Clerical Error Brings Back Memories Of Axe Murders

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

It's a clerical mistake, a minor notation on a back page of the Seminole Circuit Court docket. Appearing almost as an afterthought in the miscellaneous "Other Handling" section, it reads simply: "Harry Higgins Murder In The First Degree." The case number is of a style so old it isn't even used anymore.

The case shouldn't even be on the docket. But it is — 22 years later still stirring memories of one of the bloodiest episodes in the annals of local criminal history . . . .

The date: Monday, Jan. 12, 1959. Time: 6 a.m. Most of the residents of the fashionable Lakewood Shores subdivision in south Seminole County are still in bed, snored up against the 30-degree dawn.

Harry Gifford Higgins, a 40-year-old aerospace engineer and missile expert, is getting dressed. But he won't make it to work this morning. He has other, more important things to do. He must stop a conspiracy of which he is the target. He knows too much, national military and technological secrets. The Russians, he is convinced, are going to kidnap him and his family and torture them until he tells all he knows.

He must stop them. It will be quite simple, really. Calm and deliberate, he fetches a new axe from a tool shed outside and does what he feels he must. The Reds must not get to them first.

SWISH! The axe slices through the crisp morning air and rips into the neck of Higgins' wife Ruth as she lies in bed asleep.

A slightly-built man, Higgins shoulders the heavy axe and silently walks down the hall to daughter Ruth Ann's room. Her wide eyes peer out from the darkness. He can't bring himself to strike while she is awake. He sits on her bed for a moment, asking about her pet dog, then gets up and moves down the hall to where his three sons lie sleeping. Twelve-year-old Bryan is the first to go, his neck severed to the spinal cord by the blow. Richard, 8, is next. Ten-year-old Phillip wakes up and begins to cry.

Again, Higgins balks. It's those eyes. He can't stand them watching him. He doesn't want his son to see death coming. He cradles the boy in his arms and carries him to a couch in the living room.

Upset by her brother's crying, Ruth Ann, 14, heads for the comfort of her mother's bed. Six flicks on the light switch and stands there in the doorway as if paralyzed; for a second totally immobile, a suddenly frozen mind and body that has solidified into one great silent scream. She runs sobbing to a neighbor's house where the police are called.

Following the carnage, Higgins had planned to kill himself by driving into a tree at full speed, but a patrolman arrived on the scene before he could make his getaway. Higgins remained calm through it all. Even when a crowd gathered outside his house, he casually opened the back door and in his typically soft-spoken manner said he would be right out. He wanted to talk to his priest first.

Higgins never expressed remorse for the gory hacking of his family. His only regret was that his wife, who took four hours to die, was not killed instantly like the rest. "I'm sorry," police quoted him as saying, "that Ruth whom I loved the most, had to suffer." He admitted that had Phillip and Ruth Ann been asleep, he would have murdered them too. He said he wasn't sure, however, whether he could have killed himself.

Two months after the sensational slayings, Higgins was indicted for his crimes — three counts of first degree murder. If convicted, he could have gone to the electric chair. But Harry Higgins never stood trial. He was mad. At least, that's what a team of psychiatrists said, adding that he was incapable of helping prepare his legal defense.

So, now-retired Judge Volle Williams sent Higgins off to the state mental hospital in Chattahoochee. But that wasn't to be the end of it. Williams ordered that should Higgins ever recover, he was to be returned to Seminole County for possible prosecution.

For the next 15 years, Higgins remained a patient at the

Hostages Taken By Rightists

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Heavily armed rightists stormed a Barcelona bank Saturday, wired it with explosives and threatened to blow up the building with more than 300 hostages inside if four military coup plotters are not released from jail.

A hostage who was shot in the bank seizure by as many as twenty five pro-Franco extremists said they had stacked explosives in the windows and at the entrances of the Catalan headquarters of the Central Bank.

Government sources said more than 300 people were held at gunpoint inside the headquarters of Central Bank.

In a statement delivered to a Barcelona newspaper, the pro-Franco rightists demanded two planes to be put at their disposal within 72 hours to fly from Madrid to Argentina with the four officers arrested after a failed coup Feb. 23.

The gunmen threatened to kill one hostage every hour if the government ignored their deadline and said they would blow up the building if police stormed it.

Almost three hours after the occupation began, a number of hostages estimated at about a dozen left the bank. Eyewitnesses said most were women. They said none appeared wounded.

A bank employee permitted to leave the besieged building after being shot in the leg said there were between 20 and 25 gunmen, all armed with submachine guns and explosives.

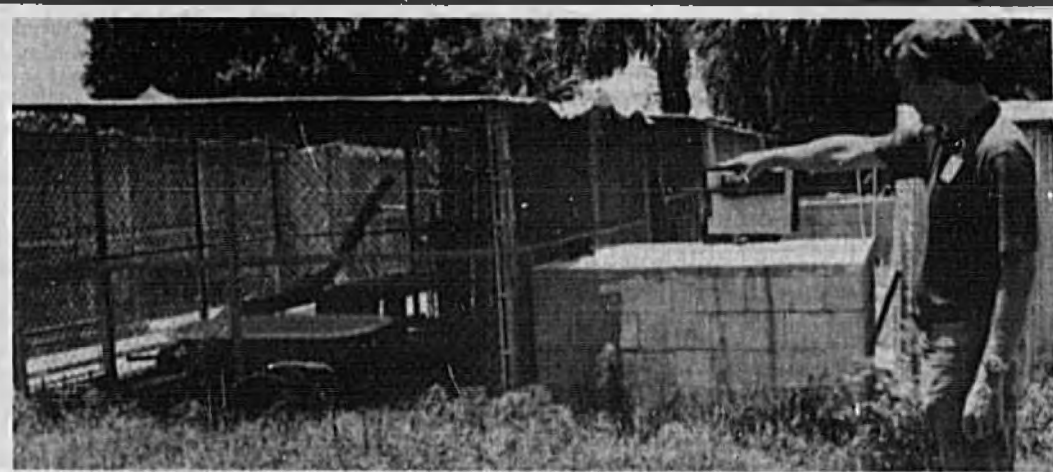

He said the gunmen had placed explosives in all the windows and entrances of the downtown building.

Another bank employee reached by telephone said the gunmen had ordered everyone in the four-story building to gather on the ground floor.

Police jeeps and sharpshooters massed around the downtown building. Units of Spain's crack anti-terrorist police, the GEOs, raced to Barcelona from Madrid. Police sources said the only access to the headquarters building was the roof.

Police said a Barcelona newspaper received a written statement shortly after the bank seizure claiming the attack was staged by right-wing extremists demanding the release of four of 30 officers arrested after the attempted coup Feb. 23 in which the Spanish parliament was taken over by ultra-rightist military men.

Police identified the four jailed officers whose release was demanded by the extremists as Lt. Col. Antonio Tejero Molina, the mustachioed civil guard officer who seized parliament at the start of the coup attempt, Lt. Gen. Luis Torres Rojas and two lieutenant colonels.

Controversial Bill Passes House

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A bill affirming the right of lenders to charge higher interest rates when certain home mortgages are transferred passed the Florida House of Representatives this week, but its future in the Florida Senate is uncertain.

With both of Seminole County's resident legislators — State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, and State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, — firmly on the opposition side of the issue, the measure passed the Florida House by a 57-34 vote.

At this point if one buys a home in Florida, the buyer may be able to assume an old, low-interest mortgage if the buyer qualifies. That practice, say officers at savings and loan associations, has hurt lending institutions because mortgage interest rates have climbed so high.

The bill, as proposed, would permit mortgage lenders to exercise "Clause 17" — the so-called due on sale clause — in many low-interest contracts entered into prior to rapidly climbing interest rates of the past 18 months. This would eliminate assumption of those mortgages, thus permitting lenders to write new mortgages at existing interest rates.

Hattaway, a realtor and banker, said he opposed the legislation, calling it a "gut issue" on which he had to make a decision. "I had friends on both sides," he said.

"The bill benefits few businesses at the expense of a large number of people. Savings and loan associations are saying they are not making money, but looking at their buildings and expansion they must be making money," he said. Hattaway said if the bill passes the Senate and becomes law, it will take a lot of people who wish to buy older homes and to assume existing mortgages out of the marketplace.

Brantley had the same concern. "This bill would make it impossible in many instances for young married couples just out of college to realize the American dream of owning their own homes," he said.

"The only personal contacts I have had in favor of the bill were persons in the savings and loan industry," Brantley said. He added the issue of the legality of "due on sale" clauses is now pending in Florida courts.

"This is an attempt to circumvent court action. I don't know that we need to do that, either. Let the courts rule on the issue. In other states where the courts have ruled, the decisions have been against the 'due on sale' clause," Brantley said.

The bill will not pass the Senate with State Sen. Clark Maxwell's help. The Melbourne Republican, whose district includes Seminole County, said flatly, "I'm not supporting it. I don't see where it is a people bill or where proper consideration will be given to people." Maxwell said the bill "will only help some special interests." Maxwell was of the opinion that the only reason the bill passed the House was because of "some arm-twisting by the House Democratic leadership. With all the leadership's power, the bill passed by only three votes," Maxwell said. "I find little support for it in the Senate."

Sen. John Vogt says he is still "undecided" about how he will vote on the measure. The Cocoa Beach Democrat, whose district also includes Seminole, said he is asking the questions he has about the legislation as testimony is given in the Senate Commerce Committee of which he is a member.

Hearings before the Senate's Commerce Committee began Thursday afternoon.

"Emotionally, and as someone who has some single-digit mortgages, I'm inclined to oppose the 'due on sale' bill," Vogt said. "But I must look at it from an informed standpoint of what the impact is on savings and loan associations."

"Hopefully I'll become more informed in the committee hearings," he said. Vogt said he had 15 persons outside his office door waiting to talk with him about the issue and had numerous telephone calls from persons in the savings and loan industry and from realtors since the bill passed the House.

The bill's provisions apply only to mortgage contracts that have a "due on sale" clause written into them and would come into play only when a house is sold.

Riots Inmates Rebel In Two States

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — A pistol-toting Nevada State Prison inmate, described as one of the most dangerous in the country, freed 50 hardened criminals from Death Row and top-security cells and took over a cellblock, holding three guards hostage through the night before releasing them Saturday unharmed.

Two of the guards were freed by a rifle-firing SWAT team that ambushed the cellblock around 4 a.m.

The third was finally released two hours later when uprising leader David Wayne surrendered, handing over a .25-caliber pistol to prison Superintendent John Blansky, who negotiated for 10 hours for the guards' release.

Meanwhile, guards and state police swept through a maximum security reformatory Saturday at Ionia, Mich., securing as many as 1,000 inmates who staged an uprising just hours before a riot by 1,700 inmates at the world's largest walled prison quietly ended.

Four guards and 18 inmates were injured in the six-hour Ionia Reformatory uprising. Two guards reported being beaten by a gang of up to 40 prisoners. One convict suffered a head wound and was reported in critical condition.

Seven inmates were injured in the earlier riot at Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson, none seriously.

The 12-hour riot at Jackson prison, the world's largest walled prison some 50 miles away, ended without force at about 10 p.m. Friday when the last stubborn inmates returned to their cells.

State prison officials blamed the Jackson riot on "irresponsible and insubordinate" guards, who told inmates they would be locked up for the three-day weekend and subjected to a cell-search.

The Ionia uprising ended at about 3 a.m. EDT today, when 23 state police and 45 guards swept through the institution, getting inmates back into their cells and securing cellblocks.

Inmates had seized two cellblocks in the century-old reformatory, and set fire to a school and food-service area about 8 p.m. The prison school and a guard shack were destroyed by fire.

At Nevada, Deputy Warden Steve Robinson said the 12-member team broke through the doors on the ground floor of the prison shortly before 4 a.m. and captured 28 of the rebellious inmates. Shots were fired but there was no immediate report of injuries.

Prison Director Chuck Wolf, Jr., said the facility was secured at 6:30 a.m. and that the only guarantee granted Wayne was that he would be able to have a visit from his girlfriend.

Wayne, who just a few hours earlier had been acquitted on charges in another hostage-taking, asked for and was twice given doses of an antidepressant drug, Demerol, by prison officials during the tense negotiations.

