

NAVAL ACCORD
MAY BE SIGNED BY NEXT WEEK

Signatures Of 5 Powers Expected To Be Affixed Shortly To Historic Document

LONDON, Apr. 14.—(AP)—One week from tomorrow, representatives of the five great naval powers will affix their signatures to the historic pact which has evolved from the London naval conference after long weeks of difficult negotiations.

An amendment to the original resolution of the conference in Oahu, Hawaii, was agreed upon by James F. Davis, the American Minister, and the other four general officers at the meeting.

The amendment, which is principal legislation of the naval conference, provides that the five nations will not increase their naval strength above their present levels until the end of the year.

The treaty, it is believed, will be a three-power agreement between Japan, America and Great Britain, covering limitation and reduction of naval strength and protection between the three powers. France and Italy include in such treaty the limitation of armaments and naval strength. The American delegation is left unmet, and there will be a clause covering any of the three powers leaving the limitation system for a part from fear of the last minute of a antagonistic nation's demands.

Todays plenary session has been adjourned, and was rescheduled for the purpose of getting the formal approval of signatures to parts which have not been submitted to the plenaries. The plenaries, on the other hand, will be held at intervals of one hour.

There was some interesting news when the Prime Minister indicated his return to London to continue an element of friction between himself and Keiji Wakabayashi, head of the Japanese delegation, regarding Britain's attack and said that he and the Japanese had agreed that exchanges would be made between the two countries and that they would exceed 10 percent of the category to which the Japanese were to be held.

Investigators who visited the scene yesterday were unable to find any evidence explaining the cause of the blast, which occurred Saturday night.

Death caught every man working on the dusty road in the sun and heat of the noon when the blast occurred. Two men, two other members of the crew, were legless to early reports, and 21 had perished, but they were not near the scene of the explosion and can throw no light on the disaster's cause.

ACHIEVEMENT

THE Senior Class Edition of The Sanford Herald is a worthy undertaking on the part of the 1930 graduating class to raise funds to assist in the publishing of the Seminole, the school annual, and to leave a fund to the school which is a custom of long standing.

WE, the officials of Sanford and Seminole County take this means of supporting the Senior Class in their undertaking and of wishing them every success, not only in their final year of high school endeavor, but in every undertaking they may attempt.

THE DEPARTMENT OF COM-

means it's good as another.

President Roosevelt and John Maurer are engaged in an entertaining sporting match at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Friday and the facts were brought out only that the Chamber of Commerce had not been inactive but when that "Battle had ended in a stalemate." In fact, Roosevelt and President Hoover got along fine; everyone will just make things the old town—and nothing to go hunting yet.

At the election season approaches the subject of taxes becomes more and more important. One of practically no danger. Didn't the Great Zeppelin circumnavigating the globe? Well, yes, it did. And some fellow sailed around the world in a little boat, too. But you don't catch a steamer into a craft like that to get to Europe.

No matter how safe a Great Zeppelin is supposed to be, it still looks like a boomer.

These things will give the taxes a lot of competition
at the annual chamber luncheons.
The Great Zeppelin, too, knew how to live in two days. The biggest dirigible in the world bump into clouds in load of ice bergs. Take a nap every after noon from 5000 feet in the air. All work done equipped with pads clutch. Every comfort and luxury of the big ocean liners plus speed. When you travel on a Zeppelin the Atlantic Ocean is your swimming pool.

No, thank you.

We will always wonder why
it is that whenever two strike up a conversation, one of them is always good looking and the other is not. And a fellow is pushed to me the other day, the reason. He said that ugly girl had to go with pretty girls because they receive more attention even though uglier, than if they were good-looking. Sanford Herald and Tavares Citizen say that is also the reason why handsome men marry handsome women.—Tavares Citizen
Yes, if ever.

Future Journalists

We cannot let this opportunity pass without saying a word in commendation of the High School seniors, who, about to precipitate themselves into the great adventures of life, stopped long enough in their vigorous routine of duties and pleasures to issue Saturday's edition of The Sanford Herald. And this, in view of the limited coaching they had and the trials and tribulations of the last minute rush, was no simple task; but the seniors acquitted themselves most creditably.

