Airport authority sued over fuel sales

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Jett Aire Group Inc. on Thursday filed suit against the Sanford Airport Authority, saying that the authority broke a contract by allowing a competitor to sell fuel at the Orlando Sanford Airport.

Jett Aire claims it has suffered damages because a competitor, Sunjet Aviation Inc., has also been allowed to sell fuel to corporate jets and small planes. The suit seeks unspecified damages from the authority and Sunjet, alleging that Sunjet engaged in improper fueling activities.

Sunjet officials denied the allegations in the suit.

Sunjet is the charter operator of the Learjet 35 that crashed in a farm pasture in South Dakota on Monday, killing six, including golf champion Payne Stewart. The lawsuit is not related to the crash.

The complaint obtained through the office of Jett Aire attorney William B. Pringle also objects to the airport authority allowing OSI, Inc. and TBI, Inc. to fuel domestic aircraft at the Orlando Sanford Airport.

The authority signed the agreement with OSI and TBI that allowed them to sell fuel in August. The suit alleges that the agreement was a rule violation because neither TBI or OSI are "fixed base operators," to sell fuel to jetliners.

Airport rules only allow fixed base operators to sell fuel, according to the suit.

Since the agreement with OSI and TBI was signed, Pringle said that revenues for Jett Aire have sharply fallen.

In August, Pringle said Jett Aire's revenues have dropped 50 percent compared with August 1998. Revenues for September have dropped 57 percent from the same time last year.

"That's even with the addition of Pan Am," Pringle said. "We are fueling Pan Am's planes, and yet our revenues are still falling."

Executives from the Sanford Airport Authority and Jett Aire could not be reached for comment.

Group hopes to raise awareness of domestic abuse

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Safehouse of Seminole sponsored a public awareness press conference designed to draw attention to the continuing problem of Domestic Violence with a noon memorial service on the steps of the Seminole County Court House Thursday.

The non-profit organization is the domestic violence center for Seminole County, dedicated to ending the cycle of domestic violence and providing emergency shelter to victims and their children, educational programs, outreach services and a 24-hour hotline.

A total of 17 deaths were attributable to domestic violence in the Central Florida area in 1998. Statewide, 217 people were killed as the result of domestic violence.

Safehouse board president Jeanne Gold highlighted a number of guest speakers at the memorial dedication that included County Judge Carmen Bravo, Mother Blanche Bell Weaver, Director of Rescue Outreach Mission of Sanford, Tracie Kay and Pete Hickey of Central Florida Legal Services and others.

Gold told the small gathering that oftentimes women are questioned by others about why they fail to leave abusive relationships.

"Seventy-five percent of women who leave abusive relationships are killed after they leave. Many are paralyzed by the fear of taking that step. They are told by their boyfriends and husbands, 'if you leave I'll kill you.'"

Gold encouraged communities, the judicial system and

"We need to get entire communities to think 'if that were my daughter, or favorite sister that was being abused,' there would be more immediate action."

Sanford says good-bye to Bartholomew

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

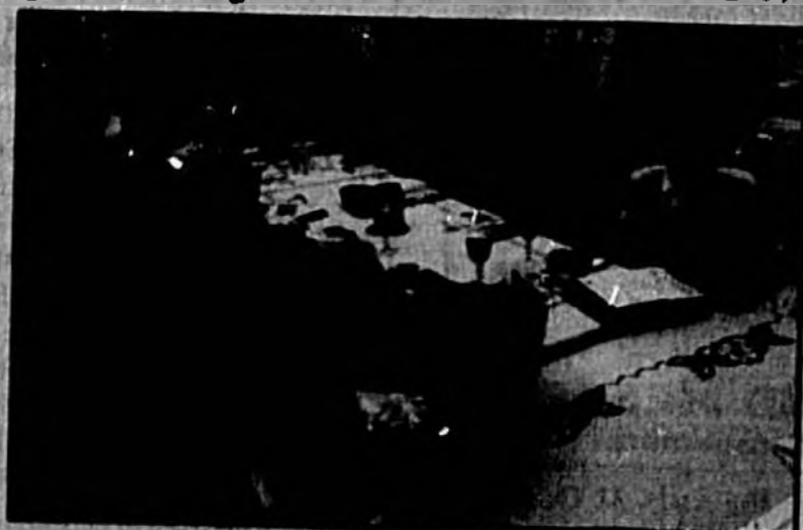

SANFORD — One of Sanford's leading proponents to further arts and economic growth in the city is moving next week to Annapolis, Md.

