UNESCO Mends Its Worldly Ways

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) is trying to redeem its credentials as a body of some usefulness to the world. It is succeeding — but only up to a point.

Delegates to the UNESCO conference at Nairobi finally backed away from a Soviet proposal that Third World governments try to limit the freedom of international news organizations and set up their own news agencies to control the flow of information about their countries. Instead, the conference adopted a milder Tunisian resolution which could satisfy Third World complaints about news coverage without doing violence to the concept of a free press.

And the conference also has decided not to knuckle under so objectively to the effort by Arab states to use UNESCO to wage diplomatic warfare against Israel. A procedural change will allow Israel to become a member of a Western European regional group of UNESCO members. This is an awkward compromise, but it makes the anti-Israel bias of UNESCO less blatant.

We would not assume, however, that the U. S. Congress will be impressed enough by these steps to lift its embargo on funds for the organization. The United States has withheld $38 million in dues since UNESCO began looking like a captive of the Arab bloc two years ago.

UNESCO committees are still accusing Israel of desecrating holy places with archaeological excavations in Jerusalem, and charging Israel with "systematic" efforts to destroy Arab culture in the occupied territories.

Israel could expect such condemnation if it were based on evidence that the charges are true. The fact is, a UNESCO team of experts are fully meeting worldwide standards for respect and protection of religious relics in the Jerusalem diggings. And UNESCO so far has sent no independent investigators into occupied Arab lands to establish whether Arab complaints about cultural repression are true.

If there's one thing a body like UNESCO should have, it is respect for scientific inquiry and for the principle that truth emerges from an objective examination of facts. In bowing to Arab pressures to embarrass Israel, and in its flirtation with a patent scheme for introducing a Soviet-style controlled press into the Third World, it is supporting the very things it should condemn.

United Nations agencies should be encouraging a hands-off attitude by governments toward the international flow of information. They should go to extra lengths to assure that political disputes do not color their approach to humanitarian issues. UNESCO in the past has relied on the United States for about one-fourth of its budget. It can expect a renewal of that financing when education science and cultural exchange — and not political questions — again become its primary concern.

Grand Old Party

President Ford has lost (narrowly) and his choice for Republican national chairman, Mary Louise Smith, is resigning. A battle for the soul of the GOP elephant seems to be in the offing.

Ronald Reagan says the Republican party needs a new name and a new coalition. It appears he favors a more conservative coalition and believes the party could gain broader popular support by standing on a narrower ideological base.

We doubt that. The Grand Old Party is, or should be, a house of many mansions. It should be inclusive, not exclusive. Each of our two major parties is a consensus party. That is the secret of the stability of the American two-party system.

We have not always endorsed every Republican candidate regardless of qualifications, and we don't intend to. But we believe something fundamentally decent and hopeful would go out of American life the day the party of Abraham Lincoln abandons its own name and identity.

It's not going to happen.

China Eying The West

WASHINGTON — There are hints in the news which indicate that China under Chairman Hua Kuo-feng may be on the verge of opening up slightly to the outside world.

For one, reports suggest Peking may soon take on once more the large-scale import of foreign technology, abandoned some time back because of fears the practice might lead to dangerous dependence on foreigners. The Chairman has been recalled, by his experience with the Russians. Moscow, after moving in technicians and equipment heavily for a few years, withdrew abruptly when Peking refused to knuckle under to Moscow's demand for complete alignment of Chinese foreign policy with the Soviet.

The rapid withdrawal of the Russian personnel and equipment did severe damage to the Chinese economy, which took years to recover. Renewed interest in importing technology and equipment most certainly will focus on non-Communist nations. Note here that most of the outstanding scientific leaders of China are basically oriented toward the West — and particularly toward the United States, Great Britain, Japan and West Germany. A goodly share of the top men have their degrees from these countries. Some have had influential posts in the West before returning to China.

Secondly, there has been in the upper echelons of China's political hierarchy a belief in the benefits of American industrial production methods. This conviction was shared by Chairman Mao Tse-tung in his Yenan days.

In the stormy years since Yenan, there has been pressure to open Chinese industry to Western technology and equipment. But political differences and the experience with Russia kept the door closed. These fears may be easing as far as the West is concerned.

Now what will this move, if it eventuates, mean to the United States? American technology and equipment sold to China, and American know-how in the form of training, would most certainly strengthen a totalitarian country whose aims are not parallel with our own in much of the world, the Far East in particular.

The detriment to the defense of the United States would not by any means be as serious as our selling technology and equipment to Russia, whose military growth in the next decade could well threaten the security of the United States and the free world.

There is, however, evidence, tenuous though it may be, that China will continue to be a rival of, and a balance against, the Soviet Union for a good period of time to come. There are national rivalries and deep-seated points which now and in the foreseeable future may well bar any real conciliation between the two nations. For one, China cannot be comfortable with a strong military power next door working year in and year out to expand its military-political influence across China's southern and northeastern borders — a technique which Peking calls encirclement.

How Can We Get Oil Out Of Alaska?

WASHINGTON — Billions of dollars are being spent to extract oil from Alaska's frozen tundra. Yet, no one has thoroughly considered how to ship the oil out of Alaska.

A secret study commissioned by Alaskan state authorities reveals that the 165,000-ton oil tankers may not be able to navigate safely through the state's major export of oil, the treacherous wind and weather conditions around Valdez may make it impossible.

