Toll In Hotel Blaze Rises; Arson Suspected

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Gov. Rafael Hernandez-Colon said today the number of dead may rise "to around 100" from the New Year's Eve explosions and fire that erupted at the posh Dupont Plaza following "tense" labor talks.

The U.S. Commonwealth's governor, in an interview with the NBC "Today" program, reiterated suspicions that the fire involved a criminal hand, saying the island's fire safety record is excellent and incidence of fire is below that in the United States.

Rescue workers returned to the charred

423-room hotel at dawn today to renew the grim task of searching for "bodies under bodies." Ten more were pulled from the rubble of the casino, putting the number of recovered corpses at 53, but officials say others have been spotted in the debris and think the number will double.

"We believe that the dead will be going up to around 100 and the injured have been counted at 106," Hernandez-Colon said. "At this moment, debris is being removed and new bodies are being found. We believe it will be around 100."

Sila Calderon, the governor's chief of staff, said

12 bodies have been identified. Rissig Elwood Licha, a spokesman for the hotel owned by the Anaheim, Calif.-based Hotel Systems International chain, said a list of the missing — including 20 hotel employees — will be released this afternoon.

The hotel registry was destroyed in the fire but hotel officials said there were about 1,000 guests and employees in the building at the time.

A religious service for the victims was planned today at Fortaleza, the governor's mansion.

Hernandez-Colon said the "labor situation was very, very tense" at the 20-story beachfront hotel before a series of explosions erupted, igniting a raging fire and sending thick smoke through the posh resort, and there are "certainly indications" of arson.

When asked why authorities took no preventive action when there were several warnings of trouble, he said: "This is the type of information that generally comes around at the time you have very tense labor negotiations."

"But usually these things don't materialize into

Election Would 'Flabbergast' Him

Gunter To Be Nominated For Longwood Mayor

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Newly elected Longwood District 3 City Commissioner Lynette Dennis told the Herald she plans to nominate the new District 5 Commissioner David Gunter for mayor after they are sworn in Monday.

But whether Gunter is elected mayor depends on whether they can muster a third vote and that remains to be seen. "I would love to see Dave elected mayor and think he would do a good job, but I think we are out-numbered," Mrs. Dennis added. "It would be one of the most exciting things that has happened in the city if Dave was nominated and elected, but I don't see that happening."

The new commissioners will take the oath of office at 8:15 p.m. prior to the 8:30 p.m. work session and the first order of business at the 7:30 regular meeting after approval of the minutes will be the election of mayor.

Deputy Mayor June Lormann will preside until the new mayor is elected. Former Mayor Larry Goldberg was defeated 627 to 410 in a run-off race with Gunter on Dec. 16. Dennis defeated the incumbent Perry Faulkner in the Dec. 2 election.

Gunter said it would "flabbergast" him if he was elected. "It would be fantastic as a first time commissioner if I was elected and I would be honored. But I don't know that it would happen."

Dave Gunter

...needs three votes

Gunter said Thursday he does not plan to nominate one of the other commissioners for the position, but might if he decided he could work better with one of the commissioners than the others.

Both Gunter and Dennis said they had discussed the possibility of his being elected mayor well before the election and had decided they would have to face the reality that they could probably not muster the three votes.

Commissioner Harvey Smerilson said he is not interested in being nominated for mayor and does not intend to vote for Gunter. Smerilson, who refers to himself as an "outsider," said "the rumor is all over town that Gunter wants to be mayor and Lynette deputy mayor." Smerilson said if Gunter and Mrs. Dennis have been discussing this together or through a third party it would be a violation of the sunshine law.

Gunter said that was not the case. "Since I received the phone call election night telling me I had won, I absolutely have not discussed any city business with Mrs. Dennis or other commissioners," he said. "That would be a violation of the sunshine law and would violate the trust of the people."

Smerilson said Deputy Mayor Lormann, who has been mayor before, would "love to have the job again and Commissioner Ed Myers would love to be mayor."

Myers refused to speculate on his choice for mayor or what the outcome might be, adding cryptically, "for reasons that will be apparent Monday night at the meeting." Myers said, "Sure the new people have good ideas, but by the same token they need to go through the learning experience."

Mrs. Lormann said she doesn't know who will be mayor and hasn't made up her mind yet if she will nominate someone.

"If I had three votes I certainly would take it," she added, "but I don't know that I do."

She said Myers might be nominated because he has never had the opportunity to serve as mayor. As to Gunter's chances, she said she doesn't think he has the three votes.

"I don't feel anybody should walk in and expect to be made mayor right away," she said. "I guess we'll just have to wait till Monday night to see how it comes out."

Educators Enthused By Castor

By Kathy Tyrity
Herald Staff Writer

The election of Betty Castor as Commissioner of Education, the first woman elected to the state Cabinet, has sparked excitement among educators locally and statewide.

Seminole County schools spokesman Karen Coleman said school personnel here are extremely happy with Ms. Castor's appointment.

"We're excited about her enthusiasm and her commitment to the challenges of education issues in Florida," Mrs. Coleman said. She said Ms. Castor had made the trip to Sanford several times during her election campaign and local educators got a chance to talk with her and learn about her goals and ideas.

"We were very impressed," Mrs. Coleman said.

Pat Tornillo, Florida Education Association/United president, spoke for teachers statewide. "Everyone at FEA/United is ecstatic about Betty's election and we look forward to the next few years as a time to implement all the changes necessary to truly improve the careers of Florida's school personnel," she said.

Betty Castor

Ms. Castor, 45, is a former classroom teacher and state senator. She has long had the support of the teachers' union, the FEA/United. In this month's publication of the FEA United/Focus, Ms. Castor outlined four beginning goals:

- Secure adequate dollars for Florida's tremendous student growth. The DOE is projecting that it will cost $8 billion over the next 10 years to provide facilities for the growth in student enrollment.
- Address the impending teacher shortage and recruit quality teachers for our children by raising our salaries to meet the national average and by professionalizing teaching through a "career ladder" (the successor to Merit Pay). Ms. Castor says that although she is an ardent career ladder supporter, she wants all the wrinkles to be ironed out before it is implemented.

- Focus greater attention on the special needs of at-risk students, particularly in light of our high dropout rate.

- Improve efficiency and accountability within the DOE. Ms. Castor wants the DOE to be more responsive.

In a question and answer session published in United Focus, Ms. Castor talked about what programs she wanted the lottery dollars to support.

"Number one, we have an opportunity to fund the career ladder program. The first year of the career ladder will cost about $90 million. The lottery will probably generate more than that in the first year. This would be a good use for those dollars."

Locksmith Opens Door To Trouble

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A Longwood locksmith who allegedly made himself a set of keys to his former girlfriend's Sanford home, faces possible life in prison following his arrest early today as he was allegedly fleeing from the home with stolen items.

The items were clothing belonging to the woman's new boyfriend, who the locksmith allegedly tried to assault with his car before fleeing.

Karl Jon Porter, 36, of 212 Elderwood St., Winter Springs, was charged with armed burglary and aggravated assault with a motor vehicle. Porter, who was being held today in lieu of $8,000 bond, was arrested at 2:57 a.m. today by Seminole County sheriff's deputy Anthony Diaz.

In Florida armed burglary is a first degree felony punishable by three years to life.

Diaz was responding to a reported suspicious vehicle at the home of Mary C. Doney, 1208 Wynn Drive, Sanford, at about 12:15 a.m.

On Wynn Drive, Diaz reported seeing John L. McMullen on foot chasing a car northbound toward Nolan Road. McMullen was welding a baseball bat. As the car sped away, McMullen stopped Diaz and told him the driver of the car he had been pursuing had just broken into Ms. Doney's home and had McMullen's clothing, stolen from the living room floor of that home.

Diaz pursued the suspect's vehicle to Radio Street at State Road 427 in Sanford, where he stopped him. The driver was ordered out of his car and when he leaned back into his car to get his driver's license, Diaz saw a sheathed hunting knife in his back pocket, he reported.

Then other deputies arrived and detained the suspect while Diaz questioned the victims.

He was told by McMullen that at 12:08 a.m. today, McMullen was awakened by the closing of the front door of Ms. Doney's home. He got up and in the living room noticed his clothing was missing from the floor. He grabbed a baseball bat and ran outside to pursue a car that was leaving the area.

McMullen said he told the suspect he wanted his jeans, shirt and belt back. The suspect allegedly said, "I got your clothes and stuff."

Then the suspect reportedly became angry and allegedly twice tried to drive into McMullen with his car. In reaction to the second run-over try, McMullen said he hit the car with his baseball bat and the suspect began driving away as Diaz arrived.

From the suspect's car Diaz reported recovering clothing, the knife, a portable radio, a watch, keys, a wallet and $41, which McMullen said belong to him.

Ms. Doney identified Porter as her ex-boyfriend and said since their breakup he has been vandalizing her car and McMullen's vehicle. She alleged that Porter, who is a locksmith for A. Aaron Locksmith, Co., 660 U.S. Highway

Seat Belt Law Queries Answered

The new seat belt law, which law officers began enforcing Thursday, left some questions unanswered. Traffic Sgt. Dennis Whitmire of the Sanford Police Department attempted to explain some of the lesser known details as he saw them.

For instance, some people wondered if a seat belt citation would be a moving violation with points assessed against the license. Whitmire said it would not. He said it is a non-moving violation of a lesser type with only a $20 fine. Some non-moving violations have a larger fine, and moving violations generally carry a $50 fine.

Also, some people were concerned about vehicles not equipped with seat belts.

Whitmire said cars made prior to 1968 are

IN BRIEF

Man Accused Of Assault After Firing Shots At 2 Women

Sanford police reported charging Keith Ferrell Smiley, 18, of 814 W. 11th St., Sanford, with two counts of aggravated assault for allegedly shooting at two women in Sanford on Dec. 18.

Police reported that at 12:45 p.m. on Dec. 18, two shots were fired from a small caliber handgun at Betty Jo Green and Terri Fields, as they stood outside Ma. Field's car at 1108 W. 10th St.

Smiley was arrested at 12:28 p.m. Wednesday following questioning at the Sanford police station. He has also been charged with use of a firearm in a felony and was being held without bond on an unspecified Volusia County warrant in addition to the Sanford charges. Bond in the Sanford case was set at $5,000.

Sale Of Alcohol To Minor

In two New Year's Eve incidents, alleged sellers of beer to a 19-year-old woman, who was not asked by the sellers to show her identification or state her age, were arrested by City/County Investigation Bureau agents.

The agents reported watching as the woman allegedly bought a beer from manager Warren Frich, 52, at Woogles Pub, State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, at about 7:40 p.m. Wednesday. Frich, of 1101 E. Tulane Drive, Altamonte Springs, was charged with serving alcohol to a minor and has been released on $100 bond.

In the other case, agents reported that at about 8:35 p.m. Wednesday, they watched the same woman buy a six pack of beer at the Ideal gasoline station, 300 Upsala Road, Sanford. The woman was not asked for identification, agents said, and clerk Mary Joann Krainz, 52, of P.O. Box 2557, Sanford, faces the same charge as Frich and was released on the same bond amount.

Burglaries And Thefts Reported

Rodger Dean Hensley, 39, of 41 Seminola Blvd. #1, Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies a $250 television, a $250 video recorder and a $100 answering machine were stolen from his home Wednesday.

Four power screwdrivers with a combined value of about $250 were stolen along with about $300 worth of other items from two pickup trucks at the home of Bryant Hickson, 50, of 230 Lake Hayes Drive, Oviedo, Tuesday or Wednesday, a sheriff's report said.

Building Manager Attacked Attempting To Quiet Party

Sanford police reported arresting two Sanford men at 440 Mellonville Ave., Sanford, at about 9:49 p.m. Wednesday after one of the two allegedly attacked a building manager at that address.

A police report didn't give the name of the manager of Mellonville Place where the incident occurred.

Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said available details were sketchy early Thursday, but it is believed the manager tried to quiet noisy partygoers at the complex and was attacked.

Police said Leonard J. Luzabed, 21, of 2429 E. 25th St., Sanford, allegedly hit the manager in the face with his fist, knocking him to the ground. While down the manager was kicked in the face, allegedly by Luzabed.

When police were trying to subdue the suspect he allegedly kicked a police officer injuring the officer's leg, but Harriett said he was not seriously injured.

Michael Anthony Luzabed, 26, of the same address as Leonard Luzabed, was charged with resisting arrest without violence, after allegedly being uncooperative. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Leonard Luzabed was charged with aggravated battery and battery on a police officer. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond. —Susan Loden

Snow Up North Cold In Florida

High winds and rain in Florida have blown through and are now moving north along the Atlantic coast but winds from the north and northwest have brought cold temperatures to Central Florida. And its going to get worse.

Freeze warnings are out for the Sanford area in lowlands near Lake County but local citrus growers say the nip will make the fruit sweeter - as long as nature doesn't overdo it. Lows tonight in Seminole County should be in the mid to high 30s with a high tomorrow at about 63.

Things are much worse up north. Winter storms blowing out of the Ohio Valley and Carolinas merged today to spread snow and rain over the East, as gale-force winds and rare celestial forces combined to produce record high tides that pounded the Atlantic coast.

Snow also fell over the Rockies, the mountains of northern California and across portions of Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee, the National Weather Service reported.

In the East, winter storm warnings and travelers advisories were posted from Maine to the Carolinas and in the Ohio Valley and Michigan.

Between 2 and 4 inches of snow fell in Orange County, N.Y., and parts of New Jersey, up to 3 inches was deposited in Frederick, Md., and 3 inches was reported on the ground in Allentown, Pa., early today.

Snow was reported in the New York City and Washington areas before changing to rain

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Divers Discover Shipwreck Believed Crane's 'Open Boat'

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — Amateur divers have discovered a sunken wreck they believe to be the steamship Commodore, made famous by Stephen Crane in his short story The Open Boat, 12 miles off the coast of Daytona Beach.

The Ormond Anchor Chasers, an amateur dive club led by TV repairman and amateur archaeologist Don Serbousek, have made 23 dives to the wreck in the last two years.

They are confident the split and shattered wreckage is the 123-foot steamer Commodore and state historians believe they may be right.

"I have a lot of faith in Mr. Serbousek's skill and integrity and I would be inclined to believe him," said Jim Miller, chief of the bureau of Archaeological Research for the Florida Division of Historical Resources. "I'm under the impression that he has done enough homework to know what he is talking about."

Crane's 1897 story describes man's battle with nature, a relentless sea and a "lonely and indifferent" shore that faded from sight just as the waters darkened and the sharks closed in.

Sri Lankan Treated In Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — An underweight 18-month-old infant brought to Miami from a grass hut village in Sri Lanka is being examined to determine whether surgery can correct a heart defect that doctors say could kill her before she is 10.

Yoshitha Liyanage, who was born with a serious defect in the two principal arteries that carry blood to and from the heart, was flown to Miami Thursday by a New Jersey philanthropist. Without surgery her prognosis would be poor, "and chances are she would die within 10 years," said pediatric cardiologist Dr. Richard Zakheim, who is treating the child.

"If they live with the condition for a certain length of time, it can do permanent damage to the lungs and to the blood vessels of the lungs," he said.

At 14 pounds, Yoshitha is extremely underweight and her body is blue from a lack of oxygen.

FAA Seeks Clues In Crash

JASPER (UPI) — Investigators today are searching for clues to the crash of a Cessna 210 headed for Orlando that went down in a wooded area in North Florida during a heavy rainstorm.

All six people on board were killed. The Hamilton County Sheriff's Office was withholding the names of the victims pending notification of relatives.

A sheriff's report said the pilot of the aircraft was from Peoria, Ill. and the other victims were members of his family.

The Federal Aviation Administration alerted deputies at 11:15 p.m. Wednesday that air traffic controllers had lost radio contact with the privately owned plane at 10:41 p.m., and that it had disappeared from radar. The aircraft was en route from Huntsville, Ala., to Orlando.

Crews from several law enforcement agencies searched all night, and a spotter plane found the main portion of the fuselage early Thursday west of Live Oak, midway between Tallahassee and Jacksonville.

Wreckage was scattered in a one-mile radius from the main fuselage, the report said.

President Ends Respite, Returns To Washington For Work, Minor Surgery

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan, his week of rest and relaxation over, is heading back to wintry Washington to face minor surgery and political challenges at the start of the new year.