In the nearly 40 years Kay Bartholomew has lived in Sanford, she helped found the Ritz Theater Board of Directors, operated the First Street Gallery, organized St. Lucia festivals downtown, and helped establish Sanford Main Street, Inc.

Now, Bartholomew is moving to Annapolis to spend more time with family.

"I hate to leave," Bartholomew said. "I'm going to miss Sanford."

Bartholomew moved to Sanford in 1959 with her late husband, Commander Barton Bartholomew, a U.S. Navy pilot. Two years later, the couple moved back to California because of a Navy transfer, but within a year the two returned

"We moved around a lot," Bartholomew said. "The Navy usually only kept us in one place for two years."

After Barton Bartholomew's death in 1964, Kay raised the couple's two children in Sanford. In that time, she also became an active member of the community.

"The big thing for me has always been the economic growth of Sanford," Bartholomew said. "The people

Police prefer Saturday for Halloween

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The City of Longwood gets an early start on weekend Halloween activities with its annual Haunted House at the police department tonight. The event runs from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. and paves the way for day-long activities on Saturday. Events scheduled to run from 1 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. include a Longwood costume party, a carnival, and continued spooky activities at the haunted house.

Most Seminole County municipalities have chosen to celebrate Halloween on Saturday, Oct. 30 instead of Sunday, Oct. 31.

Local police agencies and the Seminole County Sheriff's office have expressed concern over the rash of Orange County traffic accidents involving school children combined with the fact daylight-saving time takes effect overnight Saturday, meaning darkness will come an hour earlier Sunday when Halloween

Public housing residents march in front of Dale's home

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Chanting "Save the park, help the poor," an estimated 35 public housing residents picketed Sanford Mayor Larry Dale's house on Thursday.

Members of Sanford Tenants Organizing for Reform of Management (STORM) along with two dozen children were protesting against a proposed ordinance that would regulate new social service agencies coming into the downtown historic district.

"The poor people are being kicked to the curb, and it's not right," said Jacqueline Simms. "This is all about drawing minorities away from the downtown area. We minorities will oust him (Dale) from power, along with the rest of the commission."

Protesters also discussed their opposition to the proposed hotel and conference center on a portion of Fort Mellon Park.

The protest within the tranquil Keywood neighborhood of Sanford started at 5 p.m. and lasted nearly an hour, ending without incident.

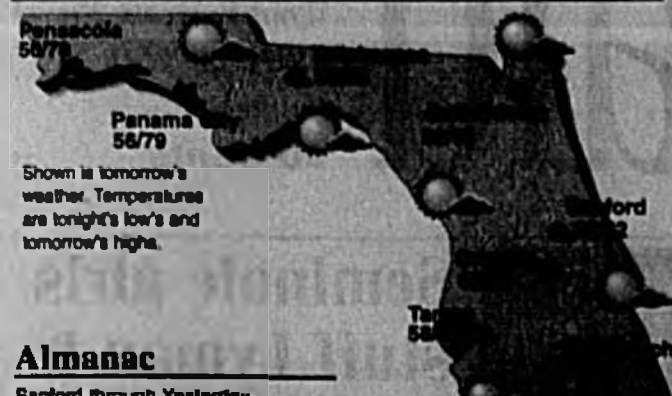

Dale said that existing social service programs in the downtown historic district would not be affected. The purpose of the ordinance, Dale said, is to enable the City Commission to regulate social service programs entering the area.

Six stars for Carlton Henley

The other day, while idling at a stoplight on State Road 46A, I caught a glimpse of the county chairman through my rear view mirror. Carlton Henley and a grandson - a Little League baseball player - seemed to be enjoying themselves.

The chairman is a rock solid family man - good husband, father, grandfather.

This, I believe, has helped him serve the county well the past 12 months. I like to think of the board of commissioners and county staff as being part of his family. At 67, Henley's father and grandfather to all but a few of the county's employees.

His reputation, we all know, stems from having been Lyman High School's rock solid principal for 31 years. How tough was the principal at Lyman? Well, there's this fine portrait of Henley dressed in military garb. On his helmet: six stars. Ike had but five. Henley was tough. Still is.

As part of the editorial board that endorsed Henley when he ran for the commission last year, I half-expected the ex-principal might want to make the county his principality. That hasn't happened. The chairman has governed thoroughly, wisely, honorably.

At times, I've wondered how a man with such a great family would want to get himself either on top of - or mired in - the county's political process.

Russ White

Win Adams, whose seat Henley claimed last year, called it "deep doo-doo." Henley hasn't complained, though. At least not publicly.