They succeeded in bringing in a volume of well conceived advertisements the like of which has not been seen in this office in many a day. They organized an efficient editorial staff which produced and edited almost innumerable columns of entertaining and instructive news stories and editorials which would have done credit to world-wide journals twice their age. All in all they showed a keen adaptability to a profession which to say the least has its problems and perplexities.

We were particularly interested in a letter written to the Sanford Forum by Miss Katherine Schirard which we thought especially well done. It was written in the best English style, showed a nice choice of words, and contained coherence and unity so often lacking in letters of this kind. It was in fact a forceful argument and showed considerable thought upon a subject which has puzzled the best minds in journalism for generations and which has been much debated and fought over in every newspaper office in the country, having as many conscientious believers on one side as on the other.

Another article which we think deserves especial attention was the history of Sanford written by Clifford Bensley, Sanford, one of the oldest of Florida's modern cities, has had all too few historical sketches written of it. A city which contains a wealth of folk lore and background should have these facts set down on paper in order that future generations may know them. There are old timers in Sanford today who know the early history. Twenty years from now they will be gone and only the records which are written today will be left. Mr. Bensley in his article has hit upon a subject, and done it well, which deserves more attention.

And so taking it altogether, in spite of wrong fads and transpositions, in spite of a few good stories which were crowded out, in spite of the few "old meemies" who turned the ad solicitors down, we think the High School edition was a great success. We admire the seniors for their efforts and congratulate them upon the success of their work.

Charleston

There are a few cities in the United States which really have a personality, as it were. Among such places we can think of Boston, Charleston and New Orleans and it matters not whether we like them, no one can deny that there is an air about those centers of population which sets them apart from the ordinary American city. Last week Charleston celebrated its 250th anniversary, the occasion being observed with fitting ceremonies, to which all former Charlestonians had been invited.

Oddly enough this delightful city, where the present mingling with the past, does not seem to lure tourists, who, perhaps, prefer the gayety of a Miami Beach night club to the Charleston atmosphere, abounding with memories of the Old South. The crack train to Florida passed by, and the Clyde Line express boats run it only as a port of refuge in case of storms.

Describing a bit of Charlestown's history, Time says: "Englishmen first settled along the Ashley River in 1670, ten years later moved their government to the rich peninsula between the Ashley and the Cooper. Rice and cotton gave prosperity. Cavalier second sons, high-born French Huguenots, gave aristocracy. Great names. Pinckney, Rutledge, Lewis, Calhoun, Gadsden, Haynes, Laurens, Petigru—rose and fell. The St. Cecilia society balls dazzled Northern visitors. To see the magnolia gardens, men crossed the sea. In St. Andrews Hall on Dec. 20, 1860, South Carolina voted itself out of the Union. Last big Charleston event: the $5,000,000 earthquake of Aug. 31, 1886, which killed 27 persons."

Charleston, leisurely, unprogressive, socially high headed, remains today an antique among U. S. cities. The Atlantic Coast Line's best Florida trains skip Charlestown, likewise Clyde Steamship Co.'s New York Florida express boats. Its business men lunch at 2:30, return to work at 4 if at all. Many contend, visitors as well as citizens, that it is the most comfortable city in the U. S."

Student Avers Sanford Needs Airport To Progress With Other Florida Cities

By DICK VERNAY

Aviation is a comparatively new industry—in its infancy so to speak—but it has established a place for itself in the modern business world. It is here to stay and it is up to us to help it grow and prosper. The only way to do this is to put our concentrated efforts behind it and establish a modern, well-lighted, and well-equipped airport right here in our community. It is one of the greatest assets that a town can have.

An increase in industry is that sooner or later, companies will establish a flying school here and there is a possibility that some aircraft company will bring a branch company here. This will help relieve the unemployment situation and incidentally put more capital into circulation. This latter fact is a vital necessity for the growth and prosperity of our community under the present conditions of finance.

One other thing that should not go unnoticed is the distinctive position in which we would be placed in "write-ups" and articles having to do with Florida aviation activities. This would mean favorable advertising for Sanford which, of course, would cover the country in various aviation magazines.

One day we were in Lakeland at a boy who we met asked where we were from "Sanford." We replied, "the largest city center in the world."

He seemed surprised that there was such a place in the state "Sanford? Where on earth is that?"

We explained to him that it was about twenty miles north of Orlando.

