'Ghost' Haunting County Chief Many Say Rose Can't Fill Predecessor's Shoes

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Administrator T. Duncan Rose III may lose his $48,800-a-year job because of a "ghost."

It's a 6-foot 6-inch specter that has Rose on the ropes, and it's name is Roger Nelwender, former 'County Everything' — planner, director of development, executive assistant and administrator. He was Rose's immediate predecessor and his reputation is legend. Many county employees still hold him in something approaching awe.

To hear county commissioners and department heads talk about Seminole's accomplishments when Nelwender was at the helm during the decade that ended in December, 1982, one would think Nelwender was capable of instantly pulling solutions out of his back pocket when a problem arose.

Those memories might well be the embattled Rose's greatest problem. Whether he tries or not, he cannot be Roger Nelwender.

The real 39-year-old Nelwender said, however, that he has no intention of coming back to his old job. And if people think he is a ghost behind the scenes, he added, they should know he is a friendly ghost, somewhat akin to Casper. "I'm happy in what I'm doing," Nelwender said.

What he is doing is managing the planning and engineering firm of Post, Buckley, Schuh and Jernigan, Orlando, which does considerable work for the county. He said he left the county's employ not because he was mistreated or anything of that sort. It's just that "I needed something new, new challenges," he said.

"We were beginning the second go-round of problems that we had already taken care of once," Nelwender said.

He said he is often asked if he is coming back but "I have had no formal request." Although he is working in Orlando, he and his family still make their home in the Sanford area.

When Nelwender was county administrator, he had no authority to do anything without express permission of the county commission, according to an ordinance adopted in 1977 setting the job description for the post.

Former county commissioners Harry Kwiatkowski and Bob French, both in office in 1977 when Nelwender's job was upgraded from executive assistant to county administrator, said the ordinance gave no real power to the office holder.

And The Blind Shall See

Program Teaching Visually Impaired How To Live Again

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

For the first time in eight years, Sanford's blind residents are being taught skills needed to survive in everyday life without having to leave town for their 'education.'

The Center for Independence Training and Education (CITE), an outreach program of Valencia Community College, Orlando, has brought to town instructors and materials which have increased the independence of six visually impaired persons since the 15-week program began in May.

"It has lifted a lot of pressure off of me in so many ways," said 72-year-old Florence Lamer, whose vision has faded during the past two years, leaving her in total darkness.

"I was really depressed and I felt like life was almost over. Now I've learned that there are ways I can sew by hand. I have more confidence in trying to cook. They've taught us things about cooking, how to be careful and listen when something falls to kind of figure out where it is," Mrs. Lamer said.

Instructor Gary LeBlanc of Orlando said the program returned to Sanford at the request of the students. Until recently, not enough blind persons had asked for the training to warrant bringing the classes back to Sanford, but when the program started up again, 12 blind persons enrolled. One has since died and others dropped out because of illness, LeBlanc said.

The Florida Association of Blind Services, the state agency that provides the $3,000-per-student funding for the program, has been assisted in Sanford by the Federation of Senior Volunteers whose members transport students to class, and Florida Power and Light Co. which provides meeting space for the group on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons in its Sanford building on Myrtle Avenue.

But the students don't spend all their time in the classroom. An important part of the instruction they receive is how to make their way around the community with the aid of a cane, and they take to the streets for that.

Mrs. Lamer said she "just made it on my own," before enrolling in the free course. That meant sticking pretty close to home.

Cheshire Lashes Out At Police Who Spurned Him

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole-Brevard State Attorney Douglas Cheshire claims the reason he did not get the endorsement of the Seminole County Police Chiefs Association (PCA) is because the lawmen "are interested in promises rather than performance."

Cheshire said Friday that his opponent, Titusville attorney Norm Wolfinger, has promised the chiefs "a miracle cure for the criminal justice system" that he cannot deliver because of his lack of knowledge about the state attorney's role.

All six of the county's eight law enforcement chiefs voting Wednesday backed Wolfinger.

In claiming the PCA's backing, Wolfinger, a former assistant state attorney under Cheshire, said he has more experience than Cheshire, having prosecuted "hundreds of cases" in the last few years. He said Cheshire has not prosecuted "more than two a year since he's been in office."

Cheshire countered with his own contention that Wolfinger "has not prosecuted a case in 3 1/2 years ... unless he's moonlighting. He hasn't been in the courthouse 100 times in the last few years."

Another reason Cheshire said he did not get the association's endorsement was because of a grudge, which he declined to discuss, between himself and the association's head, Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning.

Manning said Thursday that Cheshire shows a "lack of interest" in the police chiefs and treats law enforcement in Seminole County like a "step-child."

"There has no doubt been a certain amount of alienation recently," Cheshire said. But that, he said, is because "a man cannot serve two masters ... police chiefs and the citizens."

Cheshire called Manning "inept" and said Manning is backing Wolfinger because he (Cheshire) refuses to "sweep under the rug" allegations made against some law enforcement agencies. Cheshire would not comment on the nature of those allegations.

While the chiefs apparently want to oust him, Cheshire said he has taken no action against them even though he said there is a growing level of "incompetency" in Seminole County law enforcement.

"Me and my staff would like to see a few police chiefs replaced, but they don't work for us," he said. "They are sworn to serve the people just like we are."

Cheshire said he will not let controversy between himself, the police chiefs and Wolfinger interfere with his job as state attorney.

"We're not about to let this 'popularity contest' spill over into our work product," Cheshire said.

Herald Sports Writer

FORT MYERS — The Altamonte Springs Senior League All-Stars overcame a 6-4 deficit with six runs in the bottom of the sixth inning en route to a 10-6 victory over Belmont Heights for the Little League Baseball Senior State Championship Friday night.

The Senior League All-Stars join the Altamonte Springs National All-Stars as 1984 state champions. The Senior League All-Stars (14 and 15-year-olds) will hit the road again Sunday as they travel to Coral Springs for the Southern Region Tournament which begins on Monday.

The Altamonte Nationals (12-year-olds) travel to St. Petersburg for the Southern Region Tournament beginning Monday, Aug. 13. The winners of the Southern Region tournaments times prior to this year's state tournament and Letterio was the manager for all four.

Altamonte lost its first game of the tournament, but fought its way back through the loser's bracket for a meeting with Belmont Heights on Thursday night. Mike Schmitt's pitching and batting heroics lifted Altamonte to a 2-0 victory on Thursday, setting up a second deciding game between the two rivals on Friday.

Mary Lou Wins Hearts And Olympic Gold

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mary Lou Retton, a 92-pound dynamo, won the hearts of America with a prime-time performance that brought the United States its first gold medal ever in women's gymnastics and pushed the U.S. medal count to 52.

Millions watched on television as Retton, a 16-year-old out of Fairmont, W.Va. became the first gold medalist in the women's all-around from a non-Communist country with perfect performances in the vault and floor exercise. Track star Carl Lewis made his long-awaited Olympic debut

IN BRIEF

Reagan To Throw Another Punch In Tax Increase Feud

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan hoped to gain the upper hand today in a running feud with Walter Mondale by promising to bring huge deficits under control in a second term without resorting to tax increases.

White House officials said Reagan would use his weekly radio address — five minutes of air time purchased by his campaign committee — to rebut his Democratic challenger's charge that whoever wins in November will be forced to raise taxes next year.

While Reagan was not expected to mention Mondale by name, a planned reference to "the Democratic nominee" made clear his intent to answer the allegation he has a "secret plan" to raise taxes if re-elected.

In addition to promising no increase in personal income taxes, Reagan was prepared to threaten to veto any deficit-cutting measure that would increase personal tax rates, the officials said.

Tax rates have dropped 25 percent since Reagan took office and will be indexed as a hedge against inflation beginning Jan. 1.

Schools Swap Kids For Sex

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In a startling disclosure, attorneys claimed children at the McMartin Pre-School were swapped with those from another nearby nursery school for sexual and physical abuse over a five-year period.

The other school, the Manhattan Ranch, was temporarily closed Thursday by the state Department of Social Services.

A teenage teacher's aide at the Manhattan Ranch school was charged last week with molesting two children, but police say no other employees there have been arrested.

The McMartin School, about a mile away and also in Manhattan Beach, was closed earlier this year and the elderly owner and six former teachers charged with more than 200 counts of child molestation for allegedly sexually molesting 42 children.

Thirty other uncharged suspects in the McMartin case are also being investigated.

Williams Lands TV Role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Vanessa Williams, who surrendered her Miss America crown in a cloud of controversy last month because nude pictures of her with another woman were published in a sex magazine, has landed her first television appearance since losing her crown.

An NBC spokesman announced Friday that Miss Williams will play a guest role in "Partners in Crime," a new hour-long detective drama starring Lonnie Anderson and Linda Carter.

She will portray a rock singer who hires the female detectives to protect her from an overly aggressive fan.

The episode, titled "Celebrity," is expected to air in the fall.

Dow Soars On Second Day Of Record Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones average soared to a six-month high Friday but the big news in Wall Street's unprecedented rally was a record 236.57 million shares were traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

The bond market, which has been engaged in a rally for the past several weeks, kept perking along to set the pace for stocks in what was the climax of the biggest week in history.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which soared 31.47 Thursday, climbed 30 to 1,202.08 Friday, the highest level since it closed at 1,213.88 on Feb. 2. The gain was the largest since it soared 36.43 on Nov. 30, 1982.

The closely watched average of 30 blue-chip stocks gained a record 87.46 for the week overall, topping the previous mark of 81.24 in the period which ended Aug. 20, 1982, the first week of the bull market of the 1980s.

It has climbed 115.51 in the eight sessions since it hit a 17-month low of 1,086.57 on July 24.

The NYSE index spurted 2.46 to 93.23 and the price of an average share increased 84 cents. The paper value of all NYSE-listed issues increased by $37.9 billion. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 4.36 to 182.35. Advances routed declines by a 14-3 margin.

The Big Board volume of 236,570,000 shares was up from Thursday's previous record 172,830,000 shares.

A record 4,702 block trades of 10,000 shares or more were handled — up from Thursday's 3,579 — as cash-laden institutions bought stocks in trades of 250,000 to 500,000 shares to avoid being left out of a major market move.

There were a total of 101,651 transactions handled on the NYSE, which was far short of the record 107,601 on October 13, 1982. The Big Board's computer system handled the day without a hitch.

"The market is telling us the economy recovery is sustainable at a more moderate pace. That interest rates may in fact decline and certainly will go no higher," said Newton Zinder of E.F. Hutton.

The Federal Reserve helped trigger the explosion with its report late Thursday that the nation's money supply dropped an unexpected $1.7 billion in the latest period.

The decrease took pressure off of interest rates and produced a rally in the bond market, which has been in a superheated charge the past week with prices climbing $75 per $1,000 Treasury issues.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 275,304,770 shares, up from 197,496,520 Thursday.

Men Arrested In Child-Sex Cases

Two Sanford men have been arrested for sexual battery of a child in separate incidents.

STOLEN CAR ARRESTS
An Altamonte Springs policeman, who asked two men what they had been doing in a car parked at the Holiday Inn, 230 Wymore Road, which they got out of when the officer approached, were charged with grand theft auto after the lawman ran a check on the car and determined it was stolen.

The men reportedly told the officer that they were just talking in the car, but when neither could produce identification when the policeman requested it he checked the registration of the car and found it had been stolen in Charleston, S.C.

Douglas Alan Grace, 20, and Thomas Anthony Barry, 21, both of Charleston, S.C., were arrested at 11:04 p.m. Thursday. They were being held in lieu of $5,000 bond each.

Oviedo Doctor Faces Disciplinary Hearing

An Oviedo doctor is scheduled to appear before the state Board of Medical Examiners today for practicing medicine on an improper temporary permit, writing excessive prescriptions to a patient, and keeping improper medical records.

Dr. David Corey, of 71 S. Central Ave., is scheduled to appear at a formal hearing in Tampa, according to Pat Byrd of the Department of Professional Regulation.

A formal hearing is held when facts in the case are disputed, she said.

Corey is accused of practicing with a temporary license in an area where he needs a permanent license, prescribing excessive drugs to a patient and drugs in inappropriate combinations, and keeping improper medical records.

Corey could not be reached this week. The telephone to his office had been disconnected. He is listed as a physician at the Winter Park Hospital but hospital spokesmen said the hospital only has his phone number.

Ms. Byrd said Corey was licensed to practice medicine and surgery in 1974 if he restricted his practice to Oviedo, an area where there was a critical medical need, she said.

A medical need is a designation by federal health officials indicating that there is a lack of medical care in the area, according to Diane Hull, also of the Department of Professional Regulation.

Hull said a temporary license can be issued to a doctor to practice in an area of need without the physician going through normal licensing procedures and getting a Florida Medical License. It is a licensing procedure sometimes used with out-of-state doctors who move here, she said.

Oviedo is no longer designated an area of critical need, Ms. Byrd said. She could not state when the special status ended.

Corey is charged with prescribing the controlled substances in excess and in inappropriate combinations to Connie Hamby between Nov. 12, 1982 and March 1983. The Department of Professional Regulation also maintains that Corey kept inappropriate medical records.

According to Ms. Byrd, Corey could have his license revoked or suspended, have his practice restricted, be fined, reprimanded, placed on probation, or any other action the board deems appropriate.

Oil Spill Blackens Texas Beaches

GALVESTON, Texas (UPI) — Thick globs of foul-smelling oil dumped by a ruptured tanker accumulated on Texas beaches today, and authorities warned "we're not out of the storm yet."

Ribbons of black foul-smelling crude hit the beaches Friday night and authorities began clean-up operations with bulldozers at first light today.

"Once the ocean gives it up, we don't want to give it back," said Coast Guard Lt. Larry Clark.

One slick, stretching a mile long and 2 to 3 feet wide, swept ashore on Galveston Island between East Beach and Stewart Beach, covering more than half the area with the taffy-thick crude, the Coast Guard said.

Another swath covered a 2-mile length of beach on the western end of Galveston Island and a mile long stretch of Crystal Beach fronting vacation homes was covered by a 10-yard-wide ribbon. The beach is just east of Galveston on the Bolivar Peninsula.

Clark said the oil was not from the main body of the spill which hovered about 3 miles offshore. It was not known when the bulk of the slick would strike land, authorities said.

"You won't see a carpet of oil stretching horizon to horizon," Clark said. "It'll be a ribbon there and a pancake here."

The 1.28 million-gallon spill leaked from the British tanker Alvenus Monday when it ran aground southeast of Port Arthur.

"Tar balls" — globs of oil mixed with sediment during five days of floating in the Gulf — began coming ashore at midday Friday near High Island, 30 miles up the coast from Galveston.

The main concentration of oil skipped the opening to Galveston Bay, where wetlands serve as hatcheries for the shrimp and fishing industry. Clark said authorities planned to stretch a series of booms across the half-mile entry to the bay if the slick returned.

"We're not out of the storm yet," said

Dennis Palafox, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department pollution surveillance program leader.

Dr. Roy Hann, of Texas A&M Oil Spill Technical Assistance Team, piloted a boat into the slick Friday and said the craft had difficulty breaking through heavier portions of the black spill.

Dr. Larry McKinney, also with Texas A&M, said rather than hitting in one massive wave, the spill probably would deposit globs along the coast for several weeks.

"What generally happens is that pieces break off from the main slick, mix with sand, become heavy and sink. Then they are kicked up periodically by currents and wash on to shore," he said.

Should the oil spread across Galveston's Gulf beaches the impact on tourism could be $3 million a day, said Jack Bushong, director of the Galveston Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Feather Faces Foreclosure, Order To Pay Architect $9,751

Seminole County Commissioner Robert "Bud" Feather will be ordered by a Brevard County judge to pay a two-year old $9,751.05 bill to a Sanford architect.

In a separate incident, a company has filed a foreclosure notice against Feather's Altamonte Springs home, alleging the Seminole County commissioner owes $5,000 in mortgage payments and $124,800 in principal.

County Judge Roger Dykes said Thursday he will order Feather to pay Eoghan N. Kelley for architectural services rendered in 1982 when Feather was starting plans to build a health center in Sanford.

Dykes said he has notified Feather's and Kelley's attorneys of the decision but that the decision is only a partial judgement in the case and will not be official until he files the paperwork. He said he did not know when the case would be officially resolved.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for Feather's $3 million complex, known as Life Care Center, were held last week at an 8-acre site on Fulton Street.

According to the civil suit, Kelley made an oral contract with Feather on May 10, 1982, to provide his services.

Kelley said he reviewed the projected project, evaluated it, computed budget requirements, planned a production program, estimated the cost of project, and provided plans, drawings and sketches.

When Feather did not pay the bill, Kelley filed a lien against Feather's property on Sept. 16, 1982.

Because the civil suit was a lien against property to be improved rather than a simple collection of a bill, Dykes said, there are some issues about the suit to be resolved.