He expected to have the support of commissioners Dick Van Der Weide and Grant Maloy, who not only campaigned for him but who went out of their way to deride Win Adams. Even Henley had to be embarrassed at some of the pranks. Well, maybe not.

From the looks of things, it has been Randy Morris - not Van Der Weide nor Maloy - who has been most supportive to Henley the past year. The two have worked well together. No two commissioners seem to be on the same page - the right page - as often as Henley and Morris, the county chairman three of the previous four years.

Whatever the Year 2000 election results, Henley and Morris are going to be the anchors of the county commission for at least two more years. If the voters aren't satisfied with the others on the board, they can elect three new members next year.

To be sure, Henley has not tolerated the pettiness that previously existed between board members. He warned everyone at the start that there would be no personal insults.

Henley hasn't allowed debates, themselves, to become political. "Six-star" Henley doesn't care for idle chatter. Say what's important and then stop. Get on with the agenda.

It impresses me that Henley doesn't view everything in black and white. After hearing the opinion of the other board members, he's changed his mind on issues. He's been flexible. His board will be remembered for more for basics rather than innovations. Sticking to business is innovative in itself because of Henley.

For the most part, 1999 has been a quiet year for county government. The fire/rescue and public decency ordinances were resolved before Henley took office. Preparing the 1999/2000 budget wasn't a piece of cake but neither was it deep doo-doo.

One last thought about Carlton Henley. He has a sense of humor. I bet he's laughing at all of this. See.

Russ White's column appears Tuesday through Saturday in the Seminole Herald.

Listening to Mean Gene's Gospel Radio show

Chanukah gala planned for Dec. 4

Chabad of Greater Orlando will host its Grand Menorah Lighting and Chanukah Gala at Church Street Station, in the Church Street Market Courtyard, Saturday, Dec. 4, at 8 p.m.

In years past, Chabad has held a Grand Menorah Lighting at the Altamonte Mall. After last year's event, it was evident attendance had grown too large for the mall's capacity. Statistics have shown American society has become more understanding and accepting of Chanukah as a recognized calendar event.

"With that in mind, it seems most appropriate to host such an event in the open arena of a public city street where all people can celebrate together," said Jeff Bander, one of the chairmen on the Chanukah committee.

The event will include a Menorah lighting, greetings from dignitaries, donuts, hot latkes, dreidels, balloons, live music, Chassidic and traditional dancing, Chanukah gett, Grand Menorah Display and Israeli entertainer Yoel Sharabi.

"You're listening to the Mean Gene Gospel Hour on WTRR Power 1400 A.M."

Mean Gene, is Mr. Eugene Butler III. He was born in Key West but has spent most of his life in Sanford. He plays mean drums, installs sound systems, hosts picnics, class reunions, weddings and Christian parties.

Last February, Butler said he was called to a ministry at WTRR Radio in Sanford. His show would be the real thing. He'd reach out to the area's "young youth." They would be able to identify with the name Mean Gene.

Mean Gene isn't mean, of course. It is what he preaches and the music he plays that have meaning.

Mean Gene's radio ministry began as a 1-day, 1-hour program from 6 to 7 a.m. on Sundays. Then, it became a 2-hour program Monday through Friday. At present, Butler is on from 9 a.m. to noon each weekday. He follows Leroy "Good Morning to You" McClendon, whose gospel program airs from 6 to 9 a.m.

"The station is pleased with the gospel shows," says WTRR general manager Joe Episcopo.

"It's a new direction for us. We do this not as a commercial endeavor but for the good it may do for the community."

"That's it precisely," Butler said. "There are troubled souls — troubled young souls. Many have called this show — 14-year-olds, 16-year-olds. We get as many as 75 calls each day. You have to figure many more are listening. God's blessing us."

On Thursday morning, The Rev. Thomas Williams was in the studio to lend Butler encouragement. He sat on a high stool next to the host's table. Butler was playing "Fix Me Jesus" from a compact disc.

Butler, 40, said he graduated from Seminole High School, that he played in the school's marching band, concert band and jazz band. For a number of years, he played drums for hip-hoppers, but after the Motown sound gave way to music and parties he did not care for, Butler turned more to church and gospel.

"Five years ago, I envisioned doing something like what I am doing now," he said. "It took time. When I was told about a possible opening at WTRR, I was ready. This was the opportunity to reach out."

The first thing people told Butler was to change his name. Mean Gene wouldn't do in gospel.

"Why not?" he said. "I didn't want to sugar coat anything."

Butler said he relied on self promotion, donations and limited advertising to keep on the air.

"We always need help, and we seem to get it," he said. "I walked away from a $38,000 a year job to do this. To draw lost souls and mend broken hearts."