Having opened 1987 on a festive note with friends, Reagan wound up a New Year's stay at the desert oasis estate of publisher Walter Annenberg and scheduled an early flight to the capital today aboard Air Force One.

Reagan spent Thursday attending to routine paperwork, making notes for his State of the Union address later this month and watching the college bowl games on television. Reagan, a former radio sportscaster, will do a televised interview tonight during halftime of the Fiesta Bowl.

For the last week, Reagan and his wife, Nancy, have kept their distance from reporters. Today marked their first emergence from seclusion since Monday, when they flew to Palm Springs from Los Angeles.

While the Reagans have been able to duck the limelight for the last week, their privacy could be tested Sunday, when the president enters Bethesda Naval Hospital for a colon examination and surgery Monday for an enlarged prostate.

The prostate surgery, to be conducted by a team of civilian doctors, was recommended in response to what White House spokesman Larry Speakes described as periodic discomfort Reagan has experienced since a similar procedure was performed in 1967.

The symptoms and treatment are common in men over 50 years of age.

Reagan's hospitalization occurs as the 100th Congress begins, its first priorities expected to include passage of trade legislation the administration could oppose and the convening of select House and Senate committees to investigate the Iran arms-Contratid connection.

To oversee an anticipated onslaught of congressional requests for information, David Abshire, the most recent U.S. ambassador to NATO, joins the White House staff next week as a special counselor to the president and point man on the Iran arms affair.

Another relatively new face will be seen around the West Wing next week as Reagan convalesces. Frank Carlucci, an experienced diplomat and government official, Monday becomes Reagan's fifth national security adviser in six years.

Carlucci replaces Vice Adm. John Poindexter, who resigned in late November in the firestorm over diverted funds from the Iran arms sales to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Special Prosecutor Sought In Race Case

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lawyers for two victims of a racial attack said their clients would cooperate in a federal investigation of the case but the attorneys insist on a special state prosecutor in the case, a published report said today.

Lawyers Alton Maddox Jr. and Vernon Mason spoke to The New York Times in separate telephone interviews in their first comments on a report by law enforcement officials that Queens District Attorney John Santucci was considering turning the case over to the federal government.

Maddox represents Cedric Sandiford, who has been called the state's main witness. Mason represents Timothy Grimes, another survivor of an attack in the Howard Beach section of Queens nearly two weeks ago.

Both lawyers recently accused Santucci's office of a cover-up in their inquiry, which Santucci and his staff denied.

Maddox and police have told different accounts of how Sandiford was treated by police after a group of white youths attacked Sandiford, Grimes and Michael Griffith outside a pizza parlor when their car broke down in Howard Beach.

Griffith was struck and killed by a car when he fled across a busy highway.

Sandiford first cooperated but later declined to help the prosecution on the advice of Maddox. Grimes also refused to cooperate.

"We would urge Sandiford and Grimes to cooperate with a federal investigation," Mason told the Times.

The motorist whose car struck Griffith, Dominick Blum, 24, was not charged although he acknowledged leaving the scene and returning an hour later. Maddox contends Blum should be charged with murder but police say he had no connection with the attackers.

As to the insistence by Maddox and Mason that a special state prosecutor be appointed, Martin Steadman, Gov. Mario Cuomo's press secretary, said of Maddox: "I think this man has no credibility, zero credibility."

Hog Jowls, Black-Eyed Peas: Recipe For Luck And Money

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Thousands of Southerners sat down to plates of hog jowls, black-eyed peas and collard greens or rice New Year's Day — a traditional meal that is supposed to bring good luck throughout the year.

Few people, however, said in an informal survey that they knew the origin of the meal that is called "Hoppin' John" when the peas and rice are mixed. But most agreed that hog jowls bring good luck and black-eyed peas bring money.

"For every black-eyed pea you eat, that's a dollar you'll make," said Brenda Biggins of Zebulon, N.C.

"The peas represent silver money and the greens represent dollar bills," said Vernie Robertson of Durham. "The hog jowls bring good luck."

Roger Myers of Atlanta said the idea of hog jowls so soon after New Year's Eve partying was a turn-off.

"I'm from Tennessee and we've always had hog jowls and black-eyed peas for New Year's," Myers said. "But to tell you the truth, we don't fix hog jowls anymore. We just cook a couple of pork chops."

Charles Zug, a folklorist associated with the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, also said the black-eyed peas represent coins and the collards represent green money.

What hog jowls symbolize, he said, is a mystery.

"I haven't studied them intensively," Zug said. "But I don't think anyone will be able to tell you where they came from or how they started. For many traditional customs, finding the origin is impossible."

Northerners living in the South don't appear eager to adopt the custom.

Teepa Snow of Durham said she has lived in North Carolina for 14 years and tried the dish once.

"I didn't want to follow up on it," she said, adding she had a New Year's meal of sauerkraut, mashed potatoes and kielbasa.

"It will bring good luck," she said. "I guess it's the Northern version."

Obesity Research: Nature Vs. Nurture

By Gayle Young
UPI Science Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inside the peach-colored walls of the pricey 5th Avenue Clinifast Center, weeks are measured in pounds, not days, and the latest clothes described by size, not style.

Weight is a national preoccupation, says clinic director Diane Britton, who once carried 200 pounds on her delicate 5-foot 7-inch frame before losing 60 on a starvation diet of grapefruit and rice. She now dispenses psychological counseling to dieters along with 525 calories a day in the form of chocolate or vanilla milkshakes.

"I will tell you why," she said recently, adjusting a fun-house mirror in her office that slims and elongates would-be clients.

"When you're fat, losing weight is the most important thing in life."

An estimated $500 million is spent each year in the United States on obesity research as scientists attempt to settle an age-old dispute over nature versus nurture.

Are some people born fat or are they conditioned to be fat from birth by a culture that uses food as a reward and views sugar with a passion?

Studies conducted 20 years ago in the United States indicated that children of two obese parents had an 80 percent chance of also being obese, while children whose parents were of normal weight had only a 14 percent chance.

"We always knew obesity ran in families, but we didn't know why," said Dr. George Stunkard, a professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania who has been considered a leading researcher of fat for decades.

"No one knew for sure if obesity ran in families because of physical heredity or because the children were raised in an environment that fostered fat."

Most early researchers argued the latter, conducting studies that indicated many overweight people ate to overcome depression and that others were raised in homes where they were fed a steady diet of fatty and sugary food.

But in the past few years, the psychiatrists who conducted the bulk of obesity research have been joined by molecular biologists and chemists whose new studies indicate there are specific inherited physical traits that can cause some people to gain weight more quickly, and lose it more slowly, than others.

"I'd say there's been a fairly dramatic change recently from viewing obesity as bad eating habits from childhood to seeing an emphasis on biological factors that can be inherited, including some that manifest as behavioral factors," said Stunkard in a recent interview. "It appears both nature and nurture play a role."

The new biological research may someday provide an answer for obese people looking to lose weight easily and effectively, something that doctors say would save millions of lives.

In the United States, 21 million men — 26 percent of the male adult population — are 20 percent or more above their desirable weight as dictated by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company weight and height chart.

Twenty million American women — 22.3 percent of adult females — are also considered overweight, according to statistician Charlotte Schoenborn of the National Center of Health Statistics outside of Washington, D.C.

There is no universal definition of obesity, but health officials usually consider people obese if they are in the 85th percentile of the Metropolitan scale.

Doctors say people who are overweight tend to develop high blood pressure that puts them at risk for strokes and heart attacks. Some recent studies indicate excess body fat may also increase the risk for some types of cancer.

Overweight people also suffer from the psychological pressure of a society that equates slowness with health and beauty, doctors said.

Although scientists may debate nature versus nurture and its application to obesity, they almost all seem to agree humans have spent evolution preparing to gain weight quickly and efficiently.

"There have been both biological and cultural pressures throughout evolution that have favored obesity," said Peter J. Brown, associate professor of anthropology at Emory University in Georgia. "It's resulted in a virtual epidemic of obesity today."

Proportionately, Homo sapiens is among the fattest of all mammals, and the species' fat is not there to insulate — as it is in whales — but to draw on as an energy reserve in times of famine.

On average, women have 27 percent fat to total body weight compared to an average 10 percent for men. The extra fat in women probably developed to allow pregnant or nursing women to survive food shortages.

Thus, throughout evolution, the people who survived and passed on their genes to their children were those who were on the heavy side, Brown said.

And until this century, extra weight was considered attractive in most societies because it was seen as a sign of prosperity. Brown said there are cultures that exist today where the word for "fat" is considered a compliment.

In a land like the United States, where food is relatively abundant and cheap, it would stand to reason that the rich would be fat and the poor a little less so, said anthropologists.

But cultural pressure — a standard of beauty and a concern about health — has reversed an evolutionary trend, they said.

Thus, rich women in the United States and in similar cultures are more likely to be thin and poor women more likely to be fat, Brown said. But the same does not hold true for men.

"It is a fascinating reversal that has a lot to do with social pressure," he said. "Perhaps because food is so plentiful in America, being thin is the ultimate visible sign of affluence."

"It says, 'I'm so sure where my next meal is coming from, I don't need to store an ounce of fat,'" he said.

Although humans of all origins appear to have traveled a common evolutionary path to easy weight gain, not all people gain weight in the same way, doctors said.

The age of onset of obesity, its duration and fat distribution are different for different individuals.

als.

Doctors say there are a number of thyroid diseases and metabolic disorders that are clear causes of obesity, but they account for only a small fraction of all overweight people.

Scientists are left to puzzle out the other physical factors of obesity with the help of the Zucker "fatty" rat, a laboratory animal that, like humans, is endowed with an excess of fat cells.

The animals can double their normal weight in 10 weeks when fed a steady diet of candy and peanut butter — a diet some scientists argue is similar to that of many Americans.

Biochemical research on the laboratory rats and some humans has indicated the body monitors and regulates its calorie and energy balance through a complex chemical network, according to Dr. Richard Wurtman of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge.

Keep Leverage Against Poland

Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's government is pulling out all the stops in order to promote the fiction that Poland has made a sudden transition from police state to pluralistic society.

Several weeks ago, Warsaw marked the fifth anniversary of the imposition of martial law in Poland by proclaiming that the country is no longer plagued by internal strife. Gen. Jaruzelski is headed to the Vatican next month on a goodwill mission. The Polish strongman will extend a personal invitation to Pope John Paul II to visit his homeland again this summer. Meanwhile, the red carpet is being readied for U.S. Undersecretary of State John Whitehead, who plans to visit Warsaw in the near future.

We can understand why the Jaruzelski government is trying so hard to improve its tarnished image. After all, the Polish economy is a basket case. Lacking a timely infusion of economic credits and hard cash, domestic discontent could become even more pronounced, and prompt yet another popular uprising. Less clear is why the Reagan administration would consider normalizing U.S.-Polish economic relations, especially when such a move would make it easier for Gen. Jaruzelski to govern.

Five years ago this month, President Reagan promised to stand by the Polish people when he imposed economic sanctions against the Jaruzelski government. It was then that Gen. Jaruzelski's bully boys began rounding up members of the independent trade union Solidarity and throwing them into jail. The number of political prisoners eventually reached 5,000 before the government finally relented and removed the troops from the streets. Even so, repression remains the rule in Poland as the secret police terrorize dissidents. The most egregious example was the 1984 kidnapping and brutal murder of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, who ran afoul of the government for conducting pro-Solidarity masses.

Notwithstanding these abuses, the Reagan administration has lifted most of the economic sanctions. Now the State Department wants to restore Poland's most-favored-nation status, which would exempt that country from tariffs on its imports to the United States. Once that happens, it will only be a matter of months before new U.S. credits are extended to Poland.

The State Department's curious rationale for returning to business as usual with Poland is that the Jaruzelski government has met the conditions for normalization outlined by President Reagan in 1981.

To the contrary, there has been precious little easing of political repression in Poland during the last five years. Although martial law ended in 1983, the Polish people are still intimidated by the ubiquitous secret police. Moreover, the political prisoners who were released from prison during last summer's amnesty were also warned that "anti-State" actions would not be tolerated. Solidarity has been outlawed and the government continues to harass the Roman Catholic Church. Little wonder Poland remains a deeply polarized nation mired in despair.

That despair manifests itself in numerous ways. A distrustful, apathetic work force refuses to respond to government exhortations for increased production. Sullen college students chafe under campus censorship and the purging of professors. Meantime, underground Solidarity activists publish anti-communist pamphlets that are distributed throughout the country.

Gen. Jaruzelski hopes to counter this despair by securing U.S. assistance that, in turn, could revive Poland's stagnant economy. This, of course, explains why he's masquerading as a benevolent despot.

President Reagan must not be taken in by this bogus performance or by those in the State Department who are urging an end to the sanctions. It is imperative that the United States retain what little economic leverage it has left against the Polish police state. Otherwise, Gen. Jaruzelski will have no incentive to restrain himself.

Define The Legend, Control The Legacy

As a prediction, I offer the theme of 1987. This: The Attempt to De-legitimize the Past Six Years of the Reagan Presidency.

The vehicle for this assault will be the Iran-contra investigations. But the not-so-hidden agenda of many of those interpreting the scandal will deal with the whole of the Reagan presidency.

Do not underestimate the past in politics. When you own the interpretation of the past, it is easier to control the present, and it enables the interpreter to try shape the future. In Reagan's case — a peculiar presidency composed of man, myth and policy — the one who defines the nature of the legend, can control the nature of the legacy.

Washington is already awash in rumor, some morbid, some sordid. One hears it said that Reagan's luck has run out, that he's become an old man who's not always with it, that he's sick and will turn the presidency over to George Bush. That's the present. But the past is also under scrutiny: It's said that Reagan never knew much, that he was lazy and lucky, that he claimed we were standing tall only to make us feel good, that his foreign policy was incoherent and based on fantasy, that his economic policy was irresponsible, that his social policy was miserly. And so, it is implied, America should return to the path we were on before this rapid actor came to town.

If Reagan's adversaries can make this case credible — and parts of it are — the American dynamic will change. So the question is this: What parts of the Reagan legacy are worth preserving?

Some of the personal criticism is probably valid. Reagan has known less about the operations of the government than any recent president. He is old; he may be losing some of his stuff.

But personalism shouldn't obscure the changes Reagan has brought about, or tried to. These should be judged on their merits, lest we lose something valuable.

Under Reagan real defense spending rose from $200 billion to $300 billion. New increases are now unlikely because of the budget crunch — but defense is frozen at roughly the new high annual level. That leaves money to work with. Many Democrats say they can make those dollars work better. That sounds right. But we ought to remember that the reason they can do it comes from the priorities Reagan set up.

Did our arms build-up help? It is probably no coincidence that most analysts think that Soviet global momentum has been halted, and perhaps reversed. There is a sense around the world that the Soviet model is bankrupt and that the American model is ascendant. Standing tall is seen by others as standing tall.

And Reaganomics? Inflation is down, the economy is up. The philosophy of freer markets is gaining ever-greater credence at home and abroad. Still, Reagan's budget deficit may yet produce disaster.

Reagan tried to push his domestic philosophy: Government is not the solution, he said, it's the problem. Put that way, the philosophy is overstated. And the Congress, representing the voters, has not let the president shred the social safety net.

VIEWPOINT

Principles Important To Right

By William R. Hawkins

Differences between the groups in the conservative movement are usually about tactics, not principles, so the coalition holds. The exception is the libertarian sect, whose philosophy is the antithesis of conservatism.

The Right has spent decades fighting liberal-dominated governments that have used their power to cripple business, erect a Welfare State, and push counter-cultural values that undermine the traditional authority of family, church, and school. It is thus not surprising that many conservatives have been seduced by the libertarian claim that all government actions are bad simply because they are the actions of government.

The libertarian error here is fundamental. Conservatism is about the values that support civilization, not about the sterile mechanics of government. It is not how big or small the ship of state, but where it is heading that matters.

An example of the trouble into which conservatives blunder when they forget this distinction is the December 5 National Review attack on the war against drugs. The section's title, "A War Against Ourselves," was itself insulting to National Review's regular audience. The two articles that followed, by Review editor Richard Vigilante and frequent contributor Richard Cowan, ran against common sense and history.

Mr. Cowan argued that "most of the social problems associated with illegal drugs are primarily a function of their illegality." Illegality makes for "inefficient markets" and monopoly pricing. Drug users therefore commit crimes to pay for their habits. Amateurs then leave the market and organized crime takes over. Attempts to stop the importation of cocaine and heroin lead to the domestic development of more powerful synthetic drugs.

