"Since no funds were udgeted for payment of Fiemployment compensation, it is requested that payment be made by the board of county ommissioners," Polk's memo

Executive Assistant Roger Neiswender disagreed with the sheriff's contention. Citing a reply from Eleanor Anderson of the Office of Management Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE), Neiswender said that $5,000 was provided by the board for unemployment compensation in the Sheriff's Department

What-Me Rob MyNeighbor? Jury Says Yes

erald Staff Write

A 25-year-old Sanford man who claims he was nowhere near the scene has been convicted by a circuit court jury of robbing one of his neighbors.

Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor ordered David Scott, 25, of 700 E. Seventh St., held in jail during a pre-sentence investigation following the jury's verdict Monday afternoon in Sanford. Prevo Larry Clark, 59-year-old security guard who lives across the street from Scott, told the jury that Scott was one of two men who used a machete to rob him of his auto, watch and nearly $100 the night of Dec. 16, 1976. Clark said the machete was put to his neck and he was forced to stop the 1975 sedan on Longwood-Markham Road south of SR-46 west of Sanford, where he'd gone after an unidentified man accompanying Scott said he wanted to go home. Clark, who testified that he'd bought whiskey for the two men and played pool with them at Club Two Spot east of Sanford earlier in the day, said Scott grabbed him in a "bear hug" as he struggled with the unidentified man wielding the machete. Clark said he was robbed of his wallet and watch and the two men drove off in his auto, which police later found abandoned in

Sanford. Scott took the witness stand in his defense and said he didn't know the name of the mystery man he'd been drinking with all

"The first time I knew anything about any robbery was when the sheriff's detective woke me up at my house and I went down to his office for questioning," Scott told the jury. He testified that Clark had dropped him off at Cypress Avenue and Seventh Street in Sanford and said he wasn't with Clark on Longwood-Markham

Scott denied any part in the robbery and claimed Clark "is using me to try to find out who the man was who robbed him." GUILTY PLEA

In another case scheduled for trial before Judge McGregor this week, Joseph Carlos Hersey, 18, of Lake Monroe, pleaded guilty to a grand jury indictment of attempted sexual battery upon a fouryear-old girl. As part of the negotiated plea State Atty. Douglas Cheshire's office dropped a second charge of sexual battery upon the child.

The court ordered Hersey held in jail and examined by psychiatrists to determine if he may be a mentally disordered sex offender before sentencing, set for March 29. KIDNAP TRIAL

Trial was scheduled to begin today before Judge McGregor for Robert Charles McGill, 31, of Orlando. He is accused of kidnaping a man from a restaurant parking lot west of Sanford at shotgun point on Nov. 24, robbing him of a pickup truck and personal property and later firing a shotgun blast at a pursuing Sanford policeman.

Apopkan Suing Area Lawmen For $40,000

An Apopka man acquitted in circuit court in Sanford last July on charges of resisting officers with violence has filed a lawsuit seeking $40,000 damages from the officers.

The civil action, filed by James G. Bowser, 35, and his wife, Wilma, claims that Sheriff's Sgt. Charles Coffee and deputy J.F. Bennett "without reason or provocation assaulted and struck"

Bowser "and caused him to be arrested and jailed." Also named as a defendant in the suit, filed for Bowser by Orlando attorney Robert S. Sigman, is the Seminole County olerni s Department.

Bowser claims the actions of the deputies, during an incident at Gayles Place Bar, U.S. 17-92, Longwood, on April 3, 1976, were 'intentional and malicious and designed to wilfully inflict pain and disability" upon Bowser. He claims that he suffered serious and permanent injury and incurred large medical bills, loss of income and legal fees as results of the deputies' actions. Mrs. Bowser's claim is that she's been denied "valuable comfort and society" of her tree-trimmer husband as result of the alleged injuries and that he has been "unable to assist her in the nousehold work and has been less able to produce needed income and support."

Circuit Court records indicate that James Gilroy Bowser, 35, of 337 Faye St., Apopka, went to trial in circuit court July 7 on two counts of resisting an officer with violence and one charge of resisting an officer without violence. A jury never deliberated in the case. Circuit Court Judge Robert B. McGregor directed a verdict of acquittal for Bowser at the conclusion of the state's presentation of its case. Sheriff John Polk acknowledged today that he has been served with notice of the lawsuit but declined any comment. The lawsuit has been assigned to Circuit Court Judge Dominick Salfi for trial. No hearing date has been set.

