Florida town gets no respect

PEMBROKE PARK — There is a there, there, but not even the residents of Pembroke Park seem to know it.

The 1.6-square-mile town was formed in 1957, but many people think they reside in neighboring Hallandale or Hollywood, and some businesses use those cities on their advertising.

"I didn't even know where I was, until I read the lease and the address said Pembroke Park," acknowledged Philip Youtie, owner of David's Bridal Warehouse.

Some town commissioners are irked that businesses don't recognize the town that serves them, and say it has cost Pembroke Park as much as $30,000.

Even Raymond Ogelsby, owner of a local plant nursery, uses Hollywood as his business address.

And he's the Pembroke Park mayor.

Ozzie the emu, come home

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Here's a riddle. What weighs 150 pounds, has a bluish head, long legs, a stringy neck and can't find its way home?

Answer: Ozzie the emu. The lanky bird resembling an ostrich has been roaming around Elmore County for nearly two weeks.

Ozzie and his mate — Harriett, naturally — got loose from their owners, Steve and Susie Gatlin, on May 4 when they escaped from their pen.

The Gatlins, like farmers nationwide, are investing in emu, hoping to supplement their incomes by selling oils from the birds, which are supposedly good for the skin. The meat is also low in cholesterol and fat.

Stop ignoring asset warns tourism boss

SANFORD — Fishing is a visitor attraction in Seminole County that could be promoted. The concept was advocated during a public forum Friday, at the Sanford Civic Center.

Barry Kenny, director of tourism for the Florida Division of Tourism in Tallahassee was the guest speaker at the 2nd Annual Seminole County Tourism Symposium luncheon Friday noon, sponsored by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Tourism Committee.

Approximately 65 persons from Sanford and other areas of Central Florida were welcomed to the event by Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, Chamber Tourism Committee chairperson Renee Lewis, and Chamber President Bob Douglas.

"Fishing has long been ignored as a tourist draw," Kenny said, "but it better not continue that way." He suggested it might be a promotion worth considering to help attract visitors to the

Longwood city official jailed, quits

By VICKI BOGGERMAN

LONGWOOD — Steven Palumbo, the parks and recreation director in the city of Longwood, turned in his letter of resignation to city clerk Jeri Zambri on Thursday, following his arrest on drug possession charges.

Palumbo, 34, of 1475 Corjeus Court in Longwood, was arrested on Monday in rural Sanford. He was charged with possession of crack cocaine.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies reported seeing a van parked in the center of 30th Street near Lincoln Avenue while responding to a suspicious vehicle complaint. A subsequent search of the van revealed a piece of crack cocaine in the passenger seat, the deputy said in his report.

Zambri, who said she accepted the resignation, said she had become aware of the arrest on Wednesday and called him to ask that he meet with her on Thursday morning.

"When he came in on Thursday morning he had a letter of resignation in his hand," she said.

Zambri said he told her that he realized she knew the situation regarding his arrest and that he felt it best if he resigned.

"There wasn't much for us to say to each other," Zambri said.

Palumbo was not available for comment on Saturday.

According to Zambri, Palumbo had been with the city's recreation department on a part-time basis for about three months when he was hired as the full-time director in December of 1991. She had no information about his previous employment.

Zambri said that the maintenance functions of the parks department have been turned over to the public works department so that the recreation areas will continue to be kept up by the city.

"I don't know what we're going to do about the programming, though," she said.

She noted that there is a possibility that the directors position may not be filled on a full-time basis.

The Stanley yam unraveled

Just let me say I can't remember something or someone's name. Before I can answer one phone call two more callers are calling. That's exactly what happened when I wrote a couple weeks ago.

I couldn't recall the first name of Mr. Stanley of the old Rodgers Hardware store on the west side of the 200 block of South Sanford Avenue. I also said I couldn't remember the emu he had, except for his young, Chum Stanley, and I couldn't even recall his first name.

Folks, I fished out almost before I got out of bed that Sunday morning.

The "Stanley" of Stanley-Rodgers Hardware was Philip C. Stanley. He was the father of four sons. The eldest was Alfred who passed away

SANFORD — The small group gathered at the corner of Park Avenue and Eighth Street in Sanford, sitting on hand-stitched quilts and gingham cloths to dine on hot dogs and cheeseburgers.

The first Sanford Historic Trust picnic brought about 25 members of the group together in the late afternoon at the start of event. The community had been invited, through flyers placed in downtown stores.

"We're real pleased with the turnout here today," said Warren Skipper, president of the trust, acknowledging all at the outset were members of the trust. "We have heard that there were so many other things going on today that other people had commitments to attend that we're real pleased with the size of this group."

Skipper added that the family atmosphere of the playground and park areas were appealing to the group.

"The idea of all this was to get everyone out to meet their neighbors," he said. "It's like a modified block party."

Charter review nearly over

Lake Mary officials may end in Monday meeting

By NICK PFENPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The review of the Lake Mary City Charter is nearing completion. Monday night's meeting could be the end.

Lake Mary formed a Charter Review Committee in late March, to examine the city charter to determine if changes might be necessary in some of the wording, additions made, or sections deleted. The committee began its weekly meetings as of March 30.

Lowry Rocket, chairman of the Lake Mary Planning and Zoning Commission, was named as chairman of the Charter Review Committee. Also serving on the Committee is J. Craig Spearman who heads the city's Business Advisory Committee. The other five members were appointed by the members of the City Commission. They include John McMenamy, Sheila Sawyer, Thomas Powers, William Greene, and Tom Mahoney.

In selecting the members of the committee, the City Commission agreed to three basic objections: proposed housekeeping changes, better defining the role of Mayor, and excluding the utility department from requiring referendums for bond financing and multi-year expenditures.

In outlining the suggested goals, Mayor Randy Morris also said, "It is not the intention of the Commission to limit the purview of your study to just those items."

Rocket explained, "We have had such excellent open

McFellin takes over in Longwood

LONGWOOD — James McFellin will officially take his seat next to the Longwood City Commissioners Monday night. It will be his first day as Longwood's new City Administrator.

"He'll really be hitting the road running," commented Longwood Finance Director Jim Coleman. "Mr. McFellin will be starting his new job on the same day as we'll be having a very important and intense City Commission meeting."

One of the major points to be brought up Monday night, deal with the stormwater management fees. It is scheduled for a public hearing during the regular City Commission meeting. The matter is expected to bring a large turnout of citizens, many of whom have spoken on the subject during several previous meetings.

Another item also on Monday night's agenda deals with another previously controversial matter, the City's solid waste franchise. That is not only scheduled for the regular meeting, but is to be brought up for discussion at a workshop meeting beginning at 6:15 p.m.

McFellin, 52, of Nassau Bay, Texas, agreed to accept the job offer on April 30. He will actually begin his employment with the City on

 In 1982. The second is Philip C. Jr., who graduated from Seminole High in 1931. Better known as simply "Phil," he's now 77, retired and resides on Plumosa Drive in Sanford. The third son is Harold. He's retired and lives in Deltona - at least that's where he hangs his hat during the dark hours. I've been told Harold is quite a fisherman. Phil likes to fish, too. But he says Harold's idea of fishing is to be on the water before daybreak and stay there until nightfall.

The fourth Stanley son was "Chum." His full name was Gordon Douglas Stanley, the physician who practiced with Dr. Van Parker who said even after "Chum" became a physician folks still called him by his nickname. Dr. Stanley passed away in 1975. His untimely death was due to bone cancer. Chum and I were classmates all through school. And, folks, the good Lord never gave this world a finer fellow. And, I'm sure I can say the same thing about all four of the Stanley boys as well as their father who I think was born with a warm smile on his face. He was friendly to everybody.

I had a dozen or so folks call me about the Stanley's and I asked everyone of them what they could tell me about the Rodgers half of that firm. I didn't get much information until I was told that Stanley and Rodgers married sisters. Early on in the hardware business Stanley bought out Rodgers and the latter moved to DeLand and went to work for Jacobs Lumber Company.

While talking to Phil Jr., he said he was really saddened to learn of the death of his old classmate, Wally Phillips. Well, Phil, you're not alone. A lot of old timers were bereaved at his passing just like so many of us were over the passing of "Gib" Edmonds. He was only 59. I suppose you could call "Gib" a mid-timer. During the years he headed up Seminole First Federal he was always there to assist you if you ever needed anything from the top man on the totem pole. The door to his office was always open.

The contributions of Wally and "Gib" to the civic life of Sanford will not be soon forgotten.

Oh, yes, one of my callers the other day was Anna DeNeff. She provided me with considerable information I'll use later. But she also told me she was a SHS graduate in 1939. I found out she had worked for Dr. Richard H. Dougherty, a local optometrist, for 27 years. "Doc," as most of us know him, has given so much of his time and talent to so many through his long association with the Sanford Lions Club. "Doc" will observe the 50th anniversary of his practice this coming August. How about that!

About those old "Way Back When" photographs The Herald has been running each week. If you have any old pictures The Herald could publish, just let me know. I'm telling you they have been overwhelmingly received by so many folks, old timers or not.

Another caller who provided information about Albert Hall, the blacksmith who was located a long time ago on the southwest corner of Sanford Avenue and Third Street - was Jim Steakley, another old timer. He isn't a native but he was raised here. He related a couple of stories I think you'll find interesting.

His dad left Tennessee years ago with the idea of settling in Jacksonville. The day he got there he nearly froze. He noticed some riverboats at anchor at the city's downtown docks just off Bay Street. The elder Steakley meandered down there and asked where they were bound. He was told they were going to Sanford. He bought passage on the "City of Jacksonville" and came to the "Gate City" as Sanford was known in those days. He got a job as a painter for the Atlantic Coast Line railroad.

Later he opened a store and service station at what was once better known as Paola Corner where old SR 46 West (now Wayside Drive) intersects with Orange Boulevard. Jim's dad ran that store for 36 years. And after he passed away, Jim's mother ran it for quite some time.

Jim graduated from SHS in 1932. He went to Sarasota where he grew celery for Palmer Farms. He was there 24 years before he returned to Sanford in 1956 and went to work for Chase & Company. Jim's married to the former Myri Pettlet of Sparta, Tenn.

While Jim and I were gabbing he mentioned Nashville. I told him I had been to Nashville many times and always stayed at the Hermitage Hotel there. He told me there was a hotel there called the Way Back When called the Maxwell House. One night President Theodore Roosevelt stayed at the Maxwell House. The following morning Roosevelt was so impressed with the coffee served him for breakfast, he lifted his cup on its side and remarked, "It was good to the last drop."

Now you and I both know how that well known coffee product got its name as well as the advertising slogan used now for almost a century.

No sale Recycling success depends on market

By JACKIE HALLPAK
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - More and more people are sorting their garbage and putting bottles, cans and newspapers aside to be picked up in curbside recycling programs. But the craze over recycling hasn't spread to manufacturers, charge environmentalists. And some local governments and haulers say they're being squeezed by a burgeoning supply and a dwindling demand.

There's no doubt there's been a steep drop in the markets for recyclable material in the last year, according to Chas Miller, manager of recycling at the National Solid Waste Management Association in Washington.

"It's like looking at ski slopes," he said. "Virtually all of the recycling laws in this country have created supply, but haven't created demand."

Ann Whitfield, executive director of the Florida Public Interest Research Group, blames the imbalance on industry dragging its feet.

"There is a gap and it's come about because local government and consumers have gotten much more excited about recycling than manufacturers have," she said.

Industry representatives, however, point out that it takes a lot longer - and more money - to build a plant to turn recyclable materials into new goods than it does to start up a curbside program. They also point a finger at the recession and at the progress they have made.

But prices are so low they threaten the survival, economically, of recycling programs, according to Gregg Sutherland, a consultant whose company represents both manufacturers and governments starting curbside programs across North America and Europe.

In the United States, collection of newspaper climbed 30 percent and prices fell 31 percent from 1987 through 1990, Sutherland said, citing internal studies at his company, Resource Integration Systems.

Collection of cardboard, an even bigger part of the recyclable garbage, climbed 19 percent while prices dropped 50 percent. Collection of office paper climbed 36 percent while prices fell 33 percent. "We have a real explosion in collection of recyclable material," said Lauri Aunan, who sits on the Oregon Recycling Markets Development Council.

But until now, attention hasn't been paid to the development of markets for raw material made out of used bottles, cans and newspapers, Aunan said.

"Nobody really looked past collection," she said. "It's been separated by the consumer and picked up by the local government," Whitfield said. "The question is what should we do with it now?"

Five years ago, there were cases of "midnight dumping" of collected recyclable garbage in landfills - but that isn't happening now, Sutherland said.

Florida may actually have it better than many states, with a major newspaper mill in its own state and a cardboard plant planned for Jacksonville, he said.

Like Pinellas, are paying to have what they collect taken off their hands, a transaction that used to bring them at least some money.

"We're paying through the nose," said Rebecca Stone-Franklin, recycling coordinator in Pinellas, which is also scaling back on the kinds of plastic it will collect.

Some counties are just storing the material in the hope that prices will improve.

"My impression is there is a lot more stockpiling going on in recent months," said Ron Hendricks, with the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation.

Since a local processor closed its doors several months ago, the county is taking the plastic it collects to a waste-energy plant, according to Steve Hiney, recycling coordinator for the Central Florida county.

Gov. Lawton Chiles hopes to help develop markets for recyclable materials.

Selling tax hard work for Chiles

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Taxes hitting enterprise zones and manufacturing equipment are proving hard to sell as Gov. Lawton Chiles tries to get a $1.35 billion tax package passed during an economic slump.