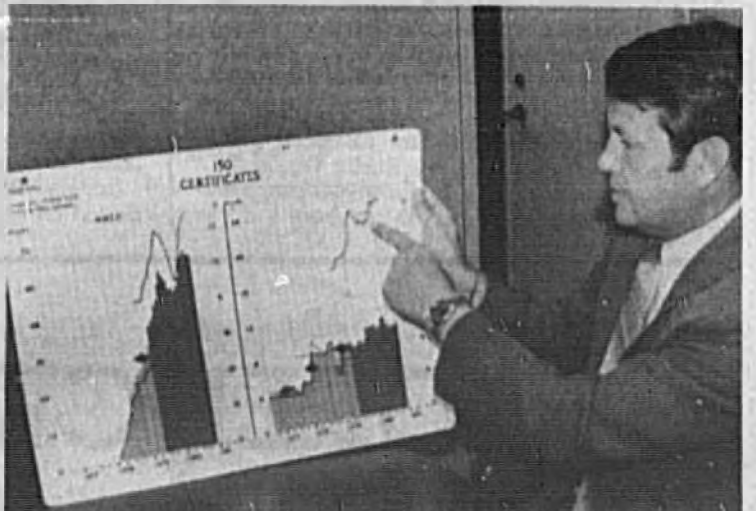

Deputy Prison Warden Steve Robinson said Wayne wanted "assurances he won't be killed."

The takeover, in which one inmate was stabbed and another beaten, was the sixth hostage incident at the prison in the past nine months and the third involving Wayne, described by a prison official as "one of the most dangerous men in the United States."

Wayne, 37, serving a 20-year term for attempted murder in a Reno, Nev., bar hopper, was being escorted from a shower around 8 p.m. Friday when he pulled a pistol, taking three guards captive.

The due on sale clause — also called an acceleration clause or Section 17 — appears in most mortgages issued after 1976, an estimated 20 percent of the existing home mortgages in Florida.

The clause explicitly allows savings and loan associations and other lenders to adjust the interest when a mortgage is assumed by a new owner. The clause has been successfully attacked in some courts as being an unfair provision. In Florida, the 2nd District Court of Appeal in Lakeland has struck down the clause, but many lenders have ignored the decision, contending it applied only to the single case. Courts elsewhere in the country, however, have given opposite rulings.

The House bill would affirm the

WORLD IN BRIEF

Pope Recovering Well, Infection Fear Dwindles

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II is well on his way to a full recovery from gunshot wounds, and the biggest problem now facing his doctors may be restraining the pontiff from resuming his active life too soon.

The surgical team caring for the pope since he was shot in St. Peter's Square May 13 signaled their confidence in his full recovery Friday when they removed the last of the tubular drains that drained excess fluids from his abdomen — indicating they had little or no fear he could develop a potentially dangerous abdominal infection.

Syrians Down Spy Plane

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A Syrian missile shot down an unmanned Israeli spy plane in a further escalation of the Middle East crisis, and a special conference of Arab foreign ministers promised "total" military aid to Syria if its territory is attacked.

U.S. presidential envoy Philip Habib, who Friday met with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis, is expected to travel back to Damascus today in his mission to tend the crisis over Syrian missiles stationed in Lebanon's central Bekaa Valley.

In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander Haig rejected a Soviet offer of an international conference to avert a new war.

Cosmonauts End Voyage

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Popov and his Romanian colleague landed their Soyuz-40 space capsule safely, bringing to an end the 14-year era of the Soyuz model that served as the backbone of the Soviet space program.

"We were lucky to fly on the last ship of the Soyuz series, which did a lot for the development of space, not only for the Interkosmos program, but in general," Popov said Friday after touchdown from a one-week stay on board the orbiting Salyut-4 space station.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

First Holiday Weekend Casualties Are Reported

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (UPI) — Two persons killed in a grisly collision that left 21 others injured in Dade County and an elderly Pinellas County man became the first casualties of the three-day Memorial Day weekend as the count barely got underway Friday.

The Florida Highway Patrol has predicted 25 people will lose their lives on the state's highways during the holiday period that began at 8 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Monday.

The holiday weekend was barely 25 minutes old when two passenger vans collided on a southwest Dade County highway. A Florida Highway Patrol spokesman said one of the victims died at the scene of the accident. A spokeswoman at James Archer Smith Hospital in Homestead confirmed another person died in the emergency room there.

Victims included 20 Haitian refugees packed inside a nine-passenger van, the driver of that vehicle and two persons traveling in the other van.

Satellite Up...Finally

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — America's newest "weather eye" — the GOES 5 sophisticated weather satellite — has finally been launched and space agency officials turned their efforts to putting still another "bird" in the skies today.

INTELSAT 5, the second of nine advanced telecommunications satellites designed to carry 12,000 telephone calls and two color television channels simultaneously around the globe, is scheduled to be boosted into space atop an Atlas Centaur rocket at 8:29 p.m. EDT.

The satellite, owned by the 108-member International Telecommunications Satellite Organization, was due to fly Thursday, but last-minute battery and computer problems forced a 48-hour delay.

Russell Miller, director of Environmental Health Services for the Seminole County Health Department, said today the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has issued a public warning concerning botulism found in a particular type of canned mushrooms.

The mushrooms are canned pieces and stems produced by the Oxford Royal Mushroom Co., Kellon, Pa. and have been distributed to some 30 different food stores in Florida, including Pantry Pride and Grand Union.

The deadly botulism was found by FDA in a couple of cans imprinted on the top with the following codes: to line — DK 101 to DK 130; bottom line may be P-1 of P-2 of LP-1 or LP-2. They were packed in April and May of this year. Other codes which may be toxic include EK 101 to EK 118, P-1, or P-2 or LP-1 or LP-2.

Unopened cans of this type should be taken to the store of purchase for a refund. The store will return them to the company.

MURDER CONFESSIONS NOT SUPPRESSED

An effort to suppress the confessions of two teen-ager brothers charged with murder in connection with the February shooting of a 34-year-old Fern Park man has been rejected by Seminole Circuit Judge Joseph Davis Jr.

Attorney for Homer and Jackie Lee Poole, 18 and 15 years of age respectively, claimed that the confessions given police hours after the murder were not voluntarily and freely given.

The boys, along with 32-year-old Columbus "Sonny Boy" Edwards, were arrested Feb. 7 and charged with murdering James Charles Bullock of Apt. 1, Oak Ridge Motel, U.S. Highway 17-92 in Fern Park.

Bullock's body was discovered in Edwards' room, Apt. 5 at confessed only "because he was terrified, he didn't know any better. This all took place around 4 o'clock in the morning in the back of a police car between two officers twice his size," Segal said. "The way the police handled this case shocks the conscience."

Segal went on to say that Homer Poole could not intelligently waive his rights (to remain silent and to an attorney) "because he didn't know what in the world they are. He doesn't even know what an attorney is. I submit that he would not have waived those rights had he known what they are," he said.

Jackie's lawyer, Charlene Kelly, added that the boys were not allowed to call their mother for four or five hours following their arrest. The confessions, made after the Poole's initial request for a phone call was denied, should therefore be inadmissible in court, Kelly said.

Assistant State Attorney Alan Robinson argued that the confessions should be introduced as evidence at trial because at the time they were made, both brothers said they knew what they were doing, understood the consequences, but still wanted to make statements. Robinson also said that simply because the juveniles were not allowed to call their mother when they wanted to does not mean crucial evidence should be suppressed.

Davis agreed.

the motel, around 2 a.m. after neighbors reported hearing screams. Bullock had been beaten, robbed of $10 and shot once in the head with a .25-caliber pistol.

Homer admitted to police that he beat, robbed and shot Bullock, but claimed the shooting was accidental. Jackie Poole said he too took part in the beating, and named his brother as the gunman.

But Homer's lawyer, Gary Segal, argued that his client legality of the clause in Florida at least until the U.S. Supreme Court decides the issue, a ruling not expected for several years.

Ric Coffin, executive vice president of First Federal Savings and Loan of Mid-Florida, said his institution began including "paragraph 17" in mortgage instruments in 1976 — a year after most other S & Ls started the practice.

The purpose of the clause was to give S & Ls the ability to accelerate mortgages, requiring full payment of the mortgages when the property was sold. Another purpose, Coffin said, was to make sure that persons taking over old mortgages were credit-worthy.

Coffin said his institution with home base in DeLand has been enforcing the provision of "due on sale" for the past three to four years even though a "lot of attention has not been given to the provision until the past 12-to-18 months."

Coffin said S & Ls had no problem with low interest mortgages for a long time. They stayed at six percent interest for years. "We were paying for many years 4½-to-5 percent interest on passbook savings and receiving six percent interest on mortgages," Coffin said.

"Then the interest rate on mortgages hit 8½ percent and started rising rapidly. Certificates of deposit were introduced into savings and loans and we began paying more to attract dollars than we were receiving from the vast amount of our portfolio of interest on single family homes. It was obvious we needed to do something like adjusting the mortgage interest rate," Coffin said.

"The majority of most savings and loans' portfolios are in low-yield mortgage loans with single digit interest rates. These include FHA and VA loans with interest rates ranging from 5½ percent to 8, 7, 8½ and 9 percent," Coffin said.

Coffin said less than 20 percent of the mortgages held by his institution contain the "due on sale" clause and thus will be affected by the law.

Gib Edmonds, president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Seminole County, said the Sanford based institution began including "Paragraph 17" in its mortgages in April, 1974. At that point the interest rates on home mortgages was 8½ percent.

"It was included in a standard form put out by the Federal Home Mortgage Corp. especially to standardize documents for those who buy and sell mortgages across the country," Edmonds said.

Some savings and loan institutions in the area began using the form only a year ago, Edmonds said.

"When mortgage rates were fairly stable, there wasn't any need to enforce the clause, but now we are paying such high rates on savings. You can't pay extremely high rates to savers without the borrowers feeling the pinch," he said. Edmonds pointed out that the proposed new law will change only those mortgages which include the clause. Those with First Federal of Seminole before 1974 do not have the clause and those mortgages are assumable, he said.

The institution has the option of whether to enforce the clause, Edmonds said, noting his institution began enforcing it 12-to-18 months ago.

Proponents of the proposed law say the S & Ls need the right to enforce the clause because the soaring interest rates they must pay to attract deposits have driven more than 80 percent of those in Florida into the red.

Opponents generally acknowledge that the S & Ls are hurting. But they contend homeowners had no choice but to accept the clause in their mortgage contracts and would have great difficulty selling their homes if it were enforced.

The bill applies not only to future mortgages but existing ones as well, including those now being challenged in the courts, a retroactivity that opponents claim would make it unconstitutional.

Proponents counter that the measure merely affirms what already exists on paper and said that without it, mortgage money could dry up entirely and benefit no one.

A spokesman for the Florida Association of Realtors said the long-prevailing right of people to buy and sell real estate through the assumption of existing mortgages would be virtually destroyed if the Florida Senate approves the bill.

"The so-called 'due on sale' bill could prove disastrous for the housing industry in our state," said William A. Watson Jr. of Jacksonville, president of FAR. "We have no quarrel with the original intent of this clause in the mortgage contract," Watson continued, "which was to assure the lending institution that the person assuming the mortgage was qualified to do so."

"What we object to is the use to which the savings and loans are putting this clause today, solely for the purpose of jacking up the interest rate from what it was at the contract's inception to today's prevailing market rate when the mortgage is assumed during the sale of mortgaged property," Watson said.

Watson said by increasing the rate of interest on assumption of mortgages, the savings and loans are "pricing more and more people out of the housing market."

New Rioting In N. Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Troops fired plastic bullets at rioters hurling homemade grenades in Londonderry early today in the second straight night of protests in the hometown of dead IRA hunger-striker Patrick O'Hara.

On Friday, two more convicts in Maze Prison began hunger strikes to back the demand by Irish Catholic militants for status as political prisoners, replacing O'Hara and Raymond McCreech, who died Thursday.

Police Friday said a Belfast girl, 11, and a Londonderry man, 40, both wounded by plastic bullets, had died in a hospital. An 18-month-old baby girl was struck in the back by a stray sniper's bullet aimed at a police patrol in Belfast, police said.

Irish Republican Army prisoner Kieran Doherty, 25, took McCreech's place and O'Hara was replaced by Kevin Lynch, 24, in the deadly chain of starvation, strike organizers said.