He said when a person who has had a lien put against them and been ordered to pay the bill, they usually have a set amount of time to pay up before the court sells the property to satisfy the bill. He said he expects Feather to request more time than the usual 30 to 40 days to pay the bill.

Dykes also said he had not yet decided on who will pay the attorney's fees and how much. Attorney fees in the $10,000 case are reportedly $21,000.

In a separate case, Rinker

Materials Corp. has filed a foreclosure suit against Feather for backpayments and principal on a home he owns in Altamonte Springs.

According to the court records, Feather owed the mortgage to a Rinker employee and when the company moved the employee, it assumed the mortgage.

The complaint states that Feather is about $5,000 behind in his monthly mortgage payments of $1,478.72. The company is asking that Feather pay the mortgage payments — which carry a 14 percent interest rate — and the principal amount due of $124,800.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Over $3 Million In Bogus Bills Seized; Six Arrested

TAMPA (UPI) — Six people have been arrested and more than $3 million in "fair quality" counterfeit $20, $50 and $100 bills seized in two locations in Florida in the past 2 1/2 weeks, the Secret Service announced Friday.

Agents said $1.8 million in counterfeit money was found in an orange grove near Lakeland, and Polk County deputies said it was near Clubhouse Road, just north of Highlands City, a small community eight miles southeast of Lakeland.

The counterfeit bills were stuffed in plastic bags and inserted in 3-foot sections of 4-inch-wide PVC pipe before it was buried.

The second seizure of $1.5 million was made in the Jacksonville area, agents said.

Tampa Secret Service agent Richard Force said the counterfeit bills were printed on the property of an auto sales firm in Lakeland and said the printing press, plate maker and paper cutter were recovered from a rental storage unit in Lakeland.

German Spy Gets 15 Years

TAMPA (UPI) — Convicted espionage agent Ernst Ludwick Wolfgang Forbrich denied Friday he intended to do anything to harm the United States, and his brother told a federal judge an impassioned story of how Forbrich grew up in an atmosphere where everything had to be done secretly.

But U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman was not swayed by the comments and sentenced the West German auto mechanic to 15 years in federal prison. Forbrich, 43, will be eligible for parole in five years.

He was convicted June 29 of buying a classified military document from an undercover FBI agent, and with trying to deliver it to East German agents.

Forbrich denied being an espionage agent and said he was in Florida on vacation when he was arrested at a Clearwater Beach motel March 19, moments after giving the agent $500 and walking out of the room with the document.

Blackburn Sentence Reduced

ORLANDO — Because an aging Central Florida crime figure has cooperated from his prison cell with federal and state enforcement authorities, his 20-year sentence for trafficking in cocaine has been reduced to 17 years probation, making him eligible for parole in February.

Harlan "The Colonel" Blackburn, 65, has been serving two concurrent sentences, 20 years for cocaine trafficking and 22 years for violating federal gambling and income tax evasion laws. He is eligible for parole Feb. 23 on the federal charges.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Turner said Blackburn has been cooperative with authorities in reference to drug trafficking, testifying in federal court against former associates in the drug dealing business.

Blackburn, who was serving his sentence at a federal prison in Alabama, was moved to the Seminole County jail pending the outcome of his sentence reduction hearing. He was being held there early today.

Drug Smugglers Followed North

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — The U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency, following drug smugglers and manufacturers in a northward migration, has opened a three-agent office in Gainesville.

Peter Gruden, head of DEA operations in Florida and the Caribbean, said the drug trade has branched out of its traditional stronghold in south Florida as drug enforcement there becomes more energetic.

A special focus of the Gainesville bureau will be investigation of suspected smuggling through gulf-coast communities in Dixie, Taylor and Levy counties. Gruden said the DEA knows very little about the extent of maritime smuggling in the area. The bureau also will be responsible for eight other north Florida counties.

Cycle, Continental Collide

Emergency medical technicians load motorcyclist Lawrence Hagan, 34, of Sanford, onto a stretcher for transportation to Central Florida Regional Hospital following an accident in Sanford Friday just after noon. Hagan was listed in critical condition today in the intensive care unit at CFRH. According to eye witnesses, Hagan was driving north on U.S. Highway 17-92 at 5th Street when a southbound car turned left onto 5th Street, pulling into his path. Hagan struck the two-door white Lincoln Continental just behind the passenger's door, flew over the vehicle and landed head first on the cement curb at the northeast corner of 5th Street, witnesses said. Charges are pending against the driver of the car, Alvin Wayne Thomas, 30, of 1100 W. 16th St., Sanford, who was not injured.

Murder Trial Set To Begin

The trial of an Altamonte Springs woman charged with the first degree murder of her husband has been scheduled to begin Monday.

Sammy Husted, 26, of 1131 Pine St., is charged with the shotgun killing of her husband Joseph Husted, 29, on Nov. 9.

Jury selection is scheduled to begin Monday for the trial which is expected to last five days. Circuit Judge S. Vernon Mize Jr. is to hear the case.

Mrs. Husted, seven-months pregnant when her husband died, was not arrested after the shooting but did surrender herself to authorities Dec. 2 after a grand jury indicted her on the first degree murder charge. She was released from jail within a day on a $25,000 bond.

According to investigators, Husted, who died instantly, was shot through the left eye with a blast from a 16-gauge shotgun while the couple were alone in the home.

When deputies arrived at the home at 2:44 p.m., paramedics were on the scene. Mrs. Husted was taken to Florida Hospital — Altamonte Springs where she was treated for shock and released, according to court records.

The couple's children, and 8-year-old son and a 6-year-old daughter, arrived home shortly after the shooting and were taken to the home of a relative, according to investigators.

Mrs. Husted's attorney, Clifton Curry said the shooting was accidental. He said Husted, a landscaper, had a history of abusing his wife and that Mrs. Husted was putting the gun away when it was hit and fired. He said the defense will contend that she feared for her life and the safety of her unborn child.

Assistant State Attorney Mike Peacock said that the shooting occurred during an argument between the couple and investigators believe that Husted was shot either as he sat at or was getting up from the dining room table. Peacock said that would indicate premeditation.

The state attorney alleges that Mrs. Husted was angry with her husband because he and two other men had offered his niece money to have sex. Mrs. Husted allegedly told the niece that she would get her gun and wait for her husband to come home, Peacock said.

July Tops For Automakers

DETROIT (UPI) — July was the best month of the year for U.S. automakers who turned in an 18.6 percent increase, but import automakers saw sales drop 4.4 percent due to shortages caused by the German metal workers strike.

The six major U.S. firms — General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp., American Motors Corp., Volkswagen of America and American Honda — reported July sales Friday of 684,112, compared to 576,864 for June.

The sales figures translated to an annual rate for the month of 8.8 million vehicles — beating the previous 1984 high of 8.6 million set in May. Last year's July annual rate was 7.5 million.

Import sales in July were an estimated 203,000, compared to 212,244 the month before. This translated to a 22.9 percent share of a total July car market of 887,112. Total industry sales for July were up 12.4 percent.

For the final 10 days of the month, U.S. firms sold 271,260 cars, up 15.7 percent from 234,385. This translated to an annual rate of 8.4 million.

Sales in the first seven months of 1984 for U.S. firms were 4,930,455, up 25.3 percent from 3,911,890.

Buckle Up For Safety

The mandatory air bag, like the proverbial bad penny, keeps turning up just as we thought that common sense, freedom of choice and the guiding hand of the marketplace would finally prevail. Not so, or at least not yet.

Washington bureaucrats, safety crusaders and some insurance companies have been trying for more than a decade to buy us all one of these controversial safety features; not with their money, to be sure, but with our own, and without regard to whether we wanted exploding gas bags planted in our cars' steering wheels and dash panels.

The Reagan administration sought to put an end to this ill-advised coercion by rescinding a Carter administration directive that would have required air bags in new cars beginning in 1982. Proponents of air bags filed suit and, in time, persuaded the Supreme Court to order an administrative review of the case for air bags or some other form of "passive restraint."

The result of this review was Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole's recent decision mandating air bags or automatic seat belts within five years unless states containing two-thirds of the U.S. population pass mandatory seat belt use laws first. If this is to be the final option — more litigation is assured — we would vote, however unenthusiastically, for requiring everybody to buckle up.

First, the seat-and-shoulder belt combinations long since required in all new cars sold in the United States cost the consumer about one-tenth or less what an air bag system for front and back seat occupants would likely add to the price of a new car. Which is to say about $40 for belts as opposed to perhaps $400, or more, for air bags.

More importantly, the Department of Transportation's own studies show that the lap-and-shoulder belt combination is more effective overall than the air bag in preventing or minimizing injuries. The air bag protects only in head-on collisions, and then only for the first impact. Belts protect in collisions from all angles, for multiple and successive impacts, and in rollovers.

In an ideal world, virtually everyone would buckle up voluntarily and anyone who wanted whatever additional protection air bags might offer would be free to purchase them. In the imperfect world we live in, the choice seems to be coming down to mandatory air bags or automatic seat belts, or state laws making it a misdemeanor not to employ the belt systems already installed in cars.

Air bags would be expensive and imperfect. Automatic seat belts would be cumbersome, and cost twice as much as the present belt systems. That leaves mandatory seat belt laws as the least objectionable choice.

Protecting Police

Applause for the Thurmond-Brooks bill that would limit the manufacture and sale of armor-piercing bullets, called "cop-killers" because they can penetrate the protective vests worn by policemen. After all, the bipartisan measure is supported by the Reagan administration, numerous law enforcement organizations and the National Rifle Association. But this euphoria is misplaced. The bill does little more than codify existing arrangements that still put police officers at risk from these particular bullets.

The manufacture of armor-piercing bullets is not restricted by law. Instead, there is an ineffective gentlemen's agreement among manufacturers and the Treasury Department to limit the sale of these bullets to police, U.S. military forces and foreign governments.

Several experts believe it would be easy for manufacturers to circumvent the bill's prohibitions.

Even though some manufacturers already limit the sale of armor-piercing bullets, clearly a specific federal law is required to prohibit their sale altogether. Congress and the Reagan administration should press for tougher legislation that really could protect law enforcement officers from bullets being purchased mostly to "kill cops."

BERRY'S WORLD

By Doris Dietrich

What's so bad about being a woman and enjoying the things that women usually do?

Dr. James Dobson of California, psychologist, author and lecturer on family issues, says in one of his famous films that "women really need women."

Dr. Dobson goes on to explain that the old-fashioned quilting bees and other women's gatherings were clearing houses for women to vent their opinions and discuss matters personal to women only. Just as men have always had their "stags" and "smokers," women need their private little gatherings, too, he stresses. If nothing else — to talk about men.

And now, there's talk of the Jaycees Men and Women merging. For 65 years, the Jaycees has been strictly for men and there are some women who do not want to belong to a men's organization, according to Sherry Kitzer of Sanford, national vice president of the Jaycee Women.

One of the strong issues against the merger is that women will lose their leadership. For the most part, the Jaycee Women do not want the merger, according to a national meeting last week when Jaycee Women from 44 states voted against the proposal.

So be it. If women want to join fraternal groups and men want to cross the threshold into female gatherings, let them fight it out. Just leave me out. I have no desire to join a men's group, per se, or any other group, for that matter, that does not have meaning for a good cause.

Ann Briason, president of the Woman's Club of Sanford, just "can't see" men joining the club. "It's ridiculous," she says. "It's a women's club and the presence of men would make the members feel uncomfortable. There are needs for all organizations — women's, men's and mixed," she stressed.

On the other hand, the South Seminole Toastmistress Club has at least one male member.

Some women don't have the slightest desire to become world leaders or any leaders except in their own homes which they lead with love, compassion and maybe a hickory stick.

From the year one, women have proven they have equal brain power to men. It's the brawn power they lack to tackle strenuous jobs. Just as men can design women's fashions, dress hair and the like, women can be doctors, lawyers, merchants and thieves. On the local front, take County Attorney Nikki Clayton, Dr. Maria Perez and accountant Val Colbert.

In this month's Reader's Digest, Lisa Wilson Strick admits to doing a lot of things including playing the piano, singing and drawing — rather badly. She says, "But unfortunately, doing things badly has gone out of style. It used to be a mark of class if a lady or gentleman sang a little, painted a little, or played the violin a little." She said she does one or two things well, and that's enough for anybody. No mention was made of leadership, power struggle or constitutional rights. Just let me be me, in other words.

The apparently very secure writer asks, "What's so bad about being so-so?"

Nothing. Not one single thing.

Good News, Bad News

There's good news and bad news about black voter registration in the South.

The good news is that voter registration among blacks in every Southern state has increased over the past four years. The increases range from a low of 11,000 new registrants in South Carolina to a high of 132,000 in Alabama.

These figures, which appear in Focus, the monthly publication of the Joint Center for Political Studies, are drawn from the Atlanta-based Voter Education Project and the May 1984 American Political Report.

The bad news is that although the four-year registration drive has shown a sizable increase (695,000), it has so far fallen short of the two million new voters the Jesse Jackson campaign and other efforts had expected to sign up by Election Day.

Besides the Alabama and South Carolina gains, other increases include 25,000 new black voters in Arkansas; 28,000 in Florida; 62,000 in Georgia; 70,000 in Louisiana; 78,000 in Mississippi; 125,000 in North Carolina; 48,000 in Tennessee; 100,000 in Texas; and 18,000 in Virginia.

And these figures don't include several thousand new black voters registered in drives in the East, Midwest and West.

Although these figures won't reach the two million mark, they do show a continuation of a trend that began in 1978: Blacks are demonstrating a greater inclination than whites to register and vote.

The trend was apparent in the 1980 elections, despite a relatively poor turnout by blacks. Remember, it was the percentage of increase that grew, and from a low starting point.

That increase continued in 1982 — more blacks than whites voting by percentage than two years before — and exploded in 1983 with mayoral races won by blacks in Chicago, Philadelphia, and Charlotte, N.C.

It was this increase that Jackson tapped into as he began to register new voters last year. Traditional groups such as the NAACP continued their year-round efforts, and together they produced the increases reported by the Joint Center last month.

There's also bad news for some in that report.

Throughout the South, white voter registration decreased by 227,000 between 1980 and 1984.

U.S.S.R. Supplying Arms To Iran

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration's tilt toward Iraq in the 4-year-old Persian Gulf war may have driven Iran into the Kremlin's iron embrace.

More than a month ago, I reported that the Soviets were playing both ends against the middle in the Iraq-Iranian conflict. According to intelligence sources, they sought to position themselves to play the "honest broker" and to ensure that any eventual peace settlement would be to their advantage.

The Soviets pursued a two-faced policy, alternately aiding Iran, then Iraq, now Iran again. There is reason to believe the covert U.S. support of Iraq was the catalyst that brought Iran and Russia together again. At least this much is certain: The Kremlin has indirectly resumed large-scale military aid to Iran.

Intelligence sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado that the Iranians have been getting major arms shipments from such Soviet-

JEFFREY HART

A Good Idea ...

The philosopher Sidney Hook has come up with an idea that is both new and sound, and the more I reflect upon it the more necessary it seems to me that we move on it. He advanced the idea in his recent Jefferson Award address in Washington, D.C., and the address is published in the July issue of Commentary magazine under the title "Education in Defense of a Free Society."

Hook has noticed, as has everyone else, that American students at every level possess remarkably little historical knowledge about the history of free institutions, let alone about the political theory that gave rise to them, and he believes, correctly, that the preservation of such free institutions requires such understanding. He has an idea concerning how to go about it. I quote his relevant paragraph.

"What then must be done? Not long ago our President proposed and our Congress approved the organization of a National Endowment for Democracy to encourage the spread of democratic forces abroad. As welcome as such a program is, I submit that it is even more necessary to organize a National Endowment for Democracy at home. The first goal of such an endowment would be to develop programs to study the basic elements of a free society, and suggest them as required parts of instruction on every educational level.

"Today it is widely agreed that fundamental educational reforms are needed to improve the levels of skill and literacy of American students so that they may cope with the present and future problems arising from multiple changes in our complex world. Agreeing with this proposition, I am suggesting that it is just as important to sharpen the students' understanding of a free society, its responsibilities and opportunities, the burdens and dangers it faces. Instead of relying primarily on the sciences and humanities to inspire loyalty to the processes of self-government, we should seek to develop that loyalty direct through honest inquiry into the functioning of a democratic community, by learning its history, celebrating its heroes, and noting its achievements. Integral to the inquiry would be the intensive study of the theory and practice of contemporary totalitarian societies, especially the fate of human rights in those areas where Communism has triumphed."

Now Congress, after initially approving the proposed National Endowment for Democracy, has blocked the idea, at least temporarily. And this gives us a chance to rethink the whole thing along the lines proposed by Hook. That National Endowment was meant to spread democracy abroad, a desirable goal but very tricky in its application, and we probably do not need enthusiasts for free institutions irritating the inhabitants of Bolivia or Pakistan. But, as Hook says, an Endowment for Democracy is "more necessary" at home.