With enterprise zones one of President Bush's urban initiatives after the Los Angeles riots, it may be an area Chiles will surrender early as the budget battle escalates.

"He's said none of this is etched in stone. If something is particularly offensive and people can find a replacement for it, that's something he's willing to consider," said Chiles' press secretary, Julie Anbender.

The governor will get an idea how his tax ideas will fare when the Senate Appropriations Committee starts meeting Tuesday to prepare for the year's fourth special legislative session.

Along with 16 other items, they're supposed to complete work by June 19 on a budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Lawmakers and Chiles ended the regular session far apart on the budget.

Chiles vetoed their $30 billion no-new-taxes version. The lawmakers refused to pass nearly $1.4 billion more Chiles wants to meet growing needs in schools and social services.

Last week he announced a new plan, to end 89 sales tax exemptions and broaden business taxes, allowing a cut in the sales tax rate from 6 percent to 5 percent and raising an additional $1.35 billion.

Four of the exemptions are part of the enterprise zones set up in about 30 Florida cities that use tax incentives to encourage investment in poor city neighborhoods.

The breaks are on building materials, which would save zone businesses statewide $400,000 in the coming year; electrical energy, saving them $500,000, and property taxes, saving them $400,000. Also abolished would be a jobs credit totaling $500,000 for businesses hiring residents of the zones.

That would still leave $5.7 million of a planned $7.5 million in tax breaks intact, said Rob Anderson, spokesman for the Department of Community Affairs, which runs the programs. "The large majority of the incentive is there."

Some legislators called the Department of Community Affairs about the changes, Anderson said.

"It's not worth killing a program for peanuts," said Rep. Al Lawson, D-Tallahassee. The capital city has one zone.

Rep. Willie Logan, D-Opa Locka, also active in setting up enterprise zones, said, "As bad as we need money, I'm not prepared right now to criticize the governor's proposal."

The changes would raise less than $2 million of Chiles' planned $2.12 billion in first-year savings through ending tax breaks.

"I think that's something he'd be inclined to take a look at," Anbender said.

Released rapist assaults woman second time

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE - A man who raped a woman a second time after serving 3 1/2 years in prison for the first attack was hit with a 40-year sentence and permanently banned from the victim's hometown.

John Charette heard the judge decide his fate Friday after the 43-year-old victim took the witness stand and said she agreed to the plea bargain to avoid the trauma of a trial.

She said she understood her attacker could be free in 17 to 20 years.

"The first time this happened, I was told it wouldn't happen again. I hope it doesn't happen anymore," she said as the handcuffed Charette watched her intently. "In 20 years my children will be grown and I'll be able to move on and be safe finally."

Along with the sentence, Broward Circuit Judge Howard M. Zeidwig gave Charette 10 years' probation and banished him for life from Miramar, where the victim lives.

Charette, 28, pleaded guilty to avoid a possible life sentence if convicted in a jury trial.

Zeidwig reluctantly agreed to the plea bargain, he said.

"I would like to have been assured that he never set foot on free soil again," Zeidwig said. "I have a responsibility to protect society, but I felt a greater responsibility to her. It was she he chose twice to rape."

Miramar Police Detective Craig Scarlett interviewed Charette after the second rape. He said he shared Zeidwig's concern that the rapist was not sent away for life.

"The guy is obsessed with her," Scarlett said. "He may only serve about 10 years. And then I think he's going to get out and do it again.

"If I was her, I'd move," he said. "Because I think he'll be back."

Charette first raped the woman in October 1986 after knocking on the door of her home and forcing his way in. He also took five pairs of her panties.

Charette pleaded guilty to rape and burglary. He was placed in the sexual offenders program from Sept. 23, 1987, to May 4, 1989, when the program was discontinued. He served the rest of his time without counseling and was released on March 12, 1990.

School district tells teachers jobs gone

By VICKI DEBORGH
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Nearly 20 first-year elementary school teachers will be looking for other work come the end of the school year unless the state legislature comes up with more money for schools.

"This won't effect the students in the classroom," promised Nancy McNamara, area coordinator of elementary education. "Really it is just maintaining the status quo."

The Seminole County school district, included pink slips in with the paychecks of 18 teachers on Friday.

According to McNamara, the teachers cut were those who had been hired to replace those who were on extended leave. As the teachers on leave return, they are returned to their old positions.

"The teachers who were cut are those with the least experience," said McNamara.

The cuts were made based on seniority. Those with the least amount of time of service have been let go first. According to McNamara, some of the teachers cut have been on the job less than a month.

She said that if the teachers who were let go are rehired, and the district hopes to have the money to do so in the future, they will be brought back based on seniority as well.

However, the cuts are only the first of many expected between now and the end of the school year. As many as 100 teachers could lose their jobs, including many in the high schools and middle schools across the district.

The district has decided to put many budgetary decisions on hold until Dr. Paul Hagerly, the newly-hired superintendent, arrives for work next month. McNamara said the decision to bring back experienced teachers while letting the newly-hired ones go was not one which would bring change to the schools so it was made now.

The other cuts teacher cuts, which could come as early as Monday, are expected to follow the same process of returning more experienced teachers to the classroom while letting the others go.

The district has postponed a decision on keeping the student museum and the county environmental study center open. In addition they will allow Hagerly decide if the contracts of the coordinator of community relations and the coordinator of evaluation and testing should be extended.

The Seminole Education Association (SEA), which is the teacher's union, has expressed their displeasure in the past that the district has decided to maintain some district-level administrative jobs over the jobs of teachers.

According to McNamara, Friday's cuts were "across the board," based solely on time of service.

Chill-bikini fun

Helle Turpin, accompanied by young Jesse Trip of Sanford, was just one of the contestants in yesterday's Miss Chill Bikini contest at Flea World in Sanford. That competition was just a preview of the hot celebrations that will be at the Sanford market today. Beginning at noon, chefs from across Central Florida will stir together some of the finest chill recipes in the eighth annual Flea World Chill Cookoff for the benefit of the Central Florida Leukemia Society. About 14 cooks will vie for the title of the Best Chill in Central Florida.

So How Do I Pay For It?

I know exactly the car I want. I know the model. I know the options. Even the color and choice of fabric for the seats. What I don't know is: How do I pay for it!

I can't believe my little girl is getting married. Everything seems to go so fast. I'll have to talk to caterers. Florists. Find a band.

We've talked about redoing the kitchen for years. I think we're serious now. We've got a rough plan. Know a couple of good contractors. The only question is, how do I pay for it!

We've always lived for the weekends. Done things together. Gone camping. Now, I've got my eye on a boat. It would be perfect for us. Question is, how do I pay for it!

Just Ask.

We've been out with our realtor every weekend for months it seems. We've looked at dozens of neighborhoods. Hundreds of homes. And then last week we finally found it — the perfect house. Now, how do I pay for it!

Fair's fair

Being a member of the House of Representatives confers no immunity to commit criminal fraud or violate other laws. But neither should it subject members to prosecutorial intrusions into their privacy that would not be tolerated by any other citizen.

Yet that is exactly what will now happen as a result of the House vote acceding to demands for records by former Judge Malcolm R. Wilkey, the prosecutor brought in by the administration to look into possible misconduct at the closed House bank.

As a prosecutor, Wilkey is entitled to seek materials relevant to violations of criminal law. But Wilkey has so far presented no evidence of a crime, other than to suggest the possibility that a member may have used the House bank in a check-kiting scheme.

Wilkey, instead of pursuing specific incidents of possible wrongdoing, proposes what looks like political gill-netting. He has asked not for specific individuals, but for every record of the closed House bank — every check, deposit slip and monthly statement, and not just those of suspected wrongdoers, but of everybody who had contact with the checking service, including over-drafters, non-overdrafters, members' spouses and family, reporters and members of the general public.

Wilkey and Attorney General William Barr justify this as normal procedure when investigating a "troubled financial institution" or a bank where there is "widespread abuse."

But the House bank was not "troubled," in the sense of a failed thrift and its policy of allowing interest-free overdrafts was not an "abuse," except in the perception that members of the House enjoyed a perk not available to the general public.

The biased search by Wilkey raises troubling issues about the separation of power between the executive and legislative branches, not to mention the Justice Department's political motives in this inquiry.

The House gave in to Wilkey's demand because members feared that standing by their privacy rights would be perceived as an attempt at a cover-up. That's understandable. But so is their fear that, if the Justice Department is allowed to peer into every member's financial records, there will soon be leaks about far more personal things.

With a partisan Justice Department that once leaked false but damaging information about former House Leader William Gray, that is not an idle or paranoid worry. If Wilkey's investigation is turned to such partisan purposes, it will be worse abuse than anything that happened at the House bank.

Sanford, forever the friendly city

Mayor Bettye D. Smith of Sanford has lived here for the past 34 years. She and her husband, Dr. Robert Smith, and their two sons moved here from Jacksonville. Dr. Smith fulfilled his obligations to the Navy while living there. They became acquainted with Sanford and moved here when Dr. Smith's tenure with the Navy was satisfied. At that time their son John was 8, and Robert was 3. Cary, their youngest son, was born in Sanford.

Mayor Smith's introduction to politics came in 1982 when she opposed Rep. Art Grindie for a seat in the State House of Representatives. Her second venture into politics came in 1984 when she was elected mayor of Sanford. Smith was the first lady ever elected mayor in the city's history.

Mayor Smith recalled her first term in office and how grateful she was to her fellow commissioners for their encouragement and support, particularly Dave Farr.

Sanford is a city of great charm, character and history. Park on Park is a living testimonial to the friendliness of the people living in this city.

The citizens of Sanford repeatedly volunteer their time, talent and energy to preserve all that is uniquely Sanford and to prepare for positive change.

Sanford is in the process of making dynamic changes that will accentuate our assets. Our lakefront area is the envy of many, many cities and a great deal of development along the lakefront is not anticipated. Rather, preservation and renovation of various edifices has been at the forefront of our changes.

The Cultural Arts building was renovated and is often utilized for wedding receptions. Young couples marrying at the gazebo in Centennial Park often reserve the Cultural Arts Center for their reception (due to the proximity of the two). There is a minimal charge for using the Cultural Arts Center.

Agreement has been reached relative to the changes that will be made to the Henry Sanford Museum. Construction is imminent.

Mayor Smith indicated that Sanford's growth potential lies more in the commercial and industrial areas rather than in residential. Approximately 41 percent of property in the city is tax exempt. These exemptions include churches and governmental buildings. There is also the $25,000 homestead exemption.

Construction of the shopping mall (at I-4 and S.R. 48), to be called the Seminole Town Center, might be initiated before the close of this year. A mall will create jobs for citizens and revenue for the city.

The Duany recommendations for Sanford are also under consideration. City planner Jay Marder is working with members of the Historic Trust to determine if the recommendations are best suited for Sanford and to prioritize their implementation. These will then be presented to the commissioners for review and action.

Mayor Smith is very optimistic about Sanford's industrial and commercial growth potential. She firmly believes that Sanford is progressing along the pathway to realizing its full potential.

Survival: whose parents best?

BOSTON — My young friend celebrated her first Mother's Day a little ahead of schedule, or at least a little ahead of her due date. It is going to be a prenatal event. Her table will be decorated with a sonogram, and her labors toasted with something decaffeinated.

Like many women her age, 30, and this age, 1992, she has planned for this parenthood, although "planned" is far too lame a word. My friend has nested with more attention to detail than the robin on my walnut tree. Her child will come genetically tested, gender-known, prenamed, untouched by a drop of alcohol or single pesticide-infested piece of fruit.

She and her husband have readied their son's first environment with the same degree of attention. They have been through an entire EPA list of dangers. They have tested the house for radon and the nursery for lead paint and checked with Consumer Reports for the ranking of cribs and high chairs. They have installed an intercom and read up on everything from breast-feeding to the safest sleeping position for infants.

I watch their attention to the details of this birth with affection and memories. They are creating a world in which their boy will be both safe and central. Soon enough, my friend will be wearing the dazed look of new motherhood, honed to every cry of the child now housed happily in its own contained unit.

We are programmed to pay such attention to our newborns. In our species, it isn't so much the survival of the fittest as the survival of those with the fittest parents. We are expected to circumscribe our adult world to the space within carabot of our infant. As a society, we give new mothers some dispensation from the wider world, some maternity leave from worldly concerns.

But my Mother's Day carries different thoughts. I am on the other end of motherhood, beyond the nursery, the finger-painted hand pictures, the sticky trays of breakfast in bed.

My daughter is now a young woman on the other side of the continent and the other end of the phone line. I cannot design the world she sees from her window in Los Angeles, a view of a city gone up in smoke and rage and alienation.

We talk this past week on our AT&T intercom as two adults. Incredulous at the Rodney King verdict, dismayed at the violence, conscious of the painful irony of being at risk from people whose sense of injustice we share. I remember I was pregnant when Martin Luther King was killed and the streets erupted. Nothing has changed, she replies. I tell her what is different. She tells me what is not. We do not disagree much.

In our conversation I think about how much time and energy in life is focused on the private venture of child-raising. The dirty little secret of motherhood is that if you gave us — me too — a choice between saving a building full of people or saving our own, we would walk away holding our own child's hand and breathing a sigh of relief.

Most of us start out like my pre-mother friend, with the central illusion that we can raise our children in the womb of family life.

They are our private property. We will protect them, raise them according to our values, fully-formed and ready to install. We believe that if everyone raised their own child right — lit just one little candle — we could change the world.

