Financial Side Of Graham Crusade

Editor's Note: This is the fourth and final special report by the United Press on Billy Graham's New York crusade. It tells about the financial side of the crusade—where the money comes from, and where it goes.

By LOUIS CASSELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — Years ago when he was just beginning his career as an evangelist, Billy Graham was photographed holding a bag of money which his sponsors had just presented to him.

The picture appeared in the newspapers and embarrassed Graham severely. He resolved then that never again would he jeopardize his ministry by giving people any ground for suspicion that he was getting rich from evangelism.

Today the financial side of a Graham crusade is handled with an impeccable care that would do credit to a bank. Every penny taken in and paid out is audited by a firm of certified public accountants.

But the association of evangelists with profiteering is so strong in the public mind and indeed, so well justified by the record of some itinerant preachers—that Graham still gets a few abusive letters each day from people who regard him as a kind of racketeer.

Madison Square Garden, it seems incredible that anyone should consider Graham's meetings a money-making operation.

Hull is vice president of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York. He also is chairman of the committee—legally incorporated under the laws of New York state—which is sponsoring the meetings. He opened the books to a reporter in his office to show that crusading is a very costly business.

One of the smallest items in the allowance of $18 a day which the committee pays to Graham for living expenses, Graham also got a salary of $15,000 a year, but this is paid entirely by the Billy Graham Evangelical Association of Minneapolis, Minn., which sponsors his "Hour of Decision" radio broadcast each Sunday afternoon. The arrangement gets no extra salary, no "love offering" of any kind, from the funds raised for the New York crusade.

Read Big Item
Big items of expense are the rent for Madison Square Garden—$5,000 a night—and salaries of 60-odd ushers, stagehands and other Garden employees that run to about $1,500 a night. Advertising and publicity expenses, including daily radio and nightly television programs in the New York area, average $40,000 a week. Expenses of the crusade office at 163 West 64th Street, including staff salaries, printing, postage, and rent total $17,000 a week.

These costs, to run to more than one million dollars by the time the meetings end on July 21, are lumped into one budget to be met by funds raised by the local crusade committee.

The offering taken up at the Garden each night will cover only a little more than one third of the figure if they continue at the present rate. The offering—which is immediately placed in the custody of, and counted by, representatives of the Chase Manhattan Bank—has averaged about $7,100 a night.

YOU NEED CALCIUM

By EVANGELIST CEMER, Health Specialist
The human body needs a large amount of organic calcium. In fact it is necessary for us to have more calcium than any other element. Ninety per cent of the body's calcium is in the bones and teeth and the rest circulates in the blood stream and permeates the tissues. This is very important to the performance of the blood as well as the muscles and nerves. As an example, the muscles which make the heart beat must be constantly bathed with blood of lymph containing a normal proportion of calcium.

Many people have a real calcium problem even though natural foods contain an abundance of this very important element of calcium. However, very few people eat enough natural food and as a result suffer with a calcium shortage. In fact one of the most common deficiencies in the average American diet is the lack of sufficient calcium.

Years of experiment have definitely proved that increasing the daily amount of calcium results in physical improvement almost at once. Most Americans today get too much inorganic calcium by eating too many foods that do not contain the natural vitamins and minerals necessary for good health. This over-abundance of inorganic calcium causes arthritis and a host of other diseases common to our day.

But to help you get your share of the natural organic calcium for a stronger, healthier body use much of the following foods. Milk is a good calcium food and soy bean milk is twice as good as cow's milk. Excellent natural sources of calcium are broccoli, cabbage, natural cheese, churned butter, milk, soy beans, various kinds of greens, turnip and watercress.

Yes, you need calcium, you must have an adequate daily supply for good health and it is available to you without spending large amounts for it in some chemical form found in the store. Eat and drink natural foods and get your share of calcium for life.

EVANGELIST CEMER begins a series of important Free Health Classes Friday night at the Woman's Club Auditorium. His first topic will be "How To Add 10 Years To Your Life." Free U. S. Health Department charts will be given to each one bringing any one of these articles to the service. The sermon subject will be "Heaven, Are You Going?" Will we know each other there? If you have enjoyed the health articles so far, tell someone else about them. DON'T MISS FRIDAY NIGHT, JUNE 21, 8:00 P.M. HOUR FOR THE CHILDREN.

Small Firm Has Top Retirement Plan

By ALFRED LEECH
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO — Sam Trapani, 40, is just an average shop worker, but he has $12,000 in savings. And at the age of 38 he'll have at least $60,000.

Steve Tarasuk, 37, another shop worker, has $14,931 in savings. Roy Brington, 38, a production supervisor, has saved $23,707.

All are employees of the House of Vision, a Midwestern optical firm which prides itself on its retirement plan.

Big for its industry, the firm operates in five Midwestern states. But it is no industry giant. It employs 300 persons and qualifies as a "small business."

Nevertheless, its retirement plan helps many of the largest ones in its benefits to the average worker.

Bernard Spero, who founded the firm in 1924, started the employees' trust fund in 1936 with the idea that his employees were entitled to share in the profits.

Annual (Company) Contribution
Spero put up 200 of his own shares of stock in the company to start the trust fund, and offered an annual company contribution of 20 per cent of the firm's profits.

The employees contribute 2 per cent of their pay, and these contributions now total $18,968. The company has contributed 16 times this amount, of $344,178.

Milton Spero, Bernard's brother and treasurer of the company, believes the plan might serve as a model for small business generally.

"Eventually small business will have to come to something like this," he said. "The plan has been a tremendous benefit, both to the employees and the company."

"We have very loyal workers, and a very low turnover in personnel."

The trust's assets today total $1,452,021.

Average Is Misleading
But Milton Spero says the "average" is misleading, because older employees have benefited far more.

For example, he said, one man joined the firm in 1925 as a messenger boy at $8 a week. Now an executive, he has more than $40,000 to his credit and in another 20 years he could have $150,000.

Trapani, who works on crutches, has a "sit down" job fitting eye-glass lenses into plastic frames. His contribution to the fund has totaled $90 and his share is $12,000.

"It's a great thing," said Trapani, who has five children.

About 50 employees have bought homes financed through the plan. Most of them agree they "couldn't have bought a house" without the plan.

Ruth Reigner, an attractive, trim office worker, has contributed $296 to the fund since 1949 and has

NEW YORK — A director reports that simply giving some of a 1,000-bed mental hospital patients keys to keep and to use will bring about an improvement in their mental conditions.

No other places, not even prisons, probably are more thoroughly locked and keyed than mental hospitals. Yet, as Dr. Aaron S. Mason said, "almost complete silence is maintained" about those locks and keys.

"To the mental patient, the key is the most significant symbol of his helplessness," said Mason. "It is viewed as token of the whole structure of power and responsibility in the mental hospital."

Heads VA Hospital
Mason is professional services director of the Brockton, Mass. Veterans Administration Hospital. There, as in other mental hospitals, every room, every closet, every cabinet—every cubicle or receptacle of any kind—has its lock and a corresponding key.

Certain Brockton patients are given a key to rooms in which they can carry out their assignments in "industrial therapy." Although the hospital was opened in 1953, "no untoward incident has resulted from this policy."

