

Challenge For Dr. Mays

CHAD: "The DIRECTOR'S meeting was to be held in the staff room at the clinic, and, five minutes late, Chad ran up the outside steps. In the reception hall a few people sat upon the benches, and as he whizzed past them, Newell and Stella McCrillis glanced at each other, and laughed. He disappeared into his office, pulled off his sweater and changed his shirt."

When Chad entered the staff room he found a half-dozen grave-faced men seated around the bare, gleaming table. Miss Barr was waiting for him. Chad greeted the assembled men and before he sat down, pulled out the tails of his shirt. It was an odd looking shirt, tied with strings at the back of his neck; the tail was stretched plainly in black. "County Hospital."

Every man looked gravely at the shirt, the name and then at each other. Eyebrows went up; lips curled down.

The chairman made a short speech about the reasons for calling this meeting. He was a doctor, and a good one. When he finished he asked Dr. Mays to comment.

Chad rubbed the palm of his hand over his face, shook his head as if to clear it, grinned apologetically and then, getting to his feet said briefly, "Would it make a difference if you knew that all the charges against us have been trumped up?"

Surprise rippled in a double wave down along the table; the chairman showed his teeth by jerking his shoulders, and blowing his breath out between his pursed lips.

"If you have any explanation that would—well—strengthen our case . . ."

"Dr. Gaskins, you sound as if you already were in court."

"High time to be lining up outside, wouldn't you think?"

"High time," Chad agreed. "But—if we are to make a trial of this meeting, why don't we bring in the other side? Get that Dr. Wilkins-Smith over here, and his lawyer . . ."

And on that, ignoring all the words being said to him, the shocked Bermuda that followed him, he walked steadily toward the door. "Be back in an hour," he said pleasantly. "You call W.B. got him over here, and some of his hospital gang with him, if they'll come." He opened the door, turned, then beckoned with his finger to Hazel.

When she came to the door,

Chad nodded his arm through for being that kind of a heel, and not even be sorry."

"A man," said Chad softly, "named Britton Van Horn?"

Hazel stopped cold.

"You picked up a row, didn't you?" Chad asked inexorably. "When he said that he was done with you? Such a row, coupled with threats to expose him, that he had an occlusion and died?"

"He tried to pay me off," she said sulkily. "He brought me money from Alice Milburn and told me that I had to get out. He shouldn't have done that. Chad, after all we'd been to each other!"

"It was a fatal mistake," Chad agreed politely. Then, his voice was as soft as cotton. "How did you manage to fasten suspicion on Lacey?"

"Oh, that part was easy," said Hazel brahly. "He had this attack in my apartment—dropped like he'd been shot. Called Claude. It was he who suggested that we take Brit home—to save scandal and talk, you know. We'd make it seem as if he'd died as he was putting his car into the garage."

"And that's why," mused Chad, "you had to come here as Wilkins-Smith's stooge. Because he had something on you?"

"Well, I—I was the one who told him that the clinic would run him. But, yes—I—be—"

Chad watched her for another second or two. Then he laughed, and dropped his chair far enough so that his hand could reach the row of buttons on his desk. Muttering something about her bad memory, he snapped one of the buttons, leaned over to take a spool from the recorder in the open desk drawer beside him. With the spool in his hand, he stood up, went around Hazel as if she were not there, walked steadily through the outer office, down the hall and along to Miss Duckett's desk.

He laid the small reel beside that nurse's hand. "Keep this with you, Miss Duckett. I want you to hang on to it until I have a record of the Board meeting to go with it. If you leave, take it with you. Above all things," he said, "do not give it to Miss Barr. She is no longer my secretary. I've fired her."

His moose-antler nose slapping the floor, he passed the bench where the McCrillises sat, went on to the door of the Board room. With his hand on the knob, he looked back over his shoulder. Miss Barr was going out through the front door. Moving fast!