But we also learn, the hard way, as our children leave the consumer-tested crib one by one, that we have to follow them. It isn't enough to worry about grades if the schools are falling apart. It isn't enough to feed our children vitamins if hazardous waste is dumped in the ground. We can't build a fence high enough to protect them from the stench of racism or the reach of war.

The central paradox of motherhood is that while our children become the absolute center of our lives, they must also push us back out into the world. Today's much-heralded return to the pleasures and pressures of family life sometimes seems like a retreat. But motherhood that can narrow our lives can also broaden them. It can make us focus intensely on the moment and invest heavily in the future.

And this past Mother's Day I wanted to tell my friend, the pre-mother, as she puts the very last elaborate touches on her son's nursery: don't forget the world. Before you know it — take my word for this — it will be his world.

We are programmed to pay such attention to our newborns.

Great Society deserves credit

WASHINGTON — Days before Los Angeles exploded, an unemployed Appalachian coal miner was charged with murder in the fatal poisoning of his 3-year-old daughter. What's the connection between the biggest urban riot of the century and a Kentucky murder charge?

The coal miner's name is Tommy Fletcher, and it was his humble house in the Appalachian foothills 30 years ago that Lyndon Johnson used as a backdrop to unveil his war on poverty.

On April 24, 1964, Fletcher was 38 years old and was scraping to support a large family. He had been out of work for two years. Before being jailed recently, Fletcher lived in the same tar-paper house that Johnson turned into a launching pad for the Great Society.

At the time, Lady Bird Johnson wrote Fletcher, saying that he had "been chosen to illustrate the human toll the declining mining industry had taken on these Appalachian families."

Dan Quayle and Martin Fitzwater seem to be the only two government officials who are willing to disparage the accomplishments of a program that, however flawed, worked with stunning and long-lasting precision for the poor.

But it is Johnson, a ghost from the past, who has become front-page news in the fortnight since flames engulfed the City of Angels. Johnson was in fact a ghost who was haunted by ghosts — including his fear that he faced an early death and had little time to see his dreams to fruition.

The Quayle-Fitzwater remarks touched off a scorching political debate about the war on poverty and the president who propelled it.

Two men who observed Johnson up close were former aide Bill Moyers and fellow Texan and former Speaker of the House Jim Wright.

When asked how Johnson would have replied to the Quayle-Fitzwater rebuke, Moyers told us: "I think he would snort, chortle and say that's politics as usual. He'd say some of what we did failed and some of what we did worked, and you can't be that simplistic only if you're a partisan seeking cheap political advantage."

Johnson lived and governed with abandon, a boundless energetic leader who wined men half his age. "He would wake up in the morning and before you had your first cup of coffee he would talk to 10 senators. He just had a boundless enthusiasm for the challenge of the day," said Moyers.

Even before his election as president, Johnson harbored dark premonitions about his health. When he suffered a massive coronary and returned to the Senate, he took to carrying around a small card, resembling a driver's license, which he would pull out of his pocket and proudly display to show that he had recovered. He called it his cardiographic certificate.

Johnson saw his presidency as a race against the clock — against his health, against the rising resentments of blacks, against Congress and even against his own health.

Moyers explains, "He (Johnson) moved with great rapidity on the Great Society because he knew that any presidential mandate is short-lived. So his aggressiveness on the legislation was for political reasons. But he did, beyond that, have a premonition of an early death because it ran in his family. I think the right question is, did he not run for a second term because of his fears that he might not survive. I think the answer to that is yes. He didn't think he would live a second term, and he was right, probably."

Johnson lived and governed with abandon.

Sanford and Seminole County areas.

"You don't need large theme parks like your southern neighboring county," he said. "If you had something that big, you would probably end up in land problems and many other situations you might not want to get involved with."

He suggested, "Another way you may attract visitors is by improving golfing in the area." He gave an example of an area outside of Florida where funds being held for government retirement money have been used to develop major golf courses. "I'm not suggesting anything like that," he said, "but the golf idea might be worth looking into for this area."

Prior to Kenny's talk, Seminole County Tourist Development Council chairman Jack Wert discussed the "World Cup" soccer matches coming to Orlando. "Here in Seminole County, he said, "we are trying to be selected for the permanent training headquarters for the event." He added, "We already have the largest soccer complex in Florida with 14 fields, 44 acres of property, and parking space for over 500 cars."

Wert explained, "As far as I know, there is only one other city being considered in addition to Sanford, and that's San Francisco."

To help obtain the headquarters, Wert announced a meeting scheduled for Monday with World Cup officials, at AAA headquarters in Lake Mary. "We'll give them a helicopter tour of the area and show them just how great Seminole County really is," he commented.

Kenny spent much of his talk explaining the state-wide tourism situation. "We're expanding," he said. "We already have Florida Tourism offices in a number of areas of the world including London, Tokyo, and Brazil, and we are planning to open more in Toronto, and Frankfurt, Germany."

Kenny commented, "The money to operate these offices plus all of our tourism promotion comes from a surtax on car rentals." He reported the rentals brought in about $13 million per year for tourism, "but that's a drop in the bucket when you consider all we have to do," he said.

"During 1990," he told the group, "the State took in over $28 billion dollars from tourism, and produced 800,000 jobs." He added, "Tourist taxes alone brought $1.7 billion into our coffers."

Bringing the situation back to the local level, he added, "Too many local tourism councils still need to get their act together, but here in Seminole County, you folks know what you are doing, and who you are going after, that pleases me very much."

The gathering at the Civic Center was highlighted by display tables from various Sanford and Seminole County area tourist related operations including the Central Florida Zoo, discussion and cooperation by the members of the Committee that we have already been able to complete our review." He added, "We'll be meeting again Monday night, but it's just to go over everything we've done thus far, and be certain everything is ready for presentation."

The next step will be a workshop joint meeting between the Committee and the members of the Lake Mary City Commission. "From that point on," Rocket said, "it will come up for a regular Commission meeting to be voted on." He expects the workshop can be arranged by May 28th, with the Commission to hear the results as early as the first City Commission meeting in June, scheduled for the 4th.

Rocket commented, "Until we bring the matters up for a workshop discussion, we are not ready to go into specifics, but the committee has done some excellent work, and we are certain it will be to everyone's advantage."

The final meeting of the Charter Review Committee Monday night, will begin at 7 p.m., in the commission chambers of the Lake Mary City Hall. The meeting is open to the general public.

Monday morning, City Clerk Jeri Zambri has been serving as acting City Manager since the first of the month. Don Terry, who had been terminated by the City Commission early this year, resigned effective April 30.

City Finance Director Jim Coleman commented, "He and his wife actually moved in to the Landings, less than a mile from the City Hall, on May 8th."

Coleman added, "The McFellins have apparently been very active in the Foster Home program in Texas, and were only here a few days before they made some contacts with the local programs."

McFellin will start his new job at an annual salary of $50,000. After 90 days, the salary level will increase to $52,000, and move upward again to $54,000 after six months of employment. Monday night's City Commission meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., in the commission chambers of the Longwood City Hall.

The younger children skampered to the playground equipment at the elaborate Park-on-Park play facility across the green area. Older boys and some of the men engaged in some game that seemed to combine baseball and football.

Skipper said that the Sanford Historic Trust had attempted to coordinate yesterday's party with the national Historic Preservation Day and coordinated the local gathering with the theme of celebrating heritage.

"There's a lot of heritage in Sanford," he said. "It's all around us here."

A black dog, tethered on a solid chain, began to strain against his restraint as the cheese burgers wizzled on the grills. Skipper, his clothes covered by a red apron emblazoned with the group's logo, checked their progress and rearranged the coals of the fire.

"We have, in the past met in the homes of various people for slide shows or things like that," he explained. "We have not tried this picnic concept, but I like this."

The public facilities available in Sanford, Skipper said, are a part of the community that the historic trust wants to make the public aware of.

"This is just one more thing that makes Sanford appealing," he said. He added that the playground atmosphere encouraged a real family-like feeling at the Saturday get-together.

"I like that," he said. "We've got young folks and older folks all together here. That's something we'd like to encourage."

Event to raise money for Hopper on May 30

By NICK PPRIFAUF
 Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Efforts continue toward the eventual restoration of the old Hopper Academy School. Financing is still the main concern.

The latest money raising effort will be a Hopper May Day Festival, on May 30, sponsored by the Community Improvement Association of Sanford. The event will be a day long celebration with food, fun, entertainment and a giant flea market.

Charles Rowe, president of the CIA observed, "It's been a two-pronged effort, getting the legal details worked out, and obtaining enough money to do the restoration."

Rowe said, "We have recently received our Environmental Review from the County, which is one report we needed in order to start this project." He added, "The Seminole County School Board has agreed to transfer the property to the City of Sanford, and the City has agreed to transfer it to the CIA."

He added, "After we actually get control of the old school, we can start the actual restoration project, if we have the money."

"So far," he said, "we have raised about $10,000. We received another $25,000 worth of in-kind commitments from various business leaders, and the County has given us $100,000 from the Community Development Block Grant Program."

Rowe said, "We will still need about $50,000 more if we are to really put it into good condition"

Once the building has been restored, the CIA has discussed the possibility of using it as a cultural center.

The school, originally called Harper, was built in 1917 as a high school, and was later converted to a grammar school for black students. It has been closed since the early 1980s.

The CIA is now looking for persons who would like to participate. Tables at the flea market are available for a donation of $15 each, as well as donations to the overall celebration. Tables should be reserved as early as possible. Contact Rosa Lee McCoy, 322-4802, Elaine Crumty, 322-4353 ext. 133, or Bernard Mitchell, 322-5212.

The CIA Hopper May Day Festivities will be held from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m., in the 1100 block of Pine Avenue in Sanford.

Urban aid rekindled

Mayors finally finding an audience in Congress

By WILLIAM H. WELON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Ray Flynn, Boston's combative Democratic mayor, was making a familiar plea last week as he worked the halls of Congress seeking aid for cities. The difference this time, he says, is people were paying attention.

"I've been coming here for years," Flynn said. "I've never been more frustrated — but I've never been more listened to."

The shrinking share of federal money flowing to America's cities has been a complaint of mayors for most of the past dozen years of the Reagan and Bush administrations.

As the riots in Los Angeles focused the nation's attention on the profound problems of the cities, Flynn and other mayors found themselves with an unexpected opportunity to spotlight their decline.

According to the U.S. Conference of Mayors, direct federal aid to cities has declined 65 percent since Ronald Reagan took office in 1981, if adjusted for inflation.

In eight major program areas cited by the mayors, the level of federal aid fell from $23.7 billion in 1981 to $14.1 billion in the current fiscal year.

Under President Bush's proposed budget for fiscal 1993, the number would decline to $13.1 billion.

Had the programs been maintained at the rate of inflation since 1981, they would now total $37.3 billion.

For New York, that would have provided an additional $5.9 billion this year, Mayor David Dinkins figures.

"In my city alone, had urban investment merely been kept at its 1980 level, we would have received $33.7 billion dollars more during the 1980s," Dinkins said.

Money for subsidized housing isn't counted as direct aid to cities, since it flows in different and more complicated ways. But it has been a major source of income for the new families that can be accommodated yearly in subsidized housing.

According to the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, some $26.7 billion was authorized in fiscal 1990 for assisted housing, including new construction, substantial rehabilitation and rent subsidies. In 1991, the figure was $6.5 billion, a decline of more than 80 percent.

In terms of benefits, the federal government in 1990 paid for the addition of 231,000 units of new assisted housing. In 1991, the government was funding the addition of 75,000 new units, according to the Conference of Mayors.

Defenders of the housing budget argue that more people are in public and subsidized housing now than 12 years ago. Critics, however, say the point is that fewer new families are able to be provided with assisted housing — at a time when demand is greater.

"If we kept funding levels where they were at 1980 and adjusted for inflation, we would have received an extra $33.7 billion dollars more during the 1980s," said

McCollum maneuvers his bill on term limits

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — U.S. Congressman Bill McCollum, R-Longwood, has attempted an "end-run" pass to move his dormant term-limit bills out of a congressional panel where they have languished for 10 years.

McCollum said he would file a petition to get the two constitutional amendment bills out of the Civil and Constitutional Rights Subcommittee and directly to the floor of House of Representatives for a vote. McCollum was joined by Minority Whip Newt Gingrich, R-Georgia, and 10 other congressmen, according to a statement.

"It is obvious that our forefathers did not intend for members to serve for a lifetime," McCollum said. "When terms of office are unlimited too much power tends to accumulate in the hands of too few for too long."

The petition process will require 218 signatures for a floor vote. McCollum aide Don Morrissey, admitted Friday it may be a tough battle for McCollum, who is seeking re-election this year after serving 12 years.

"The public is a lot more aware of the issue now," said Morrissey. "So I think he's got the most support of any time."

McCollum has led a private group, the Committee on Limiting Terms, for 10 years. Morrissey said the group seeks to promote term-limitation to the public to put pressure on Congress to pass the amendment.

Congressmen may serve as many two-year terms as the voters allow. Senators may be electable to an indefinite number of six-year terms. One McCollum bill would limit congressmen to six two-year terms and senators to two six-year terms. The other bill would limit House members to three four-year terms and Senate members to two six-year terms. McCollum has filed the bills each year he has been in office.

Mystery donor portrayed himself as GOP insider

By MICHAEL HIRSH
and YUKI KASEYAMA
Associated Press Writers

TOKYO — A Japanese-born California businessman who donated $400,000 to the Republican Party used his GOP connections to win unusual assistance from U.S. diplomats for a foreign consortium, according to diplomatic sources in Tokyo and Hong Kong.