Such an Endowment could set itself the task of developing curricula for every level of education so that students would know the history of free institutions and the effort to achieve and sustain them in the United States. From the simpler and more narrative treatment of the subject in early grades, students could move on to more philosophical and subtle considerations later on.

Are You Listening Ladies?

Here are four women you may recognize. Each wants to see herself in a certain way, yet each allows her view to be limited by her own self-defeating behavior.

— Linda is 45 and the mother of three teens. She wants to think of herself as a capable woman, yet she leaves all responsibility for the car to her husband. She says: "I don't know anything about oil changes or rotating tires. I don't even know how to pump gas."

— Tracy, 22, is an actress of rare ability who dreams of a Broadway career. But she stays in her Midwestern town, starring in community theater productions. She wonders, "Maybe I'm not good enough to make it in New York."

— Sue's husband often comes home drunk and beats her or the children. She knows that getting a job would be a first step toward escape, yet she says: "My husband gets furious at the thought of my working. Besides — I don't even know how to type."

— Jean had looked forward to the trip she and her husband and 12-year-old daughter were to take to the Grand Canyon. When her husband was unexpectedly called elsewhere, he urged her to go anyhow. But she didn't. "It frightens me to travel without him," she admits. "I guess that's the way I am."

What happens to these women? The fortunate ones turn up in a workshop to learn how to curb their self-defeating behavior. It is led by a woman who knows and understands the desire.

She is Vonda Long, a University of New Mexico professor in the department of counselor education.

In summarizing the course, she says: "First, I tell the women they must decide in what ways they want to change. Then they have to be able to see what they're doing what prevents that."

"A woman," she explains, "who wants to be more outgoing has to see that her habit of staying home and watching TV is part of the problem. A woman who wants to feel more confident in dealing with the unexpected can't be afraid to travel alone. A woman who wants to be sure of her talent can't let risk scare her, even if the risk may result in rejection or failure."

"Hanging back, oftentimes in the protection of a man, can stifle our growth and our potential. It makes us feel less capable and less good about ourselves."

Ms. Long helps women overcome these inhibiting habits.

ministration into supplying him with U.S. Stinger missiles.

The president's advisers are split over how to respond to the Soviet-Jordanian arms negotiations. Some want to offer Hussein U.S. missiles to keep him out of the Kremlin's clutches. Others — presumably mindful of what such a decision would cost Reagan in an election year — believe Hussein is only bluffing. They recommend doing nothing.

RACIAL REVISIONISM: Buried in an obscure management manual recently distributed throughout the Social Security Administration is a startling bit of information: President Eisenhower was black. So were Ludwig van Beethoven and Josef Haydn.

The chapter containing these amazing disclosures is based on a presentation by Dr. Edwin Nichols, head of the staff college at the National Institute of Mental Health.

What Newspapers Across The Nation Are Saying

Olympics Hopelessly Compromised By Politics

By United Press International
Portland (Maine) Press Herald
If anyone still doubts that the Olympic Games have become hopelessly compromised by politics, just consider the decision to deny press credentials to South African journalists.

By what right or standard does the International Olympic Committee decide which journalists may or may not cover a public event held on American soil?

South African athletes have been barred from competing in the Olympics since 1968 because of their nation's apartheid policies. That, in itself, is a questionable policy, based as it is strictly upon political rather than athletic considerations. But to bar the press of South Africa — including newspapers which openly oppose apartheid — makes no sense at all.

Reporters from the Soviet Union and other communist nations boycotting the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles have been fully accredited to cover the games.

Surely there is a limit to the politization of the Olympics. Surely the political line must stop — if there is to be such a line at all — at the restriction of spectators, professional or otherwise.

Rutland (Vt.) Daily Herald
When General Motors, Ford and Chrysler reported record combined profits of $6.3 billion for 1983, there was speculation that the United Auto Workers union would press for hefty wage increases in this summer's contract talks, which have begun at GM and Ford. In fact, the preliminary stories ... of the talks sounded uniformly gloomy, with some analysts saying a walkout was almost inevitable ...

However, it appears that the UAW plans to concentrate on job security in the negotiations. UAW President Owen Bieber has been telling local union officials that a settlement calling for a large wage and benefit improvements would thwart the U.S. auto industry's campaign to become more competitive with Japanese and German producers. Labor costs are about $8 an hour higher per worker in this country than in Japan.

... While the UAW has amassed a strike fund in the neighborhood of $560 million, its leaders recognize that a walkout in one of the nation's key industries could damage the Democratic Party's chances of recapturing the White House in November. Altogether, it looks like a long autumn of negotiations.

Boston Globe
Now comes the hard part. The rescue of Continental Illinois, once of the nation's seventh largest bank, has bought time for that institution and avoided immediate chaos in the industry. It has not guaranteed the success of the new corporate structure — 80 percent owned by a federal agency. Neither has it solved the deeper problems confronting all major commercial banks in the worldwide flow of money.

The package worked out by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has a reasonable chance of allowing the bank to emerge in a new and successful form. That is a matter of consequence primarily to stockholders, who have already taken a severe beating from the inability of the bank's management to cope with its problems. The management is being replaced with a leadership team that has not only talent but also backgrounds appropriate to the bank's two major problem areas: Energy and international transactions.

The Newport (R.I.) Daily News
So what is the big deal about, anyway? Long after women have been accepted in top leadership roles in other countries, Americans speak in excited tones about a major party choosing a woman for the second spot on the ticket.

What seems so ironic to pundits and others here is that American women otherwise are apparently the freest in the world, the ones with the most opportunities, the ones who are less likely than their sisters anywhere else in the world to be locked into what Hitler called church, kitchen and children.

How can we square the freedom of American women with the fact that they are largely denied power, especially political power? And yet, who can deny that American women of brains and talent existed in the earliest days of the Republic and were well known to have existed then?

Do not our history books tell us of Abigail Adams' reminder to John that the women of the Colonies also risked all to get out from under George III's yoke?

Awaiting A Heart Transplant...

Editor's Note: The following is an open letter from Lake Mary's Jackie Quick, awaiting a heart transplant operation in Houston, to those who have helped raise money for her operation, expected to cost about $150,000. About $5,300 has been raised so far, according to The Jackie Quick Heart Fund, 180 Airport Blvd., Sanford. A benefit softball tournament was scheduled for this weekend.

Dear good friends,
It is so hard to express my heartfelt thanks for everything you are doing for me. Your cards, letters, flowers, gifts and donations toward my new heart are so deeply appreciated!

I look forward anxiously to the transplant surgery, and with all your concern and prayers I feel as secure as one can. Thank you so much for remembering me in your prayers.

Max keeps us informed of your concern and we've tried to keep him up-to-date on things here. I'll give you a short run-down on what's happened so far.

After a bout with congestive heart failure in May, an Orlando cardiologist prescribed a heart catheterization. Results confirmed there was a lot of blockage in the heart which was inoperable because the muscle itself is only 20% effective due to 2 or 3 silent heart attacks. I am diabetic, and many diabetics do not experience pain during an attack.

Mr. Eddie Goldberg, our Bowl America Company President, highly recommended that we get a second opinion from Dr. Denton Cooley of the Texas Heart Institute. His teams are world famous and have performed heart surgery on numerous patients who were disapproved for surgery by their local doctors. Due to more and more pain, shortness of breath and very hard and rapid beats, heart transplant is the only hope I have to recover and live a normal and productive life again.

Roger and I made the decision (a real tough one) to go for it. Since then, I've had countless tests performed to make sure I'm a qualified recipient for a new heart. The results were submitted to a medical review board last week, and I was accepted pending a two week test to see if my body will tolerate an antibiotic called INH which is used to fight dormant germs while taking the anti-rejection drug cyclosporine after transplant.

And that's where we are right now. The doctors have controlled the episodes with medicine so I am resting comfortably. In about 2 more weeks the INH testing will be complete, and if successful, I will be put on the waiting list for a new heart. The waiting period has been from 4 days to 6 or seven weeks.

Stories Won't Hurt Christian Brotherhood

In reference to the "explosion" by John Charles Alken, I simply must put in my two-cents worth of opinion.

I heartily agree with John Charles that the first article that appeared in your paper concerning Rev. Danielak was a bit bizarre but as for the picture of his ordination and accompanying article I see no fault to find.

I feel sure that no one was gloating over the fact that he has chosen to become a Protestant but that they are very proud to know he has found (to quote John Charles) "his happiness/love" choosing the Presbyterian Church to further his religious teaching.

I feel Reverend Danielak is to be commended on his decision to remain in the clergy. He has so much to offer the church.

I honestly do not believe that the articles will have any adverse bearing on the Christian Brotherhood between the Catholic Church and other churches in Sanford or elsewhere.

I personally know very little about Rev. Danielak but the few times I have talked with him he strikes me as a sincere, straightforward person whose one aim in life is to further the Kingdom of God. My sincerest prayers are for his success and well-being.

Growing Older

U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper

Why You Get Depressed

Q. I feel very sad all of the time. None of the activities I used to enjoy seem to give me any pleasure. Am I bringing this on myself, or could I be the victim of depression? I'm 70 years old and my wife died several months ago.

A. Depression is a common disorder in this country, as frequent among the mental ailments as the common cold is among the physical. Almost one in five of us will experience depression at some time, and it is estimated that more than 30 million Americans may suffer from some form of this illness today.

Depression is democratic — it strikes the high and the low, men and women, young and old. The elderly are particularly vulnerable because of physical and psychological changes.

Some obvious symptoms of depressive illness include: losing interest in work, family life, hobbies or sex; experiencing frequent or unexplainable crying spells; feeling a loss of self-esteem; having an attitude of indifference; or going through a downhearted period that seems to get worse and won't go away.

Other symptoms are less obvious. If you are unusually irritable, have trouble sleeping, have difficulty concentrating or remembering, notice a loss of appetite (or a compulsion to overeat), or experience a physical pain you can't quite pin down, you may be suffering from depression.

A combination of these symptoms that persists for two weeks or more can be a strong indication of depressive illness and a warning to seek a doctor's advice.

Unlike occasional "blue" days everyone experiences, depressive illness can distort life at home and work and erode one's interest in the pleasures of living. It can affect any person at any time and may sometimes arise from a negative life experience.

It's quite possible the death of your wife triggered a depressive episode, but there might also be physical causes for your problem.

For example, structural changes in the brain can cause depression. These include tumors, infections, injuries and cell changes commonly attributed to aging, such as those caused by poor circulation. Functional psychoses, such as manic-depressive illness, can cause depression. Many drugs can put you in a temporary state of depression.

Depression often arises from disorders of personality and neurotic symptoms, which may be exaggerations of personality traits. Often these symptoms are a result of changes in self-perception or environment.

Human reaction is related to environmental contact. As people age, they are constantly faced with a loss of valuable elements of life — a mate, friends, close relatives or, in the case of persons entering institutions, their home.

Retirement represents a loss to many people — they lose the opportunity to participate in the social structure and they no longer experience the satisfaction of earning wages.

The elderly person must also deal with body changes, which affect his physical image. The elderly person frequently experiences an identity crisis of age and needs to re-identify himself socially.

One important element in helping aging individuals is a supportive emotional environment that continues to stress the need and value of the individual. The older person who feels needed and who is contributing to society is less likely to have significant problems or an identity crisis.

If you think your problem is something deeper, of a chronic and perhaps physically induced nature, and you exhibit several of the symptoms listed above, do see a physician. Depression can be easily diagnosed in most cases, and successfully treated with counseling or medication.

Presidents And The Press

The 1970s: Media Almost Mastered

Editor's Note: The following is part one of a special 5-part series taken from Presidents and the Press: The Nixon Legacy by Joseph C. Spear, published by The MIT Press. Subsequent parts will run on the Herald OPINION page on consecutive Sundays.

By Joseph C. Spear

Future historians of the presidential-press relationship will surely regard the decade of the 1970s as epochal. During this period, the Chief Executive nearly mastered the media.

It is arguable, of course, that in the free society, no one can beat the press. The institution is too large, too diverse, too pervasive. And it always has the last word.

But over the past 10 to 15 years, the presidents and their sides have been fine-tuning a press manipulation strategy that seldom fails in any momentous way. It is executed by teams of sophisticated media specialists who swarm through the White House and its overflow corral next door, the old Executive Office Building.

There are spokesmen who give the impression of saying a lot while actually saying little; pollsters whose fingers are constantly on the public pulse; image merchants who strive to design impressions that will convince the public it is getting what it wants; television experts who stage news events and turn popes and monarchs into presidential props; media monitors who maintain a continuous watch on the press, spot trends, and provide early warnings of trouble; "enforcers" who use a variety of techniques to cow recalcitrant reporters and their sources.

Taken together, this cadre of specialists constitutes an awesome apparatus whose sole function is to mold the news to reflect favorably on the president. They attempt to manage the news. They are extraordinarily successful.

This is not to say that presidential manipulation of the press is a sinister practice, but it is an insidious one, for when the press is being used, the public is being used. The best way to avoid becoming a victim of the media maestros is to know their tactics and strategies.

What, then, is the press manipulation strategy that White House communications experts have honed and polished to virtual perfection in recent years?

Basically it breaks down into three parts, all of which function simultaneously. The president is isolated and the press is appeased with positive or harmless news; television and propaganda tactics are used to evade the press and address the people directly; and the flow of negative news is stemmed through the intimidation of reporters and their sources and through the use of censorship techniques, such as the classification of information.

Appeasement
Most modern presidents have operated on the theory that limited exposure to the press reduces the risk for error and negative coverage. But since the public is unlikely to rally behind a hermit, the trick has been to appear accessible without actually being so. It is accomplished by appearing before news people only under the most tightly controlled circumstances.

Ronald Reagan, for example, guards his privacy assiduously and his staff exposes him to reporters with great care; there is rarely more than one tightly controlled appearance per day. This not only reduces the risk that Reagan may utter a wrong word — he is extremely prone to making gaffes — but it also forces the reporters covering him to chew on the one bone of news they have been tossed that day.

Thus the nightly news often features film of the president, but it is usually coverage of a set speech or of Reagan tossing off some quick remark as he exits or enters his limousine. Much of the news footage of Reagan is shot during "photo opportunities" — occasions when photographers, camera crews and reporters are briefly allowed into the Oval Office to take pictures of the president and his official visitors and guests.

All presidents who served during the 1970s and since have kept track of how well their news managers were doing their jobs through the perusal of news digests — daily and weekly summaries of stories that appear on television news shows and in newspapers and magazines around the country, prepared by staff assigned to that task. Purportedly, the news digests are prepared for informational uses only, but in fact they are used to monitor the press.

Evasion

While the Washington press corps is kept occupied and content with appeasement tactics, the president seeks to go over their heads and address the public directly, primarily through the use of television. The leader of the nation can thus chat with the people without having his remarks filtered through the press. He can make announcements, allow himself to be interviewed, and even arrange events to demonstrate to the public what a decent, honest, strong, compassionate, "presidential" person he is.

Whatever he chooses to do, the cameras will be there; the networks need him as much as he needs them.

With the election of Ronald Reagan, the age of the television presidency burst into full flower. As journalist David Halberstam wrote about the 1980 campaign, "Politics is television, television is entertainment, and entertainment is politics." When the campaign ended, a professional actor became the president of the United States.

The fact that most of the 54 films that Ronald Reagan appeared in were of grade-B variety is deceiving: The man is an excellent. His every gesture, every bob of the head, every smile, chuckle and wave of the hand is practiced. He is comfortable in front of the camera; he knows it is his friend.

Intimidation

There comes a time in every administration when the presidential-press relationship starts to turn sour. Usually it begins when the polls show the president's popularity dipping, or when a major effort to push a program through Congress falls flat, or when a high-level aide becomes embroiled in scandal. The press, which the public generally dislikes anyway, becomes an ideal scapegoat.

Suddenly, all those journalists who had heretofore demonstrated outstanding wisdom in carrying White House-fed stories about the president's strength, intelligence and endearing human qualities find their credibility challenged. They find themselves being chided for their obsession with "bad" news. It is an extremely dangerous game because the more the president and his surrogate enforcers attack the press, the more the press tends to counterattack. Unless it is kept under careful control, it can get out of hand.

Verbal intimidation of journalists is but one of the tools presidents and their aides use to keep the lid on negative news. A far more pernicious tactic is the use of the government's vast resources to intimidate and locate reporters' sources and to restrict the transmission of information through the use of the secrecy stamp and other censorship devices.

President Reagan, in stark contrast to the six Chief Executives who preceded him, has taken extraordinary steps to tighten government secrecy. He has extended the authority of government officials to classify information, compelled certain federal employees to submit to polygraph tests, and attempted to force thousands of officials to clear their writings with federal censors.

...Olympics

IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch said ABC, by focusing almost exclusively on American athletes, has threatened to diminish the "international flavor" of the Games. Samaranch later withdrew his complaint after ABC officials explained the network broadcasts a domestic show and a "world feed" that allows foreign broadcasters to use or discard whatever material they choose.