Docks, Terminals Could Be Answer To City's Challenge For Survival

This isn't the time to get confused! Not with such an important project for the immediate growth and progress of Sanford, Seminole County, and Central Florida starting our city leaders in the face.

Throughout the United States, and along the inland waterways of the nation, whether dead-end or a throughway, water transportation is growing to be of top importance.

Counties, cities, districts, wherever government groups are located along the important waterways of the country, are building at an unprecedented rate, docks and terminals to take care of the transportation demand.

Industry realizes the importance of water transportation—and that is exactly where the important industries of the country are locating. Look at your map and wherever you find a navigable stream you'll also find docks and terminals to take care of the mushrooming demand for barge freight.

Engineers have always been a group of professional men who will not go out on a limb to foresee the impossible.

And so they have been in the question as to whether or not a docks and terminals project should be constructed at Sanford.

We've been asked to "give one good reason why a docks and terminals should be built at Sanford"—instead, we'd like to place the project before you as a "red carpet of welcome" to the booming industrial picture in Central Florida.

Industry hasn't yet started to make it a big surge into Central Florida. We will admit that there's been some growth—and Sanford has received a part of it although there should have been a bigger share.

And for one good reason for constructing a docks and terminals project at Sanford we ask you to look at the important industrial picture over the entire country—where have they located? Everywhere of any major importance is on a navigable stream or body of water.

Another sensible reason is the fact that Sanford and Seminole County have the natural site for a terminal for both trucks and rail, as well as water. All three of the transportation services center here at Sanford and are joined by good highways to the north, south, east and west uncluttered by puzzling jigsaws of roads through which overland transportation must manipulate.

Still an additional reason for locating a docks and terminals at Sanford is the very fact that industrial property is available in every direction from any location of a site. It is entirely possible that within a few comparatively short months the entire area from the Lake Monroe Bridge to French Ave. could be built up into a highly industrial area. West First Street could be an industrial avenue right into the heart of our city.

And to offer another reason, we could add

Foreign News Commentary

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
The Baghdad Treaty against Communist penetration in the Middle East has made a remarkable comeback.

In fact, the five-country alliance is stronger and potentially more important now than it ever had been since it was signed in Baghdad, Iran, in February, 1955.

It started out as purely a "paper pact"—the loss of all the free-world alliances against Communist aggression.

It was threatened with a complete break-up after the British-French invasion of the Suez Canal Zone last November.

But the meeting of the Baghdad Treaty members which started in Karachi, Pakistan, Monday, appears to mark a turning point which will strengthen Allied ties in the whole area of Asia from Turkey to Pakistan.

U. S. A. Sponsor
The Baghdad Treaty members are Turkey, Iraq, Iran, Pakistan and Great Britain.

The United States, which sponsored the treaty, refused to join it. At that time, the Eisenhower administration did not want to involve itself so closely in Middle Eastern affairs.

The fact that all its members but Britain are Muslim nations, and that Iraq is a member of the nine-nation Arab League, nearly caused the break-up of the pact when Britain joined France in the canal invasion.

The four Muslim members boycotted Britain, and held meetings without inviting Britain to take part.

But Britain is back at the current Karachi meeting. The United States, which had limited its part to being represented by an observer and to joining the economic committee of the pact, formally joined the military committee at Monday's opening meeting. That means that except for admitting it, the United States is now practically a full member of the pact.

Formal Military Setup

The delegates are discussing the formation of a formal military set-up, which will be aimed at coordinating their defense organizations.

It is possible that Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi may be named before long as supreme commander of the treaty organization.

It is possible also that within the next few months Jordan may be invited again to join the treaty. This time, after the victory of young King Hussein over his pro-Russian, pro-Western political enemies, he may find it possible to accept.

If the present trend in the Middle East continues, it is just possible also that pro-Western Saudi Arabia and Lebanon may be brought into it.

