Woman found not guilty

SANFORD — Nikita Cronin, 35, of Geneva, is not guilty of manslaughter in the May 27 shooting death of her husband John Frederick Cronin, 41.

That was the finding of a jury of five men and one woman in Sanford Friday after a three day trial before Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. The original charge against Cronin had been upgraded to second-degree murder by the prosecutor. Mize, in the trial reduced the charge back to manslaughter, which is what sheriff's deputies initially charged Cronin with after her husband was fatally wounded by a gunshot to his chest. The shooting occurred during a long-term fight between the couple at their house at 548 Osceola Road.

Cronin's attorney maintained she accidentally shot her husband when firing a warning shot after he had attacked her.

Fans remember Lennon

Hundreds of fans of the late John Lennon gathered Saturday at his star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame and at the Strawberry Fields memorial garden in New York's Central Park for vigils commemorating the 10th anniversary of his death.

Fans, ranging from teenage to middle age, gathered at his star on Vine Street in front of the Capitol Records building, singing songs, reading poems and leaving fresh flowers in their place.

"John Lennon was so loved by many different people for many different reasons," said Jerry Rubin, one of the vigil organizers. "Ten years later it is still difficult to hold back the tears and the sadness."

Jeremy George, 4, and his sister Jasmyne, 6, of Sanford, wrap up to keep warm during the St. Lucia Christmas parade Saturday morning. Temperatures dipped into the low 50s during the lakefront event.

SANFORD — Winter coats came out of the closets yesterday to become much needed apparel for the St. Lucia Christmas parade along Sanford's lakefront.

With temperatures barely above the 50-degree level at parade time, the wind blowing in from Lake Monroe made Sanford feel like the cold Nordic region that the parade, in part, paid homage to. The parade was part of the second annual St. Lucia Festival, which celebrates Sanford's Swedish heritage.

More on festival, see story and photos, Page 2A.

The chill and misty-light rain that fell briefly just as the parade started failed, however, to diminish the spirits of the parents and children waiting for the annual event.

Some of the smaller children were so thickly bundled in blankets that only their faces were visible. Some people huddled under the larger

Polk's career saw criticism, political wins

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — When Sheriff John Polk took office in 1989, he had a staff of 35 serving a population of about 80,000.

As he faces early retirement Dec. 31 because of heart failure, Polk supervises a staff of 500, including jail workers, and serves a population of more than 285,000. The department operates with an annual budget of $24 million.

Polk, 59, began his career as sheriff as a political novice. He developed into a consummate politician, who won election to six four-year terms. As he developed his political legs, not only locally, but as a lobbyist for Seminole County and state law enforcement causes in Tallahassee and Washington, D.C., Polk's supporters said the sheriff saved or brought in grants to the county totaling millions of dollars.

Polk was unruined by an Orlando newspaper's criticism of his travels on behalf of the public interest. As sheriff, Polk said, he learned to live in a glass house, with every move up for criticism. He said the office belongs to the people and he served at their pleasure with the support of his staff.

In the mid-1980s, Polk and Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning were arrested for gambling. They were the only attendees at a Rotary Club outing in Volusia County to be busted for that misdemeanor.

Both pled no contest and paid a fine for their part in a poker game.

"When something went wrong it was always him and me," Manning said. "I'm going to miss that. He's from the old school. His name and reputation have meant so much to him. When I was having a hard time with the city he was one of the first to stand behind me. I've never been able to help him out over the years like he has helped me personally and professionally. I couldn't think of a better person to be in trouble with than John Polk. We've not been in real trouble, but in this business a lot of people try to jam you."

"I'm really heartbroken over his situation. I understand it," Manning said of Polk's retirement.

SANFORD — More than 450 tons of newspapers, glass, plastic and aluminum was tossed into green recycling bins by unincorporated Seminole County residents during the first month of the county's recycling program.

That means almost nine pounds of stuff tossed away by each man, woman and child served by the unincorporated county garbage service in November will be recycled instead of winding up in the county dump near Geneva.

Tracks of Sanford's rail history run tragic

We recently wrote about farming, ice production and railroading. It generated many letters and phone calls — even a buzz from retired Atlantic Coast Line Engineer Alvin Calhoun and his wife, Susie, who now reside in Myrtle Beach, S.C. So, today, we'll share more railroad and associated information that'll jog your memories of "way back when."

Back in the heyday of railroading in Sanford, six ACL passenger trains stopped in the "Celery City" everyday — three northbound and three southbound. Sanford folks knew them by numbers. The northbound trains were 76, 80 and 92. The southbound were known as 75, 89 and 91.

You old timers can remember that if the post office closed and you had to get a letter out that night you could take it to the ACL Depot on West Ninth Street and post it there. If the train was in the station and the post box had been emptied already you could take it to the mail car and hand it to one of the clerks. Our "advanced" technology won't permit that today.

Some folks also asked about the streamliners. They didn't appear until shortly after World War II. The first was the Seaboard Air Line "Silver Meteors." Right after that came the ACL "Champions" that stopped in Sanford twice daily — one northbound and one southbound. The "Silver Meteors" ran between Tampa and Chicago while the "Champions" operated between Tampa and New York City.

CARACAS, Venezuela — President Bush said Saturday the expected release of U.S. and other hostages from Iraq and Kuwait does not decrease the chance of war but in fact "facilitates" the possible decision to use force to drive Saddam Hussein's troops out of the occupied emirate.

Female serial killers suspected in slayings

United Press International

TITUSVILLE — The toll from what police in Central Florida think could be the work of a pair of female serial killers may have increased to nine.

The bodies of eight men have been found in south Georgia and Florida within the past year. All were aged 40 to 60 and had been traveling on major highways.

Marion County authorities have circulated a description of two women hitchhikers sought in one of the slayings.

Now a car belonging to a man missing since September has been found in a Titusville parking lot. Evidence found in the vehicle is being tested for links with the other slayings.

The owner was identified as Curtis Reid, 50, of Titusville.

Authorities are not certain a serial killer is at work. Female serial killers are considered extremely rare.

Marion County officials combed the brush along I-75 looking for clues in the slayings of the men, whom authorities believe may have been the victims of two women who are stalking the interstate killing men randomly.

The victims have all been middle-aged men and were blue collar workers. Most apparently were just passing through the north Florida and south Georgia area on business.

Each of the victims had been shot with a small caliber gun. Their cars were stolen and wrecked. The victims' money also had been stolen and sometimes their clothes.

Marion County sheriff's department Sgt. Robert Douglas said "somehow these women, if they are women, are getting these men to let their guard down. Maybe they are posing as women with car trouble alongside the road."

UCF, other universities vie for new law school

United Press International

ORLANDO — The Florida Board of Regents is expected to vote in January on whether and where to spend $10 million to build a third public law school, setting up intense competition for the facility.

Florida A&M University in Tallahassee wants to build a law school in Tampa, Orlando or south Florida to attract minority students.

Florida International University in Miami and the University of Central Florida in Orlando are also competing for the new law school.

The facility would cost about $10 million to construct and some $3.2 million annually to operate.

Regents' Chairman Charles Edwards agreed the state needs a new law school. But he also points out that the universities have recently taken budget cuts, and more cuts are expected. "We don't want to get anvbody's hopes built up," Edwards said. "There are many strong needs in many, many areas of education and it is going to come down to what our priorities are."

UCF President Steven Altman insisted the current economic climate should not stand in the way of planning for the new law school.

"Our forecast is that the economy will improve, but that the growth demands are going to continue," Altman said. "We better begin preparing now for what we know is coming."

The state's existing law schools are at the University of Florida and Florida State University. Both have limited enrollment since 1972, although applications for admission have continued to rise.

Private law schools operate at Stetson University in St. Petersburg, the University of Miami and Nova and St. Thomas universities in Broward County.

Parade

trees at Ft. Mellon Park while many clustered around the the Sanford Civic Center for protection against the cold winds. But everyone appeared to have a goodly amount of holiday spirit and spend the pre-parade time renewing old acquaintances along the parade route.

The parade began exactly at 11 a.m., moving west along the lake front on Seminole Boulevard, led by wailing and whooping sirens from police and fire units.

Stephanie Russell, as the crowned Miss St. Lucia, and Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith shared a Rolls Royce convertible to lead the parade. Several vehicles behind them, Eunice Martin, Olga Hunter and Sidney Vihlen Sr. rode in a horse-drawn carriage. They are three of the oldest members of the second generation of Swedish people who helped settle the Sanford area.

With a theme of "Family Christmas Tradition around the World," many of the floats and units took on an international flavor, depicting Christmas observances in Germany, France, Mexico and other nations. A number of Indian tribes were also represented during the parade.

As is the custom, the final float in the hour-long parade featured Santa Claus who drew wide-eyed amazement from the smallest parade watchers, and shouts and waves from his larger fans.

Parade Chairman Althea Parrish rode near Santa, announcing that he would be waiting for the children on First Street, immediately after the parade.

The wind and cold produced only minor problems for the parade participants, such as a broken Christmas tree on one float.

St. Lucia Festival

SANFORD — History does repeat itself.

The cold, wet winds that dampened the first St. Lucia Festival in Sanford last year returned to hover over the second annual event yesterday. The National Weather Service in Orlando reported temperatures reaching the low 50s in Sanford yesterday.

But in spite of grey skies and bitter cold, artisans displayed their wares, food vendors cooked up a variety of offerings and a small crowd gathered to listen to performances by bluegrass, Dixieland and other bands.

First Street, from Park to Palmetto avenues, was closed to traffic during the festival yesterday. Booths and concession stands were set up along the two-block area, but because of the cold weather, the booths which drew the largest number of people were those that sold hot coffee.

Many food booths offered a variety of foods from around the world.

St. Lucia is celebrated in Sweden as the saint of light. According to legend, she arrived to feed a famished nation just before Christmas. St. Lucia Day is the traditional beginning of the Swedish yuletide season, celebrated Dec. 13.

The festival in Sanford was originally organized to celebrate Sanford's Swedish heritage. City founder Henry Shelton Sanford brought Swedish immigrants to Sanford in the 1870s to work in his citrus groves in exchange for land. The immigrants settled the New Upsala community, located in western Sanford where the Upsala Presbyterian Church still remains.

Several displays at yesterday's festivals highlighted Swedish food and crafts. A Swedish flag, donated to the festival committee, flew over the festival from in front of the former Seminole County library building on First Street.

A four-piece Dixieland band performed traditional as well as holiday music in front of one of the stores between Park and Magnolia avenues, while a bluegrass band picked and sang for the delight of passers by in the area between Magnolia and eral Henry Shelton Sanford and his family.

The festival also included the annual Christmas parade yesterday morning and the lighted boat parade on Lake Monroe last night.

Kay Bartholomew, founding organizer of the festival, has said planning has already started for the 1991 St. Lucia Festival.

GENEVA — A woman who was allegedly brandishing a knife against another woman when Seminole County sheriff's deputies arrived at their house at about 11 a.m. Friday has been arrested.

Mary Jo Bridges, 26, 713 Harney Heights Road, Geneva, is charged with aggravated assault. She is accused of threatening Betty Jean Johnson, 47, and Robert Wayne Bridges, 27, both of that address, during a family dispute.

Board to consider SMS construction expenses

By KI DeSORMIER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — It will cost $11,294 more than originally anticipated to ensure that the sewer system at Sanford Middle School meets city regulations.

A conflict manhole and two sets of backflow preventers and meter assemblies must be installed at the school site, 1700 French Ave., Sanford, which is currently undergoing renovation.

"The backflow preventers, especially the installation, are the really costly item," Scott Stegall, the school district's director of construction said.

Stegall said the four inch pipes weigh more than 200 pounds apiece.

It will cost $9,500 to purchase the hardware and tie it in to the system at French Avenue and at Lake Avenue.

The remaining $1,800 will be spent to install the manhole.

Stegall explained that the sanitary sewer lines and the stormwater system were not always required to be separate as they are today. At the Sanford Middle School site, some of which was built as early as 1926, the system is, according to Stegall, "pretty antiquated."

He noted that the extent of the problem was not known when the construction project began earlier this year.

The manhole is needed where the stormwater and sanitary sewer systems come within six inches of one another.

Stegall explained that since both depend on gravity to work properly and there is no pressure to push the waste through, they must slope downward and sometimes they are too close to one another.

"They just have to create a box around the storm water pipe," he explained.

The backflow preventers are a safeguard against disaster in the event that the city's sewer system should fail to operate properly.

The school board is expected to approve the expenditure for the needed work at its Dec. 11 meeting.

Comptroller's office involved in secret deal

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Comptroller Gerald Lewis' office departed from standard office policies in approving a $47,000 payment to a woman who accused a prominent House member of sexual harassment, a newspaper reported Saturday.

Lewis' office failed to file the standard description of the payment when it approved paying Kathie Jennings the money to settle her claim and ensure her silence. The Florida Times-Union reported.

Nor were middle-managers who normally review out-of-court settlements permitted to review this payment, the newspaper said.

That's because the office wanted to help the House keep their payment a secret, said Deputy Comptroller Tom Clemons.

"I think the whole premise of that settlement was to protect the privacy of the individual involved in the matter," Clemons said.

Jennings, 35, leveled her accusations against Rep. Fred Lippman, D-Hollywood, and a former committee staff director in 1987. She said she was the victim of sexual harassment between 1983 and 1986.

The matter finally surfaced last month. State Attorney Willie Meggs of Tallahassee has re-opened an investigation into the case.

I think the whole premise of that settlement was to protect the privacy of the individual involved in the matter.

—Tom Clemons, deputy comptroller

Jennings, who faced a $94,000 penalty if she broke her vow of silence, last week won a judge's permission to speak about it under oath to investigators from Meggs' office.

Lippman denies any wrongdoing. Jon Mills, who was House Speaker when the payment from House administrative funds was approved, said he feared the House could have been forced to pay up to six times the settlement amount if the case ever went to trial.

Clemons said he could not remember if Lewis approved the arrangement. Lewis was not immediately available for comment.

Domitio Calabro of Florida TaxWatch says the system of public accountability for state funds appears to have broken down.

"It leaves a lot to be desired," Calabro said of the way the payment was handled.

"The comptroller is there to provide some check and balance, and without documentation, those checks and balances break down, and then taxpayers tend to be ill-served," Calabro said.

The 1988 payment to Jennings is the only one of 75 out-of-court settlements approved by Lewis' office over the past three years that lacks the standard documentation, the Times-Union said.

The case file contains nothing more than vouchers for two payments totalling $47,000, and a one-paragraph letter from the House general counsel disclaiming liability for an unspecified employee complaint.

The documents do not explain why the payment was made.

Clemons said Lewis aides did go to the House speaker's offices to review written documents in the case, and that it did not matter if the comptroller's office didn't keep the documents as long as the speaker did.

However, House Speaker T.K. Wetherell said Friday that former House counsel Kevin Crowley took the papers with him when he left the House's employ. He said it is customary for House counsels to keep such records.

"It's a little bit concerning when ... someone says, 'Get me that file,' and they bring you the press clippings," Wetherell said.