On the security front, meanwhile, police said they are taking seriously a telephone call to UPI in London from a man claiming to represent Armenian terrorists and hinted the group might strike at the Games.

Retton's victory overshadowed a four gold medal performance by the U.S. swim team, which increased its gold medal count to 18. The United States also won gold medals in cycling and equestrian to raise its overall gold medal total to 29.

There will be 24 gold medals contested today, including five in swimming and three in track and field. Lewis continues his quest for Olympic gold, but he will have to go some to beat Retton's performance.

"Oh my God, it's beyond words," Retton said after winning the event by scoring a perfect 10 on the vault. "Oh my God, I can't explain it. This is the happiest I've ever been. I needed the 10 and I knew if I stuck it I had it. I had to be real aggressive."

Retton nailed the 10 with the first of the two vaults given each competitor. She knew it was perfect before the score went up and started jumping up and down thrusting 10 fingers at the crowd in exultation.

The crowd picked up her cue, chanting "Ten, Ten, Ten" as the judges voted. When the score finally flashed up on the board, she leaped off the platform at the same time her personal coach, Bela Karolyi, vaulted the fence that keeps non-competitors off the floor.

The two met in a joyous embrace of victory before security guards started moving to usher Karolyi out of the area.

Overall Retton received 79.175 of a possible 80 while Szabo had 79.125, and Pauca 78.675.

Karolyi, who coached Nadia Comaneci to the gold medal in 1978 before he defected from Romania, said Retton is the best women's gymnast of all-time. "A gymnast in the world could do what she did tonight. Under these conditions, to have the psychological strength and the personality to get two 10s, that's fantastic."

The victory makes Retton the first gold medalist in the women's all-around from a non-Communist country. Two other Americans finished in the top 10. Julianne McNamara in the fourth position and Kathy Johnson in 10th.

Had it not been for Retton, the U.S. swim team again would have taken center stage.

U.S. swimmers raised their gold medal count to 18 by winning the men's 200-meter backstroke, the women's 200-meter individual medley, the women's 800-meter freestyle and the women's 400-meter medley relay.

Rick Carey of Mount Kisco, N.Y. won his second individual gold medal by winning the men's 200-meter backstroke; Caulkins, of Nashville, Tenn., won her second individual gold by capturing the women's 200-meter individual medley; and Tiffany Cohen of Mission Viejo, Calif. won the women's 800-meter freestyle. Also, the team of Hogshead, Caulkins, Teresa Andrews and Mary T. Meagher won the women's 400-meter individual medley relay. It was Hogshead's third gold medal of the Games, two of them coming in relays.

It was a good day for the United States in team sports, also. The U.S. men's basketball team routed France 120-62 for its fifth-straight one-sided victory; the women's basketball team clobbered China 91-55, the water polo team remained undefeated by downing Spain 10-8 and the women's volleyball team also remained unbeaten by toppling China.

Man Charged In Hit And Run

A driver accused of running down a hitchhiker and then driving away after getting out of his car and bending over the battered man as he lay in the roadway, was arrested early today and charged with leaving the scene of an accident with serious injury.

The victim was in critical condition today at Florida Hospital-Orlando after undergoing several hours of surgery for head and internal injuries plus broken legs and ribs.

According to Casselberry police, Shawn D. Smith, 23, of 1995 Casselwood St., Winter Park, was hitchhiking while standing in the road on the striped line between the right and center lanes on state road 436 Friday at 12:45 a.m. when a Thunderbird traveling about 45 mph hit him.

According to eyewitnesses, the impact threw Smith about 25 feet. They said the car stopped, a young man got out, walked back to Smith, bent over him, then returned to the car and drove away.

One of the witnesses, followed the car and copied the license plate number and gave it to police.

Randy Paul Reiss, 22, of 325 E. Seminole Blvd., Casselberry, was arrested at 2 a.m. today at his home and was being held in the Seminole County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Mondale Must Get Jackson On Board

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (UPI) — Working to push aside the Bert Lance resignation, Walter Mondale and his campaign are tackling another chore — getting civil rights leader and former rival Jesse Jackson on the team, a spokesman says.

Mondale spoke by telephone to Jackson Thursday and Friday and travels Wednesday to Jackson's home state of South Carolina, campaign spokesman Dayton Duncan said Friday.

Mondale, emphasizing the South for a second week, also will travel next week to North Carolina and Alabama.

He returned Thursday from a trip to Mississippi and Texas.

Duncan said Mondale had talked with Jackson about the Southern trip. Asked if Mondale would meet with Jackson in South Carolina, Duncan said: "We'll know later if that's happening."

"I'm sure (Mondale) would like to have (Jackson) campaign for him," Duncan said, but, "there are no specifics yet."

Jackson, though he moved his legal residence from Chicago to South Carolina last week, decided against running for the Senate against conservative Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond, citing his vow to campaign nationwide for the Democratic ticket this year.

But Mondale, who needs to tap Jackson's skill in turning out black votes, faces the problem of a potentially adverse reaction from some Jewish voters who are anti-Jackson.

Jackson registered hundreds of thousands of new black voters during the primary season.

Lance resigned from his job as campaign chairman Thursday, and campaign Manager Robert Beckel said the decision to quit was Lance's. But the decision to allow the problem to drag on for so long — detracting from the Democratic ticket's opening campaign swing — belonged with the campaign.

Beckel took responsibility for giving Mondale bad advice that resulted in the Lance appointment. But there was no talk Beckel would lose his position as one of Mondale's top three advisers.

Energy Conservation Project A Flop

Survey Shows Program Crippled By 'Administrative Sloppiness'

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Federal funding intended to improve energy conservation in low-income households is being soaked up by community job programs rather than accomplishing its primary goal, according to a survey.

"It's not a corruption problem as much as an awful lot of administrative sloppiness," said Stephen Sawyer, who conducted the survey of 25 state energy offices.

The University of Maryland survey showed that of the 25 offices in charge of dispersing energy weatherization funds, all reported frustration in carrying out the program's intended goal.

was established by Congress during the Energy Crisis of the mid-1970s to help low-income and elderly make their homes more energy efficient.

But Sawyer, a geography professor, said that of the 13.1 million homes eligible for the program a decade ago only 1.5 million have been weatherized to date.

"That's pretty slow. Ten years after 1974 to have that figure is not what was intended," Sawyer said.

He said there was a "remarkably unanimous" response from the 25 state energy assistance administrators who attributed the reason for the program's lack of progress to its secondary purpose of providing jobs for the unemployed.

He said it cost as much as three times more for the work to be done by community-based job action groups rather than hiring private contractors.

Sawyer said some of the state offices complained that the program's beneficial effect on poor and elderly households also was hampered by its ambitious nature.

Under the program, eligible households receive an average $800 for improvements such as new storm windows and storm doors that reduce energy consumption and pay for themselves only in the long run, Sawyer said.

He said cheaper, more immediately beneficial projects such as insulating windows with caulk, wrapping water heaters in insulation and installing fuel constrictors in showers were left to the states to fund themselves.

Sawyer said his survey also confirmed that the states' energy offices believe federal Low-Income Energy Assistance grants are underfunded.

The program, designed to help the poor with heating and electricity bills to avoid service cutoffs during winter months, has been funded at an average $1.9 billion a year since its establishment in 1980.

The survey showed that residential energy needs among eligible participants exceed $20 billion annually, Sawyer said.

Did Aliens Crash In Siberia?

MOSCOW (UPI) — A mighty explosion that devastated 1,500 square miles of central Siberia in 1908 may have been caused by an alien spaceship crashing to Earth, a Soviet scientist says.

About 7 a.m. on June 30, 1908, an object moved over the vast central Siberia landscape and exploded with a force that flattened trees over 830 square miles, ignited forests over a larger region and produced an earthquake.

The blast was estimated at the equivalent of a 35-megaton bomb and was felt 600 miles away. About 1,500 square miles were devastated.

A scientist identified only as N. Vassiliev, who headed an expedition from the University of Tomsk, said the angle and speed of impact for whatever caused the great Tunguska explosion do not support the theory it was caused by a comet or meteorite — the most common explanations through the years.

A recent meeting of the Siberian branch of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences concluded the explosion "cannot be considered within the concepts accepted so far," Vassiliev said in an interview with the government newspaper Izvestia.

Important new data undermines earlier views that the explosion was caused by a comet or meteorite colliding with the Earth, since it would have struck at a high speed and angle, he said.

He said lead collected previously from the area has proved to be 11 billion years old — about three times the age of Earth. The lead, however, has not been proved to be part of the explosion.

Vassiliev noted the Academy of Sciences has begun a program "focused on the possibility of revealing a probe of an extraterrestrial civilization placed within the solar system or even on an orbit around the Earth."

Small Cars Passed By Mid-Sized Models

DETROIT (UPI) — Small cars which dominated the auto market four years ago have been overtaken by mid-sized models which now make up about half of U.S. car sales.

Officials said Thursday that sales of mid-sized cars are up due to declining gasoline prices and because buyers want something more than "economical appliances."

Statistics for the first half of 1984 show mid-sized cars took 47.8 percent of the market. Small cars were next with 31.3 percent while large and luxury models combined took 20.9 percent of sales.

In 1980, in the midst of the industry recession, small cars sales peaked with 42.9 percent of the market. Mid-sized cars that year made up 40.2 percent of the market while large and luxury autos comprised 16.9 percent.

"The move back to mid-sized cars is quite logical as the country is in a middle-ground economic and social posture — these aren't boom times, but they are much better than they were two years ago," said Ray Windecker, a Ford Motor Co. analyst.

Mid-sized cars cover a whole range of prices and styles from the Chevrolet Citation to the Mercury Marquis and imports such as the Honda Accord and Volkswagen Quantum. The cheapest models start at around $6,000, while option-loaded models like the Oldsmobile Cutlass can top $12,000.

The cars' main selling point is that they are larger and more comfortable than the "econoboxes" of the late 1970s that placed an emphasis on fuel economy.

Doctors Think About Life After Nuke War

CHICAGO (UPI) — Doctors who survive nuclear war will face "murderous decisions" as they try to divide scant medical care among millions of critically wounded survivors, a doctor reports.

This week's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association commemorates the anniversary of the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima Aug. 6, 1945. In it, doctors examine the medical effects of nuclear disaster.

"The most important thing is there is no credible medical response to a nuclear exchange, and anyone who says there is is talking through his hat," Dr. Herbert Abrams of Harvard Medical School said.

Abrams studied the medical care that would be available after full-scale nuclear war. He based his figures on estimates from the Federal Emergency Management Agency and accounts of Hiroshima and Nagasaki after the bombs fell.

Most post-attack scenarios expect surviving doctors to cut back on medical care, and concentrate on patients most likely to live, a consideration Abrams did not take into account.

"Those are ethical decisions that would have to be made by the remaining physicians around. I think they'd be murderous decisions to make."

"Approximately 80 percent of medical resources — hospital beds and personnel, blood, drugs and medical supplies — will have been destroyed, since they are located in or near the densely populated areas that constitute primary areas of attack," he said.

Abrams estimated 93 million people would survive a nuclear attack. Of those, 32 million would be injured, with 23 million suffering radiation sickness.

More than 9 million would suffer burns, with more than 2 million of those critically injured. Caring for the critically burned would require a facility covering 10.4 square miles — the size of Berkeley, Calif., Abrams said.

Abrams said he concentrated on a worst-case scenario because he thinks it is impractical to prepare for any other kind of nuclear exchange.

"Once you start using nuclear weapons, I think it's insane to believe that any confrontation between the great powers is going to stop," he said. "The most important thing is not to have policymakers believe that nuclear war is just a little bit different from conventional war."

'Gentle Jack' Packs Up Practice

By Rick Branson
Herald Staff Writer

It is not as painful as pulling eye teeth, but 62-year-old Dr. Jack Morrison says it is difficult to retire from his Sanford dentistry after 31 years.

A lifelong resident of Sanford, "Gentle Jack," as he is called by his patients, has decided to pack up his mouth mirror and leave his office at 360 S. Mellonville Ave. A wrist injury that has forced him to refer his patients to other dentists has cut his income and made retirement necessary.

As workers were packing up his belongings Thursday, he recounted his experience as a Sanford dentist among the remnants of his practice — a few old books on oral surgery, his diplomas, a candle in the shape of a molar and a gallon jar of "Scope" mouthwash.

He moved to Sanford from Jacksonville at 15 and enrolled at Seminole High School. By the time he graduated World War II was in full swing, so he went in the Navy and served at Normandy and North Africa.

After the war he joined the thousands of other soldiers returning to civilian life looking for job.

"I was taking orders four years so I decided whatever I was going to do I was going to be boss," Morrison said.

He wanted to go into chiropractics but he said education for that field was not covered by the Veterans' Administration. Being a Red Cross volunteer had hooked him on helping others.

"I knew I wanted to go into some form of the healing arts," he said.

At the urging of his friends he decided to go into dentistry. He attended Stetson University for 2½ years where he took pre-dentistry. He then went to Emory University in Atlanta where he graduated in 1953.

With seven years of schooling and a diploma in his hand, he moved back to Sanford, ready to fill his share of cavities.

His first practice was established at the old Palmetto Building. He stayed there for 10 years until he moved to his present facility in 1963.

Morrison said he could have taken his practice places and made more money but he was drawn back to Sanford by his friends and the St. John's River.

Morrison's roots are in Sanford. He said his father, Charles Morrison, who ran the Ritz Theater in the 1930s, was referred to as "Mr. Sanford."

"Every since I've been an adult I haven't been Dr. Morrison. I've always been 'Charlie Morrison's boy,'" he said.

Practicing in the community for so long has built up a following of many patients, Morrison says. It is saying good-bye to those patients that makes his retirement difficult he says.

"I've got to go hide in the darkroom and cry like a baby," he says.

While he says retirement is not traumatic it will take some adjustment because "I've never done anything else but shoot enemy airplanes and pulling teeth."

Dr. Jack Morrison works on one of his last patients before retiring.

He will divide his new allotment of spare time between his wife, Barbie, and their four children and grandchildren, and his other loves — fishing, hunting and golfing.

He plans to do little traveling because he said he saw enough of the world while being in the Navy.

"People say 'I guess you'll do a lot of traveling.' I tell them 'anywhere the St. John's takes me.'"

Jobless Rate Called 'Rubik's Cube' Of Data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When unemployment increases like it did in July to 7.5 percent, there is plenty of blame to go around.

Democrats and organized labor blame the administration. Republicans blame the survey and say, Don't pay much attention to it. Economists are confused and do not know quite what to make of it.

At the heart of the confusion is the fact that while the principal unemployment report, based on a household survey, showed 350,000 fewer jobs in July than in June, a separate report on establishment payrolls showed 300,000 more jobs.

Economist John Albertine characterized the data as "a veritable Rubik's Cube of labor market data."

"A good rule of thumb is that you should only believe employment statistics when both surveys move in the same direction," Albertine said.

Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers, said unemployment data for the past two months "has been distorted by sampling errors in the household survey."

Jasinowski said the true unemployment rate "is probably around 7.3 percent."

Richard Rahn, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said month-to-month fluctuations that typically occur in early summer "are not indicative of a trend in the unemployment rate."

Women and blacks were hit hardest in the report by the Labor Department, released Friday, which said 413,000 more people were on the unemployment rolls last month than in June.

That puts the total number out of work and seeking a job at 8.5 million people.

The 0.4 percentage point jump from June's 7.1 percent rate was the largest one-month hike in two years and the first increase since November 1982.

"We do not believe today's statistics reflect any significant weakening in the labor market," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes, who was with vacationing President Reagan in California.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., had a different outlook.

"While Wall Street booms, the back streets of America are filled with poverty and unemployment," O'Neill said. "The same president who basks in the glow of profits stands knee-deep in the poverty he himself created."

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said Americans should not "read too much into the July data."

CPR Class Set

The course, scheduled to be held August 15 and 16 from 8:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and August 18 from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at St. Mark's Presbyterian Church, 1021 Palm Springs Drive, Altamonte Springs, will provide participants with Red Cross certification in the use of CPR lifesaving techniques. A $10 fee covers the three-day course and materials. Further information may be obtained by calling the Red Cross in Seminole County at 831-3000.

After 22-Hour Seige

Rebel Bank Robbers Free Hostages

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Four rebel gunmen who killed a bank guard and held 60 people hostage for 22 hours in a bungled robbery, surrendered to authorities because no country would give them asylum, officials said.

Bank employees and customers were freed early Friday after a 22-hour ordeal that began when the rebels stormed the two-story Banca Comercial Agricola in a working class neighborhood of San Salvador.

Bank guard Jesus Humberto Hurtado, 39, was shot to death when he attempted to stop the gunmen, who were armed with submachine guns and pistols. Air force paratroopers quickly surrounded the building and prevented the rebels' escape.

The gunmen — who said they were members of the Farabundo Marti Front for National Liberation, the main leftist guerrilla coalition — demanded safe passage to a foreign country in exchange for the hostages.