The confidential study was conducted at a ship model basin in the Netherlands. It simulated weather and geographical conditions around Port Valdez to determine whether the tankers could navigate through the Valdez Narrows which are usually negotiated by much smaller vessels.

Results of the study were startling. The Alaskan State Pipeline Coordinator's office concluded that transporting oil through Valdez would be a tricky and dangerous operation at best.

First, the tankers must sail through the Valdez Narrows. Those experienced with the tight passage claim that winds often whip through at speeds of up to 200 miles per hour.

Going through the Narrows in a mammoth tanker, say our sources, would be like threading a massive needle through a moving hole. To Christmas is rapidly approaching. If you have any doubt, wander through any shopping center. Limp chains of tinsel, draped since Halloween (or before) sparkle weakly above picked-over displays of plastic toys. Santa Clauses of every shape stride through aisles cluttered with scrap paper from gift wrapping... or lounge in "Santa's Corner," haggard expressions betraying their ho-ho-ho reputation.

Then there are the shoppers. If the tinsel is weak and the Santas are exhausted, take a look at the shoppers. In the ultimate analogy trip they dash madly up and down aisles of gifts, sorting out suitable presents that pretend to be gifts, sorting out suitable peace offerings for Aunt Nell, Uncle George and the garbage collector.

And in the ultimate travesty of Christmas they push each other about, drag children angrily along by the wrist and juggle packages of 'love' simultaneously.

We all scream about the commercialization of Christmas. Each year the cries go up: "What? Christmas decorations in August?" and "Good grief, look at that price. They must have raised the price on everything in the store just because it's Christmas." And "Well, you know we have to get presents for the neighbors' grandchildren. After all the neighbors did invite us to their barbecue last year."

Someone vows get made each year not to get caught in "the trap" and somehow the trap closes down each year anyway. But it doesn't have to.

In celebration of peace (or potential peace) on Earth why not also take the time remaining until Christmas and vow to exert a special effort to treat your neighbors with a little genuine Christmas spirit?

When you go shopping and the kids get bored and whiney, respond instead of reacting. (Five or 10 minutes at a snack bar and the opportunity to sit down with a cool, wet refreshment can do great things for restoring your nerves — and your copability level.

If the kids get completely out of hand when you are shopping don't take them. Holiday shopping can be difficult enough without the extra stress. You and they will all feel more like "peace on Earth" if you aren't doing battle while buying gifts that supposedly show your deeper affection for others.

Preparing for Christmas used to take 40 days: the duration of the church season of Advent. Now we race through in alternating spurts of vigor and lapses of energy, selecting presents and dashing off to socialize. This year try a very old formula: love, empathy, compassion — and act on your knowledge that Christmas can and should represent something strong, positive, lasting and lovely.

There are some people around who still get deep, strengthening joy out of Christmas. This year why not be one of them?

Carter Staying Flexible

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Carter seems to be in a minority when he insists that an income tax cut isn't a certainty but instead only one of the options available to him.

The operators of the increasingly popular numerical, or econometric, models, the independent economists and those with the big banks, legislators, and apparently even Carter's own people, are making that assumption.

Support for a tax cut seems to come from elements of all economic types and strata, from businessmen and labor, although the AFL-CIO has officially withheld support until it can review precise proposals.

The big banks here, which by the nature of their work are forced to assume the future, anticipate a cut. Citibank's publication, "Economic Week," assumes a rebate of up to $15 billion. Banker's Trust foresees a rebate or a cut.

Reginald Jones, chairman of General Electric, has taken time away from a mission he pursues zealously, the need for more capital formation, to support a tax cut, especially for middle- and low-income people.

The media too are talking about a tax cut as if already it had been spelled out by Carter. Discussion, speculation and forecasts of the consequences are the meat of the articles, but Business Week has editorially endorsed a cut.

Considerable dispute about the merits of lower taxes remains, however. The AFL-CIO reminds people that its commitment is more to "tax justice."

Whether that includes a tax cut remains to be seen.

Some economists are concerned also about the consequences, arguing that the most recent reduction during Ford administration was simply used to pay bills or build bank accounts rather than to buy goods.

It is argued also that a cut, even if contrived in the middle and low tax brackets, won't help the worst off — retirees on Social Security for example — who pay little or no federal income taxes.

Talk persists, nevertheless, because Carter has committed himself to a goal of lower unemployment, more economic growth, lower interest rates, and tax reform.

Almost all commentators seem to believe that lower taxes are essential to achieve these goals, especially that which calls for a reduction of 1.5 percentage points in the jobs rate, now 8.1 per cent, by one year from now.

Few major economists feel that the jobs rate goal can be met without spurring the economy to much greater activity than is now anticipated, and the way to do that, they seem to feel, is by tax ease.

Many economists go further: They insist the entire economic program of the new Administration hinges on a cut — that it is the key ingredient, the catalyst, the yeast that will make possible a larger slice for everyone.

Housewife Salary Improper

Feminist George Sand said it almost a century ago: "The only difference between a wife and a servant is that the wife works for nothing."

Despite the modern feminist movement, most people of both sexes in the United States are opposed to payments to housewives, whether they are made by the husband or by the government.

A recent survey by the American Council of Life Insurance found that 74 per cent of people interviewed nationally felt that housewives should not be paid for their labors.

Among women, the sentiment against ranged from 67 per cent of those between the ages of 18 and 29, to 85 per cent of those 65 and older. Among men of all ages, about 75 per cent were in the against category.

We're against the idea, too. No woman should expect society to pay her a salary to take care of her home and family.