CCIB agents arrest bogus doctor in Longwood

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — A Longwood man accused of practicing medicine in Casselberry using the identity of a medical doctor who died in 1986 has been arrested by City County Investigative Bureau Agents.

William John Pearce, also known as Dr. William J. Ricks, 57, 117 Lea Ave., Longwood, was arrested Friday after CCIB agents searched his house and office and found documents indicating that he was an imposter, an arrest report said.

Police also arrested Deborah Ricketts Pearce, also known as Deborah Ricks, 41, of the same address, who is accused of acting as manager of the bogus doctors' office.

In a search of Pearce's "doctors' office," Natures Path Inc., 1865 N. Semoran Blvd., Suite 201, Casselberry, agents reported finding additional incriminating documents. At both the house and office, agents said they found unauthorized prescription and non-prescription medications and equipment to administer medications. Patient records were seized. At the house there was a container of prescription medication bearing the name of Deborah Ricks allegedly issued by Pearce as Dr. Ricks, the report said.

Both suspects were held without bond in the county jail. Pearce is charged with practicing medicine without a license, obtaining a license by misrepresentation, distribution of controlled substances and using a forged license to operate a medical center. He also faces federal charges for applying for a U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration physician's prescription medication number by misrepresentation.

Deborah Pearce is charged with conspiracy to practice medicine without a license, conspiracy to obtain a license, possession of a controlled substance and conspiracy to use a forged instrument to open a medical office. In the office documents were reportedly found identifying "Deborah Ricks" as an officer on the board of directors of the bogus medical operation.

Orlando Metropolitan Bureau of Investigation agents alerted CCIB on Oct. 8 that a Dr. Ricks had issued an unusually large number of prescriptions for unusually high quantities of controlled substances to be filled at an area Wal-mart store.

The physician's DEA number used in issuing the prescriptions had been issued to a Dr. Ricks, who died Dec. 9, 1986. The real Dr. Ricks had been licensed to practice medicine in New York, Pennsylvania and Florida, the report said. An investigation showed that two months after Ricks died, an unknown person renewed his Florida medical license to practice in Boca Raton, CCIB agents said. The applicant had used the dead doctor's credentials to apply for the license.

An MBI agent acting for CCIB made a total of three appointments at the Casselberry office. On Oct. 10 the MBI agent was questioned by a "nurse" and given an appointment to return the following day. The next day the agent was screened by a "Dr.

Ross," who directed him to return to be examined Oct. 16, the report said.

The MBI agent on Oct. 16 was allegedly seen by both "Dr. Ross," and Pearce allegedly posing as "Dr. Ricks." Pearce allegedly prescribed medication for the agent and the investigation culminated with the search carried out Friday.

On Wednesday, Pearce, allegedly appeared before DEA officials in Tampa to attempt to correct problems with Dr. Ricks' physician's prescription number and to apply for a new number using the dead doctor's credentials, the report said. Pearce also allegedly has a Florida driver's license in Dr. Ricks' name.

At the Pearce house CCIB agents said they found many fraudulent documents indicating that other persons may have been impersonated in the case.

CAPE CANAVERAL — The shuttle Columbia's crew Saturday made up more lost time, gathering valuable data on a wide range of celestial objects, but a clogged water line could force NASA managers to order the astronauts home early.

Mission control commentator James Hartsfield said attempts to blow air through the line to clear it out were not successful. At the current rate of usage, Columbia's waste water tank would be full by around 6:30 a.m. EST Sunday.

But the crew can use an emergency container aboard the orbiter to give themselves an additional 60 hours, assuming the line cannot be cleared.

"We're working it hard," astronaut Story Musgrave radioed the crew from mission control "Right now ... we think there is no dump capability. Currently you have 60 hours when you look at ullage in the tank and your contingency container."

"OK, that's good to know," commander Vance Brand replied. "That'll give them a little time to work it."

Hartsfield said flight controllers were "considering all options, including a possible shortening of the flight, although there are no decisions in that regard. It is ... just being discussed. All information necessary to make a decision of that nature is not yet available.

Otherwise the mission has proceeded smoothly after a rocky start.

Greece turns corner

After two years of U.S. pressure, Greece is putting an accused Palestinian terrorist on trial for murder in the 1982 bombing of a U.S. airliner over the Pacific. The decision falls short of Washington's demand that Mohammed Raahid be extradited to the United States, but it's better than what once seemed likely: that he might be set free in the face of pressure from another source — Palestinian terrorists.

In the circumstances, this is real progress in a relationship that for years has been tense at best. A perceived U.S. tilt toward Greece's age-old adversary, Turkey, and toward the military junta that ruled Greece from 1967 to 1974, still angers many Greeks. That sentiment was exploited for eight years by Andreas Papandreu, the Socialist prime minister whose tenure ended in scandal and defeat at the polls last year. Papandreu repeatedly threatened to close all U.S. military bases in Greece and went out of his way to befriend American adversaries, including the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Papandreu did next to nothing to curb terrorists, or to prevent them from using Greece as a haven; in 1988, a suspect accused of killing a child and injuring 37 others in a Rome synagogue bombing was detained but then set free because, the Greek justice minister said, he was a "freedom fighter" in the Palestinian cause.

That might have happened again in the Raahid case had Papandreu's Pan-Hellenic Socialist Movement not lost last year's election. But its successor, led by Constantine Mitsotakis of the conservative New Democracy party, has changed course. Earlier this year it signed a new eight-year agreement that will allow strategic U.S. naval, air and communications bases to remain. Then, it got parliament to pass a law that allows people accused of crimes outside Greece to be tried there under some circumstances. Raahid thus faces prosecution and a possible life sentence.

Whether justice will be served remains to be seen. There has been a resurgence of terrorism: Two Greek judges have been murdered by left-wing terrorists, who tried to kill a Greek shipping tycoon. Raahid's Greek lawyers are being paid by the PLO.

So far, however, the new government is more attentive to pressure from the opposite direction: With the Cold War over, Greece can't play the Soviet card against Washington; its depressed economy badly needs the U.S. military credits that come with the new bases accord and the economic aid that its European Community partners can provide in return for a tougher approach to terrorism.

Whatever the reasons, it's heartening to see U.S.-Greek relations at last moving in the right direction. When George Bush visits Athens early next year, he will be the first U.S. president to do so since Dwight Eisenhower more than 30 years ago. That's an unconscionably long breach for two peoples with such a mutual passion for democracy and free speech.

'Unwanted junk mail'

The list of "50 Simple Things You Can Do to Save the Earth" in the best-selling book of that name turns out not to be so simple. It seems that even among environmentalists, when marketing comes eyeball to eyeball with Mother Nature, she blinks.

The trouble started when the Natural Resources Defense Council offered to buy 75,000 copies of the book as a lure for new members. But first, the publisher had to make a few changes. It seems that item No. 1 on the list of Earth-saving steps was "Stop junk mail." Since NRDC wanted to use the book for a junk-mail campaign of its own, a little rewriting was in order. In the newly revised version, that prescription has been changed to apply only to "unwanted junk mail" and the whole idea has been bumped down to a lower position on the list.

Advertising through the mail is an economic mainstay for non-profit groups such as the NRDC, as it is for thousands of other enterprises with something to sell. That's why U.S. companies last year spent $33.9 billion to send out more than 62 billion pieces of mail that generated sales in excess of $160 billion. Along the way, environmentalists estimate, that selling consumes 100 million trees a year and generates a little less than 3 million tons of trash that has to be hauled away from the homes of recipients.

But by focusing on "unwanted junk mail," NRDC has come up with a perfect concept for absolving any ethical or ecological discomfort that reliance on this particular fund-raising mechanism might cause. It's a wonder no one thought of it before. All we have to do to solve the junk mail problem for the sake of the planet is eliminate all the stuff that we don't want to get. Or is it the stuff that they don't want to send?

Leadership for Seminole schools

Superintendents are chief executive officers of school districts. Florida has 67 counties and 67 superintendents. Robert Hughes, Seminole County superintendent, is the president of the Florida Association of District Superintendents. All of the large school districts in the state, except Polk and Escambia, have appointed superintendents. The remaining 48 are elected.

In 1974 Seminole County changed from partisan school board elections to non-partisan elections. This year, because of litigation, there was a concern that the superintendency might again become partisan. By the time the court decreed that school board members and the superintendency would remain non-partisan, the issue had been placed on the ballot.

On Nov. 6 the voters by a narrow margin, decided that future superintendents will be appointed by and accountable to the school board.

Hughes suggested that many new residents have moved from the North and the Midwest. They might have voted for an appointed superintendent because they are accustomed to this model of school management. The voters have spoken and he accepts their decision. He is certainly going to be one, if not the first, candidate for the position when his current tenure is concluded.

Hughes has served as Seminole County school superintendent for 10 years. He contends it is not the selection process for the superintendency that is of paramount concern. Rather it is the professionalism and dedication to serving the best interest of students that is the issue.

The school district is still in the midst of improving existing structures and planning to meet the needs of students for housing. Schools in the process of improvement are Sanford Middle, Milwee Middle, and Jackson Heights.

Lake Mary Elementary School was left with inadequate acreage when the county widened Lake Mary Boulevard. The county paid the school district $250,000 for the right-of-way. In order to meet minimum standards for an elementary school with a population of 800, fifteen acres is needed. Consequently, this is being rectified by purchasing land adjacent to the school from a private firm.

There had been hopes of building four new elementary schools and one middle school. Another elementary school is needed in Oviedo near the Spring Lake and Bear Lake areas. This has been a growth area but not as critical as Stenstrom and Wilson.

A new middle school is sorely needed to reduce the overcrowding at South Seminole, Jackson Heights and Tusawilla Middle Schools.

The Department of Education has approved a two-story middle school that has been used in three other counties. These reuse plans are currently under review. A new middle school would be located on Tusawilla Road near Keeth Elementary School.

If a source of revenue is identified, a new middle school could be ready by the fall of 1982. Approximately 18 months is required to build the type of middle school referred to above.

Hughes spoke with pride and enthusiasm about the excellence of education in Seminole County. He is excited about one of the newest programs at Seminole High School, the Compact Program. The superintendent serves as a mentor in this program Tuesday mornings from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m.

Chemical arms dump unnerving

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa — When the governors of the U.S. territories and possessions in the Pacific met here recently, there was no debate over the Defense Department's plan to decommission lethal chemical weapons in the region.

Instead, they quickly approved — without discussion or dissent — a resolution that reflects the hostility throughout the Pacific to the use of remote Johnston Island, slightly more than 800 miles west-southwest of Hawaii, for the disposal of chemical munitions.

Endorsed by the governors of the Northern Mariana Islands, Hawaii, Guam and American Samoa was a statement calling upon the Pentagon to limit its decommissioning operations in the region and to expedite a search for alternative disposal sites and techniques.

Independent countries in the Pacific have been even more antagonistic to Washington's plans. Indeed, their opposition led President Bush to invite the leaders of more than a dozen small island nations to discuss the issue with him when he visited Hawaii in late October.

But that extraordinary meeting did little to assuage the region's concerns about chemical weapons so toxic that the Defense Department acknowledges "exposure to nerve agents can result in convulsions and death due to paralysis of the respiratory system ... often within 10 minutes of exposure."

Residents of the U.S. mainland who ignore that feasting controversy because they assume Johnston Island is too distant to be relevant to their lives are deluding themselves. The huge chemical weapons incinerator already constructed there is a prototype for similar facilities to be built in eight states.

In the early 1970s, the Defense Department began using Johnston Island to store aging stocks of artillery shells, bombs, rockets, mines and other weapons with chemical warheads, many of them intended for use in World War I and II.

Shortly after enactment of a 1985 federal law requiring the destruction of all the U.S. chemical weapons, the Pentagon began construction of the Johnston Atoll Chemical Agency Disposal System.

JACADS was completed last year and a 16-month-long test of the $240 million incinerator began in early summer of this year. It already has produced disturbing results, including mechanical failures that contributed to shutdowns more than three-fourths of the time when the facility was supposed to be operating.

During the initial months of trial burning, alarms that are supposed to warn the island's 1,200 inhabitants (300 Army personnel and 900 civilian contract employees) of spills, leaks or other dangerous releases accidentally went off six times.

Civilians are banned from Johnston Island, but last month a commercial airliner was damaged and stranded there in a tropical storm while fierce winds and rain pounded weapons stocks. Among the passengers forced to stay overnight were three children for whom there were no suitable protective gas masks.

Although JACADS initially was to handle the decommissioning of the 300,000 chemical warheads already in the Pacific, the Defense Department designated it as the disposal site for another 100,000 nerve gas shells stored in West Germany.

Inhabitants of countries throughout the Pacific are concerned about accidental releases during shipment through their region or handling on Johnston Island as well as contamination produced by disposal of the residue from the incineration process.

The Pacific and German stocks represents only 6.5 percent of the United States' inventory of toxic chemical weapons. Bush says there are "no plans" to destroy the remaining 93.5 percent on Johnston Island — a tentative commitment at best.

If those plans do not change, however, the deadly nerve and blister agents will be incinerated at their current storage sites, including Tooele, Utah, where more than 42 percent of the stockpile is held. Smaller reserves are stored in Umatilla, Ore.; Pueblo, Colo.; Pine Bluff, Ark.; Newport, Ind.; Aniston, Ala.; Richmond, Ky.; and Aberdeen, Md.

Residents of the regions surrounding those communities then will have to confront the issues that now seem to be so distant in the mid-Pacific.

Jordan feeling crunch of crisis

PETRA, Jordan — At the height of the tourist season, this wonder of the world stands as empty as it was in the centuries after the Arab Nabateans abandoned it. This tourist attraction dating from the fourth century B.C., which got heightened attention after it was discovered by Hollywood for "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," sees precious few tourists these days.

Near the ancient city carved out of the cliffs, hundreds of horses and their tenders lounge in the sun waiting for someone to rent them for the ride through the narrow passageway through the rocks to Petra. Camel tenders inside the ruins stand idle and hawkers, trying to pass off bogus "Roman" coins as the real thing, have had to raise their prices to offset losses.

The area's premier hotel, the Petra Forum, normally requires reservations a year in advance for this peak tourist season. But only five of the rooms are occupied and we take two of those. Guides and clerks alike complain that the only tourists they see are journalists taking a break from reporting on the Persian Gulf crisis.

The scene at Petra, probably the most popular tourist attraction in the Arab Middle East, is repeated at other sites in Jordan — the Roman ruins at Jerash, the Red Sea resort at Aqaba and the Dead Sea.

Egypt, Israel and Turkey are seeing fewer tourists too. All four countries have carefully cultivated the tourist business, but have now been devastated by the siltiness of Americans and Western Europeans who are canceling by the tens of thousands.

The Jordanians faced the problem in a peculiar way. Alla, the Royal Jordanian airline, tried to charge us a $100 "war-risk" surcharge for each ticket.

Jordanian sources told us that 750,000 tourists have been scared off by the Gulf crisis. Most of them were from Western Europe, particularly Germany and Italy. The total revenue loss is estimated at more than $250 million since Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait in August.