'I'll Get Apology

WASHINGTON (AP) -Consumer advocate Ralph Nader says he is determined to extract an apology for an ethnic slur from Federal Trade Commissioner Paul Rand Dixon.

Dixon called Ralph Nader "a son-of-a-bitch and a dirty Arab" at a recent appearance before an industry group, according to sources who

Migrants To Get Checks In 2 Weeks, Askew Says

HOMESTEAD (AP) - President Carter's designation of Florida as a major disaster area provides more than $30 million in aid for some 50,000 migrants forced out of work by the killing freeze, officials say.

Carter's action came Monday as Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland met with citrus growers in Orlando and toured South Florida vegetable fields and migrant labor camps.

Gov. Reubin Askew, who joined Bergland for the South Florida tour, said the first checks for unemployed migrants should be in the mail within two weeks. Migrants who can't find work can get weekly checks averaging $64 for up to 10 weeks.

Gas Tax Hike Faces Fight

ORLANDO (AP) - Calling the motorist "more over-taxed than the homeowner," the chairman of the House Transportation Committee says he'll fight Gov. Reubin Askew's proposal to hike gasoline taxes.

Rep. Fred Jones, D-Auburndale, said that instead of a tax boost the state should consider cutbacks in the bureaucracy, curtailment of expenses, revision of the tax system and giving counties control of some $90 million in revenues of the current 12-cent state and federal gasoline taxes.

Cotton Men Promised Help

LAKE BUENA VISTA (AP) - The chairman of the House Cotton subcommittee today pledged support for market-oriented cotton legislation and lower interest rates on government loans to growers. Rep. David R. Bowen, DMiss., told the vational Cotton Council's annual meeting that most industry leaders believe the present cotton program only needs updating to conform with changes since enactment of the 1973 farm law.

MIAMI BEACH (AP) - Karl Wallenda, a great-grandfather who says challenges are what keeps him alive, has found a short-cut between the tops of two 17story luxury hotels - an inch-thick tight wire. Wallenda, 72, made the 700-foot-long walk late Monday as part of a televised dare-devils

Collins Picked In Pay Fight

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - A special master will try to settle the dispute between the Board of Regents and university faculty negotiators after talks broke down over pay hikes.

Both sides agreed Monday to have former Gov. LeRoy Collins serve as special master to hold hearings and make a recommendation. If either side rejects the recommendation, the dispute goes to the legislature.

Coe Wins Revenue Post

TALLAHASSEE, (AP) - On a 4-3 vote, the Cabinet today appointed veteran tax official Harry L. Coe as state revenue director. Coe was confirmed after the three Cabinet members who opposed him said the Cabinet should order a formal selection procedure and examine other candidates. The selection went as expected as the Cabinet members who had not announced their votes in advance voted as aides indicated they would.

Graham-Brantley Feud

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - Orders banning the use of Senate facilities by anyone not on the chamber's payroll is an attempt "to protect the taxpayers' property," says Senate President Lew Brantley.

But Sen. Robert Graham says the action is "the latest and most extreme example" of an attempt to "turn the Senate into a palace." Graham objected after Howard Walton, Brantley's senior executive assistant, ordered a part-time aide and an intern out of Graham's office last Friday.

However, Graham charged that such a policy would prevent senators from using colege interns or hiring staffers with their own

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - Lawyers for 'lorida Power and Light Co. say the state's argest utility needs a $235-million interim ate increase to assure the firm a fair return on its investment.

"Each day that goes by without rate relief 1 million - I repeat, $1 million - will be lost y the company forever," company lawyer hepard King told the Public Service Comnission on Monday.

He said the firm, the state's largest power ompany with 1.8 million customers, would tand on the verge of financial chaos if the SC denies the request for rate relief while a arger $349 million permanent rate hike equest is pending.

It's cold. It's raining. It's overcast at the Sanford-Central Florida Airport. "It's a good day for paperwork," says Mel Lyons, vice president and general manager of Aero-Services Inc., the airport's fixed-base operator (FBO). "We were pretty crowded over the weekend. Lots of people flew in and out of here. Most of them are snowed in

An FBO provides an airport with services such as maintenance, fueling, flying lessons, aircraft sales and rental, charter flight arrangements and aircraft storage. Lyon's conversation is punctuated with interruptions from incoming phone calls. He signs up a caller for flight training. Another is interested in Lyons' recently-completed promotional flight to sell an airplane. A third caller expresses an interest in buying a twinengine Cessna 310 offered by an airport customer. Lyons is handling the sale.