The exact number of hostages was not known until the government announced 60 people had been freed unharmed when the rebels surrendered.

The gunmen, who released three children and seven women by late Thursday, had claimed they held more than 100 hostages in the drama that began at 11:40 a.m. Thursday.

The government announced on a nationwide radio broadcast that the rebels had given themselves up and had been escorted to a court by three officials.

"The subversives have decided to accept Salvadoran justice," said Treasury Police commander Col. Rinaldo Golcher, the highest ranking military official at the scene in the tough working class neighborhood of Soyapango on San Salvador's east side.

The four gunmen were taken to court by Supreme Court Justice Fabio Hercules Pineda, Deputy Foreign Minister Ricardo Acevedo Peralta and Julio Adolfo Rey Prendes, chief of staff to President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

The guerrillas reportedly agreed to release their hostages on the condition that they be escorted by the officials to a court and given fair legal treatment.

Altamonte Buries Belmont Jinx

Seniors Shell Nemesis Bell — Take State Championship

Altamonte's Bruce Carlson, above, triumphantly throws his fist in the air after the Senior All-Stars had finally captured a state championship by beating Belmont Heights. Twice frustrated by the Tampa powerhouse in championship games previously, manager Gene Letterio's Seniors took their first title in grand style with a convincing 10-6 victory. At the left, Neal Harris fires a curveball. Harris provided five-plus excellent innings of relief for the win.

FORT MYERS — Anyone who's seen the Altamonte Senior League All-Stars play knows not to give up on them. Especially when they're going up against an arch rival.

So, when Altamonte fell behind long-time nemesis Derrick Bell and Tampa Belmont Heights, 5-1, after five and one-half innings Friday night — the Altamonte faithful didn't stop cheering, and the Altamonte players didn't stop playing.

Altamonte pulled to within one run, 5-4, with a three-run bottom of the fifth then exploded for six runs in the bottom of the sixth and went on to claim a 10-6 victory and the Little League Senior State Championship at Chuck Ross Field.

With Friday's victory, the Senior League All-Stars advance to the Southern Region Tournament which starts Monday in Coral Springs. Altamonte will play at 6 p.m. against the Louisiana-Arkansas area representative.

"We never gave up. Never," said a frenzied Altamonte manager Gene Letterio, who had agonized over the past four state tournament losses to Belmont. "I'm just really happy for the kids. Some have had such great careers, but Belmont was always sticking in their craw. This is an unbelievable experience."

For many Altamonte players, coaches and supporters, Friday night's victory was, as one of the fathers, Bruce Carlson, said — a long time in coming. Belmont Heights and Altamonte had met four times previous to this year's state tournament and Belmont Heights had won all four. Altamonte led in three of those games, one holding a commanding 8-1 lead with two outs in the seventh, only to lose.

But this year's tournament was Altamonte's time for revenge, and the Seniors responded in championship fashion. They took two straight from Belmont, 2-0 on Thursday night, and Friday's 10-6 triumph.

for this." Altamonte leadoff hitter Ryan Lisle said. "We've made it this far (state championship game) before, but have never won it."

Thursday's victory was keyed by an impressive performance by Mike Schmit who shut down the potent Belmont Heights offense and slugged a two-run, game-winning homer.

Friday night, it was a complete team effort as key hits came from every part of the batting order and 15-year-old Neal Harris came in and did an outstanding job in relief of Anthony Laszalc.

After being shutout on four hits on Thursday, Belmont Heights came out swinging Friday night and opened up a 2-0 lead in the top of the first. With two outs, Maurice Crum drew a walk off Laszalc and Joe Green then blasted a two-run homer to left-center.

Belmont Heights starter Bell struck out the first two hitters in the bottom of the first, then gave up a single to Schmit and a walk to Harris before striking out Mark Coffey for the third out.

Belmont chased Laszalc with two runs in the top of the second to take a 4-0 lead. Bell slugged Laszalc's first pitch of the inning over the right-field fence for a 3-0 Belmont lead. Bill Douglas followed with a walk and Robbie Small then looped a double to left-center to put runners on second and third.

Harris then went on in relief and struck out Albert Jenkins for the first out. Gary Sheffield was intentionally walked to load the bases and Harris got Michael Nuss to pop up to first for the second out. Crum then reached on an Altamonte error, allowing Douglas to score the second run of the frame.

Altamonte pulled to within 4-1 with a run in the bottom of the second. With one out, Randy Green was hit by a pitch and Eddie Taubensee followed with a single to right-center. A wild pitch moved the runners up and Laszalc then laid down a perfect safety squeeze bunt to score Green.

Belmont Heights then scored a run in the top of the fifth to take a 5-1 lead. Crum dropped a bunt single to lead off, stole second and scored on Bell's single to left.

Bell showed signs of tiring in the bottom of the fifth and Altamonte got to him for three runs, with four walks leading the way. Bell walked Taubensee, Laszalc and Lisle to load the bases with no outs and Letterio followed with a sacrifice fly to center to drive in Taubensee.

Schmit followed with a walk to reload the bases and cleanup hitter Mark Coffey then delivered a clutch two-run single up the middle to cut Belmont's lead to 5-4.

Belmont Heights pushed its lead back to two runs, 6-4, with a run in the top of the sixth. With two outs, Russ coaxed a walk, stole second and scored on Crum's single to center.

The floodgates finally opened for Altamonte in the bottom of the sixth. Green started the six-run rally with a sharp single to left to lead off. Tony Sutton then went in as a pinch runner for Green. Taubensee then stepped up and smashed a double over the center fielder's head to put runners on second and third with no outs.

Laszalc, the ninth hitter in the order, then came up and he

Major Ups And Downs Keep Tourney Exciting

Bay Point 3, Altamonte 0. First inning. To a 12-year-old Little Leaguer a 3-0 lead can sometimes look as burdensome as sitting through two months of summer school. Yet, to another teammate, three runs is as trivial as a Jimmy Musselwhite grand slam.

Which is probably what makes this Major Division of Little League Baseball a spectator's delight. Even the greatest of the 12-year-old phenoms has those lapses of concentration and confidence which allow a team of lesser caliber to creep back into the game, or take a momentary lead.

St. Petersburg Bay Point had one of those momentary leads Thursday night against the Altamonte Nationals. Bay Point, really no match for manager Jerrey Thurston's juggernaut, waited itself into several walks to take the early advantage.

Knowing the Nationals' penchant for scoring runs, the coaching staff showed little concern. Or...at least appeared to. Some of the 12-year-olds, though, were fit to be tied. Others yawned and said, "We'll get 'em."

"I was really worried," said left fielder Jeff Conklin. "I thought we might get beat. I think a lot of us were expecting for Jason (Varitek). He's always boosting us up and keeping us in the game."

Varitek, the team's most versatile player, was adorned in catching gear Thursday. He had a good view of the whole proceedings. "We just had to pull back together as a team," he said earnestly. "Everybody was moping around. But those two home runs (Musselwhite and Greg James) boosted us back where we belong."

Curt Carlson, who played the last few innings in left field, was somewhat worried, too, about the deficit. "They (Bay Point) had to have the game more than us because if they lost, they were going home (eliminated)," said Carlson. "I didn't know if we were going to lose, but we had to get some runs."

Chris Martino, who played right field, said he wasn't too worried about the early deficit. "I thought we'd win. I really enjoyed this game," he said. "Now, we're going to Williamsport."

Todd Helser, Altamonte's peppy first base coach, said he relishes his job of keeping the team on its toes and positive. "We just needed four Derrick Bell, Belmont Heights pitcher, can't figure it out. In past years, he always had Altamonte under his thumb. Friday night, though, Altamonte knocked Bell around while winning the state tournament. Bell was a hit with Randy Green, right, however. Green took a fastball in the shoulder in the second inning.

Hors D'Oeuvres Over, Cagers Bite Into Main Course

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — So much for the hors d'oeuvres. The United States now gets to sink its teeth into the main course of the men's Olympic basketball tournament.

On Friday, the Americans had some more easy pickings, routing France 120-82. The decision left the United States and Spain with 4-0 records in Group B.

The two have already qualified for the next round and today's match-up provides the United States with its first legitimate opponent.

"Spain will be the toughest team we've played so far," American forward Jeff Turner said. "They're much more physical and well-coached and play better as a team."

The U.S. women meanwhile, have a day of rest following their 91-55 rout of China which raised their record to 4-0 and assured them of at least a silver medal.

Olympics

They play Canada Sunday to complete the six-team first round, then would meet South Korea or China Tuesday night for the gold medal.

In winning their fourth straight game by a woefully imbalanced score, the American men ran up the third-highest point total for a U.S. team in Olympic history. Their average margin of victory over China, Canada, Uruguay and France has been 41 points.

"We're not looking to prove anything to ourselves," U.S. coach Bobby Knight said. "We're just looking to play."

No question that they played against France. With its defense in lethal order, the United States enjoyed early runs of 8-0, 18-2, and 11-0. At the half, the Americans were shooting 75 percent and leading 57-25.

Steve Alford finished with 18 points on 8 of 8 shooting, while Michael Jordan added 16, and Vern Fleming 15. Leon Wood had 10 assists. Herve Dubuisson, signed recently by the New Jersey Nets, led France with 18.

"We can't fight, they're team is so good," French coach Jean Luent said. "We learned our lesson and we'll do better in the future."

France was overmatched from the outset and it was not helped any by the 1-game disciplinary suspensions of Gregor and Eric Beugnot and Richard Dacoury.

Five minutes into the second half, the score was 78-33, and Knight changed his entire line-up. But there was seemingly little even he could do to stop the carnage.

"I've always had a feeling for people who've played hard," Knight said. "When there's hard play involved, you've got to feel for the other team."

SWIMMERS CREATE BIG STIR
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — American swimmers have created quite a stir this week in the Olympics but none greater than that produced by 17-year old Jon Sieben of Australia.

The swimming competition winds up today with five events and by the time it is all over, United States swimmers will have won more Olympic medals than any team in the history of the Games.

Friday, Tracy Caulkins of Nashville, Tenn. and Nancy Hogshead of Jacksonville, Fla. finished 1-2 in the women's 200-meter individual medley; Tiffany Cohen of Mission Viejo, Calif. and Michele Richardson of Miami, Fla. went 1-2 in the women's 800-meter freestyle; and Rick Carey of Mt. Kisco, N.Y. and David Wilson of Cincinnati, Ohio were 1-2 in the men's 100-meter backstroke.

Jack Thompson will start at quarterback Saturday night, but backup Steve DeBerg is expected to see a lot of action.

Moon Over Tampa Stadium

Houston Unveils Rookie Passing Sensation Against Bucs

Pro Football

TAMPA (UPI) — Passing sensation Warren Moon will make his NFL debut Saturday night when he leads the Houston Oilers against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in an exhibition game at Tampa Stadium.

Moon — whose 5,648 yards passing at Edmonton last year is a professional football record — signed with the Oilers after six seasons in the Canadian Football League.

It will be the first exhibition game for the Oilers and the second for the Buccaneers, who lost 38-0 to Seattle last week in the Hall of Fame Classic. The Oilers had a scrimmage last week with the Denver Broncos.

Tampa Bay coach John McKay will start Jack Thompson at quarterback and plans to follow him with Steve DeBerg, who missed the Seattle game with an abdominal muscle pull.

DeBerg was obtained in the off-season from Denver.

Moon will be joining former Edmonton coach Hugh Campbell, who signed with Houston after guiding his CFL club to five straight Grey Cup championships.

Moon is expected to play about a third of the game and will be followed by Oliver Luck and Brian Ransom.

McKay has brushed off last week's loss, which was not statistically as one-sided as the score would indicate. The Bucs had five turnovers and four led to Seattle touchdowns.

"We used a great deal of people in that game," McKay said. "To get a true look at their abilities in the basic skills of their position we did not use a very complicated scheme. While certainly I would have preferred certain aspects of our team to perform better, I see no cause for alarm."

Tampa and Houston finished with identical 2-14 records last year, but the Oilers were one of the two teams the Bucs beat.

Premier running back Earl Campbell will sit out the Tampa game with a sore knee. Willie Joyner and Larry Moriarty are expected to provide most of the running game for the Oilers.

Kickoff is scheduled for 8 p.m. EDT.

SIMMS THROWS 3 TDs

For those whose lives took a decided turn for the worse when the Super Bowl XVIII claimed by the Los Angeles Raiders last January signalled the end of football — the waiting is over.

On Friday night, Phil Simms threw three touchdown passes to help the New York Giants score 42 straight points for a 48-20 victory over the New England Patriots at Foxboro, Mass. in the pre-season opener for both teams.

Other games Saturday night include St. Louis at Chicago, Pittsburgh at Cleveland, Atlanta at Minnesota, Philadelphia at Detroit, Indianapolis at Miami, Cincinnati at the New York Jets, New Orleans at Kansas City, the Los Angeles Raiders at San Francisco, the Los Angeles Rams at San Diego, Washington at Denver and Buffalo at Seattle.

— The Jets, who departed New York's Shea Stadium after last season, play their first game as a New Jersey team when they tackle the Bengals at East Rutherford, N.J. The Jets will start second-year quarterback Ken O'Brien.

Never Mind '27 Yankees, '84 Bobby Knights Are Better

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Never mind the 1927 Yankees. The 1984 Bobby Knights may turn out to be better yet. Nobody in this Olympics will beat 'em. They'd never stand for it.

The formal name they go by is the U.S. Olympic basketball team, which isn't anything more than window dressing because everybody knows they're really the Bobby Knights.

He's the one who coaches and teaches them, the one whose indelible and unmistakable stamp they bear, and if there's anything of substance to the long-held belief that teaching is one of the noblest professions of them all, then autocratic, sometimes tyrannical Bobby Knight should be even more exalted than he is now.

The basketball mavens here already are comparing this year's Olympic team, the Bobby Knights, to the 1960 Olympic team, generally rated the best of them all. That gang, in case your memory is a little rusty, had a few fellows with such names as Oscar Robertson, Jerry West, Jerry Lucas and Walt Bellamy.

They murdered all their opposition, winning eight straight, including a couple of games by more than 50 points. The Bobby Knights play ball the same way because their coach has them believing every game is World War III. In the three contests they've had so far, their smallest margin has been 21 points, their largest, 48 points.

But Bobby Knight keeps asking them for more, more, more, and they're busting their shoelaces to give him it. At the rate they're going, gold medals might not be enough. They could wind up with platinum ones.

Steve Alford, a 19-year-old freshman guard from New Castle, Ind., is the only member of the U.S. team who plays for Knight at Indiana University. All the rest come from other schools around the country and you ought to hear the way they talk about their Olympic coach.

Like him? They love him. Even though he keeps yelling at them. They don't only think he's going to lead them to the Promised Land. They KNOW he will.

They were all on the bus waiting for him after Wednesday's 104-68 blowout of Uruguay. They were happy to have won, but they were tired and wanted to get back to their quarters in the Olympic Village. If there's one thing all athletes hate, it's sitting around and waiting in a bus when they're ready to go. But they weren't waiting for just anybody. They were waiting for their Leader, and you'd better spell that with a capital L.

Knight, who had some business back in the dressing room, finally got on the bus. Apologize to his players? Are you crazy?

Milton Richman

UPI Sports Editor

"I'm gonna give you guys a break," he told them. "I'm not gonna yell at you tonight or tomorrow. Whadd'ya think of that?"

They all got up right there in the bus and gave him a standing ovation.

He and his team were scheduled for a noon news conference at the Olympic Press Center Thursday. The media fretted and grumbled as Knight and his players were almost an hour late.

"They keep saying there's no traffic problem at the Olympics," said one radio man. "Bobby Knight managed to find one."

Knight never bothered explaining what kept him. It wasn't his fault. He had wanted to get all the players together so he could go over scouting reports with them for their next opponent, France, whom they meet Friday. On the way over to the high school where the meeting was to be held, Knight and the players were held up for some time by a wreck on the freeway.

"If you fellows play well tomorrow," Knight told his players before leaving for the news conference, "I'll let you turn your radios on when we go back to the Village after the game."

Everyone laughed. Knight seems to have made Leon Wood, the 22-year-old guard from Cal State-Fullerton, his No. 1 "target." Mainly because he likes him.

"I have no problem with coach Knight," Wood said at the press gathering. "Whatever he usually tells us is for our own good. And usually he's right. Maybe not all the time, but 99 per cent of the time."

Joe Kleine, the 6-11 center from the University of Arkansas, said he isn't bothered too much about Knight yelling at him because Eddie Sutton, his own coach, does, too.

"Coach Sutton yells at me when I do something wrong and my father also does," Kleine said. "My high school coach did, too. But they all told me when I did something right. So does Coach Knight. He never yells at you just for the sake of yelling."

Chris Mullin, St. John's All America forward, said that after being with Knight for more than two months now, the Indiana coach has become one of his favorite people.

"At first, he's kind of hard to understand, but as a person, I don't think you could ever find a better one," Mullin said. "He really cares about others. He gives so much of himself, that you, as a player, want to give back, so you don't cheat him or the other players."

