Man killed in offshore crash

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — A pilot crashed into the Atlantic about a mile offshore in a small plane he recently flew from California, authorities said.

John Homer Messier, 71, of the fly-in community Spruce Creek East, was flying solo Saturday in the twin-engine Cessna Skymaster about 100 feet above the water when the plane banked sharply and crashed, said Sgt. Bill Marshall of the Volusia County Beach Department.

Marshall and two other beach rangers spotted the airplane flying low and saw it tip its wings before going down. After the plane went out of sight, Marshall said he heard a couple of noises, "followed by a boom."

Several witnesses said they heard the plane's engines fluctuating before the crash. A lifeguard sped to the crash scene on a jet ski and found Messier's body floating amid the wreckage.

Messier, a certified flight instructor, had bought the plane in California two days before and had flown it home, Marshall said, adding that the Federal Aviation Administration was investigating the crash.

Coach Grant's life threatened

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Former Minnesota Vikings pro football coach Bud Grant said he received a death threat because he opposes a fishing and hunting agreement between the state and the Mille Laes Band of Chippewa Indians.

Grant, an avid outdoorsman and honorary head of the Save Lake Mille Laes Association, spoke at a rally at the state Capitol on Saturday marked by shouting matches between supporters and opponents of the agreement.

"Late yesterday afternoon, I received a phone call that stated if I showed up here today I could get shot, and then they hung up," Grant said after the rally.

The state Legislature still must approve the proposed settlement, which would restore fishing and hunting rights granted to the Mille Laes Band of Chippewa in an 1837 treaty, including the use of nets and spears.

Grant's group argues that the federal government settled all of the band's claims with a $9 million payment in 1973. It opposes letting Indians use fishing methods banned for non-Indians.

Two share $15 million dream

TALLAHASSEE — A pair of lucky tickets, one sold in Tampa and the other in Jacksonville Beach, will stake their owners to equal shares in an estimated $15 million Florida Lotto jackpot, officials said.

The tickets are the only ones sold for last week's game that had the six numbers drawn late Saturday. The numbers are 3-6-11-12-32-49.

There also were 266 tickets with five of the right numbers, and these are worth $4,203.50 each; 17,527 had four numbers and are worth $93 each, while 330,506 had three right and can be cashed in for $4.50 each.

Next week's jackpot is estimated at $6 million, lottery officials said Sunday.

Lotto jackpots are estimated each Sunday, based on sales projections, funds from any rollovers and long-term interest rates.

Phone rates mulled

PSC staff recommends 25-cent fee to call Orlando

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Staff analysts with the Florida Public Service Commission have recommended Sanford, Lake Mary and Geneva residents pay a flat, 25-cent toll to call Orlando.

But PSC staffers have also recommended utility commissioners still consider a $3.25 per month rate increase to call "O-Town" for free — a plan rejected by Southern Bell customers in October.

Friday, PSC staff released their recommendation for extending the north Seminole County calling area to Orlando by suggesting the PSC order Southern Bell to eliminate timed tolls and instead charge a flat 25-cent per call rate both to and from Orlando. Businesses would pay a reduced toll of 10 cents for the first minute and 6 cents for each additional minute.

The PSC will take up the proposal Jan. 19. Any service changes would take about six months to implement. The 25-cent toll plan would remain in effect indefinitely, said PSC spokesman Bev DeMello.

Although ballot results showed a majority of telephone customers opposed the $3.25 rate

A Taste of Sanford

Several hundred line up for fine foods

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Several hundred diners crowded into the Sanford Woman's Club on Saturday evening to sample some of the finest foods the city has to offer in the annual "A Taste of Sanford".

Pat Bowen, chairman of this year's event, said she was very pleased with the community support of the event.

"There were people waiting in line to get in at five o'clock when we opened the doors," Bowen said.

For nearly an hour after the culinary celebration began every one of the 124 seats in the club was filled.

"We had a wonderful turnout," Jean Metts, president of the Woman's Club said. "I don't have a final count, but I guess that we had between 300 and 400 people."

Mentor program initiated

Dividends provide motivational help for school students

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Some students need just a little extra help getting through school.

For some, it is a question of academic need. Those students can be helped with some additional tutoring from their teachers or, perhaps, other students.

But for others, it is a question of motivation.

It is those students that the volunteer COMPACT Mentor program can provide that special support that they need. The program, sponsored by the Dividends school volunteer agency, matches community leaders with high schoolers who need some motivational assistance.

"Some students just don't have the motivation to finish school," said Dave Farr, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Farr has been involved in the COMPACT Mentor program since its inception in 1990. "We work with them to help show them how finishing school is to their benefit."

The Mentor program has grown greatly in the three years since it began.

At the three schools where the program is already in place (Seminole, Lake Brantley and Lake Howell high schools) the drop out rate has dropped dramatically over the time when the program first began.

There are more than 200 students enrolled in the program in the three schools, more than half of those students are at Seminole High School, according to Jane Lane of the Dividends program.

The students who have been selected to participate in the program are at the highest risk of dropping out.

Sanford to work on land buy

Closing set Jan 29 on French Avenue property

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The City of Sanford will continue work on the purchase of school board property tonight. The School Board will bring the matter up for approval Thursday.

The city of Sanford plans to take over a purchase agreement from Richard Hardwick of Clearwater, for approximately 10 acres of vacant land across French Avenue from Sanford Middle School. Hardwick had originally intended to purchase the land and establish a strip mall. The closing on the property is scheduled for Jan. 29.

When the proposed use was first revealed, citizens living in the area near the property voiced their objections. Most of them expressed oppositions to the building of a strip mall.

The city eventually denied Hardwick's request to rezone a large portion of the land for commercial use.

Although Hardwick still maintains an agreement to buy the land, he has agreed to allow the city to take over the purchase, with the city to reimburse him $11,000 to compensate for his expenses in the original rezoning attempt.

During the past few months, the city has had several discussions on taking over Hardwick's agreement with the School Board to buy the land. No specific use has been determined, although commissioners have suggested during various meetings that the land might be used for a park, public safety complex, or even re-sold for other development at a future date.

At tonight's City Commission workshop, City Manager Bill Simmons is scheduled to give a report on the status of the purchase plans and sources of funds with which to buy the land.

The value of the property has been appraised at $615,000, which Simmons has previously declared was "a fair amount."

Later, during the tonight's regular commission meeting, Simmons will be requesting conditional approval of the assignment of the contract from Hardwick to the city. Simmons wants the authority to sign the contract, conditioned on the School Board's approval.

Simmons would then be allowed to The actual agreement cannot be finalized until after a joint meeting this Thursday evening with the Seminole County School Board.

SANFORD — The Seminole schools will be getting more involved in the Martin Luther King Celebration this year.

While student participation has been fairly good in the past, Dorothea Fogle, chairman of the Sanford MLK steering committee, said the schools have not until this year put their support so firmly behind the projects geared at the students.

This year, Supt. Paul Hagerty sent out a letter to all the school principals encouraging them to get their students involved in the essay contest, the poster contest and the oratory competition that are a part of the celebration.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Bulk of toxic chemicals in two counties

By Associated Press

TAMPA — Hillsborough and Polk counties — at the hub of Florida's phosphate industry — store more than three-fourths of the most dangerous chemicals used in the state, records show.

Hillsborough County contains 495 million pounds of "extremely hazardous substances" — chemicals that pose the most serious public health threat. That accounts for 49 percent of all such chemicals in the state.

"It's kind of stunning that so much of it is housed in that one county," said Jim Loomis of the state Department of Community Affairs, which keeps track of such substances.

Polk County ranks second, with 376 million pounds of hazardous chemicals, or 27.41 percent of the total.

Loomis said Hillsborough is a mecca for hazardous chemicals such as anhydrous ammonia, sulfuric acid and chlorine because they are shipped into the Port of Tampa for use by the phosphate industry.

Most are stored in huge tanks at the port, just blocks from downtown Tampa. Many of the chemicals are then piped, trucked or sent by rail to the phosphate mining centers of Polk County.

State records project the maximum amount of chemicals that would be in a county if all the storage areas were full at the same time.

Helicopter down in gulf; no one hurt

SANIBEL — A helicopter dropped 300 feet into the Gulf of Mexico, but the three men aboard escaped unscathed.

Grant Carlin, owner of Yellow Bird Helicopters in Fort Myers, had taken Ed McMullen Jr. of Labeand and Robert Starling of Charlotte, N.C., up on Sunday to survey properties that were to be photographed today. The chopper's tail rotor suddenly lost power, the pilot said.

"It just started spinning on me," said Carlin. "I had no directional control on it."

He said he performed an emergency technique called auto rotation, which allowed him to "come down softly" in 6 to 7 feet of water.

"Carlin said we were going to go in, and no sooner could he announce those words, we were in the water. It just happened so fast," McMullen said.

The three emerged from the Gulf and were greeted by hundreds of onlookers who lined the beach.

Within minutes, the helicopter was on the bottom of the Gulf and gentle swells rolled over its exposed yellow top about 100 yards offshore.

It took divers from Sanibel Police Department and other emergency workers almost three hours to remove the craft. Its blades mangled and the Plexiglas on its cab broken, from the Gulf.

