Heart Valves Can Be Replaced

DEAR DR. LAMB - Could you please write a column on heart valves (sorta etc.) for those of us who have them? Everything I read about all the new wonderful things that can be done for heart patients refers to the coronary arteries. I never hear of anyone who has a valve, especially the aortic, being replaced. From what I have seen on TV the valve replacement doesn't help much.

DEAR READER - Your letter reminded me how much things have changed. Only 10 years ago surgery on the coronary arteries was just beginning. The operations that were popular then for coronary artery disease are not even used today, having been out-

When this valve is severely damaged the valve may not close effectively and allows the blood to leak backward into the heart. Obviously the more blood that leaks backward the less effective the heartbeat is in pumping blood to the rest of your body. The valve may become so obstructed from disease that it impedes the outflow of blood. In either case, when the valve damage is trapped in a wire basket, the valve replacement doesn't help much. The common valve used is nothing more than a ball trapped in a wire basket. The opening of the basket is sur-

When the contraction is over and the heart chamber begins to relax, the blood starts to rush back into the heart. This causes the ball in the basket to slam down over the rim of the open basket and closes the opening. This way it prevents the backward leak of blood while the heart is relaxing and filling for the next contraction. The process is repeated with each heartbeat. Such operations have added many years of useful life to many patients.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a pastor's wife, and oh, how I wish well-meaning parishioners would quit feeding my husband! His clothes are bursting at the seams. He is earnestly trying to lose weight, but with all the calls he has to make and people shoving goods at him constantly, it is almost impossible for him to stay on a diet.

DEAR ABBY: OFTEN A GUEST asked you whether a hostess should ask a drop-in guest if he (or she) wants any refreshments or to just go ahead and serve something. You said, "The gracious hostess doesn't inquire - she acts. Serve whatever you want, but drop-in guests shouldn't expect a feed-in."

DEAR ABBY: I don't agree with you, Abby. It should be the privilege of the guest either to partake of refreshments or refuse. But if something is set before him, he feels compelled to eat it, lest he offend the hostess.

Youngsters Everglades-Bound

By JANE CASSELBERRY Herald Staff Writer

Nineteen fourth and fifth graders from the Instructional Enrichment Center at Idylwild Elementary School left by bus Sunday afternoon for a four-day trip to Miami and the Everglades National Park.

The youngsters, from four north Seminole elementary schools, were selected for the program because of their exceptional ability and came to the center one day a week.

Operating under the philosophy that students learn by becoming, they were assigned various professional roles. Each child in the group has selected an area to study and become "expert" in.

Officially dubbed the Mobile Field Lab, the project was made possible by a federal grant obtained primarily due to the efforts of the former project director, Nancy DuSan. Unfortunately, Miss DuSan was killed in an automobile accident in December and did not see her project in operation. The purpose of the Mobile Field Lab is to provide enrichment activities for gifted and talented students in such areas as marine biology, historic sites and ecology. The students create collections and displays to make informative presentations to teachers, parents and students in regular classrooms.

Playing at four spades, South makes the key, the heart trick. South discards a low diamond on the third heart instead of ruffing. After this, he makes the rest of the tricks with no trouble at all.

Gators SEC Baseball Challenger, For A Change

GAINESVILLE (AP)— Things are looking up for the University of Florida baseball team, off to an 11-1 season start and deep in talent.
 Starting their Southeastern Conference competition with a three-game sweep over well-regarded Vanderbilt the past weekend, the Gators appear to be a championship contender for the first time in several years.
 Coach Jay Bergman, in his second year, said Florida has improved in pitching, team speed and outfield play, thanks to an influx of six top-notch junior college graduates.

He is making no predictions but says "we have a lot of maturing pitchers and some great defense."
 The Florida pitching staff, led by four juniors, has combined for an impressive 1.71 earned run average.
 John Stampler of Jacksonville has a 3-0 record. Russ Baumgarten of Glencoe, Ill., and Bruce Baker of Tampa, Fla., are both 2-0, and Ron Crum of Harrisburg, Pa., is 2-1. Baumgarten is the only left-hander among the four.
 Empe is batting .342. The team has a combined average of .282.
 Senior infielder John Cortese of Middletown, N.Y., leads the Gators with 265 and veteran shortstop Roger Hold of Leesburg, a junior, is hitting .309.
 "When I heard players like Joe Ward, Dean Empe and change that." Florida has won three SEC baseball championships, the last in 1962.

 But the Gators haven't had a winning season since 1974 when they were 23-20. They were 23-25 in 1975 and 21-27 in 1976, Bergman's first season as coach.