Lyons is part of a management team that bought controlling stock in Aero-Services in December from Henry Wight, who encountered severe financial problems with the operation.

Gerald Sullivan, a 25-year Navy veteran with broad experience in aircraft operations and management, is the firm's president. "We're more than satisfied with the progress and improvements that have taken place in a short amount of time," says Sullivan, who became president in December. Lyons is also optimistic about Aero's future. He points to a 10-20 per cent increase in fuel sales and 30 per cent, increase in flight training hours since he became general manager. "The flight school is really starting to grow. This is encouraging because flight training is the basis for building other facets of the business," such as maintenance and fuel sales, according to Lyons. Aero has increased its advertising for flight training and aircraft rental. In the past, flight training at the airport hasn't been profitable. Neither has the maintenance operation, which Lyons describes as "a top priority. We plan to have a more professional approach to make it the best and most efficient service people can have - and at a good price."

Aero is also promoting its maintenance and fueling services "by writing to aircraft owners and through other means." "We'll be offering a different premium each month starting this month," says Lyons. This month's special for a 100-flighthour or annual aircraft inspection is a high quality rechargeable flashlight.

Ethel J. Davis, Winter Springs

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Tuesday, Feb. 1, 1977-JA Aero-Services Has New Team In Cockpit Airport FBO Logs Upswing In Business

Aero is preparing a file on aircraft based at the airport "so we can inform owners when their annual maintenance is due." Another improvement is in financial records. "We've improved our bookkeeping system so we can get daily financial figures on such items as fuel sales," the general manager says. The interview is interrupted again, as the man interested in the Cessna 310 arrives. A short time later the smiling Lyons returns to his office - he has just sold the airplane. Lyons outlines Aero's ideas, "still in the planning stages," for increasing charter flights to the airport: "We're working with two people very experienced in this business to secure as many big plane charter flights as we can get." The first step, Lyons says, is outlining a promotional package and letting possible customers know about it. Aero also plans to remodel a portion of the terminal building to create a pilots' lounge and additional office space. Another improvement to the terminal's facilities will be a restaurant managed by Jerry's Catering of Miami. Aero is not directly involved in arrangements for the restaurant, which are being handled by the Sanford Airport Authority.

The restaurant will be open for business in "April or May," according to the Aero general manager. Lyons' background includes experience with aircraft sales and fixed-base operation.

From 1967-69, he was a Cessna district sales manager for single-engine aircraft. He joined an FBO in Flint, Mich., in 1969 and became vice president in charge of sales. He also handled "all phases of fixed-base operation" at Flint before coming to Florida in 1973, when he became sales manager for an Orlando Cessna dealership. In 1976 be began working out of the Sanford airport selling Cessna and other airplanes.

Aero-Services president Sullivan's background includes 25 years of aircraft and air operations experience in the U.S. Navy. In 1966, Sullivan established an aviation pilot course at Broward County Junior College and worked as a jet aircraft pilot. For the next two years he became Cessna's pilot and training coordinator of dealership training for sales and services in maintenance, serving the southeastern United States from an office in Atlanta. Congressional Democrats received ex-President Ford's new budget as if a deliveryman had arrived at the door with something they hadn't ordered.

"No one pays much attention to what a lameduck president has to say," said Speaker Tip O'Neill in the House. Sen. Edward Muskie of the Senate Budget Committee shrugged off basic elements of the Ford budget as "unrealistic" and 'unworkable.'

What they're waiting for is a Jimmy Carter budget — one that will embody the tax cuts, job programs and other features that the new President has been talking about during the transition.

They won't be consigning the Ford budget to the wastebasket, however. It is not only a document which the outgoing President was required by law to submit, but it represents the foundation and much of the superstructure of what the federal government will actually spend in the next fiscal year, regardless of the changes President Carter is preparing to propose.

In fact, Mr. Carter can be grateful for the nature of the budget now in congressional hands. It is not the political exercise that it could have been if Mr. Ford had taken the opportunity to perform some budgetary legerdemain to embarrass Mr. Carter with possibilities for achieving a balanced budget sooner than the latter intends.