"Oh yeah," he answered without apparent interest. "By the way, they have just finished a new airport in Orlando. I hear that surely is the sign of a progressive town. That is the kind of a place in which to live."

Now that boy has traveled practically all over the state and lived only two or three hours distance from Sanford, yet he had never even heard of a former citizen. That is a shame and a disgrace. Are you content to live in that same old rut for the rest of your lives? If you are, the best thing to do is to get out of all of your automobiles and park them up the hill more again, this place will never be more than a "dope hole town."

If you do not want an airport for yourselves, and incidentally see the town prosper into the future, won't you give the younger generation a chance? Such an undertaking will be impossible without your help and cooperation.

A very sensible plan of procedure would be to have our representative in the legislature obtain from the state government an appropriation taken from the tax on gasoline used by airplanes for use in this project.

Of course it will take a great deal of work to carry such an undertaking through, but anything worth while takes work. A well known motto one hundred years ago said, "The people of Sanford are here. All though we are reluctant to admit it, we are almost beginning to think the same thing ourselves. Now that is a shocking thought to say and have said about the people of our town and might be a good chance to show the rest of Florida that we are not lazy and progressive."

The one point that we would like to bring out. At any rate down town what is starting soon is going to be and will be ten or fifteen million dollars. Unless we have an airport here, the students will go to Orlando, Jacksonville, or some other place to take their training. There is no reason why they should have to leave Sanford. With a comparatively small cost a good airport and a training school would be brought here to them. Don't dare the young people away. Provide for them here.

ENTHUSIASM FOR ESSAY WRITING IS SEEN AS LAGGING

Contributor Criticizes Student Apathy
In Field Of Writing

By PHYLLIS SMITH

Our class wishes to express its appreciation for the help of others in furthering our pursuit of knowledge. We feel indebted to those organizations that by offering prizes for essays have given us a stimulus for study and for research of patriotic information. For the interest of the business and professional men of our community under the present conditions of finance.

The awards and medals for essays have been so distributed that a member of each of the three higher classes may receive one. To the Sophomores the B. P. O. E. offer two essay prizes, $20 in gold and a gold medal as first prize, and $10 in gold and a silver medal as second prize. The title of these essays are always concerned with the grand symbol of the United States—the American Flag. This year the title is "The American Flag, What It Means To Me In Sanford."

He seemed surprised that there was such a place in the state "Sanford? Where on earth is that?"

THE LUNCH RUM By GRACE LOUIS

The lunch Rum is nice plain. You sit in the lunch rum if you don't git sic before you can eat. The reason you git sic is because you usually starve being you have to go back upstairs so you can git back to class in time. The stamp is got nice little iron donalds that you can make a loud noise with. The object of the lunch Rum is to get in front of everybody. If you sit in front of everybody you turn around and smile like you was happy but you must smile at the right times or you git a book at your head, which makes you sick. The funniest thing is the pangs you eat your vittles on. They have funny little white spots like sunspots only they are macaroni in them. There is good ink spots. If you have a kind heart you pass the funny pangs back to your frens to have good ink with. If you ate too much you are somewhere else not in the lunch Rum. The girls what don't eat gravy are funny two. If you are a boy they yank you off. (0) gravy but if you are a girl they give you make you half. That is fun, isn't it?

The eyes cream phase is kinda like the Indie of the Lek. The eyes cream is in the middle of a lake of salt water. I get the peal who don't have no money to buy eyes cream make that look out of their teeth which they make be they what eyes cream is had.

WHAT'S UNDER A HIGH HAT?

By DENSY BRAUDY

Generally nothing. By "High hat," I do not mean a hat that is worn by public officials. They are round enough for their own sakes.

What I mean is the high hats that we are all around us every day. We all wear them in shops or stores, where the sleek girls act as though they are doing us a favor by taking our money. Generally, one visit is enough for the most of us. We feel that perhaps they are being extraordinarily gracious and we do not wish to offend them further.

The Seniors have as their chief literary project the writing of an essay for entrance in the Young Bachelor Contest. The purpose of the contest is to stimulate interest in the history of Florida. This year the title is "A Brief Historical Sketch of My Home Town." Another essay written this year by the Seniors is for the United Daughters of the Confederacy. The one who wins the contest chooses the subject himself or selects one of the titles suggested by the United Daughters.