On the other hand, "we have observed marked improvement in some patients when they are given the recognition and responsibility of handling keys," Mason said.

He looked forward to a day when locks and keys are used in mental hospitals in the same way they are used in homes—mainly for the protection of property. He thought that more and more "the concept of custody and control" was dying out among mental hospital administrators and more and more they were accepting the "trend of the open hospital."

Some Hospitals Are Open
An "open hospital" is one in which there are no locked doors, and patients may go and come as they please. The advocates of this practice still are in minority in psychiatry but definitely there is a trend.

Mason said that at Brockton almost half the patients are in unlocked wards and their number has doubled in the last two years. A basic premise of the "open hospital" advocates is that a balance of $7,736. Single, she showed her passport to some employees and got "three or four marriage proposals."

"They were impressed by my big, fat figure," she said.

if mental hospital patients are given to understand they are incapable of assuming responsibilities, they will react by being thoroughly irresponsible.

Kissimmee, appropriately enough, is the Osceola County seat.

The screenplay was written by Dr. Frank G. Slaughter, famous Jacksonville novelist, and is based on his novel, "The Warrior", which had Osceola as its hero. And here is the appropriate word, since for a change, the book and film both are sympathetic to the Seminole cause.

When R. John Hugh, production chief of Empire Studio, which has headquarters at Orlando, started casting for the film, he settled for James Craig as Osceola because of the rugged actor's resemblance to historic descriptions of the war-

Science Today

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK—Science has acquired a bit more knowledge about one of the least understood of the known vitamins.

The unborn baby has such a "seeming avidity" for vitamin B12 that by the time he is born he has much more of it than his mother has—yet the mother seems to have quite enough left over for herself.

This clearly indicates that vitamin B12 plays a stellar role in the marvelous biological complex of mother-unborn child, but what role that is the new, big, exciting, and most difficult question.

Now comes the yet to be nailed-down indication of B12's big involvement in reproduction. This indication began with tests of 324 healthy adults to get an idea of how much B12 normally is in circulation in the blood.

Scientists Make Study
From these figures, four scientists got a line on how much vitamin B12 was in the blood of women 15 and 50 years old and not pregnant. This was the base for "paired" mother-infant studies in two hospitals, one in Norristown, Pa., the other in Houston, Tex.

At the time of deliveries, blood samples were taken from the mother and also from the babies by way of the umbilical cord. Consistently in both places, baby B12 was higher than mother B12. In some cases 100 percent higher. In a few it was five and six times higher.

The scientists were Dr. William P. Roger, Gilbert M. Payne, and George D. Beck of the University of Pennsylvania and Prof. Lemuel D. Wright of Cornell University. Their report was published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

In previous studies of B12 content of adult blood serum, scientists had established a maximum quantity and found that anything above that amount was unusual. Yet 28 of 36 infants had at the time of their birth B12 levels higher than that "critical value."

Could Not Explain Value
Some of the values noted were of the same order of magnitude as those "eliminated" from our analyses of normal adult subjects because of inability to explain such values," they reported.

"It was in these very cases that the differential between mother and infant serum concentrations of vitamin B12 was most marked. It almost seems that the infant had an avidity for vitamin B12 but not to the obvious detriment of the mother."

The uniformity of these observations in favor of the infant, 92 of 94 pairs, 92 percent high explanation," they said, adding that they had further studies in progress. They analyzed blood samples from Texas as well as from Pennsylvania to be sure that what they found in one state also obtained in a far distant place.

A geographical difference did appear—Texas mothers and babies generally had higher B12 levels than Pennsylvania mothers and babies. So did a sampling of nonpregnant Texas women. This, too, is unexplained.

NEVER HAD IT SO GOOD
NEW YORK—Side-walk supple-ment has agreed they never had it so good.

For their window convenience a 35-foot long observation deck and clubhouse, complete with picture window and a canopy, is being set up overlooking construction of the 70-million dollar Times and Life building.

The Picture Of Health

by Robert A. Aron, M.D.
Mind Over Matter via X-Ray

The effect of mind over matter, especially as it relates to upset of the digestive system and disorders of the small intestine, can now be detected by the probing eye of x-ray as used by your radiologist when he examines your stomach and intestine.

Worry, dread of an event and sorrow, for example, can affect the motor function of the small intestine, and authorities confirm the fact that emotional distress in itself can induce intestinal disturbances without even the patient's being deficient in food, stuffs or chemicals. Furthermore, emotional disturbance is probably the most frequent single cause of this condition.

A case in point is that of a man who recently went to his doctor for a thorough check-up. Nothing unusual was found. But later, when the patient learned for the first time that his son had broken the law and was sentenced to a 10-year prison term, x-ray examinations revealed a marked deviation in the normal functions of his gastrointestinal tract.

Another example was the intestinal behavior of some medical students. Under the fluorescence it was seen that when these difficulties were mentioned their stomachs ached or felt. Those whose stomachs rose to the occasion, it was found, usually passed through the of the dependent stomachs tended to fail.

In some isolated areas of the country, emotional causes, combined probably with dietary factors, lead to a habit known as "geophagia," the medical term for the practice of eating dirt. In some cases, radiologists have reported that pregnant women occasionally have been known to eat dirt. Men, on the other hand, rarely do.

Therefore, while the psychiatrist knows that many internal disorders stem from emotional upsets, he cannot always illustrate them graphically. So more and more, the radiologist is coming to his aid by substantiating many of his findings with x-ray methods.

An automobile went over the seawall along Lake Monroe about one mile north of the City Friday afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock.

Charles Edwin Kern, driver of the 1951 Olds 88 and Raymond LaFrance, both of Orlando, were uninjured with the exception of a few scratches and bruises.

The car, property of Colonial Motors in Orlando, was headed for Deland when, according to Kern, it went out of control, made a complete spin, and over the concrete retaining wall. "I didn't touch the brakes," said Kern.

Damage to the frame, right front door, and water was estimated at approximately $100 by Highway Patrol Trooper T. Mark Mack, investigating officer who was assisted by Deputy Sheriff Ed Coan.

"It could have been worse," Trooper Mack said. Tornadoes usually move in a northeasterly direction at 25-40 miles per hour.

Tighter Restrictions On Credit Would Be Harmful To Our Economy

Ask the average man whether his taxes should be cut, and he is virtually certain to reply briskly in the affirmative. Almost everyone would like to have things arranged so that his tax bill would be less than it is now.

There are two flies in the ointment of this pleasant dream. A substantial tax cut would require curtailing some of the things we expect the government to do. That kind of cut also would mean a return to deficit financing. Generally speaking, the public seems to want neither that nor a reduction in government service.

At recent hearings before a subcommittee of the joint economic committee of Congress, some thirty economists and financing experts were asked this question: "Is there any serious deficiency in either consumption or investment in the economy, or any prospect of recession, that would warrant tax cuts now, if such cuts would mean a return to deficit spending?" It is significant that, almost without exception, those questioned were opposed to cuts of such magnitude.

Most of the experts seemed to feel that inflation is the big threat to our economy at present. The government is trying to curb this tendency toward inflation through restrictions on credit and by maintaining budget surpluses. Money is tight enough as it is. Tax cuts that would bring the government back to deficit financing would probably result in an even tighter rein on credit and the harmful effects of that would be felt throughout our economy.