Man dies after chasing robber

ORLANDO — An Ormond Beach man with a history of heart problems suffered a fatal heart attack after giving chase to a robber.

Hubert Frost, 48, was a "gang-bro guy," former neighbor William Patten said.

"He was the type of fellow that if you needed something done at the house, he'd immediately jump in and help you," Patten said.

Frost, a construction company owner, was working on a road project Sunday morning when he saw a man grab a bank deposit bag from an teller's manager trying to enter a

NASA begins countdown for first launch of 1993

By MARCIA BROWN

AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — The countdown has begun for a shuttle mission that has just about everything: spacewalk, satellite release, astronomical research and toy show.

Five astronauts assigned to the Endeavour flight arrived at Kennedy Space Center shortly after the countdown began Sunday for a Wednesday launch.

"We're psyched up and ready to go," said Mario Runco Jr., one of two designated spacewalkers.

NASA's newest spaceship holds a $300 million Tracking and Data Relay Satellite. The astronauts are to deploy the satellite six hours after liftoff. Soon afterward, an attached rocket is to propel the craft into a 22,300-mile-high orbit.

Four such satellites already are in orbit, transmitting data from shuttles and scientific satellites to ground controllers and back. Each one can track up to 33 satellites and relay the equivalent of a 30-volume encyclopedia in one second through just one of its channels.

Once the satellite is freed, the astronauts will activate an X-ray spectrometer designed to study emissions from hot interstellar gases, conduct plant, rat and live experiments, and perform a toy demonstration for elementary students.

On the fifth day of the flight, Runco and Gregory Harbaugh are to step into the open cargo bay for the first spacewalk by Americans in nearly a year. NASA added the five-hour spacewalk to the mission just two months ago, long after the crew began training for the flight.

The agency wants more spacewalking experience before astronauts start building space station Freedom in orbit in 1995. The spacewalk also is expected to contribute to preparations for the Hubble Space Telescope repair mission at the end of this year.

NASA hopes to add a spacewalk to at least one other shuttle flight before the Hubble mission.

The extra outings should improve the efficiency of future spacewalks by up to 10 percent, reducing the number of spacewalks needed to build Freedom, said Ron Farris, head of NASA's spacewalking section.

NASA hopes to have astronauts living full time on the station around the turn of the century.

Endeavour's six- to seven-day flight is the first of eight shuttle missions planned for 1993. It will be NASA's third shuttle flight.

Lottery sales down as anniversary approaches

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — In the last five years, the Florida Lottery has sold about $10 billion worth of tickets. But sales are slowing as the games approach their fifth anniversary.

Sales dropped to $2.06 billion in 1992, down about $100 million from 1991. The high of $2.38 billion was set in 1990.

Lottery Secretary Marcia Mann, however, says statistics from calendar years are interesting but irrelevant.

She points out that the last full fiscal year, which ended in July, saw a record $2.37 billion tickets sold. And it's too soon to judge the current fiscal year, which is just half over, she added.

To beat last year's record, more than $1.2 billion tickets will have to be sold by July 1.

"We have six months to go," Mann said. "The economy's improving, the tourists will be here. We just need a bigger jackpot."

She said she prays for a quadruple rollover, which means that no one would win the Lotto for four straight weeks, would build the jackpot to $50 million or more and grab the attention of people who normally don't take the 91 chance to beat nearly 14-million-to-1 odds.

A big jackpot would boost sales by tens of millions of dollars. Florida players enjoyed mega-jackpots in 1990 and 1991, but they're only supposed to happen every eight years, according to statistical probabilities.

State economists predict the sales slide will continue. They project that the lottery will generate only $733 million in profits for the budget year that begins July 1. That's down from a high of $884 million.

"We're sort of bumping along the ceiling," said Ed Montanaro, an economist for the Legislature. "It's gotten as big as it's going to get."

Other states with older lotteries have been on the slide, too, some much worse than Florida.

California, once the nation's largest lottery with more than $2.6 billion in sales, slipped to just half that in the most recent budget year. But the California Lottery is talking about cosmetics now and lottery officials credit increased advertising and a new game called "Keno."

Mentor

According to Glenn Pickett, a guidance counselor at Seminole High School, the students are often highly intelligent, but don't see the reason for finishing school.

"They need to work with someone who can help motivate them and show them the importance of school," Pickett said.

The COMPACT Mentors are asked to devote an hour a week at the school working with the student to whom they have been assigned.

"It's just an hour out of the whole week," Lane said. "Certainly anyone can afford that."

The mentors, Lane said, act as "personal cheerleaders" in the students' lives.

King

Hagerty, in his letter, encouraged the schools to use the Martin Luther King celebration as a means of "celebrating an appreciation of the different cultures within our school system."

Fogle said the entries for the various contests are still trickling in slowly, but that there seems to be a great interest on the part of the students in taking part in the events.

Fogle, a teacher at Keith Elementary in Winter Springs, said that the students of Seminole County receive a strong education about other cultures as part of their regular curriculum. But he said he is glad for the opportunity to have students learn about the life and the dream of non-violent cooperation of Martin Luther King.

and serve as role models for the youngsters.

"To become a mentor, one must only take part in a short training session and make the commitment of the hour per week," Lane said. The program is, however, still looking for those willing to give their time for the students.

The next training sessions are scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 31 at 8:45 a.m. at the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce in Casselberry and on Tuesday, Jan. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the Lake Mary branch of the Seminole County Public Library.

Those interested in participating should call Dr. Lane at 335-1111.

"I hope the schools can get out those who need mentoring," Lane said.

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 12, students representing every Seminole County school gathered at the Greater Seminole Chamber of Commerce to take part in the county-wide memorial concert.

Hagerty will serve as the master of ceremonies for the event which organizers will attract many students. There are no requirements for entry in the contest other than the student be willing to speak.

The theme for the speeches, in with the poster and essay contests, is "Where do we go from here? Non-violence: Learning it, living it, teaching it."

"We want to encourage the students to take part in the Martin Luther King celebration as much as possible," Fogle said. "Education was an important part of Dr. King's dream."

HRS probing deaths at elderly home

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A watchdog group is complaining that it took two years for Florida's health services agency to launch an investigation into the deaths of three residents of a Sarasota nursing home.

The state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services announced last week that a team of doctors and nurses will look into why three residents of the state-owned Millie's Manor died in 1990 and 1991. And an investigator will examine whether social workers could have prevented the deaths.

Members of the state's Long-Term Care Ombudsman Council, which reports to the governor, contend the agency failed to act on reports that two of the three residents, who had been placed in the home by HRS employees, were "at risk" and desperately needed medical treatment.

"I was told within a few weeks, suffering from severe bed sores and other ailments."

"For two years nothing was done, even though it was called to the attention of nursing care HRS officials," said John Stojadinovic, a member of the council who said the incident happened by a cover-up.

And those council members were skeptical about the new probe.

"How effective can HRS be in investigating HRS?" asked Barbara Hengstbeck, the council's executive director.

The owner of Millie's Manor, which consists of an adult congenitally living facility and two child foster homes, has denied any wrongdoing.

A top HRS official said the agency responded to problems at Millie's Manor by fining the home $1,000 and by suspending the placement of state-supervised residents.

But Ron Uherman, the director of HRS state and local programs, acknowledged that wasn't done until after the deaths. And he defended the agency's action in the matter.

"What is it that was supposed to be done that wasn't done?" Uherman asked Thursday.

The Millie's Manor saga began in September 1990 when a 65-year-old resident was admitted to a Sarasota hospital. Delirious, his body temperature dangerously low and his body covered with bruises and bed sores. He died a week later.

On Oct. 11, 1990, the ombudsman council sent registered nurse Davis Tornabene into Millie's Manor to determine whether other residents were in similar shape.

She said she found two others who needed "immediate medical attention." One was a 69-year-old woman, the other a 78-year-old man. HRS workers had placed both in the home after they were discharged from the G. Pierce Wood State Hospital (Armed).

Tornabene used the reported findings to HRS but state investigators didn't order medical treatment for the two residents.

Instead, HRS workers allowed Milena "Milie" Stojadinovic, the owner of Millie's Manor, to move the residents into one of her two adult foster homes, which are regulated by other HRS officials.

Stojadinovic sent the woman resident to the hospital on Nov. 17, 1990. After six days in there, the woman was sent to a nursing home, where she died on Dec. 6. The man didn't go to the hospital until late January 1991, and he died there a few weeks later.

Council members repeatedly pressed HRS officials for an investigation. The department agreed to conduct the inquiry last week after the ombudsman council said it would ask Gov. Lawton Chiles to appoint an independent investigator.

Driver's license fraud charged

Michael Thomas Yelverton, 38, 500 W. Airport Blvd., Apt. 808, Sanford, was charged with obtaining a driver's license by fraudulent means by Altamonte Springs police Friday.

Police said that a man, later identified as Yelverton, attempted to get a duplicate driver's license in the name of Stephen Michael Becker.

A computer check revealed that Becker had received a license earlier in the day in Sanford, police said.