By the same token, however, we are against the idea of the nonpaid housewife (and her husband) subsidizing the woman who does not work outside the home — and that is precisely the situation that exists in these United States today.

Previously, a working couple could deduct as much as $400 a month, or $4,800 a year, from their taxable income to pay someone else to do what the working wife was unable to do while she was out fulfilling herself.

This has been further liberalized by Congress in the 1976 Tax Reform Act. Now a couple may take a credit of from $400 to $800 directly off their federal income tax, even if the wife works only part time or is a student.

The stay-at-home wife has no such subsidy and is being told, in effect, that her labor is not considered to be of any value.

As for those wives who must work out of economic necessity it would seem to make more sense to pay them directly to stay home and take care of their children rather than indirectly to pay a third party. But the law says no.

Actually, the American public is not against the idea of paying housewives for their work — only against paying wives who work in the house.

Churchill Daughter Sued Over Autobiography Contract

CHICAGO (AP) — Actress Sarah Churchill, daughter of the late Sir Winston Churchill, has been accused by a Chicago publishing firm of breach of contract by keeping a $15,000 advance for an autobiography that remains unwritten.

The suit, filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court on behalf of Henry Regnery Co., said Miss Churchill was to have written the book with author Charles Hamblett, who died two weeks after the contract was signed in March 1975.

Harvey Plotnick, president of Regnery, said Hamblett's death voided the contract and that a chapter Miss Churchill wrote herself and later submitted to the publishing house was "atrocious."

Premier Ends Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Italian Premier Giulio Andreotti is returning home with the Ford administration's promise to do what it can to ease Italy's mounting economic problems.

Andreotti was ending his two-day official visit here today. After a meeting Tuesday with Andreotti, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said the United States would in the weeks ahead explore ways to provide "tangible" support for Italy's economic austerity program.

Simon's statement gave no details, but other officials said U.S. assistance probably will take the form of an emergency fund from which Italy would be authorized to make withdrawals in the event of a currency crisis.

A top U.S. official said the mere existence of the proposed fund would inhibit speculation against the Italian lira.

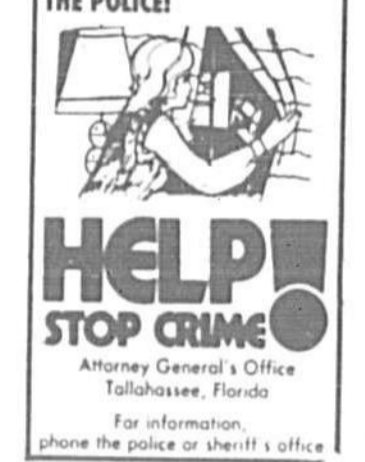

Andreotti's visit here, which included talks with representatives of both President Ford and President-elect Carter, came during a crucial period for Italy's five-month-old Democratic government.

The Italian government is awaiting decisions from the International Monetary Fund on a reported $1-billion loan application and from the oil producers cartel on an oil price increase. Italy is among Western industrialized countries least able to afford a new price hike.

Also pending are Italian labor-management wage talks, which will have a direct bearing on whether Italy will be able to bring down its near record inflation rate.

Andreotti's schedule Tuesday reflected the changing political atmosphere in Washington. He had breakfast with Vice President-elect Walter Mondale and lunch with outgoing Vice President Nelson Rockefeller. There were also separate meetings with top Ford administration economic officials and with Carter's choice for secretary of state, Cyrus R. Vance.

What's Inside Carter's Unwrapped Energy Package?

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President-elect Jimmy Carter carries out all his past energy proposals, the nation can anticipate higher natural gas prices, tight oil supplies and the revival of Appalachia's coal country.

Carter may not get to carry them out; Congress and circumstances may change his mind or thwart his plans.

In position papers and comments on energy during his campaign, however, Carter has laid out lengthy blueprints for his energy plans.

"The major thrust of the energy program," Carter has argued, "should be away from oil, toward coal and solar energy, with heavy emphasis on conservation."

"Whatever we cannot accomplish with these measures would have to be made up temporarily and as a last resort by atomic power," he said.

President Ford's administration has urged a doubling of coal production by 1985 and has moved to resume leasing of federal coal lands in the West.

"If there is a choice to be made," said Carter, "my own attitude would be to strengthen the production of coal in the Appalachian regions."

"You've got some very serious problems in the West," added Carter, referring to strip mining and other environmental impacts and the scarcity of water.

And Appalachia, where coal once was king, badly needs the economic revival that a new coal boom would bring, Carter pointed out.

The Federal Energy Administration estimated last year that eastern coal production would rise from 22 percent by 1980, but its share of the total market would slip from 76 to 70.5 percent as production rates ahead in the West.

That potential shift represents some 46.6 million tons of coal worth nearly $1 billion a year, at recent prices, to the regions that get to produce it, and Carter seems to feel most of that business should stay in Appalachia.

Eventually, coal will be converted into synthetic oil and gas, Carter noted, but he suggested these processes should center not in the West but in the upper Midwest where water is abundant. To stimulate natural gas production, Carter has favored removal of federal regulation over prices charged for new supplies by producers to interstate pipelines, at least for a five-year trial period.

The Federal Power Commission recently tripled the producers' ceiling price and estimated this would cost consumers an additional $1.5 billion in the first year — about $15 more each year on the average homeowner's gas bill.

If the same amounts of gas were deregulated entirely and climbed to recent unregulated prices, the consumer impact might hit some $2.3 billion, adding $23 to the average yearly gas bill, with further increases sure to follow.