The "Square Dancers" of the Chief's Club are really "rolling" now! They have a better time each week when they get together, and those who attend regularly do so because they enjoy it so much! Chief Bone again did the "rolling" and, as usual, was so good. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Bone, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Walton, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Sundvall, Mr. and Mrs. H. Aeder, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hancock, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Robson and Mr. Robson's sister, Lt. Pearl Robson NC, USNR, also, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brinn and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Greene. Missed on Monday night were Mr. and Mrs. Amos Singuefield, due to that thing known as "duty".

Unfortunately they will be shortly missed on more than duty nights. They'll be leaving sometime around July 15, for duty in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Also about due to go off on leave are the Greenes, Vera and Joe, and their little daughter, will be leaving this coming Friday for Macon, Georgia, to visit Joe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Greene. They expect to be back about June 18.

Said goodbye yesterday to Beverly Yaw. She took off at "the crack of dawn" this morning, from Orlando, heading for Los Angeles, California. It's her home-state, and she's very glad to be getting back there. Ed has been transferred to Point Mugu from VAI-3. He doesn't leave until the end of the month, but he's flying home a little sooner.

That seems to be the extent of my "social news"! When I'm not home to answer the phone, I do wish that anyone trying to reach me would call back later in the day, as I'm almost always home by then!

Do You Get Full Benefit From Your Hearing Aid?

By HERMAN H. DUNNISON, D.D.
HEARING persons using hearing aids are often not getting the full benefit from their aids. This is because they are not using them properly. They are not adjusting them to their own hearing level. They are not using them in a way that will give them the most benefit.

Incidentally, you may need a new earmold every so often. Depending upon the individual and his age, the ear may undergo changes in shape in less than a year's time.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
Mrs. G. P.: My baby had a high temperature and convulsions about four months ago. What is the best way to bring down a fever in order to prevent recurrence of convulsions?
Answer: Of course you should call a doctor immediately when the baby has a very high temperature.

However, sponging the baby with half alcohol and half water and giving him an ounce of cool tap water and small amounts of aspirin will help bring down the temperature until the arrival of the doctor.

Distorted Sound
Next, turn up the volume slowly but turn it up only to the point where the voice is heard at a comfortable level. Tuning it in too loudly will often cause distortion.

SAILING ENTHUSIAST up Larchmont way had three daughters, so he named his new sloop, "Three Belles."

Shortly thereafter his wife presented him with a baby boy. Revised name of sloop: "Three Belles and a Buoy."

There is no truth to the rumor, insists Pyke Johnson, that anti-hoek campaigns have forced C. S. Forster to discontinue his "Hornblower" books. He simply took a sabbatical for his "The Story of the Naval War of 1812." Incidentally, the book tells how The Constitution escaped from a formidable British fleet on an absolutely calm sea. Because there was no wind, The Constitution had to resort to kedging, which is moving a ship by sending out an anchor in a small boat, dropping it overboard and then pulling the ship up to it. The British followed the same method, and for a while it was sort of kedge as kedge can.

Conning The News

By VIRGINIA CONN
The Friday bridge club met for lunch at Lois Elder's last week. Lois served them a plink 'n' bread filled with chicken salad and frosted with cream cheese. Dishes decorated the top, and these were made from hard cooked eggs and green pepper. Avocados in aspic were also served and dessert was brownies. Sounds wonderful, doesn't it? Attending were: Sonja Blackwood, Treva Michael, Ruth Tully, Mike Stone, Millie Donnadieu, Barbara Jacob, Betty Fitzsimmons, Jean Filton, Marge Hill, Hazel Rowell, and Betta Linker.