Police said that Yelverton admitted his real identity when questioned by officials.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $1,000 bond.

Man arrested for forgery

Steven Vincent Minott, 37, 986 Helmsley Ct., Lake Mary, was charged with uttering a forged instrument by Lake Mary Police on Friday.

Police said that an Orlando man told them that he had hired Minott, a tile worker, to do some work in his bathroom and that while he was in the home, he took three checks which he wrote out to himself and cashed them.

They said the checks totaled $1,010.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $1,000 bond.

2 charged with possession

Roy A. Mefford, 35, 742 E. Church Ave., Sanford, and Richard A. VanAlstyne, 28, 1115 S. Mellonville Ave., Sanford, were charged with possession of marijuana by Seminole County sheriff's officers on Thursday.

Mefford had less than 20 grams of the drug, VanAlstyne was in possession of more than 20 grams.

VanAlstyne was also charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute.

Deputies said a man was arrested earlier in the day on drug possession charges and agreed to lead officers to his source.

They said he agreed to purchase a quarter pound of marijuana from his source, later identified as VanAlstyne and Mefford. Police moved in and arrested the pair.

Deputies found $645 on VanAlstyne and a partially smoked marijuana cigarette in Mefford's pocket. Two guns and 690 grams of marijuana were found at the scene.

They were taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. VanAlstyne was held on $5,000 bond, while Mefford was held in lieu of $500 bond.

Woman arrested for domestic violence

Rose Sarah Ellis, 23, 1808 Coolidge Ave., Sanford, was charged with domestic violence by Seminole County sheriff's officers on Friday.

Deputies said that when they arrived at Ellis' home she was arguing with her brother in the front yard of the house.

While deputies were there she slapped her brother in the face.

She was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $1,000 bond.

Warrant arrests

Ronald Lee Jackson, 24, 75 Seminole Gardens Apartments, Sanford, was charged in connection with violating the terms of his probation on charges of selling a controlled substance. He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held without bond.

Sean P. Mickle, 28, 721 Creekwater Terrace, Lake Mary, was charged in connection with some Seminole County warrants for failure to appear on grand theft charges and with failing to appear in court on charges of obtaining property with worthless checks. He was arrested at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and his bond was set at $5,000.

Willie Anderson McKinzie Jr., 30, was charged in connection with a warrant on charges of selling a controlled substance. He was arrested at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $5,000 bond.

Zoo docent training set

By NICK PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A new Docent Training Program will be offered beginning Wednesday, Jan. 20, at the Central Florida Zoo. A second course will begin on Saturday, Jan. 23.

The educational courses are offered to volunteers who wish to participate in the docent program at the zoo.

After completion of the program, docents will be qualified to lead guided tours of the zoo, as well as provide animal encounters with education department animals.

Docents also conduct outreach programs, taking animals into the community and giving educational slide presentations.

In the past, 106 docents have already contributed 12,594 hours of service, in helping over 45,000 school children visiting the zoo to discover hundreds of animals and learn about their characteristics.

Public relations manager Andrea Farmer commented, "We will even be giving answers to such questions as how thick is an elephant skin, and how long a hippopotamus can hold its breath."

One class will run every Wednesday, with the second class held on Saturdays, for persons who might not be available during the week.

There is a $25 tuition fee for this mini-zoology course, which includes all materials. Applicants must be 16 years of age or older.

Persons interested in becoming involved in the program are asked to contact the Central Florida Zoo, 323-4450. Early registration is suggested.

The zoo is located at 3755 N. Highway 17-92, in Sanford.

Doctors concerned for hunger strikers

By Associated Press

MIAMI — Haitian refugee advocates say they are becoming increasingly concerned about the health of 48 hunger strikers who are protesting immigration policies at the federal detention center near here.

As the strike entered its 13th day today, civil-rights leaders and Haitian advocates asked to bring in their own doctors to examine the strikers at the Krome Avenue Detention Center.

The strikers are showing more of the physical effects of not eating and "if we can't get doctors in, we're afraid of them dying," said Rolande Dorancy, executive director of the Haitian Refugee Center.

Officials of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service could not be reached for comment Sunday but said earlier in the week that INS doctors were monitoring the health of the strikers and would resort to force-feeding any who lapsed into unconsciousness from lack of food.

The strike began with 119 men and 41 women, protesting the fact that Cuban refugees are generally set free soon after arriving in Florida while Haitians are either sent back home or held for months at Krome and other detention facilities.

By Sunday, those numbers had dwindled to six men and 39 women, refugee advocates said. INS officials had confirmed the earlier numbers, but by the end of the week were saying that the strike was all but over.

Johnnie McMillian, head of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the NAACP and HRC both made formal requests Friday that they be allowed to again visit the detainees at Krome, on the edge of the Everglades west of Miami.

"The NAACP is very concerned about the urgency regarding the physical status of the hunger strikers," she said Sunday.

Phone calls to Miami district INS offices went unanswered Sunday, and a staffer who answered the phone at Krome refused to comment on the condition of the strikers.

The hunger strike began two days after the quick release of 48 Cubans who commandeered a Cuban airliner to Miami Dec. 29. Those Cubans were released from Krome within 48 hours, although officials still are investigating whether the diversion of the airliner was a hijacking.

Federal authorities have argued the difference in treatment is due to the Cuban Adjustment Act of 1966, which grants asylum to Cubans fleeing their country's communist regime.

Nearly 40,000 Haitians have fled their Caribbean nation following a bloody army coup in September 1991 that ousted Jean-Bertrand Aristide, Haiti's first freely elected president.

Survivors, inmates' families react to prison policy

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Henry and Maxine Meyer had reason to cheer when state Attorney General Bob Butterworth said convicted murderers in Florida prisons would have to stay there a little longer.

Their 25-year-old son was stabbed to death in 1983. His assailants were sentenced to 30 years in prison but were expected to serve less than half of that because of prison overcrowding.

But now Quintin Allen and Kenneth Palmer face an additional stretch of prison time, more than four years.

While that doesn't repay the Meyers for their loss, the Winter Haven couple said it's a start. "That's the way I feel," Henry Meyer said. "This might help to rectify the sentence."

The case that prompted Butterworth's opinion involved child killer Donald McDougall, who was to be released on New Year's Eve after serving less than a third of his 34-year sentence for the torture-slashing of 5-year-old Ursula Sunshine Ansell.

But after a public outcry, the attorney general said a 1992 change in state law bars those convicted of murder and attempted murder from having their sentences shortened to ease prison overcrowding.

Some who were convicted of aggravated child abuse, including McDougall, never should have been eligible, he said.

The move, being challenged in court, prompted prison officials to begin plans to round up an estimated 100 inmates who were released early since the law took effect on July 6 and to postpone the release dates of another 1,553 prisoners.

Barbara Slater of Tampa said her husband, James, is serving a 20-year sentence for a 1985 attempted first-degree murder conviction in Broward County and will have 510 days added to his 1990 release date.

That might make the families of murder victims feel better, she said, but it hurts the inmate's family members, who are just as innocent, and it crosses the line between justice and vengeance.

"I'm not making any excuses for killing someone. You should know better," Slater said, speaking from his Arcadia jail cell. But revoking an inmate's sentence-reduction credits to please the victims' relatives is wrong, he said.

"What more do they want?" he said. "People learn from their mistakes. There's no sense in locking the people up and throwing away the key."

Already one Central Florida ex-inmate has felt the impact. Kimberly Soubielle of Casselberry, convicted of killing her husband in 1987, had been sent to a work-release center, the last step before being released.

She had a job and was preparing to take college classes. That was canceled last week and she was returned to prison.

Soubielle has appealed to Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet, sitting as the Clemency Board. When they listened to arguments in her case last month, it was the first time they considered the state's year-old policy on battered women's syndrome.

LaDerrick Champion, 27, was released from prison three months ago after serving nearly six years of a 23-year term for the attempted murder of an Orlando police officer.

Champion may be another of the ex-convicts whom the state now wants to put back behind bars.

A jury said Champion tried to shoot Orlando Police Officer Jose Garcia. After receiving more than five years' worth of the early-release credits that prison officials are revoking, Champion was released from prison Oct. 1.

Graceful, elegant endeavor to save whooping cranes

Environmental history was made with the re-introduction of a half dozen whooping cranes to Florida. Biologists hope the long-legged symbols of grace will produce a permanent colony in the state.

Whooping cranes were once abundant along the Atlantic seaboard and were native to Florida. However, at the turn of the century both hunters and a shrinking habitat took a toll on the birds. Currently, only 237 whooping cranes exist in the world. None have been seen in Florida for 80 years.

The new Florida colony, at Three Lakes Wildlife Management Area near Kenansville, is a key to the crane's survival, according to environmentalists and scientists.

The event is a reminder that although humans can cause damage to the environment, they can also preserve, protect and restore the scenic beauty of our land.

The more extreme environmentalists tend to look at nature through rose-colored glasses. Without man, they believe nature is kind, peaceable and basically gentle.

Nature, though, can be savage. One of the dangers to the whooping cranes is not man, but bobcats. Predators do not care if their prey is on an endangered species list. From time to time, different species die out. It is the way of nature.