Sometimes Butler sings along with the gospel music he has at the station, more than 350 compact discs and a couple hundred record albums.

As the Mean Gene Gospel Hour was winding down Thursday, Butler was playing

"Catch His Fire, Catch His Flame."

Next on the WTRR schedule was a program of Spanish love songs — Su Nuevo Amor. "Your New Love," Joe Episcopo said.

"Many Hispanics listen to our show, too," Butler said. "They know Mean Gene."

HOROSCOPES

Saturday, Oct. 30, 1999

Use the year ahead to increase your inventory of knowledge by studying enjoyable subjects that could improve your marketability. These interests have a profitable destiny.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) What appears to be overwhelming in your imagination today will turn out to be paper dragons. You'll overcome these innate uncertainties by meeting challenges head-on. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1788, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Should a bashing incident arise today, you might be tempted to meet pettiness with pettiness. However, much to your credit, you'll rise above it and prevail.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Any inequities in arrangements you need to make with others today could set the stage for future problems. It can be easily defused by establishing fairness through setting a fair example.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Even if a friend is getting the better end of a bargain today, put friendship above your materialistic concerns. No need to worry, all will balance out in the long run.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) If you know in your heart that you are extending your best effort today, don't be fretful over what associates may or may not think. Performance, not appearances is what really counts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The way to defuse a why antagonist who tries to put you down in front of friends today is to treat his or her comments with indifference, like someone firing a pop gun at a battleship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might not be able to so in one fell swoop, but something that has been disturbing you can be changed for the better today by taking things one step at a time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Criticism or finger pointing never resolves anything, so should a violation of a friend require discussion today, say what needs said with tenderness and understanding.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be on guard today so that you're not taken advantage of by some unscrupulous character who crosses your path. Unfortunately, not everyone is as honest as you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) One of your greatest assets today is your ability to awaken a spirit of cooperation in others. You have always known that enthusiasm is what propels helpfulness.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When you are motivated by unselfish actions today, situations will work out far better than you or anyone else anticipates. Be a giver, not a taker at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A pal who lacks your talent for fitting in with the ease you do in unfamiliar groups and surroundings may be envious of you today. Do what you can to include him or her into the activity.

WIN AT BRIDGE

The knowledge usually helps

By Phillip Alder

What did George Bernard Shaw feel "stamps a man at once as an educated gentleman"?

South cruises into three no-trump. West leads his fourth-highest heart, the six. How should declarer plan the play? Do you agree with North's use of Stayman to try to find a 4-4 spade fit?

Taking the second question first, there are some experts who recommend never using Stayman with 4-3-3-3 distribution. Still, if your count is only just enough for game — about nine points — there is a case for hunting out the suit fit. If the opener has a weak doubleton, four of a major might make when three no-trump fails. Here, though, with 12 points, I would just jump to three no-trump.

South played low from the dummy at trick one, East winning with his queen and returning his second heart. Then, when declarer took the diamond finesse, he lost five tricks: four hearts and one diamond.

If the hearts are breaking 4-3, it doesn't matter what South does. But what if the suit is 3-2? Then East rates to have queen- or king-doublton. And if that is the position, declarer survives by winning the first trick with dummy's heart ace. Then he takes the diamond finesse. It loses, but the heart suit is blocked.

True, if West has king-queen-fifth of hearts and the diamond king, South needs to play low from the dummy at trick one, but that is against the odds. For one thing, West might have led the king, not low.

Shaw was of the opinion that knowing Greek married a man — or woman, I trust — as educated.

ASK DR. GOTT

Unpinching a pinched nerve

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have pain in my left hand, like a red-hot spike being driven in. My doctor said that it is probably a pinched nerve. How does a nerve get unpinched?

DEAR READER: By surgery, as a general rule.

Not all pain is due to pinched nerves but, when pinched, nerves will certainly cause pain. In the body, nerves often follow the same paths as blood vessels.

For instance, in the palm, penetrating wounds will usually injure nerves as well as arteries. Nerves can be pinched by abscesses, tumors or swelling of adjacent tissues. Under these circumstances, an operation to remove the source of irritation will cure the pain.

Having said this, I must add that I am not at all sure that your hand-pain is caused by a pinched nerve — which, in the absence of trauma or other obvious signs, would be very unusual. Frankly, from your brief description, I don't know what is going on. Could you have fractured a bone in your hand? Do you have an infection? What other symptoms do you have? Did your doctor obtain tests, such as X-rays, to determine the cause of your problem?