Mr. Cowan and Mr. Vigilante feel these problems would be eliminated if drugs were made legal. History argues otherwise. Morphine, cocaine and heroin were legal in the United States a century ago. They could be bought over the counter in a variety of forms. Until 1903 cocaine was even used in soft drinks. By 1900, however, there were some 250,000 addicts, and many heard or saw the deaths and crimes associated with widespread drug abuse. In 1914, the Harrison Narcotic Act was passed, and by 1920 cocaine, heroin and morphine had virtually disappeared.

King Hussein Meets Death — Again

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — King Hussein of Jordan has a long and intimate relationship with death. In fact, he is the only head of state we know of who believes — and has stated publicly — that he died and came back to life after an out-of-body experience.

It happened in January 1984. The king, who has a chronic heart condition, began hemorrhaging suddenly and lost consciousness. His heart stopped beating.

Hussein believes he "went into another world," as he told an interviewer, adding: "I was a free spirit, floating above my own body. It was rather pleasant, really." This description jibes with those of less exalted individuals whose stories about dying and returning to life are staples of checkout-counter publications.

Hussein and the Grim Reaper are old acquaintances, dating back to the July day in 1951 when the future monarch was nearly killed by

Nightmare Deaths

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Since April 1983, at least 130 Southeast Asian refugees have met their maker in essentially the same way. They cried out in their sleep. And they died.

Medical authorities call this Asian Death Syndrome. The refugees have various names for it, one of them being Night Terror.

"In the Philippines it's called Bangungot, in Japan Pokkuri, in Thailand something else," says Dr. Robert Kirschner. "But it all roughly translates as the same thing: Nightmare Death."

As a deputy Cook County medical examiner, Kirschner has investigated five Nightmare Deaths himself, including a Laotian father and son who died in a Northside Chicago apartment — in bed, asleep, and only 15 months apart.

"The people in their neighborhood are terrified," Kirschner says.

Spurred by curiosity and concern, Kirschner, an associate professor of pathology at the University of Chicago, undertook a systematic study of the problem. His results, based on data from the federal Centers for Disease Control and autopsies of 18 Night Terror victims, were recently reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The victims had much in common, Kirschner found, first and foremost that nothing seemed to be wrong with them before they suddenly died.

"These are all healthy men with no previous symptoms; the average age was 33," he says. "The situation is almost always the same. It only occurs in men and it only occurs in their sleep. The report is they cry out and die or are found dead the next morning."

Standard autopsies revealed little about the deaths, other than that they were caused by a sudden heart stoppage. Such an occurrence in Orientals is mystifying, since their rates of ordinary cardiac disease and malfunction are extraordinarily low, primarily due to their low-fat diet.

But detailed examinations of the victims' hearts, performed by Dr. Friedrich Eckner of the University of Illinois College of Medicine, turned up something strange.

All of the 18 hearts were slightly enlarged, and 17 showed defects in their conduction systems, the array of fibers that carries electronic impulses from the brain to the heart. The fibers were frayed and curled, as if, Kirschner says, "their hearts just shorted out."

It is Kirschner's theory that something at night, perhaps a random electronic discharge, and yes, perhaps a nightmare, overloaded these defective hearts, causing the sudden deaths. This makes the Nightmare Death all the more curious, since a studies of whites who die suddenly has not shown the same defect.

Thus, Kirschner speculates, genetics probably plays a large role in the defect, which may be present from birth. Nightmare Deaths are only found in certain Oriental populations: Laos, Kampuchea, Vietnam, as well as the Philippines and Japan. It has not been reported in China.

Reagan's Old Year Review

By Ira R. Allen

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Lodged on New Year's Day behind high walls of a resort palace at the intersection of Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra Drives, President Reagan could be forgiven if he kept humming the Sinatra hit, "It Was a Very Good Year," or even Hope's theme, "Thanks for the Memory."

That was how the president chose to assess 1986, a year in which more objective observers noticed a series of setbacks leading to a full-blown crisis in the conduct of the longest presidency in a generation.

Reagan rightfully could boast of finally reforming the antiquated tax system and for presiding over a fourth consecutive year of economic growth.

Perhaps the longest-lasting achievement, however, may have been turning the tragic death of basketball star Len Bias into a national crusade against drug and alcohol abuse.

On the negative side, it turned out that while Reagan was regularly threatening mayhem to terrorists the United States was able to identify, he was dealing arms to Iran, whose minions in Lebanon still were taking Americans hostage.

That disclosure, compounded by the apparent diversion of the arms sales proceeds to the Nicaraguan Contras, showed a president renowned for his delegating of authority even more detached from government than many had suspected.

The Iran crisis followed a series of public relations and political embarrassments, starting with the revelation that the administration had conducted a "disinformation" campaign against Libya — calling into doubt the stated reason for the air attacks on Tripoli and Benghazi. Moammar Gadhafi's alleged involvement in the bombing of a West German discotheque.

Then came the quickie summit with Gorbachev that revealed a president unaware of the details of U.S. arms control policy and having to turn apparent negotiating failure into success through a public relations campaign.

Between the summit setback and the Iran crisis, Reagan campaigned furiously to retain Republican control of the Senate, losing badly and facing the final two years of his term in conflict with a Democratic Congress.

The beginning of 1987 does not look promising, either.

Earth, Moon Sun Align Causing High Tides, Floods

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — A winter storm riding the record high tides of a rare celestial alignment roared up the Eastern Seaboard today, pounding resorts and fishing villages, washing out roads and clawing away beaches.

The storm headed early today for the Jersey shore, where evacuation plans were drawn and the National Guard was placed on standby. Emergency officials in Atlantic City, anticipating that roads to the island community would be under water after high tide, set up an all-night command post, called in 50 extra police officers and put more than 40 firefighters on alert.

Coastal flood watches and warnings, as well as gale warnings, were posted today from North Carolina to Maine, and flooding was expected in five southern New Jersey counties.

The powerful storm, packed with rain, snow and winds of up to 53 mph, was coincided with peak high tides driven by a rare alignment of the Earth, moon and sun.

Police, Firemen Strike

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — The police and half the Fire Department staff walked off the job, refusing a city request to work without pay until the city budget is passed.

The entire 57-member Police Department and half the 57-member Fire Department refused to work starting at 12:01 a.m. Thursday, said Police Capt. Tom Petreore.

Because of a feud between Johnstown Mayor Herbert Pfuhl and the City Council, the northwest Pennsylvania city's fiscal 1987 budget was not signed by midnight Dec. 31, Petreore said.

The city government asked the police and fire departments to work through the budget dispute and wait until after the budget was passed to get their paychecks, Petreore said. Unions for both departments declined.

Baby: U.S.A.; Father: U.S.S.R.

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — A pregnant American woman who left Moscow to ensure that her baby would be a U.S. citizen said the New Year's Day birth of her first child gave her new faith her Soviet husband will soon win emigration.

Susan Graham, who met last year with Secretary of State George Shultz and whose mother talked with President Reagan about the case, gave birth Thursday in a Spokane hospital to a 7-pound, 8-ounce girl named Emily Anna.

"I felt the fact she waited until 1987 to be born was a special symbol — it's the dawn of a new year, a good year," Graham said from her hospital bed. "Emily will bring us luck and we'll all be together soon."

Graham, 31, a Russian language student who met and married Matvey Finkel, 37, in Leningrad seven years ago, left him in Moscow in October after repeated attempts failed to win permission for him to emigrate. She said she wanted to make sure there would be no complications about the citizenship of the child.

Chinese Students Complete Illegal March Through Peking

PEKING (UPI) — Some 1,000 students completed an illegal, 10-mile march through the snow-covered streets of Peking today, pausing outside the heavily guarded central government headquarters to chant slogans for freedom and democracy.

The demonstrators, the remnants of a midnight march by more than 4,000 students who won the release of several detained classmates, paused briefly in front of Peking's Zhongnanhai government compound about 3:30 a.m.

Most of China's senior leaders have offices in the luxurious, park-like area and many live there.

As scores of police lined the entrance to Zhongnanhai watched, the 1,000 marchers slowed on a bicycle lane near the compound and chanted, "Long live freedom! Long live democracy!" They also sang the communist hymn Internationale.

Police made no move to break up the march, even though it was in defiance of a ban on unauthorized demonstrations and passed through or near three of four areas in the capital that are off-limits to any kind of protest, including Zhongnanhai. The students, most of them from elite Peking University, did not turn to face the compound and quickly marched on to nearby Tiananmen Square to end their 10-mile, 5 1/2-hour trek.

Afgan Ruler Seeks Cease-Fire

MOSCOW (UPI) — Afghan leader Najib has called for a cease-fire as the first step in a national reconciliation that would include negotiations between the Soviet-backed Communist government and the Moslem rebels and possibly a coalition government.

"An emergency situation calls for emergency action," Najib told an extraordinary meeting of the Central Committee of the Peoples Democratic Party Tuesday in Kabul. The official Soviet news agency Tass carried a report of the meeting Thursday.

Najib also indicated an amnesty for political prisoners who pledge not to fight the government would be possible. Rebel leaders based in Pakistan, who have opposed a policy of national reconciliation, rejected the call.

"According to the words of Najib, national reconciliation will start with a cease-fire, which will begin on Jan. 15 on the all-national scale," the news agency said.

Blacks, Whites Clash On Beach

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police fired tear gas and shotguns to break up the second battle in a week between blacks and whites on a beach in Durban, state-run South African television said.

The state-run television said two black people were wounded Thursday by police shotgun fire and independent Radio 702 said two people, one of them a woman, were stabbed in the clashes.

The fighting erupted despite special measures by beach guards and security forces to avoid a repetition of clashes between blacks and whites on Christmas Day and the following day. Police patrolled the beach in armored trucks and authorities in a helicopter kept watch from above.

The television report did not say what triggered the new fighting. Last week's clashes erupted when supporters of the ultra-right Afrikaner Resistance Movement gathered around its swastika-type flag and then tried to drive black bathers from the beach.

At least four people were injured in clashes on Christmas Day and the day after. Two of them were stabbed and one man broke a leg. Police arrested four blacks and charged them with public violence.

Uncle Sam Pops New Years Day Cork On Federal Campaign Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New Year's Day meant more than football, hangovers and late brunch for those who want to be elected president in 1988 — it popped the cork on campaign funds from the biggest contributor of them all: Uncle Sam.

With the start of 1987, candidates can apply to the Federal Election Commission to receive millions of taxpayer dollars to help finance primary campaigns, which will start gearing up this year.

Under the Presidential Matching Fund Act of 1974, candidates who meet certain requirements can receive $1 of federal money for every dollar they raise from private contributors.

However, if a candidate decides to accept federal funding, he or she must obey an overall limit on campaign expenditures determined by the FEC according to a formula based on the rate of inflation. The limits for the 1988 campaign have yet to be set.

Candidates cannot actually begin collecting matching funds until Jan. 1, 1988, but qualifying for federal aid quickly is crucial to those seeking to build their campaign chests early. Candidates can use the promised matching funds as collateral to obtain bank loans to finance their early operations.

Congress set up the federal campaign financing program largely as a response to the Watergate scandal and fund-raising excesses associated with President Richard Nixon's Committee to Re-Elect the President, which was believed to have raised between $60 million to $90 million for the 1972 campaign.

Lawmakers believed that by providing federal funding and limiting expenditures, they could ensure some balance in presidential campaigns and prevent a candidate from unduly influencing elections by spending huge amounts of money.

The program also was supposed to open the field to candidates who did not have substantial personal fortunes to tap for campaigning.

Since the matching program was established, only one major-party candidate, Texas Republican John Connally in 1980, has refused federal money, thus freeing himself from the spending limit.

Connally spent about $12 million and got only one national convention delegate committed to him during the primaries.

The government contribution to campaings is considerable.

For example, the Reagan-Bush campaign in 1984 received $10.1 million in federal money, the maximum matching fund amount possible and half of the $20.2 million limit placed on primary campaign spending that year.

Altogether, the FEC doled out $36.5 million to 11 presidential candidates in the 1984 presidential primaries.

To qualify for matching funds, a candidate must show the FEC that he or she has raised at least $5,000 in each of at least 20 states in contributions of no more than $250 apiece. The requirement is intended to force a candidate to demonstrate broad appeal.

The matching funds are financed by a voluntary checkoff on federal income tax forms through which taxpayers can designate $1 of their tax payment to go toward campaign financing.

That financing system, which began in 1976, has worked well to date but taxpayer enthusiasm for the program may be on the wane.

The largest percentage of taxpayers taking the checkoff was 28 percent in 1980. Participation has declined steadily since, to 23 percent in 1984.

Reagan To Seek New Student Loan Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan will ask Congress to create a $600 million student loan program that would have graduates repay the full cost of loans on a schedule geared to their income, the Education Department announced Thursday.

The proposed Income Contingent Loan System, to be included in the fiscal 1988 budget the administration will send to Capitol Hill next week, would be a drastic expansion of a $5 million pilot program approved by Congress last year.

If approved at the full level, the program would allow about 500,000 students and 1,500 colleges and universities to participate, department officials said. The schools would have to contribute to the program, they added.

Under the system, eligible undergraduates could borrow up to $4,000 for each of their first two years of school and $5,000 for each additional year. Graduate students could borrow $10,000 for each year. The total graduate and undergraduate loan level per student would be $50,000.

Six months after a student graduated, he or she would begin a repayment plan that would be based on their income level. The student would have to pay the actual loan amount and all interest — which would be charged at the Treasury bill rate plus 3 percent.

If a graduate did not have enough income in a year, the payment would be deferred, but the interest would grow.

In no case would repayment of the loan exceed 15 percent of income in any year but a graduate would have to keep making payments until the entire loan was erased.

Under current loan programs, some interest is subsidized by the government, but there is a more rigid repayment schedule.

Education Department officials contend the proposed program would cut down on defaulted student loans because graduates would no longer be faced with payments they could not afford.

Deputy Undersecretary of Education Bruce Carnes said that to meet budget targets, the money for the program would come from other areas in the department. He would not say which programs would lose out.

In addition to the $600 million, the department would also like to use $70 million in collections from other student loans for the new system.

Last year, the department requested an overall budget of $15.2 billion and received $19.5 billion from Congress.

Carnes contended that the proposal would not directly affect existing loan programs. However, he said he hoped the flexible repayment schedule would make it the most attractive.

Last year, the administration requested $90 million for the loan system but Congress provided only $5 million for a pilot program. Officials said it is still too early to determine if that system is working.

A recent congressional report said federal loans to college students had tripled in the past decade — rising to $9.8 billion in 1985-86.

Some lawmakers questioned whether the huge debt was discouraging young people from attending schools or steering them away from important careers that did not pay as well as other jobs.

Carnes called the current loan programs "out of control" but argued the government had a right to expect that loans should be repaid. He contended the new plan would not overburden graduates who took lower-paying jobs.

However, a criticism of the program is that because it would stretch out payments until loans are completely repaid, graduates who do not receive good-paying jobs will have to repay their loans over longer periods of time and thus have higher interest costs.

Futurists Say Bathrooms Will Be Social Centers

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Emotions will be increasingly blamed for illnesses and bathrooms will evolve into family social centers, futurists say.

May Maury Harding, who helped found the Southern Future Society in 1977, said mind over matter is crucial to a person's health.

"You have body, mind and spirit, and you can't just patch up the body," Harding, retired director of continuing education at Rhodes College, said in a recent interview. "Feeling has a lot to do with physical health. I think it's a real coming breakthrough."

The Southern Future Society will meet in Baton Rouge, La., in March and the topic will be "The Future of the Self" — or the power of the individual to rise above his limitations.

The World Future Society, the parent group of Harding's organization, recently predicted in its magazine, The Futurist, that larger bathrooms will become popular. They will be equipped with family-sized tubs and exercise equipment will become social centers, the magazine said.

Harding said she is not 100 percent convinced about the bathroom prediction.

"I guess it sounds like fun, but it costs so much to build anything these days," she said.

Harding works to distinguish her group from the forecasters depicted in supermarket magazines.

"We've been fighting for years being taken for soothsayers and fortune tellers," she said.

Futurists are more apt to discuss trends already visible, she said.

"I would not predict that Jerry Lee Lewis is going to get married," she said. "But we might say there is a trend toward show business people having more wiver."

Perhaps the most noble goal of the Southern Future Society, Harding said, is to encourage a better future by suggesting it.