However, it is man who can intervene to protect the land, the environment and the species in danger of extinction. The whooping crane sanctuary is the latest example of that. Such an environmental endeavor is as graceful and elegant as the whooping cranes man seeks to protect.

A heartfelt thanks

On behalf of all my employees and management staff at Quincy's Family Steakhouse, I would like to take this opportunity to say thank you to all our customers. KFM92 and HRS for helping make wishes come true for hundreds of children in our community this holiday season.

Even though our economy is down, our customers dug deep and gave generously. This was our fourth annual "Wishing Tree" and it was a success. There were hundreds of gifts purchased for underprivileged children in Sanford.

HRS provided the names and gift suggestions on a tag, which we hung on our "Wishing Tree" for our customers to choose which gift they would like. The employees would then take each gift and place it in under the tree in time for Christmas.

KFM92 was instrumental in helping generate awareness for this program.

In this season of giving, sharing and caring, our community came together to make this holiday special for those less fortunate. From all of us at Quincy's, thank you Sanford.

The series "Tour of Duty" was a catalyst in the recovery process for those affected by the Vietnam War. It more than entertained, it informed. It kept the issues of the Vietnam generation public, while it posed the questions which should have been asked 20 years ago without glamorizing, moralizing or justifying.

Dickens' report to attorney general

In 1842, Charles Dickens visited the Eastern Penitentiary on the outskirts of Philadelphia. "The system here," he wrote, "is rigid, strict and hopeless solitary confinement." The prisoner "sees the prison officers, but with that exception he never looks upon a human countenance, or hears a human voice. He is a man buried alive; to be dug out in the slow round of years."

Dickens had seen cruel prison conditions before, but he found this American model utterly depressing and frightening: "I hold this slow and daily tampering with the mysteries of the brain to be immeasurably worse than any torture of the body." And because no outside attention was being paid, Dickens denounced this "secret punishment which slumbering humanity is not roused up to stay."

There are now, in America, more such remote prisons where inmates are being buried alive. The keepers of all our prisons no longer waste much time in attempts at rehabilitation. Their mission is punishment. And when prisoners are violent or otherwise difficult, they must be controlled in separate, even more rigid institutions that markedly resemble the prison Dickens was chilled by in 1842.

As the journal of the ACLU's National Prison Project points out, "there is an accelerating movement" to build "supermax" facilities where these prisoners "are locked in their cells approximately 23 hours a day."

One such unit in particular - Pelican Bay in Northern California near the Oregon border - is often visited by prison officials from other states and countries. They see it as a state-of-the-art paradigm of how to totally control and break the spirit of even the toughest convicts. When former California Gov. George Deukmejian dedicated Pelican Bay in 1989, he proudly predicted that "it will serve as a model for the rest of the nation."

In Pelican Bay, there are some 3,250 prisoners of whom 1,056 - those requiring the most control - are in the inner prison, the Security Housing Unit. There, nothing has been left unplanned. No sunlight enters the SHU. The prisoners are locked in their 8-by-10-foot cells 23 1/2 hours a day and - as Jan Elvin writes in the National Prison Project Journal - "Officers communicate with prisoners through disembodied speakers in the walls. ... Every move is monitored by a closed-circuit camera." Furthermore, the cells are so designed that the prisoners cannot see out.

He is a man buried alive; to be dug out in the slow round of years.

When they leave their cells - for the hour and a half of exercise in a small, concrete room or to the law library - they "never emerge without being handcuffed and in chains."

Just as in the prison Charles Dickens visited, prisoners get their food from a slot in the cell door. The convicts in that 19th-century Pennsylvania prison could at least distract themselves from the awful solitude during hours of work in their cells - at a loom, a bench or a wheel. (Dickens told of a new prisoner who begged, "Give me some work to do, or I shall go raving mad.")

At Pelican Bay, however, the hours are flat and empty. "Activity is strictly limited," Jan Elvin notes.

GOP hindsight is 20-20 on Perot meeting

WASHINGTON - It was the biggest dog-and-pony show of the presidential campaign, and in retrospect it was a blown opportunity for George Bush to put Ross Perot in his place.

That's how White House and other sources now describe the Perot pilgrimage that sent senior emissaries from both the Clinton and Bush campaigns to Dallas last September in a bid to convince the mercurial billionaire not to re-enter the campaign.

GOP officials are doing a lot of second-guessing in the final days of Bush's presidency. For example, should they have stayed home when Clinton's team traveled to Dallas? Some officials think a trap could have been baited for Clinton: Bush forces would quietly watch as their counterparts groveled at Perot's feet. The next day Bush could have branded Clinton the Great Panderer, accusing Perot and Clinton of cutting backroom deals.

These Republican officials believe they could have transformed what now appears to be a fool's errand to Dallas into the tide-turning hour of the campaign, by RSVP-ing their regrets.

"We should have let Clinton get committed to being there, and then have the president come on and say, 'We're not going to do it, we're not going to pander. I've been in public life for so many years and Ross Perot knows my record,'" one Republican official told us. This official also said that Bush could have then taken the high road and suggested that the Clinton and Perot camps were conspiring together behind the scenes, to raise taxes, for example.

Campaign strategists say that Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a prominent member of Bush's Dallas delegation, was vociferously opposed to the spectacle and attended only out of loyalty to Bush.

"Gramm's advice to the campaign was not to go," said another Republican official. "And he knew that what he said would make absolutely no difference. They wanted him to go because if there was one thing Perot's people were turned on by, it was (Gramm's) dealing with the deficit."

By kowtowing to Perot, Bush underscored what may have been his biggest miscalculation about Perot's purpose. The independent candidate's run had plenty to do with settling a personal vendetta against Bush. Politics and position papers were secondary to understanding Perot's behavior, according to some Perot-ologists.

"One of the reasons I didn't think it would do any good to visit Perot was I didn't think Perot would ever do anything to help George Bush," one senior Republican strategist told us. "It was a combination of jealousy of Bush and basically a dislike of Bush. Perot was a guy who made it on his own and really had a distaste for little rich kids."

Bush always had a blindside about Perot. He privately predicted that Perot would never jump into the race, claiming some fleeting vindication after Perot dropped out in July.

"Without Perot in the mix a lot of things would have gone differently," this official said. "The debates would have gone differently. The focus would have been more on Clinton as an alternative rather than Clinton and Perot as the alternatives. The president would have benefited in the debates. Perot was a constant distraction."

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE - The AFL-CIO recently fired off a memorandum to some of its more prominent members who plan to attend the Clinton inaugural next week, warning them not to wear their fur coats or risk getting splattered with red-blood paint.

Some officials think a trap could have been baited for Clinton.

HODDING CARTER

Cabinet fulfills American promise

Candidate Clinton promised a Cabinet that would look like America in all its diversity, and President-elect Clinton has created one. According to the complaints that preceded, accompanied and followed his appointments, the process was un-American and the results were mediocre. The critics are wrong on the first count and premature on the second.

Obviously, the proof of success will be in the pudding. But while the selection process was not particularly pretty, what it produced was a long step toward the day when the government of the United States will be truly representative of all its people.

Which isn't to say that all the concerns about the selection process were misplaced. At times it was brutally inept. A few good people who didn't deserve the humiliation were rejected for trifling reasons after being led to believe their nominations were assured.

At other times, it seemed a living parody of that old ruseful warning that you should never visit a sausage factory if you like to eat sausage. A lot of messy maneuvering was played out in semi-public view. From time to time, the president-elect's calculations seemed to boil down to seat-of-the-pants improvisation - two of this, three of that and a dash or two of those.

And his anxious allies did nothing to make the undertaking more palatable. Their pushing and shoving took on grotesque proportions. The pressure for more or quicker appointments, whether from women's groups, neo-conservatives, Hispanics, or members of the Israeli lobby, vended on the edge of the assembly, then fell over. Foreign observers, and in particular those who live in parliamentary democracies, once more had to marvel at the untidiness of the American system.

That's the bad news. The good news is that the Cabinet that Bill Clinton put together proves that you play by the new rules and do at least as well as by the old. History will determine whether this administration is a winner or not, just as history always does. But it does not take history's judgment to declare that this Cabinet, on balance, is competent, strong and creative. Most of the carping manages to avoid that all-important point.

Something else needs to be added for the record. The criteria behind the Cabinet's selection have been mocked as "PC" - politically correct. It is suggested that the selection of women or blacks or Hispanics means diversity has been put ahead of ability, that better qualified white men have been cut out by a rigid pressure group formula that penalizes talent.

The charge would make sense if it could be demonstrated that the Cabinet nominees are unfit for high position by reason of inferior intellect and accomplishment. Otherwise it is as patronizing as it is demeaning, as racist as it is sexist. What it boils down to is an assertion that white men are better able to govern than anyone else. What it ignores is that Cabinet balancing is as old as the republic.

The Senate confirmation hearings already under way are the proper place to examine the candidates' credentials. A campaign of back-ground murmurs and innuendo won't do.

Forthright identification of the alleged dots, backed up with evidence, is required. It would be helpful if the proof were comparative as well. For example, her opponents should be able to offer evidence that the prospective attorney general, Zoe Baird, whose name is not a household word, is less qualified than her four predecessors. It can't be done.