The businessman, Michael Kojima, also attempted to trade on his supposed prestige as a Republican contributor and insider to sell his services as a consultant, and to ask the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo to help him get money from Japanese banks, the sources said.

Government officials and businessmen interviewed in Tokyo, Hong Kong and the United States portrayed Kojima as a name-dropper who carried around a photo of himself with Bush at the White House and brandished a sheaf of testimonial letters from GOP politicians.

Kojima, a sometime restaurateur, exporter and consultant, has a history of heavy indebtedness and secretive dealings that have proved an embarrassment to the Republicans since he surfaced as the largest donor at a major fund-raising dinner for President Bush on April 28.

No one contacted in Tokyo, Hong Kong or California, where he lives, knew the source of Kojima's funds, and he himself has been unavailable for comment since the dinner despite repeated attempts to reach him.

A principal of the consortium, David Pun of PICY Hong Kong Ltd., said Kojima told him he could get $1 billion from Japanese sources "on a personal basis." PICY, a group of 30 Hong Kong-born Chinese, most with Canadian passports, hoped to win a piece of an airport project.

"When we hired him on a contingency basis, the only reason was that he was attached to the U.S. Republicans, and he was a member of the Presidential Roundtable," Pun said in a telephone interview from London. The roundtable is made up of contributors who have given at least $5,000 to the

"When President Bush's people say give this guy the time of day, we give him the time of day. We did our best and got him the meetings he wanted."

—A high U.S. official

National Republican Senatorial Committee.

About the same time Kojima was telling Pun he had Japanese funding early last fall, he was asking officials at the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo to introduce him to Japanese bankers, according to a U.S. official in Tokyo.

Kojima said he was putting together a consortium of U.S. businesses to bid on airport construction projects, said this official, who spoke only on condition of anonymity. But U.S. officials were wary of Kojima because his plan included no recognizable American companies.

"He asked to be introduced to Japanese banks," said the official. "I said, 'Look, if you want an introduction to Japanese banks, you obviously want to talk to Japanese politicians.'"

"He melted. He didn't want anything to do with Japanese politicians," the official said. "Our mandate is to promote U.S. exports. I didn't see that there. He wanted to use the embassy's name."

Also in the early fall, the Republican National Committee at Kojima's request wrote a letter to the U.S. Consulate in Hong Kong asking it to help him, a high-ranking consulate official said. The official refused to identify the letter's signer.

The official, who also spoke on condition of anonymity, said Kojima also personally asked the consulate to introduce him to Hong Kong airport authority officials to help PICY.

"When President Bush's people say give this guy the time of day, we give him the time of day. We did our best and got him the meetings he wanted" with Hong Kong officials, he said.

Recession adds to worker stress

MINNEAPOLIS — The recession has turned companies into pressure cookers for nearly half of American workers, who feel they must prove their worth to hang on to their jobs, according to a study released today.

"Stress is running like a fire through the American workplace and the recession is adding fuel to it," said Peggy Lawless, research project director for Minneapolis-based Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., which conducted the study.

"Over-stressed employees are less able to perform their jobs and more afraid to leave them," she said.

Four out of 10 workers said their jobs are very stressful or extremely stressful, and 39 percent said they are thinking about quitting, according to the survey of 1,299 employees from randomly selected companies.

Forty-six percent said they worry about their jobs and feel they must prove their worth.

Of those who said they were highly stressed, 65 percent said they suffer from exhaustion, and 45 percent said they had insomnia.

The survey was completed in March. The margin of error was 3 percentage points.

Bank closure could mean plus or minus downtown

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce said the vacancy that will be created by the closing of the downtown Federal Trust Bank may send a negative image to prospective downtown businesses, but then, it may offer an opportunity, he said.

"It will definitely leave an empty tooth in a smile," said Dave Farr, chamber director. "Anytime you have a vacant building, you have an opportunity. But by the same token, a vacant space may create a negative about the downtown prospects."

Thursday, Federal Trust officials announced they would close the six former branches of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Seminole County next Friday and return them to the Resolution Trust Corp. Letters were mailed to customers Wednesday and offered to maintain their Federal Trust accounts at the bank's single central Florida location — in Winter Park.

The failed thrift had opened six branches in Seminole and Volusia Counties. Their main branch was located in 20,000-square-foot of leased space at 312 West First Street.

Federal Trust, an Amelia Island, Fla. bank, acquired First Federal April 3 from the RTC which had assumed control of the failed 57-year-old thrift one year earlier. When Federal Trust acquired First Federal, they paid $12.3 million to assume control of $123.4 million deposited by approximately 23,700 customers. They also acquired $84.2 million in residential mortgage loans.

Federal Trust also acquired $39.5 million in assets, including loans and the branch locations. Of that amount, $30.6 million was subject to a RTC "put back" condition which allowed the bank to return any of the undesired assets to the RTC within 90 days.

Federal Trust spokesman Anne Coonrod declined to say what price the RTC sought for the branches. An RTC spokesman said the information could not be released.

Dan Hall, leasing agent for the 80,000-square-foot office building housing the main branch said the RTC will become liable for the remainder of the lease period.

"But if they don't have any money, I guess we're left holding the ticket," said Hall.

Hall said the remainder of the five-story building is virtually 100 percent leased.

J. Todd Williams, president of Security National Bank, said the Altamonte Springs bank bid for First Federal, but lost out to Federal Trust. Security announced Wednesday it would open a Sanford branch in the former Freedom Bank location at 201 N. Park Ave. in June.

"It's unfortunate," said Williams. "We planned to keep all of locations. We feel there is a very good market in Seminole County for a community bank."

Williams also had grim news for the 35 to 40 former First Federal employees that will be laid off as a result of the closing.

"As you know, there have been quite a few consolidations in recent times: Freedom, Southeast," said Williams. "It's a very tough market out there for career banking people."

Williams said Security will advertise this weekend for two clerks for the new office. In light of the Federal Trust announcement, Williams said his institution may seek one additional employee.

Movie company repaints Penneys

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — Having a movie filmed in a parking lot has many advantages. The Sanford Plaza is still receiving benefits from a movie shot early this year.

A movie company is paying to have the exterior of the J.C. Penney store repainted.

"Wilder Napalm," starring Dennis Quaid, Debra Winger and Arliss Howard, was mostly filmed in the parking lot area in the Sanford Plaza. In front of the J.C. Penney store, construction of a carnival set started in December, and filming continued through the end of February.

Although the Penney store managed to stay in operation during the entire filming, much of the parking area was being utilized, and large numbers of people were going to the area to watch the movie making rather than do their shopping.

According to Penney Manager John Ballquette, "As I understand it, part of the agreement the movie company made with the landlords of this building was that it be repainted and refurbished when the movie was finished."

Ballquette commented, "That's what they are doing right now, but it has nothing to do directly with J.C. Penney, rather it's an agreement between Baltimore Pictures which made the movie, and the G.F. company which has control of the building."

"What we would really like to see done," Ballquette observed, "is to get some business to move back into the Sanford Plaza, and get this area growing again."

The plaza merchants began leaving when it was expected the Central Florida Expressway would go through the area and bring about a demolition of the stores. The route was later changed through a relocation of the expressway as well as exit ramps onto Highway 17-92, and the plaza is presently scheduled to remain intact.

Chamber campaign continues

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — The membership drive of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce moves into second gear Monday. All area businesses will become open territory for the membership seekers.

The drive started with a kick off rally on May 5. A total of 39 teams were formed, each containing one Board member, and one or two non-board members. Each team selected an average of three business names from a list, to be contacted for possible membership.

Chamber Vice President and Membership Chairman Larry Strickler said, "I've talked to a couple of Board members and I'm hearing some very favorable reports." The goal for the drive announced at the beginning was 92 new members for '92.

"We have not requested the teams to give us an on-going report," Strickler said, "so we don't know how many persons have been contacted, or how many may have been signed up at this point."

Chamber Executive Director Dave Farr said, "The teams are being very quiet about who they have signed up." He added, "I think what some of them plan is to make a big announcement near the end of the drive, and try to surprise the other teams."

With the goal this year of strictly obtaining new memberships, and the drive being conducted as it is, Farr commented, "This is becoming a very exciting campaign and I'm looking forward to seeing the outcome."

Beginning Monday, the various business names on the list will be open for contacting by any of the teams. "We've kept it at a one-on-one level up until now," Strickler said, "but starting Monday, anyone may contact anyone."

The Chamber presently has slightly over 800 members. Strickler and Chamber President Bob Douglas have indicated the goal is to raise the level to 700 by the end of this month.

The new member membership drive will conclude on May 29, with a victory cook-out at the chamber building.

New restaurant welcomed

The Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce staged a ribbon-cutting ceremony to welcome Doro's International Restaurant which opened recently at Lake Emma Road and Greenwood Boulevard. At the event were John Dietz, (left) Karen Miller, and Kathie Ragan, of the chamber; Sandra Blackwell, Keith Walters, Steve Underwood, and Jon Whitehouse, of Doro's; Diane Parker and Mike Curasi, of the chamber; B.J. Holt and Janille Hartmann, of Doro's; and Robin Sigel, of the chamber. The restaurant has been open since April 27.

New bank announces board of directors

SANFORD — "It takes many people to oversee the operation of a banking institution." So said J. Todd Williams, president of the new Security National Bank, to be located at 201 North Park Avenue in Sanford.

Williams has served for the past two years as vice president at the Altamonte Springs facility, and will be moving into the top position at the Sanford branch.

Williams commented, "We hope to get the Sanford branch business in operation by June 8, as soon as the old Freedom Bank building can be refurbished and remodeled."

An eight member Advisory Board has been named for the Sanford area, headed by John Y. Mercer. The bank, a full service operation, was formed by Michael Sheffey in 1986.

Although each of the five Security National Banks will be served by an advisory board of local residents, the overall operation of the bank is through a Board of Directors consisting of 19 business and professional leaders from throughout the Central Florida area.

The major Board of Directors for the Security National Bank Corporation include the following:

Albert Burnett, of Contemporary Sales; Mary Demetre of Demetre Builders, Mitchel Laskey of the Evergreen Financial Group; Marcia Tompkins of Tompkins Investment group; Michael Sheffey, CEO and president of the Security National Corporation; Fred MacLeod, with MacLeod Industries; John Jennings of JM Diversified Investments; Phil Tasker, Sr. VP of Security National Corporation; and John Ritch, attorney with Overstreet, Rich & Thacker.

Also included are Fred Cumbee II, attorney with Miles & Cumbee; Dale Dettmer a partner in Krasny & Dettmer; Steve Foreman, owner of Fringe Benefit Plans; Burton Bines, with Florida Residential Commission; Ben Sibley with Huckleberry, Sibley & Harvey; Gerald McGratty Jr., of Enfusion Therapeutics of Central Florida; Philip Crosby of Crosby & Associates; Larry Matthews, partner with Matthews, Smith & Ralley; Bert Roper of Roper Groves; and Jeffrey Schenck, president of Schenck Company.

Seminole MoneyTree tells plans

By NICK PFEIFAU

LAKE MARY — The Seminole MoneyTree is planning on expanding. Louis J. DiPaolo has taken over as president of the organization, effective April 1.

The MoneyTree, founded by the late Gib Edmonds, has been operating as a residential and commercial mortgage loan operation since 1983 at its same location, 549 W. Lake Mary Boulevard.

DiPaolo explained, "We basically handle first and second standard first mortgages as well as non-conforming mortgages."

He was born and raised in Philadelphia, attended high school in Florida, and graduated from the University of Florida. He has been in the Central Florida area for the past six years.

"Gib personally trained me in this business," he said, "and I'm confident I will be able to serve his former customers as he would have done."

DiPaolo purchased the business from Edmonds just one month before his death.

"I plan to continue serving Gib's previous contacts,"

Louis J. DiPaolo, new president of the Seminole MoneyTree operation, 549 W. Lake Mary Boulevard, in Driftwood Village.

DiPaolo said, "as well as expanding on them and obtaining additional ones."

He observed, "We have a definite growth plan, but we'll probably keep the staff and the actual facility right where it is at this point for the time being."

He added, "We have an extremely close staff and work well together." The staff consists of six persons, five of which are brokers.

"Our main goal right now is to make the Seminole MoneyTree as big as we can get, as an independent operation, to serve the Sanford and Lake Mary areas."

The Seminole MoneyTree is located in Driftwood Village, in Lake Mary.

Testimony on toll-free calls to Orlando finished at PSC

J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Testimony before the Public Service Commission was concluded in Tallahassee Friday to consider the request by Lake Mary, Sanford and Seminole County to extend Orlando's calling area to north Seminole County.

PSC attorney Angela Green said testimony concluded with attorneys questioning Southern Bell Telephone staff and PSC communications specialist Rick Cimerman.

Green said the testimony concluded the public input stage of the case. Lake Mary, Southern Bell and United Telephone attorneys must submit legal arguments by June 22. PSC staff will review the "briefs" and all of the previous testimony and comments and make their final recommendation Aug. 6. The full PSC will meet Aug. 18 to decide the case.

Lake Mary, joined by Sanford and the county, has asked the PSC to require Southern Bell to extend "toll-free" calling service between Orlando and north Seminole County and to extend 25-cent call service between Apopka and north Seminole County.

The government officials were joined by dozens of residents and business representatives at an extraordinary hearing before the full PSC board in Lake Mary Wednesday. The principle message was metropolitan Orlando now includes north Seminole County as many residents of one area work in the other. North Seminole County Business owners said the high tolls limited their southward expansion.