Police said teen-age rioters lobbed home-made hand grenades packed with nails in clashes at the edge of the Catholic Bogside district of Londonderry, where earlier some 1,000 mourners paid their respects to O'Hara as his coffin was paraded through the streets, accompanied by six masked republicans.

Isolated gasoline bombing also was reported early today in west Belfast, where a British armored personnel carrier was hit Friday by a Soviet-made rocket.

Grand Strategy In The Making

The Reagan administration is still formulating its grand strategy on the subject of strategic arms negotiations with the Soviet Union. But if administration appointments already made to crucial arms control policy posts are any indication, Mr. Reagan plans to take a tough stance indeed in any future bargaining with the Soviets.

If so, President Reagan and his senior advisers have learned the overriding lesson of the last decade of SALT negotiations with Moscow: Namely, that firmness offers the only hope of obtaining equitable, verifiable arms control agreements that, in fact, enhance American security.

The President's nominee for director of the key Arms Control and Disarmament Agency is Eugene V. Rostow, a Democrat and former State Department official during the Johnson administration.

But Eugene Rostow is no mere token Democrat in a Republican administration. He is superbly equipped to serve as ACDA director. Mr. Rostow has devoted much of his considerable ability and energy during the last five years to a potent pro-defense lobby group known as The Committee on the Present Danger.

As its name implies, the committee's abundantly documented view is that the failure of successive administrations — most especially that of former President Jimmy Carter — to respond adequately to the Soviet military buildup has placed the United States in imminent danger.

Mr. Rostow's impressive grasp of both political and military considerations central to the challenge of negotiating successful arms control agreements with the Soviet Union ensures a firm hand at the helm of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Complementing the Rostow appointment is Mr. Reagan's selection of retired Army Gen. Edward L. Rowny as the administration's chief SALT negotiator.

Gen. Rowny, like Mr. Rostow, opposed the patently inequitable SALT II treaty negotiated by the Carter administration. Indeed, Gen. Rowny resigned as the Joint Chiefs of Staff representative on the SALT negotiating team and requested early retirement from the Army so that he could be free to oppose the treaty in testimony before Senate committees.

No negotiating team headed by Gen. Rowny is likely to be steamrollered, or hoodwinked, by its Soviet counterpart.

The Reagan administration's tenure in office is almost certain to coincide with a Soviet-American showdown on SALT.

If the Soviets are truly interested in good-faith bargaining leading to equitable, verifiable agreements, a new and better SALT treaty is possible.

If not, the administration, the Congress and the American people will be better off for recognizing this sooner rather than later.

Officials like Eugene Rostow and Gen. Rowny are precisely those most likely to help shape a SALT strategy capable of smoking out Moscow's real intentions.

BERRY'S WORLD

"You're full of self-pity — I'm full of self-pity — let's get married!"

Around

The Clock

By DORIS DIETRICH

In the good ole summertime. Oh yeah, what's good about it? How do I hate thee, Summer? Let me count the ways.

Actually, I love summer. I suppose I am among the weirdos who really likes hot weather. Call it heritage, if you like, but "sweat of the brow" were words I leached on.

It's the cold of summer that I can't hack. In the wintertime, we wear clothes to keep us warm. Then, in the summertime why don't we wear clothes to keep us cool?

Why?

Let me tell you. Somebody's heavy hand has been on the controls of the air conditioner.

Last week, I stepped out in a bare summer fashion to go to the dinner theatre. It was so icy in the building that my husband was not the only man to remove his jacket for his shivering wife.

It isn't that the fellows were pulling a Sir Walter Raleigh, but we women were chilled to the bone. We needed winter wraps.

The same thing happened this week at the supermarket. Several customers were complaining that it was too cold to shop.

Okay, Mr. Manager, don't stand there in your long-sleeved shirt and long-sleeved jacket and tell us that it is the same temperature we shopped in all winter. You are probably right.

But you forget that during the winter, we had on heavy clothes to shield our bones from the low temperatures.

The experts preach: "conserve energy." Yet, businesses and offices are so cold one could wear winter clothing year-round and be comfortable — as well as being ill from frigid conditions inside and such sweltering heat outside.

This week I heard a woman complain of the indoor heat. There she stood—in a turtle neck pullover up to her ears with her lower torso squeezed into a pair of heavyweight pants.

Our most recent home power bill was about $30 more than for the same period a year ago. During both periods, no power was used for heat nor air conditioning.

Something tells me we are going to do a lot of sweating at our house this summer — if this is a preview of bills to come.

But we will be among the consumers picking up the tabs for these cold, cold air-conditioned buildings as inflation continues to rage. Somebody's got to pay the power bill.

Last summer I recall going to a skating benefit where there was no air conditioning. A lot were complaining about the heat and a few had deodorant failure, but nobody left. And those who belched loudest probably didn't even have air-conditioning in their homes (and more don't than do, you know).

Last Sunday we went to the annual picnic of the First United Methodist Church, Sanford, in Fort Mellon Park. It was hot and the insects were having a field day. Games were played and people were perspiring. No, as a matter of fact, they were sweating. Everybody seemed to be having a wonderful time.

This is what the good ole summertime is all about.

JULIAN BOND It Was Different Reaction

Remember Janet Cooke?

Of course. She is the young woman whose made-up story of an 8-year-old heroin addict recently won a Pulitzer Prize. Her admission of that hoax caused many people to question and challenge the affirmative-action programs that have provided minorities with newsroom jobs that had not existed before.

Miss Cooke, you see, is black.

Fewer people recognize the name of Michael Daly, who even more recently resigned from the New York Daily News — which boasts the second-largest circulation of any newspaper in the country — after admitting that he was "unable to substantiate" a column that he had written.

Michael Daly is white — a fact that you could have deduced fairly safely without ever having seen his photograph.

He attended Phillips Academy at Andover. Very few blacks have done that.

He graduated from Yale University. Very few blacks have done that.

But his race could most easily be ascertained by the absence of any demands for a review of the hiring practices that won him his job.

As Miss Cooke probably knows, white men get jobs because they deserve them. Black people, on the other hand, get jobs because they are black.

Any subsequent lying or cheating by the black employee is either genetically predetermined or the inevitable result of the process through which he or she got the job. At least, that's what the critics of affirmative action seem to be saying.

The Daily News sent Daly to Northern Ireland, where he wrote a column titled "On the Streets of Belfast, the Children's War."

He wrote that British soldiers shot plastic bullets and live ammunition at a mob of children. "Go for their heads," he quoted a British soldier as having said.

The London Daily Mail accused Daly of producing "a work of pure imagination." The paper said that the soldier who Daly had quoted by name did not exist. It said that the order to shoot Irish children in the head was "pure fiction."

After two days of questioning by his editors, Daly resigned.

Janet Cooke and Michael Daly are obviously not birds of a feather.

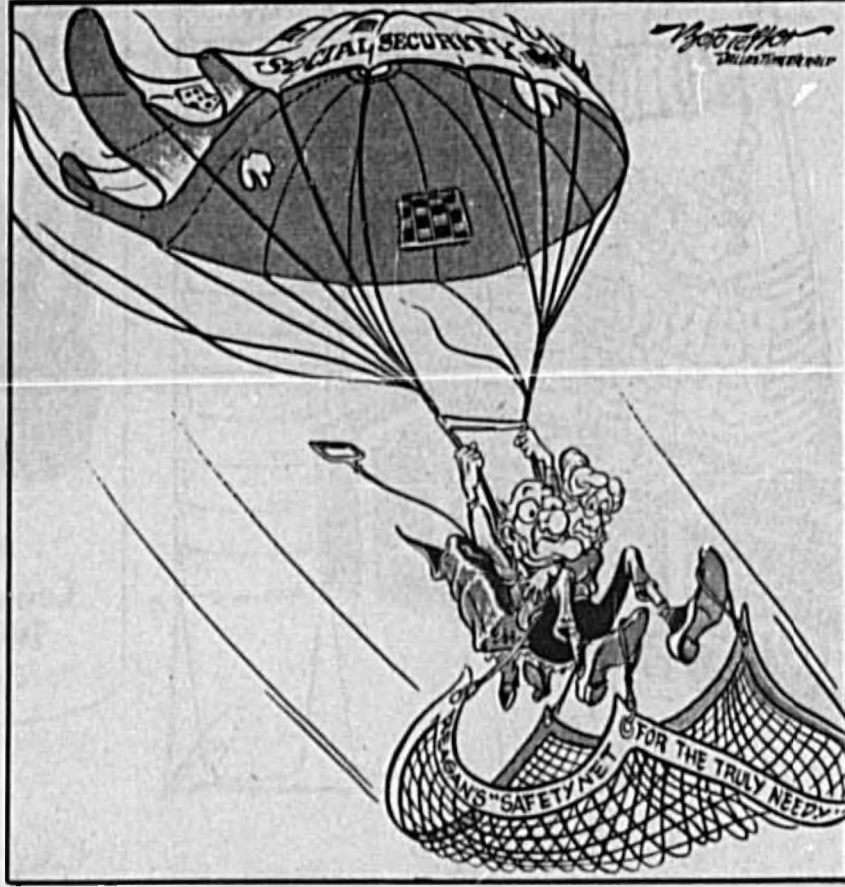

To my knowledge, there have been no clarion calls to bar white male graduates of Yale from America's newsrooms — or to subject them to any special scrutiny.

Daly's mistakes don't excuse those made by Miss Cooke. But the muted reaction to Daly's departures from the truth does contrast sharply with the earlier cries — some shouted, some whispered — to throw out the affirmative-action plans that have helped many blacks to get jobs.

Both Miss Cooke and Daly are talented writers. Like an earlier fraud, Clifford Irving, they may be better at fiction than at fact. Neither deserves much pity for difficulties of their own creation.

Write it up as two mistakes made by bright young people who surely know better.

And dismiss the complaints against affirmative action as the bigoted bleats of those who obviously don't.

JEFFREY HART

Abortion On The Line

Six former U.S. attorney generals and an impressive body of legal scholars, including Professor Robert Bork of Yale, a conservative and an intellectual powerhouse, have held that the proposed congressional action on abortion is unconstitutional.

Republican Senator Jesse Helms and others are asking Congress to pass legislation to the effect that human life begins at conception.

With all due respect to the attorney generals and the legal scholars, it is difficult to understand why the proposed measure would be unconstitutional.

In its key abortion decision, Roe versus Wade, the Court explicitly declared that it could not rule on the question of when human life begins.

That refusal would seem to leave the door wide open for someone else to do so. The natural authority to make that judgment would be Congress, which reflects the judgment of society.

In fact, Roe versus Wade seems to me to invite Congress into the question. If, indeed, a consensus exists in the country that human life begins at conception, why should Congress not reflect that consensus?

Second point. If Congress does enact such a definition, it does not necessarily mean that abortion would be legally equivalent to murder. Killing your local bank teller would be one thing. Killing a fetus at some stage of its development might well be legally quite different.

Having said all this, I have to admit that the proposed legislation makes me distinctly nervous.

At the political level, this nervousness has to do with the absence of a national consensus on the subject of abortion.

For example, today there would be little disagreement in this country with the proposition that slavery is evil. In 1820, however, there was no such consensus. The nation does change its mind on such momentous matters. But to have legislated in 1820 as if a consensus existed on the evil of slavery would have been politically disastrous.

It is conceivable that in due course the nation will conclude that human life indeed does begin at conception. Consciousness will have been raised. But we have not reached that point.

I believe that we have reached the point where we agree that something must be done to moderate the flood of abortions that resulted from Roe versus Wade.

We have not yet agreed on just what I know nurses who are outraged over the common practice of aborting female fetuses because the parents desire a son. The frivolous abortion is clearly unacceptable.

But even if human life does begin at conception, it is not clear that a pregnant 14-year-old should be obliged by law to give birth. Balanced against the potential damage to that 14-year-old's life, a decision to end the pregnancy could well be defended on prudential grounds.

Ideally, I suppose, at the current stage of consciousness as regards abortion, one might envision some sort of responsible board which could pass on the merits of the case, a hospital board, perhaps, which would function under the understanding that abortion is a very serious matter and not something merely "between the woman and her doctor."

But the political pot seems to be boiling on this issue, and it has built up a larger head of steam than I myself anticipated.

In considerable part, the anti-abortion crusade represents a reaction to the sexual permissiveness that came in with the 1960s. There exists an impulse in the country to "draw the line," and, politically, abortion appears to be the place where the attempt will be made to draw the line.