A farewell party was given Saturday night for Blaine and Mary Libber, and St and Lou Johnson. Olivia Simmons was the hostess and pretty clever. I think to have such a big party while Andy is gone. The flowers were yellow and white gladioli, arranged by that well known horticulturalist, Betty Guy. Mrs. Leonard did the catering. And I hear that her hors d'oeuvres are out of this world. Filling the house were Ruth and Joe Tully, Betty and Bill Hazlett, Tom Blackburn, Dot and Dick Mann, Kay and Pat Dwyer, Gretchen Hill, Audrey Brownie and d'Arbrought, her famous dip, Camie Meyer, Millie Thomas, Bill and Jean Stetson, Betty and Jim Guy, Ida and Bob Radtke, Rita and Dick Bauer, Vann and Laura Parker, Sally and Howie Weigle, Doris and Fran Francis, Thelma and Bob McMurray and Ann Bear.

The Nelsons and a big party went crabbing in Blue Springs last week and caught a bumper crop.

It has been my desire for some time to bring you profiles about this area. It is surprising how many interesting fields can be uncovered by asking a few questions. Let me start off this series with Julie and Bob Anderson. The Andersons live on Twelfth Street here in Sanford. They have a son, Tommy, who is two and a half. Bob is an Ensign stationed with VAH-6 as a bombardier navigator. This is their first duty station in the navy. What is different about them? They are both accomplished musicians.

Julie's mother is a piano and organ teacher in East Chicago, Indiana. Consequently at the age of four Julie was indoctrinated—but not into piano. She plays the violin and claims she can do anything with the piano. Julie and Bob attended the same High School in East Chicago, where both their fathers are teachers. Bob started playing the cello when he was twelve. Both Andersons attended the American Conservatory and Chicago Musical College, where they were in high school. Then Julie went to the American Conservatory and Bob to Northwestern. After two years Julie gave in and attended Northwestern too, where both of the Andersons received their degrees as Bachelors of Music. Meanwhile they were married and Bob decided to stay on for his Master's, while Julie went to work in the library. Then on to Indiana University, where Bob started on his Ph.D. in Musicology. With one more year to go, he joined the navy. It is his hope of course to finish, and plans to write his thesis by translating ancient music notations from scribbles never before unraveled. Musicology is the study and research of old music. Julie applied for a job teaching anywhere she could be of use. By this time there was Tommy to consider. Of all places, she was sent to Orlando, where she taught violin in thirteen public schools on the East side of Orange County. This was only last year, so after a brief time in Norfolk, the Andersons moved to Sanford. Julie considers it a shame that the Florida Symphony cannot use music teachers in the orchestra. She also has some excellent views on guest appearances with the orchestra. There must be a number of retired artists in this area, or those such as the Andersons stationed here with the services. It is easy to see that Julie is itching to play—her enthusiasm abounds—her skill should be enjoyed by those who love good music. The Andersons are interested in forming a small group to play chamber music, for the expression of the hand, in, as the expression goes, is the same in any field, but imperative in music.

Semi-Pro Team Faces Clermont Here Sunday; Has Pitching Problem

Today's Sport Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK — This is a tale of tabbies and tigers and the changing character of the fight mob.

There was a day in the punching past when your box fighter looked like what he was, talked like what he was and acted like what he was—in or out of the ring. He was a hairy-chested tiger ready to whip the world before or after breakfast.

Remember some of them and you get the idea: Two-Ton Tony Galento, rough Rocky Graziano, raucous Max Baer, snarling Tommy Farr or the irascible Lew Jenkins.

These were really tigers, from the barrel who walked like a man and could "molder any bum in the world," right down through the rolling "lits. Call 'em puss or mugs or almost anything you choose but they were fighting men who walked as tall as they fought.

Joust For Title
Which made it particularly incongruous when Floyd Patterson and Tommy Jackson, two "tigers" of a slightly different stripe, signed to joust for the heavyweight title at the Polo Grounds on July 20.

Galento would have gagged if he could have seen the Alphonse and Gaston buck and wing out on by these two charming gladiators. The stripes of war didn't say that they were to meet with cream-puffs at 20 paces but you couldn't hardly be blamed for absorbing such an inference.

"I'm not going to say I'll beat him," quoth Jackson, once known as "Hurricane" before he subsided into a conversational zephyr. "I'm not boasting."