Grimsley's Sports World
 By WILL GRIMSLEY

Terry: New Day, New Game
 ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Bullish Bill Terry, once the terror of the Giants, is doubtful that he would have been able to adjust to today's baseball. It is a different game — on and off the field.

"It's all cut and slash," said the 78-year-old member of the game's Hall of Fame. "Managers don't manage. You've got 200 hitters swinging for the fences. Strategy is a lost art. The way they're throwing money around is stupid."
 Terry, formerly of Memphis, Tenn. and now a successful automobile dealer in Jacksonville, Fla., made one of his rare baseball appearances over the weekend at the dedication of Reebell at Lopez Field.

He mingled with a score of other Hall of Famers — ranging from 69-year-old Stan Coveleski to 45-year-old Mickey Vernon, and including such black legends as Satchel Paige, Buck Leonard and Cool Papa Bell — watched only a fraction of the game, then rushed off to the dog track.
 He seemed long enough to deliver a rare dissertation on a game to which he devoted much of his life — 22 years of it with the New York Giants, 12 as manager.
 When he was a member of the Giants, first as a hard-hitting first baseman who was the last National Leagueer to hit over 400, then later as a pennant-winning manager, Memphis Bill reportedly had a hide of leather and a mind of steel.
 Terry has mellowed somewhat with age. He is thinner now, less imposing. His hair is gray and thinning. He is slightly stooped-shouldered and walks hesitatingly with a cane.
 But his opinions are as resolute as ever.
 "If I managed a club now I wouldn't let an agent in the room while I was negotiating with a player," he said.
 But, someone suggested, the manager does not negotiate — that's the job for the general manager.
 "We never had a general manager," Terry responded. "Mr. Stoneham (Charles Stoneham, owner of the Giants) would give me a certain amount of money and say, 'Here, this is what you have.' I had to decide who got what."
 The total Giants' budget in those days would not pay Tom Seaver's salary for a year.
 Terry said he thought baseball, a game of science, was more interesting when teams played for a single run, moving men around the bases as on a chess board.
 "We would get one run and go on defense," he said. "If we got in the game, nobody could beat us. Now it's all power, no finesse. Men hitting 275 are getting $200,000 a year. (Manager) John McGraw wouldn't give an outfielder a uniform if he didn't hit .300."
 Terry also is distressed with baseball's administration, criticizing Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for attempting to regulate Charlie Finley's sale of players.
 "Kuhn made a bad deal," he said. "Connie Mack disrupted his whole ball club and Clark Griffith sold Joe Cronin and others to save his franchise at Washington. Judge Landis (commissioner) didn't say a word."

SCC Loses, No Disgrace

Seminole Community College tennis team dropped a pair of tennis matches Monday, however there was little to be sad about as the University of Kentucky, 5-4, and Mid-American Conference Kingpin Miami of Ohio, 6-3.
 Steve Staggs beat out a punt from fourth to No. 5 with 238 points in the second and seventh innings, then pushed across the winning run in the jubilent 10th inning to lead the Blue Jays to a 3-2 victory over the University of Kentucky.
 The expansion Blue Jays are in the American League and the Expos are in the National, so the two clubs will not meet in regular season play. That adds extra excitement to Monday's exhibition matchup.
 The Expos took one-run leads on unearned runs, but Toronto came back and tied the score in the second and seventh innings, then pushed across the winning run in the jubilent 10th inning to lead the Blue Jays to a 3-2 victory over the University of Kentucky.

Altamonte Awards Contract On New City Hall Site

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

The Altamonte Springs City Commission Tuesday evening awarded a contract to begin site preparation for its proposed new federally-funded $12.25 million public safety complex, adjacent to city hall.

The site preparation work was separated from the plans for the complex to assure that construction would be under way by the U.S. Economic Development Administration (EDA) deadline of March 22.

According to the law, construction must begin within 90 days of announcement that the project had been approved for the federal grant.

Rogers Engineering and Construction was awarded contract for the site preparation at $1,026. The city's administrative co-ordinator, Robert Elmquist, said site preparation is scheduled to begin next week.

Bids for the complex construction are due to be in city hall by March 24 and to be opened on March 25.

In other business, the commission delayed at Commissioner Cal DeVone's request, adoption of an ordinance relating to burglar alarm systems and providing fees for extra false alarms.

DeVone said he is meeting later this week with the Altamonte-Casselberry Chamber of Commerce legislative committee and wanted that group to go over the proposed ordinance before its adoption.

The commissioner said the ordinance would prohibit systems employing telephones hooked directly to the police station and that he expected objections from area businessmen.

Police Chief Justus East said that during the eight months from January, 1976 to August 1976 the police department received a total of 780 burglary and hold-up alarms, only two of which were authentic.

It was pointed out that when the police department receives a burglary or burglary alarm, that two squad cars are sent to the scene with armed men.