Among some anti-abortion people there is a certain element of sexual resentment. They cannot strike directly at sexual pleasure. Instead, they mean to penalize it by pressing the abortion issue.

In practical terms, if the Helms bill or something like it does pass, we are in for a big mess on the scale of Prohibition.

DICK WEST Familiar Sinking Feeling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At last count, eight sinkholes had been discovered in Florida. Big deal!

You can find more sinkholes than that in the federal budget without even leaving the Pentagon.

One of the Florida sinkholes was reported to have swallowed up an entire house, three or four sports cars, a swimming pool, part of a roadway and several empty beer cans.

You think that's a big sinkhole, you ought to see what disappears down the federal budget. And nobody except David Stockman even notices.

Fiscal-minded geologists (Is there any other kind?) tell us budget sinkholes occur when tax sources dry up, causing the revenue level to drop. The bottom line is then unable to support the weight of government spending, and the whole thing collapses into red ink. But let's try to look at the bright side.

It might be overdoing it a bit to imply that every sinkhole has a silver lining. And certainly nobody would be so Pollyannaish as to believe there is a sinkhole full of gold at the end of the rainbow. Nevertheless, one measure of a country's greatness is its ability to make the best of bad situations.

If, therefore, the sinkholes that have pock-marked central Florida can be turned to constructive uses, it will be a distinct plus for our national image.

Even now, you may be sure, some of the best minds in Washington are being applied to the problem. Preliminary thinking embraces three potential sinkhole spinoffs.

For one thing, it is possible that the inevitable sinkhole feasibility study will shed some light on the pothole mystery that has baffled scientists for so many years.

If the sinkholes provide any information on how potholes are formed, or aid the cause of pothole prevention, they truly will be a blessing in disguise.

Another potential boon is suggested by the Reagan administration's controversial plan to close the National Aquarium for economy reasons. A logical compromise would be to move the fish to Florida and call their new home the National Sinkhole.

It is, however, the MX missile system that provides the most feasible sinkhole utilization.

The Mormon Church, as you know, has registered objections to using the state of Utah for MX sites. But Florida, I'm sure, would welcome the use of its sinkholes as missile emplacements.

In fact, I have a sinking feeling that Russia already is planning to sink a few holes around Vladivostok to offset America's sinkhole superiority.

Who knows where the sinkhole buildup might lead? But don't be surprised if the next round of arms control talks produces a Strategic Sinkhole Limitation Treaty.

U.S. Pulls About Face Of Assad Snub

WASHINGTON — On his trip last month to the Middle East, Secretary of State Alexander Haig deliberately snubbed one of the most influential Arab leaders — President Hafez al-Assad of Syria. Haig not only refused to go to Damascus to meet the Syrian strongman, but publicly vilified Assad during his visit to Israel.

After that, however, the situation changed dramatically: Syria moved Soviet surface-to-air missiles into position in Lebanon — which it has been occupying under a United Nations mandate. Israel hinted that this action could touch off war. Thanks to Assad, the Middle East teetered on the brink of war.

Faced with this explosive problem, Haig evidently began having second thoughts about the Syrian dictator. The administration asked the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to hold off on legislation that would curtail American air to Syria because of Assad's flagrant repression of human rights.

A similar amendment, sponsored by Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., to protest the Syrian actions in Lebanon, recently passed the House Foreign Affairs Committee. It is one of the few times Congress has attempted to halt foreign aid already appropriated.

The abrupt change in the administration's attitude toward Assad — from someone who can be snubbed to someone who must be courted — is a perfect illustration of his influence on the world scene.

Assad rules a country that could sink into the desert without disturbing Western economies. It has little oil. It has alienated most other Arab nations. In short, Syria has no clout.

But because it has acquired the reputation of being the most intransigent of Israel's Arab opponents — however ineptly it has carried out its hostility in three wars — Syria has become the Arab darling of the Soviet Union. And therein lies its influence. Syria and Assad, by their very irresponsibility, have the power to touch off a Middle East war — and to make such an explosion the occasion of a great-power confrontation. In short, Assad is regarded as a tail that may wag the dog.

As a result, Assad is no longer a pariah who can safely be snubbed by the United States. The State Department dispatched one of its top troubleshooters, Philip Habib, specifically to butter up the Syrian dictator.

Who is this man on whom the decision for peace or war may depend? According to what diplomatic sources have told my associate Lucette Lagnado, Assad, who has ruled the desert country since 1970, is one of the toughest hardball players in the Middle East.

The brutality of his regime has been documented by both the State Department and Amnesty International. Torture and summary execution of political opponents are apparently commonplace. He is obviously hated by many segments of the Syrian population; there have been several assassination attempts against him.

Each attempt on his life has apparently hardened Assad's attitude toward his political opponents. As a member of a minority Moslem sect, the Alawites, he has encountered opposition from other Moslems, including the radical Moslem Brotherhood — the same people who put a price on Anwar Sadat's head when he made peace with Israel.

But Assad has been careful to assure himself support from the military, and from the Soviets, who supply their weapons. Intelligence sources say Assad has installed officers who are personally devoted to Assad. Assad shrugs off international criticism of his repressive regime. Secure in his Soviet backing he likes to throw his weight around, playing the bully in Middle East politics.

"Assad wants to prove to the world that he's a tough guy," one intelligence expert explained. "That's very important to him."

OUR READERS WRITE

Amtrak Contention

The article on Amtrak by Britt Smith (May 10) is informative, but he apparently swallowed Amtrak president Boyd's contention that subsidy reduction means elimination of long distance trains.

The northeast corridor from Washington to Boston has no priority right over Amtrak's available resources. Congress can just as well direct Amtrak to maintain the long distance trains which serve the entire country with new equipment, and tell them to make necessary reductions in corridor operations which serve only a few states. It would then be the obligation of those few states that benefit from them to finance their own corridors.

Alan Boyd appears to be trying a worst-case approach in order to scare Congress into giving him whatever he wants. However, it's now almost sure that Amtrak will get a reduced subsidy. That makes it absolutely necessary for the public to tell their elected representatives what they want done with that subsidy money. Shall it be everything for a few northeastern states, or shall it be spread around the entire country in the long distance trains that serve all. It's your choice, not Alan Boyd's, not Drew Lewis, and not Ronald Reagan's. But your choice has to be heard, and not defaulted to a bureaucratic power grab in Washington.

Trade Postman's Truck For Presidential Yacht?

Common sense tells me, that I should not do or say anything to make "waves," but there comes a time which makes me feel indignant enough to speak. (Or in this case write.)

It seems that an appeal to the "powers that be" is a futile effort. I am referring to our mail carrier. He has given excellent and courteous service for many years and has recently been hospitalized. I only know him as "John" which proves that he has not been too familiar with those he serves but attends strictly to business. Now, he rides a bicycle on his rounds.

Formerly he had the use of a mail truck. Isn't one Civil Service job as prestigious as any other government position? Have we lost our place as number one nation?

What impression is this giving foreign nations regarding our strength? Are these drastic cuts really being made to stabilize our economy, or are the proceeds needed to pay for a presidential yacht? (I can't help but wonder.) If I wanted a rowboat to use for a little fishing occasionally, I would have to pay for it myself. I couldn't give my neighbors an ultimatum to deposit to my bank account funds for a pleasure craft and its upkeep which only I and my friends would enjoy the use of.

Please grant our mail carriers protection from hot sun, rain, cold, and dog bites and let them bring our mail again in trucks. Kathryn Stagner
Sanford

Editor's Note: John Salisbury, the Sanford postman who is now delivering mail by bicycle says using the bike is "good exercise." Reportedly several offers have been made to donate the yacht, rather than using tax money to purchase it.

Why Spring Hammock?

In spite of the fact that I love animals, I am violently opposed to the apparent offer of land lease for the Humane Society's proposed animal shelter.

According to an article in your paper, May 18, the land to be leased by Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, Barbara Christensen's parents, is part of Spring Hammock!

A long, hard-fought effort by those concerned for water recharge areas has within the past year seemed to be resulting in priority consideration of Spring Hammock for preservation by purchase with state funds.

Construction of the $200,000 (approx) shelter, there will encroach on these environmentally sensitive lands, drastically altering them in addition to threatening the plausibility of the county's stated intent to preserve when requesting the above mentioned funds.

I have not seen evidence that the Humane Society has exhausted every avenue available — what about building at Five Points? Is there nowhere else?

Must we kill the golden goose for one egg?!!!

I have sent a copy of this letter to Mr. Robert Sturm, Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, asking that it become part of the record at the time of Public Hearing for consideration of rezoning of the property.

Firemen Commended, Good Job

Last Friday afternoon, quite suddenly, we found ourselves in great distress due to a raging forest fire in Geneva, threatening our homes and property. It was a traumatic experience to see flames shooting high into the air from the tops of pine trees and palmetto trees completely surrounding our homes. To us it looked like a hopeless situation. We were convinced there was no way we could be spared even clothing for our backs. When the heat became so intense we were forced to leave. We realized we would have nothing to return to. We were not alone in our misfortune as many other families were going through the same experience. The fire was so out of control it appeared impossible to stop it.

Seminole County has a team of firefighters, operating under the direction of Chief Gary Kaiser, who worked diligently for many hours, continuing through the entire night to save the homes of every family in the line of fire. There was a great loss of forestry, but not one residence was destroyed. Those of us who live there realize the odds they were working against — the darkness, constant shifting winds, lack of rain creating nothing but a continual dry shaft to burn, the heat created by the fire and terrible smoke. We are indeed thankful for the efforts of these firefighters and know they work in most undesirable conditions. These firefighters are professionals who are organized and efficient and know how to get their job done. We feel these men should be commended for a job well done and for performance beyond their duty.

Planned Move Is A Nuisance And Inconvenience

The Lake Mary City Hall staff is getting ready for two separate moves in the next 24-to-three months. June 18 is the big day when the staff must vacate the city offices on Crystal Lake Avenue it has occupied for the past seven years plus.

Although the staff will not be formally evicted, the owner of the building sent a letter to Mayor Walter Sorenson telling him that another tenant is ready to move in as soon as the city moves out. He gave the city 30 days to accomplish the move. Sorenson said the city staff can first move into the Sjoblom building on Country Club Road until renovations are completed at the old Chamber of Commerce building which is to become the first city hall owned by Lake Mary.

Sorenson, who seldom gets upset about anything, said the double move will be a nuisance and inconvenience, but that's about all. About the only additional expense in the double-moves will be telephone installations.

Once the city does move into the old Chamber building the staff will have about twice as much space as it now has.

Despite President Reagan's plans for abolishing the Legal Services Corp. offices around the nation, U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum is willing to go along with retaining the organization if some fairly drastic changes are made in its structure.

"It is not clear whether the changes made in the Corporation's structure will save it, but they are absolutely essential before I could even consider supporting its continuation," McCollum said.

A "significant" amendment to restructure the corporation would give state and local bar associations control of the governing bodies of all Legal Services operations on a local level.

Parties & Politics

Donna Estes

McCollum points out the Legal Services Corp. is the federally-funded legal assistance system for the poor. He notes, it has been under increasing attack for devoting a substantial portion of its resources to activist litigation and legislative lobbying rather than everyday individual legal problems of the poor.

McCollum said administrators hired by the corporation are free to choose any method for the delivery of legal assistance. In most cases, he said, the governing bodies of area legal services are controlled by social activist organizations representing the views of the "very liberal federal bureaucrats" in charge rather than the views of a cross-section of the local communities.

Other changes adopted by the Judiciary Committee of which McCollum is a member include: tighter controls on class action suits against federal, state and local governments; much tougher restrictions on lobbying and other activities by Corporation employees, who have often spent much time outside the judicial system attempting to engineer social changes; simpler procedures and increased powers of the corporation board of directors and president to cut off funds to local operations that get out of line and to fire attorneys and other employees who engage in prohibited activities; a prohibition on strikes by any employees in the Legal Services system; and provisions to reimburse overhead costs to private attorneys who handle legal assistance cases for the poor free of charge.

"With the dramatic restructuring of Legal Services Corporation, which appears to be well along the way, I am leaning toward supporting its continued existence. However, I remain unconvinced that state and local bar associations could not provide much of the basic legal assistance to the poor without federal funds. Should any glaring weakness in the restructuring effort become apparent, I will not hesitate to vote against continuation of the Legal Services Corporation," McCollum said.