"Unless we can imagine a better future or image, we're certainly not going to be able to bring it about. How do you know what you want if you sit around and think things are always going to be this way," she said.

Survey:

Doctors Should Look Like Marcus Welby — Not Howie Mandel

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Doctors should wear traditional white coats while on duty and avoid blue jeans, sneakers and "looking like they just walked off the set of Miami Vice," a survey of hospital patients revealed Thursday.

People still seem to prefer physicians to look and act conservatively and very few feel comfortable about being on a first-name basis with their doctors, said Dr. Thomas Lee of the Harvard Medical School.

"Even people who feel personally pretty left-of-center, feel pretty vulnerable," Lee said. "They want their doctor looking like Marcus Welby, not Howie Mandel (who plays the wacky Dr. Wayne Fiscus on 'St. Elsewhere')."

A survey of 200 hospital patients from Boston and San Francisco revealed the conservative leanings, reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The poll was conducted by Jocelyn Dunn, a fourth-year medical student of Lee's.

"She wanted to know how she should dress and how she should act and I said, 'Don't ask me, ask them,'" Lee said.

Two-thirds of those polled said physicians should wear white coats and more than a third endorsed ties for men and skirts and dresses for women. More than half disapproved of blue jeans and a quarter frowned on tennis shoes.

Patients also appeared to prefer some formality in address as well as dress. While 40 percent said they wanted their doctors to address them by their first name, only one in 10 felt comfortable returning the informality.

"People want their doctors to be treated with respect because it implies they deserve to be treated with respect," Lee said.

A concurrent survey of the hospital staffs found that many doctors "had habits that were less formal than a substantial portion of their patients preferred."

Dunn said the survey showed doctors try to please their more conservative patients whenever possible, even when their views are in the minority.

"If I knew it was going to irritate a quarter of my patients if I wore sneakers, I wouldn't wear sneakers," Lee said. "Patients have enough to worry about without their doctors looking like they just walked off the set of 'Miami Vice.'"

One possible exception, Dunn said, was a preference expressed for skirts and dresses on women. "It's not altogether practical," she said. "Giving CPR in a dress can be pretty awkward."

As for other suggestions, Lee said, "There is very little chance that someone is going to react negatively to gray pants, blue shirt and a striped tie, which is what I'm wearing right now."

Voyager Pilots Receive Ovation

Millions Watch Rose Bowl Parade

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The spectacle of floats and flowers dazzled a million parade goers and 350 million television viewers, but the biggest hits of the 98th annual Rose Parade were the Voyager pilots, who received standing ovations all along the route.

From the delicate beauty of flower butterflies to the friendly mystery of the gigantic Loch Ness monster, the 58 floats in the New Year's Day parade depicted the Tournament of Roses theme, "A World of Wonders."

An estimated 1 million people lined the 5.5-mile parade route through the streets of Pasadena. About 100 million watched the annual spectacular on TV in the United States, and another 250 million saw it worldwide. Skies were clear and temperatures were in the low 60s for the two-hour parade.

Dick Rutan and Jeana Yeager, who captured the world's imagination last month when they circled the globe nonstop and without refueling in their fragile aircraft Voyager, came down to Earth to ride on Lawry's Foods' "Romance of Italy" float. Dressed in blue flight suits, the nation's newest heroes were the clear hit of the procession.

Carnation Co. won the sweepstakes prize for the most beautiful float — "A Garden Full of Wonders" — featuring butterflies from around the world made of flowers.

Brazilian soccer legend Pele was the grand marshal. Dapper in a tuxedo, he rode in a carriage bedecked in flowers and blew kisses to the crowd, thousands of whom had camped out all night to get choice spots.

"From the people of my country, Brazil, and my family to all the families of the world, I wish a happy new year," Pele said.

The beauty of the flowery floats — many of them equipped with sophisticated mechanics to swoop and sway — drew oohs and ahs from fans packed along the parade's path.

"It's so spectacular, it's dazzling," said Ginny Toner, a grandmother from Indianapolis, who, with her husband, was watching the parade live for the first time. "We're real fans. The floats, the color, everything is so beautiful."

Police said there were no major incidents or fights in the massive throng, but their 1,100 officers made 450 arrests — most for drinking in public — during the parade and the Rose Bowl football game that followed. Arizona State of the Pacific-10 defeated Michigan of the Big 10, 22-15, before 103,168 fans in the 73rd Rose Bowl Game.

Miami's Strategy: Shut Down Dozier

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Tackle Dan Sileo crystallized Miami's defense strategy for tonight's Fiesta Bowl showdown against Penn State for the national championship.

"Penn State wins football games more on the ground than in any other way," he said. "And D.J. (Dozier) is their offense. If we shut down D.J., we'll be successful shutting down the Penn State offense."

Conversely, the Nittany Lions need Dozier's leadership in its ball-control offense to produce points and minimize the Hurricanes' offensive opportunities.

"It's been said the best way to beat us is to keep our offense off the field," Miami safety Bennie Blades said. "We have to stop them on one, two, three plays and get them off the field. We know that if we give our offense the ball, they have the potential to score on one play. "Penn State's offense keeps its defense off the football field. They like to march 85 yards. We can't let them make those 85-yard drives."

The Nittany Lions averaged 237 yards rushing in 11 games this season, as tailback Dozier ran for 811 yards, fullback Tim Manoa gained 546 and tailback Blair Thomas added 504.

"I don't know if we've faced a football team with the ability to run the football like Penn State," said Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson, whose team allowed 125.5 yards rushing per game. "Penn State has power backs, with their fullbacks and running backs. They've got quality players to run the football."

The success of the running game meant quarterback John Shaffer had to try only 204 passes, completing 114 for 1,510 yards and nine touchdowns. The Nittany Lions plan no major changes.

"We're approaching this game just like any other game," guard Steve Wisniewski said. "We have to have a good running game to open up our passing game. Everybody is looking for secret trick plays, but we'll stick to our basic offense."

Miami has prospered on the arm of quarterback Vinny Testaverde, who completed 175 of 276 passes for 2,557 yards and 26 touchdowns in 10 games. The Hurricanes averaged 130.8 yards rushing per game, compared to 281.4 yards through the air.

"We have a great running game," Testaverde said. "We are going to use it to open up the passing game for us. If the run works, it will open up the pass; and vice versa."

The Hurricanes want to be able to run on their terms, however.

"Our running game is best when we use it when we want to use it and not when we need to use it," Johnson said. "We do not want to rely on the running game when the opponent knows we are going to run the football. If that's the case, we'll throw it. We only run the football when we want to run it and not when the situation calls for us to run it."

That should be difficult against the Nittany Lion defense, which gave up an average of only 69.4 yards rushing per game and held Cincinnati to 7 yards on the ground and West Virginia to 8.

"We have to run the football to keep opponents from backing up against the pass," Johnson said. "That doesn't mean we have to be successful. We want them to have to defend against the run, but that doesn't mean we have to gain yardage with the run. We have won games when we were not successful running the football."

The Hurricanes gained only 36 yards on the ground against Pitt but threw for 291 in a 37-10 victory this season and managed only 53 against Oklahoma, but got 261 in the air on their way to a 37-10 victory.

For the season, fullback Alonzo Highsmith ran for 462 yards and tailback Melvin Bratton added 380.

"I think the Miami running game is quite good," Penn State coach Joe Paterno said. "When they want to run, they run. They are big backs who are very strong and very similar to our running backs."

Tonight's TV:

vs. Miami

Still, the Nittany Lions feel the secret to winning the game is to stop the run and then concentrate on Testaverde.

"They mostly pass," defensive tackle Pete Curkendall said. "They don't have a real complicated running game. Our defense is drilled to watch the run first. That's what it's designed to do. We don't expect a lot of trouble stopping the run. Stopping Testaverde is the main thing."

Auburn Lassos Trojans

ORLANDO (UPI) — Auburn's Florida Citrus Bowl victory represented a milestone for the Tigers, and the end of the road for Ted Tollner as coach of Southern Cal.

Fueled by five turnovers, Auburn recorded its 500th victory with a 16-7 triumph over USC. Tollner was fired Dec. 8 as Trojans coach, effective at the season's conclusion.

"My own personal situation had nothing to do with this game," Tollner said. "Next, I'm going to go coach the East-West game in San Francisco and find a job. Any of you know where I can find an opening?"

Tollner finished his four-year USC career with a 26-20-1 record. The unranked Trojans finished the season 7-5 with three straight losses. Auburn finished 10-2, their fifth 10-victory season.

"It was a turnover game," said Tollner, whose team received four. "We won on one side of the ball, but gave it back on the other. We knew going in we had to turn the ball over, and we did. Give all the credit to Auburn's front seven."

Auburn scored second-quarter touchdowns on a 3-yard pass from quarterback Jeff Burger to Walter Reeves and a 5-yard run by Brent Fullwood. The clincher came with 8:35 remaining in the game when Tracy Rucker sacked USC quarterback Rodney Peete in the end zone for a safety.

USC had opened the scoring when linebacker Marcus Cutton intercepted a screen pass from Burger and cruised 24 yards into the end zone.

Auburn Coach Pat Dye said he was happy with the way Burger recovered.

"He didn't go into the tank. He hung in there with us and we hung in there with him," Dye said.

Fullwood, who gained 153 yards on 28 carries, said "I won't say exactly what he said, but he meant we weren't doing what we were supposed to do."

"We made mistakes early, but we didn't go into a shell. You have to give the Southern California defense credit."

USC threatened to move within a field goal in the final two minutes when Louis Brock blocked a punt by Brian Shulman and it went out of bounds on the Auburn 7. But the Auburn defense held on downs, with Leroy Holt falling to get in on fourth and goal from the 1-yard line.

"The highlight of the game had to be that goal-line stand," Dye said. "I don't know who had the hit on the last play, but they all had a part in it. Holding USC to 157 total yards is a big, big day from a defensive standpoint."

Tollner defended his decision to go up the middle on the play by saying the Trojans had been containing mobile quarterback Peete.

"There are a couple of ways we could have played it," Tollner said. "We could have gone with the quarterback wedge, like we did against Notre Dame, where we came up short. Or, we could pound it up the middle with two fullbacks, like we did. To Auburn's credit, we didn't make the six inches."

Auburn's Brent Fullwood, left, pulls free from USC's Keith Davis and slips into the end zone. Fullwood, a St. Cloud High product, ran for 151 yards and was named the Florida Citrus Bowl Offensive MVP for the victorious (16-7) War Eagles.

Bruce's Forearm Shiver Provides Chills For Peete

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

ORLANDO — Aundray Bruce, one of those guys you would not want to meet in a dark or well-lit alley, gave a new meaning to the forearm shiver Thursday at the Florida Citrus Bowl.

While the temperature hovered in the mid-40s and the swirling wind made conditions even tougher, Bruce brought the thermometer down another couple degrees with a devastating blast to Southern California quarterback Rodney Peete in the second quarter.

Peete never recovered and neither did the Trojans who dropped a 16-7 setback to defensive-tough Auburn before 51,113 fans. It was lame-duck Ted Tollner's last game with the Men of Troy and he could not stop talking about the War Eagles' defense.

"They're so doggone good, they take away the line of scrimmage," Tollner said. "Georgia was the only team to run on them. That front seven is just too tough to penetrate."

Bruce, a 6-6, 228-pound junior outside linebacker, collected four sacks and one other tackle to earn MVP honors for his team and the game. He also caused one fumble.

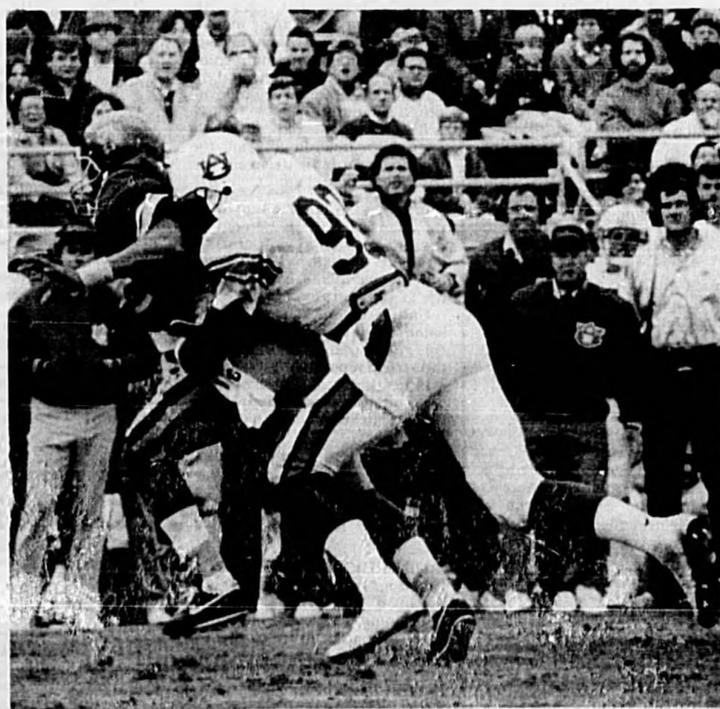

His most impressive blow, though, came when he unloaded on Peete in the second quarter. Bruce circled in from the left side and had a head of steam built up as he bore down on the unsuspecting quarterback.

He appeared ready to wrap him up, but when he realized Peete was unaware of his presence, he unloaded with both barrels. The double forearm-shiver knocked USC's spunky signal caller into next week.

"When you get hit a few times like Rodney Peete did today, there aren't many people who can play under those conditions without thinking about it," Auburn coach Pat Dye said.

Peete heard the footsteps the rest of the game. The elusive sophomore, who became the only Trojan of that class to pass for 2,000 yards this year, completed just 12 of 30 passes for 113 yards and had four picked off. Normally, he hits 58 percent. Auburn senior defensive back Chip Powell made two spectacular, leaping interceptions.

Although USC's passing attack was poor, its legendary tailback-oriented ground game was worse. Ryan Knight and Leroy Holt, a couple of runners who will not make one forget O.J. Simpson or Charles White, combined for 43 yards on 17 carries. Peete, running for his life most of the time, accounted for a minus three on 10 tries.

"Defensively, we held USC to 150 yards total," Dye said. "That is a big, big day for us."

While Auburn's attackers were making most of the stellar defensive plays, the first great effort was turned in by USC's Marcus Cotton. The alert linebacker picked off a Jeff Burger swing pass and took it 24 yards for a touchdown to give the Trojans a 7-0 lead at 10:17 of the first quarter.

"I got cut off at the line but I played it as a screen and faded with the backs," Cotton said. "The quarterback (Burger) didn't turn and look. He just turned and threw."

But as Dye pointed out, it was one of the few mistakes Burger, who completed 8 of 18 for 90 yards and one interception. Burger, a sophomore, rolled out and found tight end Walter Reeves for a three-yard score to pull the War Eagles even with 8:04 left in the first half.

"Jeff (Burger) made a mistake early, but he didn't go into the tank," Dye said. "The wind was a big factor. It wasn't a pretty-played ball game but the kids played hard on both sides."

MVPS — USC's Erik Altholter, who made several sticky-fingered grabs while pulling in six passes for 61 yards, was the Trojans' offensive MVP. Cotton picked up the Defensive MVP.

St. Cloud's Brent Fullwood took the offensive MVP for Auburn. The All-America tailback rushed for 152 yards on 22 carries. He scored one TD but his longest run was just 11 yards.

"They had seven guys gangling up on me," Fullwood said. "I'll take that any day. If seven are on me, somebody else has got to be open."

Tollner's Close But Short Again

ORLANDO (UPI) — Ted Tollner's final game as coach at Southern Cal typified his career with the Trojans. He was close, but came up short.

Tollner's Trojans were stopped on a fourth-and-goal at the six-inch line late in the fourth quarter Thursday and Auburn held on for a 16-7 victory in the Citrus Bowl.

"There are a couple of ways we could have played it," said Tollner, who was fired Dec. 8. "We could have gone with the quarterback wedge, like we did against Notre Dame, where we came up short. Or, we could pound it up the middle with two fullbacks, like we did. To Auburn's credit, we didn't make the six inches."

Tollner's final USC team finished 7-5 after losing its last three games. Auburn finished at 10-2 and posted its 500th victory.

"We went into the game believing Auburn was as good — or maybe better — as any team we played this year," Tollner said. "If we had controlled the football and made some big plays with the pass, I think we could have won, but we didn't quite make it."