A report to the city commission from the police department showed that during the eight month period the department received 586 false alarms from alarm malfunctions; 146 from errors and 39 from "acts of God," while only two were actual "hits" — attempts to gain entry or actual holdup.

The proposed ordinance would require payment of a $50 fee after a certain number of false alarms.

Also, the commission agreed to hold a 10 a.m. workshop Friday with Guardian Mortgage Co. officers. The mortgage firm will be completing the construction of Country Creek planned unit development.

The City Commission last week turned down a request from the mortgage firm that utility connection fees in the development in the extreme southwestern section of the city be reduced from $750 per unit to $250.

Plans are to build more than 100 single family homes in the development.

The mortgage company, in asking for the reduction in connection fees, pointed to the donation to the city of 84.3 acres of land for park and recreation, 2.5 acres for any municipal purpose at the city's discretion and a 2.5 acre site and permanent water treatment facilities.

The Commissioner Sandra Glenn said last week that the property was donated to the city in consideration of the city's annexing and zoning the tract and because the city agreed to furnish water and sewer service to some Orange County subdivisions.

Commissioners said while they are willing to talk with officials of the mortgage firm, they are not inclined toward changing their minds about the connection fees. It was also noted that the original developers agreed to pay the connection fees.

LABOR ATTORNEY KORNEICHH: "...bottom line is hostility"

Fireman Union Idea Gets 38-3 Dousing After County Scolding

By ED PRICKETT
 Herald Staff Writer

A secret ballot by two shifts of county firefighters ended today in a 38-3 vote against joining a firefighters union in Seminole County.

Firefighter Bill Bethke released the results of the ballot following a meeting between firefighters and county administrators.

Bethke stressed that only 42 of the county's 56 firemen were present for the vote. The remaining firemen who work the third shift were on duty. Bethke said firemen hope to contact those men later in the day.

Firemen at today's meeting consistently protested that only a small minority of firefighters in Seminole County favored a union.

"I don't know how many of those that small group like this can start something like this," Bern Weinthal, a county fireman, said.

Firemen decided to vote after a majority of those present today indicated they had never been in favor of a union and did not want that union organization "could be a two-year battle. The bottom line is hostility, turmoil and two years of negotiations."

The meeting was called by Neiswender after the county learned of a movement toward unionization. Differing reports list from 12 to 29 firemen who have signed petitions in favor of joining the International Association of Firefighters.

However, no one has confirmed the exact number of signatures. Fire Chief Gary Kaiser said firemen still do not have an official spokesman.

"I want to lay it on the line, I'm disappointed," Neiswender told firemen when the meeting began. The county administrator said the movement caught county supervisors "fairly flatfooted."

Neiswender also told firemen that reports of being fired for union activity "are not going to happen." He reiterated the board's emphatic opposition to unionization.

"The county is opposed to labor organizations. They do no good for employees," Neiswender declared.

Kornreich, who reportedly told firemen he's "good at what I do," said there will be no voluntary recognition on the part of the Seminole County commission. "That will not be an option," he said.

COUNTY EXEC NEISWENDER: "... (unions) do no good"

Moratorium Move Dies

Seminole County Commissioners Tuesday night killed a proposed moratorium on Spring Hammock by failing to act on a proposal by Commission Chairman Dick Williams that the commission inspect all construction permits until the comprehensive plan is adopted in October.

"No action," the commission chairman said. "I guess that's it."

Environmentalists requested the building moratorium on the environmentally sensitive hammock until the county's comprehensive plan is adopted. They said the plan will recommend leaving hammock property as it is because the hammock is a natural green belt buffer and a natural filtering system for water that drains into Soldiers Creek and into Lake Jessup.

Earlier in the day, the commission agreed to consider a plan by Williams which required commission approval of all building permits before any construction is done in the 330-acre hammock area. But when Williams brought the issue up late Tuesday night, no action was taken.

The Sierra Club and the League of Women Voters and other county agencies began protesting construction in the hammock after the commission on Dec. 14 overrode the county's professional staff and rezoned four acres near or in the hammock to organize.

"I'd like to know what in hell we've got to do," one fireman asked county officials, "to black out the image of firefighters wanting to unionize."

Firemen were advised they could show their displeasure at unionization in writing to the county. Each fireman this morning signed a petition on the union issue.

It was to be presented later today to county officials after the third shift is polled.

Earlier, Seminole County labor attorney David Kornreich had informed about 50 Seminole County firefighters that the county commission will not accept a petition for recognition of a firefighters union and that a petition to the Public Employees Relations Commission in Tallahassee will result in two years of negotiations.