Nothing is likely to come Jordan's way to make up for those losses. Kuwait had promised $135 million in aid to Jordan this year, but is in no position to make good on that promise. Iraq had pledged $50 million, but is hoarding its money. Jordan had relied on remittances sent home by 200,000 Jordanians working in Kuwait and Iraq, but that money has dried up too.

Even more devastating to the Jordanian economy has been King Hussein's policy toward Iraq, which he calls "neutrality," but which his Arab neighbors view as a strong tilt toward Iraq. That has cut off aid and trade from Saudi Arabia, which, as we have already reported, believes Jordan was part of a plot with Saddam to overrun Saudi Arabia after he took Kuwait. The Saudis cut off oil shipments to Jordan, depriving Jordan of half its daily consumption of oil. Now Saudis are refusing to buy Jordanian goods. Jordan has a total foreign debt of between $8.4 billion and $9 billion and is not likely to be able to pay the interest or principle at the end of this year. At the United Nations, Jordanian diplomats have estimated that their country will lose $4.2 billion because of the Persian Gulf standoff, including the trade embargo against Iraq. Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan, who has gotten a chilly reception from America and Saudi Arabia because of his country's "neutral" stand, lamented in frustration, "Is it expected that Jordan commit economic hari kari?"

The Jordanians faced the problem in a peculiar way.

Independent countries in the Pacific have been even more antagonistic to Washington's plans.

What can be recycled

If you've ever had a plastic bottle or a can left in your unincorporated Seminole County recycling bin, probably put the trash in, regardless of what was used to make it. Here's what the county will take — and what they won't and why.

PAPER — Newspapers and newspaper-type "shoppers" along with anything that was stuffed in them such as television magazines or advertising inserts, except the rubber bands or plastic bags they come in. Through the end of the year, telephone books will be accepted.

MAGAZINES, comic books, junk mail or any other paper products cannot be accepted because they alter the end product made from the recycled newspapers.

GLASS — All colors of uncoated glass used for any purpose. Remove caps and cap rings from glass containers and toss them in the garbage. You can leave the labels on.

MIRRORS, ceramics and light bulbs will not be accepted because they contain materials that can cloud the new glass.

PLASTIC — If you didn't drink from it, don't recycle it. Only plastic beverage containers such as for milk, water or soft drinks will be accepted. Remove plastic or metal caps and cap rings and toss them in the garbage. You can leave the labels on.

• Garbage haulers won't take plastic bottles for shampoo, motor oil, bleach, ketchup and other products even though the types of plastics used for the bottles might be the same kind used for beverages. Oil and the other products can soak into the surface of the plastic, preventing it from being recyclable.

ALUMINUM — If you didn't drink from it, don't recycle it. Only beverage cans such as those for soft drinks or beer.

• Aluminum foil, pie plates and food containers will not be accepted because of limitations of the recycling process that will be used to make the cans into new drink cans.

If you still have questions about what the county does and doesn't want you to recycle, call 322-7805 for more information.

Polk

ment of Seminole Sheriff's Maj. Donald Estinger, 33, to serve as sheriff for the final two years of Polk's last term. "Will be the last good thing I do for the county, but it's a good last thing," Polk said.

"He's made the right decision," Manning said. "He'll always be proud."

"Don — I respect him. For a young guy he's tremendously mature. He's able to communicate. He'll make some changes, but not against Polk."

"He's going to do an outstanding job.... The county was fortunate to have had John Polk and now Don Estinger," Manning said.

Polk said his first venture to Tallahassee as sheriff was to appeal his budget to ask the state to pay for department liability insurance and for a recorder for his dispatchers.

"If I didn't think I needed it, I wouldn't have gone for it," Polk said. "I found out what politics was all about, and we won."

In the 1970s when he appealed his budget, the governor turned down Polk's request for gasoline money to keep patrol cars on the road. Polk had threatened that he would have to park his patrol cars and assign deputies to foot patrol.

"I came back with nothing, but as soon as I got back the county commission gave it to me," he said.

One of his first duties as sheriff was to travel to Los Angeles County, Calif., to bring back a prisoner suspected of a rape-murder in Seminole County.

There, Polk said, he saw the impact of growth from Disney Land on that community and thus learned what type of impact Disney World might have on Seminole County. He came back with the idea of a five-year budget plan, which was his first type of budget presented to the county commission. He said the commission laughed at him, but this plan-ahead practice became the norm.

When taking custody of that prisoner in California, Polk said, he treated the man with dignity because he hadn't been convicted of a crime. However, Polk told the suspect: "He had three ways he could go — like a gentleman, because he had not been convicted. Or go by the hospital. Or go by the funeral home. Every man has his dignity regardless of what he is accused of doing. We had no trouble out of him. When he got back here he told the other prisoners: 'You know Mr. Polk, he treats you right. He lets you know where he's coming from, so it's up to you to decide how you come back.'"

In the early days, Polk had three jailers and three dispatchers.

The consummate politician Sheriff John Polk takes Lt. Gov. Bobby Brantley (center) and Gov. Bob Martinez on tour of county jail, just before Martinez' election in 1988.

chens. Their duties sometimes overlapped, and all had to serve as cooks for the jail. The sheriff's office and jail were located in what is now the county courthouse annex in downtown Sanford.

When that jail, housing 68 prisoners, was set afire by an inmate, who died in the fire along with eight other prisoners and one guard, June 9, 1975, Polk sought and received federal and state funds to build a new jail at the government complex at Five Points. The fire and deaths were a low mark in his career, he said.

Early in his career as sheriff, Polk, who had been a Florida Highway Patrol trooper for 10 years, often filed in as a dispatcher. He sometimes assisted in working criminal cases.

His duties became more administrative as the county and the department grew. During his tenure Polk formed a vice task force, which developed into the multi-agency City County Investigative Bureau, a state leader in the drug war.

A SWAT team was developed, along with a bomb squad. Record keeping and dispatching systems became computerized and the 911 emergency phone system was installed. Polk said he and Finance Director Betty Simcoe pushed for Medicare payments of prisoners' hospital bills at a local hospital, saving county taxpayers thousands of dollars annually, beginning about four years ago with a $53,000 credit.

In 1985, at Polk's request, Seminole County shoppers paid a one-year, one-cent local sales tax to pay for revamping and expanding the county jail to house 812 prisoners. Polk was disappointed this November when he was too ill to campaign for a similar measure, which would have further expanded the jail and paid for a new $10 million sheriff's office. Voters declined to approve the tax this year, although Polk said, the facilities will have to be built, now with property taxpayers shouldering the whole burden.

Polk accepted leadership roles with the Florida Sheriff's Association, serving as chairman. He was instrumental through that group in making most of the state's sheriff's departments self-insured. He traveled to London, England in both 1987 and 1988 to secure that insurance. While in London in 1988, Polk suffered a heart attack.

He served on the state Criminal Justice Standards and Training Commission and lobbied in Tallahassee on numerous law enforcement issues such as gun control, contraband forfeiture, jails, juveniles in jails, development of a statewide prosecutor's office, child abuse and drunk drivers. Polk also lobbied for other Seminole County issues as well. He was instrumental in developing a state crime lab here, which has since been relocated in Orlando.

As he retires, Polk is the dean of Florida's sheriffs. Until 1986 he was a Democrat, switching parties in 1986 to support Gov. Bob Martinez.

Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett, who once worked as a dispatcher for Polk, said the retiring sheriff has been an inspiration to him and other lawmen in the state. Seminole County, Harriett said, enjoys benefits from a unique cooperation between all local law enforcement agencies, which has been fostered by Polk.

Polk underwent his second double heart bypass surgery in North Carolina one year ago. About 12 years ago in Gainesville he underwent the same type of surgery and recovered fully. However, serious complications developed almost immediately after the 1989 surgery and Polk's health has been in decline during the past year.

The sheriff has been hospitalized in Altamonte Springs since Nov. 7, and was denied a needed heart transplant in Gainesville in October. When he received word in the hospital more than one week ago that the Seminole County Commission renamed the county jail the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, Polk said he was deeply honored. However, he said, the development of the jail and his other projects was a team effort that included his staff and supporters.

Polk is stepping down from a distinguished career during which, his successor Maj. Donald Estinger said, Polk has become an institution in law enforcement and politics. That is a sentiment echoed throughout the state.

Garbage

ices department. In all, 10 tons of aluminum drink cans, 18 1/2 tons of plastic drink bottles, 45 tons of telephone books, 96 tons of glass and 283 tons of newspapers were recycled by unincorporated residents.

Think about those big numbers next time you toss a drink can in the garbage. It takes 23 or 24 of them to make up a pound of aluminum and close to 48,000 of them to make up a ton.

During the last two years, the county has also taken in, shredded and reused over 750 tons of tires, recycled more than 18,000 gallons of used motor oil, recycled 66,000 batteries and diverted 335 tons of old washers and refrigerators from the county dump.

The materials are accepted at the county dump and the Sanlando transfer station near Altamonte Springs. Used oil is also accepted at the Mobil gasoline stations at 2518 French Ave., Sanford, and 5950 S. U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry.

But the county still has a long way to go to meet the state-required 30-percent reduction of discarded garbage by 1994. The 450 tons represents about 1 1/2 percent of the average 33,333 tons thrown away monthly by residents throughout the county.

Recycling programs in Lake Mary, Longwood, Altamonte Springs and Oviedo also serve to increase the percentage of garbage being recycled.

Cinder said the 1 1/2 percent start-off amount doesn't reflect all 50,000 homes in unincorporated Seminole County because about 30 percent of the homes do not subscribe to a garbage collection service. Cinder said those non-participating residents either take their garbage to the county dump or transfer station or use a neighbor's garbage cans.

If the county adopts mandatory garbage collection next

October, more unincorporated households will participate, Cinder said.

Sherry Newkirk, the county's recycling coordinator, said residences will eventually produce about 40 percent of the reduction goal needed. A minimum of 10 percent will come from businesses and apartments, Newkirk said. The other half of the reduction will be comprised of yard trash and construction debris, which now makes up 80 percent of all refuse discarded in the county.

The county collects anywhere from 10 percent to 90 percent of the money made from the sale of the recyclable materials by the county's recycler, Southeast Recycling Corp. in Longwood. November's sales will generate about $10,000 for the county, Cinder said.

The money raised by the sale of the recyclables will be used to promote recycling to increase household participation in the voluntary program, Cinder said.

Newkirk said recycling has created few problems. She said the main question she has received from residents is why materials collectors won't take plastic shampoo bottles or plastic oil bottles even though they may have the triangular recyclable plastic symbol on the bottom.

The county is currently accepting beverage bottles made of two kinds of plastic, HDPE, which may have a triangular symbol with a "2" at its center, and PET, with a "1" in the symbol, are the two of the more than 40 types of plastic that are being recycled. HDPE is the opaque plastic used for milk and water bottles and PET is the clear plastic used for soft drinks.

Although HDPE and PET are used to contain other products, Newkirk said shampoos, oils and other products can discolor or pollute the plastic so the recycled product isn't pure.

Tracks

New York Central's "Twentieth Century Limited," overnight between New York City and Chicago. The Santa Fe had the "El Capitan" and the "Chief" that ran between Chicago and California. There was the Missouri Pacific's Missouri Belle that ran between Chicago and New Orleans. And we must not overlook the Southern Pacific's "Sunset Limited" that ran between New Orleans and Los Angeles.

But railroading had a bad day now and then. I can recall one event in particular.

One of Sanford's well known locomotive engineers was Robert A. Howell Sr. He was from Missouri and began his railroad career with the Gulf, Mobile & Northern. His wife, Mattie, was from Mississippi. They came to Sanford in 1909 when he signed on with the ACL. The Howell's had three children — Clifford, Thelma and Bob, Jr. Old timers will remember that Thelma was married to Homer Little and they operated the former Baggett's drugstore in the long ago removed Arcade building in downtown Sanford.

But the sad day we've been leading up to was December 14, 1933. The senior Howell was the engineer aboard a mainline locomotive pulling a "fast freight" to Jacksonville. It was a wintry, foggy morning. In Crescent City, children were on their way to school. As the train sped through the town it approached a crossing. Suddenly, through the fog, the veteran engineer saw a stopped school bus start across the tracks. The huge engine broadsided the bus. Ten children were killed on impact. Four others died a short time later. Howell brought the train to a stop far down the tracks. Although devastated, he helped remove the bodies of four children from the locomotive.

News of the tragedy quickly spread throughout the city. Sanford people were stunned. "It took 10 years off Dad's life," said Robert Jr. He wanted to go to the mass funeral in Crescent City but his Sanford physician, the well known and remembered Dr. A.W. Knox, would not permit him to go.

During his career Bob Howell Sr. rode the rails for 48 years.

GenDev indictment expanded

MIAMI — A new expanded indictment against General Development Corp., the real estate company at the center of a land fraud investigation, included charges against two more company officials.

Federal prosecutors last week filed the new indictment, which increased the number of counts against the company by 58 to 74 charges in all. The two additional defendants charged were Tore T. DeBella, GDC's former senior vice president of marketing, and Richard A. Reizen, a marketing vice president.

The new indictment makes the same allegations as the first, namely that GDC used deceptive sales practices to lure buyers for its overpriced tract houses. The first 50 counts in the new indictment involved instances of allegedly using the mail to commit fraud. The next 22 charges dealt with the alleged transporting of people across state lines to defraud them. The final count accused the defendants of engaging in a conspiracy to carry out the alleged fraud.

TEC Homes announces new project

LAKE MARY — TEC Homes has broken ground on a $2.8 million contract with Keabond, a real estate marketing company in Finland, to build 14 zero-lot-line luxury homes in the Heathrow community of Devon Green.

The deal was announced in a press release by Michael L. Palombi, a vice president with the Central Florida builder headquartered in Lake Mary.

Keabond has purchased the homes with the intent of reselling them in Finland as vacation and primary residences.

In response to Keabond's request for one- and two-story, three-bedroom homes planned especially to appeal to Scandinavian buyers, TEC Homes is building designs with Alpine style exteriors, indoor saunas, splash pools, and numerous other luxury features with a European flair.

"Keabond was looking for a builder that could provide them with features not found in the typical custom home in Central Florida, such as the indoor sauna and splash pool," Palombi said. "We listened to what they wanted, and are building homes to meet their specifications."

"We are seeing a strong interest in residential real estate from Europeans, and several of our recent sales have been to foreign nationals," Palombi said. He added that Central Florida's appeal as a popular vacation spot along with lower U.S. interest rates and a favorable currency exchange rate have contributed to the growing number of international sales.

The Heathrow location offers elegance, security, and easy accessibility to all of metropolitan Orlando.

With construction currently in progress, the 14 homes will be completed by August, 1991.

Named a five-star builder by "Florida Home Builder Magazine," TEC Homes is one of Central Florida's largest and oldest custom home builders.

The company is a longtime member of the Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida.