As for the notion that criteria other than merit were never used before the days of affirmative action, it is to laugh. They were all white, but Cabinet nominees historically were tapped as much to appease sectional, financial and factional interests as to make a statement about excellence. It was a widely understood and applauded practice, intended to knit the party and nation together.

That's still the point, but the net is now thrown much wider and the pool is wider and deeper. The Constitution gave the vote to women and blacks. Citizenship gives it to Hispanics and Asians. Common sense and democratic principles demand that they be allowed full participation in governance as well.

Some in the new Cabinet may turn out to be total failures, bad jokes who give the administration a black eye. What's new? White Cabinet officers in the past have been indicted for felonies, resigned in disgrace and presided over disasters. That didn't keep future presidents from picking whites for the same jobs, and it's no indictment of minorities or women if some of their representatives fail as well.

Allowing Americans of every sort and condition the chance to succeed or fail at all levels of national life is what our system is supposed to offer. The Clinton Cabinet makes good on the promise. It's an achievement worth cheering.

Commission addresses sports complex issues

By BOB POMPANO
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Several items pertaining to the new Lake Mary Sports Complex were presented during a Lake Mary City Commission meeting recently. As the Phase I construction nears final completion, more interest is being projected on the facilities and use.

In response to a request from Director of Parks and Recreation, John Holland, the City Commission approved the awarding of a contract for $64,800 to be used in the construction of a restroom facility.

The Commission had previously approved the amount to be spent during a Nov. 19 meeting. Thursday night, Holland suggested the contract should be awarded to K.B. Enterprises, Inc. of Orlando.

The actual facility will be a combination restroom, concession and storage facility.

During the same meeting, City Manager John Litton brought the proposed use of the complex up for discussion. Litton indicated he was supplying basic information on arrangements with the Pony League and Lake Mary High School, to be considered by the commission prior to a formal discussion on it, scheduled for Jan. 21.

"Based upon comments made publicly by both former and current members of the Commission," Litton wrote in a memorandum, "I have some concerns as to whether this agreement negates a commitment by the city to provide enough 'open play' for the enjoyment of our citizens."

Litton added, "I also have some of the same concerns about the artificial field in as much as Lake Mary High School not only wants daily use of the field, but also wants to charge admission."

He continued, "Here again, I think this is a policy decision, and before any agreements can be formulated, the staff is in dire need of Commission input."

Litton has suggested individual commissioners contact him or Holland and discuss their feelings on the situation.

Not directly related to the sports complex, but regarding unnamed parks, which would include the complex, Holland and Litton submitted a policy to be considered, regarding the naming of parks.

According to the policy, requests for naming parks, ballfields or facilities must be submitted to the city for review by the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, City Manager, and Parks director.

The policy statement stipulates, "Consideration will only be given to those who are or have been residents of the city of Lake Mary."

During a previous meeting, City Commissioner A.R. "Doc" Jors had recommended that one of the ball fields in the new sports complex be named after Jeremy Millhouse, the 11-year old school child killed in a tragic bus stop accident on Oct. 9 of last year.

Birthday surprise from Holland

Ryan Dickey, son of Judge and Mrs. Alan Dickey, Lake Mary, got a surprise phone call from Holland on Dec. 16, his 18th birthday.

Last summer, Ryan spent seven weeks in Holland with the Kemps family in the small town of Berkel Enschot. The trip was arranged through American Field Service, an organization with many years of experience in foreign visits and exchanges.

Ryan had two Dutch "brothers," 17 and 14, and "parents" who treated him like one of their own. They showed him the sights in their area in southern Holland and took him to a village in Germany for a day trip. He and the older "brother," Amoud, went to Amsterdam quite a few times on the train to sightsee and visit relatives.

Getting used to Dutch eating habits, and constantly thinking about using English words the Kemps were familiar with, were the two biggest challenges. "After two weeks of bread and cheese for breakfast, I went and bought some Frosted Flakes. They boys loved them! I think I ruined them forever!" Ryan laughs.

In the middle of his visit, the AFS kids in Holland all met for a five-day bike trek around the countryside. Ryan says this was a highlight. "It is such a beautiful country. Everything is clean and the people are unbelievably friendly. I was the local attraction in Berkel Enschot. If my family was busy, the other kids in town would come by to see if I wanted to go out — they were great. I made some real friends there."

Amoud is planning a trip to the United States this summer. The Kemps made Ryan's trip such a wonderful experience that the whole family is looking forward to returning the favor. Laurie, Ryan's mom, says "Mrs. Kemps cried when he left. She wrote and told me she has his picture on their mantle with her boys. They really bonded. Ryan was sad to leave. He had an experience that will enrich his life forever."

'Friends and Lovers'

This year the Heathrow Women's Club will be presenting its annual fund-raising event "Friends and Lovers," a Valentine's dinner/dance and silent auction on Friday, Feb. 12, at the Country Club at Heathrow to benefit their selected charity: BETA (Birth, Education, Training and Acceptance).

BETA is a privately funded agency organized in 1978. Its principal goal is to address the critical need of the ever-increasing population of high-risk pregnant and parenting women and their children.

BETA provides various services to pregnant and parenting young women and their children — including a school, free day care, positive parenting classes, a home visit program and residency.

They are requesting a donation that will be used for the Silent Auction. Your donation will be published in their monthly newsletter which is distributed to 650 families. Please contribute whatever you can; all donations are gratefully accepted, large and small.

Please contact Gerri McEwan, chairperson, at 333-3790 or Nena Shidemanite at 333-0066.

Recently, third grade teachers met with fourth grade teams to discuss skills which are absolutely essential for fourth grade success. Among these were addition and subtraction and "new" skills such as multiplication, division and fractions.

Fourth graders are hard at work improving writing skills in order to do well on the statewide Florida Writing Assessment in February. Students' abilities will be tested on three types of writing. These are expository, narrative, and persuasive writing. They will also be learning about all areas of life in Florida, including history, geography, economics resources, and more. Math drill on multiplication facts is essential to success as well as gaining speed on other math facts learned this year.

Fifth graders have continued the language arts theme, "A Display of Courage." They completed library research and prepared oral reports on customs and traditions of other countries. Science classes performed hands-on examinations of some very smelly specimens. The students enjoyed examining octopuses, squid, clams and oysters. They are looking forward to a "fishy" activity in January. Mrs. White's language arts class prepared delicious "edible" book reports. Mrs. Thomas' class exchanged unique gifts which money couldn't buy. Mrs. Thomas also wants everyone to remember that the Danny Dolphin Video Company is available upon request to video school events. During this month the fifth graders will be preparing a patriotic play to be performed in February 1993.

MIAMI — Dan Marino sizzled and Stan Humphries fizzled. The Miami Dolphins move on to the AFC championship game, the San Diego Chargers go home.

The 31-0 rout of the red-hot Chargers sends Miami (12-5) into the conference final against the Buffalo Bills, who split a pair of games with the AFC East champions this season.

Miami's defense forced five turnovers and Marino turned three of them into touchdowns to stop San Diego's eight-game winning streak.

The Chargers never got untracked offensively, finishing with 70 yards rushing and 140 passing. The Dolphins had 324 yards total offense with Marino completing 17 of 29 passes for 167 yards and Aaron Craver and Bobby Humphrey gaining 72 and 71 yards.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Tim Paschal set a Florida State record with 38 points, 27 in the second half, and the Lady Seminoles beat 15th-ranked North Carolina 85-66 Sunday.

Paschal, who also grabbed a season-high 11 rebounds, made 12 of 22 shots and 14 of 17 free throws for the Lady Seminoles (7-3, 2-2 ACC).

Danielle Ryan added 16 points for Florida State. Christy Derlak 15 and Alison Prevey 12.

Tonya Sampson led North Carolina (9-2, 0-2) with 28 points. Sylvia Crawley got 16 points and 10 rebounds for the Tar Heels.

Heat blast Lakers in LA

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Kevin Edwards scored 25 points, including 16 in the first half, and Glen Rice added 22 as the Miami Heat used an outstanding first half shooting performance to defeat the Los Angeles Lakers 101-89.

Miami led 27-17 after one quarter as Edwards made his first five shots and the Heat made 12 of 19 overall. Miami continued its hot shooting in the second period, making 11 of 15 field goal attempts to take a 60-42 halftime lead.

Harold Miner, the Heat rookie who attended nearby Southern Cal, scored 10 points in the quarter on 5-for-5 shooting.

Made Dwyer scored 24 points to lead the Lakers while Anthony Peeler added 17.

Cowboys ground Eagles

IRVING, Texas — Troy Aikman dispelled any notions he would lead the playoff heat by directing four long touchdown drives in his first playoff start as the Dallas Cowboys rolled into the NFC championship game with a 34-10 victory Sunday over the Philadelphia Eagles.

The Cowboys (14-3) will play the San Francisco 49ers next Sunday in the NFC title game at Candlestick Park.

Aikman and Florida's Emmitt Smith, who ran 23 yards for a touchdown and rushed for 114 yards, provided a one-two punch that devastated the Eagles.