Room For Big, Small Businesses

Can the small business succeed and prosper in an economy in which there are also very large businesses?

That question is often debated—and at times the debates create more heat than light. A calm and sensible answer was recently provided by the president of one of the nation's big companies. He said it has been learned that no commercial organization, and especially one of great size, "can exist without creating certain social influences and thereby, acquiring responsibilities beyond those of a purely business nature." Then he added: "Among these responsibilities, I believe, is trying to help maintain an economy in which small and medium size business organizations can play their important roles. Large businesses are sometimes thought to favor practices which are unfair to small businesses. Nothing could be further from the truth. We are as anxious to see efficient small business firms succeed as are any of the so-called champions of small business—and we believe we are somewhat more practical in our approach at times."

There are areas of work—and extremely important areas—where the small business can do the job best, just as there are other areas where the large business, with vast human and financial resources, is needed. An often overlooked fact is that the big business is frequently a major customer of the small business, through sub-contracts and in other ways. Great numbers of small businesses could not exist if it were not for the large businesses. For instance, that segment of the oil industry with which most people have their personal contact is the service station. And the majority of service stations are independent small business operations.

The American economy is big enough, varied enough, and flexible enough to require the services of efficient businesses of every size and kind.

Food Prices

The price of food is in for much discussion again. So is what is known as the "spread," the difference between what the farmer receives for food products and what the consumer pays in the store.

The main reason for today's spread can be expressed in one word: Convenience. As U. S. News and World Report puts it, "The fact is that the housewife today demands something more of her grocer than she did a few years back. . . The modern homemaker wants tomatoes from Texas when they aren't available from nearby truck farms and gardens; instead of buying sugar in a twenty-five pound bag, she buys it in one or two pound boxes that fit neatly on the cupboard shelf. A pre-cooked, frozen beef pie that she can pop into the oven for a hurry-up meal is a timesaver for which she is willing to pay." It is said that a few years ago it took about five-and-a-half hours a day to prepare meals for a family of four. The same meals can now be prepared in one-and-a-half hours if the convenience foods are used.

A house organ published by one of the growers' associations also had something worthwhile to say on the subject: "What most growers do not realize is that food distribution is one of the most highly competitive of all U. S. businesses and most of the spread goes to pay for services consumers desire." It certainly does not go to make big profits. For instance, it is common for big food retailers, like the chains, to earn a profit as little as one cent on each dollar of sales.

What is true of food is true in principle of all retailing.

A man the Russians claim was 137 years old died recently in the Soviet Union. It's not that people really live longer under Communism, it's just that life gets so dull it seems longer.

It's hard to decide which is the official sign of the arrival of summer—the pictures of pretty girls seated on cakes of ice, or the pictures of pretty girls frying eggs on sidewalks.

State Government Costs Are Up

By EVERETT R. IRWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO — The trim-the-budget fever that has boosted political temperatures in Washington this spring has not proved contagious in state legislatures across the nation.

A United Press survey showed today that costs of state government are increasing at a faster clip than those of the federal government and that budget-cutting drives similar to the attack on President Eisenhower's budget occurred in only three states. Budgets presented to 1957 legislatures are up 10 to 20 per cent over last year. And the survey showed that the average state budget has increased by 31 per cent over the pre-Korean War year of 1949.

The 1957 federal budget of $71,800,000,000, on the other hand, represents an 81 per cent increase over the $39,500,000,000 expenditures of 1949.

Economists have done a lot of talking in the states but only in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Massachusetts have governors and legislatures squared off in budget fights as turbulent as the money differences between Eisenhower and the Congress.

All-Time Highs
Most state budgets reached all-time highs. The nation's biggest this year is in California where Gov. Goodwin J. Knight asked for almost $2 billion. New York State's budget is $1,600,000,000 but that includes only a portion of the $1,900,000,000 of New York City.

The 1957 Illinois budget is $1,100,000,000, those of Pennsylvania and Michigan around $1 billion. In contrast, Montana's government cost will be less than $36 million, and North Dakota expects to get by on about $48 million.

The U. P. survey shows that increases over the 1949 budgets run from only 22 per cent in the state

Veterans Corner

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to questions of current interest to former servicemen and their families:

Q. I am a totally disabled veteran and the premiums on my GI insurance policy are under waiver. If I die, will my beneficiaries get the full amount of insurance, or will something be deducted to cover the premiums I haven't been paying?

A. Your beneficiaries will get the full amount of insurance, even though your policy is under disability waiver and you are not paying premiums. Nothing will be deducted to cover the premiums you haven't paid.

Q. My deadline for starting Korean GI training comes in August, but school doesn't begin until September. Is there any way I can file my application before my deadline and start my schooling after the 1st?

A. Under the law you actually must begin your GI schooling before your starting deadline. It is not possible to apply beforehand and commence training after the deadline.

Q. I am eligible for War Orphans schooling. I am living with my mother who is planning to take a Government job in a foreign country. Could I go to college in the foreign country under the War Orphans program?

A. The law specifies that War Orphans schooling must be taken in an educational institution only in the United States or its possessions. That rules out a foreign country.

Q. Is there any deadline for applying for disability compensation?

A. There is no deadline. You may apply at any time in your life. However, if you apply within one year following your discharge from service, it may be possible for compensation payments to be back-dated to your first day in civilian life. If you wait longer than a year, payments may be effective only as of the date of application.

Cases Of Cross-Eyes Are Usually Curable

By NERMAN H. BUNDSIN, M.D.

LIKE many diseases, a case of crossed-eyes is an operation. Cases of crossed-eyes frequently is brought on by other causes heretofore.

While you yourself may not be cross-eyed, you can still pass it on to your child from your parents or some other relation. Perhaps it can be traced to an aunt or an uncle, or even a first cousin. But generally you can trace it to some member of the family. Naturally, there are several other causes of crossed-eyes. Some occur during delivery of the infant.

Tiny Hemorrhage
Compression of the baby's head in the birth canal can cause tiny hemorrhages in the brain. While such hemorrhages generally are absorbed and are not harmful, they sometimes hamper control of the baby's eye muscles by damaging the brain centers. This can result in a cross-eyed child.

Foreign delivery also can, on occasion, result in crossed-eyes. When pressure is applied to the baby's face and head by the instruments, there is a possibility that the eye muscles might be damaged.

Only One
The only cure for such cases of crossed-eyes is surgery.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
L. M.: My daughter has plantar warts. Would you advise? Answer: Plantar warts are best treated by means of X-ray. Usually, one or two X-ray treatments will cure them.

Health Hints

DR. A. W. WOODALL
FACTS ABOUT ARTHRITIS
According to a survey made by the U. S. Public Health Service, seven million persons in the United States suffer from some form of arthritis. One authority states that arthritis is twice as prevalent as heart disease, seven times as prevalent as cancer, and about ten times as prevalent as tuberculosis.

Arthritis is defined as inflammation of a joint. It causes the joint to become stiff and painful and sometimes swollen and deformed. The pain is usually severe. If the disease is not checked it causes the victim suffering, interferes with his work, and may make him a cripple for life.

There are, in general, two types—rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis.