Southern Bell and United Telephone officials have argued the numbers of people calling between the north Seminole County and Apopka and Orlando areas are too low to warrant the elimination of tolls.

PSC staff disagree with Southern Bell's position and have recommended a "25/25" plan with a "regrouping" charge. The 25/25 plan is a short-term increase of 25 percent on monthly basic service to allow the north Seminole County customers to call an additional 245,000 telephone numbers without paying a toll. The regrouping charge is an additional charge to pay the telephone company's basic expense of serving a larger calling area.

The effect of the PSC recommendation would be to increase the $9.50 residential rate to $12.87 and the basic business rate from $25.75 to $34.44. It would then be lowered to $10.30 for residences and $28 for businesses.

Green said the 25/25 add-on has rarely lasted more than four years. Surprisingly, a Southern Bell official suggested in testimony Friday it should be removed earlier, said Green.

Lake Mary officials have opposed the recommendation. They say they'll withdraw the request if the PSC staff makes that recommendation. They say a rate increase should be no higher than the $10.30 and $28 rates.

Campaign funds go to retiring House members

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Thirty departing House members are eligible to leave with leftover campaign money — hundreds of thousands of dollars in some cases — in their pockets.

Most say they won't tap the funds for personal use, although their pledges aren't binding. They're promising to pay for scholarships, contribute to charity, finance political campaigns and return donations to contributors.

This is the last year that retiring House members elected before Jan. 8, 1980, can pocket any remaining campaign money. In the future, they'll have to use it for charitable or political purposes.

Many said they quit out of frustration with political partisanship and Congress' inability to grapple with the nation's problems. Some were hurt by a devastating check overdraft scandal at the House bank. Seven have lost primaries. Others are running for another office.

Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., chairman of the House Select Committee on Aging, is eligible to use nearly $200,000 for himself. Instead, he'll finance scholarships for students at California State College-Los Angeles interested in working with the elderly.

But 26-year veteran Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., has said he'll use the money for his personal retirement.

Little Kerena Wiggins, age 1, curiously reaches to touch the furry nose of the creature.

Parents fight Schwab plea bargain

By Associated Press

MELBOURNE — The parents of a slain 11-year-old oppose a plea bargain for his accused killer, saying they have promised their other children the boy's murderer would die in the electric chair.

To avoid a trial that could result in a death sentence, Mark Schwab this week offered to plead no contest in the April 1991 abduction and slaying of Junny Rios-Martinez, said Brevard-Seminole Public Defender J.R. Russo.

Schwab would spend the rest of his life in prison under the deal. His non-jury trial before Brevard Circuit Judge Ed Richardson is scheduled to begin Monday at the Melbourne courthouse.

Last week, prosecutors showed Junny's parents the plea bargain offer.

"Do we even need to discuss this?" the boy's mother, Vicki Rios-Martinez, said to her husband.

"No," he said. "I promised my children they would see Mark Schwab die in the electric chair, and I'm not going back on my word now."

Schwab, 23, who is charged with first-degree murder, sexual battery and kidnapping.

Prosecutors told Junny's parents accepting the deal would mean avoiding the pain of a trial and years of appeals if Schwab is convicted.

But death row is exactly where Schwab belongs, Junny's parents say. They told prosecutors they would not budge, they said Friday.

"When I thought about him not giving Junny the chance to live, I said 'No,'" Mrs. Rios-Martinez said. "When I thought about my son and the sentence he (Schwab) put on my son, I thought he deserved the same — at least equal justice."

She said for a split second a "rush of guilt" flickered through her as she held the plea offer, as though Schwab's life suddenly was in her hands. Then she became angry.

"If he didn't decide what was the right thing to do, why should I," she said.

Russo, whose attorneys represent Schwab, said his office had an ethical and legal obligation to make the plea offer, regardless of the outcome.

"We had a very high expectation that was the answer we were going to get," he said. "But the offer still had to be made."

A no contest plea is not an admission of guilt. Rather, Russo said, it is the defendant's way of saying the facts could reasonably be believed by the judge and that Schwab "was not willing to risk the potential penalty."

Vicki Rios-Martinez views it differently. "To me it's a confession," she said. "He (Schwab) knows he's going to die."

Rams have a lot to do this week

The weeks are dwindling down and graduation is almost upon us, but the students at Lake Mary High School still have much to look forward to in the small time they have left in the 1991-92 school year.

The past week was one full of stress and worry. Many juniors and seniors had to face Advanced Placement exams in subjects such as American History, English, Calculus and Biology in the hopes of earning college credit.

This week, a small group of underclassmen ran for Student Government offices for the 1992-93 school year.

The candidates were:

• For President: Ryan Dickey, Joe Grein and Jenni Townsend.

• For Vice President: Kathleen Dawson and Brad Thompson.

• For Secretary: Megan Gambill and Lori Wright.

• For Treasurer: Jean Antonio Pierre and Adam Zink.

The 1992 Prom was held last night at the Stouffer Resort in Orlando.

The theme was "Straight from the Heart" and the songs were "It's So Hard to Say Goodbye to Yesterday" by Boys II Men and "Young and Innocent" from St. Elmo's Fire.

The Prom is sponsored by the junior class.

This year's junior class sponsors are Ann Sanders and Joni Meyers. The class officers are Angela Seering, president; Joe Grein, vice president; Sara Davis, secretary and Jennifer Hench, treasurer.

Congratulations on a job well done.

Thursday night was the 1992 Awards Convocation at Lake Mary, in which over a hundred students were honored for their academic, leadership, athletic, vocational or other achievement this year at Lake Mary.

Congratulations to all those honored and good luck next year.

Seminoles keep busy this week

SANFORD — It was an exciting week at Seminole with many, many events taking place.

On Thursday, the entire school organized and performed a peaceful demonstration to support their position against school budget cuts. Many students and faculty gathered in the courtyard during first and second lunches and protested against all the cutbacks.

Many students also signed a petition to be sent to the Florida Legislature. News media arrived and interviewed students about their opinions and what they think should be done to remedy this situation.

A pep rally was held on Friday to congratulate the 1991-92 Seminole High School state champion baseball and boy's track team.

Last weekend both the baseball and the track teams competed for their seasons and finished it with a bang. Both teams worked very hard to get where they are, with many vigorous practices and a lot of dedication.

Both teams definitely deserve tons of recognition.

These teams receive state championship rings for their victories.

Congratulations guys. You're the best.

The school's awards ceremony will be held on Thursday, May 21 at 7 p.m. in the Seminole High auditorium. This annual assembly is given to honor outstanding seniors in the area of citizenship, service and academics.

Students will receive certificates, awards and scholarships.

The senior class is throwing a party. A Luau has been planned to be at Lake Golden on May 22.

There will be food, games, a disc jockey, a limbo contest and a prize for the best costume. Tickets are being sold in advance for seniors only. Parents are also pitching in to help cook, serve and chaperone. This is going to be a blast.

Helping kids to love reading

By VICKI BOGOMMER

LONGWOOD — The literary tradition continues.

For the eleventh year in a row, Lyman High School students have taken part in helping youngsters at Midway Elementary School get excited about books.

The high schoolers are involved in helping distribute free reading materials to the students at Midway Elementary, which is located at 2251 Jitway in Sanford.

The book distribution is a part of the Reading is Fundamental (RIF) program.

Lyman High School is located at 1141 S.E. Lake Avenue, Longwood.

The high school students have traditionally brought car loads of books to the Sanford school, but they've not been satisfied with merely going to the school and handing out the books.

They want to be sure the books really come alive for the younger students.

"What good is a free book if the child is not excited about reading it?" asked Jane Lane of the Dividends volunteer office who has recently assisted with the coordination of the program.

First the high schoolers, who are all part of the Peer Counselors program, raise the money to buy the books.

Then, dressed as their favorite characters from children's literature, they sit down with the children and read the book they have selected with them.

The visits usually occur twice a year; once in the Fall and, again, in the Spring.

"The students at Midway...and the Lyman students really look forward to this every year," Lane noted.

At the Fall visit this year, Little Red Riding Hood, Alice in Wonderland, Rock-a-Bye Baby, Pippi Longstocking and Paul Bunyon were among the characters distributing and reading books.

Organizers hope that the Spring visit, which will be this week, will include Clifford the Big Red Dog. Clifford is a favorite among children these days.

Heather Rogers, dressed as Pippi Longstocking, prepares to go to Midway Elementary to read and distribute books.

Kids are HIP

By VICKI BOGOMMER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The fifth grade students in the Idylwild Elementary School Healthily Involved Peers (HIP) program spent Friday working to help the other students at the school choose to live their lives without using drugs.

The program that they presented during each grade's lunch period let the younger students know that they could make choices in their lives. It is up to them to make healthy choices.

"The students in the HIP club are very excited about being able to help the other students," said Dixie Slater, a spokesman for the school. "This is an important project for them."

The purpose of the programs presented on Friday was not to have students lecturing students, but rather to have the students making others aware of what their choices are.

The HIP Club has been meeting twice a month all year to help one another and other students at the school learn about alternatives to using drugs.

"They find activities and things which help them keep away from drugs and alcohol," Slater said.

There was a great deal of discussion on the part of the students talking about alcohol because that is the drug of choice among elementary school students who choose to do drugs is alcohol.

The theme for the day was "Say Yes to Life and No to Drugs" made clear the choices students have to do the right thing, Slater said.

Students were asked to name the most important things in their lives and to decide if it was worth the risk of losing them in order to become involved with drugs.

Slater said that Carol Currey, a parent of one of the students in the HIP Club volunteered many hours to helping the students with their program.

"With parents and students working together," Slater said. "This will work."

Historic shuttle Endeavour returns safely

By JOHN ANTCZAK
Associated Press Writer

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Shuttle Endeavour landed in the California desert with seven astronauts Saturday, ending a triumphant spacewalking mission in which three men caught a massive satellite by hand.

Endeavour touched down on the concrete runway at 1:57 p.m. PDT. Commander Daniel Brandenstein released a red, white and blue drag chute that billowed behind the ship and helped slow it down.

"Welcome to California, and congratulations on a spectacular and historic flight," Mission Control's Jim Halsell said.

Endeavour circled Earth 141 times and logged 3,896,019 miles during its maiden voyage.

About 100,000 people were on hand to see Endeavour make its first landing at this Mojave Desert base, the touchdown site for all new shuttles.

NASA eagerly had awaited the return of the $2 billion Endeavour, the replacement for the destroyed Challenger and the first shuttle to be equipped with a drag chute. Brandenstein released the chute, which is 40 feet in diameter, upon touchdown. The chute trailed 87 feet behind Endeavour.

The chute is intended to reduce the distance the shuttle rolls by 1,000 to 2,000 feet, letting the orbiter land on shorter runways in an emergency. It also is intended to keep the spaceship on course in case of a blown tire or steering problem.

Before descent, the astronauts had trouble closing one of Endeavour's two cargo bay doors.

There was no indication the aft latches on the port door had secured, and the crew had to try again to drive them down.

Endeavour's crew of six men and one woman set a number of records during the nine-day voyage, which began May 7.

The mission, featured four spacewalks, two more than any other shuttle flight, and the world's first three-person spacewalking team. The three satellite catchers spent 8 1/4 hours out in the open cargo bay, surpassing the U.S. record set by the Apollo 17 moonwalkers.

NASA approved the risky venture after the Intelsat-6 satellite eluded the lead rescuer, Pierre Thuot, on spacewalks last Sunday and Monday. Thuot tried repeatedly to lock a 15-foot handle onto the bottom of the satellite, but his efforts simply caused the craft to bounce away.

Thuot, Richard Hieb and Thomas Akers seized the 17-by-12-foot, 4 1/2-ton satellite with their gloved hands on Wednesday night and held it for 1 1/2 hours until the handle could be attached. The shuttle crane then lowered the satellite onto a rocket motor in the cargo bay.

With its new motor attached, the $187 million Intelsat was rocketed into high orbit Thursday after more than two years at a worthless low altitude, the result of a botched ride on an unmanned Titan rocket.

The International Telecommunications Satellite Organization, or Intelsat, paid NASA $83 million to save the stranded craft. The Endeavour mission cost four times that much, however, and criticism about the low charge prompted NASA Administrator Daniel S. Goldin to establish a team to re-evaluate the pricing policy for rescues.

Longest space mission due next month

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Now that the Endeavour is back in glory, NASA can concentrate on its next shuttle flight and the longest one yet, a 13-day scientific research mission by Columbia next month.

The record now is the 10-day, 21-hour satellite retrieval trip by Columbia in January 1990.

"We were busy as the dickens and we came back in good shape, so I feel comfortable we can step up to 13," said chief astronaut Daniel Brandenstein, who commanded the 10-day flight as well as Endeavour's nine-day satellite-rescue mission, which ended Saturday.

Five men and two women are assigned to the upcoming laboratory mission: a physician, biochemist, physicist, biomedical engineer and three other engineers.

Each is under strict doctors orders.

While in orbit, the astronauts will have to exercise every day for at least a half-hour and drink plenty of fluids after each workout. They can't skip any meals, and they must take a half-day off twice.

"We don't want (exercise) to be too strenuous or too frequent," said physiologist Charles Sawin, medical director of NASA's extended-duration orbiter program. "We don't want them to become dehydrated, in space in particular."

Astronauts, even sedentary ones, lose body fluid in space. Blood also accumulates in the upper body because of the lack of gravity.

The Columbia crew members have been instructed to wear their anti-gravity suits on their return to Earth so blood doesn't rush too fast from their upper bodies into their legs and make them woozy, particularly menacing for pilots. Until now, the suits have been recommended but optional.