Sears pay freeze seen tip iceberg

By JACK LEBAR
UPI Business Writer

CHICAGO — Sears, Roebuck & Co. has told 20,000 managers their salaries will be frozen for at least a year, but analysts said Thursday the pay freeze is just the tip of a cost-cutting iceberg for the nation's No. 1 retailer.

Analysts said they expect Sears to announce major cost-cutting moves after the first of the year — aimed at paring expenses by $500 million to $1 billion.

But a Sears spokesman, asked Thursday about further cost-cutting plans, said: "At this point I'm not aware of any announcement ... or any such plans in the pipeline."

On Wednesday, Sears informed 20,000 salaried workers their 1991 salaries would be frozen at present levels. Those workers normally would have expected pay raises of 5 percent to 7 percent.

"The salary freeze is part of the company's ongoing, company-wide cost-reduction program," the Sears spokesman said Thursday.

"It involved all levels of Sears management, in its corporate offices and in the domestic merchandise group," he said. "The policy is effective beginning Jan. 1 for 12 months and would be reviewed as conditions warrant after that 12-month period."

But securities analysts said the pay freeze is just the beginning.

"I still think there's probably a bigger announcement coming, probably early next year, which will entail a much bigger cost-cutting program," said Daniel Barry, a retail industry analyst at Kidder, Peabody & Co. in New York.

Analysts said elimination of furniture departments and the shutdown of unprofitable or marginal stores are among the possibilities open to Sears.

Caribbean wins with U.S. sugar guarantee

By DON FINEPROCK
UPI Business Writer

MIAMI — The U.S. decision to guarantee a minimum import level for foreign sugar represents a victory for Caribbean producers, although the program may cause problems for domestic producers and undercut world prices, several officials said Thursday.

"I would say the Caribbean has come out big winners with this minimum import level," said Parks Shackelford, a consultant to the Cotton, Rice and Sugar Subcommittee in the U.S. House.

"It is important that we maintain access to our market — a premium market — until they (Caribbean producers) are able to get a fair price on the world market," Shackelford told a gathering at the Miami Conference on the Caribbean, an annual trade and development conference.

The 1990 farm bill signed Nov. 28 by President Bush sets an absolute floor for U.S. sugar imports of 1.25 million tons.

Although sugar-producing nations in the Caribbean had hoped for guaranteed imports of 2 million tons. "We have to be pleased with this level," said Carlos Despradel, economic adviser to the president of the Dominican Republic.

Unemployment rate rises to 5.9%

By BOB WEBSTER
UPI Business Writer

WASHINGTON — The nation's labor market took a "substantial and widespread" hit last month as the unemployment rate rose 0.2 percent to 5.9 percent, the highest level in more than two years.

In yet another sign of the weakness spreading throughout the U.S. economy, employment levels fell sharply last month with non-farm payrolls losing 267,000 jobs. Manufacturing, construction and retail jobs were hardest hit, the Labor Department said in releasing the latest statistics.

The monthly job loss was the greatest since the recession of 1982 and the second consective large monthly decline.

"In summary, the November labor market data show a substantial and widespread over-the-month deterioration," said Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Norwood told the congressional Joint Economic Committee that sharp employment declines were spread throughout the goods and services sectors of the economy, with the greatest hits in manufacturing and construction.

"Employment fell sharply and in nearly every industry," she said.

Average hourly earnings rose 0.7 percent because of the rebound in hours worked. Average weekly earnings edged down to $348.49.

Over the year, average hourly earnings have increased 3.6 percent and average weekly earnings have gained 3 percent.

The number of unemployed workers swelled by 300,000 to 7.4 million during the month. Most of the newly jobless were adult men. Unemployment rates for adult men have increased steadily through the year to reach 5.4 percent in November.

Unemployment rates for other categories also increased. The adult women unemployment rate reached 5.1 percent last month; teenagers, 16.5 percent; whites 5.1 percent; blacks, 12.4 percent and Hispanics, 8.6 percent.

Weight with parental support

By RABBIT KLINGER
 United Press International

BOSTON — Overweight children whose parents support their efforts to diet appear more likely to lose weight over the long term than those who do not get parental reinforcement.

A recent study comparing efforts of three groups of children to control their weight found those who had a parent reinforcing them — and whose parents also received weight control training — were significantly more successful 10 years later than those whose parents were not as involved.

The results provide the first evidence that if "behavioral, family-based treatment is initiated when the child is between the ages of 6 and 12 years, the effects can persist until adulthood," said Dr. Leonard Epstein of the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine.

The study also is the first to show that long-term weight control among children and teenagers does not seem to adversely affect the height they can achieve, Epstein and co-researchers said in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The Pittsburgh scientists divided the children, who had an average age of about 10 at the start of the study and were at least 20 percent over their ideal weight, into groups according to the degree of parental involvement in their dieting.

The study required that each child had to have both parents living at home and that one parent had to be obese. In addition, one parent had to accompany his or her child to treatment sessions.

The study participants all were told to limit their daily food consumption to no more than 1,500 calories and shown how to keep a diet diary and how to keep track of their weight.

Epstein said during the first 21 months of the study, weight changes among the children were roughly equivalent in all three groups. But a five-year follow-up found that between 21 months and 60 months, children in the two groups that did not include parental weight loss instruction and reinforcement gained notably more weight than the children in the first group.

Depression during pregnancy can produce irritable babies

United Press International

BOSTON — Women who are depressed during their pregnancies appear to be more likely to give birth to irritable babies, a new study shows.

The study of 1,123 mothers found those who experienced symptoms of depression during pregnancy were more likely to have babies who cried a lot and were difficult to comfort.

In addition, the more depressed expectant mothers were, the greater the likelihood they would have irritable, fussy, crying babies, said Dr. Barry Zuckerman and colleagues at Boston University School of Medicine.

The researchers found mothers who scored the highest on a commonly used depression test were nearly three times more likely to have newborns who were difficult to comfort than women who scored the lowest.

It is not known why pre-natal depression might lead to fussy babies, but the researchers speculated that it could have to do with hormonal changes in the mother's body which affect her baby.

The link also might have to do with the way depressed mothers handle infants immediately after birth, they said. Alternatively, it might be due to variables the study did not measure, they said.

Right or wrong, Americans think they eat right

By CHARLES J. ABBOTT
 UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON — Most Americans believe they eat a healthful mixture of foods and see no reason to change, although the facts suggest they can not all be right, two nutritionists said.

"Our preliminary data suggests that perceptions and reality do not always match," government nutritionists Linda Cleveland and Katherine Tippet reported, based on preliminary results from the government's Diet and Health Knowledge Survey.

The survey is one of the first aimed at determining how attitudes and knowledge about healthy diets influence a person's decisions on which foods to eat. In a report presented at an Agriculture Department conference last week, Cleveland said the survey's link with another food survey would allow the Human Nutrition Information Service to compare a respondent's diet with how that person rated it.

Although studies suggest Americans eat too much fat, responses in the health knowledge survey showed many were aware of the need to cut back on fat and cholesterol. Two-thirds of the respondents said it was important to avoid too much fat and only one-sixth thought cholesterol consumption did not matter.

The survey also showed respondents agreed it was important to eat a variety of foods. However, few attached importance to eating the amount of fruits, vegetables and grains, such as bread or rice, recommended by the government.

High risk groups urged to get flu immunizations

HOUSTON — Flu shots save lives — but thousands of people die every year because they do not take advantage of this important health safeguard. Fewer than one-third of the people most in danger of flu-related complications get the shots.

According to Dr. W. Paul Glezen of the nation's Influenza Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, "There have been at least 10,000 excess deaths during each of the flu epidemics in the United States in the past 30 years. The more severe epidemics — like last year — have brought as many as 40,000 deaths."

Ideally, the elderly and people with certain chronic diseases should already have been immunized against the flu, but it is not too late, said Glezen, the Flu Center's chief epidemiologist.

In North America, influenza typically reaches epidemic proportions in January or February, but cases are already being reported, increasing the urgency for those most at risk of potentially fatal complications. It takes two weeks for the shot to provide full protection.

The groups most at risk for flu-related problems are:

- People 65 and older.
- People with heart and lung disease, including asthma and chronic bronchitis.
- People with diabetes, chronic kidney disease and chronic anemia, including sickle cell anemia.
- People likely to come into contact with those in the other three high-risk groups.

"Those in the first three high-risk groups," Glezen said, "are more likely than the general population to develop flu-related life-threatening infections, such as pneumonia."

The fourth group is composed largely of health-care workers and people who share living quarters with those in the first three groups.

"If everyone in all four categories would get flu shots, thousands of lives would be saved each year," Glezen said. "The message is clear: Get a flu shot and get it soon."

Association elects officers

Gorbachev defends perestroika

MOSCOW — Mikhail Gorbachev defended perestroika from attacks by state enterprise bosses demanding a return to strong central control, saying state-run businesses are as much to blame for the crippled economy as the government. Gorbachev acknowledged in a speech Friday to about 3,000 directors of state enterprises that there have been blunders on the road to economic reforms but he said the Soviet Union cannot turn back.

Radical congress begins conference

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The radical anti-apartheid Pan Africanist Congress has convened its first national conference in South Africa in 31 years to decide whether to reverse its refusal to join talks with the government on ending the policy of racial segregation.

PAC Interim President Clarence Makwetu told the estimated 250 delegates in his opening speech Friday that pressure from the PAC "reluctantly forced the white minority racist regime to ... contemplate changes in the abominable system of apartheid settler colonialism and even invite the PAC to talks."

But Makwetu, whose movement is known for its slogan "One settler, one bullet," added, "However, such changes to us are of no consequence because they are intended merely to reform apartheid, when we say that apartheid can not be reformed but must be totally destroyed."

Bias' father calls for gun control

WASHINGTON — James Bias apologized to the audience gathered to hear a discussion about gun violence. "I have to leave here and bury my son."

Jay Bias, 20, brother of fallen basketball star Len Bias, was gunned down in suburban Washington Tuesday, cementing the area's notorious reputation as the nation's murder capital.

James Bias took time out Friday from making arrangements for his son's funeral to plead for a national campaign to limit the sale and ownership of guns, which he called "instruments of death."

"When you buy a gun, you buy it for the purpose of killing," he said. And then in a rapid-fire burst of emotion he blurted: "Tomorrow when you pick up the paper ... it might be yours. It's my son this time — it could be yours next time."

WASHINGTON — The State Department says it will withdraw staff from its embassy in Kuwait, a symbol of U.S. defiance throughout the Persian Gulf crisis, once all Americans are safely out of the country.

The State Department tried to avoid the appearance of negotiating with Iraq, but the release of foreign hostages and the closing of the embassy would remove two of the most contentious issues in the Gulf Crisis.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Friday that acting U.S.

Ambassador to Iraq, Joseph Wilson, said the United States is prepared to charter Iraqi airplanes to fly hostages from Kuwait. The United States hopes some Americans will be able to leave occupied Kuwait by this weekend.

He pressed the Iraqis to permit U.S. diplomats to freely enter and leave the embassy compound in Kuwait so they can assist with the departures. He asked that water, electricity, and fuel be restored to the embassy.

Since mid-August, 10 diplomats and about 15 others have been holed up inside the compound in direct defiance to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's order that all foreign embassy's in Kuwait be closed. Those in the embassy have lived mainly on spartan rations of rice and canned tuna and have boiled water from the embassy swimming pool for cooking, drinking and bathing.

Tutwiler said that once the Americans were out of Kuwait the embassy would remain open, but the United States would pull its diplomats out.

She said that decision was made because the main business of the embassy has been to keep contact with Americans and once those Americans leave there would be no purpose in maintaining a diplomatic presence.

Iraq wants Baker to meet with Hussein on Jan. 12

By BAYLE YOUNG

Iraq told the United States Saturday it wants to send its envoy to Washington on Dec. 17 and have Secretary of State James Baker meet with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein in Baghdad on Jan. 12 — three days before a U.N. deadline for Iraq to leave Kuwait.

The official Iraqi news agency INA said dates proposed by Washington for the meetings "were found not suitable," but did not say when Washington had wanted the high-level meetings to take place.

"The Iraqi foreign ministry has informed the American charge d'affaires in Baghdad this evening of its proposal that the 17th of December ... would be the date for the meeting" between Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz and U.S. officials in Washington, INA said.

It added the ministry also proposed Baker meet with Saddam in Iraq on Jan. 12 — three days before a U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline on Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait or face a confrontation with U.S.-led troops deployed in the Persian Gulf region. "The ministry added that the Iraqi delegation would table and commit in an unequivocal manner to Iraq's national rights ... including its rights in the governorate of Kuwait," said the report.

The dispatch also reiterated Iraq's call for real "dialogue" during the talks and again linked the Palestinian question to the crisis triggered by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Meanwhile, Iraq indicated it would only allow chartered Iraqi airliners to fly hostages home when it refused a British Airways plane permission to land in Baghdad late Friday.

The British plane, diverted to neighboring Jordan, had been dispatched from London Friday following an Iraqi National Assembly vote lifting travel restrictions on all foreigners in Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

The United States was prepared to charter Iraqi planes to fly hostages from Kuwait and has urged Iraq to dispense with exit visas and passport requirements to avoid bureaucratic delays. State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said.

Venezuela, made the remarks at a joint news conference with Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez outside the presidential palace.

Asked if Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein's decision to release the hostages decrease the likelihood of war in the Persian Gulf, Bush replied, "I want a peaceful solution. I don't feel we are closer to a peaceful solution. And the reason I don't is that Saddam Hussein keeps insisting that Kuwait is a province of Iraq and he will not get out of Kuwait."

"When you kidnap somebody you should not expect a reward when you let them go." He added the release of hostages "makes it no more difficult at all" to convince other countries of the actions that might be taken against Iraq.

"This facilitates the difficult decisions that might lie ahead," Bush said before he left Caracas Saturday afternoon to return to Washington.

While waiting for word on the release of the hostages, Bush gave thanks Saturday to Venezuela for backing his moves against Iraq by increasing its oil production.

Unlike his previous stops in Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay and Chile, where free trade, investment and debt reduction were the main issues, Bush's discussions with Perez focused on oil.

Caracas was added to the itinerary in large part as a gesture to Perez, once a frequent critic of the United States who since his February 1989 inauguration for a second term has backed Bush at critical times.

Perez repeated that support Saturday, telling Bush, "We small countries such as Venezuela cannot truly accept for anybody to be able to remove by force the boundaries of an existing nation," referring to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

With the United States as its biggest customer, Venezuela upped its oil production by some 500,000 barrels a day — with plans to go even higher — to offset the absence of Iraqi and Kuwaiti exports from the world market.

It has hardly been an act of charity. The surge in world prices and the increased production are estimated to generate as much as $600 million a month in additional oil revenues.

Uprising anniversary brings curfews

By ANN PETERS

JERUSALEM — The military imposed curfews on much of the Israeli-occupied territories in advance of the third anniversary of the Palestinian uprising, which one analyst maintains cannot die down because it has "no alternative."

This weekend marks two important dates in the uprising. Saturday marks two months since Israeli police shot dead at least 17 Palestinians on the Temple Mount in Jerusalem's Old City. Sunday marks the third anniversary of the Intifada, the Arabic name given to the Palestinian uprising.