To hold down U.S. dependence on foreign oil, Carter has proposed a quota system that would keep imports at the present 40 per cent level.

But American Petroleum Institute statistics estimate that oil imports will average 41 per cent this year, and have been increasing 2.5 percent a year since 1968.

At that rate, unrestricted imports would supply 51 per cent of the nation's oil four years from now. A strict 40 per cent limit would amount to a self-imposed 1 per cent oil shortage by the end of Carter's first term — roughly equal to the Arab oil embargo of 1973-1974.

Whether such a quota would create actual shortages of gasoline and heating oil would depend on the nation's success at energy substitution and conservation.

"If it becomes necessary," Carter has warned, "petroleum supplies available for consumption should be allocated" as was done during the Arab embargo.

Carter has proposed a series of strong energy conservation measures, including: efficiency standards for electrical appliances; mandatory improvements in building insulation; a ban on advertising that promotes electricity consumption, and abandonment of utility rates that charge the lowest electricity prices to the biggest users.

Carter even has proposed "stand-by-cycle taxes" that could be imposed on selected petroleum products to reduce consumption. Gasoline would be the prime target, as the petroleum fuel with the most flexible demand and the only major category whose consumption now surpasses its 1973 levels.

Carter has not indicated how large the excise tax might be, but past experience suggests it would have to start at several cents per gallon, at least, to have any substantial effect.

On the other hand, some Carter proposals would tend to reduce the prices of petroleum products, so the final consumer impact cannot be predicted.

Carter wants to encourage U.S. oil production, but has not said how.

The encouragement might come through appropriate price regulation favoring new production. Carter opposed removal of price controls from domestic "oil" oil, suggesting its price be held about $3 per barrel below international oil prices. New oil, presumably, could claim the higher international price.

This policy might require amendment of last year's energy act, which provided for phasing out oil price controls by late 1979. To the extent that these measures still leave a gap between U.S. energy supply and demand, Carter said, nuclear energy would be the most flexible demand and the only major category whose have to fill it.

... Energy Package

Carter, who was trained in nuclear engineering in the Navy, has proposed strict, and probably costly, new safety measures: placing atomic plants underground; enclosing reactors in large, double-walled vacuum chambers so air would rush in through any break instead of out, and posting federal agents in control rooms.

Such measures might make nuclear power more acceptable to present opponents, but would increase the cost of fusion-generated electricity.

Carter's energy package also included:

- A slowdown in development of the nuclear "breeder" reactor, which would both use and produce plutonium, a hazardous radioactive metal suitable for atomic bombs.
- A shift of research funds from nuclear power toward solar energy, conservation and cleaner ways to burn coal.
- Proposal of a five-year moratorium on all U.S. and Soviet nuclear explosions.
- Convening a World Energy Conference.

— Direct negotiation of imported oil prices by the U.S. government, rather than individual companies, with foreign oil nations.

— Consolidation of the Federal Energy Administration, Federal Power Commission, Energy Research and Development Administration and parts of the Commerce and Treasury departments, Securities and Exchange Commission, Interstate Commerce Commission and Nuclear Regulatory Commission into a single new department of energy.

— And consideration, though not immediate endorsement, of proposals to break up major oil companies or prohibit them from controlling coal, uranium and other competing fuels.

It is a heavy agenda that could keep Carter, Congress and the courts busy for years, but Carter sees energy as a true crisis demanding a national policy.

"If we fall into the trap of seeing the energy problem as just another marketing opportunity, or just another political opportunity, with the benefits of production and distribution fought over like highway funds or defense bases," he has said, "then our country will wind up without energy."

"It will also be bankrupt in more ways than one."

Dakota Sheepman Eager To Be Herd In Washington

BUFFALO, S.D. (AP) — His spelling and grammar could stand improvement, but a South Dakota shepherd figures that he shouldn't disqualify him from being U.S. agriculture secretary.

Lawrence Brown, 51, is conducting his campaign as editor of a weekly newspaper, the Nation's Center News.

His qualifications for agriculture secretary?

"A lifetime of exposure to the industry and a wife who has cooked thousands of meals for branding, shearing and harvest crews. Also, my family is qualified to handle chores on horseback, with modern machinery or at the industries' conference tables."

"Therefore, I think I am better qualified than some Harvard professor with a bunch of beautiful theories he would like to try out on the nation's farmers."

After the general election, Brown replied on the front page of his newspaper to a group of western South Dakotans urging President-elect Jimmy Carter to name Brown agriculture secretary.

"While you guys obviously are pulling my leg, I am going to take you seriously and would consider you fickle indeed if you don't follow this through to the point of getting a reply from Carter forces."

So far, there's been none.

Brown's sons have run his 1,700-acre ranch in Harding County since he began writing a column called "Shepherd's Diary" two years ago.

It wasn't long before Brown decided to start his own paper, investing $35,000 for the plant and equipment. He works with a staff of about 10 and circulation has risen to about 1,600.

He writes all his copy in longhand, paying little mind to spelling and grammar.

"I don't know spelled or grammar," he said. "Pronouns and nouns never interested me. And typing breaks my train of thought."

One reader wrote to criticize his use of the word "drug" instead of "dragged" in a frontpage letter to Carter.

"If Carter is as close to farmers as he claims, he will understand the term," Brown wrote back. "Many generations of farmers have drag things around and are not apt to change because a grammar critic is shocked at the language."