In addition, County Administrator Roger Neiswender told firemen gathered at the Altamonte Sorinas Civic Center that threats of a growing labor movement have prompted the commission to take back a proposal which would have granted firemen a 5 per cent increase in wages.

Neiswender said the commissioners at Tuesday's meeting were advised by legal counsel that to go through with the intended pay raise could result in the county's being charged with an unfair labor practice because officials have been made aware of union activity among Seminole's 65 professional firefighters.

Kornreich, a labor specialist based in Miami, warned firemen

Under PERC guidelines, firemen can present the county commission with signatures of 50 per cent plus one and petition for recognition. However, the commission has the option of refusing to negotiate.

Then the petition, with signatures of at least 30 per cent of the county's firemen, may be filed in Tallahassee.

If PERC validates the petition, county commissioners must recognize the union as legitimate and begin collective bargaining.

A key element to collective bargaining under PERC guidelines is that an arbitrator's decision is not binding. This means in case of a stalemate, the governing body has the final say over a contract settlement — not the arbitrator.

Public employes unions across the state are attempting to change the law to allow for a binding decision by the arbitrator. But Kornreich said today, "It's not going to fly."

The Miami attorney said he has been in contact with the governor's office and has been assured that Gov. Askew would veto any legislation making an arbitrator's decision binding.

Questions from the firemen were few during the early part of today's session. One fireman asked if salaries in fire departments represented by unions are 33 per cent higher than non-union shops.

Kornreich answered that one can make statistics whatever one chooses. The labor attorney pointed out instances — Coral Gables and Daytona Beach — where he said the introduction of firemen unions torpedoed the departments.

SEMINOLE COACH RESIGNS

Joe Mills' resignation as head basketball coach at Seminole High School was accepted today by principal Dr. Reynolds, who indicated the job was "wide open."

Mills said he reached his decision after long consideration, and was made primarily because he wanted to enter the administration area of education. He will remain at Seminole High.

Mills, 39, coached six years at Hilliard High near Jacksonville, and 11 years at Seminole. His overall record was 219-169. Last year's SHS team was 9-7.

SEMINOLE COUNTY FIREMEN AT TODAY'S ALTAMONTE MEETING

Sewer Plant Ruling Delayed After Oviedans Protest

Seminole County Commissioners Tuesday night postponed for two weeks a decision on whether to grant City of Orlando officials permission to construct a $40-million regional sewage treatment plant near Oviedo.

About 20 Seminole residents protested building the plant, which would be constructed by the city of Oviedo using federal and city funds.

Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski made the motion to postpone action until Seminole officials have had time to study the implications of the proposal. Orlando officials said the huge plant would be financed with about $10 million in city funds, with the remainder to come from a federal grant.

Orlando officials requested rezoning of 320 acres west of SR 520. The facility has been nicknamed the Iron Bridge Plant after a dirt road that cuts through the proposed site.

Scheduled for completion in 1979, the plant would serve 500,000 residents of east Orlando, Orange County and southeast Seminole County.

But Oviedo residents complained the plant would further pollute the Little Econokchatchee River by dumping effluent into it. They also complained of noise the facility is sure to produce and feared it would lower the property value of homeowners who live nearby the proposed facility.

One resident, Richard Smithson, said he's lived all his life on the Econokchatchee.

"It used to be beautiful. We used to swim in it. I wouldn't anymore get it in now than I'd come over to your house and jump in your septic tank," Smithson told Orlando's public works director Paul Matthes.

Matthes said the Oviedo site is the most "economically feasible" and said Tuesday's commission action cost the city of Orlando $20,000 because city officials will have to take a second option on purchase of the 200 acres.

The plant, Matthes said, would be one of "the best in the southeast United States."

Matthes led a contingent of Orlando engineers and officials into the public hearing and tried to allay fears expressed by Seminole County residents.

Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff wanted to know who will "call the shots" once the facility is built. He said persons operating the plant should be responsible to elected officials. That way, he said, citizens would have a responsive body to take their complaints to in the event the plant didn't work out.

Kirchhoff pointed out "all sewage plants smell at one time or the other."

The regional plant would serve Winter Park, Maitland, Winter Springs, Casselberry, Oviedo, East Orlando, parts of Orange County and Seminole. Those governments' individual sewage plants would be phased out if they joined the regional system. If phase out didn't occur, governmental bodies that didn't join would be ineligible for federal dollars for improvements to individual systems.

The plant is designed to handle 68 million gallons of sewage per day.

Commission Chairman Dick Williams instructed County Administrator Roger Neiswender to coordinate the project for a second airing in two weeks.

Officials said they are facing an April grant deadline. Commissioner Bob French said Seminole will need "many" answers before giving Orlando permission to operate a sewer plant in Seminole County.