Senior Citizens Advised: 'Use Medicines Wisely'

Prescription and over-the-counter medications can make us healthy and keep us that way. If not taken properly, however, they can make us feel worse.

Drugs themselves are neither good nor bad, of course. It's the way in which they are used that makes the difference.

And using them properly is especially important for the 10 percent of the population over age 65 that now consumes 25 percent of the medications taken in the United States.

Everyone — old and young — who regularly takes medication should obtain the excellent booklet "Using Your Medicines Wisely: A Guide for the Elderly," prepared by the National Institute on Drug Abuse of the Public Health Service.

Fewer than half of the medicines now in use were on the market 10 years ago. These new drugs are helping many people — particularly elderly people — to enjoy longer, healthier lives.

But because older people generally take more medicines, they also run a greater risk of having problems with them. So, the booklet lists these things to do:

— Tell your doctor about all the medicines that you are taking and about any allergy or sensitivity that you may have to a drug.

— Understand all instructions before starting to use a medication. Know when to take it, how long to continue taking it and what to do if problems occur. For example, some medications should be swallowed only with water.

— Take medicines at the times that you are supposed to. People who take several drugs might be wise to have some system for keeping track of when to take all of them.

You might want to keep all medicine bottles in one place. An empty egg carton has room for as many as 12 small medicine bottles. Make sure that each is labeled with the name of the drug and the time of day that it should be taken.

— Phone your doctor if you notice any new symptoms or side effects.

— Keep drugs in air-tight containers. Store them properly.

— Keep a permanent record of all drugs and vaccines to which you are sensitive or allergic.

The booklet also has a list of do's:

— Don't take more — or less — than the prescribed amount of a drug.

— Don't stop taking a drug without checking with your doctor — even if you feel better.

— Don't mix alcohol and medicine

Growing Older

Harold Blumenfeld

unless your doctor says it's OK. Many drugs react adversely with alcohol.

— Don't take drugs that were prescribed for someone else. And don't give your drugs to another person.

— Don't transfer a drug from its original bottle to another one.

— And don't keep old medicines in your medicine cabinet.

Communication between doctor and patient is important. Before visiting any doctor's office, make a list of all the medications that you are taking, including those that do not require a prescription, such as aspirin or laxatives.

This will help the doctor to prescribe new medicine. Otherwise, the combination of two drugs could produce a dangerous reaction or reduce their effectiveness.

"Using Your Medicines Wisely" has a handy chart to list the names of your drugs, their purposes, their colors and shapes, directions, cautions, and the times of the day that they should be taken.

Inside is a smaller tear-out booklet titled "Passport to Good Health," which has spaces for recording names of doctors, hospitals, pharmacists, family members to be reached in an emergency and medicines that you are taking. The passport is small enough to be carried in a purse or a wallet.

You can be wise and healthy by requesting the book, DHEW Publication No. (ADM) 80-706, from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

Soviet Arctic Strategies Versus NATO

by THOMAS F. PAYNE
Special to The Herald

Desolate and uninhabitable in the popular minds, the "North Pole" is assuming greater and greater importance in world affairs, largely because of new technologies which enable men to operate and live in the frozen, heretofore impenetrable, wastelands. The Arctic region today also has a great strategic significance, which was foreshadowed in one of the most desperate and crucial, though little celebrated, struggles of the Second World War.

In July, 1942, Convoy PQ 17 made its way from assembly points in the British Isles to the Soviet city of Murmansk, north of the Arctic Circle, carrying American Lend-Lease material to the Soviet troops of the Eastern Front. The timely arrival of PQ 17's cargoes was essential if the Russians were to stem, and ultimately turn back, the tide of Nazi invasion. The German High Command, well aware of the importance of these Lend-Lease shipments, responded with a devastating air and naval campaign to sink the convoy before it reached its Russian destination.

Submarine wolfpacks and Luftwaffe bombers, mounting their operations out of occupied Norway, dealt frigid death to thousands of Allied seamen in the Arctic Seas off Norway. Of the 36 ships originally in the convoy, only 13 made port in Russia. But the material reached Murmansk and helped to make possible the Stalingrad campaign, the beginning of the end for the Nazis in Russia.

After the Second World War, the Soviet Union replaced Nazi Germany as the predominant land power in the European continent generally and in the European Arctic as well. The Soviet Kola Peninsula is the site of the largest city north of the Arctic Circle, the port of Murmansk, and is the location of the most dense concentration of military installations in the world. Its ports are the bases for the Soviet Union's largest fleet; bombers designed to strike at targets on both land and sea exercise above its skies; and the whole place bristles with anti-aircraft defenses—monuments to the critical importance of the installations which the SAMs protect.

The mission of the Soviet forces in the Arctic is two-fold. Offensively, Soviet submarines, surface vessels and warplanes are to break out of the Barents and Norwegian Seas into the North Atlantic. There they are to disrupt American sea- and airborne resupply of the Central Front in Germany by attacking the resupply convoys themselves and the bases and depots from which the reinforcement operations are to be staged. In addition, certain Soviet ballistic missile-carrying submarines must deploy into the North Atlantic if they are to be within range of their strategic targets within the United States.

Defensively, Soviet Arctic forces are tasked with guaranteeing the security of their own bases, preventing the monitoring of their own movements by NATO intelligence gathering operations, and preserving the Barents Sea as a strategic sanctuary. From the Barents sanctuary the more advanced Soviet nuclear submarines can launch their longer-ranged ballistic missiles at American targets without fear of American anti-submarine warfare.

Because the war plans of the NATO nations assume massive resupply and reinforcement from North America in the event of a European war, any such war would be lost if the Soviets were to succeed in their offensive mission. On the other hand, preventing a sortie by the Soviet Arctic Fleet would not bring automatic victory to the Allies because of the formidable capacity of the Soviet forces on the Central Front. Thus for NATO, the strategic maxim which must govern its policy toward the European Arctic is that no war can be won there, but a general European war can be lost there. The relevant question thus becomes: what has NATO done to forestall this disastrous contingency?

Soviet war ships and planes trying to break out of their base locations and into the North Atlantic pass through two "choke points." The one is the passage between the Barents Sea and the Norwegian Sea formed by the Norwegian province of Finnmark and the Svalbard Archipelago. The second is the G-I-U-K Gap—the double passage between the Norwegian Sea and the North Atlantic bounded by Greenland, Iceland and the United Kingdom. All the nations whose territories form these choke points are part of NATO, but in the case of every one of them, a combination of political instability, military weakness and pressure from the Soviet Union is cause for apprehension about the ability of NATO's Northern Flank to hold together in the long run.

In many ways, the situation of Norway presents the most extreme and revealing case. Although their country is a charter member of NATO, many Norwegians long for a return to the neutrality which dominated the kingdom's foreign policy before World War II. For fear of giving offense to the Soviets, the Government of Norway permits no stationing of NATO troops or nuclear weapons in its country. If the country were to be attacked by the Soviets, the Norwegian army could do no more than hold out until help came from the Central Front in Germany.

Nonetheless, in 1978, the Norwegian government, responding to pressures from the Soviets, refused to participate in military exercises which would have practiced precisely such defensive maneuvers. Soviet naval exercises tend to be staged ever more westwardly into the Norwegian Sea, and this has an intimidating effect upon the Norwegians.

Soviet submarines even probe Norwegian territorial waters to examine anti-submarine warfare installations and intelligence gathering facilities.

NATO's failure to respond vigorously and decisively to these violations of Norwegian sovereignty have not increased Norwegians' confidence in NATO's ability to defend their country, but may have increased the strength of neutralist sentiments.

The second choke point between the Soviet Fleet and the North Atlantic is guarded by Iceland. Unlike Norway, Iceland hosts American air and naval forces whose mission is to guard the Denmark Straits, but like Norway, Iceland has a powerful neutralist strain in its politics. In fact, Iceland has an active and influential communist party which is capable of major electoral successes (having been included in at least one government coalition during the past decade), and which is pledged to taking Iceland out of NATO.

In short, the Northern Flank of NATO is both militarily and politically weak. Strengthening NATO's military posture on the Northern Flank is a precondition for restoring its political posture; but an increased commitment to NATO on the part of Norway and Iceland is discouraged by the ever-weakening military power of the United States. Unless these weaknesses on the Northern Flank of NATO are overcome, the efforts currently being made to strengthen NATO forces on the Central Front may prove to be in vain.

NATION IN BRIEF

Schmidt 100 Percent Satisfied... Almost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt is "100 percent satisfied" with his visit with the Reagan administration, but some major differences remain unchanged.

During two days of talks, which concluded Friday, the two were in basic agreement on how to deal with the Soviet Union, but disagreed on a few trade and economic issues. Secretary of State Alexander Haig, reporting on the visit, said Schmidt authorized him to say he was "100 percent satisfied with the outcome of his visit. There were no surprises."

Haig also quoted Schmidt as describing President Reagan as "a thoughtful man with deep convictions."

Young Feted In Style

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Veteran astronaut John Young was feted in grand style Friday by officials and residents in his hometown of Orlando. But nothing seemed to please him more than lunch with sixth graders at the elementary school he attended more than 40 years ago.

The stop at Orlando's Princeton Elementary school — one of six Young made during the days celebrations in his honor — was a special treat for the 51-year-old commander of the first flight of the space shuttle Columbia, who was bombarded with questions from the youngsters.

Young told the children that riding aboard the Columbia was "scary at first" but then became "like driving a car."

Asked by the kids why he was jumping up and down after the Columbia landed, Young said it was because "I looked at the bottom of the Columbia and we hadn't lost a single tile."

She Stands By Robert Garwood

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Donna Long, the 38-year-old widow who stood by Marine Pfc. Robert R. Garwood throughout his marathon legal battles, says it's hard to remember when life was not "one crisis after another."

Since welcoming him home from 14 years in Vietnam two years ago, Mrs. Long has been at Garwood's side through his military trial on charges of collaborating with the enemy and a civilian trial on charges of sexually molesting a 7-year-old girl.

"We've always just tried to take it one step at a time," Mrs. Long said in an interview after Garwood was cleared of sex charges. "Life has been just one crisis after another."

Mrs. Long was the star defense witness in the sex trial, testifying Garwood was out of town the day the incident allegedly occurred.

Garwood, a 35-year-old native of Adams, Ind., is appealing his conviction on charges of collaborating with the Viet Cong in a series of jungle POW camps.

Defense attorneys claim Garwood was driven insane by torture and deprivation and should not be held responsible for his actions.

Garwood and Mrs. Long plan to be married after Garwood completes psychotherapy at a Harrisonburg, Va., hospital for "post traumatic stress disorder," a mental illness that causes some Vietnam veterans to suffer extreme depression, flashbacks and nightmares.

Mrs. Long recalled how she and her late husband, Dale, befriended Garwood after he returned to active duty with the Marines nearly two years ago, and how Garwood was devastated by her husband's death in a motorcycle accident.

"I took him (Garwood) to the funeral home. I stayed outside and he knelt beside the casket and he was talking to Dale in Vietnamese," she said. "I had a feeling he was telling him 'Don't worry. I will take care of Donna and the kids.'" state hospital, undergoing treatment for hallucinations and schizophrenia-paranoia.

Then, on May 3, 1974, Dr. Benjamin R. Ogburn, director of the forensic unit at the state hospital, asked that the charges against Higgins be dropped and he be declared not guilty by reason of insanity.

Judge Williams denied the request and reaffirmed his previous order that if Higgins ever recovered he was to return to Seminole County for possible trial.

Hoping to find a more receptive ear, Ogburn went over Williams' head to then-chief Circuit Judge A.J. Hoseman Jr. who on Oct. 5, 1976 went along with the appeal and acquitted Higgins on the grounds that he was crazy at the time of the slayings.

But that didn't mean the gates of the hospital were flung open and Higgins walked out. He continued undergoing court-ordered treatment until May 1980 when he was finally set free. But even before then, on July 30, 1978, a three-man team of hospital psychiatrists — Drs. Milton Hirschberg, Modesto Hevia, and Juan Maniago Jr. — said Higgins had improved significantly and was competent to stand trial.