Recent leaflets by Palestinian nationalist and Moslem fundamentalist underground leaders called on Palestinians to fight the Israeli occupation with "all forms of struggle." Israeli officials have interpreted the phrase to mean a possible rise in the use of guns and other weapons, which Palestinians generally have refrained from using against Israelis during most of the uprising.

In the wake of the slayings on the Temple Mount, Islam's third holiest site, Arabs carried out a series of stabbing attacks against Israelis. Four Israelis were killed and several were wounded.

Two Palestinian teenagers from the West Bank were arrested in Jerusalem's Old City Friday in possession of knives, police said. During interrogation, the teenagers told police they had planned to stab soldiers or policemen, a police spokesman said.

Police also detained a 14-year-old Jewish religious academy student carrying a kitchen knife in the Old City at the entrance to the Western Wall, Judaism's holiest site. Army Radio reported the teenager said he was carrying the knife for self-defense.

"The Intifada is not dying down and will not die down in the near future simply because it has no alternative," Israeli commentator Ron Ben-Yishai wrote in the Yediot Ahronot newspaper. "At the moment, the Palestinians, the official Israel and the international community do not have a practical proposal for a solution."

Palestinians in the occupied territories proclaimed general strikes for Saturday and Sunday. In an effort to stem violence on the anniversaries, the military imposed curfews on an estimated 20 Palestinian communities and refugee camps in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, confining more than 400,000 Arabs to their homes.

The West Bank town of Ramallah also was declared a closed military zone. Military closures and curfews in the West Bank and Gaza Strip have become routine during the 3-year-old Palestinian uprising, with the army sealing off the occupied territories for the first time since 1967 on March 28, 1988.

Locals shine at Jr. Olympics

OMAHA, Neb. — The Alpha Omega Track Club, representing Central Florida, finished fourth in the team standings of the Bantam Girls' 3,000-meter run at the TAC National Junior Olympics run at Omaha's Tranquility Park Saturday.

There were 25 teams competing in that event for Bantam Girls (10-and-Under).

Clearwater's Charlene Foster was third and Tampa's Joanne Meely finished 14th for Alpha Omega. Courtney Phillips and Dara Wise of Altamonte Springs were 54th and 60th, respectively, while Longwood's Jennifer Capelli came in 84th to complete Alpha Omega's team score.

Also finishing for Alpha Omega were Tiffany Gibson of Lake Mary (95th), Dafina Wise (114th) and Jeannette Byrd of Longwood.

In the Bantam Boys' 3,000-meter race, Alpha Omega was represented by Orlando's Scott Templin (37th), J.R. Foster of Tampa (56th) and 8-year-old twins Ade and Kamal Wise, who were 137th and 147th, respectively.

Omari Wise was 112th in the 3,000-meter race for Midget Boys (11 and 12), leading Alpha Omega to a 16th place team finish in a field of 25 teams.

All the races were run in near-freezing temperatures with a layer of snow on the ground.

Coaching the Alpha Omega squad, which qualified for the Junior Olympics by winning The Athletics Congress state championship at a meet in November, were Craig Wise, Art Foster, Ted Benz and Lake Mary High School girls' cross country and track coach Mike Gibson.

Kobia earns varsity letter

APPLETON, Wis. — Freshman Mike Kobia, a graduate of Oviedo High School, earned a varsity letter as a starting offensive lineman on the Lawrence University football team this fall.

Kobia, 5-foot-11 and 240 pounds, started all nine games this season at left guard. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kobia of Winter Springs.

Lawrence University, an NCAA Division III affiliate in Appleton, Wis., competes in the 11-member Midwest Conference. The Vikings finished the season with a 4-5 record.

Couples, Donald lead Classic

WELLINGTON — Fred Couples and Mike Donald fought a stiff wind in shooting a 9-under-par 63 Saturday and opened a 4-stroke lead in the $1,014,000 Sazale Classic best-ball golf tournament.

Couples and Donald were among four teams tied for the lead after Friday's second round but turned in the best score of the day for a 54-hole total of 188, 28-under-par. The team of Curt and Tom Byrum is in second at 192 with two teams tied at 193 heading into the final round Sunday. The winning team will split $144,000.

Despite steady 20 mph winds out of the northwest that caused temperatures to fall throughout the day, Donald and Couples turned in their third consecutive round without a bogey. Couples had five birdies in the round while Donald added four.

NHL discusses realignment

PALM BEACH — NHL owners voted Saturday to place the new San Jose Sharks in the Smythe Division next season, but they were unable to come up with a realignment plan for two expansion teams that will begin play in 1992.

The Sharks will join Los Angeles, Calgary, Vancouver, Winnipeg and Edmonton in the Smythe Division. Sharks owner George Gund said he was pleased with the placement, calling it "realistic."

The owners met Thursday afternoon, Friday morning and for nearly four hours Saturday before giving up on a realignment plan which would include the new Tampa Bay Lightning and the Ottawa Senators, who were awarded expansion franchises Thursday.

Major realignment issues are travel distances, divisional and conference balance and reluctance by some teams to include in their division teams that do not draw well on the road.

Phil Esposito, who is expected to become president of the Lightning, said he didn't see much progress during the meetings.

"I think they're going to have trouble getting together on realignment," he said. "They have almost two years. I hope it doesn't take that long, but these things usually don't get done until the deadline."

Christmas Wrestling Tournament next Friday, Saturday at Lyman

From staff reports

LONGWOOD — While Lyman High School did change wrestling coaches this year, it will not have an effect on the long-running Christmas Tournament hosted by the Greyhounds.

According to Rick Tribit, who took over for Jeff Hess this season, the Lyman Christmas Wrestling Tournament will be held next weekend, Dec. 14 and 15.

Schools that have committed to participating in the tournament, along with the host Greyhounds are Seminole County schools Lake Mary, Lake Howell, Lake Brantley and Oviedo; Apopka, Bishop Moore, Colonial, Dr. Phillips, Evans, West Orange, Winter Park and University from Orange County; New Smyrna Beach and perennial state powers Flagler-Palm Coast and Stuart-Martin County.

The Greyhounds tuned up for the tournament by winning their last two dual meets, pinning DeLand 72-5 Friday night and escaping with a 29-26 win over the Bishop Moore Hornets on Saturday afternoon.

"I expected us to do a little better against Bishop Moore," said Tribit. "Going into the match, I felt we were a better team. There were some really close decisions. It was a good, tight match, one that spectators like to see."

Against Bishop Moore, Lyman took eight of the 14 matches. Willie Campos and Josh Noid both winning their matches by pin. The Hornets scored one pin and picked up a victory by forfeit. Of the other 10 matches, one was a draw and six were decided by three points or less.

Winning by decision for the Greyhounds were John Altizer, Willie Campos, Vinnie Samero, Aaron Jordan, Greg Naes and Scott Chance. Ladaryl Fenney.

The Lyman junior varsity also won Saturday, beating Bishop

Moore 54-16.

On Friday night against the DeLand Bulldogs, the Greyhounds wrestled like they were double parked, winning 11 matches by pin, forfeit or injury default. Four of Lyman's pins came in the first period.

Scoring pins were Altizer, Vinnie Samero, Jordan, Naes, Pippin and Bobby Stephenson while Fenney won by injury default. Nicky Samero and Smith both won by decision.

"We seem to keep improving on a weekly basis," said Tribit, who has seen his team get off to a 3-0-1 start

Greyhounds win despite wind, rain

From staff reports

MERRITT ISLAND — After battling a very strong wind blowing in off the Atlantic Ocean during the first half, the Lyman Greyhounds turned around and scored two second-half goals Saturday afternoon to defeat the host Merritt Island Mustangs 2-0 in a boys' soccer contest.

"The conditions were difficult," said Lyman Coach Ray Sandidge. "The win was blowing really hard the whole game."

Goalie Marcus Dewberry gave the Greyhounds a lift by keeping Merritt Island from capitalizing on the advantage of playing with the wind during the first 40 minutes. Not only that, he still managed to get his punts out beyond midfield to keep Lyman from getting bottled up in its own end of the field.

After halftime, it took the Greyhounds just 10 minutes to score the eventual game-winning goal. Mike Sells heading in a throw in from Brian Fooks. Frankie Cipolla added an insurance goal with under two minutes left, playing a free kick directly into the Mustang goal.

Lyman outshot Merritt Island 14-13 but the Mustangs had a 3-1 edge in corner kicks. Dewberry made five saves in posting the shutout while Merritt Island's goalie made four saves.

The Greyhounds also had to battle difficult conditions on Friday evening, pulling out a 2-1 Seminole Adriane Hemmerly (No. 8) set up Leanne Bazile's game-tying goal in the second half of Lake Mary's 1-1 draw with Clearwater Central Catholic on Saturday.

Bazile's goal gives Rams another tie

From staff reports

LAKE MARY — For the fourth time this season, the Lake Mary High School girls' soccer team had to settle for a tie Saturday afternoon, pulling out a 1-1 draw with the Clearwater Central Catholic Marauders.

After a scoreless first half, Clearwater Central Catholic took a 1-0 lead with a goal in the 52nd minute. Lake Mary equalized when Leanne Bazile scored on assist from Adriane Hemmerly with under six minutes left in the match.

The tie gives Lake Mary a 3-2-4 mark (3-1-1 against Seminole Athletic Conference competition).

"We played better," said Lake Mary Coach Bill Eiselle. "We played a consistent 75 minutes of the match. We had one little breakdown (that resulted in the CCC goal)."

"They (CCC) are a good team. Lake Brantley only beat them 2-1 over there (Clearwater). It was a good match."

Eiselle praised the effort of his defensive unit — Angela Cooley, Laural Meoli, Jessica Dibble and Brooke Priddy. In goal, Jen Preston and Megan Coduto each played a half, combining for four saves.

Lake Mary had a slight statistical advantage in the game, outshooting the Marauders 12-9, requiring the CCC keeper to make five saves. The Rams also had a 2-1 edge in corner kicks.

Next up for the Rams will be a conference match at DeLand on Tuesday night.

Patriots blank Deltona

DELTONA — Getting goals from five different players, the undefeated Lake Brantley Patriots improved their record to 8-0-1 with a 5-0 shutout of the Deltona Wolves Saturday afternoon in girls' soccer action.

"It shows we're getting a lot of work on the field," said Lake Brantley Coach John Schaefer. "Against Oviedo, we got eight goals from eight different players. The games aren't being dominated by one player. The last three games have really been complete team efforts. Everyone's contributing."

Marci Stark scored at 3:38 of the first half to put the Patriots up 1-0. Stacy Fox made it 2-0 with her goal at

Nason, DeJesus, Moore power SCC to third place

From staff reports

COCOA — All-tournament selection Brian Nason scored 25 points to lead a quintet of Raiders into double figures as the Seminole Community College men's basketball team won the consolation game of the Brevard Community College-Byrd Plaza Christmas Tournament with a 101-82 triumph over Cincinnati Tech Saturday night.

SCC, now 8-5, will finish its pre-Christmas schedule with a game at North Florida J.C. Friday night and a home game with St. Petersburg J.C. Saturday night.

Nason hit four of five three-point attempts en route to his game-high scoring honors. Also in doubles were Robert Moore and Tony DeJesus (21 points each). Dennard Ford (15 points) and Leslie Cephus (12 points).

Defending champ Georgia Southern whips upstart UCF

United Press International

STATESBORO, Ga. — Raymond Gross passed for 159 yards and two touchdowns Saturday to lead defending champion Georgia Southern to a 44-7 victory over the University of Central Florida in the NCAA Division I-AA semifinals.

It was the second time this season the UCF Knights were routed by Georgia Southern. On Oct. 20, the Eagles drilled UCF 38-17 in a game played in Statesboro.

Georgia Southern, 11-3, will play in the title game for the fifth time in six years. The Eagles face the winner of the Nevada-Boise State semifinal next Saturday in Statesboro. Gross completed 10 of 15 attempts, hitting Karl Miller with a 46-yard TD and Daryl Belser with a 10-yard TD. Miller had 111 receiving yards.

Georgia Southern started slowly, amassing only 6 points in the first period on 48-yard field goal by David Cool and a 35-yarder by Mike Downs.

Cool extended the Georgia Southern lead to 9-0 with a 44-yarder, but UCF's Sean Beckton responded with a 18-yard TD catch that made it 9-7 at the break.

Georgia Southern opened its explosive second half with a 55-yard touchdown run by Joe Ross, who had 72 yards on 4 carries. The Eagles closed out the third quarter with Gross's strike to Belser for a 30-7 lead with 2:21 left.

Georgia Southern, 19-2 in I-AA playoffs, scored again on the opening play of the final quarter when Alonzon McGhee rushed from 1 yard out with 8:55 remaining to make it 37-7.

Georgia Southern completed the blowout with 33 seconds left as Lester Eford rushed in untouched from 15 yards.

Georgia Southern held the Knights, 10-1, to 51 yards rushing and recorded 10 sacks.

Versatility underrated as an important quality of a successful angler

If I had to pick the most important quality of a skilled angler, I would have to say that it would be versatility. Many anglers are good at catching one species of fish, or perhaps several varieties. The versatile angler, on the other hand, successfully catches a wide range of fish in both fresh and salt water.

FISHING
JIM SHUPE

FISHING FORECAST

George from George's Bait and Tackle has started a new service to fishermen in the area. They can call his store after closing hours at 322-0340 and listen to a current fishing report. George updates this report daily and it will be very useful to area fishermen.

He reports that specks are hitting in front of the power plant on Lake Monroe and around the I-4 bridge. Some nice stripers and sunshine bass are also being caught around the bridge with large Missouri minnows on the bottom. River bass are hitting the freighter Bomber and the silver Rattletrap with the blue back.

Steve Gard at the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp reports good speck action in Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River. Bream and catfish are hitting around Marina Isle and bass are scattered.

Sebastian Inlet has been active with snook, redfish, flounder, jack crevalle and bluefish. Live finger mullet or large live shrimp will keep you busy. Most of the action has been taking place east of the bridge. Count on big crowds over the weekend.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral said that high seas have kept boats in Port, but flounder, mangrove snapper, sheepshead and bluefish are hitting inside the Port. Trout and reds are still active on the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers.

Ponce Inlet has been choppy with huge seas, and the predicted cold front this weekend will keep the seas high. Fish back in the river for flounder, redfish and sheepshead. Reports have redfish hitting all the way from the inlet to Mosquito Lagoon. Flounder can be caught on channel ledges with finger mullet.

Versatility affords the accomplished angler a wide variety of fishing experiences and this person has a wealth of information stored for future fishing trips. This knowledge can be used to diagnose new fishing conditions or to repeat similar situations.

This type of fisherman is a student of the sport. He is humble, for although he knows much, he realizes that there is much to learn. He is always on the lookout for new techniques, new places, new ideas . . .

The versatile angler is also a teacher and he is willing to share his knowledge and experience with those who want to learn. He enjoys watching as others improve their skills and gain more enjoyment from the sport.