Rheumatoid arthritis is more common among women than among men. It usually begins between the age of 20 and 40 but may occur at any age. It is most likely to occur in persons of the tall, lean, underweight type.

Oftentimes the cause of arthritis is not easy to find. In cases of rheumatoid arthritis it is well to consider the following as possible causes: Infection in the tonsils, teeth, sinuses, urinary tract, or bowels; too little rest or sleep; faulty posture; exposure to cold and dampness; chronic constipation; mental shock; anemia; overfatigue; undernourishment; poor circulation.

Osteoarthritis is found most frequently among elderly persons but oftentimes among the middle-aged. In this ailment the X-ray picture shows an overgrowth of bone about the affected joint. With the increase of this bony growth the joint becomes stiff, painful and deformed. Sometimes a creaking of the joint is observed.

The first symptoms of osteoarthritis are soreness, stiffness, and slight swelling in one or more of the joints. The patient may consider himself to be in good health and should understand why his joints should hurt or feel stiff.

As in the case of rheumatoid arthritis, the cause of osteoarthritis cannot always be fully determined. But it may be said that the most common immediate cause of osteoarthritis is injury to a joint or to several joints. Such injury may result from a sprain, twist, lifting, or a blow on the affected joint. Patients suffering from this type of arthritis are usually, but not always, overweight. The sheer weight of the body imposes strain on the aging and weakening joints. The disease appears most often in the weight-bearing joints, notably the hips, knees, ankles and spine. Sometimes the trouble is first noticed in the joints of the fingers.

As in rheumatoid arthritis, distal therapy applied to the joints usually affords considerable relief in osteoarthritis. A vitamin-rich diet, correction of postural defects by exercise and manipulation, avoidance of overexercise of the affected joints, and plenty of rest are all indicated in the treatment of osteoarthritis. If the patient is overweight, he should gradually reduce under the guidance of his doctor.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF
ARTEMUS WARD once sought a remedy for removing a war on his face, and was offered a case of the magic ointment left something to be desired — by the proprietor of the salve, anyhow. It read: "I used one jar of your remedy last night. This morning the wart, alas, remains undiminished, but my face has disappeared entirely."
"Nowadays," observes Don Freeman, "when you hear 'Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue,' you no longer can tell whether they're referring to a wedding trousseau or a TV comic's new act!"
A prisoner, just sentenced, told the judge, "I'm not such a rat as Your Honor (there he coughed discreetly) takes me to be." The judge glared and barked, "An extra thirty days for not putting your words closer together!"

Home Demonstration County Council Gives Dress Review In Longwood

Officers for the coming year were elected when the Home Demonstration Council met Thursday at the Longwood Library for the council meeting and dress review.

Named to head the group were president, Mrs. J. E. Andrews of Lake Monroe; first vice president, Mrs. George Otto of Longwood; second vice president, Mrs. W. P. Carter; Lake Hayes secretary, Mrs. Steve Miller; Chululota treasurer, Mrs. Carl Moss; Lake Mary; delegate, Mrs. John Clark of Sanford; alternate delegate, Mrs. S. E. Newwood of Elder Springs; and achievement day and fall chairman, Mrs. M. Hansen of Geneva.

The council is made up of eight towns in the county, Longwood, Geneva, Sanford, Elder Springs, Lake Monroe, Lake Mary, Chululota and Lake Hayes.

The president called the business session to order and reports were heard from the various committees.

Miss Myrtle Wilson welcomed the guests and invited them to "come back at any time."

The new club in Lake Hayes, which is called the "baby club" was welcomed into the council by Miss Wilson.

She then awarded certificates to a number of the members for their service and membership in the organization. They ranged from ten to 25 years.

The 4-H chairman thanked the group for sponsoring and eight members of the 4-H Club to Tallahassee for the short course, after which a letter was read from the girls also thanking the group.

The meeting was adjourned at noon for a buffet style luncheon. O. P. Herndon was the special guest for the day.

The individual tables were centered with colorful double hibiscus and miniature dolls, which were made by one of the committee members for the event.

Arrangements of files and carnations were placed around the room for the ladies to enjoy.

Following the luncheon the dress review began. Fifteen ladies modeled dresses they had made for the event, showing that each in her own way "could be thrifty and at the same time be smartly dressed."

The garments modeled were judged for perfection and ranged from play suits to evening apparel. The ladies said they had spent from four hours to two weeks making their items.

First prize went to Mrs. Alan Bonnell of the Lake Mary Club; second prize, Mrs. W. W. Clabath, Sanford Club; and third prize was won by Mrs. Vincent Matlock of the Longwood Club.

To complete a "sondierful" day the 31 ladies attending were given a copy of the National Home Demonstration Council song and accompanied by the piano, sang the phrases to conclude the day.

National Safe Boating Week To Be Observed June 30-July 6

Keen Rivalry Leads To Records Says Swimming Champ

One of the nation's outstanding women athletes says she would have set more records in her heyday, if competition had been keener.

But even then, she might have a hard time topping her own long list of accomplishments. Kathrine Rawls is the only woman elected to the Helms Hall of Fame for both swimming and diving. And she has won more championships than any other woman swimmer.

She said both swimming and diving are more difficult now than when she competed in the 1930's. Strokes are faster, and because of this increased speed, other women have broken some of her records.

More Complete

Miss Rawls also pointed out that competition is greater now. From 15 to 17 women may compete, compared to about three or four when she was diving.

Competition she said, is the secret of winning. Without it, there is no incentive. She also advises girls to specialize, instead of entering all phases of swimming and diving as she did.

The attractive blonde champion began swimming when she was a 6-year-old in Florida. Her brother and three sisters held Florida state championships, and her younger sister was a former star athlete at Michigan State College.

Kathrine won her first national title when she was 12 years old and was a member of the Olympic team when she was 11. She won 33 national titles for swimming and diving, became a member of the international hall of fame, placed a two Olympic medals and served on five United States Olympic squads.

Teaches Now

She was named "woman athlete of the year" in 1937 and became the only person to sit a double place on an Olympic team.

Kathrine also was the first woman swimmer invited to compete in Japan. She also has swum in South America, Canada, Europe and even has taught swimming in Anchorage, Alaska.

At present, she teaches at the Greenbrier Hotel in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. In the winter, she manages the Key Colony Beach pool at Marathon, Fla.

Team Produce Over $2 Million

By NEIL MARSHALL
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON 24—The 16 major league baseball teams produced $2,867,803 in net profits for their owners in the past five years.

An analysis of the financial statements of the clubs showed that the American League took the lion's share of the profits—$2,683,192. The eight National League teams showed a profit for the five-year period of only $184,611.

Some of the teams, like the Brooklyn Dodgers, the New York Yankees, the Washington Senators and the Chicago White Sox, have turned in profits in every one of the five years from 1952 through 1956.

Others, like the Philadelphia Phillies and the Pittsburgh Pirates, have lost money in every one of the five years.

The financial statements were made public last week by a House subcommittee that has been investigating anti-trust features of organized baseball, football, basketball and hockey.

It was the first time that financial reports of the major league teams have been disclosed.

The figures were given to the subcommittee by Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick.

Although swimming is Miss Rawls' chief interest, she also is a pilot. She became a flight instructor at the Fort Lauderdale airport. Then the Air Force tapped her to be in a guinea pig squadron for the "WAFPC".