But it was too late. Hoseman's order of Oct. 1976 effectively ended any chance of Higgins ever being brought to justice. Williams tried anyway, claiming Hoseman's order was invalid, and on July 30, 1980 ordered the case to trial. The hospital appealed and on Feb. 19, 1981, the Florida Supreme Court instructed Williams that no further action could be taken in the Higgins case.

It had been 22 years, one month, and one week since that cold January morning when Harry Higgins hacked his wife and two sons to death with an axe.

The case should have been taken off the court docket then. "I don't know why it's still there," said Assistant State Attorney Alan Robinson who handled the case in its final stages. "I've asked that it be removed." The memories aren't so easy to erase.

After the murders, Phillip and Ruth Ann Higgins moved in with relatives in their father's home state of Massachusetts. But no one seems to know where Higgins is now. Neither Williams, Robinson, nor sheriff's investigator Vern Brewster say they have any idea where the infamous killer is, or even if he is alive.

He may have checked back into the state hospital, Williams said, but the asylum is forbidden by law from either confirming or denying that.

"I just hope," said Robinson with a sort of somber black humor, "that he's not working in a hardware store somewhere sharpening axes."

De-Emphasized Busing, Quotas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General William French Smith vows to de-emphasize forced busing and racial quotas in favor of more "practical and effective" ways to obtain equal education and job opportunities.

In his first major speech on civil rights, Smith said Friday, "Mandatory busing is not an effective educational remedy, and in many cases it has also proven counterproductive."

And, he said, quotas, "while well-intended... invariably have the practical effect of placing inflexible restraints on the opportunities afforded to one race in an effort to remedy past discrimination against another."

Butz Sentencing Next Month

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UPI) — A federal judge said he will wait until next month to sentence former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz for evading $74,067 in taxes. The maximum sentence is five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Butz pleaded guilty to tax evasion Friday before U.S. District Judge Jesse Eachbach in an emotional speech in which he said he had let down his family and his country.

Reagan Back At Ranch

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — President Reagan is back on his ranch for the first time since he was wounded in an attempted assassination, ready and anxious to saddle up a horse and go for a ride.

Reagan, adequately recovered from his March 30 bullet wound to resume some outdoor activities, left Washington Friday for a four-day stay at his West Coast spread, the Rancho Del Cielo.

"You bet," a beaming Reagan told reporters when asked if horseback riding was on his agenda for the Memorial Day weekend holiday. "First thing in the morning."

Wild Goose Chase?

ATLANTA (UPI) — Investigators maintaining contact with a black man believed to have information about the slaying of one of 27 young blacks murdered in Atlanta are on a "wild goose chase," an attorney for the man says.

Stanley Nylan, an Atlanta lawyer, said Friday that authorities who questioned his client — a 33-year-old home repair salesman residing in upstate New York — received misinformation about him.

PEOPLE IN BRIEF

MGM On Nationwide Search For Fresh, New Sex Symbol

By United Press International
MGM-TV is launching a nationwide talent search for a sex symbol. The studio wants to hark back to filmland's golden era to discover an actress and groom her to play the lead in "The Dorothy Stratten Story," based on the life and tragic death of the murdered Playboy centerfold model.

The girl they are looking for could be harder to find than Scarlett O'Hara. Consider the qualifications as outlined by MGM-TV President Thomas D. Tannenbaum:

"What we are seeking is that rare, one-in-a-million personality who is a breathtaking, natural beauty, between the ages of 18 and 21, and, above all, a skilled actress."

He called the dead model "a vulnerable, startlingly attractive child-woman..." Auditions are being arranged in a number of key cities.

Coming Out From Under

The patient understudies who wait for their stars to miss a performance — sometimes forever in vain — are guaranteed a chance to perform this year. And before a very select audience. The event is the American Theater Wing's "Tony Award Time" party at Sardi's on May 31 when the 1981 Tony award nominees will introduce their understudies and watch them perform.

Among those on hand — Wanda Richard of "42nd Street" and understudy Gail Benedict; Gregory Hines and Judy Jamison of "Sophisticated Ladies" and understudies Hinton Battle and Valerie Pettiford; Jane "Piaf" Lapointe and understudy Judith Ivey; Rex Smith and Linda Ronstadt of "Pirates of Penzance" and their subs, Scott Burkholder and Karla Devito. The Tony Awards television show airs June 7.

Navel Surgeon in Penthouse

Dr. Howard Bellin, the New York plastic surgeon who got national publicity when a woman patient took him to court for misplacing her navel, opened a mini surgical hospital Tuesday on the penthouse floor of a midtown Madison Avenue office building. The impressive setup was previewed by several hundred friends of the doctor and his wife, former Countess Christian Paolozzi, at a champagne party given by them on Monday evening. Everybody oohed and aahed over Bellin's Louis XV desk set surrounded by photographs of the doctor and his wife with VIPs, including several recent U.S. presidents.

Vietnam Vets To Be Honored

Up to 25,000 people are expected to pack the Nashville International Raceway May 30 for the fifth annual "One For the Sun" concert. The Allman Brothers headline the all-day event, which this year is dedicated to Vietnam veterans. Support has been tremendous from the music community.

Gov. Lamar Alexander plans to proclaim May 30 "One For the Sun Day" in honor of the vets, says Carl P. Mayfield, who is coordinating the event. "We plan a special opening ceremony to honor the Vietnam veterans. It will be great and it's about time we honored them."

Tiegs: Music And Marriage

Supermodel Cheryl Tiegs may be marrying photographer Peter Beard Sunday but she also has accepted another proposal. It came from Rohan Joseph, the 27-year-old music director of the new American Philharmonic Orchestra. But instead of marriage Rohan proposed Miss Tiegs join the American Philharmonic executive board and board of trustees.

She said yes and has promised to attend the all-Bruckner program the orchestra will present at Carnegie Hall in its final concert of its first full performance season on May 28. That's just two days after her wedding.

Jersey State Police Nab 3 In Drug Busts

NEWARK (UPI) — State troopers stopped three out-of-state cars, including two from Florida, on the New Jersey Turnpike in three separate incidents and found large amounts of drugs each time, police said Friday.

Bernard Miller, 50, of 6903 Brightway Pl., Baltimore, Md., was stopped at 2:45 p.m. Thursday by Trooper Daniel Cortese because his car was weaving. Cortese placed Miller under arrest for driving under the influence of a controlled dangerous substance, which proved to be methadone.

Union County Judge A. Donald McKenzie issued a search warrant, and an inspection of the car turned up 14 ounces of heroin, valued at $105,000, said police spokesman Sgt. Tom Gallagher.

Miller was lodged in Union County jail, pending a hearing.

Later in the afternoon, Trooper Jack Repaha stopped a car for speeding and noticed the driver make a "furtive move" when he approached the vehicle, Gallagher said. The officer smelled a strong odor of marijuana and became suspicious when he saw that the car's spare tire and jack were in the back seat. A warrant was obtained, and a search of the trunk revealed 102 pounds of marijuana, valued at over $45,000.

Also found in the car were 8 black capsules, believed to be methadone, and two hypodermic needles and syringes.

Police arrested William Peter Fairley, 31, 6057 Golf Rd., and Dennis Charles Linscott, 27, of 131 School St., also of Fort Meyers Beach, Fla.

Both were in Middlesex County Work House awaiting a preliminary hearing.

In the third incident, Trooper Robert Cichino stopped a car near Elizabeth for a motor vehicle violation.

The driver could not produce a valid registration, and further checking turned up 12 pounds of cocaine in the vehicle. The driver, Juan G. Vignoly, 28, of 7850 N.E. 10th Ave., Miami, Fla., ran from the car and escaped.

A passenger in the car, Gerardo Grajales from Miami, Fla., was arrested. Grajales was found to be an illegal alien from Columbia. He was in the Elizabeth jail.

Regents Declare Moratorium On Doctor, Master's Degrees

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Board of Regents today declared a 18-month moratorium on new master and doctorate degree programs in the university system except for urgently needed health and engineering programs.

Chancellor Barbara Newell said, with the Legislature thinking of reorganizing the BOR and the federal government retracting some federal funds, the board should not begin graduate degree programs requested by the various universities unless they are badly needed.

The board approved negotiations for a public health master's program at either the private University of Miami by contract or at the state-supported University of South Florida in Tampa.

Mrs. Newell said there is a vital need for more public health specialists in urban areas, but proposed that "we declare a pause until January, 1983, in new programs."

Other exceptions to the moratorium would include engineering programs and changes in the "early divisions" curriculum mandated by the Legislature in the first two years of college.

The board would also be able to make exceptions to the moratorium for changes made to improve the racial balance at the universities.

Ms. Newell said a doctorate program in marine biology at USF and a master's program in social work at Florida International University in Miami would not be affected by the moratorium because they were approved last month.

Daytona Beach Cave-In Probed

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The partial cave-in of a department store under construction in a Daytona Beach shopping center — the second collapse of a building during construction in Florida in less than two months — was under investigation today by local and federal officials.

There were no casualties in the accident Friday, but nine workers sustained minor injuries when they plummeted 20 feet from the second story of the building to the ground floor. Witnesses said the collapse occurred shortly after the workers poured a fresh layer of cement over a portion of the top floor.

Friday's accident occurred at the new Burdines department store being built as part of an expansion of the Volusia Plaza Shopping Center. Construction on the building began about two months.

Fred Holmes, a Daytona Beach building official, said the second floor slab had been inspected six times since April 30. "We found no reason to believe there would be any problems on the job," he said.

The accident is under investigation by city building inspectors, fire department officials and investigators of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

One of the injured workers, Richard Carn, 18, who was standing on the spot that collapsed, said the floor "seemed like it swallowed, just caved right in. It just happened all of a sudden."

The Orange exploded early and then coasted to a 20-0 win in Sanford's annual White vs. Orange intra-squad battle at Seminole High School Friday night.

Speedy Rendall Manley ignited the Orange on the opening kickoff with an 82-yard return for a quick 6-0 lead.

On its next possession, quarterback Jeff Litton moved the Orange offense from midfield to the White seven-yard line. Faced with a fourth down and goal to go, Litton found receiver Frank Rowe in the end zone for his second touchdown in five and a half minutes. Johnnie Littles dashed in for the two-point conversion to give the Orange a 14-0 advantage.

Litton teamed with Howe again, two plays into the second period, on a 47-yard scoring bomb. The senior-to-be quarterback connected on four of his first six passing attempts in sparking the Orange to a 20-0 lead less than 15 minutes into the game.

Lenny Sutton's two-yard blast with just 7:30 left in the game, was the only other score the rest of the night. The 10.3 sprinter was a one man offensive show in the final 24 minutes piling up 104 yards on 14 totes.

"I think Sutton's gonna be our stud running back next year," Seminole head football coach Jerry Posey said. "He runs people over."

Six White turnovers spelled its doom.

They could have got back into the game in the second quarter when Robbie Cohen pounced on a fumbled punt at the Orange 21-yard line.

But running back Willie Carter gave away the first of five lost White fumbles on the first play from scrimmage.

The White moved deep into Orange territory again late in the first half, before quarterback Joe Calloway's screen pass was picked off by Thurman Thompson and returned 44 yards.

Three of the White's fumbles in the second half were lost in Orange territory, stalling a trio of scoring opportunities.

Grant Runs Offense To Overtime Victory

By SCOTT SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

It was the offense paired against the defense Friday night at Lake Howell in the annual intra-squad football game.

The defense was given a point for every time it stopped the offense and the offense used the regular scoring system.

Halfback Billy Mosblech ran two yards up the middle late in the fourth quarter to forge a 13-13 deadlock, but Scott Grant's extra point kick was blocked.

In the overtime session, the offense turned the tables on the defense.

With the ball placed on the 10-yard line, the offense scored three times in five minutes. Grant was a one-man show for the offense.

Grant scored first on a key block from Nat Edmonds. Then the gifted senior-to-be caught a pass in the back field and broke three tackles before being brought down at the one. Mosblech did the honors on the next play.

Grant closed the scoring when he recovered his own fumble and scored with no time remaining.

Guided by quarterback Scott Frick and the dazzling running of Grant, the offense quickly moved the ball down field for the tying score late in the quarter.

Prior to the last-quarter rush, however, the defense commanded the majority of the game, taking a 12-0 lead at one point.

Defensive tackle Mike Palmer was the standout performer, picking up six sacks for the night. Defensive back David Martinez got five tackles.