Tollner, who compiled a 26-19-1 mark in four years at USC, said he had no firm plans for the future.

"I'm going to go coach the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco and then try to find a job," Tollner said. "My own personal situation had nothing to do with the way this game worked out. We're disappointed, but that's no reason to hang our heads."

"We had a great week here and we're not going to let anything take away from that experience."

Auburn Coach Pat Dye said the goal-line stand was the key moment in the game.

"Holding USC to 157 total yards is a big, big day from a defensive standpoint," Dye said after the game. "Obviously, the highlight of the game had to be the goal-line stand."

The Tigers may have entered the game a little too confident, the coach said.

"We came here expecting to win," Dye said. "We weren't as sharp as we have been this season at the first of the game, but I got on (the players) a little on the sidelines and we picked up the tempo. I can't say exactly what I said, because some of their mommas might get a little upset with me."

Auburn tailback Brent Fullwood, who rushed for 152 yards, said Dye lit a fire under his charges.

"I'm not going to say exactly what he said, but let's just say that what he meant was that we were not doing what we were supposed to do," Fullwood said.

Fullwood, who has been projected as a first-round draft choice, said he is not concerned about his professional future.

"I'm going to go to the Japan Bowl and then to the Senior Bowl in Mobile (Ala.), but beyond that I'll cross the bridges as I come to them," Fullwood said. "We were good and that's all that matters right now."

Sooners Butcher Arkansas

MIAMI (UPI) — The Oklahoma Sooners, who entered the Orange Bowl with no chance of becoming No. 1, climaxed their season with a performance worthy of a national champion. The third-ranked Sooners, relying on their menacing wishbone and marauding defense, Thursday night inflicted No. 10 Arkansas with its worst defeat in 16 years, a 42-8 drubbing.

Tonight, No. 1 Miami plays No. 2 Penn State in the Fiesta Bowl with the national championship at stake. The Hurricanes are the only team to beat the Sooners in the last two years, and because of their 28-16 triumph Sept. 27 at Miami, Oklahoma can hope to climb only to No. 2 in the final rankings.

Many Sooners believe they deserve better.

"In our hearts, we know we are number one," Sooners quarterback Jamelle Hollaway said. "I think we do have the best team in the country. If we played Miami or Penn State today, I think we would have won."

Statistically, the Sooners are one of the best teams of all time. Of the eight major team statistical categories, Oklahoma led in an NCAA-record six. The Sooners, 11-1, averaged more than 42 points a game and allowed less than 7.

Early in the game, Arkansas threatened to duplicate one of the great bowl upsets in history. In 1978, 18-point underdog Arkansas shocked Oklahoma 31-6 in the Orange Bowl. The Sooners were 18-point favorites again this year, and a scoreless first quarter dominated by Arkansas brought back memories.

Spencer Tillman restored reality. The senior halfback roared 77 yards on the third play of the second quarter to put Oklahoma ahead 7-0. Later in the period, he raced 21 yards to make the score 14-0, and the rout was underway.

"Oklahoma is a great team, but we just didn't execute," Arkansas quarterback Greg Thomas said. "We didn't take advantage of our opportunities early when we had them."

The Razorbacks were forced to throw, and the Sooners responded with seven sacks and five interceptions, four against Thomas who had just one all season.

"They put everybody in coverage, gambled more and came up winners," Thomas said.

The Sooners controlled the ball for 11 less minutes and amassed six fewer first downs than Arkansas, but Oklahoma outgained the Razorbacks 413 yards to 240. Arkansas managed just 48 yards rushing and a 1.1-yard average per carry.

"I think back-to-back 10-1 seasons speak for themselves," said Oklahoma defensive back Sonny Brown, who had two interceptions. "We are an excellent team."

The Sooners, who have proved their depth on offense all season by shuffling a series of running backs, displayed the same resolve on defense. All-America linebacker Brian Bosworth was ruled ineligible to play by the NCAA after testing positive for steroids. He walked the sidelines and watched his replacement at strongside linebacker, Junior Dante Jones, lead the Sooners in tackles with nine and intercept a pass.

"I thought I played well," Jones said. "I got really comfortable as the game went along."

The future looks comfortable for the Sooners, who were national champions last year, look likely to finish No. 2 this year, and started 15 non-seniors against Arkansas.

BOSWORTH APPEARS — Oklahoma All-America Brian Bosworth did not play in the Orange Bowl but the colorful linebacker still made an appearance in Miami.

The NCAA ruled Bosworth ineligible to participate in the Orange Bowl after he tested positive for steroid use but Bosworth joined Oklahoma's captains on the field wearing his jersey prior to the coin flip before the game against Arkansas. Officials would not allow him to remain for the actual flip.

Before the game, Bosworth wore Vinny Testaverde's No. 14 Miami jersey, obtained in a swap for one of his red No. 44 Sooners jersey. Testaverde, the Heisman Trophy winner, quarterbacked the Hurricanes to victories in each of the last two seasons over Oklahoma.

ROSE

Arizona State Thickens Cloud Over Michigan

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Arizona State emerged from the shadows Thursday with a 22-15 victory in the 73rd Rose Bowl, thickening a dark cloud that hovers over Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler.

"Heck, yes. I was confident we would win," said Coach John Cooper, whose No. 8 Sun Devils continued Pacific-10 Rose Bowl dominance over the No. 4 Wolverines. "We were able to move the ball off of the line. We made very few mistakes and we didn't turn the ball over."

The Big Ten has lost the last six Rose Bowl games: 12 of 13 since 1975. Arizona State's Jeff Van Raaphorst threw for 193 yards and two touchdowns and Kent Bostrom had three field goals, handing Schembechler his seventh defeat in eight trips to Pasadena.

Bostrom upped the Arizona State advantage to 22-19 44 seconds into the fourth quarter with his 25-yarder.

Van Raaphorst, who turned his season around after throwing five interceptions against Washington State, was 16 of 30. Darryl Harris had 23 carries for 109 yards.

Michigan went 66 yards on the game's initial possession to an 8-0 lead. Harbaugh got the Wolverines into ASU territory when he hit freshman Greg McMurtry for a 24-yard gain over the middle. Morris rushed five times on the drive, the final one a powerful 18-yard TD burst where he broke one tackle, then carried the ball and pursuing cornerback Eric Allen over the goal line. Kicker Mike Gillette's surprise pass to Gerald White gave the Wolverines two more points.

Bostrom pulled a 47-yard field goal try 1-2 minutes later, but he was successful on a 37-yard attempt 54 seconds into the second period after a 41-yard ASU drive stalled at the Michigan 20.

The Wolverines moved ahead 15-3 with 9:58 left in the half on Harbaugh's sneak. The quarterback was 3 of 3 on the 58-yard march.

"When I was a kid, I said, 'God, I'd like to play there (in the Rose Bowl) some day,'" said Van Raaphorst, named the game's Most Valuable Player. "You dream about playing here, and now this."

Harbaugh, who threw for 172 yards and three interceptions, ran 2 yards for a TD after Jamie Morris blasted in from the 18. The Wolverines finished 11-2.

"We felt after the first touchdown we finally could get over the jinx, especially since we are a second-half team," said Morris, a junior. "I feel very bad for the seniors."

The Sun Devils trailed 15-13 at halftime, then began to dominate. Van Raaphorst, a senior playing in his last game for ASU, was 4 of 5 for 48 yards on an 80-yard march capped by the 1-yard pass to Hill. A Harbaugh pass for two points was caught out of bounds.

Bostrom upped the Arizona State advantage to 22-19 44 seconds into the fourth quarter with his 25-yarder.

COTTON

DALLAS (UPI) — The Ohio State Buckeyes built a waltz Kevin Murray could not scale.

Murray has overcome a broken ankle, huge scoring deficits and a controversy involving alleged NCAA violations, but Thursday against the Buckeyes' pass defense in the 51st Cotton Bowl, he was stymied. Ohio State intercepted a Cotton Bowl-record five passes, two of which were returned for touchdowns. In a 28-12 victory over the Aggies, their fifth bowl triumph in their last six appearances.

"I hope this is kind of a kickoff for our season next year," said Ohio State coach Earle Bruce, whose team finished with a 10-3 record, "because we have a lot of very good players returning."

One of them is linebacker Chris Spielman, who intercepted two passes, made 11 tackles and was unanimously voted the game's Outstanding Defensive Player. Not since 1942 had anyone intercepted a pass in the Cotton Bowl and returned it for a touchdown. Ohio State did it twice.

Spielman picked off a Murray pass for 143 yards. His team ended its season 9-3.

"It's not so much what they were doing on defense as what we did on offense," Murray said. "Being realistic, they did not whip us. We did not move the ball. Mistakes killed us."

Ohio State quarterback Jim Karsatos scored the game's first touchdown on a 3-yard run in the second quarter that gave the Buckeyes the lead for good. Spielman's interception return boosted Ohio State to an eight-point lead, and after an interception by linebacker Eric Kumerow, the Buckeyes scored on an 8-yard run by Vince Workman.

Texas A&M produced six points in the first half on field goals of 30 and 44 yards by Scott Slater, and on a 2-yard run by Roger Vick with 9:10 to play in the game.

The Aggies went for two points after Vick's touchdown, but failed, leaving them trailing by nine points. Moments later they missed a chance to turn around the game when defensive back Jeff Holley dropped a potential interception at the Buckeyes 20-yard line — one that would have been a cinch touchdown.

The defensive showing by Ohio State overshadowed two acrobatic catches by Buckeyes All-America receiver Cris Carter and a 113-yard rushing performance by Vick, who was voted the game's Outstanding Offensive Performer.

"We played well defensively," A&M coach Jackie Sherrill said. "But not offensively. Even down to the last four minutes we had a chance to win. But you can't turn the ball over like we did and expect to win."

"These kind of games come around. They just happen sometimes."

Spielman's touchdown was his first as a collegian and turned the game in Ohio State's direction.

"Each time he (Murray) got in a third-down situation, he threw to Bernstine," Spielman said. "I just decided to find him and play him."

"I know Murray can run the ball, but he would rather throw than run. I think he was a little frustrated today."

NASCAR Fans Vote Elliott Most Popular

For the third consecutive year, fans of NASCAR Winston Cup racing have named Bill Elliott of Dawsonville, Ga. the Most Popular Driver on the stock car circuit.

In winning the 1986 award and $20,000 from the Winston brand of RJR Nabisco, Elliott received 23,487 votes of more than 45,000 ballots cast to take the honor by a wide margin.

The driver of the Coors Melling Ford Thunderbolt will receive the money at the annual National Motorsport Press Association convention in Charlotte, N.C. The award brought Elliott's winnings in 1986 to over $1 million.

"I want to thank all the people who have supported me the last several years and the fans who have helped me out and have voted me this award for the last three years," Elliott said. "Without them, none of us in this sport would be able to get onto the race tracks to entertain them. They mean a great deal to racing and particularly to me."

Finishing second in this year's balloting was Darrell Waltrip. The three-time Winston Cup champion received 10,314 votes.

Only Richard Petty and Bobby Allison have won the award more times than Elliott, with Petty being named a record nine times. Allison has been selected six times. Petty also holds the record for the most consecutive years, winning 1974 through 1979.

With the holidays over, testing will once again resume at Daytona International Speedway as Geoff Bodine, Tim Richmond and Darrell Waltrip will have Rick Hendricks' car at the track Jan. 2-4.

The three popular drivers will try to run faster than Buddy Baker's 207 mph set a couple weeks ago in the Crisco Oldsmobile. Looking at last year's pole setters, over half the poles were won by these three drivers, so it is expected that Baker's top speed will be beaten. Admission is free for the practice session.

Local favorite Gary Balough, of Fort Lauderdale, a multi-time winner at New Smyrna Speedway, won the 19th Annual Snowball Derby at Pensacola.

The victory ended a six-year winless streak for Balough at the half-mile asphalt track.

The last time he won at Pensacola was in 1980 when he won this event. Balough started on the pole and led 131 of the 250 laps.

Other local drivers entered in the race were Daniel Keene, Dick Anderson, David Rogers and Tim Nooner. Keene finished a very respectable eighth, while Rogers and Nooner crashed mid-way through the event.

Don't forget that both New Smyrna Speedway and Volusia County Speedway have big shows on tap at their tracks this Saturday night. VCS also will be running tonight.

Further down the road at New Smyrna Speedway, Jamie Tomaino of Howell, N.J., the runner-up driver in the 1986 NASCAR Winston Modified Tour point standings, has filed an entry for the 21st Annual World Series of Asphalt Stock Car Racing scheduled for Feb. 6 through Feb. 14.

Also chosen as the circuit's Most Popular driver in 1986, Tomaino will be at the wheel of Bill Potts' Oval Track Speed, white 1987 Pontiac Sunbird No. 99.

Last February, Tomaino won one World Series' feature, scored four second place finishes and three third place. On the last night of competition, in the First Annual "Richie Evans Memorial" 100-lap Modified Championship, Tomaino took the lead on lap 16, only to drop out with transmission problems on lap 22. That mishap cost him the Series high point championship and he had to settle for second behind Reggie Ruggiero.

For the 1987 Series, Competition Director Bill Slater has changed the qualifying procedure for the NASCAR-type Modifieds only. In previous years, the fastest qualifier flipped a coin to decide between a straight up start or to invert the top six.

This year, all the modifieds will run time trials. The fastest qualifier will start on the pole in the first heat, the second fastest will start on the pole in the second heat and so forth. The top four finishers in each of the two heat races will draw for the top eight feature event starting positions.

The same procedure as in previous years will be used for the late models and the thunder cars.

For more info, call Bill Slater at (203) 568-1290 or the speedway at (904) 427-4129.

Redskins Have Revenge Factor Against Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Washington Redskins face some unpleasant recent history when they meet the Chicago Bears Saturday in the NFC semifinals.

Two years ago the Redskins lost 23-19 to the Bears, ending their chance for a third straight trip to the Super Bowl. Last season the Redskins were humiliated 45-10 by the Bears, surrendering 45 straight points.

"I'm sure that for a change, the revenge factor is going to be working for them," Bears safety Dave Duerson said. "I'm sure they're remembering what we did to them the last two years."

The Redskins, who beat the Los Angeles Rams in last week's NFC wild-card game, have spent most of the week praising the Bears, particularly their defense. "They will both sit back and come after you," Coach Joe Gibbs said. "They have a great scheme, great players. They have it all. They may be the best that's ever played on defense."

The Redskins' high-powered passing game may prove to be the Bears' toughest defensive test. Jay Schroeder, who set a club record by throwing for more than 4,000 yards, looks deep to Gary Clark and Art Monk and has Clark back and George Rogers at his flank.

"Young quarterbacks who haven't played as much usually have some trouble," Bears safety Gary Fencik said. "We want to apply the pressure and not give him time to throw."

The Bears played only two teams over .500 in the final 11 games of the season, losing to the Rams and Minnesota.

The defense set a record for fewest points surrendered during a 16-game season. They allowed less than 100 yards a game on the ground but at times were susceptible to the deep pass.

Chicago's offense has sputtered under four quarterbacks. Former Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie will start, but Chicago may rely on its trusted running attack led by the NFL's all-time leading rusher, Walter Payton.

"Payton is a lot like Fran Tarkenton," says Washington defensive end Dexter Manley. "He likes to scramble. We want to be able to stop him from doing that."

ROOKIE RELIANCE
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Nine rookies will be chasing passers and covering receivers Sunday in the NFC playoff game between the San Francisco 49ers and New York Giants.

The 49ers have started rookies Don Griffin and Tim McKeay at cornerback all season and rookies Charles Haley and Larry Roberts are among their best pass rushers.

Giants rookie Mark Collins will either start at cornerback or play on the nickel defense. Four other New York rookies — linemen Eric Dorsey and Erik Howard, linebacker Thomas "Pepper" Johnson and safety Greg Lasker — will play in certain situations.

The influx of rookies has hurt neither defense. The 49ers ranked sixth in the NFL and won the NFC West with a 10-5-1 record. The Giants have the NFL's second best defense behind Chicago and their 14-2 record won the NFC East and gave them the home field for the playoffs.

"We're a much stronger team than last year, and a good part of that is because of our young players," San Francisco coach Bill Walsh said.

"They've done a terrific job implementing young players in their defense and Bill Parcells off," Giants Coach Bill Parcells said of the 49ers. "The young guys are playing well, especially on the corners, and I like Haley and Roberts."