In my view, this situation needs clarification. If your doctor suspects a pinched nerve (and has checked out the other causes of pain that I mentioned), you need a nerve conduction study. By measuring the speed of electrical conduction through the nerves of your hand, a neurologist can not only diagnose a pinched nerve, but establish the precise location of the injury. Then, armed with this additional information, you will be in a much better position to determine what to do. Let me know the outcome.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have lived in a mobile home since 1989. In the past year, I have experienced a sore mouth and a worn-out feeling. Could this be caused by formaldehyde poisoning?

DEAR READER: No one knows the prevalence of formaldehyde poisoning caused by fumes released from insulating material. It does happen, without doubt. Some people appear to be unusually sensitive to formaldehyde vapor. If your house contains formaldehyde insulation, representatives from the state health department can use special sensors to determine if the fumes are present in high enough concentration to cause symptoms.

DR. GOTT

However, your sore mouth and loss of vitamins are probably due to other factors. Before calling the health department, see your doctor for a complete examination and blood tests. In my experience, patients with symptoms such as yours are more likely to have other medical causes — such as anemia or diabetes — than formaldehyde poisoning.

People

Spending quality time with your children

It's always a good thing for a father to spend time with his child in some activity: a sport, a game, a police chase. Many life-long memories are created during those special times when Dad and the little one head out for a day at the Museum of Natural History and find themselves hopelessly lost in a discount mall. However, there are a few guidelines that you should know that can help you spend a day with your offspring without getting totally off-sprung.

First, pick an activity that you really like to do. Despite their cute protests, all kids secretly love to go fishing. They just don't know it. They may want to go to a park for a gang war of some kind, but they can do that on their own time, and besides, what do they know? Whatever you decide to do, get an early start — 4:30 a.m. is a good target. That way, your son or daughter will want to come home early — before your relationship starts to deteriorate.

It's important that this also be an educational experience for the child, so make sure there are lots of chances to learn as much as possible. Like how to carry stuff, and how to make a comfortable seat for both of you, and how to run and get things that you may ask for throughout the duration of the fun. Children learn by doing. And by fetching. And by lifting.

After you've arrived and one of you has made 27 trips back to the car to get something and you have everything set up and have assembled all of your fishing gear and have set your lines and have made yourselves comfortable, and there's nothing left to do but enjoy the day, so PACK EVERYTHING UP AND GO HOME. This is very important. The only enjoyable part of the outing — i.e., the anticipation — is now over and you have entered the dangerous part of the adventure (i.e., the reality).

Reality never matches the anticipation. After all, what child ever anticipated arguing, fighting, insulting, getting cold, hungry, grumpy, catching nothing, finding the boat leaks and sinking in ice-cold water? If you don't have the courage to pack up and go home, you will see the following behavior pattern developing, which will be difficult for you to handle.

Red Green

THE TWITCH
Remember, children can't sit still. They start asking annoying questions about the sky. They keep fiddling with the fishing rod. They want to try a sip of whatever it is in your flask that you keep drinking. They mention their favorite cartoon show that they'd be watching if they were home right now. Then your child — the same one who can't remember to shut the screen door or pick up clothes — will describe in intimate detail all 214 levels of some video game, including what you have to do to get past each level and the maximum number of points you can earn on each level and the highest scores that they and every one of their friends have ever gotten. You will find yourself confused about whether Pikachu and Charmander are pals or games or a rap group.

THE FLACATION
To hold the child's attention, you serve lunch. Even though it's 8 a.m. They don't like anything except the cooldes, which they accidentally drop in the river. They turn their noses up at the huge baloney-ham-beef-peanut-butter sandwiches you made. They open a pop all over you and then fall on the sandwiches, knocking them down into the oil-filled bottom of the boat and giving them such a horrible taste that you can hardly keep them down. They start crying and other fishermen move away from the area. You envy the other fishermen. Finally your child settles down, grows quiet and peaceful and then suddenly vomits into the minnow pail.

THE CONFRONTATION
The child starts to imply that the adventure is over. They have packed up all their stuff. They ask if they can sit in the car and read maps. You tell them that if they want to go home, they should just say so. You say, "Was that a wolf I just saw on the shore?" They stare at the shore for about 10 minutes before realizing you were lying. They start whining about going home. You argue for a few minutes. You put your foot down, and they pout. After two minutes, the pouting is scaring the fish away. You start to wish there was a wolf on the shore. You wind in your line, making a lot of noise and acting really disappointed. You get a ribble, but ignore it.