Knight talked as much about baseball as he did about basketball at the news session. He spoke about Brooks Robinson, Roger Maris and Johnny Bench, who has spent considerable time with the U.S. Olympic team in Indiana and in California.

"Bench is the best catcher I've ever seen play," Knight said. "I remember when he made the switch to third base. I was standing behind him in practice one day and he said 'I'm not sure I'll ever get the hang of this.' I said to him 'I'm not sure Brooks Robinson could ever be a catcher, either.'"

Knight recalled that at his first meeting with Roger Maris, instead of dwelling on Maris' hitting, he told him how much he thought of him as a base runner and defensive ballplayer. Maris appreciated that and the two became good friends.

That's Bobby Knight for you. He likes to focus on things others don't.

IN BRIEF

Pastor Holt Schedules Scramble; Swanson, Miller Take Dogfight

Pastor Holt from St. Stephen's Church is having a 1:30 p.m. Shotgun Tournament Sunday at the Mayfair Country Club in Sanford. He's got a field of about 60 players. I'm sure they will have a great time. Let's hope the rains hold off for them. By the way, for those couples that normally play on Sunday afternoon, they will be able to start on the backside.

The Tuesday Dogfight produced the following winners. Low Net Team (29) Chandler Swanson and Darrell Miller; second Low Net Team (30) Dick Elam and Ken Chapman; third Low Net Team (31) (Tie-Match of cards) Harold Hall and Nick Luzier; fourth Low Net Team (31) Harold Brooks and Ed Mioducki.

The Wednesday Ladies Tournament on resulted in the following: Low Net — Mary Ann Williams, 33½; 2nd Low Net — Dottie Sullivan, 35½; 3rd Low Net (Tie) "B" Taylor — 36, Vern Smith — 36.

On Friday, Aug. 10, Ada O'Neil says that the Mayfair Women's Golf Association will host the annual Inter-Club Tournament. That's always a great match with representatives coming from numerous clubs here in Central Florida. — Rudy Beller

Pagan Services Set Saturday

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Services for former NASCAR Grand National driver and car builder Edward L. "Eddie" Pagan were scheduled Saturday at McEwen West Chapel.

Pagan, 66, died of a heart attack Wednesday night at his Harrisburg home.

Pagan and former Grand National driver Dick Hutcheron co-owned Charlotte-based Hutcheron-Pagan Enterprises, a stock car building firm.

Memorials can be made to the American Heart Association.

Marathon May Lose Support

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Marathon is on the verge of losing the long-standing support of the Prudential Center and the race's finish line may have to be moved.

The R.M. Bradley Co., the center's new manager, is expected to terminate its agreement with the Boston Athletic Association at the end of next year's race, the Boston Globe reported Friday.

The center's managers have become increasingly upset with the board of governors of the BAA, which owns and organizes the race.

Portugal, Wardle Blank Orioles

ORLANDO — Mark Portugal and Curt "What Am I Doing In AA" Wardle combined to limit Charlotte to six hits and Greg Morhardt drove in two runs as the Orlando Twins blanked the Orioles, 7-0, at Tinker Field.

Wardle, who may not be long for Orlando, ran his scoreless streak to 44½ innings with 1½ innings of spotless work to earn his 13th save. Portugal improved his record to 0-6 while striking out eight.

Morhardt, a rookie from the University of South Carolina, doubled home the game-winning RBI in the fourth.

Orlando concludes its homestand Saturday night at 7:30.

Roberts Leads Memphis, But Is Wary Of Veterans

Pro Golf

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Loren Roberts has been on top of the leaderboard through two rounds of the $500,000 Memphis Golf Classic, but he knows it is not going to get any easier.

"Anybody on the tour can play good on a given day, but naturally the seasoned veteran has the best chance of putting together four good rounds," said Roberts, 29, after shooting a steady 2-under-par 70 in Friday's second round for a one-shot lead heading into today's play.

The Californian, who has had little success since joining the tour in 1981, stood at 7-under-par 137 for the tournament, one shot ahead of rookie Willie Wood.

Roberts, who took a year off last year and worked in a pro shop in San Luis Obispo, Calif., has a lot more to worry about than Wood. Within striking distance are some of those veterans, including John Mahaffey, Gil Morgan, Hale Irwin, and a rearguard Jerry Pate.

So far, Roberts said, the strategy has been to avoid "the emotional highs and lows," and go out each day and "pick up where I left off."

Where he left off Friday was a birdie on the 18th after hitting a seven-iron within two feet of the pin.

Wood, who began the day at 67 and tied with Roberts for the lead, shot an erratic 1-under-par 71 in the second round and was alone at 138.

Mahaffey, looking for a second victory this year, and Bill Kratzer shot 69s and were at 3-under 139.

Jodie Mudd and Bob Eastwood with second-round 69s and Bobby Wadkins with a 70 were in at 140 after Friday's play over the 7,282-yard Colonial Country Club Course.

Pate, who won here in 1981 but has spent months on the comeback road from a shoulder injury, was among a group at 141. Pate shot a second-round 69. Also at 141 were Morgan with a 70 and Irwin with a 69.

Tom Kite, the leading money winner in the field and one of the favorites, missed his third cut of the year after firing a 77 for a 36-hole score of 152. Defending champion Larry Mize shot a second-round 73 for a 145.

Roberts said the key to scoring in this tournament is keeping the ball out of the high rough. His only two bogeys of the day came on the only two holes where he missed the fairway.

"The deep rough is really difficult. When you're in there you have to hack it out," said Roberts, who has earned $30,899 this year, nearly double what he earned in two previous years on the tour.

Wood, a 5-foot-7, 135-pound collegiate star out of Oklahoma State, had a rollercoaster round of five birdies two bogeys and a double bogey.

He began the day with three straight birdies and was at nine under midway through the front nine.

"I'm kinda disappointed in the way I'm driving the ball," said Wood. "It's really hard to get on the green from the rough."

"I'm very satisfied with the score I'm shooting, but I'm not striking the ball well," said Wood. "I'm really have to scramble."

Pate, who was on his way to his best year ever when he won here in 1981, said he feels he's fully recovered physically from his shoulder problem.

Singleton Returns To Fire 66, Leads Classic By 1

Pro Golf

WHEELING, W.Va. (UPI) — Five-year LPGA tour veteran Vicki Singleton says she nearly hung up her golf bag after missing the cut at the money-rich Nabisco Dinah Shore Invitational in early April.

But after a six-week leave and help from her relatives — God, husband-caddy Brian Harshbarger and teacher Rich Casabella — Singleton is back on the tour shooting a personal best, 6-under par 66 to take a one-stroke lead going into today's second-round of the $150,000 West Virginia LPGA Classic.

Defending tournament champion Alice Miller finished the first round Friday in second place.

Four others were tied for third at 3-under par. Gallery favorite and Jan Stephenson was 1-over, tied for 34th.

Since returning to the tour, Singleton has missed only one cut. She also tied for fourth at the Jamie Farr Toledo Classic, pocketing about $8,000, nearly as much as she won all of last year and about half of her earnings this season.

"I've played the best golf I ever have as a professional," the 27-year-old Oberlin, Ohio, native said of her past 10 weeks.

The lanky redhead credits her improved game to a revamped mental attitude, her husband, and a return to her longtime instructor and friend, Casabella, whose tutelage she left in 1983.

Singleton, who describes herself as a Christian, said she sought church counseling for her and her husband.

Ryan Express Mows Over San Diego, 6-2

United Press International The San Diego Padres received a dose of their own medicine Friday night, rammed down their throats by the Ryan Express.

The San Diego pitching staff recently had a string of over 40 consecutive scoreless innings broken and that superb pitching has enabled the Padres to open up a 7 1-2 game lead in the NL West. But Friday night, Nolan Ryan and the Houston Astros turned the tables on the Padres.

The veteran flamethrower limited the Padres to only six hits, and Jerry Mumphrey drove in four runs with a home run and a single to lead the Astros to a 6-2 victory.

"Nolan pitched a great game. He had good velocity, 93-96 miles per hour in the first inning, and good command," said Astro manager Bob Ljilias.

Ryan, 9-7, was able to ride those runs to his fourth complete game. The right-hander walked one and struck out four.

"Ryan is a pretty tough pitcher. You can't give him an early lead like we did tonight and expect to win," said San Diego manager Dick Williams.

Houston chased Show in the sixth with a two-run outburst. Garner was hit by a pitch, Reynolds had an infield single and Cruz walked to load the bases. Mumphrey then looped a single to center to score Garner and Reynolds.

The Astros led it in the bottom of the eighth when Cruz sliced a one-out triple off reliever Greg Harris. Mumphrey followed with his seventh homer of the year, a drive into the left-field seats, for a 6-2 advantage.

"It is really good for me to hit against this team. They have been tough on me all year," said Mumphrey, who has 64 RBI on the season.

"On the home run, I took a good aggressive swing and hit it well. The single came off a good pitch by Show, and I was lucky to hit it in a good spot."

San Diego scored its runs on an RBI single by Alan Wiggins and Kevin McReynolds' 18th homer of the year.

Mets 4, Pirates 1 At Pittsburgh, George Foster slammed a two-run homer and Walt Terrell, 9-8, tossed a five-hitter to help the Mets halt a seven-game losing streak. The triumph pulled the Mets within a half-game of first-place Chicago in the NL East. Foster smashed his 14th homer off John Expos 6, Cubs 5 At Chicago, pinch hitter Dan Driesssen drove in Bobby Ramos with a ninth-inning groundout to help Montreal break a three-game losing streak.

Jeff Reardon, 4-4, pitched the last two innings for the victory. Tim Stoddard, 7-4, took the loss. Leon Durham and Ron Cey homered for the Cubs, who trailed 5-0 in the sixth inning.

Dodgers 5, Reds 2 At Cincinnati, Bob Welch hurled a two-hitter over seven innings and Mike Marshall slammed a two-run homer to pace the Dodgers. It was the second straight strong outing for Welch, 8-11, who fired a two-hit shutout against the Reds last Saturday. Mario Soto, 11-5, took the loss.

Cardinals 4, Phillies 3 At St. Louis, George Hendrick drove in three runs with two doubles to power the Cardinals to their seventh victory in their last eight games. Rookie Ricky Horton, 6-1, pitched five innings for the triumph and Bruce Sutter went two innings for his 28th save. Jerry Kosman, 12-8, took the loss.

Braves 2, Giants 1 At Atlanta, pinch hitter Rufino Linares singled home Gerald Perry with one out in the 11th inning to lift the Braves. Perry doubled with one out off Greg Minton, 1-8. Brad Komminak singled and Randy Johnson was intentionally walked to load the bases. Linares, batting for Glenn Hubbard, then bloomed a single over first base.

Jurak Botches Bunts Coverage, Texas Nips Red Sox, 3-2

United Press International The error was charged to Boston third baseman Wade Boggs because there's no place in a boxscore for a mental mistake.

Red Sox second baseman Ed Jurak failed to execute one of baseball's most routine defensive plays Friday night, and the result was Boston's 3-2 loss in 10 innings to the Texas Rangers.

Gary Ward led off the 10th with a single off reliever Bob Stanley, 7-7, and Buddy Bell attempted to sacrifice. Boggs fielded the bunt cleanly and threw directly to first base where Jurak should have been ... but wasn't. The ball rolled into right field as Ward scored easily with the go-ahead run. "Eddie just froze on the ball,"

Boston manager Ralph Houk said. "He's supposed to cover first on that play."

Angels 4, Twins 2 At Anaheim, Calif., Tom Brunanaky's 18th homer of the year ignited a three-run fifth inning that carried Minnesota into first place in the AL West. The Twins' 11th victory in their last 16 games moved them a half-game ahead of the Angels, who saw their four-game winning streak snapped. John Butcher, 9-6, went 8 1-3 innings for the victory. Ron Davis notched his 20th save.

Yankees 6-3, Indians 0-2 At New York, Don Mattingly homered in the eighth inning to break

Blue Jays 5, Toronto 2 At Baltimore, Buck Martinez blasted a two-run homer after a lengthy rain delay and pinch hitter Willie Aikens added a three-run shot to power the Blue Jays. White Sox 5, Brewers 1 At Milwaukee, Carlton Fisk and Greg Luzinski homered in the third inning and Floyd Bannister pitched a six-hitter and struck out 11 to lead Chicago. The loss was the fifth straight for Milwaukee. Bannister, 9-7, walked none while striking out his season-high in his fourth complete game.

White Sox 5, Brewers 1 At Milwaukee, Carlton Fisk and Greg Luzinski homered in the third inning and Floyd Bannister pitched a six-hitter and struck out 11 to lead Chicago. The loss was the fifth straight for Milwaukee. Bannister, 9-7, walked none while striking out his season-high in his fourth complete game.

Mets 4, Pirates 1 At Pittsburgh, George Foster slammed a two-run homer and Walt Terrell, 9-8, tossed a five-hitter to help the Mets halt a seven-game losing streak. The triumph pulled the Mets within a half-game of first-place Chicago in the NL East. Foster smashed his 14th homer off John drilled Bell's first offering just inside the third base line for a double, driving in both Sutton and Taubensee to tie the game at 6-6. "I didn't see if it went fair or foul," Lazaic said. "I knew I hit it good so I just started running." Belmont then took Bell off the mound and put in Melvin Foster, and that was the beginning of the end for Belmont Heights. Foster faced the top of the Altamonte order with no outs and Lazaic at second. Liale dribbled at third base and Sheffield had Lazaic caught off second. But the throw was wild and Lazaic raced to third while Liale was safe at first. Belmont's infield was on its heels after the error and Letterio took advantage by dropping down a perfect squeeze bunt to chase home Lazaic with the go-ahead run. "Once they took Bell out, I knew we had it," Letterio said. "Now no one can say that Altamonte always chokes." After taking a 7-8 lead on Letterio's squeeze bunt, Altamonte added three more runs. With Liale on second, Schmit reached on an error and Coffey followed with a booming double to left-center to drive in Liale and leave runners at second and third. "Belmont has a good team," Coffey said. "But, tonight we proved we're better."

With two out in the sixth, Bill Henley put the finishing touches on Belmont Heights as he cracked a two-run single to left-center. Belmont Heights got two runners on with one out in the top of the seventh, but Harris set down Small and Jenkins for the last two outs, finally ending Belmont's reign over Altamonte. Harris played a key role in Altamonte's victory Friday night as he kept the Belmont bats silent to give Altamonte a chance to get its offense rolling. Harris worked five and two-thirds innings, gave up four hits, struck out seven and walked four. Although Lazaic didn't have much luck on the mound Friday, he had another great game at the plate. Lazaic was 1 for 1 with a double, two runs scored and two RBI. "This is the greatest thing that's ever happened to me," Lazaic said during an emotional celebration after the game. The victory was a special one for Lazaic who was a part of last year's Junior League All-Stars that went to the World Series. But Lazaic missed most of the games last year with a broken wrist. Another key offensive player was Taubensee and that came as a bit of a surprise to some because he didn't have a hit in four previous state tournament games. "I wanted to do something to help beat Belmont," Taubensee said. "I didn't have any hits going into tonight but I guess I came through when I had to."

Continued from 9A. runs. Just four runs I kept telling everybody," related Heiser. "I knew we'd win with four runs." As it turned out, the four were enough but Altamonte tacked on five more to make Conklin and Carlson breathe easier in the 9-3 final. "It feels great to be the champions," added third baseman Steve Wasula. "But I was expecting to go this far. Losing was the farthest thing from my mind." With confidence like that, Williamsport can't be too distant a way either.

U.S. Minesweepers Ready To Be Flown To Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Six U.S. minesweeping helicopters were ready today to be flown to Egypt to help find mines that were believed to have been placed in the Red Sea and Gulf of Suez and have damaged at least nine commercial ships.

In Washington, Navy officials said six minesweeping helicopters were standing by at the Oceana Naval Air Station in Virginia to be flown aboard a C-5A Galaxy transport to Egypt to help find mines thought to have been sown in the waterways.

The Suez is a major source of revenue for Egypt and a vital passage that links the Red Sea at the south with the Mediterranean at the north. Traffic through the Suez Canal noticeably dropped in the last week.

The British Broadcast Corp's Arab-language service said the Egyptian navy was patrolling the canal and gulf. The service also said the Islamic Jihad (Holy War), a fundamentalist, Iran-backed group, claimed responsibility for one of the blasts.

Jurists Asked To Observe Voting

United Press International

The Nicaraguan government asked jurists from 10 nations to observe the country's November elections, the first balloting in the country since the Sandinistas took power, but a race in which the main opposition withdrew.

Nicaragua's president of the Council of State, Carlos Nunez Friday invited foreign lawyers — in Managua for a conference on comparing rights and laws among nations — to return to the country as observers of the Nov. 4 elections for president, vice president and a 90-member Constituent Assembly.

The elections are the first called since the Sandinista National Liberation Front toppled dictator Anastasio Somoza in 1979.