Gastineau: Not Full Speed But Fired Up

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Mark Gastineau, the sack-dancing end of the New York Jets who played for the first time last week since knee surgery, says he expects to contribute more for Saturday's playoff game against the Cleveland Browns.

"I should be able to play a little more this week," he said. "It's still a little stiff but I feel pretty good. I'm not full speed but it's great just knowing I'll be playing."

Gastineau underwent arthroscopic surgery on his left knee Nov. 17. He returned last Sunday in the Jets 35-15 AFC wild-card victory over Kansas City. While only playing in passing situations, Gastineau recorded one sack but pressured the Chiefs.

"At this point of the season you have to put away all you aches and pains," Lyons said. "There are 44 other guys counting on you. You have six months ahead of you to get your health back, but you might not have tomorrow if you don't play today. I hope to go even further today."

Walton says aggressiveness and concentration can compensate for injuries.

wounded player. Nose guard Joe Klecko, offensive tackle Reggie McElroy all have undergone major knee surgery and are out for the year.

The Jets other defensive end, Marty Lyons, missed four games and another start because of sore shoulders. He still finished with 76 tackles, sixth on the team and tops among linemen.

Lyons and several teammates shaved their heads this week as an inspirational tool for the AFC semifinal game with the Browns. Lyons sat out the fourth quarter against the Chiefs.

Walton says aggressiveness and concentration can compensate for injuries.

Gardening

Spring Vegetable Planting Season Is Less Than 60 Days Away

So far we've been spared any rough weather. In fact, we all are enjoying a mild winter compared to the past three years. Many folks will be picking a fair crop of citrus this season, and some vegetable gardens are still going strong. We can count on a frost before long, though, but hopefully, no hard freeze. Now that the holidays are over, we can start planning our spring vegetable gardens. If you check the calendar, we are less than 60 days away until spring planting for many crops. Experienced Florida vegetable gardeners know this already, but a brief review shouldn't hurt anyone. And, maybe it will help newcomers trying vegetable gardening for the first time.

Nearly all vegetables can be grown in our area, if you plant them in the right seasons. The important thing is to grow vegetables that you and your family enjoy.

The first consideration in planning your garden is where to put it. You want it fairly close to your house, so it's handy to work in. And, you want it near an outside water faucet to make irrigation easier. The thing you really want to be sure about is proper light. If possible, locate the garden so it gets full sunlight all day. Unfortunately, some of us don't enjoy that luxury. Thus, we have to choose between morning sun and afternoon sun. Fruiting crops, such as tomatoes, corn, cucumbers, and melons, will have to be planted where you get the most sun. Leaf and root crops generally can stand a little shade.

You may want to fence off your garden to keep out dogs and children. In some areas of the county, wild animals, such as rabbits, can be a problem, too. A fence also can serve as a trellis for pole beans, tomatoes, and other crops that need support.

You may need to protect your crops from nearby tree and shrub roots, which will compete with vegetables for available nutrients and water. To give your crops the edge, dig a trench about one-and-one-half to two feet deep all around the garden. Line one side of the trench with roofing paper or heavy plastic film, then refill the trench. This forms a barrier against the roots of nearby plants.

Naturally, good soil is important. Most of us have to do the best we can with the kind of soil we have. However, we can give our gardens a real boost by mixing in plenty of organic material, such as compost, manure, sawdust or anything else you can think of. With such amendments, we can grow vegetables even if your own soil is nothing but sand.

Before you ever plant the first seeds, you need to think about the vegetable varieties you'll choose to grow. You could walk into the nearest garden supply store and buy whatever you see. But, remember that vegetable varieties can be vitally important. Be sure you select varieties that are recommended for our area.

Proper garden design can spell the difference between success and failure. Your garden plan should include several things — the location of each crop — the amount to be planted — the planting date — and, the variety of each vegetable you intend to grow. Try to plan your garden so crops that will be planted on about the same date, and reach maturity about the same time, are close together. By setting up different groups, or blocks, within the garden, you'll be able to keep your garden in production as much as possible.

Within each block, arrange crops by size. Starting from east to west, plant low-growing types, such as radishes, turnips and lettuce, along one side. Plant those of medium height, such as peppers and squash, in the middle of the block. Sweet corn, pole beans and stake tomatoes can be planted along the other side. This avoids having the low-growing vegetables stuck in the shade of taller plants. Run your rows north and south, so each row will receive the same amount of sun.

You can plant two or more crops in a single row, too, as long as they require about the same spacing. You can even mix crops of different sizes in the same row. For example, you could interplant a fast growing crop, like radishes, with a slow-growing crop. The radishes would be picked before the slower maturing plants need the space.

Don't plant too much of one crop at a time, especially those vegetables that must be eaten shortly after they're harvested. To have fresh produce over a longer period, plant smaller amounts of the same crop at 10-to-14-day intervals. Beans, sweet corn and peas fall into this category. Be sure you plant sweet corn in blocks rather than in single rows — you'll get better pollination and help produce more corn.

It's best to design your garden so you can rotate crops from year to year. If you avoid growing the same crops, or the same type of crop, in the same spot more than once every three or four years, you may reduce the build-up of soil borne diseases which can reduce yields or even wipe out your crop.

Now's the time to get a head start on your garden — on paper. It's too early to be planting most crops, but you can start planning — selecting the proper site, choosing the right crops, and setting up a good design — all beamed to increase your chances of producing a successful spring vegetable garden.

Happy gardening!

Some Parents 'Starving' For Child-Rearing Info

By Ken Franckling
UPI Feature Writer

BOSTON (UPI) — Today's Baby Boom generation of parents are taking child care more seriously, to the point that many couples are "starving" for advice and encouragement in raising their infants, experts say. "There aren't enough supports out there. Parents seem to be starving for information — to be told that what they are doing is all right," says Meredith Censullo, assistant professor of developmental psychology at Massachusetts General Hospital's Institute of Health Professions.

"There is now a trend to help parents feel better about what they are doing. Parents are hungry for input: 'Tell me what to do, and that I'm doing it right,'" Censullo said. "If we can nurture the parents, they will nurture the child."

The movement, stemming in part from the parenting philosophy of Harvard-affiliated pediatrician T. Berry Brazelton, has brought child development studies to the public through books and a Brazelton cable TV series. Even toy companies are getting involved.

Two years ago, the Playskool division of Hasbro-Bradley Inc., asked the Brown University Child Study Center in Providence, R.I., for help in developing toys that would strengthen a child's basic skills and at the same time teach parents how to play with their child.

The result, after 18 months of research, is a $70 complete play system, "Playtime With Baby." It includes more than 100 different activities designed to develop the child's motor skills from infancy through age 24 months, and give parents a stronger sense of their child's development.

"Toy companies often gear themselves toward things that are glitzy to look at, quicker to buy," said Lyn LaGasse, a Brown researcher who helped develop the system. "Playskool wanted it to be something special, to be meaningful. Someone did their homework and realized we can be more interactive with their children. So they came in and said: 'We can sell anything, but what's good for them?'"

"They especially wanted to develop positive interaction. It's not bad to have parents in tune, with a sense of what they've got there, and a respect for their child's capabilities," LaGasse said.

The fact that there is a demand for such products should come as no surprise at a time when both spouses work in many young households.

"Parents are working more, so they are concerned about quality time, quality interaction with their child," LaGasse said. "How are they supposed to know about children? How many of us come from families of eight where you helped raise other children? We're not raised in a herd anymore. Now, many women know nothing about really dealing with a child until they have one."

The prime benefit of closer parent-infant interaction, LaGasse said, is the learning that occurs on both sides.

"This kind of play can help build a positive relationship, strong communication patterns between parent and child. It comes down to developing mutual respect and consideration for what your child is — instead of what you think he should be.

"Parents spend a lot of time trying to mold their child's behavior. We want them to know how that child thinks — what intrigues them," LaGasse said. "We hope the children are going to teach the parents about who they are and what they like."

Censullo said the concept of a hands-on teaching tool for parents is good, but she is concerned by the subliminal impact that toy industry advertising can have in child development products in general.

"You don't need a $70 activity center to be a good parent. The research has shown it is the parent's ability to read the infant's cues and adjust the care to the child's capabilities that is most important," she said.

"A number of companies have produced developmental toys and have used development experts. The toy companies are concerned with what's appropriate. Then they make the public feel guilty that if this is so appropriate, why doesn't their child have one?"

"I know that the whole focus on the individuality of the infant makes a better relationship. If the adult takes the time to get to know the strengths and weaknesses, they can tailor their time. It's a matter of helping the parent to get to know their child better."

"Nothing takes the place of the parent, or the place of the hug. It is the timing, and the pauses, that are as important as the doing," Censullo said. "People who want everything for their child must learn to sit back and take their clues from the child. We do know that children respond to adults who are sensitive."

Husband's Appetite For Lust Gnawing Away At Marriage

DEAR ABBY: John (not his real name) and I have been married for 15 years and have a lovely family. My problem: All our married life John has needed constant reassurance that he is still attractive to women. He never misses an opportunity for a one-night stand, and seems to think that as long as he doesn't establish a long-term relationship with any of these women, he is not really guilty of having an affair. We have been in and out of counseling for years because of this problem.

I am a very attractive woman. We get along well and have a rich and varied sex life. This, however, has never diminished his lust for co-workers, convention participants and even prostitutes on business trips. He keeps telling me that if I would accompany him on his business trips, this wouldn't happen.

He claims to love me and our family and doesn't want to lose us. I say that knowing how destructive his behavior has been for our marriage and continuing to indulge in it, he is not likely to change. What do you think?

NAME WITHHELD FOR OBVIOUS REASONS

DEAR NAME WITHHELD: He can change if he really wants to. John is behaving like a little boy who says, "If you don't go with me, I'll get into trouble, and then it will be your fault." Don't let him shift the blame for his infidelity to you. Get him back into therapy, and if he is sincere when he says he loves you and his family and doesn't want to lose you, he will change his ways.

One-night stands can no longer be dismissed with a slap on the wrist. Haven't you heard? There's a new life-threatening sexually transmitted disease out there that can be caught by a single, careless contact with the wrong person. Total fidelity is essential. Anything less should not be tolerated.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a beautiful tattoo on his right shoulder. I am very fond of this tattoo and see no reason why his tattoo should be buried with him when he passes away.

My question is, is there any way that I can have the tattoo removed from his shoulder when he dies and have it tanned and framed? Is this legal and possible? If so, who does this sort of thing — the mortician, a doctor or a taxidermist?

My husband is in good health, but I would like to know the answer to this now before the time comes.

PERPLEXED IN WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR PERPLEXED: When the time comes, ask the mortician, who will be able to tell you if it's legal and possible. Perhaps a mortician will read this and let me know if a request of this kind has ever been made, and if so, how it was handled.

I, too, am perplexed.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 12 years. He was not exactly the man of my dreams, but he did provide me with the security I needed at the time.

Fifteen years ago I met a man I truly love. We have had a silent relationship (no communication) since he was married 13 years ago. He is now divorced and I am separated from my husband because I can no longer tolerate his outside relationships with other women, which he made little effort to hide.

I would appreciate your advice.

BEWILDERED AND PUZZLED

DEAR BEWILDERED: The man you truly loved 15 years ago is now divorced, and you are now separated from an unfaithful husband, which gives you a valid reason for getting rid of him.

If you need my permission to say farewell to your cheating spouse in order to renew a possible relationship with the man of your dreams, you have it. I am not suggesting that you take a nosedive into the sea of matrimony — but you could test the waters.

Supplements Needed For Calcium Loss

causes and treatment of impotence, write for your copy of Dr. Gott's new Health Report on IMPOTENCE. Send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been taking Dyazide for 10 years, as well as calcium and magnesium. Recently I read that you're not supposed to take calcium with diuretics, so I asked my doctor about it. He said I should have asked him about this years ago, and he told me to stop taking the calcium.

human beings to make vocal sounds, air must pass between the vocal cords. Before birth, the baby receives its oxygen from the umbilical cord; its lungs are filled with fluid and it does not "breathe." Your baby could not have used its voice before it had taken its first breath at birth.

I told him I thought I needed the calcium (I'm 54 and female). He said it was a gimmick by the calcium lobby, and that neither he, his wife or his mother take it. What do you think?

DEAR READER — The final word on calcium supplements is not in yet. However, this much is known: Women (and probably men) lose excessive amounts of calcium from their bones starting in middle age. This loss can weaken bones and lead to fractures, height loss and pain. The calcium loss accelerates after menopause. In women, this loss can be counteracted by hormone replacement. However, not all postmenopausal women are candidates for hormone pills; they may not choose to take supplements, or there may be sound medical reasons why they should not.

Although less effective than hormone pills, exercise and added dietary calcium (with or without fluoride) can help most women to reduce calcium loss. In my opinion, calcium pills are a harmless way to help counteract calcium excretion. Low doses of a thiazide diuretic, as is contained in Dyazide, actually enhance the flow of calcium into bones.

Therefore, I don't agree with your doctor. I think that calcium pills and Dyazide go well together, unless the patient has a history of kidney stones; then the two compounds must be used with caution. In your case, the use of supplemental dietary calcium seems to be a good idea.

DEAR DR. GOTT — When I was seven months pregnant, both my mother and I heard my baby crying inside me. Was this just our imagination?

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

When the finesse in the trump suit works, don't you try it again? Of course you do — who wouldn't? — unless it costs you your contract.

Declarer won the ace of diamonds and tried the spade finesse. When dummy's Jack held the trick, everything looked easy. He played another diamond back to his king in order to take a second spade finesse. Suddenly, disaster! West ruffed with the king of spades and played a heart. When declarer played a low heart from dummy, East ruffed. A club played to East still another heart, and that was down one. Poor South.

In fact, when the first spade finesse works, South does not need to try it a second time. He should just play the ace from dummy. Even if the king does not drop, his contract is safe. He can play queen of diamonds from dummy and finesse against East's 10, and the jack of hearts covered by West exposes the void in the East hand so that he can safely play to dummy's heart nine later. He can also handle an original holding of K-10-9-x of spades in the West hand, since East can never gain the lead to come through the king of clubs.

When the spade king does drop, an unexpected dividend occurs. After a third high trump, diamond queen, diamond to the nine, jack of hearts covered and a diamond back to his hand, South runs his last two trumps. West now is squeezed between his hearts and the club ace, and declarer winds up making 12 tricks.

600 Year-Old-Map May Spur Rewrite Of Ancient History

By Gregory Jensen
UPI Senior Editor
LONDON (UPI) — It looks like a strip of spotted cardboard with a few red markings, yet it has laid a trail of arson, death and the plague and is changing some notions about history.

It's one of an astonishing pair of recent discoveries involving both Prince Charles and a London housewife — fragments of maps six or seven centuries old that experts consider of unique importance.

"There really isn't anything else like this anywhere," said British Library official Peter Barber, gesturing at the 14th century strip of parchment now known as the Aslake World Map.

Barber, curator of maps in the department of manuscripts at Britain's national library, calls this "the first English world map," a phrase which takes some explaining. But explanations get lost in the excitement of its discovery.

"We had no idea what we had," said housewife Joyce Ovenden at a preview of "Lost Worlds," a small British Library show displaying the Aslake map for the first time. "But it was the burglars, you see."

She said burglars around her suburban London house worried her so much that she dug into a tin trunk in her basement where she was storing documents inherited from her family's long history.

Ovenden took one document, a tight roll, to the British Library for identification. Librarians said it was nothing special — a 15th century rent book from an estate called Creake Abbey.

But the rent book had been re-covered with an old piece of parchment. On it, barely visible under thick green mould, an expert spotted some writing. He called in Barber, an authority on maps, who grew very excited indeed. Barber identified the parchment as part of an ancient map, which turned out to be more than 600 years old. Such finds are extremely rare. Only one complete medieval map is known to exist, and the last significant portion of such a map turned up 75 years ago, in 1911.

By an amazing coincidence, another such fragment turned up about the same time, this one in an office facing Buckingham Palace. This section of a different map, some 75 years older, was in the archives of the Duchy of Cornwall, whose current duke is Prince Charles.

More astonishing still, these unrelated segments owned by the prince and the housewife show the same section of the globe, parts of Africa.

The better preserved and larger Duchy fragment, which Prince Charles has loaned to the "Lost Worlds" show, is the type of map which had nothing to do with geography.

For centuries, Barber said, maps were records of history and legend, not the lay of the land. Most were circular, with Jerusalem at the center, and were adorned with fanciful drawings.