Twenty-five women pilots were used in an experiment to determine the need for the group.

Kathrine also is active in the 99's—a national organization of women pilots. And she flies enough each year to keep up her license. Hot, she says, flying and swimming don't mix well so she has returned to her first love.

In spite of all the titles Kathrine has won she has very few cups or statuettes.

She explained that during the depression it was difficult to get trophies, so the winners got medals instead. And Kathrine Rawls has her share—about 400 medals.

Marbles Champions Crowned

MAYOR Thomas F. Shebell of Asbury Park, N. J., is pictured as he officiated at the coronation ceremony of the National Marbles Champion. The boy's name is Stan Herald, of Summerville, West Va., and the queen of the aggles is Lois Fusco, Yonkers, N. Y.

The Sanford Boat and Ski Club which is cooperating in the event. The week long observance is being sponsored by the Coast Guard Auxiliary, an affiliate of the U. S. Coast Guard.

Dr. A. W. Woodall, president of the local Boat and Ski Club said that thousands of boat owners and operators are using Lake Monocah and the St. Johns River for their recreation area and National Safe Boating Week is an important event of the year.

Boating has become the number one recreational activity in the country today with more and more individuals taking to the water each year for relaxation and recreation. With so many people engaged in boating, there is a definite need to observe safety practice on the water.

Statistics from the Industry Advisory Committee of the National Association of Boat and Engine Manufacturers indicate that there are approximately 25,000,000 Americans taking part in recreational boating. Today, something like 6 1/2 million pleasure craft are using America's waterways. This amounts to about one boat for every 29 persons in the United States. With the steady increase in the number of small pleasure boats plying the waterways, there will also be a proportional increase in the number of boating accidents.

Through its Public Instruction Courses and Courtesy Motorboat Examinations in which the Sanford Boat and Ski Club members are participating, the Coast Guard Auxiliary has successfully imparted safe boating knowledge to thousands of boatmen. However, that is but a very small part of the millions who should be reached. It is felt that the observance of the National Safe Boating Week will reach a much greater portion of those owners who, perhaps, have never realized that certain rules exist and should be followed. These rules were designed to aid boatmen. Knowledge of these rules is it is hoped, will save lives and prevent accidents which have been on the increase in recent years.

"Always remember, that on water, as well as on land, Courtesy and Safe practices go hand in hand.

The cooperation of every boat-enthusiast is urged to make National Safe Boating Week a success.

First - Check your boat for safety. Second - Observe rules for safe boating.

Third - Enroll in a safe boating course.

Auxiliary Courtesy Motorboat Examinations. Win yourself a "Deval" your boat. Win yourself a "Deval" your boat.

Volusia Kennel Club Expects Big Crowd 4th Of July

DAYTONA BEACH — June 24: With Daytona Beach jumping with tourists as never before the Fourth of July week at the Volusia County Kennel Club is expected to be a record smashing one as far as attendance is concerned.

Starting Monday, July 1 and extending through Saturday, July 6 greyhound enthusiasts will have a gala week of racing. For the first time in the track's history four matinees will be staged in one week. So many fans have requested daylight as well as evening performances that matinee racing will be held July 3, 5 and 6.

Reservations have been received from as far away as Washington, D. C. and San Antonio, Texas. Hundreds of persons from Atlanta, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Macon, Columbus, Miami, West Palm Beach, Orlando, Tampa and St. Petersburg have written for seats.

Matinee races start at 2 p.m. while the evening races begin at 8:15.

Rules For Safe Boat Riding

Many indoctrinated water enthusiasts, who lost their lives last year, would be alive today had they followed these rules:

1. Don't go out in bad or threatening weather. (Are small craft warnings flying?)
2. Wear your life preserver. (The weak form a life preserver that may injure you—even on a calm day.)
3. TELL people when and where you are GOING—don't go elsewhere. (Your chances of rescue are improved 100 per cent.)
4. EQUIP your BOAT properly. (Anchor? 2. Life Preservers? 3. Gas? 4. Spare gas? 5. Spare line? 6. Flashlight?) THEY MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE.
5. AVOID excessive or sudden bursts of SPEED. (You may be thrown overboard by a sudden turn, suddenly fluting the throttle, or hitting a floating object or unnoticed sharp wave. 2. Many injuries have occurred by the owners' runaway boat—in you, yourself not to mention bathers and other boats.)
6. BE A SWIMMER.
7. TELL you to alert that if you don't return within a REASONABLE time to NOTIFY THE COAST GUARD giving them full information.
8. IF YOU CAPSIZE HANG ON TO THE BOAT.
9. THINK—DON'T PANIC. (Thinking prevents accidents and aids rescue.)
10. DON'T OVERLOAD THE BOAT. (Have plenty of freeboard.)

NEW YORK 24—Jack Tighe, the fiery manager of the Detroit Tigers, said that his team has "nowhere to go but up" and while it may not win the American League pennant "we will decide just who does win it."

Tighe, enjoying his first season as a major league manager after 21 years of baseball wandering, picks the New York Yankees as the team to beat.

Whether his club does it depends, he thinks, on whether his hitters start to bang the ball consistently.

"If they hit like they can, we'll make a big run at it," he analyzed. "Our attack has been feeble at times and it is fortunate we are as close as we are. Ray Boone and Harvey Kuenn are the keys and if they don't start hitting we'll hover around the fourth spot all year."

Kuenn a Disappointment
Kuenn has been one of Tighe's chief disappointments. Last season he knocked in 84 runs from the leadoff spot. Up to Thursday he had batted in only 11 runs all season, with only three in the past four weeks.

"Jim Humming has been a big surprise for us," said the 42-year-old Tighe. "He's seven and one with a remarkable earned run average of 1.82."

There is a light mood about

Waters in the Sanford area have become a paradise for water skiers. The Citywide Recreation Program has included water skiing instructions in its program this year for the second year running.

Skiers are taking to the water day after day in search of recreation that they say "cannot be equalled."

The fun and thrills of water skiing are enjoyed today by more than 1,000,000 Americans. A direct outgrowth of the nation's number one participation sport, outboard boating, water skiing is also rated one of the simplest sports to master. It may look difficult, but experts say that students from seven to 70 have learned the tricks in just a few short lessons.

With some 16,000,000 Americans taking to the water for a summer of outboard cruising fun, more thousands will enter the water ski ranks this season thanks to a couple of carefree Franco-Alpine troopers who enjoyed a leave on the Riviera back in the 1920's.

The troopers insisted on taking their skis with them to the Mediterranean resort. With no snow, they experimented with skiing on the water. It worked.

Prior to World War II, water skiing was limited to expensive, heavy craft, but with the post war advent of low cost, lightweight outboard boats and outboard motors in wide horsepower ranges, the sport has mushroomed with still no end in sight.

"Anyone who really wants to, can learn to water ski," says Bruce Parker, holder of some 40 national and international water skiing titles.

Often a single 20-minute lesson is enough to convey the fundamentals of the sport, Parker says, adding that many times a newcomer can be prepared for competition after only two months' intensive practice.