Researchers are just as interested in the astronauts' mental state after 13 days in space. Crew social interaction will be observed.

"It's a very confined area, and that's a maximum crew size," Sawin said. "They have a lot to do and it tends to make it very difficult."

Hygiene is expected to be a hardship. There is no shuttle shower or tub. Astronauts take sponge baths and use a spray soap to wash their hair.

Although the 1973-74 Skylab missions were much longer — the third and final Skylab lasted 84 days — there were only three crew members and they had a much lighter workload. Physiological changes were measured only once a week, Sawin said.

The Russians hold the world record with a 368-day space mission in 1987-88.

The Columbia crew members will undergo daily medical tests. The findings will help scientists better understand body changes in weightlessness, vital information as NASA gears up for space station Freedom.

Station construction is scheduled to begin in late 1995. NASA hopes to have four astronauts living aboard full time by the year 2000.

Other scientists — whose crystal and fluid experiments are being flown aboard Columbia — also have high hopes for the mission.

"With the extra time in the seeding, we expect to get some crystals that are going to be just like the Hope diamond," said NASA program scientist Roger Crouch.

The flight, scheduled for mid- to late June, will be the first for Columbia in a year. NASA's oldest shuttle underwent a $120 million overhaul; modifications included a drag chute and extra fuel tanks that allow for two-week-plus flights.

When it comes to service,

where do you let up? If you promise to deliver service, where do you stop? When do you decide that such-and-such doesn't matter? Or so-and-so isn't important? The answer is, you don't. The answer is that when it comes to service, everything matters. A smile. A pen with ink in it. A convenient location. A human being to answer your questions. 24 Hour Banking Machines that are reliable. Simplified mortgage applications. Help for first-time home owners and for refinancing. Individualized savings programs. Customized checking accounts. The readiness to loan five hundred dollars and the ability to lend 50 million. But always with the wisdom and farsightedness to lend responsibly. Because, when it comes to service, we never forget that the most valuable service we provide is to safeguard your money. To watch it. Protect it. And help you to help it grow. After all is

Pine Bluff wins Preakness

BALTIMORE — Pine Bluff, whose trainer, Tom Bohannon, thought he deserved a second chance after his failure in the Kentucky Derby, made the most of it Saturday, overtaking Alydeed in the deep stretch and winning the Preakness.

Pine Bluff, sent off as the lukewarm favorite at 7-2, made sure there would be no Triple Crown winner this year, shooting down the middle of the stretch under Chris McCarron for the win.

Kentucky Derby winner Lil E. Tee was never in serious contention.

St. James qualifies at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS — Lyn St. James wanted no more drama. She simply went out and made history.

The second woman to qualify for the Indianapolis 500 was the first driver to complete a four-lap, 10-mile run Saturday. She brought a sustained roar from the more than 100,000 spectators on hand for the third of four days of time trials for the May 24 race as she averaged 220.150 mph to join Janet Guthrie in the record book.

"I was getting tired of hearing about the attempt and trying stuff because I knew we were going to do it," St. James said after climbing out of the Chevrolet-powered 1991 Lola which did not even become available to her until Thursday.

AROUND THE WORLD

Courier in Italian final

ROME — The French Open can wait. Jim Courier still has some unfinished business in Italy.

Courier is one victory away from becoming the first American to win the Italian Open since Jimmy Arias in 1983. But he'll have to get past the world's hottest clay-court player to do it.

The No. 1 seed and world's top-ranked player, Courier reached the Rome final Saturday by coming from behind to defeat Germany's Carl Uwe Steeb 6-7, 6-1, 6-2.

In the other semifinal at the Foro Italico, Spain's Carlos Costa defeated Petr Korda of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-3.

Courier won the French Open last year for his first Grand Slam championship. He begins defense of the title in eight days but said he first wants to add the Italian Open to his collection.

"Right now, I'm concerned with the here and now," Courier said. "I'm very pleased with the way I'm playing. Come Monday, I'll start putting all my energies into the French."

Courier would become only the second American ever to win both the French and Italian Open titles. Budge Paddy won in Paris in 1950 and Rome in 1954.

Expos claim city title

By DEAN SMITH

SANFORD — You can't ask for much more in a championship game than for it to come down to the final pitch.

And that's just what the fans got Saturday morning. Danny Harrison drew a bases loaded walk with one out in the bottom of the sixth inning to force in the winning run as the Korg U.S.A. Expos came from behind to edge the K-n-D Trailer Hitch Red Sox 7-6 in the third and final game of the 1992 Sanford Little Major League City Championship at Ft. Mellon's Roy Holler Field.

Next on the agenda for the Little Major's will be the 1992 Awards Banquet on Thursday, June 17th, and the all-stars coming up in late June.

HAIL THE SEMINOLES

Twice the glory

What many Florida high schools go years without doing once, Seminole High School did twice in 24 hours last weekend. On Friday night, the Seminole boys' track team (above) blistered the field at the Class 3A state track meet, having the team championship all but wrapped up before the running event finals even began. Then, on Saturday afternoon, the Tribe baseball team (left) knocked off Tampa-Jesuit 7-6 to claim the Class 3A state title. This past Friday afternoon, the school student body turned out to honor the champions. On Monday night, the two teams will be honored during the Sanford City Commission meeting.

White caps career with 2nd state title

By ROBERT STOCK
Herald Correspondent

WINTER PARK — As the sun set over Showalter Field in Winter Park during Friday's Class 3A State Track and Field meet, Carlo White basked in the final rays of the day and his last high school competition.

White, a senior, threw himself into the lore of state history by capturing the state title with an effort of 62 feet, 9 inches, his personal best and tops in the state this year. His performance helped the Seminole capture their fourth state title in the past eight years.

"It made me feel good," White said. "I'm proud of myself."

White's effort completed his domination of the state this year. He won almost every meet in which he competed. His biggest competition made have been his teammate, sophomore Bernard Sparrow.

Despite the fact White breezed to victory after victory, he didn't become lethargic. He worked harder. And it showed. White finished four feet ahead of his nearest competitor in the state meet.

But finishing first is nothing new to White, who burst on the track scene as a sophomore when he won the state title and looked to break the state record of 64 feet, 7 inches in his next two years.

But then a football injury to White's right knee hampered him throughout last year and he finished second by one inch to Byron Price of Rickards.

Roberts makes most of chances

By TONY DeGONNEN
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — How many chances do you give a teenager?

After having been kicked off the Seminole High School baseball team twice because of attitude problems and missing the entire season his junior year, it would have been a better than even money bet that Anthony "Redman" Roberts was just about out of chances.

Not according to Coach Mike Powers.

"We're educators first," Powers said. "Every kid has an unlimited number of chances."

So when Roberts came to Powers at the start of this school year and asked if he could try out for the team again this year, Powers gave him the OK.

"He told me at the beginning of the school year that he was coming out," recalled Powers. "I told him that he could come try out. He was out there the first day of practice and from that day, center field was his."

Ninth months later, the Class 3A baseball state championship was Seminole's, due in no small part to Roberts' contributions.

"I came out in the right frame of mind this year," said Roberts, who started for Seminole as a freshman and sophomore, after the Tribe beat Tampa-Jesuit 7-5 last Saturday evening at the Baseball City Complex in the state final. "I set my mind to it. I wasn't going to let my senior year pass without playing."

Not only did Roberts play, he turned into the team leader that turned the young Seminoles — Roberts is one of only three seniors on the roster — into state contenders.

"He saw baseball was his calling," Powers said. "There were times during the season that he'd pull the kids out of the dugout and get them all fired up. He showed great leadership abilities."

His leadership, along with the fact that he played a brilliant center field while hitting .336 and driving in 23 runs, was one of the reasons the Seminoles reached the state tournament a year ahead of Powers' projected schedule.

"He accelerated the process," said Powers, who commented that he had thought the Tribe was a year away from challenging for the state title this season. "He solidified our outfield and the offense."

"The way he can go get a ball, the way he can throw, hit and run . . . he has all the God-given tools, he has the natural baseball gifts that every player wishes he had. He channeled all of his emotions toward baseball this year and helped win us a championship."

Perhaps the most telling evidence of Roberts' personal turnaround was how he played — and how well — despite being slowed by several injuries.

"He sprained his ankle severely against Oviedo and the next day, he was ready to play," Powers said.

"He pulled his groin against Merritt Island (in the 3A-Region III game) and he never wanted to come out. As a result, we really didn't steal him in the state tournament."

"He was out there every day and never complained. He had a great year, considering those two injuries."

Seminole's Carlo White ended up an inch shy of being the three-time state champion in the shot put. After winning the event as a sophomore,

White was second by an inch last year. He came back last Friday and won his second state crown with a personal record throw of 62 feet, 9 inches.

White

White vowed to return. And after an operation on his gimpy knee, he did.
"I wanted to get my title back," White said. "I feel much better throwing with the knee since the operation."

Seminole track coach Ken Brauman said White was determined throughout the year.

"He went out and had a good year and then concentrated on his technique," Brauman said. "He just wanted to be a state champion."

Sparrow, who took third in the shot at the state meet, said he knew White was ready for a state title.

"From the start, I could see that it was going to be his year," Sparrow said. "It's just great to compete and practice with the best."

Despite taking two titles in three years, White was not completely satisfied with his high school career.

"I could have done more with my talents," White said. "I could have had the state record if I had not tried so hard. But at least I won the state title."

Daniels leads Athletics to Colt win over Twins

From Staff Reports

FIVE POINTS - Seminole High School sophomore Deon Daniels tossed a five-inning no-hitter to lead the Athletics to a 16-0 rout of the Twins on May 10 in a Colt Division game of the Seminole PONY League.

Daniels, who struck out eight, lost the perfect game with a walk in the fifth inning. It was the only base runner he allowed.

Pitzer was the losing pitcher. On May 7, Mike Carr was the winning pitcher in the Athletics' 5-3 decision over the Pirates. Fox suffered the loss.

BRONCOS
Winning pitcher Donald Taylor stroked a solo home run on May 11 to lead the A's to a 3-1 league-clinching win over the Reds. Neal Maybin provided the game-winning hit, hitting a two-run home in the fifth to break a 1-1 tie. Tommy Tomlin, who had doubled, scored on Maybin's homer. Maybin also singled, as did Rudy Perez and Brian Parks. For the Reds, Rock Raines doubled and singled. Scott Hillinski had a double and RBI and Chris Herring singled.

On May 9, Scott Hillinski tossed a one-hit shutout as the Lake Mary Reds blanked the Winter Springs Angels 8-0. Jeremy Frost suffered the loss. Providing the offense for the Reds were Rock Raines (home run, double, single, three RBI), Hillinski (home run, double, single), Randy Cole (home run, single, three RBI) and Alex Moore (single). Pickett's single was the only hit for the Angels.

Trailing 5-3, the Lake Mary Reds scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh to top the Winter Springs Twins 6-5 on May 8. Justin Anderson was the winning pitcher while the loss went to Sine. The Reds were led by Scott Hillinski (two doubles), Paulo Littleton (double, single, two RBI), Justin Andersen (double, single) and Craig King and Randy Cole (one single each). For the Twins, Lipps doubled twice and scored twice while Sine singled twice and scored twice.

Donald Taylor had a single, RBI and one run scored as the A's rallied past the Angels 3-2 on May 8. Jeremy Frost and Haas each hit a single for the Angels. Solid defense over the last four innings allowed the A's to come back from a 2-0 deficit.

The A's scored twice in the top of the first inning on May 7 and went on to beat the Twins 4-2. Providing the offense for the A's were Donald Taylor (double, single, two RBI), Jose Torres (double, two runs), Brad Oaleger (two singles) and Mark LaFaber (single). For the Twins, Pavlik had a double and an RBI.

MUSTANGS
Winning pitcher Justin Hawarah hit two singles and scored three runs to lead the Dodgers to a 13-2 rout of the Indians. Brad Hoffer was the losing pitcher. Also chipping in for the Dodgers were Pace (three singles, two runs scored) and Gage (single, two runs).

PINTOS
Jammer Guy hit two home runs, a double and a single to power the Blue Jays to a 22-10 victory over the Mets on May 11. Also chipping in for the Blue Jays were Byron Hubbard (two doubles, two singles), Tony Mitecheit (four singles) and Tyler Schmidt (single). For the Mets, Joel hit a double and two singles. Wea had four singles and Bryan hit three singles. Defensively, shortstop Brandon Pharis turned a fly ball into an unassisted double play.

Hunter Roberts paced the offense while Michael Muzeka anchored the defense in the Lake Mary Libertators Roofing Angels' 20-5 decision over the Caselberry Mets on May 9. For the Mets, Bobby Morrison hit two home runs.

The Giants scored four runs in the bottom of the fifth to rally past the A's 12-9. Leftfielder Jeremy Pearson was the defensive star, throwing out runners at second and third base. Offensive standouts were Jimmy Patterson and Chad Pagnac (each with a double, two singles, two runs), Marty Pierce (three singles, two runs) and Dominic Petracca, Danny Grimes and Brian Pagozaletski (each with three singles and one run).

Roberts

He was hobbling around, but he's a gamer. When a game came around, he was ready to play.

In the semifinal game against Fort Lauderdale-Cardinal Gibbons, Roberts was involved in a play that set the tone for the rest of the tournament.

With Seminole trailing 1-0, Roberts led off the fifth with a single and moved to second on Matt Diemer sacrifice bunt. As Roberts led off second, Cardinal Gibbons pitcher Bruce Link spun and appeared to have Roberts picked off. But Roberts beat the relay throw to third and scored the tying run on Demy Beamon's ground ball to shortstop.