"The chap who made this (the Aslake) map began by drawing a medieval world map of that sort," Barber said. "Just as he was finishing, somebody came along with something like this map here. A Catalan coastal map, and he tried to incorporate that information."

What this means is that the Aslake map is a combination, a hybrid. Mostly it's an old-style "map" depicting legend and history — one drawing shows a tribe testing women's fidelity by exposing children to serpents. But its coastline tries to be geographically accurate and it uses modern place names.

Drawn between 1325 and 1375, the map 'indicates modern sea charts reached England much earlier than previously believed.'

This attempt to show the world's actual shapes it what makes a "modern" map. The Aslake map is partly "modern" in that sense — it's the earliest known map to show the Canary Islands, for instance. It depicts coastlines realistically.

But it was drawn between 1325 and 1375. This "indicates that modern sea charts reached England much earlier than previously believed," the British Library says.

Barber said everyone thought Mediterranean nations like Italy had a monopoly on such knowledge until 150 years later than the Aslake map. So history is having to be rewritten.

The Aslake fragment is only perhaps one quarter of the original map. So experts are now on a trail laid by arson and the Black Death.

Creake Abbey, where the whole story started, was burned in an arson attack in 1484 — the Aslake rent records cover the previous year. In 1506, 22 years later, the abbey was devastated by the plague. Every one of its monks died.

After that the abbey's papers — the abbey itself is a ruin now — were bequeathed to the archives of Christ's College, Cambridge. And there is a tiny chance that more ancient map fragments are among them.

The theory is that the original Aslake map might have been damaged in the arson attack on the abbey. What remained then was used to cover records, a common practice at a time when parchment, let alone paper, was rare and costly.

And if one rent book could be bound in so precious and unique a fragment, what about other documents? British Library scholars are searching now to find out. Meanwhile the Aslake World Map and the Duchy of Cornwall fragment are on view in the British Library galleries at the British Museum until March 1.

Stocks Open Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in light trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 34 points during the three sessions preceding the New Year's Day holiday, was up 12.79 to 1908.74 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 682-166 among the 1,255 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 6,775,300 shares.

Traders said activity would probably be subdued Friday as many investors stretch the New Year's holiday into a four-day weekend.

"The most popular excuse for the market not having a yearend rally had been the changes in the tax laws," said Alfred Goldman, stock market strategist at A.G. Edwards & Sons in St. Louis.

"The short-term bulls lose that excuse Friday," he said. "If we don't start getting a better tone in the market Friday or very soon after that, the market is a lot sicker than I think it is; and I do think it's sick."

Elliot Fried, head of equity research at Shearson Lehman Brothers, said the absence of a yearend rally was not surprising.

"There's a lot of confusion about the economy," Fried said. "Half the investment community believes the economy is recovering; a whole other group thinks exactly the opposite."

Gold Sharply Up As Dollar Falls

The U.S. dollar opened lower at the start of the new year on major world money markets today. The price of gold was sharply higher.

In European trading the dollar slumped in Frankfurt to 1.919 German marks against Tuesday's close of 1.95. The markets in Frankfurt were closed on Wednesday.

In Paris the dollar opened at 6.3645 French francs, against Wednesday's close of 6.4225.

In Milan the dollar opened at 1,338.50 lire, against Wednesday's close of 1,351.20. It was the lowest quotation against the Italian unit since June 11, 1982, when the dollar closed at 1,324.55 lire.

In London the dollar opened at $1.4835 to the British pound, against Wednesday's close of $1.4825.

The Tokyo, Zurich and Amsterdam markets were closed for the New Year holiday. Trading will resume on Monday.

In early New York trading the dollar was slightly lower against major foreign currencies in light trading.

Gold opened $12.75 an ounce higher in London at $403.75 per troy ounce, and silver opened 10.5 cents higher in London's to $5.385 per troy ounce.

The morning fixing in London was $402.40, up $11.40 from Wednesday's close.

In London a dealer for bullion brokers Sharps Pixley said, "The heavy buying appeared for gold after the New Year day holiday on worries that the dollar may be set for another tumble."

In earlier trading in the Far East, gold closed at $403.50 an ounce on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, up $13.30 from Wednesday's close.

In early trading on New York's Comex, a 100-troy-ounce gold futures contract for current delivery in January opened at $404.40 bid an ounce, off 50 cents from Wednesday's close. A 5,000-troy-ounce silver futures contract for delivery in January opened at $5.40 bid unchanged.

Dual Drug Therapy May Treat Hardening Of The Arteries

CHICAGO (UPI) — Researchers, proclaiming "the age of cholesterol control," say a new dual drug therapy lowers blood cholesterol levels and may prevent further damage to dangerously clogged arteries.

More study is needed, but the drug combination may eventually prove to reverse the process of atherosclerosis, a buildup of waxy plaque that constricts blood vessels, said Dr. Scott Grundy of the University of Texas Health Science Center.

About 15 percent of Americans have unhealthy cholesterol levels in their blood that cannot be completely controlled by diet. Many of these develop atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, which is considered a leading cause of heart attack and stroke.

Lovastatin, an experimental drug, effectively lowers cholesterol levels in most of these people by about 30 percent, or to near-normal levels. But Grundy and his colleagues have found the drug is even more powerful when combined with colestipol, a prescription medication often given to relieve itching symptoms caused by cirrhosis.

"We have entered the age of cholesterol control," Grundy said in a telephone interview Thursday.

The researchers, reporting in the Journal of the American Medical Association, found the dual drug therapy lowered total blood cholesterol by 35 percent in eight men and two women.

More significantly, the drugs lowered the level of a harmful form of cholesterol known as low-density lipoproteins by 48 percent while raising the level of beneficial high-density lipoproteins by 17 percent.

The reduced levels of low-density lipoproteins are well below those that can cause atherosclerosis, and the presence of more high-density lipoproteins may reduce plaque that has already built up on artery walls, Grundy said.

Unfortunately, Grundy said, colestipol can cause some uncomfortable side effects, such as constipation, making the dual therapy inappropriate for the general public. However, he said, people who have had a heart attack or signs of progressive heart disease will benefit greatly from the two drugs.

"You have to be pretty motivated to take this combination, but people who already have heart disease have a strong motivation — their life," he said.

Lovastatin has no well-documented side effects at normal dosages, Grundy said, and may be sufficient therapy for the millions who have not yet developed significant disease. He recommended that all men over the age of 20 have their blood cholesterol levels checked, particularly if they have other risk factors for heart disease, such as smoking, obesity or high blood pressure.

Brownies Turn Blue In Swim

BOSTON (UPI) — The L Street Brownies, who bill themselves as the nation's oldest swimming club, took their annual New Year's Day dip at high tide in Boston Harbor, where the water temperature was a brisk 38 degrees.

Some 75 members of the club bathed in the frigid harbor Thursday from as little as 30 seconds to as long as 10 minutes. The swimmers ranged in age from 20 to 83.

"My grandfather was an L Street Brownie, and I've always wanted to do this," said Margaret Joyce, 22, of Milton.

"It was freezing."

The Brownies — named for the healthy complexion many of them develop by swimming in the ocean every day of the year — began their New Year's ritual in 1903.

Marcus Welby In, Howie Mandel Out

CHICAGO (UPI) — The television show may be a hit with viewers, but real hospital patients do not want their doctors looking like the characters on "St. Elsewhere," a poll found.

A survey of 200 hospital patients from Boston and San Francisco, reported in today's Journal of the American Medical Association, found a distinct preference for physicians in traditional white coats and a disdain for blue jeans and sneakers.

"Even people who feel personally pretty left-of-center, when they're a patient, they feel pretty vulnerable," said Dr. Thomas Lee of the Harvard Medical School. "They want their doctor looking like Marcus Welby, not Howie Mandel." The wacky Dr. Wayne Fiscus on the television series "St. Elsewhere,"

Beware Of Strangers Seeking Rides

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (UPI) — A San Francisco area carpenter agreed to drive an anxious stranger to a subway station for $50, only to find out he had assisted the getaway attempt of a suspected bank robber.

Ian McRae said he and a friend, Erik Lingel, were working on a house when the man appeared.

"This guy came running over the fence and he started offering Erik and me money," McRae said Thursday.

"First he wanted us to drive him to Hayward, then Oakland, then just to the BART (Bay Area Rapid Transit) station. It was really a bad judgment call on my part, but I thought I was sort of helping this pathetic person out of a bad situation," McRae said.

"And I said to myself, 'Fifty dollars for a ride to BART?' I gave him a ride."

After dropping the man off, McRae went to a service station, where he was approached by a police officer who told him his passenger was a suspect in a bank robbery.

The suspect, Charles James Thigpen, 38, was later arrested as he crouched behind a bench at the station, police said.

A second suspect in the Wednesday robbery was tracked by a bloodhound to the side of a highway, where he may have hitched a ride out of town, police said.

A police spokesman said Thigpen was carrying more than $1,000 when he was arrested, but he had no weapon.

Said McRae: "I was just the idiotic citizen who got in the way."

After DUI Arrest

Luck Likely Will Keep Job

The boss of an Orlando television sportscaster arrested New Year's Day in Altamonte Springs on a driving under the influence charge said today that he doesn't know all the facts in the case, but he doesn't think that the incident will cost Rod Luck his job.

Mike Schweltzer, general manager of WCPX, Channel 6, said he has only talked with Luck once briefly since Luck's 12:49 a.m. arrest on State Road 436. Schweltzer said he is concerned and disappointed over the incident and will review the facts with Luck when they both return to work Monday.

Schweltzer said without knowing all the facts he couldn't say what will happen, but he doesn't think Luck will be fired. Schweltzer said if Luck has a problem with alcohol he will offer him help to deal with that.

Luck was arrested after he left the Hilton Inn in Altamonte Springs. He was cautioned by an off duty policeman working at the inn not to drive. That officer suggested Luck take a taxi home.

But according to the arrest report Luck got into the passenger seat of his own car, which was driven onto North Lake Boulevard by an unidentified woman who stopped, got out and left the area.

Luck moved into the drivers seat and at about 50 mph drove to the intersection of State Road 436. The off-duty policeman alerted another officer via radio to a possible drunk driver and the second officer followed Luck's car as it turned onto State Road 436, toward the westbound entrance to Interstate 4.

Luck's car appeared to slide on the wet road and reportedly cut across several lanes of traffic, without signaling, to stop at a traffic light to wait to turn toward Orlando.

Luck's car was stopped by the officer after he delayed in moving forward after the light turned green.

He was given a roadside sobriety test and two breath analyses, one showing a blood alcohol level of .15 and the second .14. Under the law a BAL of .10 is considered intoxicated.

Luck, charged with driving under the influence, was released from the Seminole County jail on $500 bond.

Pay Taxes With Credit Cards?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lawrence Gibbs, the Internal Revenue Service commissioner, said today he has proposed that Americans pay their federal income tax by using credit cards.

The Treasury Department is considering the proposal, and it is likely the plastic cards will be used in the future, although not for a year or two, Gibbs said in an interview on NBC's "Today" program.

"That would work in the fashion same as you would use the credit card for any other obligation that you would have," the IRS commissioner said. "Namely in paying taxes you would provide us with the information about your credit card. We would charge your credit card account and you would pay your credit card company."

Gibbs acknowledged there will be confusion this year with the new tax reform law.

"Any time you have a change there is likely to be confusion and complexity," Gibbs said.

Reminded that the new W-4 form that taxpayers must fill out to set their payroll deductions have been expanded from two pages to four, Gibbs chuckled at the question "Is that simplification?" and said, "We think it is a fairer way to do it. It may not be any simpler."

a major tragedy like this."

The blaze erupted minutes after the Teamsters local workers voted to strike at midnight in a contract dispute.

Teamster Secretary-Treasurer Jose E. Cadiz denied any involvement and offered a $15,000 reward for information in the explosions and fire at the charred 423-room, high-rise hotel.

When asked if he thought lawyer Jorge Farinacci-Garcia — suspected of being a Puerto Rican terrorist linked to a $7 million Wells Fargo heist — had anything to do with the fire, Cadiz said Farinacci was the union's labor lawyer and he had no reason to believe he was involved in the incident.

The FBI says Farinacci, who is free on a $1 million bond, is a suspected member of Los Macheteros — or Machete Welders — a Puerto Rican terrorist group that seeks the island's independence. A grand jury accused Farinacci and 16 others of carrying out the 1983 Wells Fargo robbery in West Hartford, Conn.

"I hope to God that when this is investigated, it is determined that there was no criminal hand involved, neither from the left, the center, the right or by the workers, for the good of Puerto Rico," Cadiz told a news conference Thursday.

The Spanish-language El Mundo newspaper reported today that an unidentified senior police official said authorities were looking into the possibility two Molotov cocktails sparked the blaze and officials would know for sure later today or Saturday.

The newspaper also said authorities have received several anonymous phone calls from people saying they will help investigators in exchange for protection.

But Maria Rivera, a civilian spokesman at police headquarters, denied the report and said "neither the FBI nor police have determined the cause of the fire. They have found no evidence yet."

Rivera said authorities would not be able to say what happened until "within three or four days."

Puerto Rican authorities strongly indicated Thursday that arson was suspected in the blaze and U.S. Attorney Daniel Lopez Romo said, "Obviously what happened here did not happen as an act of God."

When Puerto Rico's Secretary of Justice Hector Rivera Cruz was asked about reports that the remnants of three incendiary devices had been found, he said: "I'm not denying that."

Teams from the FBI and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms are aiding in the investigation.

We also must share some of the lottery proceeds with students through financial aid."

She was also asked about the nation's teacher shortage projected into the 1990s and what Florida would do about that.

"We have to improve teacher recruitment in the state. When businesses recruit professionals, they invite people down, they show them their best communities. We have to do that kind of job. We also have to try to influence our high school students to go into teaching. Of course, the most basic element in all of this is teachers' salaries."

Finally, she was asked what the DOE will do to make the Career Ladder work, following the failure of its predecessor, Merit Pay.

"The biggest problem was in the classroom evaluations of teachers. We need to allow teachers to be part of that process. Teachers know who the best teachers are. The law we passed last year says that the Legislature must come up with $90 million or else the program will end. We've invested too much to let that happen. All of the education studies point to the career ladder as a way to improve teaching."

generally not equipped with seat belts and those drivers would be exempt from the law. Pick-up trucks made in 1972 and before are also exempt, he added.

Another question people asked was if it would be okay to just have the lap belt buckled and not the shoulder strap. Whitmire said he thought that would be okay, but that he didn't know of any cars without the lap belt and harness together. Interestingly, he said some people had cut off the harness strap but left the belt in tact. And that, he said, would be all right.

Some police officers don't like the law any more than other drivers. Said Lake Mary Police Chief Charles Lauderdale, "The harness straps are always interfering with our uniforms and badges."

During the earlier part of this century it was housed in a St. Petersburg tourist attraction before being sold with rest of the items in that collection. That probably, Morrow said, kept the canoe from being burned in a brush fire or buried underwater in a lake.

Although some pieces of Indian canoes are found submerged in Florida waters, Morrow said, they usually fall apart as they dry out.

Brian DuPont, another collector of Indian items, said, as in the case of Morrows' canoe, he too likes to buy up items that have been hoarded by early collectors or housed in museums, which have gone out of business.

DuPont, 32, said he is especially interested in the bead work of the Plains Indians. In producing beadwork, which adorned Indian clothing, pouches, moccasins and other goods, the Indians produced two distinct styles.

The woodland designs feature flowers and birds, while Plains Indians generally used geometric designs in this work, which all had symbolic meaning.

Before the advent of the white man into the Americas, DuPont said, the Indian had no glass beads, but they worked the same designs into their belongings, spending many hours decorating simple items, using porcupine quills in an embroidery-type process. The glass beads made their work easier, but the Indians continued to produce things rich with ritualistic meaning, DuPont said.

The advent of glass bead work helps, he said, to divide Indian items into two categories, "prehistoric," before the white man, and "historic," after the whites arrived in the Americas.

Few items, except for some stone goods, weapons points and bits of pottery have survived from prehistoric times, he said.

Although American Indian items are just coming into their own as "hot" collectibles, DuPont said even during the Depression such items were assigned a reasonable monetary value. In a time when workers earned 25 cents to 50 cents a day, he said, people would still pay a nickel for an Indian arrowhead.