This skilled person is never satisfied with his accomplishments, but moves forward to be even better, to know even more. He is a self-actualizer, and continually strives for perfection. If there is an area of weakness, he is dissatisfied until he feels accomplished.

While we all cannot become this skilled (and many of us may have no desire to be), it is important that we all learn and that we all try new ideas, new places and new techniques. Fishing is a great sport, and we all can increase our enjoyment and confidence by becoming more versatile.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

I challenge you to broaden your horizons as a fisherman. No matter what level you are at with the sport, there is always more to learn, more species to catch.

Army uses wishbone to pull even with Navy

United Press International

PHILADELPHIA — For the fourth time in the last five years, Army marched all over Navy.

Executing its wishbone offense effectively, Army ran for 367 yards Saturday to hand Navy a 30-20 defeat and even the 100-year-old series between the two service academies 42-42-7.

Junior quarterback Willie McMillian ran for a career-high 195 yards and one touchdown and senior Mike Mayweather ran for 87 yards and another score.

"I felt we could run the quarterback," Army Coach Jim Young said. "Air Force stopped the quarterback (in a 15-3 victory). When you run the option, you run the quarterback until they take it away."

"He's an excellent runner. He stretched it out, then he made the cuts and he made the big plays."

Army, 8-5, got field goals of 30, 38 and 25 yards from Patmon Malcom as it gave Coach Jim Young a victory against Navy in his last game. The Cadets also scored a touchdown on their only pass of the day.

Young, who announced his retirement before the season, finished with a 51-39-1 record in eight years at Army, including a 5-3 mark against Navy.

"This is the second time I retired," Young said. "The chances are not very good that I'll come back. I'm ten years older than the last time."

Navy, 5-8, scored on a 1-yard run by Alton Grizzard, a 6-yard pass from Grizzard to Jerry Dawson and a 45-yard run by Brad Stamanak.

"It was a frustrating day," said Navy Coach George Chaump. "Nothing was able to stop them. They used their forces and got long sustained drives that kept the ball away from us."

The Cadets ran 74 plays, to 53 for Navy, and had the ball for 35:45, compared to 24:15 for the Midshipmen.

Troops in the Persian Gulf as part of Operation Desert Shield watched and listened to the game played at Veterans Stadium. Most U.S. soldiers in Saudi Arabia and the Gulf were only able to listen to the game on Armed Forces Radio, but some troops in Bahrain and Saudi Arabia were able to watch it live on television at 10 p.m. Saturday.

Two dozen soldiers watched the game from the Joint Information Bureau office in eastern Saudi Arabia. Army fans plastered the walls with stickers saying "Navy needs a few good men" and "Navy's top gun is a pop gun". Navy supporters were content with a "Go Navy" bumper sticker under the television set. After the national anthem, two naval officers stood and shouted "Beat Army."

Among those watching the game at the information bureau office was Lt. Cmdr. Tim Traaen, a Navy tight end during the 1970s.

Washington leads Seminole

By PWL SMITH
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Nikki Washington completed her first triple-double of the season to lead the Seminole Fighting Seminoles to a 62-37 blowout of the Jones Tigers Friday evening in girls' basketball action at Seminole High School.

Washington scored 15 points, pulled down 10 rebounds and blocked 10 shots to lead the Seminoles to their fifth consecutive victory without a loss on the season.

"I was just trying to play team basketball," said Washington. "We played good defense, passed the ball well and executed very well."

Washington and Ruthann Williams staked the Tribe to a 30-16 halftime lead as Williams hit three out of seven shots in the half on her way to a 14-point game. Washington hit four of nine shots and blocked seven shots in the half.

Koecia Kennon had a team-high 11 rebounds and eight steals to lead a sterling defensive effort that saw the Tigers shoot 15 of 79 (19.9 percent) from the field and commit 36 turnovers during the contest.

Things went from bad to worse for the Tigers at the foul line, hitting only seven out of 31 attempts and only three out of 22 in the second half including 14 consecutive misses during a 9:16 stretch late in the game.

Kayla Alexander and Julie Francis had strong performances off the bench for the Tribe. Alexander scored eight consecutive points in the fourth quarter and collected six rebounds while Francis pulled down eight rebounds and scored five points.

"It was a good effort all around for us," said Seminole Coach John McNamara. "We're still improving with every game but we need to get more points from our inside people to be a complete team."

The Seminoles will go for six in a row Monday evening when they host the Mainland Buccaneers.

Hamelin, Merthle pace Lake Mary's romp over highly-rated Palm Bay

By TOM LAMMAM
Herald Correspondent

PALM BAY — Now, that's more like it.

Playing like a team on a mission, Lake Mary's Rams bombed the Palm Bay Pirates 70-48 Friday night in boys' high school basketball action.

The win raised the Rams' record to 3-0 while the Pirates, who received votes in last week's Class 4A state poll by the Florida Sports Writers Association, fell to 3-1.

Perhaps motivated by their desire to make up for lackluster performances in their previous games and by a chance to upend a highly-rated opponent, the Rams began the game red hot and never really cooled off. Lake Mary hit seven of their first eight shots as they sprinted out to a 24-11 first quarter lead.

During that first period, Jason Hamelin hit three-point baskets on each of his first three shots. Palm Bay responded defensively with full court pressure defense. Point guard Mike Merthle then took charge, running the Ram open court offense and hitting each of his first four shots, including a three-pointer and a slam dunk.

"We're excited about teams trying to press us," explained Ram coach Willie Robinson. "We like to see the press, because we're a guard-dominated team."

The turnover-prone Pirates never seemed comfortable in their offense. At least part of the credit goes to the Ram 3-2 zone defense. Employing a three-guard formation, with Merthle and Hamelin joined on the perimeter by Colby Arrow, the Rams stole the ball from Palm Bay 11 times during the game.

Just as important to the defensive effort was the rebounding play of post players including Jon Brown and John Roche, who helped the Rams out-rebound the Pirates 25-22. When Palm Bay did move the ball to their shooters, they were limited to just one shot per possession.

"When we get the ball off the glass, we can run with it," said Robinson. "Our inside guys did a good job tonight."

In the third quarter, the Rams showed signs of relaxing their game. They began missing shots to allow Palm Bay to establish some offensive continuity.

Relying on their outside shooting, the Pirates began to cut into what had become more than a 25-point lead. The three-point shot was their chief weapon.

With six and a half minutes to go in the game, the Pirates had cut the deficit to 10 at 54-44. The Rams responded by going to their spread or "Georgetown" offense. Over the next minute and a half, they scored 12 unanswered points, including a pair of baskets from reserve guard Alonzo Brundidge, to rebuild the lead to 21 points at 65-44. Both teams then brought in their substitutes to finish out the game.

"This was an exciting game for us tonight," said Robinson. "From now on, teams are going to have to worry about what Lake Mary can do; they are going to have to prepare for us."

Earlier in the evening, the Ram junior varsity lost to Palm Bay 77-59.

Lake Mary next travels to Wymore Tech for an 8 p.m. game Tuesday night.

20:11. In the second half, Katie Tullia, Kim Black and Jean McGregor each scored a goal.

Collecting assists were McGregor, Elena Rubona, Kim Samuels, Stark and Carrie Laron.

Lake Brantley outshot DeLona 35-1, forcing DeLona goalie Jennifer Donavan to make 26 saves. Alyssa O'Brien only had to make one save to post the shutout for the Patriots. Lake Brantley also had a 2-0 advantage in corner kicks.

The Patriots are now off until Thursday, when they host Seminole in a Seminole Athletic Conference game.

Hawks suffer shutout

FORT LAUDERDALE — Lake Howell High School's girls' soccer team suffered a pair of losses Saturday, dropping a 1-0 loss to St. Thomas Aquinas and losing goalkeeper Kelly Cashion to a shoulder injury.

According to Lake Howell Coach Gerhard Tauscher, Cashion was injured on a collision in front of the Silver Hawk net. Cashion tried to continue but after giving up the game's only goal on the next play, Tauscher pulled her out of the contest.

The severity of the injury was not known. Jessica Cardarelli played the rest of the way for the Silver Hawks, not allowing a goal.

"It was a close game," said Tauscher. "They had 12 shots to our 11 and the corner kicks were even at 3-3."

Now 6-4-1, Lake Howell will return to Seminole Athletic Conference competition on Tuesday, traveling to Sanford to play Seminole.

Lyman pulls out win

LONGWOOD — Danielle Garrett capitalized on a golden scoring opportunity with 18 seconds left in the match Friday night to give the Lyman Greyhounds a 2-1 decision over the visiting Bishop Moore Hornets in girls' soccer action.

The loss was the first of the season for Bishop Moore, 7-1-2. Lyman improves to 7-1-1 (4-1-1 in the Seminole Athletic Conference) heading into Tuesday night's conference contest at Oviedo.

Bishop Moore took a 1-0 lead with 3:58 remaining in the first half. Stephanie Gringer heading in a cross by Stephanie Feulner. The lead was short-lived as Sara Kane took a pass from Beth Robinson and scored for Lyman with 1:11 left in the half.

Lyman's winning goal was set up when Beth Robinson broke in on Bishop Moore goalie with under a minute to play. The two collided and went down, the ball spinning out to the left of the goal where Garrett was waiting to tap it home.

Greyhound Coach Jim Thompson credited goalie Becky Carr and defenders Stephanie Calloway and Anne Brewer for playing major roles in the victory.

"I've watched Becky play for four years and that had to be as well as she's ever played," said Thompson. "If I had to pick stars of the game, they would be Stephanie Calloway and Anne Brewer. Calloway marked Gringer and Brewer marked Amy Gelz. They both did an outstanding job."

Lyman outshot Bishop Moore 18-12 while the Hornets had a 7-2 advantage in corner kicks. Carr, who made seven saves, kept Bishop Moore from capitalizing on any of those set Athletic Conference win over the DeLand Greyhounds in a game played Friday evening in the pouring rain and gusting winds.

DeLand took a 1-0 lead with a goal in the 22nd minute. Lyman needed six minutes to knot the score. Paul Klaus playing a long ball to Sella, who flicked it on and set up Cipolla with a one-on-one opportunity with the DeLand keeper.

Toby Leibin scored the game-winning goal on a penalty kick five minutes in the second half after Cipolla was taken down in front of the goal by a DeLand defender.

Now 4-0-1 overall (pending the outcome of a suspended game with Lake Howell currently tied 2-2) and 1-0-1 in the SAC, Lyman will play again Monday at 4 p.m., hosting Spruce Creek.

Lake Howell stops Oviedo

OVIDO — Kevin Yearick, Chris Brown and Charles DeGraff each scored a goal Friday afternoon as Lake Howell defeated Oviedo 3-2 in a Seminole Athletic Conference boys' soccer game played at Oviedo's John Courter Field.

Yearick scored on an assist from Brown to give Lake Howell a 1-0 lead. Oviedo tied the score before halftime on Rodrick Mentus' unassisted goal.

Brown scored the eventual game-winning goal on a penalty kick in the second half. DeGraff made it 3-1 with his goal. Brown again collecting the assist.

The Lions closed the gap to 3-2 when Steve Hoffman scored on an assist from Robby Guggenheim.

Now 3-0-2 overall, 1-0-1 in SAC play, Lake Howell will play again Wednesday night at home against Seminole. Oviedo drops to 1-3, 0-2 in the conference.

Ruddock believes he will get the next shot at Tyson because his promoter, Murad Muhammad, will drop a $75 million suit against King and Tyson if they come through with the matchup they cancelled so Tyson could fight James "Buster" Douglas in the fight that cost Tyson his championship.

International Boxing Federation welterweight champion Brown knocked out Ossie O'Neal in the non-title bout expected to be the mismatch of the night, fulfilling expectations at 1:53 of the first round.

Brown, 35-1 with 25 KOs, used a left to knock down O'Neal, who got up at the count of eight but was stopped by TKO as Brown went on to pound him along the ropes.

"If it had been anyone else," Brown said, including Ray Leonard and Meldrick Taylor, "I would have taken him out the same way. If it's one round, fine. I wish every fight would end in first round. I'd end my career without a bruise on my face."

Tyson pounds Stewart; Chavez retains crowns with knockout

United Press International

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Mike Tyson brutalized Alex Stewart from the opening punch and decked him three times Saturday night before the referee ended the rampage at 2:27 of the first round.

In the only title fight on the card, Julio Cesar Chavez extended his undefeated record to 73 triumphs Saturday night and retained his two 140-pound crowns with his third knockdown of Kyung-Duk Ahn, 2:14 into the third round.

Chavez got his 60th career knockout with a right hand when referee Tony Perez waved off Ahn as he came up at the count of six.

Interspersing punishing body shots with flurries to Ahn's face, Chavez pounded the top-rated challenger all over the ring.

Chavez, widely regarded as the best "pound-for-pound" professional boxer, knocked down Ahn twice in the second round and continued hammering him around the ropes but Ahn not only finished the round, but got off a combination to Chavez's face.

Ahn was dropped for the first time with a straight left to the head and he came up at the count of 8 but was groggy.

Chavez immediately landed three body shots, moved to Ahn's face and dropped him with a left hook-right combination, finishing with a left. Ahn got up at "4" and the onslaught continued.

Chavez had another punishing drive before the TKO but Ahn bounced out of his own corner.

Miscommunication over money briefly threatened the bout but was resolved in the afternoon. Ahn was to be paid $100,000, of which $30,000 was to go to promoter Dan Duva, representing Ahn in the United States.

However, Ahn had been unaware that bout promoter Don King was planning to take out $21,000 for taxes. Ahn was considering pulling out if he was to receive only the remaining $48,000 but Duva persuaded New Jersey boxing commissioner Larry Hazzard to require King to resist pre-collection of the tax money.

Chavez holds the International Boxing Federation and World Boxing Council titles in their versions of his weight class.

The undercard featured several mismatches, with heavyweight Donovan "Razor" Ruddock and welterweight Simon Brown keeping with the quick-strike tone.

Ruddock knocked out Mike Rouse at 2:37 of the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Ruddock, counting on the next shot at Tyson, improved to 25-1-1 with 18 knockouts. He finished the job with a straight right after using a left hook to knock down Rouse, who fell to 14-8-1 and 8 KOs.

Ruddock said he was comfortable with his entire arsenal of punches.

"I was pleased with my power," he said.

He admitted he had been a bit more anxious than usual because Rouse is a southpaw.

"But if you train hard, work hard, that's not a problem," he said.

Customers wooed by discounts

Antel Press International

Glum retailers, fearing Santa Claus will pass them by, slashed prices to post-Christmas clearance levels Friday, hoping to entice reluctant customers and prevent Christmas spirit from evaporating.

Sears Roebuck & Co., the nation's largest retailer, and both Toys "R" Us and Child World, the two largest toy-store chains, announced massive discounting programs, reducing prices as much as 75 percent to get the Christmas shopping season out of the doldrums.

Retailers normally chalk up 20 percent of their annual sales during the Christmas season, but sales are lagging badly this year.