As with snow skiing, selection of proper skis is the first and perhaps the most important step, Parker offers this table for the selection of proper water skis:

If the student is between 50 and 120 pounds, a ski 5 feet 6 inches long is required; between 120 and 160 pounds, a 5 foot 9 inch ski is required; and between 160 and 225 pounds, a ski length of 6 feet 3 inches is necessary.

The class room for the first instruction is the beach.

The student, Parker says, should put on the skis and then sit on them with the legs bent tight against the chest. Then a trained skier should hold the student's feet in a low line and pull the student up to a squatting position.

By repeating this procedure a number of times, the novice will soon get the "feel" of the starting position so he'll properly relax and learn to flex his legs just as he will when starting in the water.

With this step mastered, Parker says, "wet runs" should be started. These will, of course, be a number of sudden, perhaps unexpected submersions, but in a sort of period of time the student will be on his feet—for good, enjoying the fun of slicing across the water's surface.

The Chief's Wives Club had their meeting last Thursday night, and the main topic under discussion was tomorrow night's visit from "Augie," the hair-stylist, they "ironed out" some of the last minute details, such as refreshments, etc. Remember, if you're a member of the Chief's Wives Club, the Enlisted Men's Wives Club, or the Chief's Wives Club, you are cordially invited to attend this demonstration. There will be one girl representing each of the clubs who will appear on Augie's "Enchant Mirror" television show at 7:00 P. M. tomorrow night, over WDBO-TV. Be sure and watch for these girls. I'm sure you'll know one of them, and it's always fun to see someone you know on television! Betty Place will represent the Enlisted Men's Wives Club; Mary Muntz will represent the Officer's Wives Club; and Rita De-Jong will represent the Chief's Wives Club. Augie and the girls will head for Sanford immediately following the show, and are expected by 8:30 P. M. at the latest. It's only common courtesy for the audience to be there and seated well before the guest speaker is to start; so a final plea that you try to get there by 8:00 P. M. just to be on the "safe" side. Remember, watch the girls on T.V. at 7:00 P. M. and come see them with Augie at 8:00 P. M. at the Chief's Club! Alice and Tom Drake had their vacation plans unexpectedly changed by a homesick little girl; namely their young daughter, Malissa, Malissa left last week with Alice's sister Martha Rubin, for Norfolk, Virginia. Mom and Dad were planning to go on leave in a couple of weeks, but Alice had a plaintive call, and took a plane to Norfolk on Saturday afternoon, leaving Tom to follow as soon as he can arrange things!

a. m. "kiddie show" will have "The Man from Oklahoma," with Roy Rogers, and "The Return of Wild Bill," with Bill Elliott. Remember, this is the new show especially for the "kids," and it's only $10 for those over twelve years of age, and merely $5 for those under twelve!

Newsworthy and otherwise, this has been a very uneventful weekend for me. Did make one BIG mistake though! Tried to take Massey shopping with a new leash and collar, and found out he's just not having any! Well, trial and error you know!

The Picture Of Health

By Robert A. Aron, M.D.
Warts

While science has made great strides in the treatment of many diseases, warts, like the common cold, remain a medical mystery. For centuries, these have been one of man's minor plagues and range in size from a pin head to a green pea.

Sometimes painful, they may appear suddenly, then fatten out and disappear just as quickly. In some instances, a wart has been known to disappear between the initial examination in a doctor's office and the date set for removal a week or ten days later. And often when one wart is treated, others around it will vanish.

Children and teen-agers are most frequently afflicted and women more often than men. But contrary to popular belief, warts are not acquired from animals. Nor is it true that they are caused by handling frogs or toads. After such diseases as mumps or chicken pox, our bodies acquire an immunity that usually protects us from a recurrence during the rest of our lives. But with warts this is not so, and about 90 percent of those who have warts will suffer other similar infections later.

Research seems to indicate that these pests are caused by a virus, though little is known about the virus itself. However, warts are known to be infectious, and injections made from one person's warts will produce them in another. And when one is scratched, a string of new warts may grow along the scratch.

The scanty information that exists about the nature of the wart virus is one stumbling block to a sure cure. And even more puzzling is the mysterious tendency of warts to disappear suddenly. If you are troubled by this pest what should you do? In the first place, do not try and treat them yourself. If small scars are not important, your physician may anesthetize the warts and remove them surgically, or with an electric needle. Or he may freeze them with liquid nitrogen, forming blisters under them and causing them to peel off.

Or your doctor may refer you to a radiologist. This physician may treat your wart with x-rays. In some stubborn cases, a doctor may try a combination of several of these treatments.

CHAPTER I
I SAW Joe Pardee die. It was like . . . But how can I tell what it was like? No man can tell how it would be if a great mountain disappeared within a few seconds, or if the sun that was in the sky one minute was not there the next. Joe had been that kind of man to me as long as I'd known him. I remember that last morning well, even little details that are not important.

When I left the bunkhouse, the sun was just coming up over the Cedar Hills to the east, the sky as blue as I had ever seen it. I washed in the cold water flowing out of the pipe into the horse trough, so cold that, even in early September, it shocked me awake. I ran a wet hand through my hair, looked at the dark shadows that clung to the Cedar Hills, and then, turning, started across Easter Valley to the Sangre de Cristo range that pricked the sky.

He nodded and we nodded back, and he kept on eating. Maria, the Pardee's Mexican housekeeper, brought the coffepot and filled our cups, plodded back to the stove, and returned with a platter of bacon and flapjacks. A moment later Dogbone, the Ute kid who did the chores, slipped in and sat down and began to eat. He was eighteen, squat, heavy-featured and greasy-faced. He'd worked here since he was fourteen, and he had developed the same blind devotion to Sarah that Dillingham had for Joe.

He and I both idolized Joe, but that was about all we had in common. He hated Joe's wife, Sarah, and claimed she was a drag on him because she was confined to a wheel chair by a back injury from a riding accident. It was a stupid reason for hating her, because nothing could be a drag on Joe. He did want her to die, regardless of anyone else's opinion or feelings, even his wife's.

Gene stayed at me for a long moment, then wiped a sleeve across his face. "Good day for dying," he said, and swung around and strode toward the kitchen. I followed him, thinking how like his words were. It pleased him to see men die in front of Joe Pardee's gun. There had been many, right back to the year Joe had built a cabin on the East Fork of Easter Creek and started the Box P.

Today it would be another man, a young fellow named Al Beam. Maybe Beam hoped to cut a new injury on his gun, or maybe he had been hired by that ragtag bunch of farmers camped in the cottonwood grove just above Carlton.

Joe was already seated at the table when Gene and I pulled back our chairs and sat down. "I heard Sarah say very clearly: 'You're destroying me, Joe. I know that doesn't make any difference to you, but you're destroying yourself, too. That should make some difference.'"

He nodded and we nodded back, and he kept on eating. Maria, the Pardee's Mexican housekeeper, brought the coffepot and filled our cups, plodded back to the stove, and returned with a platter of bacon and flapjacks. A moment later Dogbone, the Ute kid who did the chores, slipped in and sat down and began to eat. He was eighteen, squat, heavy-featured and greasy-faced. He'd worked here since he was fourteen, and he had developed the same blind devotion to Sarah that Dillingham had for Joe.