Although his support for Carter may have cost him some subscriptions in the conservative rangeland, Brown has no regrets.

He figures anything he can do to establish communication with the new administration — "whether it's as secretary of agriculture or editor of Nation's Center News or Harding County shepherd" — can't hurt.

 him the news. Connell said today the election showed "people power" and that he plans to take all important city issues to the people.
 Barton, his wife, Susan, and daughter, Sheri, left town for a vacation trip to Atlanta immediately after the results were announced last night. Barton said he is anxious to resume his duties and looks forward to his service on the city council with pleasure.
 The election results were canvassed this morning and absentee votes counted. Other official results are: For mayor — Connell 406; Peter WINTER SPRINGS — A vote of confidence was given by city electors Tuesday to incumbent Councilmen John Daniels and Donald Sines, both retired military men.

 And, John Sabatini, in his first run for public office, was victorious.

H. M. GLEASON REPORTS LAKE MARY ELECTION RESULTS AT LAKE MARY ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Nelson Wins In Lake Mary

LAKE MARY — Former president of the Central Florida Zoological Society, Clifford Nelson, was elected to the City Council Tuesday while the electorate gave votes of confidence to three incumbents running unopposed.
 In the poorest election turnout in the city's three-year history, only 23.5 per cent (324) of the 1,135 registered voters cast ballots.
 Nelson, retired Navy captain, 54, received 180 votes to 136 for John Decker, 41, a Florida Power employe and member of the city's planning and zoning commission.
 Nelson had promised planned growth for the city, keeping in mind that many city taxpayers can not afford improvements for improvements' sake.
 Walter Sorenson, 34, received 265 votes for a second term in the mayor's office, while Lillian Griffin, 48, won a second term on the city council by 260 votes and Bert Perichini a second term by 250 votes, all in unopposed races.
 The returns were canvassed immediately after the polls closed at the Lake Mary Elementary School last night.

 defeated by 882 to 554.
 The new councilmen are to take office in January. The highest vote-getter, Willson, may be appointed by the city council to fill Glascock's unexpired term until January, when new terms begin which has been the policy of past city councils.
 In voting against the incumbents, the Casselberry electorate followed the same pattern as a year ago, when the incumbents were not re-elected. The election was canvassed immediately after the polls closed at the council chamber at city hall.

Divide Winnings Between Partners

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will take time to give me your opinion on a problem that involves two partners in a small business.

Partner A bought a $100 ticket to a charity ball with company funds, a normal procedure. The day of the ball, partner A asked partner B if he would like to use the ticket. Partner B said no.

Partner A offered it to others. No takers. At the last minute partner A decided to go himself. The ticket was the winning number. It won $4,000!

Partner A insists the money is his. Partner B thinks it should be split 50-50. What do you think?

P.R. Well, I did up the dishes, and I really didn't mind. A few nights later, she said, "You know how to run a washing machine, don't you? Well, just throw in these towels and a few little odds and ends, will you?" Then she ran out the door. (I did three loads of laundry that evening.)

Now, it's become a regular thing. She always leaves the supper dishes in the sink for me to do, and I'm doing most of her laundry. Besides that, I have her three children to get supper for and put to bed. And all for 50 cents an hour. Is this fair? And how can I tell her I think she's taking advantage of me?

SHY DEAR SHY: Of course it's not fair. And you can tell her that, just as you've told me. You were hired as a sitter, not a housekeeper.

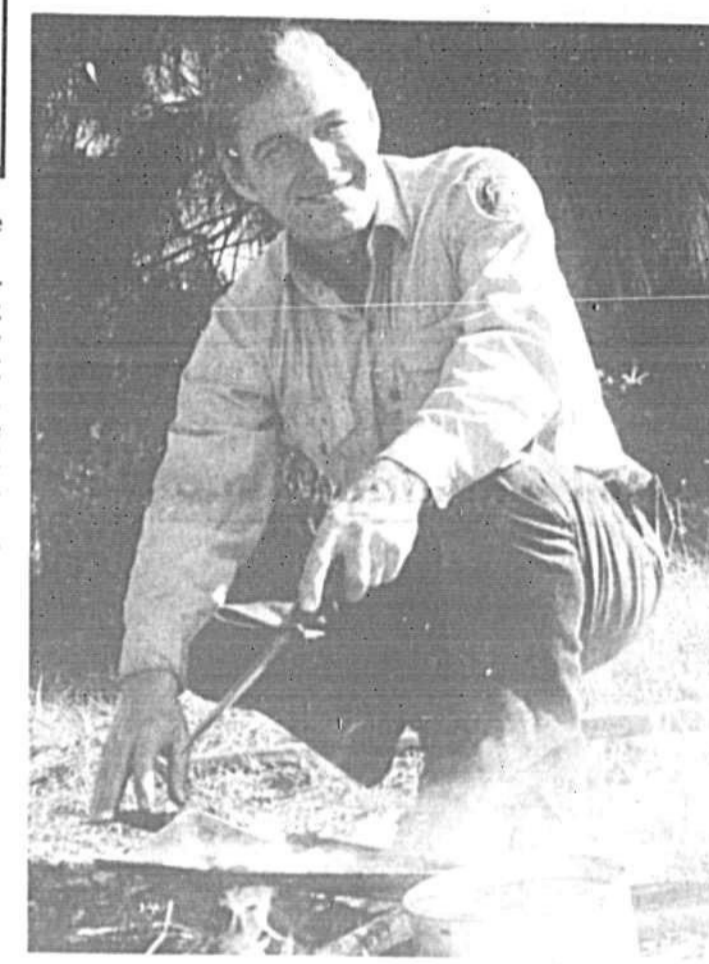

ANXIOUS IN MONTANA DEAR ANXIOUS: He is doing you a favor, not himself. He sounds like a very competent physician, but if the fact that you see him socially inhibits

Cook Of The Week

Artman Pioneers Culinary Art

Gil Artman's kitchen: the great outdoors

By ELDAN NICHOLS
Herald Correspondent

The holiday season is one long party, with food, drink, and more food being loaded on to our plates morning, noon and night. One way to give both body and soul a break during this party panorama, is to take off for a weekend into the woods and rough it a little — the way Gil Artman likes to do.