It is a reasoned projection of how the government could hold its budget to $440 billion in 1977-78 with a deficit of $47 billion - down from the $57.2 billion deficit anticipated in the current fiscal year. The hitch, of course, is that the budget can take that shape only if Congress adopts tax and spending programs that Mr. Ford recommends.

The budget will not survive in its present form, of course, but under the deadlines for moving it through Congress, the Carter administration has only until Feb. 15 to submit proposed changes. By May 15, the two houses of Congress must agree on targets for the final size of the budget and then proceed to deal with specific revenue and spending bills within those limits.

The room for maneuver within that timetable, and in the face of so many programs with fixed costs, is limited. A congressional budget officer doubts that the Carter administration can obtain changes in more than one-tenth of the 1,300 separate "accounts" within the budget.

School Taxes...How?

Now that Supreme Court decisions in California and New Jersey have struck down property tax systems of financing public schools as being unconstitutional, Florida among other states undoubtedly will be studying how to find new ways of public school financing to replace property taxes.

Florida has a property tax to support its school system, but some educational leaders are proposing to reduce the income from the ad valorem levy by adding a penny to the state sales tax. Income from this penny increase would be earmarked for education and the school tax would be reduced by that amount. In the Serrano case, California Supreme Court declared that the state's school financing system violated the state constitution's equal-protection protection clause because inequality of property tax ability made it impossible to provide equal education opportunity. Vermont legislators have attempted to remedy this tax base inequality through adoption of the formula originally intended to distribute state aid to school districts on the basis of need. But efforts to get support in the legislature for this sytem of school financing have resulted in modification of the formula until it now has many recognized inadequacies.

Effective operation of this formula requires consistency of property appraisals throughout the state. This cannot be achieved under the present system of local appraisals based on what each municipality determines to be its best interests. In New Jersey, the legislature has imposed a $750 million state income tax to provide necessary funds for equality of support for schools. That has, of course, resulted in property tax relief, but total taxes increased. Several other states, taking note of the court decisions in California and New Jersey, have moved to equalize school opportunities by providing more state aid to municipalities and school districts unable to provide equal school opportunities.

DON OAKLEY Refugees Still Flow To America

In the decades since World War II, the United States has opened its doors to millions of efugees from around the world.

While the numbers are smaller than they were in the aftermath of that war, the Hungarian and Cuban revolutions and, more recently, the fall of Saigon, the flow of refugees continues. So does the work of that great humanitarian organization, the International Rescue Com-

Last year, the IRC provided emergency assistance and resettlement and other services to refugees from 27 countries. Unfortunately, it reports, its programs were carried out "in a climate of growing insensitivity to refugee rights and refugee needs."

The Hong Kong government, for example, continued to return escapees from China to the mainland. Kurdish refugees were departed to Iraq. Political exiles from Haiti had to resist their expulsion from the United States. ugoslavia sent escapees back to Albania.

And overshadowing all the many instances of violation of refugee rights, says the IRC, was the plight of the "boat people" from Vietnam. During the second half of 1976, thousands of CHET CURRIER refugees escaping from Vietnam in small boats became a major concern of the IRC, which says there is no parallel to their flight in its annals, not even escapes by sea from Cuba to the tip of Others managed to land in Hong Kong, Malaysia and the Philippines, but these countries, and others, are taking increasingly hostile attitudes toward refugees.

A major effort will be required in 1977, says the IRC, to secure acceptance of these refugees countries around the South China Sea and Gulf of Siam, and by creating a climate of hospitality in other lands, including the United

JOHN D. LOFTON, JR. Coughing? Take Long Words Only

WASHINGTON - Forget about President Carter's Inaugural Address, his walk down Pennsylvania Avenue, his Vietnam pardon, his program to stimulate the economy and the Soviet threat to NATO. Today, my mind is preoccupied with the only thing that really matters: my cough.

My cough is not your regular run-of-the-mill cough. It is a cougher's cough that creates an internal head pressure that must equal a force at least 20 times that of gravity. When I cough I feel as though my temples are going to explode and my face is going to blow off.

My cough is what I call a crowd-partner. I sounds like a small, hand-operated chain saw 🌢 with the muffler removed. When I cough, adults leap out of the way; grown-ups with small children gather them close and shield them.