Essence Of Small Town

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP)—What is the real essence of a rural small town? Well, there have been some changes made in the last couple of generations, but the way Toby Bruce figures it, if you ain't got whittlers, checker players, and nicknames it's not the real thing.

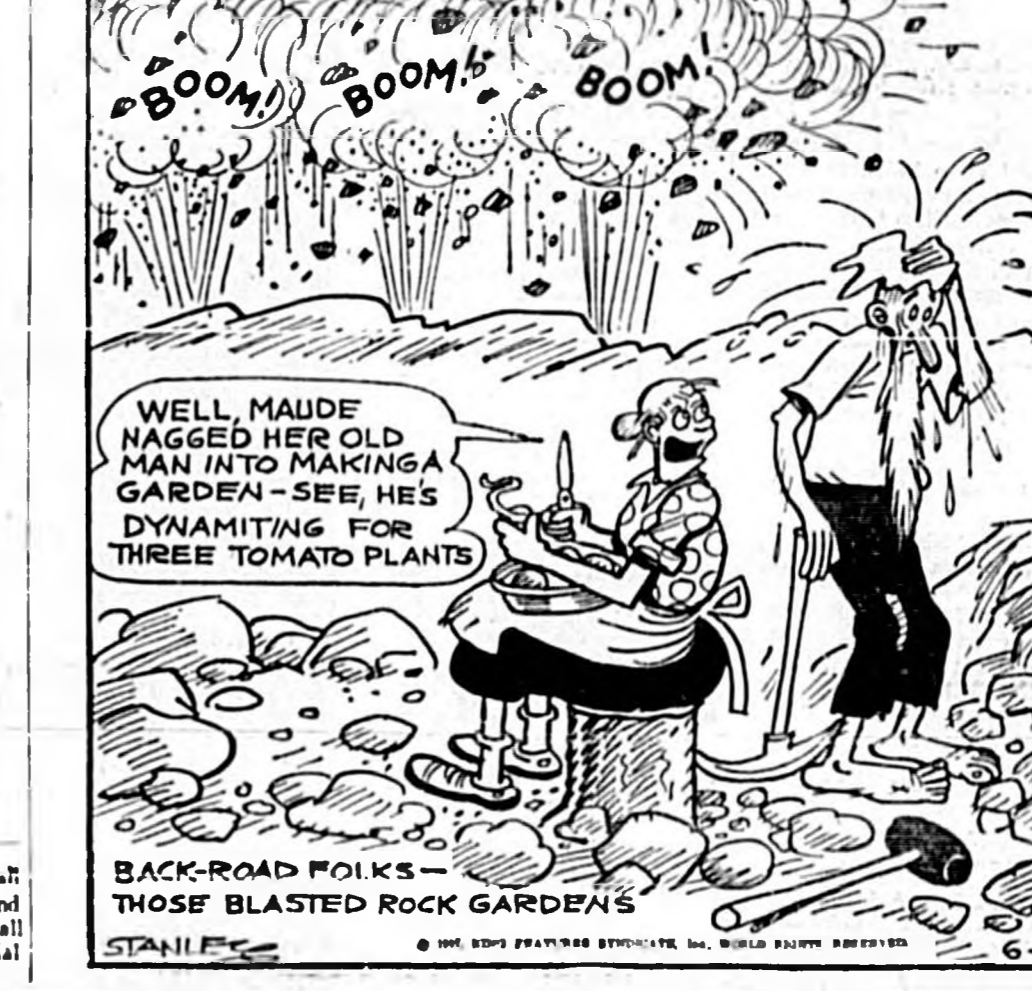

These are basic ingredients of the old-time midwestern type of small town, like Piggott, Ark., a place of some 3,000 ruggedly independent souls where Toby grew up. If you're a whittler in Piggott, you're right-most part middle age and are semi-retired, and about 8 o'clock every morning you take your place on one of the wooden benches under the maple trees on the north side of the courthouse.

Anybody who whittles toward himself is a real square. You don't whittle to carve out anything; you just do it for the art of whittling. Early next morning, a handyman cleans the courthouse yard of the piles of shaving, and the process is repeated. If you're not a whittler, you may be a checker player, and you inhabit the same region, playing and the director first asked him

Impressive Ceremony Closes Brownie Day Camp

THE "CUP TREE DEN" girls show off some of their artist and craft work while visitors came to see them last Friday as the Brownie Scout Day Camp closing ceremonies were held. Each group

By VIRGINIA CONN
As the color guard pulled down the flag and the sad, sweet notes of Taps resounded through the trees, the Silver Lake Brownie Day Camp ended this year's activities. Friday afternoon, parents, friends, brothers and sisters came to the camp site on the shores of Silver Lake to visit the unit camps and see what the Brownies had accomplished in their week of camping. After an open house and visiting period, the ceremonies started with Mrs. Evelyn Bowles' Oak Tree unit singing an Elephant song and dance. These are the Brownies who have been in scouting only a year, and next year will enter third grade. Their eager faces alternated between fun and anxiety at performing properly. Much applause rewarded them as the dance was completed.

The Brownie Den, led by Mrs. Louis Hoop, sang and acted "Mrs. Rabbit", a most amusing tale that ended with the entire unit hopping out of the clearing. Mrs. Richard Conn assisted Mrs. Hoop. A cardboard skunk was both painted and recited by the "Stinkers", led by Mrs. E. E. Astin. These girls are the Fly-ups, and will become Girl Scouts next year. Their days as Brownies are over. A snappy song about "Sweet Mollie O'Grady" and another skunk skit were acted out and thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

Mrs. Thomas Drake, director of the Brownie Day Camp introduced the dignitaries who attended and thanked all who had helped. Only a few of those invited were unable to come, which reveals the growing interest with which the Girl Scout program is regarded.

Mr. "Slim" Galloway represented Sheriff Hobby, and was first on Mrs. Drake's list. The sheriff's men have patrolled the camp all week and kept a man at the gate every night to prevent the damage and shaking activities that had been spoiling the grounds. Mr. Sidney Vihlen was thanked for his cooperation on the camp. Silver Lake campsite is jointly owned by the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, and they must adjust themselves to its use accordingly. Mr. William Morrison, performed a most necessary service in making a door for the latrine (the old one had been torn off by vandals); his credit was necessary carpenter. Mrs. Ralph Wight organized the tent placement and was responsible for care of the campsite. Mr. Robert Cobb, had the site leveled and cleaned with the help of the Boy Scouts Mrs. Fred Robb, recognized in every phase of G. S. donated her wonderful girls as assistants in crafts, story reading, water front, first aid and many, many other activities. It was stated that without the Girl Scouts, the camp would have had a difficult time. Helping were Sally Robb, Nancy Johnson, Judy Robb, Melinda McMurray, Diane Pate, Ana Lundy and Laura Chase.

CONSTABLE J. Q. "SLIM" GALLOWAY HOLDS TWO Brownie Scouts up in the air as all of the girls swarm around him in appreciation for his help in patrolling their camp site on Silver Lake during their Day Camp. "I've never seen such a wonderful group of girls," said Constable Galloway. (Staff Photo)

HUNGRY THIEF

HONOLULU 28—A thief broke into a restaurant Tuesday and stole 15 pounds of ham, 10 pounds of stew meat, 6 pounds of margarine, 5 pounds of uncooked pork, 4 pounds of fish, 1 dozen eggs, 100 pounds of rice and a case of canned cream. He also took a small double-burner electric stove.