Sartorially, Jackson would have drawn no more than a blank stare from Graziano. His duckbill haircut and tiny moustache were sensational, topping off a gray suit, yellow silk shirt, sedate black tie and a gold tiebar as big as a Shoshone snowshoe.

His Gentle Mien
Floyd, noted for his gentle mien and velvety voice, then turned his attention to the impending hostilities.

"The first time we boxed it was a hard fight," he said, smoothing his blue suit and fixing the snowy white handkerchief peeping with equal modesty from his breast pocket. "It should be more difficult this time for both of us."

Facing Clermont Sunday afternoon in Memorial Stadium for the final game of the first half of the season, Sanford Semi-Pro manager W. C. "Red" Hires is having pitching troubles—not the kind that is a usual plague, however, but of picking from among the many capable pitchers that have seen only limited action so far this season.

Hires has three righthanders that look good and are in condition to go the full route for the Semi-Pro if they don't have an off day.

J. H. McDaniel, stationed at SNAB has had a respectable pitching career and did a good job of pitching for Tampa at one time. His rugged constitution and versatility on the mound points him out as a natural for the highly touted Clermont.

But then, two other righthanders, Jim Krider and Jim Thompson, both look good and are capable of going the route and a wide variety in deliverance. The matter will probably be decided Sunday afternoon by the pitcher that feels best and "up" for the game.

"I just hope that we don't face another pitcher like that Bill Taylor from Casselberry," Hires said. Taylor showed more power and complete dominance over the ball than any other pitcher to face the local Semi-Pro this season.

The Sanford Semi-Pro, despite their highly successful winning season, have faced all close competition. The biggest difference in scoring in the official season was a two run victory over Orlando when the Semi-Pro edged them 7-5. The rest of the games have been decided by only one run and the games have run the gamut of baseball excitement, from "Elvis Presley" pitching of Bill Taylor to the 34-0 practice game massacre that pushed the Kissam Bullies team out of the Central Florida Semi-Pro League.

The greatest draw back to the Semi-Pro this season has been spectator attendance. In a do-or-die situation last Sunday afternoon the team drew about 5 fans and netted just enough at the gate to get the team through the first half of play.

Sugar Ray Named 'Boxer Of Month'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Sugar Ray Robinson, who won the middleweight title for the fourth time by knocking out Gene Fullmer at Chicago May 1, was named by the National Boxing Assn. today as "boxer of the month."

Fred J. Saddy, chairman of the NBA championship committee, announced Robinson's selection in releasing the monthly NBA ratings. He said Robinson's fourth-round knockout of Fullmer was "sensational."

Harold Johnson moved up to the No. 2 contender spot in the light heavyweight class by knocking out Clarence Hinant and beating Bob Satterfield.

Saddy said Del Flanagan, St. Paul welterweight, was removed from the ratings, after he was sentenced to 90 days in jail for fighting with a policeman. "Our association will not con-

First Pee Wee Golf Tourney In 1947

Six-year-old Bobby Lunquist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Lunquist will be among the more than 125 junior golfers and their smaller brothers and sisters will converge on Orlando June 18-19 for the National Pee Wee Golf Championships at the Pine Hills Golf and Country Club.

The unique tournament for small fry, professionally directed under the sponsorship of the Orlando Chamber of Commerce, lists entries in five age divisions from youngsters from 12 states and 18 Florida cities.

Began in 1917 to promote golfing interest among the kids, the Pee Wee tourney has steadily grown to national prominence. The 1947 champ, Don Bipling, went on to gain recognition as one of the top amateur golfers in the country, winning among other honors the Florida State Amateur title three years in a row and a berth on the Walker Cup team.

To the National Pee Wee title winners (10-12) goes the Ben Hogan trophy for boys and the Judy Torluemke trophy for girls named in honor of the St. Louis loss who retired the coveted Babe Zaharias trophy with three consecutive wins.