THE SILENCE
On the drive home, your thoughts are uninterrupted by conversation or movement, as your child sits quietly and stares out the window. About a block from your home, your child puts a hand on your shoulder, thanks you for a great day and says, "Can't wait to tell Mom about everything we did." When you get to the door, your child regales your wife with stories of wolves, oil sandwiches and throwing up in the bait pail. Your wife nods and smiles at your child, then quietly tells you she'll never understand the attraction of fishing.

THE REVELATION
You find yourself leafing through a Disney World brochure.

Celebrating the founding of the Pilot Club

The Pilot Club of Sanford hosted the Pilot Club of Orlando/Winter Park for a 78th Founder's Day dinner and celebration. Pilot International, "The Service Club of Choice," was founded Oct. 18, 1921, in Macon, Ga. by 40 women interested community participation. Among those attending the Sanford meeting were, Pat Evans, speaker; Marian Rothwell, president of the Sanford club; and Rosemarie Martin a member of the Winter Park group.

Individual acts of love must conquer society's racial hate

DEAR READERS: If you have been reading this column for the last two days, you will have seen that racism is an issue that troubles many of us. Today will be my last in this series.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: You can't teach your children to be on the defensive, as one of your black readers wrote, without having these children LOOKING for discrimination. A basic law of physics teaches us that for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction. In life, sometimes there's an overreaction. Our best defenses against discrimination are education, patience, understanding and time. And remember, we educate our children every day, by our words, our deeds, our values — and most of all — by our thoughts.

ANDERSON, S.C., READER

DEAR READER: That's true. Children form their attitudes by watching their parents — often when the parents don't realize they are being watched. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am a bus driver and have had the opportunity to meet white racists and black racists — and believe me, there are both.

The vast majority of people are not prejudiced. They are cautious, as well they should be. The whites, blacks, reds and yellows mostly want to just be accepted as another person on this planet.

We aren't going to become color-blind, ethnic-blind or religious-blind just by snapping our fingers and passing a couple of laws. We can only control ourselves, and hope that our own attitude will rub off on those around us. May God have mercy on us if this attitude isn't one of love.

PROUD MINNESOTAN

DEAR ABBY: Martin Luther King Jr. once said: "People don't get along because they fear each other. People fear each other because they don't know each other. They don't know each other because they have not properly communicated with each other."

We must begin to communicate with each other. No matter how much it hurts or how bad it sounds, we must begin the dialogue of truth, facts, feelings, misunderstanding and understanding. The solutions to all our problems are found in us.

Now is the time to make the decisions necessary to bring about closure and healing. The survival of our nation depends on it. In our homes, at work, at school and in our everyday lives, we must be about destroying the hate that is destroying America. We can never heal the hate and pain within our nation until we've healed the hurt and pain within ourselves. Removing racism and discrimination from our society must begin with one person at a time. It must start with me — then with you.

LARRY D. HARRIS, NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR ABBY: The world is a vastly different place than it once was, although the vestiges of our past remain. The only way to end racism in our society is for each individual to take responsibility for his or her own emotions and actions, and to act in a way that is fair to all concerned. You can find hate in a lot of places — sometimes without looking very hard. But you can also find friends.

MICHELLE IN GALVESTON, TEXAS

DEAR MICHELLE: I agree. Regardless of skin color or ethnicity, our aspirations are very similar. We want to be liked and respected as individuals; we want our children to do as well or better than we have. It's the American Dream.

We live in an increasingly diverse society, and if we can value each other and live in harmony it will greatly enrich us. If we cannot, then greed and suspicion will drive us apart. The choice is ours.

What items need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with peers and parents is in "What Every Teen Should Know." To order send a business-class, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.99 ($4.99 in Canada) to Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 607, Mount Morris, IL 61064-0607. Darn those Yankees - Who can hate them now???

SANFORD - There was a time when I wanted to be Joe Hardy, ready to sell my soul to the devil if I could help the Washington Senators beat the Damn Yankees.

The Senators of the 1950s used to lose more games than the Yankees won.

Hardly any of the Senators looked like ballplayers. Half the team wore glasses, and the other half should have worn them.

Left-handed pitcher Chuck Stobbs waited to the end of his career to wear glasses. By that time he had served Mickey Mantle a fat pitch that Mickey slugged 565 feet - the longest home run of all time.

The Senators had another left-handed pitcher named Bucky. You can imagine what happened to Bucky when he faced the Yankees.

Where have you gone, Bucky Stewart?

Obviously, the Senators had a lot of heart. They kept on trying. Jim Lemon hit three home runs off Whitby Ford one night at Griffith Stadium. Asked when he knew he had No. 3, Lemon said when Yogi Berra yelled, "Oh snap."