"You've got to improvise a lot!" said Artman, as he explained, cooking over an open fire.

An enthusiastic camper and Scout leader, Artman is the forest ranger supervisor in Langwood. He made it clear he doesn't go hunting, just camping to enjoy the outdoors.

He's had a lot of experience in camping and survival efforts. "I had a few outings in Vietnam, in '62, '63 and '65," he said. He was a para-rescuer in the air commandos, and gave aid and assistance to downed crew members. "There weren't as many helicopters then, so we either had to make our own way out, or wait for friendly forces to come in."

Artman also taught the art of survival. "We had to learn to live off the land: how to trap or snare game, make lines or nets for fishing, and mainly to improvise. You do a lot of that if your life depends on it."

Does the food taste better when cooked over an open fire? "Most certainly!" was Artman's emphatic reply. "It's a combination of the atmosphere and relaxing effect it has on you. It's what I call an attitude adjustment period, getting back to preparing a meal as the pioneers did. You are better prepared to do battle a little better when you return."

"All meals cooked at home can be cooked with an open camp fire. You may not always be successful with your first attempt," warned Artman, "but that's what it's really all about: experiencing the hardships of pioneers. When you overcome these hardships, the feeling of success and pride seems to add extra flavor."

One last of caution was offered; a small fire is all you need. Said Artman, "An old Indian saying is, 'A small fire heats Indians. Carrying all the wood for a big fire, heats white man!" Here are some of Artman's outdoor recipes:

CAMP COFFEE
Fill open pot with water. Place small mountain of coffee on top of water with peak of salt. Bring to boil. Simmer while you collect one load of firewood. Take pot from fire and allow to sit for telling of one joke, then serve.

NON-MESSY BREAKFAST
Fry bacon or sausage; remove from pan. Take slice of bread, remove part of the center about the size of an egg yolk. Toast one side of bread in fry pan of grease, turn over and drop egg in hole. A shot of salt over the left shoulder onto the egg, and cook to desired doneness.

BAKED GOODS
Cake, bread, biscuits may be done with an open fire as follows:
Mix ingredients according to directions. Put in deep pan with good cover. Bury in sand under fire with lid four-six inches from surface. Cook three times prescribed length of time.
Baked potatoes, stews and meats may be done in this manner, wrapped in aluminum foil or in containers. Cook for twice the usual length of time.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Thursday, December 9, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Things tend to work out to your satisfaction, particularly if something material is at stake. Lady Luck has a hand in events today. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Thinking big comes natural to you today. What may seem like a grandiose scheme to others is within your capabilities. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your material aspects continue to look very promising today. Something of considerable value may come to you circuitously. CANCER (June 21-July 22) If something new and different attracts your fancy, nurture it. You... instincts could put you on the trail of a windfall. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your good fortune today will not come through your own efforts. Event over which you have little or no control will flow in your direction. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you have the urge today to contact one who is at some distance, by all means do this. This person could bear glad tidings. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, go after that which assures the greatest return. Your best chances for success...

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Have faith in your judgment today. You can predict (1) portunity for accomplishing great things where others see only problems. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) When you heed your instincts to help another today, it could turn out to benefit you as well. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You deal with people today in a very diplomatic manner. This instills their desire to reciprocate. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is a perfect day for you to tackle tasks that you heretofore didn't feel equal to. Today you have the upper hand. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're fun to be with today. You have the knack of praising people in such a way that they recognize what you say is truly of merit. YOUR BIRTHDAY Dec. 9, 1976 Conditions that have a direct bearing upon your work or career will brighten considerably this year, particularly if you are industrious, sincere and eager to do a good job.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

could have spoiled South's play by any lead except a spade, but he did lead a low spade. This gave Leonard his chance. He discarded a club. West was in with the king of spades and led his queen of clubs, but it was all over. Leonard took his ace, cashed his king of diamonds, ruffed a diamond in dummy, led the ace of spades, played his ace of trumps, led his good queen of diamonds, ruffed it with dummy's last trump and discarded his last club on the nine of spades. West could trump or discard but Leonard had made his contract by establishing that spade trick in dummy.

When Grey wrote, "Full many a gem of purest ray serene the dark unfathomed cavern of Ocean bear," he was referring to bridge. But today's hand as played by Leonard Wabsey in a club game at Bremerton, Washington, is one of those gems. The first trick produced dummy's jack of spades and East's ace. Leonard ruffed and led a diamond to dummy's jack. East took his ace and...