To the National Senior Pee Wee title winners goes the Youngtown, Ohio, United Veterans Council trophy for boys and the Fownes trophy for girls.

And just to make sure no one's disappointed, the Orlando Chamber of Commerce awards each entrant a souvenir prize. There's no entry fee and all youngsters from 3 to 15 are eligible to enter.

Cleveland. And Sam Park Jr., who won at Oakmont, Pa., in 1935, failed to qualify at Pittsburgh.

Home for a long weekend before continuing her work through the summer as a student nurse at Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami was ROSEMARY GARNER, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Garner. Also home from Miami was RONNIE GARNER who is a medical student at the University of Miami. Well, summer vacation is here for the college students. With big plans for three months of fun, students are pouring into Sanford from colleges all over. A big year was had by all and now it's time for a rest — or at least a change. For most of us will have summer jobs or other similar plans. Plans of a few of us include: summer school for MARGARET MORRI-

SON who will graduate from Stetson University in August; summer school for BEVERLY COOPER at Alabama College. City Recreation work for NANCY ROUNTREE and GRACE MARIE STINECIPIER; work (which he hasn't found yet) around Sanford for JOHNNY BOWEN, summer school at Uoff for WESLEY GILES; and camp for BILLY PARK. Also many are making plans this summer to attend college for the first time next fall.

Also summer brings the time for me to say adieu with this column of college news until another school year rolls around. With this last column I would like to take the opportunity to thank everyone of you for being so cooperative in every way that with your help I could create a column that you could enjoy. I deeply appreciate the kind words so many of you have said about "Collegiate Echoes" — each wonderful word has given me a thrill. If you have enjoyed reading "Collegiate Echoes" even half as much as I have enjoyed bringing it to you, I would consider the whole thing worthwhile!

I would like to sincerely congratulate each college student for the completion of another successful year. So many of you have made outstanding contributions to your college this year and thus to Sanford, and we are proud of each of you. Having the determination to get a college degree is worthy of acclaim in itself. Congratulations to all for a wonderful year!

And thanks to all of you for the wonderful year you have shown me!

Five S. H. S. Graduates Leave Tomorrow For Trip To Nassau

Five girls will leave tomorrow morning by bus for Miami where they will spend the night and leave Friday by boat for Nassau. These girls are all members of the Gammas. They will live aboard ship, and also have their meals there, while in Nassau.

The group, Nan Cushing, Carol Nutt, Lois Barineau, Nancy Cash, and Lee Jackson will be accompanied by Mrs. Robert W. Jackson and Mrs. Fred Ganas.

The trip for some of the girls is a graduation gift while others have saved for the event. They decided some time ago, as a group that they would make such a trip together when they graduated.

The girls, all members of Seminole High School's 1957 graduating Class, will arrive back in Sanford next Sunday.

Mix equal parts of deviled ham and cream cheese. Then put large perfect toasted walnut halves together with this filling. Serve on toasted meiba rounds or toasted buttered rye bread thin made in quantity in the broiler of your range.

Don't moan over accumulated bits of this and that! A little leftover meat can make the children's next-day lunch just that much better. A hamburger can be broken up into vegetable soup, a frank sliced into bean soup, while a few scraps of pink ham make hot green pea soup both appetizing and extra tasty.

NEW FOLD-AWAY DISH DRAINER

Now a dish drainer has been created that folds flat for easy storage. Center grooves provide plenty of space for plates and saucers, while convenient "wells" hold silver on one side and cups and glasses on the other, to be rinsed with very hot water. The drainer folds like a notebook and can be hidden in the smallest rock or cranny when the dishes are dry, leaving your drainboard neat as a pin. This folding drainer is available in five kitchen colors to harmonize with modern or traditional decor.

FOLD CURTAINS INTO WASHER

When you wash nylon curtains use warm soap or detergent suds and plenty of warm rinses. To avoid unnecessary creases and wrinkles, fold each panel into the wash water instead of gathering the fabric into a bunch.