How Yankee that Ford and Berra dropped by Yankee Stadium to be part of Wednesday night's World Series ceremonies. Everyone knew the Yankees would win, thus sweeping the Atlanta Braves.

What none of the legions of Yankee haters didn't know was how downright classy the Yankees would be after Game Four. These guys even talked to Jim Gray, NBC's electronic nitwit. Owner George Steinbrenner had something to do with that. Classy George.

The Yankees are the team for the 20th century. And, now the team that's impossible to hate, Steinbrenner's had a lot to do with that. Think about it, he hired Joe Torre.

There's no one in Torre's class today. He's the best manager in the game. Nice guys do finish first. Yes, he has the best ballplayers in the American League. Just like the Braves were supposed to have the best in the National League. Look what happened to them.

The biggest kick I got out of watching Yankee games the last few years is seeing Don Zimmer sitting next to Torre.

Zimmer's an ex-Washington Senator. He was with the expansion team. Everyone called him "Popeye." Zimmer had been an original New York Met before he joined the Senators. That's the kind of players Washington put on the field - ex-original Mets.

Hobie Landrith was another. Landrith was supposed to be a catcher. He wasn't. The Senators were so hapless, they let Zimmer catch. He wasn't bad. Not as bad as he was at third base.

There we were one night watching the Yankees a day after Zimmer was conked by a foul ball. He was back the SANFORD - The Seminole High School girls volleyball team proved that its regular season district record was no fluke as they defeated Lyman in two straight games, 15-10 and 15-8, to claim the Class 5A-District 5 Championship at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Thursday evening.

The Fighting Seminoles posted a perfect 4-0 record in the regular season and remained undefeated mostly on the play at the net by sophomore Tara Wiggins and senior Courtney Newman.

After falling behind 3-0, coach Beth Corso's Seminole squad ran off the next eight points on Tracey Swaynos' serve.

The Greyhounds were able to close to within 12-10 behind the serving of Kacy McDaniel and the hitting of Rachel Hauza, but the Fighting Seminoles went on another five point run, the final two on a good serve and ace by Wiggins, to take the first game.

Lyman scored the first point of the second game, but Seminole won the next four points to take a 4-1 lead.

McDaniel again served the Greyhounds back into the match, serving four straight points to give Lyman a 5-4 lead.

But Wiggins answered the run with back-to-back aces and another service winner as the Fighting Seminoles took a 7-5 advantage and the Greyhounds would get no closer than two points the rest of the way.

The final point of the match came on a Wiggins serve with Michelle Cardel slamming down a kill off a pass from Kim Nelson.

Wiggins finished with nine kills, five aces and five digs, while Newman had six kills, two block solo winners and three digs.

Also contributing for the winner's, who finished with 29 kills, two blocks and 15 digs, were Cardel (four kills, three digs), Nelson (14 assists, one dig, one kill, three service errors), Kim Corso (11 assists, three kills, one dig) and Jessica Chick (six kills).

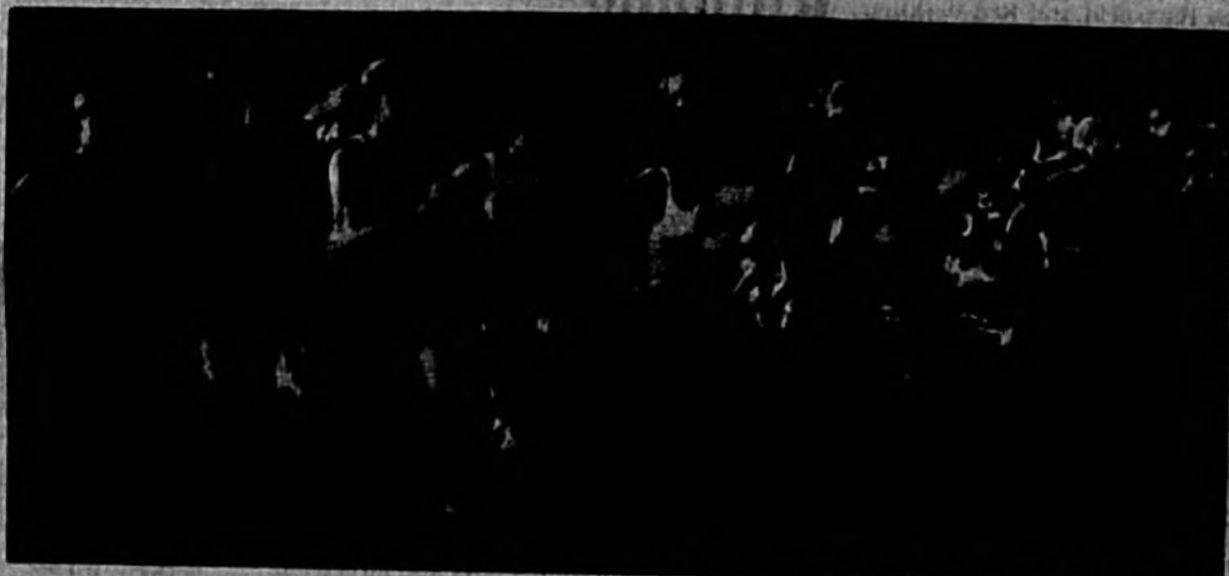

Corso also gave a lot of credit to Swaynos and Jessica

In racing action from October 23rd:

Late Model - It only took Wayne Anderson 11 laps to regain the pole spot and go on to get his first Governor's Cup win.

The victory did not come easy as six previous winners of the cup were in the 52 car field of top cars. Many of the fans agreed that this was one of the best overall races we have seen in a long time.

Anderson had fast time, but 10 other cars were very close. James Powell, Jack Cook, Dick Anderson, Billy Bigley, Pete Orr, David Rogers, Jimmy Cope and Jacob Warren all posted very fast times and it was clear this would be a tight race.

By lap 22, Wayne Anderson and his dad, Dick were running 1 and 2, and this proved to be a great battle until the #15 of Bruce Lawrence made contact with Bobby McClelland in the #99 Fairway Jeep Chrysler and brought out the caution.

After the restart, Orr moved up in to the top 5, but fell out with overheating problems.

At lap 185, McLeod was involved in a fiery crash, escaping without injury, but setting up a shoot-out. With eight laps to go Cook made a hard charge but they were single file at the finish, with Wayne Anderson and Cook being followed by Rogers, Davis, Reutemann and Jacob Warren. This was Super Late Model Racing at it's best!!!

Limited Late Model - David Logan took advantage of a great start to lead all 15 laps. It was a smooth event as Randy Dye chased Bobby Sears for the second spot. Chris Lawrence ended up fourth, followed by a good run from the back by Jimbo Bjorkland.

Modified - The big news here is the motor rule change for 2000. The cars will be required to carry seven pounds per cubic inch, and this could add some 400-lbs. to some cars with current motor packages. Will this change the field? We will have to wait and see!

Clearly Robert Ham and Jerry Symons were the class of the field as they blasted off and were gone. Jason Boyd drove the Bobby Judkins/Jimmy Winks owned #2x to a nice SANFORD - Better late than never.

Mark Clatterbuck's one-out, bases-loaded single in the bottom of the seventh inning capped a three-run rally as Longhorns edged Wolfys, 7-6; in City of Sanford Recreation and Parks Department Men's Fall Thursday Night Slow Pitch Softball League action at Pinehurst Park.

Wolfys had taken a 6-0 lead on the strength of a four-run fifth inning highlighted by a two-run home run by Bobby Miller and a two-run single by Cory Reome.

But Longhorns woke up its bats in time, scoring four runs in the sixth inning, with a run scoring triple by Robert Kerr and a run scoring double by Charlie Miller being the big hits.

Consecutive singles by Ron Lennard, Clancy Wallace and Frank Schelicks loaded the bases with no one out in the bottom of the seventh inning and Tony Cornell followed with a two-run single to tie the game.

After pinch-hitter Rich Jablonski singled to load the bases, Mark Husman lined out to third. But Clatterbuck, who did not enter the game until the sixth inning, singled to score Schelicks with the winning run.

In other games: Undeclared Stenstrom Realty incorporated broke away from a slim 3-2 lead by scoring seven runs in the fourth inning, with Tony Smith's two-run double being the big blow, and four runs in the fifth inning. Dale Peters' two-run double the big hit, to close out a 14-2 run rule victory over Celeste Industries.

Smith Equipment overcame a 4-0 first inning deficit with an eight-run third inning, paced by a two-run triple by Jeremy Chunal, and then used a seven-run fourth inning that featured a three-run home run by Danny Gracey to outscore the R.S.C.-Regulators 18-11.

Rain has played havoc with this league and the latest standings have Stenstrom Realty incorporated leading with a 3-0 record. Completing the standings are Longhorns and Smith Equipment (both 2-1), Celeste Industries and R.S.C.-Regulators (both 1-2) and Wolfys (0-3).

Next Thursday at Pinehurst Park, Celeste Industries plays Wolfys at 6:30 p.m.; Longhorns battles Smith Equipment at 7:30 p.m.; and Stenstrom Realty incorporated takes on the R.S.C.-Regulators at 8:30 p.m.