Dallas scored 10 points in the last 47 seconds of the first half, then went 70 yards on the opening drive of the second half to put the game away on Smith's run.

PALATKA — Now that's the way to end a road trip.

The Seminole Community College men's basketball team, getting 33 points from its bench, ended a four-game road trip with an 85-74 victory over St. John's River Community College in a Mid-Florida Conference contest at Palatka Saturday night.

The win evened the Raiders' conference record at 1-1 and raised their overall record to 6-11. The men will play their first home game since Dec. 8, and only their second since Nov. 28, this Wednesday night when they host Orlando rival Valencia Community College at the Health and Physical Education Center starting at 7:30 p.m.

"It'll be nice to get home," said SCC head coach Bernard Merithe, whose team has played

Brown beats buzzer for Greyhounds

From Staff Reports

DAYTONA BEACH — Kate Brown put back an offensive rebound with 11 seconds left Saturday to give the Lyman Greyhounds a 16-15 victory over the Maitland Buccaneers in a 1A District 9 girls' basketball contest.

Using 100 run, the Buccaneers rallied to take a 14-12 lead with 2:32 left to play. Kate Morris Webster put Lyman back on top, 14-13, with her basket with 2:10 remaining, but Maitland retook the lead 13 seconds later.

After the Greyhounds turned the ball over on their ensuing possession, Maitland held the ball until there was less than a minute to play. But when the Buccaneers started to move the ball, they fumbled it out of bounds, turning it over to Lyman with 19 seconds on the clock.

Latina Smith's shot for Lyman wouldn't go down and Maitland snared the rebound. The Greyhounds committed a foul to kill the clock, sending the Buccaneers to the free throw line for a on-and-one. But the first shot was off the mark and Smith grabbed the rebound.

As she headed toward the basket on a breakaway, Smith was fouled before she attempted a shot. She went to the free throw line with a one-and-one opportunity. But she also missed the front end. Only this time, Brown was there to snare the rebound back in the basket.

Coach Suzy Reno (left), Dawn Burks (No. 20), Shirley Pinto (No. 6) and the rest of the Seminole soccer squad enjoyed a successful week, battling Class 4A state champion Lyman and beating Flagler-Palm Coast.

Burks keys Tribe

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Dawn Burks scored four goals Saturday afternoon to lead Seminole to a 4-0 win over Flagler-Palm Coast in a high school girls' soccer match at Thomas E. Wingham Stadium.

While Burks was shining through the Flagler-Palm Coast defense, Seminole's defense was limiting the visitors to one shot on goal, which Tribe goalie Christy Oliver handled easily to register the shutout.

The victory capped a solid week for the Seminoles, who also gave defending Class 4A state champion Lyman a solid game before losing 3-0 on Thursday.

"It was a very successful week," said Seminole coach Suzy Reno. "I just wish we were more consistent. I believe we played better in the 3-0 loss to Lyman."

Burks gave Seminole a 1-0 lead with a goal in the 22nd minute of the first half. In the second half, she scored in the 53rd, 68th and 72nd minutes. Shari Brown assisted on the fourth goal, making a nice crossing pass from left to right.

Flagler-Palm Coast had a chance to tie the score at 1-1 when a Seminole player was called for a hand ball in the penalty area, setting up a penalty kick. But the shot hit the cross bar and was cleared away.

Lyman rallies for sweep of quad

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — Trailing by 23 team points in a dual meet with the Titusville Terriers, the Lyman Greyhounds won six of the last eight matches, including four by pins, to pull out a 36-32 victory Saturday.

Earlier in the day, Lyman pounded Lake Brantley 67-7 and clipped St. Cloud 55-15.

"That's the first time we've been behind all year," said Lyman coach Rick Tribit. "It all started with Vinnie Samero (145 pounder). We had to start pulling some big matches out. Vinnie stuck his kid pretty quick (in 1:37) and got the guys pumped up."

Lyman suffered a momentary setback when Charlie Defazio suffered a close 10-8 decision at 152, but Jason Nutt came right back and regained the momentum for the Greyhounds with a pin at 160 pounds in 1:30.

"When we nailed their guy at 60, it got us fired up all over again," said Tribit. "We fed off each other."

Why does boys' soccer lead state in ejections?

Earlier this school year, the Florida High School Activities Association sent out an interesting piece of mail to coaches at member schools.

It was a single sheet of paper with a simple chart upon it, listing the number of player and coach ejections for the 1991-92 academic year (through May 14, 1992).

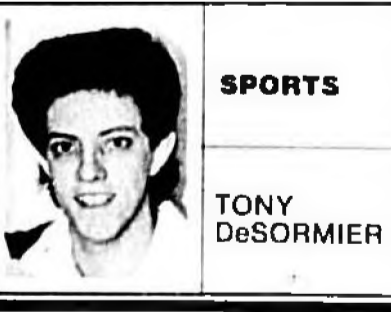

The numbers are surprising, not so much in the actual number of ejections, but in their distribution. Of the 737 "regular" ejections reported, 264 (over one-third) came in boys' soccer.

On top of that, the total number of violations of article 19-17-1 of the FHSAA Bylaws reported last year was 98, 52 of which came in boys' soccer matches.

Article 19-17-1 addresses, in part, an athlete who "strikes, curses, or threatens an official during a game or at any other time because of resentment over occurrences or decisions during a game."

By comparison, football had the second highest number of regular ejections (195) followed by baseball (83), boys' basketball (68), girls' basketball (58), girls' soccer (34), wrestling (22), softball (9) and girls' swimming (4).

Trailing boys' soccer in 19-17-1 violations are baseball (16), boys' basketball (11), football (10), girls' soccer and wrestling (4 each) and volleyball (1).

SPORTS

In its October 1992 newsletter, the FHSAA reported its 1991-92 sports survey. A total of 9,168 boys representing 325 schools played soccer last year. Over 29,400 boys play football at 370 schools while 12,381 boys play basketball at 439 schools and 11,704 boys participate in baseball at 426 schools.

What does this say about boys' soccer?

To begin with, the differences in the various sports are not taken into account. For example, most infractions in football are punished by yardage penalties while the number of ejections in basketball does not include players disqualified because of committing five fouls.

"Regular" ejections occur in soccer when a player receives two yellow cards in one match. Among the ways a player can receive a yellow card are excessively dangerous play, intentional fouls, minor dissent and taunting, among others. A second yellow card in the same game results in a player's ejection.

Violations of article 19-17-1 are punished with immediate red cards (ejection).

Even with those factors considered, the raw numbers might suggest that boys' soccer players are the most undisciplined, out-of-control athletes in high school athletics.

More accurately, it suggests the growing gap between the level of play and quality of officiating.

Unquestionably, soccer is the most difficult sport to officiate. One referee and two linesmen have to keep an eye on 22 players running, leaping, and kicking over a field up to 120 yards long by 55 yards wide for two 40-minute periods. A referee will (should) run several miles during the course of a match.

Physical demands aside, the biggest problem is that soccer is still largely a foreign sport. There aren't many native-born Americans over the age of 30 who can say they grew up playing soccer. As a result, many officials don't have the instinctive feel for the sport that many high school players have.

The primary manifestation of this is a lack of control over the game for a referee. Given the constant action and repeated physical contact, it doesn't take long for a game to get away from a weak official.

Anyone who saw any of the Pizza Hut Invitational tournament played over the holidays saw that happen repeatedly. Through the first 24 games of the tournament, over 30 yellow cards and two red cards were given, an inordinate amount for any set of circumstances.

Is it the players' fault? Teenagers being who they are, they take what authority figures allow. Is it the coaches' fault? Boys' soccer coaches were ejected 15 times in 1991-92, a distant third behind baseball (53) and boys' basketball (32) coaches, so we can imply that coaches aren't setting bad examples.

Rather than place the onus on schools and coaches, inferring that they need to clean up the sport of soccer, the FHSAA should bring officiating associations to task and demand that they have their members adequately prepared to meet the challenge of officiating a largely unfamiliar and physically demanding sport.

Certainly, the kids deserve no less.

Recreation cagers return to action

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - The Sanford Recreation Department Youth Basketball League returned from a three-week hiatus during the holiday season with nine games this past Saturday at the Sanford Middle School Gymnasium.

In Junior Boys' action, Calvary Apostolic Temple (1-1) blitzed Sanford Antiques (0-2) 41-24. Sanford Ace Hardware (2-0) ran past Sanford Paint & Body (0-2) 48-23. Christo's Restaurant (2-0) edged the Sunniland Junior's (0-2) 23-21. Sanford Electric (2-0) trimmed Rich Plan (0-2) 39-28 and Hardee's (2-0) hammered the Fleet Reserve Ladies Auxiliary (1-1) 54-2.

In Girl's League play, Benton's Angels (1-1) pummeled Hair Formula (0-1) 42-8.

And the Senior Boys' results had the American Legion (2-0) crushing AOK Tire (1-1) 41-15. The Sunniland Senior's (1-1) nipped Video Vault (0-2) 25-23 and the Fleet Reserve (2-0) clobbered A.B.B. Power Distribution (0-2) 39-27.