Cub Scout Pack 343 Holds 3rd Meeting

Cub Scout Pack 343 of Sanford held its third pack meeting last Friday night in the American Legion Hall. Fire prevention and rules were the theme, and fire chiefs in every town would be proud to see how well the boys learned and demonstrated fire laws.

The boys were all shined from head to toe for a uniform inspection held by Clubmaster James Hay, it was reported.

Others that awards went to were: Paul Kendrick — Ass't Denner; Garry King — Denner; Joe Borealis — Ass't denner; Michael

A song fest was then led by Mr. Jack Happa, and refreshments were served by Ted Sierpiutowski and Joseph Valinski.

AN APPLE A DAY

It's a great time for apples, so use 'em every way you can. For instance, make baked apples often but vary them in interesting flavorings ways. Log Cabin Baked Apples are fine examples: Core 6 baking apples and remove 1-inch peel from tops; place in baking dish, add ¼ cup boiling water. Cover. Bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes. Uncover; bake 20 minutes longer, basting 3 times with 1 cup maple-blended syrup. While apples are cooling, baste again.

Silly Season Just Around Corner

By DOC QUIGO United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK UP—An ominous note in some dispatches from abroad should warn us that crochets just around a corner of the calendar, ready to pounce, is that annual hot weather news bug bear—the silly season.

In Nantes, France, recently a camel was found munching grass near the Place Royale Fountain in the center of the city. This is getting close. But to be a truly silly season item, the camel would have to be sitting in the fountain, which has just gone dusty dry for the first time ever.

In Killarney, Ireland, the other day, the season almost arrived. A golfer there sliced his tee shot into a lake. The ball stunned a rising trout. A bystander jumped in, grabbed the fish, and brought back the ball, too.

Could Be Worse This was alright. But if the season had fully arrived, the fish when opened would have had in its stomach a clipping with the headline: "Golf Dangerous For Spectators."

For your convenience in getting an early start on the silly season, here are a few items that are certain to be reported when the weather begins to bake and days get parchy-dry:

WHIFFENPOOF, Me.—A year ago, fisherman Pete Obermergau lost his pocket watch overboard in the ocean. Today, while skin diving, Joe Smith was startled by a ringing noise. Turning, he found a big octopus about to seize him. He killed it with his spear. Hooked by its chain to one tenacle was Obermergau's watch, which is waterproof, self-winding, and has a tiny alarm. Apparently the octopus flipped the alarm switch while reaching for Smith. The alarm was set for 4 o'clock. "Lucky I didn't wait till 5 to go diving," Smith said.

A Flying Plane

NUTRIMENT, N.J.—Mrs. Rachel Lilliput reported to police that she saw a large, luminous object resembling a grand piano, with flashing lights where the keys should be, in the sky last night. It descended to a field of her truck farm, and little green men emerged holding torches resembling candelabra. She fled, she said.

Gem-In-Rock, Pa. Chased by a police who had caught him thieving, Alph Omega, a side-show midjet, ran headlong into a bowling emporium, tripped, rolled down an alley, and knocked over eight pins. "If I'd been normal size I'd got a strike," he said as he was led away.

NEW YORK—Thirty monkeys and a huge tropical bird mysteriously escaped late today from Trefflich's Animal Shop. On the sidewalk, the bird seized two monkeys. Obviously overloaded, and groaning to gain altitude on a take-off down Broadway, it crashed into Richard Empathy, a broker, as he emerged from a bar. The ASPCA charged Empathy with blocking traffic.

Veterans Corner

Here are authoritative answers from Veterans Administration to questions of current interest to former servicemen and their families:

Q. Under the Survivors Benefits Act, I understand that the eligibility of parents of deceased veterans is based on the amount of annual income. How does VA determine whether a parent's income exceeds the limit set by law? A. At the beginning of the year, VA will send all parents on the rolls income questionnaire dealing with income received during the past year and anticipated income during the VA payment, will in most cases be based on the questionnaire.