Nunez said after the elections the government planned to send elected Assembly deputies abroad to study other nation's governing systems before drawing up Nicaragua's new constitution.

Marine's Beating Protested

MOSCOW (UPI) — The United States has "vigorously protested" the beating of an off-duty Marine who U.S. officials say was lured away from his consulate in Leningrad by Soviet security men.

U.S. officials Friday denied Soviet charges the Marine was intoxicated and throwing stones at passerby before the Thursday assault, the second on an official U.S. representative in Leningrad in four months.

The Marine, consulate guard Sgt. Ronald Campbell, 22, of North Island, Calif., was not in uniform when he left the mission to follow a suspicious car that had been circling the building, U.S. officials said.

"Two blocks from the consulate, he was surrounded by militiamen and plainclothesmen, beaten and taken to a police station," State Department Spokesman Alan Romberg said in Washington.

But now that she has been given a white cane and learned to use it, she said she will be getting out more.

"I've never pitted myself. I never stopped going," said 76-year-old Willie Evans, who started losing his vision in 1968 and has been blind for several years.

"I've always gone most everywhere I want to, but now that I know how to use the cane, to cross the street, how to stay on the sidewalk and to go up stairs, I'll get out even more."

"I've learned a lot of things here," Evans said. And he's still learning. He has begun studying a form of Braille.

The type of Braille Evans and the others are learning is more simple than the original raised dot system, which they are also taught if they feel they might need it for use in correspondence with others who can read the dots, LeBlanc said.

The system Evans is now practicing utilizes dashes along with dots and the letters are available, pre-formed on small plastic magnets, which LeBlanc said can be used to label canned goods and other items, or to keep track of phone numbers and to make a shopping list. The class members are also taught shopping techniques and how to dial a telephone.

The students will be graduated Aug. 16, and the program won't return to Sanford before May of next year, LeBlanc said, although classes are offered in Orlando throughout the year.

Blind or legally blind persons who are interested in the program should contact the CITE staff at 299-5000, ext. 3291. LeBlanc said a social worker and tests determine who is eligible. He pointed out that applicants can have partial vision and still be considered legally blind and qualified for the classes.

A legally blind person can often see, but only 10 percent, or less, of what a regular sighted person can see. Or they may have peripheral vision of only 20 degrees or less to each side. With normal peripheral, you can see 180 degrees to each side, LeBlanc said.

Brownell Herrell, 64, one of the two legally, but not totally blind students in the Sanford class, said he took the course in preparation for the day he loses his sight completely.

"I'm learning how to do things for myself in the house. I'm not married. I live alone. I've been losing my vision a long time, but it's getting worse. I had only done a little cooking before and this has given me confidence to do more."

Kwiatkowski said it was a compromise among those who wanted a strong administrator and those who were concerned about giving an administrator too much authority.

There were some in those days, Kwiatkowski said, who believed the county administrator, even Neiswender, "should be cognizant of everything that was happening in the county."

"But we knew of only one person who could do that and he walked on water," Kwiatkowski said.

Kwiatkowski added that Neiswender seemed to assume power, but commissioners didn't object because he got the job done.

"We had such an excellent working relationship with Roger, power was a moot point."

Kwiatkowski said the commissioners in his day wanted an administrator who could work with them and the department heads as a team.

"And we had that in Neiswender. He was a team player."

French said the only fault he ever found with Neiswender was that "he did not delegate enough work."

Commissioners have complained that Rose delegates too much work and has not been able to inspire a team spirit among the county's department heads or the commission.

The matter came to a head last week when Commission Chairman Sandra Glenn made a motion to fire Rose. The motion failed for lack of a second. However, that may not be the case for long. Commissioners Glenn and Barbara Christensen say they'll vote to can Rose.

They're opposed by commissioners Robert G. "Bud" Feather and Bill Kirchoff. That leaves commissioner Bob Sturm as the deciding vote. He has indicated a willingness to side with the anti-Rose forces, but he wants to be county administrator himself and so wants to avoid charges of a conflict of interest.

"If the commissioners are looking for another Neiswender, they are not going to find him," French said. "They will never have someone who'll do the quality of work Roger did."

But, French added, "The bottom line is the county administrator always serves at the pleasure of the board of county commissioners. If the majority of the board decides he is no longer serving or if they are displeased, they remove him. And the commission serves at the pleasure of the voting public. There are no guarantees of anyone's job."

John Alexander, also a commissioner during an early portion of the Neiswender era, said he never felt comfortable about giving a county administrator the wide latitude most city managers have.

"Counties historically, especially ones as small as Seminole County, have an administrator and county commissioners have some involvement and knowledge of the administration. They do not just make policy," Alexander said.

"I don't think the county commissioners involve themselves enough in county government. They can't make good policy if they can't administer," he said.

"Neiswender did a lot through his force of personality," Alexander said.

Describing Rose's style of management as "management by crisis and management by delegation," Sturm says "under the team concept, Neiswender got the department heads together and discussed a project. The team then was more project oriented and ready to help solve problems."

"What Duncan does is delegate the job rather than having the team follow it up," Sturm said.

Mrs. Christensen says she is of the opinion that it "will take someone from within, someone who is not uninformed about the way Seminole County operates, to do the job."

She said she wants a "strong manager who can stand up to me if he thinks I am wrong. Someone who will implement what we want with the department heads."

"Roger did that," Mrs. Christensen said.

Rather than creating a team among the employees, Rose has created a morale problem by piling too much work on them that he should be doing, Mrs. Glenn said. By delegating responsibilities and falling to follow through on projects,

"important matters have fallen through the cracks."

Feather says that while Rose "is not an angel, nor am I or anyone else, he has had some big shoes to fill and it hasn't been easy."

Leatherbacks Go To Sea

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Sixty-three endangered reptiles smaller than a human hand have been put out to sea and the "Turtle Patrol" hopes a handful of them will survive to become 1,500-pound adults.

The leatherback sea turtles — the first members of the species to be hatched on Miami Beach in many years — were released early Friday and made the 20-foot crawl to the Atlantic. About six or seven of them are expected to survive and grow from five to eight feet in length, Dade County beach maintenance supervisor Jim Hoover said.

Leatherbacks are the largest and most rare of the seven species of seagoing turtles.

"I feel just like the mother," said Marty McCorkle, 54, who contacted county officials May 23 to say a huge sea turtle had laid eggs on north Miami Beach.

Mrs. McCorkle said guests of a hotel where her husband works noticed the lumbering mother leatherback emerge from the sea one night.

"I was really excited," Mrs. McCorkle said.

Released along with the leatherbacks was a batch of about 100 green turtles and loggerheads, which are much more common than the shell-less leatherback.

True Blue Like Father, Like Son: War Memories Linger On And On

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

At 66, it might seem odd that Allen Nelson of Sanford considers himself to be a youngster, but his reasoning falls into perspective when you realize that he claims to be one of the youngest, if not the youngest surviving son of a Union Army Civil War Veteran.

Nelson's dad, George H. Nelson was 72 when his second son, Allen, was born. The elder Nelson's memories of the battlefields of Bullrun, Va., Gettysburg, Pa., Spotsylvania Courthouse, Va., and other scenes of the war between the states, are now the memories of his son.

The lore of the war was passed along to Nelson in childhood stories and was brought to life at a Civil War reunion he attended with his dad at Gettysburg in 1939.

"I remember real well when we went to Gettysburg for the Blue and Gray Reunion. I can still see it today just the way it was set up with the blue cap on one side and the gray cap on the other. In the evening the old boys would get around the campfire and swap war stories — the Blue and the Gray.

"A lot of the old boys had some hard feelings, yet some of them were very friendly. They would tell their tales and fight the battles all over again, saying 'we won.' Then someone else would say 'no, we won' and they'd get into it.

"It was sort of a friendly fight, but a lot of the old boys still stuck to the Southern flag, which was natural. We would do the same for the North.

"All in all it was a good reunion and we had lots of fun. I remember seeing President Roosevelt, Franklin D. He made a speech.

"They still haven't forgotten yet," Nelson said of Southerners. He added that since settling in Sanford he has offered his services as a speaker to the Sanford chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, but he said the group wasn't interested.

Except for his father, who ran away from home to join the army when he was 16, Nelson's family which who lived in St. Johnsbury, Vt., was untouched by the war, he said.

His father who served with the First Vermont Volunteers from the beginning to the end of the war, in later days took his son over the battlefield at Gettysburg, pointing out sites of skirmishes he participated in. But one of the most vivid memories Nelson has of his father's war experience is the scar on his dad's left wrist, where a mini musket ball entered and then passed into his shoulder.

"He was holding his musket up, loading it, when he was hit by a mini ball from a Southern soldier's gun; they were firing all around him. It was the battle of Spotsylvania Courthouse.

"It got him here," Nelson said, pointing out a spot on his inner wrist, "and came out under his arm. He used to wiggle his wrist, so I would see that big hole. I remember that so well. He was proud of that wound. He crawled eight miles in the mud and rain to a field hospital to get treated.

"They had to take it out from under his shoulder. It came pretty close to his heart. That was about the middle part of the war. He recovered and went back.

"He just wanted to go into battle to fight for what he thought was right, just like the boys would do today. We would fight someone and think it's right. He didn't like slavery, I'll tell

It's Cruel To Leave Pets In Parked Cars

DEAR ABBY: Now that the warm summer days are upon us once again, please remind your readers that it is extremely cruel to leave their pets in a parked car — even with the windows cracked.

When I see an animal in the car on a warm day, I place a card under the windshield wiper. It reads:

"We understand you meant to be kind in taking your dog with you today, but you could be risking his life.

"On a hot summer day the inside of a car heats very quickly. On an 85-degree day, for example, the temperature inside your car — with the windows slightly opened — will reach 102 degrees in 10 minutes. In 30 minutes it will go up to 120 degrees. On warmer days it will go even higher.

"A dog's normal body temperature is 101.5 to 102.2 degrees Fahrenheit. A dog can withstand a body temperature of 107-108 degrees Fahrenheit for only a very short time before suffering irreparable brain damage — or even death. The closed car interferes with the dog's normal cooling process, that is, evaporation through panting.

"If your dog is overcome by heat exhaustion, you can give immediate first aid by immersing him or her in cold water until body temperature is lowered."

Knowing that you are an animal lover, I hope you will find this column worthy.

JO ANN RIFKIN
SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

DEAR JO ANN: It is indeed, I've published the above information several times, but it's worth repeating.

Now a word to my readers: The above-mentioned cards can be obtained by writing to the Animal Protection Institute, P.O. Box 22505, Sacramento, Calif. 95822. The cards are free, but enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20 cents) envelope, and if you are able, include a dollar or two for this fine, non-profit organization.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from "Louisiana Duck Hunter," I had to write. He said, "The only truly effective mosquito repellent used by duck hunters in these parts is an Avon product called Skin-So-Soft." Then he went on to say it could be found in the sporting goods stores on the shelves right next to the commercial insect repellents!

Abby, if this is true, the Avon Co. would like to know the names of the stores, because Avon products are sold only by Avon representatives who call on customers in their homes.

I should know, I've been an Avon representative for 18 years.

J.G. FROM DEL MAR, CALIF.

DEAR J.G.: Thanks for writing. And now a message to the sporting goods people in duck hunting territory: If you are caught selling Avon products, you're dead ducks.

DEAR ABBY: I've been a faithful reader of your column for many years and now I have a big favor to ask of you.

Will you please send me a copy of a letter you printed many years ago? It was about a wife whose husband had joined the Masonic lodge and she kept nagging him, wanting him to know all the secret goings-on, etc. You told her to quit nagging him or she would lose her husband by degrees. Thank you.

INDIANA MASON

DEAR MASON: I'm glad that you wrote because it give me an opportunity to tell you and others who request a copy of a specific item that unless you are able to pinpoint the date (the year and the month), I am unable to accommodate you. Also, when requesting a favor, please include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a divorced mother of two daughters, ages 12 and 14. The three of us have been living on child support, welfare and an occasional part-time job when I can get one. Believe me, we barely make ends meet.

My 14-year-old daughter makes $40 a week babysitting, and we've had some heated arguments because I asked her for $5 a week toward her room and board. She's threatened everything from running away, to quitting her baby-sitting job, to doing nothing until she's old enough to live away from home. If I demand any of her wages,

I feel like a villain for asking for a lousy $5 a week. Was I out of line to ask? And should I quit asking?

HURTING

DEAR HURTING: You were not out of line to ask, but in view of your daughter's attitude, you'd be wise to quit asking. If she should bite the hand that feeds her, you may be stuck for rabies shots.

DEAR READERS: For the first time ever, the long form of the 1980 census questionnaire asked respondents to volunteer their ethnic origin.

A full 83 percent identified themselves as "American," and 10 percent did not answer the question.

The largest ethnic group in the nations was the 50 million citizens who said they were of English or partial English descent.

German stock was a close second at 49 million. The Irish were 40 million; French, 13 million; Italian, 12 million, etc.

Where did I get this fascinating tidbit? From the newsletter of New York's Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan. Thank you, senator!

In And Around Lake Mary

Rotary Governor Projects New Area Clubs To Form

The Lake Mary Rotary Club has kicked off its 1984-85 year with a variety of interesting and thought provoking meetings, as well as listening to talented special guest speakers.

At a recent meeting, Detective Hank Bierly of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department spoke to those present on the subject of "checks and frauds."

In stating that shoplifting costs Florida businesses over $3,000,000.00 a year, Hank offered updated suggestions on how to spot a potential shoplifter.

Included in his presentation were tips on how to detect counterfeit money, employee theft and bad checks.

Another special guest speaker was Delta Airlines Senior Marketing Representative Keith Stokes, who presented an uplifting picture of the present airline business.

In speaking of the growth presently underway for the airline business in Central Florida, he stated that Orlando is the second fastest growing city in the United States, and the number one vacation city in the world with 45,000 hotel rooms in the area.

He also noted that Delta considers itself a family organization, with the average employee having worked with them for over 10 years.

Other club highlights included a very special visit from the Rotary District 698 Governor Dick Squires. Being Dick's first visit to the Lake Mary club as district governor, he was warmly received by the members.

Dick spoke to the members an inspiring message of encouragement and gave a synopsis of the work undertaken by the Rotary International over the last year. Included in his talk was a picture of the district's 1984-85 goals, which include a Haiti water project, Rotary Foundation support and to start five new clubs in the Central Florida.

Highlighting the special get-acquainted meeting, two other honored guests were present. Special guest Lee Wheeler, governor's representative, was introduced to the club members.

Visiting all the way from England, Peter Haasard of the Croydon Jubilee Rotary Club located near London, England, presented a club banner from his home club to the Lake Mary members, and spoke briefly of comparisons between the two clubs. Receiving the English banner was local director Ric Stanley. Following that, Ric presented Peter with a Lake Mary Rotary Club banner.

Durry Gann and his mother, Mrs. Olin Gann

He's An Eagle Scout

Durry Gann, 15, of Boy Scout Troop 529, Paola, received his Eagle Scout badge in a ceremony at Lake Monroe First Baptist Church, Lake Monroe.

Durry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Gann, formerly of Orange Boulevard, Paola. Shortly after receiving the award, his family moved to Winston-Salem, N.C. where his father was transferred. Durry was commended for his work on his Eagle Service Project by Charles Alcorn and Carolyn Durak, teachers at Wilson School, Paola, who served as advisors for the project of upgrading and building new trails, building a weather station, building a bird bath/feeder station, and creating interpretative signs for use in the school's Outdoor Learning Center.

Medal Of Valor Award

The Medal of Valor Award was established by the Board of Trustees of the Kiwanis International Foundation to honor persons who risk physical harm or death by "accepting personal responsibility for saving the life of another, when they might just as well have passed along their way."

The person may or may not be a Kiwanian, according to a Kiwanis spokesman.

Dennis Stewart is an outstanding example of the type of person this award was designed to honor, the spokesman said. On Feb. 8, 1984, while waiting at a traffic signal, at the intersection of French Avenue and First Street, Sanford, Stewart heard what he thought was an automobile crashing into something. He looked to his right and saw that an automobile had crashed into two gasoline pumps at Mel's Gulf Service.

With complete disregard for his own safety, Stewart got out of his car and ran to the vehicle. Upon reaching the automobile, he pulled a child and the driver from the front seat. He then returned to the vehicle and removed a passenger from the rear seat, the spokesman added.

As a result of his quick action, there were no injuries. However, the automobile was completely destroyed by fire.

Stewart received the award from Ron Jernigan, president of the Kiwanis Club of Sanford.

...Old Soldiers Never Die

you that much," Nelson said of his father. We weren't prejudiced at all."

The only physical memento Nelson has of his father is a sepia photograph that shows him with a group of his old war buddies. The picture was taken in the Grand Army Hall, St. Johnsbury, Vt. in the 1930s.