There's a scene in the classic 1957 movie "I was a Teenage Werewolf" where the star of th show, running down the hall of his high school, begins to change from a teenager into a werewolf. As he runs down the hall, hair beginning to pop out on his face and hands, his fellow students scream, drop whatever they are holding, and fall over one another trying to get out of the way. This is the way people react when

Should I try the Coryban-D cough syrup? Perhaps. The box says it's for a "nagging Carter's Council of Economic Advisers on "aches and pains." I certainly have all these things and more. This medicine also has an expiration date of June, 1977, which is more than adequate meaning it will probably expire several months after i do if I can't stop my Furthermore, each teaspoon of Coryban-D, its label tells me, contains: 1 mg of Chlorpheniramine Maleate; 5 mg of Phenylephrine Hcl; 120 mg of Acetaminophen; 50 mg of Glyceryl Guaiacolate; 7.5 mg of Dextromethorphan Hydrobromide; 12.5 mg of Ascorbic Acid (vitamin C); and 7.5 per cent alcohol.

Now, I know what vitamin C and alcohol are but what's all this other stuff? Do I really want to put it in my body? I don't know. Maybe Vicks Formula 44 is what the doctor would order. It says it will calm the "Cough Control Center" of my brain, which is what I definitely need. Besides having some of the ingredients of the Coryban-D, this stuff also has: 6 mg of Doxylamine Succinate and 500 mg of Sodium citrate. Terrific. Does this make it better? I don't know.

What about Vicks Daycare? It contains even more things than the two previous medicines, to Last October, we reported that the Treasury Hydrochloride and 600 mg of Dextromethorphan wit: 25 mg of Phenylpropanolamine had failed to collect hundreds of millions in Hydrobromide, which is 592.5 mg more of this gambling taxes. What If They Gave A Game... And Nobody Came? It's True

MIAMI (AP) - Temple, long-time respected in college basketball, now knows what it's like on the other side of the railroad tracks.

The Philadelphia team, which normally plays before at least 5,000 people up north, drew 227 fans here Monday night as it beat Biscayne College 55-51. Temple should not feel bad about the attendance

Dayton and ranked Cincinnati don't figure to do a whole lot better later this month. Clemson drew only 600 people here in December. Houston didn't excite hometowners two years ago and even North Carolina failed to turn many heads three seasons back. And Biscayne is not the only local team unable to draw a "The only area in the country that may not support NBA basketball is Dade County," said Bill Alheim, who coaches Miami-Dade Community College North. "This area is the worst I've ever seen as far as loyalty goes. People are loyal mainly to themselves. It's an atrocity, a human disgrace."

Alheim's feelings aren't hard to understand. Last month, his junior college drew a Friday night crowd of 53. The apathy for basketball in Miami is reflected in the decision of WCKT, the NBC affiliate, not to televise network college games. Miami-Dade Center College Coach Chip Boes said indignantly, 'That's live taking the soap opera away from the housewives. Al Sternberg, WCKT program director, explained, "The ratings for all college basketball broadcasts in this area have been less than 10 per cent of the available audience. That's not a bad rating, that's not a poor rating - that's catastrophic. "If you were coaching in North Carolina, your name would be a household word," Biscayne Coach Ken Stibler was recently told by his teammember son, Kenny. "Down here, people who live across the street don't even know what you do for a living." Stibler's frustration in an effort to upgrade his Division II school's basketball program was marked by the Clemson turnout, a night after 3,500 fans showed up to watch a game between high school rivals Jackson and Northwestern in the same gymnasium. An American Basketball Association franchise, the Floridians, gave up a four-year battle in 1972. The club averaged about 2,000 fans in its final year at Miami Beach. The University of Miami, without its own gym, quit basketball in 1970.

Boes said even coaches show little interest in the sport and pointed to 16 high schools not being represented at a September clinic.

"It's like having a great surgeon give a lecture and none of the other doctors show up," he said.

France's international star. Jean Mateo. If Ross can get inside of Medina's long arms and work to the body, which is Edgar's favorite tactic, he is conceded a 50-50 chance of continuing his winning streak. But if he walks into a Medina right hand, another local favorite is expected to bite the dust.

The two undercard matches are much the same- both Owens and Turner in very rugged assignments. Owens, undefeated in 10 pro starts, tries to extend that record against one of the South's toughest fighters,

Experts Penetrate Defenses Of Social Security Computers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government's own experts Cross, need the information in the computer on Medicare breached the defenses of a federal computer system, showing that private companies could have browsed through confidential information on millions of Americans. But the same experts now say the gaps in the security system of the Social Security Administration's computer have been pat-

Agency spokesmen said there was no indication private companies tried to exploit the weaknesses in the giant Social Security computer, located in Baltimore.