"It was a complete change in character," said Powers. "Now, he appreciates the game. Baseball's going to do a lot for him. He's going to Virginia to play this summer and he'll play at Seminole Community College next year on a full scholarship."

"Red grew up. He started hanging out with people like Vashaun (Williams, Seminole's starting quarterback and senior class president) and Bruce McClary, two positive peers. Red reached himself. He knew what it was going to take and he did it. Now he's a fine young man."

Just as he has all season, Anthony Roberts got things started for Seminole in the Class 3A state baseball semifinal last Friday. With Seminole trailing 1-0, Roberts singled, took second on a sacrifice bunt, stole third and scored (above) on a ground ball to shortstop.

Lagoon sparks memories, provides hot action

Last Saturday's fishing trip to Mosquito Lagoon was case of deja vu as I was reminded of my last trip almost 30 years ago while I was at Stetson University.

Launching my boat at Haulover Canal, I went east out of the canal into the vast expanse of the shallow lagoon. I then followed the channel markers and set a course for George's Bar in the northeast corner. This sand bar had been a real hot spot in my college days.

The bar runs east/west, and the gentle west wind was perfect for a drift parallel to the structure. Anticipation soon turned to disappointment as I made cast after cast without a strike. After an hour with only one "keeper" trout, the sun was well up and I took notice that the grass beds, which once were numerous along the bar, had disappeared. No grass, no trout.

I cranked up my motor and started back southwest across the miles of open water. After about two miles, I spotted a long sand bar that was oriented east/west. A few boats were already drifting to this bar, so it was obvious to me that trout were present.

Spotting some off-colored water in the deeper flats, I started drifting over some bottom that was mixed with white, sandy "holes" - trout like to wait back in the grass and ambush bait as it crosses the clear spots.

A trout was waiting for my Mirrolure on the first cast and for the next hour-and-a-half I was consistently catching fish. After the action had slowed somewhat, it was a simple matter to find more flats with flashy-looking water, and I caught fish at virtually every spot that I tried.

FISHING

Mosquito Lagoon is located south of New Smyrna and just north of the Cocoa Beach/Port Canaveral area. An excellent boat ramp is on Haulover Canal, and there is plenty of parking space.

The lagoon is 8-10 miles long, perhaps a mile across and has acres of beautiful grass flats that are loaded with trout. Sounds too good to be true? Well, there is a catch - many of the trout that you catch will be shorter than the 14-inch minimum size limit. Who can complain when you are catching plenty of fish?

SHUPE'S SCOOP
I find the best grass flats in 3 to 5 feet of water, and I prefer water that is slightly "off-color" rather than clear. Trout will strike more readily in waters that have less visibility.

FISHING FORECAST
After an extended spring, we may finally be in the summer pattern of weather and fishing. Expect bass fishing to taper off with increasing air and water temperatures as bream and catfish start to provide most of the action. Bream should be on the beds with the full moon this weekend.

Sebastian Inlet has had steady action with trout, snook, jack crevalle, ladyfish and a few bluefish. Expect strong tides this weekend with the full moon; most of the snook will be hitting at night on an outgoing tide. Some good trout are hitting on the grass flats just inside the inlet.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports good offshore action with wahoo and dolphin in 120 to 180 feet of water. Some big king mackerel are also hitting in this deeper water. Some of the boats going out into really deep water are not doing that well, so don't make the mistake of going past the fish in your quest for the big ones.

The busy line is very slow and only a few sheepshead, bluefish and flounder are hitting inside the Port.

Ponce Inlet was packed last weekend with the calm seas. Sheepshead and bluefish are thick, and drum, jack crevalle and a few flounder round out the fishing action around the jetties. Sheepshead are biting live shrimp and fiddler crabs around channel markers and bridge pilings back in the river. Plenty of redfish and trout are roaming the flats of Mosquito Lagoon.

In the bottom of the fourth, the Korg U.S.A. Expos had taken a 5-4 lead over the K-n-D Trailer Hitch Red Sox and had the bases loaded with two out. Mike Evans then hit a grounder to the Red Sox third baseman, who made a wild throw home. But catcher Justin Erickson (bottom) not only caught the ball, but kept his foot on home plate to end the inning. The play went for naught as the Expos won, 7-6.

Chaz Lytle, the first baseman for the Korg U.S.A. Expos, had two singles and one run scored to lead the Expos to a 7-6 win over the K-n-D Trailer Hitch Red Sox and the Little Major City Championship.

Champs

The City Championship was the first ever for the Expos and avenged last year's loss to the Red Sox in the three-game series.

The game also marked the first time the Expos had been able to beat Red Sox ace Terrance Perkins, who had beaten the Expos twice last year and had won the opening game 6-2 Tuesday night by throwing a five-hitter.

The winning pitcher was Mike Evans, who won for the first time after losing to Perkins in the final game last year and the opening game this year.

Coaches Charlie Lytle, Jeff Small and Tom Boyd used all 14 Expos who dressed for Saturday's game to collect the title.

In addition to Evans, also on the roster for the National Division and City Championship squad were Ramone Raines, Ned Raines, Harrison, Mike Ramey, Aaron Thomas, Donovan Daniels, Chaz Lytle, Alex Jacot, Mike Robinson, Mike Hunting, Steve Harriett, Spencer Schmitt, Brian Rhodes and Terry Stevens.

Representing the American Division Red Sox were coaches James Littles and Mr. Septer and players Perkins, Trellis Smith, Donald White, Antonio White, James Bennett, Troy Britson, Nicholas Ireland, Justin Erickson, Evan Thompson, Jonathan Septer, Levi Raines, Jason Ryll, Phillip Maldonado, Marc Maldonado and Robin Robinson.

The Expos finished the season with a 15-1 record and the Red Sox ended up 13-3.

The Red Sox jumped on top 3-0 in the top of the first inning.

Smith reached on an error but was erased on grounder by Donald White. Perkins grounded out to first as Smith moved over to third. Antonio White doubled to score Smith and White scored on a single by James Bennett, who wound up on second as the ball was bobbled in the outfield. Bennett moved to third on a passed ball and scored when Ireland's fly was dropped for an error.

The Expos took advantage of a pair of Red Sox errors to score a run in the bottom of the first. Ramone Raines reached on an error and scored all the way from first when Ned Raines grounder was thrown away at second. The Red Sox avoided further damage when Ned Raines was thrown out at third on a good relay from Bennett, to Levi Raines to Antonio White.

The Red Sox got the run right back in the top of the second as Levi Raines doubled and scored on a double by Smith.

The Expos came back to tie the game with two runs in the second and one run in the third.

In the second, Thomas was hit by a pitch and courtesy runner Donovan Daniels advanced to second on Chaz Lytle's infield single and scored on the same play when the ball was thrown away at first. Lytle moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on a grounder by Jacot.

The tying run came in the third when Ramone Raines' drive to right went off the outfielder's glove and into the corner with Raines racing around the bases to score. After a single by Ned Raines and two wild pitches Perkins worked out of the jam with a pop up to the mound and two strikeouts.

The Expos took their first lead of the game in the fourth.

With one out, Jacot reached second on an error and advanced to third on Robinson's single. Daniels then grounded to the pitcher who looked to third and threw to first to late to get Daniels. After a pop up for the second out, Ned Raines singled to score Jacot with the go ahead run, but again the Red Sox got out of the jam on a nice play at the plate by Erickson to retire the side.

In the meantime, Evans, the son of ex-Seminole Community College star Marvin Evans, had settled down to retire eight Red Sox in a row, including three straight strikeouts at one point.

But the Red Sox got to the Expos' ace for a pair of runs in the fifth to retake the lead.

Smith led off with a single and went on to second as the ball was bobbled in the outfield. He advanced to third as Donald White grounded out. The Expos then decided to intentionally walk the dangerous Perkins, who hit two home runs in Tuesday's first game and had five championship home runs over two years, but Perkins erased himself when he stepped on home plate trying to reach a pitch.

Perkins hit the ball out of the park, but stepping on home plate is an automatic out. The Red Sox were still able to tie the game, however, as Antonio White's grounder was booted for an error. White then stole second and third and scored as the catcher's throw to third was wild, giving the Red Sox the lead.

Perkins' control failed him in the sixth as the Expos rallied for the victory. Robison led off and was hit by a pitch, the third Expos to be hit in the game. Courtesy runner Mike Hunting advanced to second as pinch-hitter Spencer Schmitt's ground ball was thrown away for an error.

Local dancers bring back gold

Special to the Herald

SANFORD — After 14 hours of competition involving hundreds of dancers and teachers from all over Florida, the resounding word ringing out for School of Dance Arts Performers on Parade (S.O.D.A. Pops) was "Gold!" The prestigious dance competition, "American Dance Spectrum," was held recently at the Lakeland Civic Center. "Their dedication throughout the year and their unending hard work and determination was the winning formula," according to Co-Director Miriam Doktor. "These S.O.D.A. Pop dancers perform constantly before audiences at school lecture demonstrations, art festivals, carnivals and fairs as well as TV productions and their annual showcase performances at Lake Mary High School auditorium, but I've never seen them dance better," Doktor enthusiastically said. Out of 20 entries, the studio received 17 gold medals, one high silver and two silvers. Special awards included additional recognition in the way of blue ribbons for Miss Valerie (Weld), "the teacher who makes them do it all." Weld choreographed "Come to the Fair" for which she was honored for including ballet in another form of dance. The use of intricate arms earned Weld a ribbon for the number, "I Haven't Stopped Dancing Yet." Sanford 6 year-old, Lacy Nobles, won the "Never Miss a Beat" award. Mothers Brandy Twilleager, Kay Von Weller, Kathy Miller and Valerie Weld teamed with their offspring to win the "Perfect in Every Way" award. Miriam Doktor filled in as a dancing partner and was also honored. Two talented S.O.D.A. Pop dancers actually tied with themselves and won double gold trophies. In the primary division, Kimmie

Louwama, 11, and Melissa Garris, 11, both of Sanford, were the dynamic duo. Natalie Weld, 13, and Jacob Twilleager, 15, both from Sanford, won overall high scoring duo-trio in the next age division. These two also won for their teacher, Valerie Weld, the only choreographer's award given out all day, that of highest score for choreography. The two also won the dynamic duo award for their age division. In the Junior Division, Amy Simmons, 16, DeBary, and Staci Shannon, 17, Sanford won the highest scoring duo-trio award for their number "Clementine." Not to be outdone, the young ladies also received additional recognition in the way of a blue ribbon for the effect of ballet on other forms of dance. A large group number which has thrilled local audiences through performance this year, was "Town of Pkinty," a standout as the highest scoring large group. Dancers gathered to view a tape of their performances on which judges for the competi-

A churchmember since 1922, Mrs. Terrance Thomas Brooks was honored by the Steward Board of Allen Chapel AME Church recently.

The Christian lady, who is known for putting her trust in the Lord, loves her God, her church, her family and her community. She is a very quiet person with a most pleasant smile.

Mrs. Brooks was born in Coweta County, Ga. in 1910 to parents Heidi and Sweetie Brewster Thomas. The family moved to Florida in 1920.

In 1922, when Sister Brooks was 12 years old, she was converted and joined Allen Chapel under the pastorage of the Rev. H.J. Jones. Even though members of her family left Allen Chapel and joined other churches, Sister Brooks remained at Allen Chapel with her Aunt Lizzie Alexander.

Mrs. Brooks has remained a faithful churchmember, and today is one of the oldest members whose roots were planted in Allen Chapel when it was located on the corner of Thirteenth St. and Lake Ave. As she speaks of her early years in the old church attending Sunday School and A.C.E. League, her face lights up and her eyes twinkle; thus showing her love for her church.

Although Mrs. Brooks became the sole supporter of her two children, who were under the age of two, she still managed to keep up her work in the church as superintendent of Sunday school, Sunday School teacher, member and leader of the A.C.E. League.

Mrs. Brooks' love for poetry is often exhibited as she still recites long poems that she has

Women discover new images

Members of the Woman's Club of Sanford Inc. welcomed tips on becoming "The New You" at the May meeting.

Julia Goeb, a club member and a certified image consultant for BeautiControl, presented an enlightening slide presentation on the "rights and wrongs" of cosmetics and clothing. She explained the color wheel to the women and showed slides of the various color-types as well as body-types.

She gave the clubwomen pointers on how to mix and match basic fashions and how the adding of accessories creates a new and different look.

A question and answer period followed the program with Julia presenting a door prize to a member. She was introduced by Justine Lee, chairman of the Home Life Department.

The business session was conducted by President Marty Colgrove. She announced that she attended the recent Florida Federation of Women's Clubs' State Convention held in Orlando. Others attending the convention were Jean Metts, Fran Mitchell, Mary Childers and Charlotte Smith. Club member Irene Brown won a ribbon for her entry in the arts and crafts competition.

The club was recognized by the General Federation of Women's Clubs for its program on "Solid Waste Management," under the direction of Gail Hill-Smith, chairman of the Conservation Department. Gail is also the newly elected vice director of the FFWC Junior Clubs.

Nancy DeLong reported on the junior club attending the state convention. She announced several awards the juniors racked up including first place in the state for their project on education.

Hostesses were Viola Frank, chairman, Roberta Zittrower, Polly Pezold, Pat Foster, Emy Bill, Toni Hobson and Lourine Messenger.

A lady turns 80

Unique is the only word to describe Doris Stein who celebrated her 80th birthday on May 7.