After reviewing sales for the Thanksgiving weekend - traditionally the year's busiest shopping period - Sears executives decided drastic steps were needed to get shoppers into the stores.

"Sears believes the retail environment during this holiday season is the most competitive ever, and Sears intends to respond quickly by bringing better values and promotions to our customers now," said Sears spokesman Perry Chlan.

So, the retailer has launched what Chlan called its "biggest pre-Christmas sale ever."

"Consumers are concerned about the economy and the Middle East situation, and that's had a negative impact on sales, as has the warmer than usual weather in many parts of the country," Chlan said. "So we're taking several steps to respond to those conditions."

"From now through Christmas Eve, Sears is moving up its traditional after-Christmas apparel sale by reducing prices 20 to 40 percent on apparel such as sweaters, men's flannel shirts, women's fall shoes and boots and outerwear," Chlan said.

The retail giant also is offering special, limited-time promotions.

On Friday and Saturday, Sears is reducing prices up to $500 on big-ticket items like washers and dryers, dishwashers, video recorders and televisions in its Brand Central electronics and appliance department, Chlan said.

And offering additional discounts of 10 percent to customers with discount coupons who shop during the first two hours of shopping Saturday - 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. local time.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday, Chlan said, Sears will offer zero percent financing on select merchandise such as home electronics, jewelry and furniture.

Dancers of Miriam and Valerie's School of Dance Arts have plenty of reasons to celebrate after an award-winning weekend of performances. These S.O.D.A. pop dancers hold the title of the All American Dance Troupe and are overall winners of numerous dance competitions for the past five years.

Passionate about polo

Ex-mayor strives to make area a draw for his favorite sport

By LACY DOMEN
Herald People Editor

SANFORD — Joe Baker doesn't have to travel to England or Argentina to indulge his passion. He plays polo on his own field in Sanford.

Baker, who served as mayor of Sanford in the 1980's, said his not-so-gentle pursuit is one he shares with his wife, JoAnn, and daughter, Deldre, 19.

"It is an unusual sport to share with a spouse, but it's very nice to be able to spend time together," he said. "I don't know how people who don't have a spouse involved can stay in it."

Baker, like Prince Charles whose favorite sport is polo, is tall and elegant. Both men, regally clad in riding attire, may make you think the sport is a polite one, but Baker said the game is violent. JoAnn recently broke her collar bone during a match, but will return to the playing field after the break heals. Baker has also been injured during the four years he has played, but always climbs right back onto his horse's back.

"I just always thought it would be a lot of fun, and it is," Baker said. "But even more so, it's my passion."

The sport is also costly. Baker keeps a stable of 15 horses, specially bred for the sport, on his ranch.

"JoAnn recently went to Argentina, rode a couple of hundred horses and brought back three," he said.

They look for agility, lightness and a competitive spirit when choosing horses to play polo, Baker said.

Joe Baker jockeys for position while playing polo.

His favorite, Rachel, "has so much heart. She likes to compete," Baker said. "She likes the game." Baker said it takes a full year to train a horse for the game. "You train them to like competition. They learn to win and not to be afraid of getting hurt." See Polo, Page 5C

Tournament a reflection of grace, agility

LAKE MARY — Senior women's tennis has not received much recognition since the Senior Women's Tennis Tour was founded 12 years ago.

However, Barbara Rohdle has been an instrumental part of bringing "Les Grandes Dames" Tour to the forefront.

Rohdle, 48, is a Lake Mary resident and the director of the Les Grandes Dames Senior Women's Tennis Classic held at the Grand Cypress Resort.

When Rohdle took over as tournament director three years ago, the tournament awarded a total of $11,000 in prize money and gifts.

Due to her efforts, it has grown to become the largest senior women's tennis tournament in the world, awarding over $30,000 in prize money and gifts in 1990.

Barbara Rohdle relaxes on the tennis court.

Child Development at Montclair State College in Montclair, N.J., moved to Lake Mary five years ago with a lot of time on her hands. "When I moved to Florida, I had given up my job and a 150-year-old house I had just finished restoring. I felt like a fish out of water and I had nothing to do," Rohdle said. "I wrote a book titled 'Take Time to Think' for parents to help their children be better problem solvers, be more creative and expand their thinking powers. I'm still looking for a publisher."

Then she met the founders of Les Grandes Dames, Mary Ann Plante and Nancy Reed, at the Heathrow Country Club.

"I was really impressed with both of them and told them I felt I could help make this a much larger and more visible event."

Rohdle has considerable organizational and managerial experience, including being the president of the Bennington College Alumni Association and president of the Public School PTA Council in Montclair, N.J.

"I went to them and offered my help and they said that they could use the help," Rohdle said. "They made me tournament director, which doesn't pay anything, but it filled the free time I had. This is a full-time job."

Better Living For Seniors Helpline is answered by Martha Ashcraft, (l), Marnie Randolph and Coordinator Mary Klimko-Shelton.

Help is just a phone call away for senior citizens in Seminole

By LACY DOMEN
Herald People Editor

LONGWOOD — When Marnie Randolph answers her phone, she may become a lifeline to a lot of people in Sanford. Randolph says one of her hardest tasks is having to tell someone something they don't want to hear.

"One lady called me about her granddaughter, who had been a straight-A student. She dropped out of school and got into drugs. But she was 16, so I had to tell her, at 16 she can't be picked up by the authorities. Sometimes I just say Lord I really need your help now. I try to stay calm," she says.

Ashcraft says most people who call her are very nice. "Some of the clients even send cookies," she says.

Both women have had their share of amusing phone calls. "Someone wanted to know if we were a mortuary," Ashcraft says.

"One lady asked where to get her hair done," Randolph adds.

Ashcraft says sometimes the job is frustrating. She tried to calm one young man who was very upset about his wife running off with his brother and his social security check. Even though the line is for seniors' problems, she worked with the 32-year old for a half-hour.

"He was very upset with the government and said nobody would help him. I told him I would try to help if he would evaluate the problem. We either find an answer to a question or send Case Manager Fred Burtis to the senior's home," she says.

A large portion of Burtis' work is concentrated in Sanford, Klimko-Shelton says.

"We're a lifeline to a lot of people in Sanford," she says.

Beth Shoemaker Corso was 11 months old when she posed as the Sanford Herald's Baby New Year (I) on January 1, 1958. Corso is now a teacher and coach at Seminole High School. She and her husband, John, are the parents of 8-month old Kaycee, (r) who is following in her mother's footsteps 33 years later, posing as Baby Santa's Helper.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hosie

Donna Wallace marries in Virginia ceremony

CEDAR BLUFF, VA. — Donna L. Wallace and Ronald W. Hosie are announcing their marriage today. The wedding was an event of November 22, 1990 at the home of the bride's parents in Cedar Bluff, Virginia. Rev. Henry Collins performed the traditional, double-ring ceremony at 10 a.m. Music was sung by Rev. Craig Smith.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Jack "Pete" and Mrs. Ruth Wilson of Cedar Bluff and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ruth D. Hosie, Buffalo, New York.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a tea-length, light sashet lace and chiffon dress. She carried a nosegay bouquet of pink roses and white carnations with baby's breath.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Ruth Wilson, served as Matron of Honor. She wore a mauve, tea-length gown.

Mr. James G. Hosie, brother of the bridegroom, served as Best Man. Ring bearer for the occasion was Brian Jason Wallace, the bride's son.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

The newlyweds are making their home in Sanford.

Marriage a blessing, couple says

For Jacob and Bessie Adams, their 65-year marriage has been "a blessing from God." The couple were married Nov. 25 in Alvy, W. Va. Jacob is 90 and Bessie is 83.

Would they tie the knot all over again? "Oh, yea," Bessie lovingly said.

Bessie credits their long and happy marriage to living a Christian life.

"Living for the Lord Jesus is the biggest thing on earth," she said.

Although they are on "up there" in age, the Adamases are extremely active. They do all of their house and yard work and Jacob raises a garden. Both are in excellent health and they go shopping almost daily.

Their meeting was as romantic as an enchanting fairy tale. The couple met through correspondence in 1924 and courted through the U.S. mail for a year. When Bessie's parents, George and Leota Wadsworth, discovered that the relationship was getting serious, George, a farmer and school teacher, left his family of seven children in the West Virginia Hills to travel to Reading, Pa., to check out their daughter's suitor.

After meeting with Jacob's business associates, his lawyer and his pastor, George received favorable reports from all, and gave the young man his whole-hearted stamp of approval. George decided that Jacob should visit West Virginia and meet the rest of the family along with the starry-eyed bride-elect, Bessie.

The dapper Jacob arrived in West Virginia wearing his Sunday best including a silk shirt to complement his other fine haberdashery. He envisioned riding in a fancy horse-drawn carriage, no less, to the Wadsworth home.

But Bessie's roughneck brothers had other ideas for their future brother-in-law to test his eligibility status of becoming a full-fledged family member. Two of Bessie's five brothers arrived on horseback with a mule for Jacob to ride. After an 18-mile trip over the Jacksonburg Mountains, the brothers and a somewhat frightened, bewildered and disheveled prospective bridegroom arrived at the family farm.

And it was love at first sight. The storybook courtship blossomed into a full-blown romance and the couple were married six months later in the Methodist parsonage, at Alvy, by the Rev. Ira Lyons.

But the happy union meant that Bessie would have to leave the rolling hills she loved, her family and her job as a sheep-tender to join her new husband in the city. Jacob began his career as a machine operator under the scrutiny of his uncle, W.M. Luden, of the renowned Luden Cough Drop Company.

In 1930, the couple started lecture tours at the backroad churches in Pennsylvania and West Virginia where they showed colored slides depicting the life and crucifixion of Jesus Christ. The slides and materials came from the Passion Play, held every decade since 1634, at Oberammergau in Bavaria, Germany. In many of the rural churches, Bessie and Jacob had to generate their own power to show the one and one-half hour slide presentation narrated by Bessie from memory.

The family moved to DeLand in 1945 and lived there for two years. In 1947 they moved to Sanford where they opened Adams' Decorative Service, a business they operated for 31 years until 1978. The couple's specialty was quality workmanship which they extended to their valued upholstery customers, who became their friends, during that time.

"Sanford has been good to us," Bessie said. "We enjoyed our work at the shop. Everybody was so nice."

Jacob and Bessie are the parents of two daughters, Alegra Blum of Jacksonville and Darlene Carlton of Sanford. They have three grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

The 65th anniversary celebration got under way with four generations attending the morning worship service at the Church of God of Prophecy. Lois Butcher honored the couple with a loving tribute and presented them with a gift, a pink corsage for Bessie and a pink carnation boutonniere for Jacob.

Following the service, the daughters entertained their parents and family at a luncheon in Orlando. Among the guests were the Rev. Bill McLeod, his wife, Cindy, and their son, Bryan, of Mount Dora, formerly of Sanford.

After the luncheon, a reception was held at the Hugh Carlton home. A color theme of pink was carried out in the flowers and refreshments. The anniversary cake was also decorated in pink. The lovely event was videotaped and according to Darlene, "Copies will be presented to the fourth generation children as a living memento of Mom's and Pop's years of love and affection."

Gracious lady turns 80

A gracious lady just turned 80. When you see Jean Leonard, congratulate her on her 80th birthday and perhaps tell her you didn't know she was that old. She is apt to tell you, "I don't know it either." It seems like just yesterday to the high-energy Jean that it was, "Lordy, Lordy, look who's forty."

The lovely honoree takes being 80 in her stride. "I think it's wonderful that you can live to be 80," she said. She is the last in her family of five sisters and three brothers.

Jean was honored Friday, Nov. 30, at a luncheon at Timacuan Country Club. In an all-pink setting, even the lovely invitations featured pink fans and pink lettering. Hostess for the festive event was Jean's daughter, Linda O'Gara of New Smyrna Beach.

Each table was centered with an arrangement of pink carnations and roses interspersed with baby's breath. Party favors included delicate silver baskets filled with candy confections. Each place was marked with a place card adorned with a pink satin rose.

Linda called on her cousin, Orlando Attorney Marcia Lippincott, for a short testimony. Marcia lovingly told the story about how "Aunt Jean" visited her family when she was a child and wore an elegant dress and high heels. The children were bored and Aunt Jean wanted to be friendly as she left. They challenged her to slide down a tall slide in the back yard. Aunt Jean did, heels and all, and the family has considered her their heroine since.

Linda recited a tribute to her mother from Proverbs and the Rev. Jeanne Davis, associate pastor of the First United Methodist Church, gave the invocation.

Many of the guests wrote memories of Jean in a Memory Book which was delivered to her the day before. Jean is rarely seen without a big smile on her face, a snappy comeback and she is one of those fantastic cooks you read about. Many recalled Jean's ability to laugh, even at herself, and her culinary expertise in her mementoes. Jean said she will always treasure the Memory Book. "It is just beautiful," she added.

The lovely birthday celebration was attended by relatives and close friends from Jean's church. The guests toasted the honoree with champagne and were served the pink and white birthday cake for dessert after singing "Happy Birthday."

Jean is a native daughter and was born in Sanford Nov. 29, 1910. She was graduated from Seminole High School in 1928 where she was the school's first cheerleader. In addition to being a full-time homemaker, Jean was also employed as receptionist by Dr. Thomas F. McDaniel and Dr. Charles Hardwick. In Dr. McDaniel's memory sheet to Jean, he said words to the effect that for someone who is short of breath most of the time, Jean sure talks a lot.

Jean's son, David Leonard, and his family live in Orange City. She has six grandchildren. Many more happy returns to Jean Leonard.

Mom visits son in Hawaii

Erma Butler has returned from Hawaii where she visited her son, M/Sgt. David Butler, and his family. This is Erma's third visit to Hawaii and it is only natural that she enjoys the islands.

David is stationed at Hickman AFB with orders to report to Langley AFB, Virginia, before possibly being shipped to Saudi Arabia.

But the trip was not all fun and games. Erma's daughter-in-law became ill, had to have surgery and Erma helped take care of her.

Event poorly attended

The Ultra Suede Sale to benefit the St. Lucia Festival, held at the Lake Forest Club, was poorly attended. Although the surroundings were elegant and the hostesses were charming, not too many patrons ventured out to purchase the lovely fashions.

So for those who missed the sale, you missed a treat. Wall-to-wall bargains were offered at a fraction of the cost to benefit the festival.

Siler exhibits art

The Artists Corner at Senkark's Paint and Glass, 210 Magnolia Ave., will feature the works of Sanford artist Faye Siler during December and January. Faye prefers to work in acrylics and watercolors.

Animals are her favorite subject matter, framed in rustic barnwood. She will exhibit some of her critter paintings along with watercolor landscapes.

George Gordon, center, is wheeled toward the anniversary table by daughter Sarabecca Rosier; wife, Esther and Sarabecca's husband, Joe.

Great-grandniece, Johanna Plageman, greets the anniversary celebrants.

Couple weathers life's tragedies, comedies during 50 married years

Longwood residents Esther and George Gordon met each other over 50 years ago because they had the same last names.