Next week, in the Junior Boys, the 8:30 a.m. games have Rich Plan playing Ace Hardware and Sanford Electric facing Hardee's; at 9:30 a.m., Sanford Antiques takes on the Fleet Reserve Ladies Auxiliary and the Sunniland Juniors welcome Sanford Paint & Body; and at 10:30 a.m., Calvary Apostolic Temple battles Christo's.

The Girl's League game will have Hair Formula challenging the Rotary Club of Sanford (1-0) at 10:30 a.m. and in the Senior Boys, A.B.B. Power visits Video Vault at 12:30 p.m.; the Fleet Reserve squares off with the American Legion; and the Sunniland Seniors close the day's action against AOK Tire at 2:30 p.m.

JUNIOR BOYS

Calvary Apostolic Temple 41

Sanford Antiques 24

MVP Darryl Redding scored nine of his game-high 15 points in the first half as Calvary took a 17-8 halftime margin and never looked back.

Also scoring for the winners were Larnel Fayson (12), Frankie Alphin (eight), Kenny Edwards (three), David Daoud (two) and Kenny Brown (one).

For Sanford Antiques, Ricky Walker led the way with 11 points. Also contributing were Anthony James and Jonathan Solomon (four points each), Ryan Mau and Sammie Williams (three points each) and Walter Gaines (two points).

Christo's Restaurant 23

Sunniland 21

MVP James McBride scored six points and Mike Evans added five more as Christo's outscored Sunniland 13-4 in the final period to win by two.

McBride scored 11 to lead the Christo's offense while Evans (six), Darius Wells (four) and Derrick Cooper (two) also contributed.

Doing the scoring for Sunniland, which led 10-5 at halftime, were Gabriel Calks (nine), MVP Undrae Blake (six) and Harrison Moore, Chris Gillipoe and Marcus Shepard (two points each).

Hardee's 54

Fleet Reserve Ladies Aux. 2

Godfrey Knight scored eight of his game-high 18 points in a 26-0 first half run as Hardee's destroyed the Fleet Reserve Ladies Auxiliary.

Knight earned MVP honor for Hardee's but got plenty of help from Aaron Thomas (14), Steve Carter (eight), Mike Vallet (six), Jymester Wynn (four) and Sylvester Bennett and Richard Veltonis (two each).

MVP Leroy Lockhart scored the Fleet's only points in the third period.

Sanford Ace Hardware 48

Sanford Paint & Body 23

MVP Phillip Eubanks and Major Fisher combined for 27 second half points as Ace Hardware broke open a close contest.

Eubanks and Fisher finished the game with 16 points each. Also scoring for Ace Hardware were John Adamas (six), Josh Murdock and Harry Sanders (four each) and Michael Ramey (two).

Antwan Cassanova paced Sanford Paint & Body with 13 points, while MVP Robert Crummitt (six), Leonard Brown (two) and Brian Hunter (one) also contributed points to the offense.

Sanford Paint & Body 13

led Lyman with 12 points and 11 rebounds. Smith added six points and 10 rebounds while Brown contributed seven points, nine rebounds and two assists. Sam Wood collected five points and three assists.

Mainland won the junior varsity game, 49-38.

Lyman (13-4) will host Orlando-Evans next Friday night and Spruce Creek on Saturday.

Sanford Electric 39

Rich Plan 28

A 10-0 second quarter spelled the difference as Sanford Electric bested Rich Plan.

Robert Hampton scored 11 points to earn MVP honors for Sanford Electric while Terrence Perkins (eight), Steven Brown (seven), Warren Hooks (six), Brian Wade (four) and Fred Siplin (three) also scored.

Doing the scoring for Rich Plan were Marcus Besaley (14), MVP Jermaine Mackay (eight), Alex Jacot (four) and Cris Donner (two).

GIRLS' LEAGUE

Benton's Angels 50

Hair Formula 8

Benton's Angels used a balanced offensive attack to shut down Hair Formula.

Co-MVP's Raheeka Hampton and Shaneka Freeman scored 10 and six points, respectively, while Nikki Baker (10) and Nina Byrd and Vivian Turner (eight each) also had good scoring games for the winner's.

MVP paced Hair Formula with four points, while Kelly McCann and Selena Allen added two points each.

SENIOR BOYS

American Legion 41

A.O.K. Tire 15

The American Legion defense held A.O.K. Tire scoreless in the first half while building a 27-0 advantage and went on to almost triple the loser's score.

MVP Rod Brown tossed in a game-high 13 points as 10 different players scored for the American Legion. Also in the scoring column were Kenneth Moultrie (six), Greg Liggins (five), Derrick Jones, Deon Daniels and Greg Reina (three points each) and Twaunte Cannon, Author McIntyre, Kevin Brown and Henry Brown (two points each).

A.O.K. Tire MVP Richard Badger scored all five of his team-high five points in the third quarter. Also scoring were Reyna Proenza (four) and Calvin Copeland, Addis Davis and Greg Stafford (two each).

Sunniland Seniors 25

Video Vault 23

The Sunniland Seniors made a big first half lead (15-8) stand up as it held off Video Vault.

MVP Joel Vasquez paced a balanced offense with nine points. Also contributing were Anthony James and Jonathan Solomon (four points each), Ryan Mau and Sammie Williams (three points each) and Walter Gaines (two points).

Fleet Reserve 28

A.B.B. Power Distribution 27

The Fleet Reserve took an 11-4 lead after the first period and never looked back in handling A.B.B. Power Distribution.

MVP James Young was the only player in the game to find double figures with 12 points. Also scoring for the winner's were Johnny Hollie (nine), Jeremy Whaley (six), Chris Foster (five), T.J. Davis (three) and Nick Barnes and George Baker (two each).

Doing the A.B.B. scoring were MVP Jerome Williams (nine), Robert Ross (six), Lloyd Dixon and Ron Jackson (four each) and David Y. and Zach Price (two each).

Tips on proper pruning

Dormant season is best time to cut back plants

The dormant season — late winter and early spring is the best time to prune many shrubs and small trees in the landscape. Shrubs, such as hibiscus that bloom in summer and fall generally develop flowers on new growth and should be pruned before the first flush of growth in the spring. Azaleas and other shrubs that bloom in the spring or winter develop flowers on last season's growth and should be pruned immediately after flowering has ceased.

Pruning is practiced to maintain plant health, control plant growth, and encourage flowering, and fruiting. These "Whys" of pruning should be kept in mind when you prune.

Pruning should encourage plant health, not plant disease therefore, it is important to prune properly using the correct pruning tools. For general maintenance hand pruners are used. Loppers may be used for branches up to one inch; a pruning saw can be used for larger branches, and hedge shears should be used to trim closely clipped hedges only. All tools should be kept sharp and clean. Sharp tools not only cut easier but prevent bruising. Bruising the plant tissues causes the wound to heal slowly and increases the chance of disease.

The cut surface should have a smooth surface, not a rough one that looks as if the tissue has been torn or pulled. Care should be taken not to injure the plant near the cut, or rip or tear the bark above or below the cut. The cambium layer, a thin layer of cells just below the bark which is important in wound healing, is easily injured. Do not twist or turn the shears as you cut, you will injure the plant as well as your shears.

GARDENING

Wound painting has become a controversial practice. The standard recommendation has been to paint all wounds over one inch in diameter with a quality tree wound dressing to protect the cut surface from wood-rotting organisms. Research has shown that upon exposure to the sun, the protective coating often cracks. Moisture can enter cracks and accumulate in pockets that may occur between the wood and the wound paint. This situation would be even more inviting to wood-rotting organisms than one with no wound cover. However, in situations where aesthetics are important, the practice is justified. If a pruning wound is to be protected, allow it to dry before applying the dressing. This will improve chances of good bonding. Examine the coating several times the first year. Retreat if the coating has cracked.

Clipped or formal hedges are considered high maintenance plantings, but are very common and often become a continuous job during the growing season. Clipped hedges should be trimmed so that the base of the hedge is wider than the top. Pruning in this manner allows light to reach the lower branches. Hedges that are not pruned winter at the base will eventually lose their lower leaves and become leggy.

Unless a shrub is a topiary, espalier, or part of a formal hedge, it should not be closely clipped but instead allowed to develop into a more natural form. This does not mean that the plant should never be pruned, but that pruning is done to enhance the natural beauty of the plant. The first step in pruning is to remove all dead, diseased or injured branches. Once this is done it may be necessary to thin out the plant. Remove branches that cross each other or they will obviously become entangled. If the shrub still looks too thick, remove some of the older branches. Remove any branches that are distinctly different from the rest of the shrub. Cut back excessively long growth to a bud that is four to six inches below the average length. If you wish to reduce the size of the shrub, cut back each branch four to six inches, to a new bud. Do not use hedge shears; each branch should be cut separately. This will provide a neat, informal shrub that looks natural in the landscape.

For more information about pruning specific shrubs or trees, call the Agriculture Center at 323-2500, ext. 8558.

