retired seafaring men, are between six and seven hundred backgammon experts. The tars were pleased to hear that their favorite game had crashed Park Avenue, but are dubious about the ability of its society devotees. The sailors take the stand that not even a society matron has time enough to learn it properly.

Snug Harbor, by the way, is one of the most interesting spots in New York. One hundred and forty acres of lawns, laid out shipshape and neat around Colonial buildings, face the Kill von Kull, which is a populous strip of water separating New Jersey from Staten Island. The inmates are called "snugs." Each is more than sixty years old. They are bunked in comfortable rooms, two to a cabin. There is incessant yarning and an occasional fight.

The "Snugs" are the envy of aging tars the world over. They received their retreat through a will drawn for Captain Robert Randall by Alexander Hamilton in 1800. Captain Randall left fifteen or twenty acres of land on Manhattan Island, touching upon lower Fifth Avenue, for the benefit of aging sailors. In consequence, the Harbor, which was moved over to Staten Island in 1831, is a rich institution. It has a theatre, library, and a recreation room for cards and backgammon. Its dinner rooms accommodate more than 900 at one time.

Consider your Adam's Apple!!* Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Now! Please!—Actually put your finger on your Adam's Apple. Touch it—your Adam's Apple—Do you know you are actually touching your larynx?—This is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE, and so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."