Defensive Coordinator Bob Becker credited linebackers Doug Fugleberg and Chris Bauer with coming through in the tight spots.

"We were good as a defensive unit," said Becker, who felt he needed better play from his seniors to be 100 percent solid.

Offensively, freshman Jay Roby set the stage for the first score by scampering 22 yards to the 20-yard line. Number two quarterback Mike McKnight then fired a 20-yard touchdown strike to Jeff Whipple.

Grant's conversion kick was good cutting the defense's lead to 12-7.

First year Coach Mike Bisceglia had words of praise for Grant, Mosblech and Ricci Magaro as well as his defensive unit.

"We moved the ball well, we just broke down a few times," said the former Hialeah two-time district champ.

LAKE BRANTLEY

Besaw's Three Touchdowns Buzz Blue Past White 19-13

Lake Brantley Coach Dave Tullis wasn't kidding when he said it was an "offensive night" Friday as the Blue and White got together for the annual spring meeting.

Running back Kevin Besaw rushed for 100 yards on 11 carries and scored three touchdowns to lead the Blue past the White 19-13.

"He's an all-around runner," raved Tullis about his senior-to-be. "He scored inside and outside."

Besaw's first touchdown came from 25 yards out on a sweep. Neat, he swept the end again for 80 yards and another TD. Greg Miller booted the point after.

Besaw's third flash to fame came on a trap play where he scooted 69 yards past the befuddled White for the touchdown.

The White scoring came from newly-installed quarterback Fred Baber and running back Otis Clatt.

Clatt rambled six yards for the first score and Baber, who's trying to fill the cleats of departing Jay Poag, ran a bootleg 15 yards for another touchdown. Andy Reardon drilled the PAT.

"I was real pleased with the offense," said Tullis, who's in his second year at Brantley. "Baber threw the ball real well." Baber was 15-for-30 for 161 yards.

"Defensively, Kyle Davis did a good job at linebacker and Doug Smith played well at safety," concluded Tullis.

Carlos Payas gathers in a pass.

Orlando Hosts Airline Reps

Franklin K. Willis, chief of the U.S. Negotiation Team for Bilateral Airline Agreements, will deliver the keynote address at the second annual Airline Day Program on June 5, in Orlando.

Willis, deputy assistant secretary for Policy and International Affairs in the U.S. Department of Transportation, will speak on "U.S. Aviation Policy." Airline Day is a joint effort of the Orlando Area Chamber of Commerce and the Greater Orlando Aviation Authority designed to focus on the growing commercial air market in Central Florida, with Orlando as the hub. Invitations to the program were extended to representatives of 35 domestic and foreign air carriers; to date, 16 have accepted, including two chief executives.

As guests of the business community and the Aviation Authority, airline executives will tour the new $350 million air terminal under construction at Orlando International Airport, be briefed on the overall economic structure in Central Florida and visit the construction site of Orange County's new $42 million convention center, in addition to major tourist attractions in the area.

The day-long program will climax that evening with a reception and dinner to honor the visiting airline executives. Other dignitaries in attendance will include Bill Frederick, Mayor of Orlando; Roland M. Lee, president of the Orlando Chamber; U.S. congressmen and representatives of the Governor's office.

Code Group Tours Cardinal

The Brevard County Chapter of the Southern Building Code Congress, International, held its May meeting in Sanford this week. Following a welcome by Sanford City Manager W.E. Knowles, the building officials representing Brevard County and cities of Melbourne, Indian River, Satellite Beach, Indian Harbor Beach, Cocoa, Cocoa Beach, Titusville and Palm Bay, toured Cardinal Industries' Sanford factory, Cardinal rental units at Sanford Court Apartments, and the company's new model home center in Casselberry. Also attending were Larry Jordan of the Florida Department of Community Affairs in Tallahassee and Don Kiselewski of the agency that inspects Cardinal's projects for the state of Florida.

Phone Shop Opens

The Orange City Telephone Company has introduced a new shopping concept in telephone service for the area with the recent opening of "The Phone Shop."

Located at 239 N. Volusia Avenue in Orange City, "The Phone Shop" will offer company subscribers the convenience of a department store setting to choose the phone that's right for them. There are many different styles and color combinations to choose from. Subscribers just select their telephones, take them home and plug them in if their home is already equipped with a modular jack. If not, customers may now "pick up" a modular jack and install their own extension phone.

The service representatives at "The Phone Shop" will explain to customers how to install their own telephone jacks and provide them with a book of instructions for reference. There is even a "help" number provided in case of difficulty in the installation. "Phone Shop" service is also available to small business subscribers using single line service.

Professionals Give Advice

Tips Help Make Home More Sellable

You've decided to sell your home. But right now there are strangers in your family room, looking over the patio to the pool.

What do they see? Smudges on the wall? Stains on the carpet? Silt on the pool? Or, do they see the tropical home they've dreamed about during cold northern winters, or crowded years in an apartment?

Will they make an offer, or drive to the next house?

Of course, there are many factors that influence home sales in today's highly competitive market. But, most Realtors will agree that a small amount of decorating know-how applied inside and outside the house can make a big difference.

"Depending on the home, sometimes an investment of as little as $200 can create that warm, homey feeling that can speed the sale or bring a higher price," said Gaynor Mullin, the Winter Park Manager for a leading Florida realty firm.

According to the professionals, the first step is to look at your home with a stranger's eye. Try to present the house like something on display in a store window. The Realtors also agree that cleanliness brings more money. Fancy decorations are far less important to a prospective buyer than a neat, well-maintained home.

Would You Buy Your Home?

If the outside of the house is unappealing, your buyer may never come inside. Take a slow drive past your house, or cross the street to get an overall view. Is this a home you would stop to see?

Be sure the grass is green, edged and mowed. A lawn service can help with sod and grooming. It goes without saying that heaped-up trash will not attract buyers. Is the tile roof dirty? Paint it or have it cleaned. Paint the outside of the house if it is cracked or badly stained. And, if the house or trim is an unusual color, paint it white.

Major landscaping improvements are probably not necessary, but pots of bright flowers near the front door will make a visitor feel welcome. Be sure the door is inviting and that it will open without sticking if the day is warm. Is the doorknob working?

More than one real estate professional stressed the value of dramatizing the tropical surroundings to make the home more appealing, especially to people from out of town.

A word of caution, however, comes from Dorothea Schug, Manager of a Lake Worth realty office. "A key mistake made by many Floridians is to let the yard become overgrown," she said. "Trees, especially fruit and palm trees, are a plus, but many buyers are wary of too much untrimmed vegetation."

On the positive side, if you have a pool, be sure the water is crystal blue. Hire a pool service. And, be sure the patio is scrubbed free of mildew.

Another important tip is the growing importance of energy conservation as a selling point.

Draw attention to your outdoor living space with attractive lawn furniture and plant arrangements. Ceiling fans add a tropical look and can help cut energy costs. Consider adding a few healthy tropical plants inside the house to carry out the theme.

And, with so many homes built together in some areas, a well-placed wood fence can add a feeling of privacy or block an undesirable view.

During the time you are showing your home, extra attention to housekeeping can pay handsomely. Start by cleaning closets so they will appear larger. Older people or busy working couples may want to consider hiring help for one complete housecleaning, including windows. After that, a half day each week will be a good investment until the house is sold.

With or without help, neatness counts so don't neglect those daily chores. Do the dishes and keep the kitchen counters clear. Make all beds and do the laundry. Keep toys, newspapers and clutter put away. And, find a place to keep pets out of view.

Now is also the time to fix the leaky faucet, noisy dishwasher or clogged drain.

"I don't recommend extensive redecorating," said Keyes Manager Sonnie William of the Longwood-Orlando office. She suggests that this is the time to think about other people's furnishings, not your own tastes.

Since your goal is to help potential buyers picture their own belongings in your home, you want to provide a neutral background that will make your rooms look as large as possible.

A coat of fresh paint in white or off-white is probably the best decorating decision you can make.

Next, look at the floor. If the carpet is soiled, have it shampooed. This can also help to eliminate mustiness or pet odors. Replace carpeting with a neutral tone only if it is badly worn. Even then, you may want to consider alternatives. By refinishing an old wood floor, you can add sales appeal.

The last step is to take a critical look at your own furniture. If the rooms are crowded or cluttered, store several pieces in the garage. Or, you might hold a garage sale to lighten your moving load.

For tax purposes be sure to keep track of expenses and receipts for fix-up costs during the 90 days before a sales contract is signed.

Set The Stage. Then Exit. Most prospective buyers will make an appointment through a Realtor to see your home. A few minutes before they arrive you can take care of last minute details to set the stage.

Be sure there is plenty of light. Open the drapes where the view is good. Check lamps and switches. Remember, you can use lighting to call attention to special details like a cozy fireplace.

Check the house for last minute clutter, especially in the kitchen and bath. Put pets out of sight and turn off the television or stereo. In warm weather turn on the air conditioning.

Extra touches could be fresh flowers from the garden to add warmth to the dining area, or a cake in the oven. The aroma is hard to resist and your family will enjoy the special dessert.

Finally, when the Realtor arrives remember this is a business call, not a social visit. Read a magazine while the Realtor shows your home to its best advantage.

If you've made the most of your property your chances of getting a top offer are greatly improved. So just relax and think about decorating your next home.

AREA BUSINESS SPOTLIGHT

Although Ms. Nash already appears on both programs, her new look for "Postscripts" will take effect June 1. After May 25, "Postscripts" will air at 3 and 11 p.m. each weekday.

Disaster Loans Available To Small Business

JACKSONVILLE — The Small Business Administration has announced that Economic Injury Disaster Loans are available to eligible small businesses in 33 Florida counties, who have suffered economic injury as a result of the severe freeze which occurred on January 12, 13, 14 and 19, including Seminole, Orange and Volusia.

The purpose of economic injury disaster loans is to permit applicants to meet obligations which could have been met had the disaster not occurred. Applicants must have sustained substantial economic injury and furnish evidence as to the extent of such injury.

Proceeds of the loan shall be used solely to effect relief from economic injury attributable to the disaster. No loans shall be approved for expansion of facilities. Refinancing of short-term debt, on which delinquencies are attributable to the disaster, will be considered eligible. Funds also may be provided to bring and keep current for a reasonable period payments required on long-term debts. The complete refunding of long-term debt is not authorized.

Personal and/or business assets must be used by the applicant to the greatest extent feasible without causing undue hardship to overcome economic injury. In addition, private credit to the extent obtainable on reasonable rates and terms must be used prior to obtaining economic injury assistance.

The interest rate is 11-1/2 percent and the maximum loan available is $100,000. Applications will be accepted until October 21, 1981.

Small business firms located in Seminole, Orange and Volusia counties may obtain information and/or applications by contacting Small Business Administration Disaster Office, 736-B North Edgewood Ave., Jacksonville, FL 32205; telephone (904) 384-5758.

A Matter Of Course... Mini-Courses Offered

UCF — Two mini-courses — one in performance appraisal, the other in automotive fleet administration — will be offered June 11 and 12 in Orlando by the University of Central Florida.

Both courses will be held at the Marriott Hotel on Sand Lake Road.

The performance appraisal course, under the direction of Drs. Ruth Wienclaw and Walter Bogumil, UCF faculty members, will explore methods of developing an appraisal system and techniques to use in its application to motivate employees and improve productivity. The $245 fee includes luncheons and all necessary materials.

Robert G. Edwards, formerly program manager of fleet administration for the state of California, will focus on ways and means available to fleet managers to offset spiraling costs, and the areas of procurement, utilization, operations, economics and disposition. The course is designed primarily for those directing passenger vehicle fleets. The fee for the two days is $155, and includes luncheons and course materials.

For information on either of the two courses, contact the UCF College of Extended Studies at (305) 275-2123.

Real Estate Courses Set

UCF — A course for real estate instructors is among the June offerings by the UCF Real Estate Institute, which has also scheduled a real estate review course and two salesperson's courses during the month.

First on the month's schedule is Real Estate I, starting June 2 for two weeks. Classes will meet at the main UCF campus Tuesday and Thursday from 6 - 10 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. A second section of the same course will be conducted June 22 - July 6, with classes from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the UCF South Orlando campus in Central Park. Tuition is $90 including books.

June 5-7 are dates for the Real Estate Review course at the South Orlando campus. Classes will meet 6 - 10 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Tuition is $30.