Esther, suffering from a "trigger finger," heard the name "Gordon" called while she waited to see a doctor at Hospital of Joint Diseases in the Bronx, New York. She reported to the reception area, only to find George, who had also responded to the call.

"Is your name George Gordon?" he asked her.

It wasn't. But on December 4, 1940 Esther did become Mrs. George Gordon.

The couple cruised aboard the S.S. America, exploring exotic ports such as Havana, Cuba, and Port Au Prince, Haiti before settling down to raise a family.

The Gordon's had three children. Daughter Sarabecca Rosier lives in Lake Mary with her husband, Joe, an attorney, and her two children, Jason, almost 12, and Scarlett, 8. Son Fred lives in Sanford with his wife, Adrienne. Fred teaches children with learning disabilities at Greenwood Lakes Middle School in Lake Mary and Adrienne teaches fifth grade at Lake Orienta. The Gordon's suffered a tragic loss when their youngest son, Scott, died ten years ago.

Although Esther and George have been plagued with ill health over the years, George has been a paraplegic since age 32 and Esther has had two strokes and bypass surgery. Sarabecca said they rallied for the 50th anniversary surprise party she and Fred threw for them at Heathrow Country Club.

"It was wonderful. My mom just kept thanking me and I told her it was thanks enough to see her and dad enjoy themselves."

Sarabecca said.

Sarabecca fashioned special party favors for the guests by wrapping small boxes in gold foil paper. Each box was tied with satin ribbon which secured a replica of a diamond cut wedding band. Sarabecca attached a keepsake poem to each box, which informed the recipients of the enduring love held inside each box.

In attendance were: Sarabecca, Joe, Jason and Scarlett Rosier; Fred and Adrienne Gordon; in-laws Leta and Leroy Long, Casselberry;

Welcome to America

Herb and Mary Wilson, Longwood, served as welcoming committee with Chief Ranger Larry Dries and his wife Connie, Orlando, when Court Gator 463 Independent Order of Foresters met the Elkins family from Sulbridge, England at Orlando International Airport recently.

The Elkins' were in Central Florida seeking treatment for their two sons who suffer from cystic fibrosis.

Herb reported the Elkins' were grateful for Foresters' help and wished to see the welcoming committee again before returning to England.

DEAR MARY:

I am the father of a 14-year-old boy and I have a serious concern. My son knows that I was involved in the drug scene during the 60s, when I was in college, and has heard reports of what it was like at Woodstock and other "flower children" gatherings. Now I find that he laughs at my warnings to leave drugs alone. How can I make him pay attention to what I say, not what I did?

ADAD WHO LEARNED BY EXPERIENCE

Your best ally in your discussions with your son will be your honesty and openness. Don't lie about your previous drug involvement, and let him know what the negative consequences were for you. Also, it's important that he understand that today's drugs, especially crack cocaine and marijuana, are stronger and more dangerous than those of the 60s. And, of course, much more is now known about the adverse effects of drug use than was known then.

Be certain that the anti-drug message you convey is consistent with what your son is seeing. If ### you are sipping a scotch and soda while delivering your warning or if you have some marijuana stashed in the freezer, your son will be more likely to disregard your words.

Unfortunately, one National Institute of Drug Abuse survey has found that young people are more than twice as likely to use marijuana, the most common illicit drug first used, if their mother or father did. But since you can't change the past, keep your eyes open and remember that your son must be held responsible and accountable for any experimentation with drugs. Let him know in advance what the consequences will be, then follow through if you discover that he has disregarded your warning.

Mother casts shadow on wedding

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I refer to the individual who arrives at your desk half an hour early for a luncheon date and plunks himself down "to wait" while you try to finish the work you wanted to complete before the lunch hour. Or the couple who offered to pick you up at 8 p.m. arriving at 7 o'clock — so you answer the doorbell wrapped in a towel. Or the guest who arrives 5 minutes early for your party while you are feverishly trying to get the hors d'oeuvres ready!

What's wrong with these people, Abby? Please print this. Maybe they'll recognize themselves.

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I agree that people who come early can be as much — or more — of an imposition than those who are perpetually late. But if you "drop everything" to entertain them, you are contributing to the problem.

If you cannot confront these early birds, continue to do what you were doing before the interruption. And if that means putting them in front of the television set or handing them a magazine, do it without a second thought, and don't let it give you an ulcer.

DEAR ABBY: I recently saw an item in the Richmond Times-Dispatch, written by Stan H. Covington Jr., which read, "The Associated Press reported that during an interview with CBS, Saddam Hussein said, 'God is on our side, and Satan is on the side of the United States.'"

Wonder where Saddam received his revelation? Perhaps he's holding Adolf Hitler's old astrologer hostage, too!

DEAR ABBY: I know you have addressed the issue of punctuality in your column, but how about the "overly prompt"? They can be just as annoying as people who are always late.

DEAR ABBY:

I am engaged to be married in the spring. I am 31 years old and my future husband is 30. We both have successful careers and are responsible adults. After much thought and discussion, we decided to live together after we became engaged.

The problem is my mother. She strongly disapproves of our living together for religious reasons. She has taken no interest in our wedding plans — in fact, she hardly speaks to us. She says she will attend our wedding, but I am worried that she may show her disapproval at our wedding. Abby, this should be a happy occasion, but I feel she is ruining it for us.

I respect her beliefs, but as an adult I'm quite capable of making my own decisions. I am fully aware that I am accountable for my actions. How can I make peace with my mother and still lead my own life?

BRIDE-TO-BE

DEAR BRIDE-TO-BE: I can relate to where your mother is coming from because she and I were brought up in the same school of morality. However, her obvious uninterest in your wedding plans, plus her "hardly speaking" to you and your fiancé, is her way of punishing you, which is childish and mean-spirited.

Have a private talk with her and let her know that you are aware of how she feels, but it would be so much more pleasant for all concerned if she could find it in her heart to be a little more tolerant and a little less condemning. Perhaps given the opportunity to talk it out and verbalize her anger and disapproval privately, she'll no longer feel the need to give you the cold, silent treatment in public.

Wonder where Saddam received his revelation? Perhaps

Willy Nilly had made one of his rare forays into the rubber bridge club. It was late in the afternoon and, as expected, he was losing. So, with the South cards, when partner showed strength plus heart support, Willy asked for aces and bid a slam. East had done well not to double five diamonds for a lead. He assumed that Willy would not ask for aces with two small diamonds in his hand. (Willy was not a bad bidder; for him the mystery was in the play of the cards.) West led a spade, hoping that partner held either the spade ace or the spade queen, along with another winning card. Willy won the spade ace and saw that the slam would probably make if the club king was outside. So he drew trumps ending in his hand, while preserving a high heart in dummy for an entry. He next played a club to dummy's queen and held his breath. When East played the eight, Willy sighed with relief. Then he cashed the club ace, intending to ruff out the club king, get back to dummy with the remaining heart and pitch three losers. Oops! East showed out on the club ace, and declarer had to go down. Even Willy should have handled this one. He should have played only two rounds of hearts before taking the club finesse. Then he could return to his hand with a third round of hearts to repeat the club finesse. Even with East showing out, he could then play ace and ruff a club, the king falling, and now return to dummy to make his contract. (C)1990, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

A good polo pony will follow a ball like a cutting horse follows a calf," he explained. The object of the game is to knock a ball between goals from horseback. There is a lot of jockeying for position on the playing field, Baker said.

Polo players are rated throughout the world on a negative three to a plus ten scale. Baker is rated a one. JoAnn is rated zero. Prince Charles is a four.

"No woman in the world is rated over a two," Baker said.

Baker felt he and JoAnn had both learned a great deal since the first time they "jumped on a horse and played. It's extremely fast. We didn't do so well," he admitted.

They intend to promote polo playing in Central Florida. Thursday afternoon matches in which up to 48 horses from all over Florida may compete, are becoming a Sanford tradition on the Baker's two polo fields.

"In Argentina, polo is like football in America," Baker said.

"But polo is a growing sport here. I'd like to see that continue," he said.

What is it about the costly, dangerous sport that entices Baker to pursue it?

"Oh," he grinned and sighed, "you really have to try it to understand."

'Anchors' full of news trivia

Anchors: Brokaw, Jennings, Rather and the Evening News
By Robert and Gerald Jay Goldberg
(March Lane Press, 288 pp., $19.95)

Every night they're on the tube, earnest conveyers of the day's events or just constantly babbling dinner companions, but how much do you really know about Peter, Dan and Tom?

After reading "Anchors," the question occurs why anyone would need or want to know so much about these guys. The nearly 400 pages of this tome, written by a father-son team of media critics, explores so much you never wondered about, from Tom Brokaw's high school crewcut to Peter Jennings' childhood cricket lessons and three middle names.

But it's also full of news trivia as the fact that Dan Rather once shot heroin, although, of course, he adds it was for a story.

"Anchors" was written during 1989 and chronicles how each of the three network stars struggled to keep up with the epochal changes that occurred in Tiananmen Square, the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. It is also at times interesting in its exploration of the way in which competition has fueled an unbelievably expensive network battle that sends these media stars hopping around the globe with entourages of 50 associates, costing up to $3 million for a single week's coverage.

Having reached such heights, the Goldbergs describe how corporate money managers have since been reining in such budgets and suggest that news coverage is suffering because of the corporate penny-pinching.

U.S. spends $280 million

By JANET BASS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Several universities and education organizations across the country will receive $280 million in competitive federal grants to operate educational laboratories and research centers, the Education Department said Thursday.

"This is the greatest investment the federal government has made in educational research and development," Assistant Secretary Christopher Cross said at a press briefing.

He said education can only be improved through developing research on innovative ways to reach teachers, parents and children.

Ten regional educational laboratories will receive $162 million over the next five years

"to help solve pressing education problems in schools and school districts and assist policymakers and administrators in his region," the department explained. In addition to addressing regional concerns, the labs will focus on improving student retention and meeting the needs of small rural schools.

Another $118 million over five years will go to several universities to operate 17 education research centers, with each center focusing on a specific topic.

The regional lab for the southeast is to be at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Rams prepare for the new year and beyond

By ALLISON SLATER
High school correspondent

LAKE MARY — The Rams are wrapping up the calendar year with many projects.

First, as has been the case since the start of school, there are service projects that clubs and first-period classes are carrying out for the holiday season. Students have been hit with countless canned food drives, new and used toy drives, projects to tie yellow ribbons around everything in sight and requests to send care packages to support the soldiers in the Middle East, among many, many others.

Elsewhere on campus, some students were excited to be able to sign up for the seventh period day which will be implemented second semester.

Seminole County is the only county left in the state of Florida without a mandatory seventh period, and Lake Mary's registrar, Joe Monserrat, has been hard at work organizing the program here.

However, due to the games of afternoon sports and the mosquito problems, afternoon activities and practices will still be held promptly at 2:30 p.m. which may cause some problems for those who want to do both.

The Booster Club has also begun preparation for the annual Miss Lake Mary Pageant to be held Jan. 26.

To participate in the pageant, the girls must be sponsored by a club or organization at school. There are 45 girls in the pageant this year, and the winner will be crowned by Katie Gilliam, last year's winner who is the current student body president

Community service is important to Seminoles

By SHANNON LATIMER
High school correspondent

SANFORD — For the Seminole High Junior ROTC, good community service is the goal.

That emphasis compelled the unit to volunteer their services at the Heathrow Art Festival Fleet Reserve Association Youth Carnival and the AKA (Alpha Kappa Alpha) Miss Fashionista pageant. To show their support and concern for troops in Saudi Arabia, the AFJROTC tied yellow ribbons along Highway 17-92 and downtown Sanford with the American Legion Post #53.

"Operation Paperback" was a AFJROTC project in which paperback novels were collected and sent overseas to troops in Saudi Arabia.

The unit also takes care of things at home. The Color Guard presented colors at the last home game of the Orlando Magic as well as for the Golden Age Games. The Sabre Team performed during the Homecoming game.

The AFJROTC is under the direction of Colonel Charles H. Gibson and Senior Master Sergeant Gerald W. Smith.

The senior class of 1991 also emphasized good community service this past week. On Dec. 3, the Central Florida Blood Bank came to Seminole High. Over 168 seniors volunteered to donate blood, the largest number of volunteers of any other senior class in the drive. Many were first-time donors but it will not be their last time.

Price cuts for high grades

By YVONNE SOMMER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Principal Wayne Epps thinks that the Local School Advisory Committee at his school has hit upon a great way to get students motivated to keep their grades high.

Bribe them. Well, it's not a bribe exactly, but the LSAC has joined forces with several community merchants to provide discounts (or "freebies") on goods and services to students who maintain a grade point average of 3.5 or better.

"Since high school students are perpetually broke," Epps said, "this program will provide economic motivation for students to work hard for grades."

The Super Seminole Card was the brainchild of Marjorie Howard, who is a member of the LSAC. She felt the program would give students something tangible to work toward when they were slaving over assignments.

According to assistant principal Carma Norman, it is sometimes difficult for the youngsters to keep track of their future goals without little reminders like this one.

She noted that students are under a lot of pressure to succeed and make good grades, but they often do not see any immediate reward for their effort. This program offers them the recognition they seek.

Some of the merchants participating in the program are: Timucuan Country Club, 20 percent off; On & Off Campus, 20 percent off; Hardee's of Sanford, 10 percent off; Pizza Huts in Sanford and Lake Mary 10 percent off; The Beach Scene, 10 percent off; Sanford Music Center, 10 percent off on car audio equipment;

Video Review, one free movie rental; Menefree Martial Arts, an $11 discount; Mall n' Wrap, 15 percent off; the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, a $5 gift certificate for Knapp's Restaurant;

Hair Biz, 10 percent off a set of nails by Terry Ogleby and 10 percent off haircuts by Patti Voltoline, Bonna Fitzgerald, Polly Smith and Sandy Swain; and Sobik's, 33 percent off.

Epps added that the incentive card expresses the community's support in a way that all the students could understand.

"It expresses our concern for their good grades in a very tangible way," Epps said.

SHONEY'S AND F.A.C.T.S. TEAM UP TO SCORE DOLLARS FOR SEMINOLE COUNTY SCHOOLS

F.A.C.T.S. (The Foundation for Advancement of our Community Through Schools) and Shoney's Restaurants are co-sponsoring a three-month (November, December, and January) fundraising event. All Seminole County Schools are participating by turning in receipts from the restaurants for a 10% dollar redemption. Students and employees are asked to turn in receipts to any elementary school or to the Community Relations Department of the Seminole County School Board office. That address is 1211 Melville Avenue, Sanford, FL 32771.

The monies raised from this event will be used for classroom mini-grants; teacher recruitment and retention; teacher, student and support personnel recognition; employees of the year programs; and for other educational enhancements.

F.A.C.T.S. has been a viable and working educational foundation for Seminole County Schools since 1986.

Many dollars have been raised by community and business leaders in support of the students in Seminole County. Shoney's Restaurants in Sanford and Longwood welcome F.A.C.T.S. employees and supporters to "Eat Out at Shoney's" during the Christmas Holidays!