Diet Questions After Hepatitis

By Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB - My 21-year-old son recovered from a mild bout of hepatitis six months ago. Can you give me some information as to the correct diet he should have? He will be home soon, and I would not want to cook anything that might hurt him. Also, he said he seems to catch colds and sore throats rather easily. Can daily vitamins help him? Like most young (and some not so young) people he does not eat properly anyway. What can I do to help him? Should he get a physical check up more often than once a year? He loves gourmet foods and enjoys wines. Take Christmas dinner as an example. Can he eat turkey, dressing, cranberry sauce, nuts, gravy, potatoes, yams, pie and roast beef? Can he eat spaghetti sauce - real Italian style? I have also heard that it is a bad drink because it is hard on the kidneys and stomach. I have stomach aches frequently, and if I drink colas it seems to make my stomach problem worse. I was wondering if it was really because of the drink and colas are bad for the kidneys and stomach. DEAR READER - For normal, healthy people a cold or two a day is not harmful. The group contains only a little caffeine, about a fourth as much as you get in a cup of coffee. In sensitive people with acid stomach problems colas may be irritating. Also all soda drinks release gas, usually in the stomach, which increase the gas problem. They have no effect on normal kidneys at all. The chemical balance mechanism of the body is such that it can adjust to a wide variety of acid or alkaline foods. The colas and other foods and drinks are broken down into simple substances before they are absorbed into the blood stream. Only the simple compounds ever reach the kidneys. Colas and other soft drinks between meals may be bad for your teeth, and so are all sweets, food and drink particularly if you don't brush your teeth at once.

Liver damage and alcohol, in any form, do not mix. If your son has recovered completely and has no residual damage he could have a moderate amount of alcohol, but remember it is toxic to the liver. And I meant what I said about the calories - too many calories is the problem most people have. To give you additional information I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-8, Living With Your Liver. Others who want this information can send 30 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 428, San Antonio, TX 78209.

DEAR DR. LAMB - You had in your column not long ago an article about drinking colas. You commented that it was not a very bad habit because colas are low in caffeine content. I have also heard that it is a bad drink because it is hard on the kidneys and stomach. I have stomach aches frequently, and if I drink colas it seems to make my stomach problem worse. I was wondering if it was really because of the drink and colas are bad for the kidneys and stomach. DEAR READER - For normal, healthy people a cold or two a day is not harmful. The group contains only a little caffeine, about a fourth as much as you get in a cup of coffee. In sensitive people with acid stomach problems colas may be irritating. Also all soda drinks release gas, usually in the stomach, which increase the gas problem. They have no effect on normal kidneys at all. The chemical balance mechanism of the body is such that it can adjust to a wide variety of acid or alkaline foods. The colas and other foods and drinks are broken down into simple substances before they are absorbed into the blood stream. Only the simple compounds ever reach the kidneys. Colas and other soft drinks between meals may be bad for your teeth, and so are all sweets, food and drink particularly if you don't brush your teeth at once.

Lake Mary Man Awarded $1,000 In Beating Case

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

A circuit court jury today awarded a Lake Mary man $1,000 compensatory damages — and no punitive damages — in his lawsuit against the City of Sanford and three police officers, in connection with an incident on March 23, 1975 outside a motel lounge.

The police officers indicated they may make a decision soon on the possibility of filing a counter-suit for defamation of character.

Lester M. Cox, 33, of Lake Mary, testified Wednesday that Lt. Richard Nooney, Sgt. William Foster and Patrolman Gordon C. Reid struck him on the head and that Foster choked him with nun chakus until he "blacked out" during the incident at the now-closed Cavalier lounge on U.S. 17-92.

The officers testified that they didn't beat or strike Cox and that he wasn't hit at all by Foster with the nun chakus.

Cox, a truck driver, said he worked at the motel-lounge as a part-time handyman in return for compensation on his room rent. He said the alleged assault took place after he ejected Clarence Runney, of Sanford, from the lounge a second time that night because Runney was "causing a disturbance" and had been asked to leave the property and didn't.

Cox sought in excess of $5,000 damages from the policemen and the City of Sanford claiming he suffered cuts and bruises about his wrists, neck and face and that his clothing was torn. He testified that he was treated by a physician "two or three days after" the incident for bruised neck nerves that caused a "numbness in my shoulder."

Cox testified he doesn't know what he was hit on the head with, but Larry Ellswick, who was a patron at the bar, testified that Foster "pulled out a pair of sticks" and hit Cox on the top of his head several times and then used the sticks to choke Cox "until his face turned red."

Ellswick testified that he told Foster the sticks "were unnecessary" and was threatened with arrest for interfering with an officer.

"I thought I'd never see it... a man being taken advantage of and then being charged for it," Ellswick said.

Cox was arrested on misdemeanor assault and battery charges and acquitted in a July 25, 1975 non-jury trial in county court.

Luckie Williams, who was the Cavalier lounge supervisor and bartender the night of the incident, testified that Foster beat Cox on the back and head with the sticks and "it sounded like a broomstick hitting a brick wall." Williams said Foster struck Cox "more than six times" and that he "was afraid they were going to kill him (Cox)."

Williams said when Cox was choked with

Public Hearing Issue Stymies School Board

By KRIS NASH
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County School Board voted Wednesday to postpone approval of a public hearing site in the current teacher-administration contract dispute until school board attorney Douglas Stenstrom can determine whether the public should be allowed to participate in the hearing.

Stenstrom said he felt there was "a serious legal question" as to whether the public hearing, which is required by Florida law, should be opened to comments from interested citizens who are not involved in the contract debate.

School Board Chairman Dave Sims, Supt. William P. (Bud) Lyster and William Moore, head of the Seminole Education Association (SEA), met Monday and set Jan. 12 as the date for the hearing.