In lieu of gifts, the lovely honoree requested her birthday luncheon guests to bring gifts of food for the shelf. As it turned out, the food was divided between the Sanford Christian Sharing Center and the Jewish Family Services.

Also, some of her relatives sent monetary gifts to Doris for her birthday which she generously donated to the two facilities.

Speaking of her birthday luncheon at the Holiday Inn, Sanford Marina, Doris said, "It was just a beautiful party." The 35 guests took turns saying "nice things" about the honoree who wore a pink rose corsage, a gift from the hostesses.

Sharing the hostess role were Doris' daughter Susan Stein Marbistone, Houston, Texas; and her daughters-in-law, Marcia Stein, Ormond Beach; and Gayle Stein, Winter Park. Her two sons are Dr. Charles Stein, Ormond Beach, and Steven Stein, an engineer, Winter Park.

Born in Germany, Doris lived and worked there as well as in Sweden before coming to the United States in 1941. She was educated in Germany where she learned to speak English and went into training as an infant nurse.

Prior to moving to Sanford in 1945 where she came to marry her husband, Doris lived in New York City. After arriving in Sanford, she began her career with her husband at Sanford Jewelry and Luggage where she remained until she retired in 1980. After her husband died in 1957, she ran the business alone.

This hard-working lady was a liberated woman and single parent long before the women activists discovered themselves. She is very proud of her three successful children and their families, including five grandchildren.

Also, Doris is very proud to be an American by choice. She celebrated her 50th anniversary as an American citizen in March.

For more than 25 years, Doris has been a member of the Sanford Pilot Club, where she is Patriotism chairman. She does volunteer work for her synagogue in Orlando and the Jewish Center in Maitland.

In her spare time, Doris loves to play bridge and travel. Some of her world travels include Israel, Italy, Greece, Egypt, Alaska and California. She also has other travel plans coming up.

Be careful about what little one eats

DEAR ABBY: I am very concerned with young mothers giving their small children marshmallows. I read a disturbing article in your column years ago about a child swallowing a marshmallow whole, and how it expanded and blocked the child's airway. The child survived, but suffered permanent brain damage.

Could you please print that article again? I am running a home day-care center and would like to give out copies of that article to the mothers of small children. Some of these young mothers seem to think our experience and passed-on knowledge are nothing but myths or old wives' tales.

Thank you for all of your past ideas and thoughts.

seeing it:
DEAR ABBY: I am writing this with the hope that the parents of small children will see it and be careful of what they give their little ones to eat.

My 3-year-old nephew, Chad, was eating a large marshmallow. Nobody paid much attention to him until he suddenly started turning blue! The marshmallow had become lodged in his throat and formed a glue-like seal.

The poor child could not breathe. They applied the Heimlich maneuver, but could not dislodge the marshmallow. Chad was then rushed to the hospital and was actually pronounced "dead," but they revived him by using a heavy suction pump to remove the marshmallow from the base of his trachea.

Chad is now severely brain-damaged. Abby, please print this. Until this happened, no one in our family ever dreamed that such a tragedy could occur because of a marshmallow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone who usually supports your position and endorses your ideas might be diametrically opposed to your way of thinking today. Forcefulness won't win compliance.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

One of the arts of defense is to wake up your partner when you need him to do something unusual. But how do you do this? You can't glare at him over the table or kick him under the table. You must do it with an abnormal play.

Today's deal defeated East-West, but they had their chances. Cover the West and South cards. Against four spades, your partner leads the diamond five; 10, ace, two. How do you continue?

North's response of three spades was a limit raise, showing about 11 points and at least four-card spade support. South overbid slightly -- but understandably -- when he raised to game.

If the opening diamond-five lead was fourth-highest, South was now out of diamonds. Hoping his partner had the heart ace, at trick two East switched to the heart king; three, eight, four. East continued with the heart queen; Jack, two, nine. The contract could no longer be defeated. South's last heart loser went on dummy's fourth club.

How could West know to overtake the heart queen at trick three and give his partner a heart ruff? Well, if East were an expert and had started with K-Q-x of hearts, he should have led his low heart at trick three, not the queen. So West might have found the winning play. But East could have made life much easier for his partner with an abnormal play. He should have switched to the heart queen at trick two. Then, when East continued with the heart king at trick three, the layout would be obvious to West. He would overtake with the heart ace and give his partner the killing ruff.

Alzheimers specialist to speak

On Wednesday, from 6 to 9 p.m., Dr. Mike Mullan, a major Alzheimer Disease researcher from London, England, will speak at a meeting open to the public on "Genetics and Alzheimer Disease" at the Education Auditorium on the second floor of the Winter Park Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Mullan is internationally known for his findings in Alzheimer research, and he will especially address risk factors in families. There will be a question and answer period following his presentation.

The program is sponsored by the Alzheimer Resource Center, Inc., as a public service. There is no charge and free literature will be available.

For more information, call 843-1910 or 800-330-1910.

Transcriptionists week set

The American Association for Medical Transcriptionists will celebrate National Medical Transcriptionists Week from May 17-23 to honor more than 70,000 medical transcriptionists nationwide.

Medical transcriptionists provide an important service to the field of medicine by transcribing dictated medical reports that document a patient's medical care and condition. These include office chart notes, history and physical examinations, consultations, letters, memos, emergency department notes, discharge summaries, and many laboratory tests.

For information, call Brenda Hurley at 897-3464.

'Swing Against Arthritis'

Whether mom, dad, a son or daughter is the golfer in your family, they'll enjoy the Arthritis Foundation's latest 1992 "Swing Against Arthritis" golf card.

For a $15 donation, a golfer can play free or receive substantial discounts at more than 200 of Florida's finest golf courses from now until Oct. 1. Most courses allow unlimited play. Golf carts are required.

Call the Central Branch of the Arthritis Foundation in Maitland at 847-0045 to help the foundation fight arthritis.

Vitamin C may help people live longer

By LES SIEGEL
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES — A new study shows that vitamin C may help people live longer. But it's better to get your dose from five daily servings of fresh fruits and vegetables instead of vitamin pills, researchers reported.

Researchers found that taking 300 to 400 milligrams of vitamin C daily may help men live about six years longer than men who don't. For women, the benefits are about one year.

The U.S. government's recommended daily allowance of vitamin C is 60 milligrams for most adults, and less for children.

The study, written by James E. Enstrom, an epidemiologist at the University of California, Los Angeles, was published in an issue of the journal Epidemiology.

Gladys Block, a professor of public health nutrition at the University of California, Berkeley, said the study suggests moderate increases in vitamin C consumption might help reduce the risk of heart disease, premature death and cancer. She was not associated with the study.

But the research won't settle debate over the use of multivitamins or vitamin C supplement pills.

Medical groups have criticized supplements as expensive and lacking proven benefits. It also is uncertain whether the body absorbs vitamin C from pills as well as from food.

For those reasons, Enstrom, Block and other scientists believe it is better to consume the higher amount of vitamin C by eating five daily servings of fresh fruits and vegetables than by taking vitamin pills.

Foods rich in vitamin C include oranges and other citrus fruits, strawberries, cantaloupes, watermelons, tomatoes, sweet potatoes, cabbage, green leafy vegetables, cauliflower, broccoli, green and red peppers and snow peas.

But only 9 percent of Americans eat five daily servings of fruits and vegetables, so "it probably doesn't hurt — and this study suggests it may help — to take a multivitamin tablet daily," Block said.

Study links body shape, history to breast cancer

By DANIEL G. MANN
AP Science Writer

BOSTON — Women with so-called "apple-shaped" bodies and a family history of breast cancer appear to be at higher risk for the disease after menopause than "pear-shaped" women, a study published today concludes.

Experts have long noticed an association between obesity and breast cancer. The study, published in the New England Journal of Medicine, shows that body shape, not just weight, is also important.

The study also found that having a first child after age 30 was another especially important risk factor in women with a family history of the disease.

The study was based on questionnaires completed by 41,837 women in Iowa in 1985.

Volunteers help moms, babies

By KELLEY MITCHELL
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — La Leche League International is working to teach mothers of high risk children to increase their chances of survival.

Mother's milk protects a baby in ways that no other form of infant nutrition can equal. Breast milk provides all the nutrition a baby needs for at least the first six months of life. Breastfeeding protects babies from illness and allergies and provides immunological benefits that extend well beyond the newborn period, according to the league. It also enhances the infant's physical and mental development and promotes a close mother-baby bond.

Babies born to low income mothers in one inner city area are four to five times more likely to die in infancy than babies born to affluent mothers, according to the league.

A black infant born in the U.S. is twice as likely to die before his or her first birthday than a white infant.

The La Leche League has developed a Breastfeeding Peer Counselor Program to reduce these statistics.

Seminole County's first group of Breastfeeding Peer Counselors graduated a 24 hour training program in late November of 1991. This group, along with their breastfeeding instructor, Pat Lindsey, La Leche League Leader, have given over 200 hours of volunteer work either by telephone counseling or on site help in the clinics.

Breastfeeding mothers are referred to the Peer Counselors by WIC (Special Supplemental Feeding Program for Women, Infants and Children) at the

Seminole County Health Department on Airport Boulevard. The counselors then contact the mothers by phone and answer concerns by giving up-to-date breastfeeding information along with practical advice and encouragement. At times, they may even make hospital or home visits.

"Most breastfeeding problems can be corrected easily by explaining proper breastfeeding management and something as simple as proper positioning of the baby," according to Lindsey.

"Breastfeeding is a learned art," Lindsey said. "And because many mothers have never even seen a baby nursing from the breast, they have little confidence and even less knowledge."

Breastfeeding Peer Counselors are helping to change this by contacting the mother before the birth of the baby giving her information and building a rapport with the mother, according to Lindsey.

The counselors have just begun helping mothers as of January 1992 through the referrals. In just this short time, the WIC program has already begun to see the benefits and many mothers have expressed their thanks for this special help, Lindsey said.

On May 1, the second class graduated, which included three WIC moms, which gives the program a total of seven counselors.

Throughout the month of May a special breastfeeding promotion will be held in the WIC Department. All seven counselors will be coming into the clinic at scheduled times throughout the month to counsel mothers on the benefits of breastfeeding.

An informative support group meeting will also be held each month on the fourth Friday at 10 a.m. at the Seminole County Health Department, on Airport Boulevard, in Sanford, anyone interested in breastfeeding is welcome to attend.

Annual hog roast to benefit Easter Seal's Camp Challenge

The 12th Annual JJ's Hog Roast for Camp Challenge is scheduled for today at JJ's on S.R. 48, six miles east of Mt. Dora.

A donation of $5 for adults and $3 for Junior or Senior portions is requested. The door opens at 11 a.m. and dinner is served at noon in the shady backyard behind JJ's. The traditional fare includes roasted hog, barbecued chicken, roasted corn, beans, slaw and rolls.

Local celebrity "Big Red" from K-92 FM will be on hand to help hand out door prizes to every 10th person who attends the roast.

In addition to the feast, Chairwoman Jo Moseley and the Hog Roast Volunteer Committee have recruited dozens of donated items for this year's auction. Bids will be taken on a Key West vacation, housewares, dinners for two and more. There will also be a dunk tank, face painting for the kids, children's games, and a dart tournament.

All proceeds from the roast are donated to Camp Challenge the wheelchair accessible Easter Seal camp in Lake County.

Twelve years ago, a handful of locals in the Sorrento/Mt. Plymouth area of Lake County decided that it was time to give something back to the community. Led by the husband and wife team of Jerry and Jo Moseley, owners of JJ's Lounge and Package, the group sponsored a fundraiser for Camp Challenge, which raised almost $500 for the camp the first year.

In 1983, Jerry Moseley died of cancer and with the help of the Hog Roast Committee, a local volunteer group which coordinates the event, and his wife, Jo, the tradition has been carried on.

The response to the roast has grown over the years. Instead of one hog to feed the crowd, this year six hogs will be roasted. The hogs are all purchased at the Lake County Fair Swine Sale, which in turn benefits many 4-H and PFA clubs.

In the past 11 years, JJ's Hog Roast has generated approximately $75,000 for the facility. For many of the physically disabled campers, the paved paths and total wheelchair accessibility offered at Camp Challenge provides their only opportunity for fishing, swimming, nature trails, and other forms of recreation.

Sponsor's for the event are JJ's Lounge, K-92 FM and Century 21.

For more information, call 904-383-1400 or Camp Challenge at 904-383-4711.

ADA helps seniors brush up on I.Q.

May 17-23 is National Senior Smile Week, and the dental community throughout Florida has planned a variety of activities to help seniors keep their smiles for a lifetime.

During this sixth observation of Senior Smile Week, members of the dental community will be holding senior smile contests, doing oral screenings and senior health fairs and distributing educational materials about the importance of oral health.

As part of a special "Senior Smiles" program, the Auxiliary to the Florida Dental Association will help bring smiles to nursing home residents statewide by providing residents with educational materials and teaching nursing staff and aides how to help their patients achieve good dental health. Members of the auxiliary will also photograph residents and later present them with framed photos of their smiling faces as a reminder of the dental health message.

"Brush Up On Your Dental I.Q." is the theme for the 1992 celebration of National Senior Smile Week. The celebration was initiated in 1987 by the American Dental Association in an effort to create awareness among older adults about the importance of maintaining good oral care throughout life.

The over-55 population is the fastest growing age group in the United States and is also the most susceptible to dental problems including periodontal disease (the major cause of tooth loss in adults), tooth root decay, dry mouth and diseases such as oral cancer, according to the Florida Dental Association.