"I think in spite of the huge prejudice against the Indian, some white people have always recognized what they did as an artform and appreciated it. Some people don't appreciate it for one reason or another simply because they don't appreciate anything. It doesn't take much to appreciate Indian stuff.

"There has never been any indication that the American Indian was ignorant. He may not have been knowledgeable in organized education, out of school books, and things like that.

"But they lived in harmony with nature and with every piece they made they took the time to put the artwork into a functional thing. The things they made had a lot of meaning," DuPont said.

A beauty of collecting American Indian items, Morrow said, is that some can still be found in the field. Other items can be bought or traded and when looking for such goods, he said, you will likely come across something you've never seen before.

A collector becomes sort of an archeologist and historian when probing into the past and amassing American Indian items.

'Bold And Beautiful' Premieres In March

By Nancy M. Reichardt

NEW YORK — On the heels of a one-line announcement by CBS that its half-hour soap "Capitol" had been canceled, the network released a few more facts about its new soap opera "The Bold and the Beautiful."

The half-hour show premieres Monday, March 23, the Monday after "Capitol" leaves the air (March 20). No time slot has been announced for "B&B," but it's possible the show will air in the 2:30 p.m. (EST) slot that "CAP" will be vacating.

"B&B" was created by William J. Bell and his wife, Lee Phillip Bell, who both created "The Young and the Restless." Bill will be the executive producer of "B&B." Lee will act as the director of special projects/programming.

As mentioned in a previous column, Gail Kobe has been named producer of "B&B." Gail comes to the show with a background as executive producer of the defunct NBC soap "Texas" and of "Guiding Light," from which Gail departed about two years ago.

Bill Glenn, who has directed "Y&R," "CAP" and "Love of Life," will assume the directing reins on "B&B."

So far, no casting has been done for "B&B," but we hear that the creative forces will be making some decisions soon. We'll keep you posted.

SHORT TAKES:

ROD ARRANTS, who was loved by the "Search for Tomorrow" audience for his portrayal of leading man Travis Sentell, has joined the cast of "The Young and the Restless."

Rod will be portraying a psychiatrist, Steven Lassiter, and one of his first patients will be Ashley Abbott (played by Eileen Davidson).

Rod was last seen on "Days of Our Lives" as Richard Cates, a crooked chief of police. For all you soap opera trivia buffs, this isn't Rod's first stint on "Y&R." Long ago he portrayed Jeff, the Chancellor stableboy.

SOAPS RINGING IN THE NEW YEAR with murder mysteries include "General Hospital" and "Days of Our Lives."

On "GH," everyone will be scrambling to find out who killed Ted Holmes (played by David Doyle). Lucy Coe (played by Lynn Herring) will be the primary suspect in this killing, but Buzz Stryker (Don Galloway) will run a close second.

On "Days of Our Lives," the evil Emma Marshall (played by Jane Windsor) barely had time to welcome in the new year before an unseen assassin took her life. It's a foregone conclusion that Kimberly Brady (Patsy Pease) will be a prime suspect, since Emma is responsible for the kidnapping of Kimberly's infant son, Andrew. But, since Emma had many enemies in Salem, there will be a lot of other suspects drawn into the fray before this case is solved.

MICHAEL SWAN, WHO PORTRAYS Duncan McKechnie on "As the World Turns," has been chosen "most watchable man in daytime television" by the national Manwatchers Association.

NOW THAT THE JURY ON "Another World" has found Brittany Love, played by Sharon Gabet, guilty of attempting to murder her husband, Peter Love (Marcus Smythe). Sharon will be exiting the show for good within the week. Originally we had learned that Sharon was taking a maternity leave (her second child is due anytime now), but the actress decided not to renew her contract.

Exiting along with Sharon will be her castmate Thomas Ian Griffith (Caitlin Ewing), who has also opted not to re-sign with "AW." Caitlin and Brittany will be reunited before their exit.

Larkin Malloy, who recently exited his role of Kyle Sampson on "Guiding Light," is like a cat with nine lives (or jobs as the case may be). Larkin always lands on his feet — and in a new soap role — whenever he leaves a current role.

Prior to Larkin's stint on "GL," he appeared for five years in the role of Schuyler (Sky) Whitney on "Edge of Night." When that show was canceled, Larkin joined "GL" and first appeared on screen while his final scenes on "EON" were still airing.

Larkin, who left "GL" only a couple of weeks ago, has already landed the role of Travis Montgomery on "All My Children." He begins taping his first scenes on Jan. 12.

No one is saying much about the background of Larkin's "AMC" character, other than that he's a race car driver and that he's almost certain to end up being Erica Kane's (played by Susan Lucci) new love interest now that she's severed her engagement to Jeremy Hunter (played by Jean LeClerc).

Incidentally, those of you with keen eyes no doubt spotted Larkin in the crowded airport scenes on the last two air shows of "Search for Tomorrow." Larkin insisted on working as an extra on "SFT" for old times' sake — "SFT" was taped in the old "EON" studio and the "SFT" technical crew had all worked on "EON" through its final days.

JACKLYN ZEMAN, who plays Bobbi Brock on "General Hospital," took time out from her regular soap role to tape a guest-starring role on the nighttime show "The New Mike Hammer." Jacklyn will appear as Lisa Miller in the Jan. 21 episode.

DANIEL PILON (Max Dubujak) will be featured in the "Ryan's Hope" story lines more prominently now that he has finished the principal shooting in Canada for the feature film "Hit and Run." The film is slated for an October 1987 release.

CHRISTOPHER TEMPLETON (Carol Robbins on "The Young and the Restless") has been chosen as media spokesperson for "Hal's Pals," a new line of dolls with disabilities. Christopher helped to launch the dolls, which are made by Mattel, at the Arizona Special Olympics' "Days of Heroes." The dolls are intended to help children realize that a disability shouldn't prevent them from leading a full and successful life.

"GUIDING LIGHT" BEGINS CELEBRATING its 50th anniversary year on CBS television this month. Starting off the planned yearlong activities for the show will be a party to announce the publication by Ballantine Books of "Guiding Light: A 50th Anniversary Celebration," by Christopher Schemering.

Other activities involve The Museum of Broadcasting in New York City, which will present a special "GL" seminar, and a gala black-tie anniversary party on June 29 at the elegant New York State Theater in New York's Lincoln Center.

FRANCES REID (Alice Horton) of "Days of Our Lives" co-stars with Robert Young and Michael Learned in the TV movie "Mercy or Murder," which will air on Jan. 11 on NBC.

In a role quite different from her "DOOL" role, Frances portrays Emily Gilbert, an Alzheimer's victim, in the movie, which is based on the true story of Roswell Gilbert, who took the life of his incurably ill wife in March 1985.

"Portraying an Alzheimer's victim is frightening," says Frances. "We can only imagine the confusion; we only see the external manifestations of the disease."

In conclusion, Frances says, "Portraying Emily was exciting for me as an actress. It's wonderful to be able to play two roles that are so diametrically opposed."

Lost Farmland

Three million acres of U.S. farmland are still being lost each year to urbanization or flooding. On productive farmland, 4 billion tons of topsoil are lost yearly to wind and water erosion — from which only half the nation's cropland is adequately protected.

Coolidge

In September 1919, Massachusetts Gov. Calvin Coolidge attained national prominence by calling out the state guard in the Boston police strike. This brought his name before the Republican National Convention of 1920, where he was nominated for vice president.

M.J. received flowers from the "old friend" she's avoiding. Rachel cried when Mitch said that she should forget about him because Mitch knows that she'll always love Mac. Before her death, Emma announced publicly that Shane and Kimberly will never find Andrew (Teddy). The mystery girl, Adrienne, lamented the fact that Patch didn't recognize her from his past. Norris Tries Comedy

By Vernon Scott UPI Hollywood Reporter HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Chuck Norris, king of martial arts movies, puts his black belt aside in his new comedy-adventure movie, "Firewalker," and tries to kill his adversaries with laughter.

To be sure, the handsome former world karate champion does dispense with a heavy now and again via a chop to the gizzard, but it is a new and amusing Norris on the screen. Gone is the intense, cold-eyed killer. In his place is a pleasant, laid-back Max Donigan, a laconic adventurer who, with partner Lou Gossett, goes looking for a lost Aztec treasure in Central America.

Norris, however, does not abandon his tough-guy status altogether. It's just that Donigan has a sense of fun, a sense of humor totally absent in the actor's previous roles. "This is a major departure for me," said a pleased Norris the other day. "Playing Max shows the lighter side of Chuck Norris, a side I haven't been allowed to let anyone see in my pictures before.

"Since I began making movies about 10 years ago I have become on screen what I was in the ring as a karate champion (1964-74). As a fighter I was dedicated, concentrating on putting away the other guy. That's what I've done as an actor. Now I'd like people to realize there's another, easy-going side to me.

"There's only one karate fight in 'Firewalker' and that takes place in a saloon with a bunch of drunken characters. It's the best karate scene I've ever done and it's full of laughs." "Firewalker" is Norris' 16th movie. The previous 15 were stark, often unrealistic dramas in which the star hacked away at ever-increasing numbers of villains.

The body counts became so high in his most recent films, "Delta Force" and "Invasion, U.S.A.," that it would have been impossible for Norris to slaughter more bad guys without the help of Conan and Rambo. Norris, with a broad grin, admitted the mayhem had climbed to unbelievable proportions. "That's all changed now. "There's only one death in this picture," he said. "Max carries a pistol but he's such a bad shot he never hits anybody. "Max is not a killing machine like some of the roles I've played. He's a bit of a klutz. He is inept, but somehow he manages to get the partners out of hot water at the last minute. "I think the time has passed when movie heroes have to kill hundreds of people to prove how macho they are. The mood of the people seems to be reflected in the popularity of 'Crocodile Dundee,' a hero with a sense of humor. "The audience can really like Max Donigan, who is sort of patterned after the heroes in 'Raiders of the Lost Ark' and 'Romancing the Stone.' I just hope hard-core Norris fans will be happy to see me in a lighter vein." In the tradition of such other strong, silent heroes as Gary Cooper, Clint Eastwood and Sylvester Stallone, Norris had little enough to say in past films, raising the possibility that he had difficulty memorizing lines. In this picture he talks his head off. "I'm very verbal for the first time," he said. "It was a pleasure to handle so much dialogue. My films have been almost all visual. But it's verbal exposition in 'Firewalker' that makes the comedy work. "We spent 16 weeks shooting on locations in Mexico, which would have been heavy duty in a typical Norris picture. But I found myself much more light-hearted playing Max. I was in an upbeat mood throughout the picture. "In 'Invasion' and terrorist pictures I would have to charge myself up emotionally like I did when I was fighting. Not this time. Max is a breakaway role for me personally and professionally. Max thinks the sun shines all the time." Norris said he is keeping his fingers crossed that filmgoers will find his new screen persona as interesting as the tight-lipped killers he has played in the past. "I think this is the best film I've ever done," he said. "I also think I've turned in my best acting performance as Max. As an actor it is one of the few pictures I've enjoyed doing. "My decision to play more roles like Max depends on how the public accepts 'Firewalker.' I'm already developing a new comedy-adventure, but we'll have to wait and see what happens with 'Firewalker' at the box office."

Walters Literally Waltzed Down Aisle

Dear Dick: Barbara Walters of ABC announced her engagement on "Good Morning, America." I have heard nothing more. Did she get married? To whom? If not, why not? — Mrs. C.B., Stuart, Fla.

Dear C.B.: On May 10, 1986, a date that will be engraved on Barbara's memory for all eternity, she became Mrs. Merv Adelson. He is chairman of the board of Lorimar-Telepictures.

Dear Dick: My husband and I have a night on the town resting on this one and, since we live in a very small town, neither of us will splurge too much! Who played the blind man, an attorney or private eye, with a seeing-eye dog? He had lost his wife in the accident that blinded him. My husband says it was Richard Chamberlain. I say James Franciscus. — L.H., Elkins, W.Va.

Dear L.H.: You win a night at the Elkins Chill Parlor, or wherever, because it was Franciscus as the blind insurance investigator on "Longstreet," which ran on ABC in 1971-72.

Dear Dick: I've seen the colorized version of

Ask Dick Kleiner

"Miracle on 42nd Street" and I think they spoiled it. I've watched "It's a Wonderful Life" a dozen times and will watch it a dozen more if they leave it alone. Where can I write to tell them that if they need to colorize something, try white bread? — J.W., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Dear J.W.: My theory is that if the producers of those old movies had good color processes available to them when they made those movies, they would have made them in color. I think "Miracle" is vastly improved to see Santa in a red suit, rather than a black one. Write to the president or the pope or Joan Collins, for all the good it will do.

Dear Dick: Could you tell me the name of a song I heard on "Family Ties." It's a slow song. Alex and Ellen danced to it. Who does it and is it on an album? — P.S.B., LaPorte, Ind.

Dear P.S.B.: Lots of people have been asking about that song. It's called "At This Moment." It was done by somebody called Billy and the Beaters (I'm not sure if the beat carpets or eggs). It is available on their album "By Request," on Rhino records.

Dear Dick: My mother and I love "Downtown" and we wonder if you could tell us the name of the theme song and who sings it. — L.K.B., Paw Paw, Mich.

Dear L.K.B.: That's a ditty called "Money," done by Ronnie Millsap. It is an old record, which producer Ron Samuels acquired for the show.

Dear Dick: Who was the first emcee on "Dance Fever" and who is the emcee now? — Mrs. K.W., Houston.

Denny Terrio was the original, and Adrian Zmed is leading the dancing now.

French Director Defends Film Nudity

By Vernon Scott

UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — French director Jean-Jacques Beineix is in a Gallic fury over some American reviews knocking his new movie, "Betty Blue."

Beineix, a slightly-built man with dark hair and a pale, aesthetic demeanor, was in Hollywood recently for the opening of his drama about an obsessive love affair involving a 20-year-old woman who is going insane.

His first film, "Diva," became one of the biggest foreign language hits ever to play the United States. But these days, the gap between the culture of his native France and the puritanical mores of even sophisticated Americans has Beineix in a snit.

The director is especially outraged by critical broadsides here in light of the fact that "Betty Blue" is a runaway hit in France.

"Betty Blue" opened in Paris last April and is still playing. According to Beineix, it is the No. 2 box-office film in France this year.

"But it opens in America to a great deal of criticism," the Frenchman complained.

Perhaps some of the reviewers couldn't get past his opening sequence, a young man and woman making passionate love for several minutes after the screen credits.

Later in the picture there are other erotic scenes and several non-erotic nude sequences in which the lead actor and actress (Jean-Hugues Anglade and Beatrice Dalle) are seen casually in the altogether.

Unlike American films in which women are seen nude while the men are usually dressed, "Betty Blue" exposes even more of actor Anglade than of Dalle, who makes her screen debut in the film.

Moreover, neither performer would win a body beautiful contest.

Their bodies are prosaic, and as flawed as their characters' emotional and psychological glitches.

In those respects, Beineix provides moviegoers with a significant slice-of-life reality.

"The film is an allegory of life and love," he explained. "It examines the burden of being alive and loving someone. The young man knows his love is going mad but refuses to admit it to himself.

"At the same time, my film celebrates the little moments of happiness in a tragic but beautiful situation. It deals with grief which is a burden of life. It is more than a melodrama. It is about the tragedy of being in love."

Instead of reviewing "Betty Blue" in that light, some critics have blasted the explicit love scenes and casual nudity.

"That is unfair," said Beineix. "Nudity is nice enough to be universally accepted. Americans confuse nudity and sexuality, which is not the case in Europe.

"Why are Americans afraid of the nude body? What is the problem? We all have bodies; why not show what we are? American society hides and pretends bodies don't exist.

"It's true women have been exploited by being nude while the men remained dressed in films. But men are victimized by their own macho-ism. In 'Betty Blue' the man is seen more in the nude than the woman.

"I have created a climate of equity between men and women in this respect. There are some extreme feminists who dislike nudity because the burden of it falls on women. I am on their side. I'm not some macho wacko. I tried to find a balance."

Beineix fears that the uproar will distract his audience from enjoying the film as art. "Nudity is not profane. In truth the nakedness in my picture is no big deal. That is not what the film is about. The film is for mature people ... I made the sex scenes and the nudity part of the story. A director must break rules and take risks, that's what the film art is all about."

Beineix bemoaned the fact that "Betty Blue" will play only American art movie houses. He is convinced his film should be seen in wide release.