Q. I am planning to convert my World War II GI term insurance to a permanent plan. Do I have to convert the entire amount of my insurance, or can I convert just a part of it? A. You may convert a part of your GI term insurance, if you wish. The amount converted must be in multiples of $500, but not less than $1,000.

Q. I was in military service both in World War II and the Korean conflict. I never have used my GI loan benefit. Which deadline am I bounded by—the one for World War II veterans or the one for Korea veterans? A. The deadline for Korea veterans applies in your case. You have until Jan. 31, 1958, to obtain your GI loan.

'Skipper's Corner' Expresses Thanks To Three Citizens

The "Skipper's Corner" in the plan of the day of the Sanford Naval Air Station, carried the following news item:

Three public spirited local citizens have helped us out in the following manner: Ross D. Hunter and Bradley Odham have agreed to allow trees on their property just west of our main runway to be cut down. The job is being done as a training maneuver by our local SeaBee personnel, and will provide less hazard and greater safety for our jet flying hotshot pilots, bombardiers, and crewmen.

Also, Thomas Vaughn of Sherman Concrete Pipe Company, has provided us with five additional concrete tables and ten benches for our Lake Golden Recreation Area. On a personal inspection of the area with me, Mr. Vaughn noticed that curbside walkways around the dance pavilion and in the vicinity of the new scullbutt could be improved. Yesterday, a large truck load of concrete mix arrived, and you may now see the improvements for yourself in the recreation area. I have extended your personal thanks to these three gentlemen who have gone out of their way to look out for your personal welfare.

The "Skipper's Corner" in the plan of the day is written by Captain Robert W. Jackson, Commanding Officer of the Sanford Naval Air Station.

Nutria Investor Urged To Study Economic Aspects

Prospective investors in the country's latest fur farming industry, raising nutria, were cautioned today by the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce to investigate the economic aspects of such a venture before investing.

John Krider, Manager of the Chamber, stated that although the honest element in the nutria raising business undoubtedly is striving to put it on a sound basis through the sale of quality pelts in the raw fur market, some high pressure promoters are interested only in fast profits through the sale of breeding stock at exorbitant prices. In a bulletin just released by the National Better Business Bureau entitled "Raising Nutria in Captivity," it is emphasized that the primary purpose of raising fur animals in pens is for the fur produced and the sale of breeding stock is a secondary consideration. Promotion of the sale of breeding stock as the sole objective, the bulletin states, is in the nature of a "get-rich-quick" scheme.

Some promoters have charged as much as $1,000 or more for a (Continued On Page 10)

Flood Threat Seen As Red River Rises

DALLAS, Tex. — Tons of water pouring from giant Lake Texoma, above the Good River, on a steady rise through Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana today.

The Shreveport, La., weather Bureau said crests along the Red were expected to be three feet higher than a major flood which poured from the winding river and its tributaries over central Louisiana last month.

It said the rise now are due almost wholly to water discharge from Lake Texoma, the world's largest man-made lake.

Metereologist B. P. Hupbas of the Shreveport weather bureau said the flood threat appeared "worse than it has been all year."

"We expect to have flooding all along except at Shreveport. It's 37 feet above the flood stage at Alexandria, La. and rising."

However, the Alexandria sheriff's department said the city was not in danger, and the Red would have to rise several more feet to cause serious trouble there.

The chief executive flew from Washington with most of the National Security Council and other top federal officials and boarded the angled-deck "floating air base" at Mayport, Fla.

The President arrived at this St. John's River base from Washington aboard his personal plane, the Columbine III. The landing strip was only a few yards from the huge carrier, which was all set to sail the moment the chief executive arrived.

Eisenhower was welcomed aboard by the screams of two Skyray jet fighters which were catapulted from the massive deck of the carrier while she stood at dockside.