Skit to help with church restoration

By SHIRLEY K. BAKER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Since his assignment to historic St. James A.M.E. Church three years ago, one of Pastor Nolan T. Pitts' main objectives has been the complete restoration of the 100-year-old church which was placed on the Seminole County's Historic Register in 1991 and the National Register in 1992.

Brenda Elliot, a local historian, diligently worked with the historic committee of the church which was chaired by Mrs. Ollie Williams. The committee attempted to acquire a state grant but was unable to do so; consequently, the restoration of the church has become the responsibility of the members and pastor.

Always ready with a plan, Pastor Pitts and members of Historic St. James A.M.E. Church will sponsor a banquet on Jan. 23, 7:30 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center. According to Pastor Pitts, "What makes this event unusual is its theme — 'A Time to Laugh.' For the first time we will be entertained by ministers who are talented humorists as well as other entertaining artists."

the program will feature special guest Pastor Roger P. Fair who is known to have a great sense of humor and Mrs. Margaret Ward, Episcopal district president of the Missionary Society. Mrs. Ward will serve as mistress of ceremony. Pastors Louis Meyer and Nolan T. Pitts will also perform.

Pastor Pitts said, "We know there is a time for everything; this will be a time to laugh. Guests from surrounding areas will perform and we know this will be a night friends in attendance will never forget."

Tickets are now on sale for $15 per person. A delicious meal will be served and door prizes will be given to lucky ticket holders. For more information, you may call Pastor Pitts at (407) 323-3014 or 325-5553.

It's hair today, gone tomorrow

DEAR ABBY: The letter about nose and ear hair really got me. You Americans are crazy. You don't seem to realize that nature gave us hair to protect us.

Since when did hair become offensive? Women started to shave their legs when short skirts and silk stockings came into vogue. Then they started to shave their armpits when sleeveless dresses got popular.

Years ago, French models would model sleeveless evening gowns and let the hair under their arms alone. Nobody was offended. Here in the States it was a different story. All the models had to shave. I think the Gillelts people must have started it. Today, Americans are razor happy. One music star even shaves her entire head! Men see hair as a sign of masculinity and virility. Women are shaving and men are wearing hairpieces! It makes no sense at all, Abby!

ADVICE

I read in your column that some guys are embarrassed to go to the beach in swim trunks because they have hair on their backs! Hair on their chests is OK, but hair on their backs makes them feel like gorillas.

Now I learned (in your column) that a woman is totally turned off by a man who has hair in his nose and ears.

I'll bet you are going to get a lot of mail on that one, Abby. ALL MAN IN AUBURN, COLO. DEAR ALL MAN: I certainly did. And it's still coming. Read on!

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter signed "A Good Friend," who had a male friend she thought the world of, but the excess hair in his ears and nose turned her off.

When I was in high school, the fellow I was going with had a lot of nose hair. He was sweet and fun to be with, but this small problem repelled me. My mother told me if I really liked him I would tell him; otherwise, as trivial as it seemed, it would come between us. Unfortunately, I was too shy to mention it.

Well, one day my mother told him for me, Abby. I thought I would die of embarrassment when she told me what she had done, but the next time I saw him, he had taken care of the problem, and it made a world of difference to me. (I ended up thanking my mother.)

Men, listen up! It might seem like a trivial matter, but you would be amazed how disgusting nose hair is to some women. Get rid of it!

HELGA IN LUBBOCK, TEX.

DEAR HELGA: A word of caution to those who would heed your suggestion: Do not pluck nose hairs. To do so could cause an infection. There are nose-hair clippers and special scissors that can be purchased at the drugstore. And most barbers perform this necessary grooming function routinely.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the girl who was totally turned off by a male friend because he had excessive nose and ear hair took me back about half a century. I was attending a women's college back East and started dating an Ivy League man. He was a brilliant young man, and he was crazy about me, but I couldn't get serious about him because he had coarse black hair in his ears and nose, which totally turned me off. I fixed him up with a girl from my dorm, and they eventually married.

Guess where the fellow with the ear and nose hair ended up? On the bench of the U.S. Supreme Court!

Please, no names, initials or city on this one, Abby.

A FAITHFUL READER

DEAR ABBY: Please settle an argument for us. Do you think it's proper for a woman to give a male co-worker a shirt for a gift? I may be old-fashioned, but if my husband needs a shirt, I will buy him one.

PEEVED IN CARROLLTON, TEXAS

DEAR FEEVEE: I see nothing improper about it. Don't be peeved — the giver wanted to give her co-worker something useful. Now, had she given him a pair of boxer shorts with lipstick prints (I have seen them in ads), you could have something to be peeved about. But a shirt is dignified, useful and not inexpensive.

WORTH REMEMBERING:

The reason that fiction is more interesting than any other form of literature to those of us who really like to study people is that, in fiction, the author can really tell the whole truth without hurting anyone — or humiliating himself too much.

Prednisone treats lupoid hepatitis

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please print information about lupoid hepatitis that has caused cirrhosis of the liver.

DEAR READER: Systemic lupus erythematosus is a chronic disease of unknown cause, marked by inflammation of connective tissue - the tissue that holds organs together. Because connective tissue is present in almost all body organs, SLE can affect them all.

The disease most commonly attacks skin (rash), joints (pain), heart (inflammation of the heart covering), lymph glands (swelling), brain (personality changes, headache, seizures), and kidneys (nephritis).

Involvement of the liver (lupoid hepatitis) is rare.

In such cases, the chronic connective tissue inflammation in the liver eventually leads to scarring (cirrhosis). There is no cure for this complication, but prednisone therapy often prevents scarring by reducing inflammation. Patients with moderate/severe SLE should be under the care of specialists in internal medicine.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 74-year-old male. Two years ago my doctor discovered lung cancer and removed 40 percent of my right lung. A year and a half later, another doctor diagnosed me with multiple myeloma. He indicated it is not related to my lung cancer. I've always lived very carefully. How, therefore, could I have gotten myeloma?

DEAR READER: No one knows the cause of multiple myeloma, a form of cancer that affects plasma cells, a type of blood cell. Presumably, nothing you did (or didn't do) caused this cancer, which affects blood proteins and leads to anemia and kidney failure, among other consequences.

The good news: Chemotherapy is usually effective, with patients living many years in remission.

The fact that you have had two apparently unrelated cancers suggests an underlying abnormality in your immune system. Some experts believe that cancer cells grow when the body fails to identify such abnormal tissue and, therefore, cannot destroy it.

You must closely follow your doctor's instructions about how to monitor your myeloma (with blood tests) and what treatment is appropriate.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Viruses and Cancer."

If you like murder-mystery books that rattle along, you'll savor "The Bridge Team Murders" (#22.95, Granovetter Books, 216-371-5849), if you like bridge included as well, you'll be even happier. But if you like a credible and consistent plot, you won't enjoy the book at all.

The pivotal theme has Matthew Granovetter, who is both the author and the central character, trying to find the murderer of three members of the U.S. world championship bridge team. Along the way, he throws in some useful guidelines for international matchpoint team games. (It is the last of a trilogy, with the previous volumes concentrating on pair events and rubber bridge.)

The deals are advanced but instructive. The one in today's diagram is an interesting exercise in keeping communication with the dummy when you are declarer.

Playing in three no-trump with a spade lead, you have eight top tricks: three spades, three diamonds and two clubs. You can get the extra trick from clubs if they break 3-3, but that is against the odds. It is better to hope for a favorable diamond division. However, if the suit is 4-1 and you play off four rounds, you will have no hand entry left to cash the third spade trick.

The correct line of play is to win trick one in hand and cash the diamond ace (or queen). If everyone follows, play a spade to dummy's ace and then duck a diamond completely. Everything is under control.

However, when West discards on the diamond ace, you know that you must play for a 3-3 club split after all.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Jan. 12, 1983

Improvements in both your social and commercial life are indicated for the year ahead. Each will resonate off of one another in beneficial ways.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There's a chance you will be exposed to some type of enlightening information today and you'll know how to use it to your advantage. The secret to your success lies in acting while you are inspired. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are in a fortunate cycle for generating additional earnings or income from a second source. For best results, however, don't talk about your intentions prematurely.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're likely to be luckier today in partnership arrangements than you will be when acting independently of others. Ally yourself with people who share mutual interests.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something beneficial might develop today that could produce a big, unexpected plus for you in an area pertaining to your work or career. Be watchful for opportunities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An endeavor that you're involved in can be better for everyone concerned if you reorganize it a bit more tightly at this time. Haul in the slack.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your greatest successes today are likely to be in areas that relate to your business and financial affairs. You could do well in both at the same time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Decisions you make today could have far-reaching, favorable effects if they're handled properly. Weigh and balance each judgment with great care.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions in general look favorable for you today in situations where personal accumulation is involved, particularly if you are performing in a unique type of work or service.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to advance your personal interests today, bold measures could be required, as well as some degree of risk taking. You are not likely to use poor judgment in either instance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your greatest asset today is your ability to finalize to your satisfaction several situations that have been left dangling. Don't settle for less than you expect.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might have an opportunity to spend time with someone you don't get to see very often. This get-together could be both pleasurable and profitable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you have strong, material motivations today, it could enhance your probabilities for achieving your objectives. All you need is something tangible for a target.