By the time Nelson was born, he said, his father's career was as a Civil War veteran. He started receiving a federal pension shortly after the war and that continued until he died at the age of 98 in 1942. The amount of the pension peaked at about $100 a month, a lot of money in those days, especially for a man who had been born in a log cabin, Nelson said.

A patriotic man, the elder Nelson never missed a Memorial Day parade, his son said. He also had time to spend with Nelson, who said he and his father "got along perfectly" despite the differences in their ages. There was also about a 40 year gap between the ages of his mother and father, Nelson said, adding that his mother was the second wife of his father.

"He used to take me through the woods and show me the different birds when I was a boy," Nelson recalled.

He still has a love of animals, which his father nurtured. Today Nelson demonstrates that love of animals as a volunteer at the Central Florida Zoological Park, Sanford, where he works as a docent, leading tours.

"I love kids and animals," Nelson said. "The reptiles are my favorites. I handle reptiles quite a bit. I like the boa constrictor. Whenever they need me at the zoo they give me a call. I had to take a long hard course at the zoo to learn about the animals. I've been doing this about three years."

In addition to his work at the zoo, Nelson has been spending his retirement time from the U.S. Navy, rearing a new family. He married his second wife, June Arline, the mother of six grown children, about seven years ago.

Nelson, who had no children in his first marriage, decided he would like to try his hand at late-life fatherhood, as his dad had. Three years ago he and his wife adopted Billy, now 17. And this year 14-year-old David became a member of the family.

"It's worked out real fine, so far," Nelson said of his family. It's a challenge of course. When I can we get out and do things, go to the beach."

The boys also have the opportunity to share their new dad's love of animals. The Nelsons have a menagerie, which includes two dogs, seven cats, a rabbit and a burro named Dandy. Dandy is expected to soon be joined by a mate, but Nelson says he doesn't plan to go into the burro business at his south Sanford home. He wants them only for the boys and his 12 grandchildren, which are the offspring of "Mrs. Nelson's" children, to enjoy, he said.

Nelson settled in Sanford because he became familiar with the area when he served here in the Navy, prior to his retirement in 1968. He had seen service in the U.S. Army in a Southwest Pacific anti-aircraft battalion in World War II, then later joined the Navy.

He followed his career as a sailor by working odd jobs and as a security guard for seven years at Stromberg-Carlson Corp., Longwood. He met his wife both at church and at Stromberg-Carlson, where she continues to work.

Nelson says the Central Baptist Church, Sanford, plays an important part in his family and both he and his wife sing in the adult choir.

He is also working to maintain a scrapbook on the Civil War, which includes information about his father's experiences. He says he's passed some of that information along to a man in Maine, who is publishing a book about that war. Nelson is looking forward to seeing his father's name and story in print, he said.

Oil Companies Head List Of World's Largest

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nineteen oil companies are among the 50 largest industrial companies in the world with Exxon Corp. again claiming the No. 1 slot, Fortune magazine reported.

No. 2 Royal Dutch-Shell closed the gap last year when it had a $3.2 billion drop to $80.5 billion. Exxon's sales last year fell by $8.6 billion in 1983 to $88.5 billion, Fortune magazine reported Wednesday.

Fortune's list had 19 oil companies among the 50 largest industrial companies in the world, ranked according to 1983 sales.

The oil companies were in four of the top five spots, with Mobil Corp. and British Petroleum in fourth and fifth place, respectively.

General Motors was ranked No. 3. There were no changes in the relative standings among the top five firms.

Fortune said net income of the 50 largest companies rose 20 percent despite a 2.3 percent decline in sales. Profits of the 23 U.S. companies on the list increased about 30 percent, while non-U.S. firms saw profits drop by 1.6 percent.

Sales of the 19 oil companies fell by $73 billion, or 11 percent, but most increased profits anyway. Exxon was also at the top in profit, with $4.9 billion in net income last year.

U.S. Steel's $1.2 billion loss last year was the biggest of any company on the list.

New companies on the list of the 50 largest included Volvo, ranked No. 45; Procter & Gamble, No. 47, and R.J. Reynolds Industries, No. 49.

Two Japanese concerns were big gainers in the rankings. Toyota Motor jumped 15 places to No. 18, and Matsushita Electric Industrial moved up 15 places to No. 24.

Judge Says Air Florida Has No Plan

MIAMI (UPI) — A federal bankruptcy judge says he won't let Air Florida's assets be liquidated until the carrier tries to fly again, but told Air Florida officials their operations plan is "a lot of talk."

Judge Sidney Weaver said if Air Florida, which shut down July 3 and laid off its 1,200 employees, does not come up with a viable business plan by Aug. 27 he will place the company in receivership and ask a trustee to get the carrier's grounded planes back in the air in some fashion, perhaps as a charter service.

"I'm not going to let this airline fold without giving it a shot," Weaver told about 100 creditors who packed a bankruptcy hearing in Miami's old federal courthouse Thursday.

"I'm disappointed you don't have a plan," he told Air Florida Chairman J.R.K. Tinkle.

Weaver made his comments after Tinkle announced he wanted to delay flying until October because August is the last good month for summer traffic.

"The industry historically dies in September and does not really begin to pick up until October or November," Tinkle said. He said Air Florida would be taking an "irresponsible risk" if it began flying again without $6 million in working capital.

Tinkle said the plan Air Florida outlined a week ago to resume some flights with four aircraft to 10 cities in the United States and Virgin Islands was based on getting an infusion of $7 million from Eastern Airlines.

Federal regulators, however, have not approved the airline's plan to acquire that capital by selling some Air Florida take-off and landing slots and its London route to Eastern.

'Shoppers' Rate Car Dealers, Keep Salesmen On Their Toes

DETROIT (UPI) — A casually dressed young woman enters an auto showroom and spies the model she wants. Minutes go by before she is approached by a salesman who calls her "honey" and then wanders away.

The woman, who was ready to make a purchase, angrily leaves the dealership without buying a car. Meanwhile, the dealer, who might have used a different approach, never learns of the incident. Or does he?

If the woman had been a "shopper" for Consumer Concepts, Ltd., the dealer might soon be receiving a computer printout telling him how long the woman had to wait for service, the salesman's comment and her reasons for leaving without making a deal.

The Barrington, Ill., firm, owned by car dealer Ron Mancusco, offers a new version of an old retailing tactic. "Shoppers" pose as customers but actually are monitoring service, products and sales technique.

"About 500 people a month come through our dealership. How do you know what your sales people are doing right, and what they're doing wrong?" said Mancusco.

Mancusco now has 70 dealers signed up, and the service recently has been retained by Cadillac for its dealers. Each is charged $250 a month or $3,000 a year.

Neither dealer nor sales personnel knows when a shopper may visit. This forces sales people to "treat everyone beautifully," Mancusco said.

Now, The Leveraged Buyout Bite-Sized For Individuals

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the investor who likes to be in on the latest financial trend, Dean Witter Reynolds is now offering leveraged-buyout fund.

The people behind the new investment do not take kindly to charges they're being faddish. They make a distinct effort to separate themselves from those money deals that have drawn so much fire in economic and governmental circles.

"I think the danger is in large leveraged buyouts," said John McKenna, a fund spokesman. "That's not the market we're going after. We're concentrating on established medium-sized companies."

Leveraged buyouts are a nifty maneuver for well-placed financiers, who use the company being purchased as the collateral for the loan to do the purchasing, and pay off the debt with the company's cash flow.

The buyers are thus able to acquire their target with minimal capital outlay. But critics warn they could wind up in trouble if the economy turns down and their new firm's profits can't cover the loan payments.

Dean Witter's leveraged buyout fund will acquire only companies with purchase prices in the $25 million-$75 million range, "with a good track record, generally in not-so-exciting industries," McKenna said.

"Everybody is saying the leveraged buyout boom is over. We don't think it is. We've got management team that's been doing it for 20 years and has been very successful," said McKenna.

The fund is a limited partnership, with a minimum investment of $5,000 for individuals, and $2,000 for Individual Retirement Accounts or Keogh plans.

McKenna is a director at Equus Capital Management Corp., which will administer the fund.

"A lot of large institutions are making money on leveraged buyouts," he continued. "We wanted to offer one to individual investors."

Equus, McKenna said, believes the secret of success is to avoid the realm of venture capitalists and other financial high-fliers, and stick to buying "staid, established, nonglamorous companies that produce cash."

The chairman of Equus, Sam Douglas, has had success in the past buying firms like a rice-milling company, a plumbing distributor, and the "largest producer of jail windows," he said.

Such firms often become available when their founders reach an advanced age and begin worrying about protecting their assets from estate taxes when they die.

Religion On Campus

'Access' Bill Would Bring Few Changes To Seminole Schools

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County school officials expect few problems resulting from the so-called "equal access" bill passed last week by Congress allowing student-initiated religious groups to meet on campuses during non-school hours.

School superintendent Robert Hughes says such groups are already meeting on Seminole County campuses. But he said the school board will review the bill with attorneys to see if any changes will have to be made in existing policies concerning religious clubs.

"We have had very few problems in that area and we don't anticipate any," Hughes said.

Ron Boeth, executive director of the Seminole Education Association, called the bill a "harmless" piece of legislation that ensures students of their rights of speech.

"We don't see the bill as an advocacy bill designed to promote specific religions or religious institutions," he said.

The bill, passed 337-7 in the House, was attached to another bill calling for $1 billion to be spent over two years to strengthen mathematics and science instruction in public schools. It allows students to meet before or after school for religious meetings. It also says students may invite off-campus speakers to the meetings. The bill has gone to President Reagan who is expected to sign it within a month.

Critics of the bill say it opens the nation's schools up to cults which may try to proselytize unwary youngsters.

Those fears were echoed by a former Seminole County minister and a leader of a student religious club.

The Rev. Glen Berteau, former youth minister at Calvary Assembly of God, Winter Park, started a club in 1980 called "Youth Alive" that is on eight Central Florida high school campuses, including Lake Mary, Lake Brantley and Lake Howell. The clubs meet weekly for Bible study, singing and peer counseling. He says the bill is vague, and would put pressure on principals to define what is a legitimate religious club.

"Most cults are considered churches and Christian groups ... even mediums pray to God. What would stop a coven of witches from coming on campus?" Berteau said.

Scott Nieman, 17, president of the "Youth Alive" club at Lake Brantley High School agrees saying there could be a proliferation of cults which would make the campus situation "a little wild." He said he would rather have off-campus speakers approved by the principal. "Just to make sure we don't get somebody totally off-the-wall coming to the school."

But according to Boeth, that is part of the risk of living in a democratic society.

He says groups considered dangerous and off-beat are "part of the mosaic of our country" and must also be guaranteed their rights of free speech.

Nevertheless, Hughes says the school board will continue to distinguish between those clubs "recognized as productive" and those with questionable finances and sponsorship.

Berteau and Nieman said while the bill allows their club more freedom, it was not needed because they enjoy good relationships with high school principals in Seminole County. However, the bill may help ministers in other areas who are shut out from their community's campuses, Berteau said.

Almost all agreed that the full effect of the bill, if passed, has yet to be felt and that it will probably be tested in court.

Theories Must Be Told, Not Taught

It is still a matter of grave concern to many people whether man is just a monkey who learned to shave or whether the first man was the handsome Adam we see on the Sunday school leaflets.

Those who take the first position are known as evolutionists; the second group is known as creationists. Nobody, of course, can tell you what side you must belong to. It is when the question comes up — as it has twice recently — of which position to teach young people in the schools that the worst in man comes out, be he creationist or evolutionist.

While temperatures go highest when the controversy erupts over grade-school curricula, it is not unheard of for colleges to get in some good hair-pulling on the subject.

One of the elected leaders of the Southern Baptist Convention has sharply criticized Baylor University, a Baptist college in Waco, Texas, for having on its

Saints And Sinners

faculty a religion professor who is an evolutionist.

The public schools in Columbus, Ohio, are the other arena where the battle is being fought. After a group known as People for the American Way challenged the school board's policy of allowing creationism to be taught with evolution in biology classes, the board decided to name a committee to review that policy.

As long as there are these two basic views on the origin of man, there would seem to be only one sensible way of handling the problem in the public schools — tell the pupils about both views.

That is what the present policy of the Columbus school board allows.

I use the word "tell" rather than "teach" because the word teach has in most minds the connotation of indoctrination — of implanting information and ideas that are to be learned and absorbed.

We teach our children the three R's and good manners with the end in mind that such instruction will sink in and be applied. We teach brotherhood and tolerance so that those who are taught will be led to follow those beliefs.

So it is natural that parents who believe in evolution do not want their children to be "taught" creationism.

But teaching and telling are two different things. Couldn't we tell our children about both evolutionism and creationism without scaring anyone into feeling we are trying to take over their minds?

I want my children to know about evolution. I also want them to know that there are people who don't believe in evolution, who believe the world and man were created as the Bible says.

I want them to know how such a view of the origin of the universe got started and what legitimacy, if any, it may have, both from a scientific standpoint and as a way of stating a truth that science alone can only dimly and awkwardly hint at.

It is not that the monkey story is necessarily untrue. It is just that, if man is a special creation of God, the artist may do a better job than the scientist of getting us to see this. We may need the artist's conception quite as much as the scientist's.

Science, of course, must be true to itself. It must deal only with scientific evidence. But it must not, on that account, rule out all other expressions of truth — those that cannot meet science's own criteria.

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY AUGUST 5, 1984

Because your financial gains may be small in the year ahead, it may not look as though you're making any progress. However, by this time next year, you'll realize the accumulation was substantial.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be as mindful of small expenditures today as you are of the large ones. Trivial amounts that you spend here and there can add up to a tidy sum. Want to find out to whom you're best suited romantically? Send for your Matchmaker set by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Reveals compatibilities for all signs.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strive to be patient and understanding with those in your charge today. When you get uptight, it will cause them to behave more rebelliously.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Do not broadcast another's secrets today. If you let the cat out of the bag, the person who confided in you may never trust you again.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

There is a possibility that you could be a trifle too careless or extravagant with your resources again today. Think "save," not "spend."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

It will prove wise today to be extra-mindful of your image. Don't say or do anything that could give others occasion to put you down.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Your friends won't appreciate it today if you try to impose your opinions or views on them. Give everyone freedom of choice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

To others this may be a day of rest, but you are not likely to feel fulfilled unless you use your time productively. Do something ### useful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today, do what you believe to be right, not that which is the most expedient. Ignoring your standards could lead to regrets.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

What you say may be misinterpreted by others today. Think before speaking so that you do not unintentionally offend a listener.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Keep your mind on the game if you participate in a competitive sport today. A lack of concentration will cause you to play poorly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Even if it causes you a degree of inconvenience, keep your word regarding commitments you've made to others. A promise is a promise.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

It's best not to begin a complicated task today if you are pressed for time. What you start may just end up collecting dust.

YOUR BIRTHDAY AUGUST 6, 1984

This should be an extremely favorable year for you where romance is concerned. Both you and the one you love will be on the same idealistic wavelength.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Your better qualities will be much in evidence today and this will serve to bring out the good in persons with whom you're involved. Major changes are in store for Leos in the coming year. Send for your year-ahead predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

This is a splendid day for you to entertain at your place persons to whom you're either obligated socially or with whom you'd like to discuss business.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Something hopeful is now developing for you and you may get the first inkling of it today. A friend in whom you place considerable trust will be involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

You're capable of achieving important objectives today, especially where your finances or career are concerned. Aim for the worthwhile.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

The only person you have to convince that you are a winner today is yourself. What you set your mind to is within the realm of possibility.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

This is the day to attack any problems that have been confronting you. You're especially good at solving mysteries.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

The right type of companions will help put your spirit and mind into proper balance today. Associate with those with whom you have strong emotional bonds.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Actions that you take today will call favorable attention to yourself in the eyes of authority figures who are in a position to help your career.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

When dealing with others today, try to do so with both authority and compassion. Make allowances for their frailties without being taken advantage of.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Your efforts will be rewarded today in situations where you try to improve the lot of those you love. Let your heart direct your actions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Your inclinations today will be to treat others in a fair and generous fashion, and this will prove to be the most advantageous course to pursue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Today is a day of profitable possibilities, especially in areas where you earn money by the sweat of your brow. Work and accumulate.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

If you use your thumbs, dear reader, to cover up the East and West hands in today's deal, you might enjoy seeing if you, as declarer, can correctly solve the problem. After an opening bid of one spade by East and your two-diamond overcall, both West and North bid enthusiastically, and you find yourself in five diamonds.

East's king of spades wins the opening lead and back comes a low club. Here we all certainly think alike. Does West have the ace or the queen? It certainly seems to be a straight guess, so guess away.

Did you make the contract? As you can see, the king of clubs is the winning play. There is a logical reason for playing East for the club ace. In order for you to make the contract in any event, the king of hearts must be with West. And if West does have the heart king, then it becomes almost certain that East has the club ace for his opening bid. But what if East all along had the A-K-Q of spades and the club queen, and had won the first trick in such a way as to hide the spade queen? Then his deceptive play succeeded and he probably deserves to gain by it.