Social Security Commissioner John Cardwell revealed the gaps in the computer's security system in a letter to four congressmen who were worried about the privacy of records on Social Security recipients, Medicare beneficiaries and older Americans on welfare. "This gap is, I am afraid, typical of the kind of human error that renders ineffective even the best designed safeguards contained in automated data systems," Cardwell said in the letter. The information that the weaknesses left vulnerable to unauthorized access included family income and assets, marital status and medical information. Also in the computer are records of payments to the millions of Americans who get Social Security checks or Supplemental Security Income payments.

recipients to process bills for medical treatment. This includes information on an individual's eligibility and medical benefits that already have been paid. To speed processing of bills, the government set up a system linking the computer with two terminals that can be used to ask the computer for Medicare information. The two are located at Aetna Life and Casualty Co. in Fort Washington, Pa., and Hawaii Medical Services Association in Honolulu.

The computer also contains information on Social Security recipients and others, which the Medicare organizations do not need and to which they are not supposed to have access. Local and regional Social Security offices have computer terminals that can get that information in order to help those with problems with the programs.

But prior to October, the private businesses could have asked the computer for information like that on Social Security recipients, and the computer would have provided the information on the televisionlike screen of the terminal. That weakness was cured in October, making it secure against unauthorized access to data, the agency told the Privacy Protection Commission.

County To Seek Grant For 6 'Blighted Areas'

By ED PRICKETT Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Commission agreed Tuesday night to apply for $300,000 in federal funds to provide much-needed paving and drainage to six Seminole communities county planners have identified as "blighted areas." Commissioners also set priorities for the size predominantly black areas. Communities and priorities include:

-Bookertown- $31,500 will be sought for drainage and paving. Bookertown is located near Altamonte Springs. -Jamestown-$19,500 is being sought to pave and provide drainage to the area south of Oviedo. -Johnson Hill- $23,400 is requested for this community east of Oviedo.

Commissioner Bob French called the Johnson Hill area "very bad." French said conditions are so critical that residents are forced to carry their drinking water in from surrounding areas.

The grant application will be sent to the department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Initially, a pre-application will be mailed by Feb. 18 to get federal reaction to Seminole's grant application.

"In other words," Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff remarked, "Everybody gets something." County Planner Bill Kercher said Seminole will ask for $300,000 to apply to the assigned projects. But Kercher said the grants could be changed if federal officials don't respond favorably to the county's list of priorities. County planners held meetings in each community to determine the needs and desires expressed by residents in each of the six areas. "Every community mentioned drainage and paving." Kercher told commissioners.

U.S. $$ A Windfall For County

The amount of money to be spent this fiscal year by the Seminole County Commission has been increased by $836,000 as a result of government spending designed to spur the lagging economy.

Commissioners learned Tuesday night that more than $257,000 in federal anti-recession dollars and more than $578,000 in revenue sharing money is available to be spent in Seminole County in fiscal 1976-77.

Pat Glisson, the director of the Office of Management Analysis and Evaluation, said the recommendation of department chiefs is to spend the extra dollars on "current existing problems" and not start up any new programs involving county government. The commission agreed to spend the lion's share of the $257,000 for new equipment for the county's landfill site the Osceola landfill near the old Osceola airfield. Also, officials agreed to spend federal dollars to pay off outstanding debts on fire trucks and other county-owned equipment bought on the lease purchase plan.

Initially, Glisson listed $22,500 to purchase a fire station at Seminole-Goldenrod. But Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski objected to paying county money for the station, and the item was dropped. The balance of the funds - revenue sharing - will be utilized to purchase capital equipment that was cut out during last year's budget sessions. Glisson said the funds are a "one shot deal." That's why, he said, his recommendation will be to spend the money to "pick up capital equipment that was cut out of the budget." The federal funds were not budgeted this year. And, in the case of revenue sharing, public hearings will be held to determine in which manner the public desires the dollars to be spent. Glisson said he expects to receive revenue sharing checks in April and July. Public hearings will be scheduled prior to those two dates, he added. The inflation-fighting funds are a result of action by the U.S. Congress, which authorized payments to local governments - such as Seminole - to stimulate local econonies that were hit by the 1974 recession. The purpose, Glisson, said is to circulate dollars to get idled workers back on the job.