Texas produced 6,916 million gallons of natural gas liquids, valued at $153 million during 1956.

Mrs. James Buckler brought water and ice to and from the campsite every single day. And this was no easy job. Mrs. John Lundy of Otisland, a nurse, manned the first aid tent, but fortunately had only minor cuts, mosquito bites and sunburn to medicate. Marty Millspaugh was the consultant and could take some of the credit for the songs that we heard at the ceremonies. Mrs. Margaret Lydall drove the bus out and back every day from town. Mrs. Drake also thanked Mr. Milwood, County school superintendent, and the health officer for testing the water; Julie Chase, through whose efforts the Brownie Day Camp was possible; Frances Cobb, and her able assistants, Sue Kennedy, Ruth Norwell and Louise Stuhr were responsible for the excellent waterfront program. Swimming was enjoyed everyday, and many of the girls learned how this past week.

The newspapers were thanked for their assistance in publicity; and of course, those who did the real work, the unit leaders and their assistants. These were Jackie Austin, and Betty Brown, Fly-ups, Marge Hoop and Bertha Conn, Fourth graders, and Evelyn Bowles and Betty Powell, Third graders.

Mrs. Randall Chase thanked Mrs. Drake, and the camp director was the object of much applause. The singing of "Our Chale" and "America", preceeded the playing of Taps. Then it was all over for another year, and the children were departing with parents, loaded down with the crafts and ready to demonstrate newly learned skills. Decorated ice-cream cartons (some with leaves, some spatter paint, or nature scenes) were filled with oil cloth stumps, boards of shells for beautiful pictures, and name tags of wool. The shells were donated by Mr. Colman.

Mrs. Robb provided the last can that held ice, and City Products donated the ice. The success of the Silver Lake Brownie Day Camp depended on so many people that I am sure several have been left out of this article. But even if they have not been thanked publicly, either by Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Drake, or myself, they will know in their hearts that their helpfulness has done something fine for the Brownie Scouts of Seminole County.

Conning The News

By VIRGINIA CONN
Thursday night Earl and Crela Higginbotham entertained for Jim and Louise Parker, as ever, dinner was superb and dancing was enjoyed in the ever-still Higginbotham garage. One minute it is a garage, the next a wash house (mean to say laundry) — and then with the addition of a few plastic chairs and tables, it becomes the perfect spot to have a party. Included were Judy and Jack Smith, John and Kean Ivey, John and Jean Dooley, Dave and Lew Cunliff, Harry Robson, Helen and Andy Caraway, Caroline and Jimmy Crapps, Gretchen Hall, Jane and Cliff McKibbin, John and Janie Miller and us.

Friday kept us busy for a number of reasons. By the way, it was Jackie Crawford's twenty-fifth birthday. Hope she made her annual trip to Ponce de Leon Springs. John and Jean Dooley, Jane and John Miller and Bob and I had a cocktail party for Louise and Jim Parker at the Dooley's house. The usual things happened, like maids not coming and so forth, but all turned out well. Betty Guy did the flowers, which were magnificent. Over one of the mantels in Jean's tremendous living room, she placed a blown-up snapshot of Jim and Louise water-skiing, a sport at which they both excel. Fern and hibiscus surrounded this. A smaller picture had two lines leading to a huge bank of gladioli, cressanthemums and philodendron. The shore was represented by a lacy sea fan sprinkled with shells. This was placed on the punch table. On the desk Betty filled an ancient chest with jewels and flowers and more shells—using much driftwood too, of course. Driftwood is one of Betty's manias. About sixty-five came to wish Jim and Louise goodbye. Plans are now in motion to give a party for those who aren't going anywhere. But meanwhile, it is amazing to see so many friends Jim and Louise have who wish to entertain for them. Their house on Lake Mary has become headquarters for swimmers and water-skiers, they are an established and important part of nearly every social event. Gee, we hate to see them go. And their wonderful children, Jimmy Jeannie and Suzie.

Jack and Judy Smith left Sunday morning, so Friday night was their formal goodbye too. Others attending were Helen and Andy Caraway, Barbie and Jack Morrison, Alice and Ernie Mills, John and Dave Todd (they leave Wednesday for Atlanta and I. B. M.), Lou and St. Johnson, Gretchen Hall Tom Blackburn, Elaine Libbey Harry Robson, Marge and Bill Hill, Dusty Rhodes, Lee and Dave Cunliff, Betts Linker, Earl and Crela Higginbotham, John Rareform and Kean Ivey, Cliff and Jane McKibbin, Ruth and Forrest Norwell, Betty Guy, Trella Michel (Mike sick in bed), Cy and Jean Fitton, Bob and Lorraine Langford, Ed Winters, Harriet Williams, Tommy and Penny Peterson, Bill and Betty Lemos, Francis and Dottie Roumillat.

Lou Johnson was honored last week with a luncheon in the private dining room at Jim Spencer's. Hostesses were Gretchen Hall and Kay Dwyer. Individual fans were made into corsages with spring flowers for each guest. The centerpiece was a large double fan with lovely daisies and carnations peeking through it and around it. Lou was presented with a silver cigarette urn, and the tears flowed like wine. Attending were Elaine Bass, Katie Cummings, Rusty Lilleboe, Doris Francisco, Dot Mann, Thelma McMurray, Olivia Simmons, Shirley Youngblade, Betty Wight, Connie Young, Arlene Bryant, Pat Knight, Marty Millspaugh and Betty Guy.

Elaine Bass gave a dessert bridge for Kay Dwyer Friday afternoon. Kay left Saturday for Norfolk, Corpus Christi and Europe, in that order, and will be gone for some time. Playing bridge were Lou Johnson, Doris Francisco, Dot Mann, Lois Peterson, Eunice Yount and Gretchen Hall. Lou won first and Doris came away with the booty.

The Staff enjoyed a steak dinner Saturday night, when they dined on Bill and Betty Lemos for the evening. The Lemoses have a lovely back yard, just made for cooking outside. Present at this affair were Marge and Bill Hill, Tom Blackburn, Betts Linker, Betty Guy, George and Marge Dickerson, Jean and Cy Fitton, Diane and John Sawyer, Louise and Jim Parker, Arlene and Marge Dickerson, Jean and Gordon Backer, Pat and Dave Todd, Blanche and Don Zeibel, and Ed Winter.

Was so sorry to hear that Dusty Rhodes' father died Saturday morning. Mr. Rhodes was known by many in this area, as he and Mrs. Rhodes have spent the last two winters here. Dusty has of course gone home to North Carolina.

Met VAN's new P. L. O. officer Friday at the Brownie Day Camp. I am informed that he is another eligible bachelor, and this time even I will have no problem spelling his name. It is McCarthy. He has some very large shoes to fill, but looks extremely capable. All one has to do is to make a mountain out of a molehill, and it gets easier all the time. This comes under the heading of "Stories I would like to tell, but do not have the courage." I am practicing the art of tolerance, thus the relating sentences that might have made sense in the above, but were intolerant have been deleted. So if none of it makes sense do the good-bye until tomorrow.