"The law calls it a public hearing," said Stenstrom, "and that, by its very nature, would seem to imply participation by the public. But what we have here is a dispute between two parties, one with the exclusive right to bargain with the other, which is a public employer."

"I think all of you can see the paradox in it."

The problem on approving the hearing date arose when SEA officials requested that the session be moved to Lyman High School, where they felt greater public attendance would be possible than at the 150-seat county commission hearing room in the courthouse.

Several panel members said that if the public cannot take part in the proceedings, they see no reason to switch the hearing site. So it was agreed to delay a decision on the SEA's request until next week when Stenstrom hopes to have the legal question resolved.

The public hearing is the final step in a process aimed at settling disagreements which derailed contract negotiations between the school board and the SEA last August. Seminole teachers have been working without a contract for more than 90 days.

State law requires the school board to "conduct a public hearing at which the public shall be required to explain their positions with respect to the report of a state mediator who attempted to arbitrate the impasse."

"Thereafter," the law states, "the (school board) shall take such action as it deems to be in the public interest, including the public interest, including the proceedings will have to be scheduled again. We have to maintain strict compliance with the law."

Panelist Robert G. (Bud) Feather said that since the affair is "our hearing, I think we ought to be able to decide whether the public is allowed to participate. And I think we should give them the opportunity to speak."

"I would agree with that," said Stenstrom, "if it is legal. If it is not legal and the SEA takes you to court, then the whole proceedings will have to be scheduled again. We have to maintain strict compliance with the law."

Election Certified

Sanford City Commissioners have certified this week's city election, declaring Mayor Lee P. Moore and City Commissioner Julian Stenstrom elected to new four-year terms, and setting the runoff election for City Commission Seat Two for Dec. 21.

Incumbent City Commissioner Gordon T. Meyer will face E. O. (Eddie) Keith in the runoff for Seat Two. Meyer is completing his seventh year in office.

Official results gave Moore 1,460 votes to 415 for Harry Skop, South Seminole publisher, while incumbent Stenstrom received 1,078 to 716 for James Melvin in the Seat Two race.

In the four-man Seat Two contest, Meyer received 720 votes to 497 for Keith while Larry D. Blair received 452 and A. G. DeLaubaudiere received 278.

Nineteen absentee ballots were cast in the election. Absentee ballots for the Dec. 21 runoff are expected to be available at Seminole Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce's office in the courthouse late Friday afternoon.

Turnout in the election was 1,965, or 23.3 per cent, of the 8,270 registered voters.

Eatery Picks Airport As 14th Site In State

By MARYLIN TIPTON
Herald Correspondent

Kim Townsend, vice president of Jerry's Caterers, Miami, today affirmed his company's intention of establishing a restaurant facility at the Sanford-Central Florida airport.

Townsend told the Sanford Airport Authority that his firm, "has 13 locations, all in Florida, and specializes in airport food franchises, gift shops and catering."

J. S. (Red) Cleveland, director of aviation at the airport, said, "We have submitted a proposed contract to Jerry's and established a fee of $700 a month plus 5 per cent of the gross on food and 7 per cent of the gross on the lounge and liquor."

The Authority moved to authorize plans and specifications toward drawing up a final contract with Jerry's and authorized preliminary studies on the air-conditioning situation in building 46, the building which will be occupied by the restaurant.

Townsend would not speculate on when the restaurant might open.

The Authority today also discussed the possibility of bringing charter flights into the Sanford Airport, noting there

Cleveland informed the board that he has a meeting Friday with the Seminole County Planning and Zoning Board to discuss a proposed airport hazard zoning ordinance. He also said the authority is working with the City of Sanford as how to eliminate the problem of birds on the runways.

In other action, the Authority today officially cited Henry Wright for running out of gas on previous occasions; approved lease of part of building 13B to C.B. Service Co. for use in repairing citizens band radios; a month-to-month agreement to permit fabrication of upholstery by Aire Interiors; an agreement to allow Sanford Air Co. to set aircraft and lease ramp space; and a one-year lease with renewal clause for Starline Enterprises, Inc.

Santa Early For DeBary Woman

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

Christmas came early this year for one DeBary woman. It came after an agonizing hour of thinking she had lost money sent by her two children for deposit in a local bank.

The Santa Claus, if you'd like to call him that, turned out to be a 10-year-old Longwood youth, who valued honesty more than he valued money.

So, after finding a wallet containing $400, Kevin Jones didn't tuck it inside his own pocket.

He promptly turned it in to owners of the Longwood Flea Market.

Meanwhile, Sue Pierce of DeBary was frantic. After browsing about the flea market, she returned home — returned to DeBary to find her wallet and $400 of her children's money missing.

"I realize I didn't have a billfold; I had 1.2. It out of my purse," Mrs. Pierce said.

"I thought: 'This is the worst thing that ever happened to me.'"

Especially because two of her children who are serving in the Army had sent her part of their monthly earnings for deposit. She feared the money was lost — forever.

Under normal conditions, Mrs. Pierce said, she carries only a small amount of cash, never enough to get concerned over. But on that day the wallet was swelled with dollars sent her from Germany for deposit.

She called the sheriff's department and reported the loss. Meanwhile, flea market owners had also called sheriff's deputies to report Kevin had turned in the billfold — with all the money intact.

"Honey," Mrs. Pierce said, "I tell you, I hugged his neck."

"No, it (the money) wasn't mine. It belonged to my children."