The continuing education for instructors course will be conducted in the UCF engineering auditorium from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday June 20. Tuition is $50.

Additional information about any courses offered through the Real Estate Institute can be obtained by calling (305) 275-2128.

Gone Fishin'

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
Herald Staff Writer

After 50 years of caps and crowns and all the other designing devices of dentistry, Dr. Harry Woodruff, one of the last survivors of Seminole County's pioneer Woodruff family, is bringing the final chapter of his professional career to a close in June.

"Yeah. The only mouths I plan to be looking into from now on are the fish," Woodruff laughed. "Fifty years is long enough for anybody. I'm looking forward to June."

Unlike the aggressive image that a founding family name would suggest, Woodruff projects a soft-spokenness in manner and a gentleness of spirit that undoubtedly charms friends and patients alike.

Although Woodruff's great grandfather settled in Seminole County back in the 1840s, records show the modest descendant leads a relatively quiet life, perfectly content to practice his general dentistry in the second-floor East First Street office. And he's kept that same office for all of the 46 years he's been practicing in Sanford.

A product of the Seminole County public school system, Woodruff, who was born and raised at 520 Oak Ave., finished high school in 1925 and attended the University of North Carolina during 1926 and 1927. The next four years were spent at the Atlanta Southern Dental College—now known as Emory University.

Woodruff's father, F.L. Woodruff, meanwhile, was busy with his various positions in public office for city, county, and state governments. The prominent area businessman who owned several pieces of local property, was even elected mayor of Sanford in 1903.

"I was really too young to remember my father being mayor. But I can remember him being in the legislature and the city council," Woodruff said.

"Now, exactly where his great grandfather came from is just about anybody's guess, Woodruff says. But he thinks great grandfather Woodruff came from somewhere in Mississippi.

Records in the Atlanta archives show Elias W. Woodruff getting a permit to cross travel through Georgia in 1844. Obviously, Woodruff's great grandfather was traveling with several slaves, four or five, his descendant believes which would have made such a permit necessary.

The next record of great grandfather Woodruff shows him settling in at Fort Reed where he bought some land. But frankly, no one really knows what he did—farmed, ran a business or what.

But that's how the Woodruffs got here. And the family has made quite an impressive mark on laying the foundations of Sanford and Seminole County.

Harry, the dentist is one of the last two survivors in a 4-son family. An older adopted brother who practices general medicine, moved away from Seminole County many years ago.

The retiring dentist is married and has one daughter, three grandchildren and a lot of good fishing and golfing still ahead for him, he says.

Dr. Woodruff credits the late Dr. A.W. Epps Sr. as having the greatest influence on his pursuing dentistry. Dr. Epps opened his office in the bank building while I was still in school. I admired and respected him so much that I wanted to be just as successful as he was,' Woodruff said.

Avid fishermen who frequent the Lake Monroe area are apt to see Woodruff out trying his luck with the fish on Woodruff Creek.

"I use to go fishing more often than I do now, but it just got to be too much like work. So I stopped that and decided I'd stick to golf," Woodruff said.

"Now that I'll have some time on my hands, I believe I'll be getting a few days of fishing in," he said.

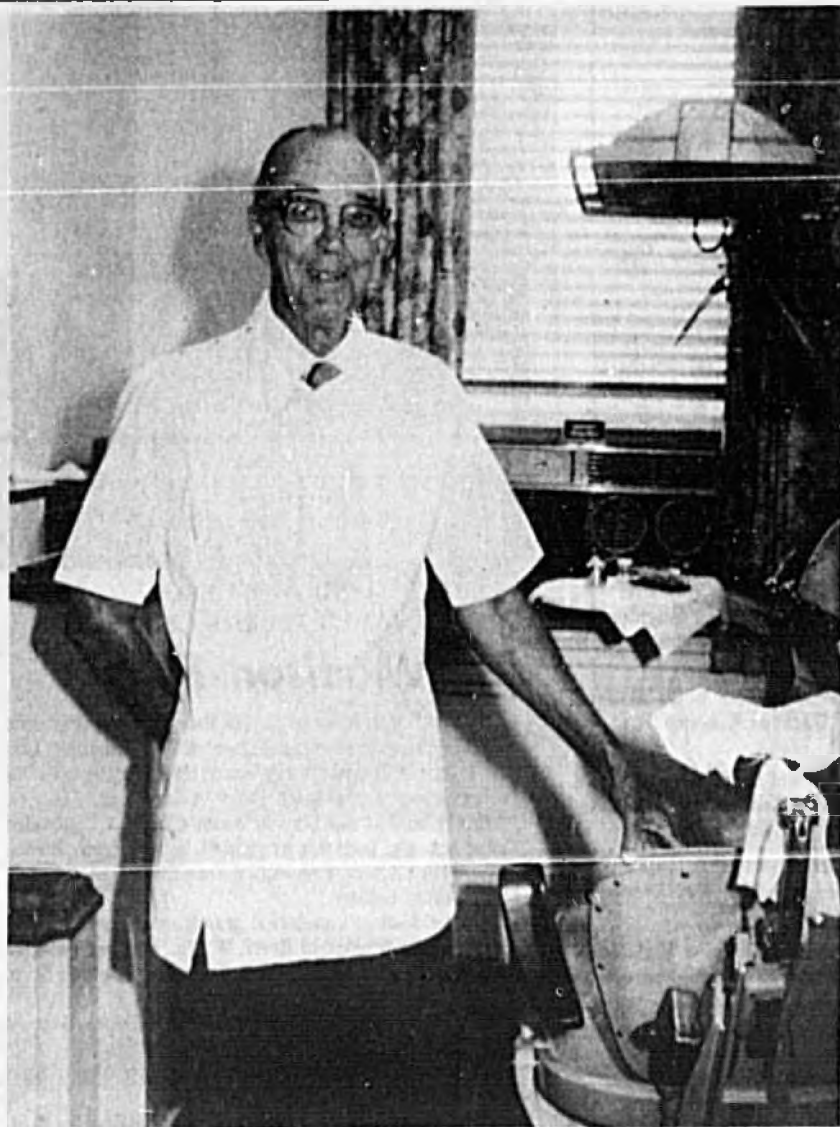

It was only in recent years that Woodruff and his wife, Genevieve, did very much vacationing and travel. They've been out West, to Europe and Mexico and other areas of the country. So all they really want, Woodruff said is just a chance to enjoy some peace and quiet.

During these last years of practice, Dr. Woodruff has worked an 1-11 a.m. daily schedule, every weekday except Thursday, at least six months out of the year.

"It's just enough to keep my hands busy," Woodruff said. While he's out on Woodruff Creek at the old Lake Monroe canal, Woodruff will probably have a chance to relive some of those childhood memories—especially of Dr. A.W. Epps, Sr., a dentist who Woodruff credits with having the greatest influence on his pursuing dentistry.

"Dr. Epps opened his office in the bank building while I was still in school. I admired and respected him so much that I wanted to be just as successful as he was," Woodruff said.

Anxiously waiting the retirement status in June, Woodruff will be 75 years old on Sept. 3.

Dr. Harry S. Woodruff, left, will close his Sanford dental office in June. The only mouths I plan to be looking into from now on are fish,' he laughed.

Math Festival: They're Tops

The Seminole County Council of Teachers of Mathematics presented the annual Middle School Math Festival on May 16 at Tuskawilla Middle School.

Each middle school (Jackson Heights, Lakeview, Milwee, Rock Lake, Sanford Middle, South Seminole, Teague, and Tuskawilla) selected the top three students from sixth grade, seventh grade, eighth grade and the top four from algebra classes.

Awards were given to the top three in each category and all participating students received a Certificate of Excellence in Mathematics, a Merit Award from Burger King which entitled them to a "Whopper", notebooks from Daxko, and pens.

Sims Office Supply donated calculators for the winning students and "Rubik's Cube" puzzles, donated by the council, were awarded to second and third place students.

Math teachers from all middle schools attended and refreshments were provided for all attending parents and students. Winning students were announced before the Seminole County School Board Wednesday night.

Winners were as follows: Sixth grade; Sami Hendren, Tuskawilla, first place; Beth Brooks, Sanford Middle, and Marla Lazar, Rock Lake, tie for first runner-up.

Seventh grade: Sukit Chalychait, Tuskawilla, first place; Kenneth DeMoore, Teague, first runner-up; and Jerry Hauck, Lakeview, second runner-up.

Eighth grade: James Sapp, Sanford Middle, first place; Grace Roegner, Rock Lake, first runner-up; and Scott Kincaid, South Seminole, second runner-up.

Algebra: Scott Clay, Milwee, first place; Caroline Rodriguez, Tuskawilla, and David Lambert, Milwee, second runner-up.

'Polly's Pointers' Columnist Dead

Polly Cramer, who for 20 years wrote the widely published "Polly's Pointers" column, died May 13 at age 77 in Palm Springs, Calif.

Mrs. Cramer's column on household tips was distributed to more than 700 newspapers in North America by Newspaper Enterprise Association. She retired from writing the feature last April and turned it over to Patricia "Polly" Fisher.

In an interview shortly before her death, Mrs. Cramer said that she had never planned to become a nationally syndicated columnist. She worked as an interior decorator before her marriage to the late Douglas S. Cramer.

It was only after her children had entered school that she offered to write a home-decorating column for the Cincinnati Post. The newspaper agreed to give her a try, and she wrote columns—first on decorating, then on homemaking—for most of the rest of her life.

Mrs. Cramer was the author of the book "Polly's Homemaking Pointers," which was published by Rawson-Wade this fall.

"I've just loved it," she recently commented upon her 20 years of writing a syndicated column. "They (the readers who wrote to her at the rate of several hundred a week) have gotten to be my friends."

Mrs. Cramer felt especially close to the small-town women who had been her most frequent correspondents.

"After all," she said, "I was raised in a small town. I've kept house for 50 years. And I'm a mother and a grandmother."

Mrs. Cramer was born in Louisville, Ky. In recent years, she had spent winters in her Palm Springs home and summers at her apartment in Cincinnati.

Her fiancé, who is a native of Georgia, is employed as a dental technician in Atlanta.

The wedding will be an event of Sept. 5.

Affair About As Secret As Rooster Ignoring Dawn

Dear
Abby

DEAR ABBY: I have been married (in name only) for five years. I was a lonely divorcee age 47 and John was a well-to-do widower (80) when we were married. The first night we were married I found out he was impotent. I know it's not his fault, but he should have told me. (He later said he was afraid he'd lose me.)

We had everything a happily married couple could want — a lovely home, friends, trips. I can't say I wasn't living a good life, although I missed the physical side of marriage some.

Now I have met a wonderful man. He is my age (52) and it was skyrockets and Roman candles the first time we were alone together. We're in love and want to get married, but hate to hurt John.

Would it be wrong to leave John and grab what little happiness is left in life?

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: If you want to justify leaving John, the fact that he failed to tell you about his impotence is sufficient. That's probably grounds for an annulment. Trying to keep an affair a secret will be like trying to smuggle down past a rooster. You'd better tell John before he tells you.

DEAR ABBY: Everybody starts out by saying they have a problem, and that's the way I am starting out, but don't throw this away yet because I get better as I go along. (Ha ha!)

I am a married man with three kids, 9, 12 and 13. I always wanted to be a writer but I can't seem to break into the field. I bet I sent 100 short stories to different magazines, but I never heard back from anybody. A person would like to be told what is wrong with their stuff, wouldn't you think?

You must know a lot of big shots in the publishing business, Abby. Can't you put in a good word for me? I don't expect you to say I am any good unless you see some of my stuff, so I am sending you 26 stories I've wrote. If you are too busy to write and tell me what you think of them, you can call me up. I'm sending you my phone number, and if the line is busy, keep calling because my kids are on the phone a lot. In the meantime, have you got any suggestions?

LOVES TO WRITE

DEAR LOVES: Please don't send me anything, because my lawyer advises against reading unpublished material. And in the meantime, don't help your kids with their English.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old, and my parents force me to go to church every Sunday.

I hate going to church because I see people there who I know are drunkards, gossip, liars and cheats, and they are right there every Sunday saying their prayers and singing the hymns. I don't have any respect for hypocrites and our church is full of them, my own parents included.

I am only 13, so maybe my opinion doesn't count, but I don't see any sense in my going to church with a bunch of hypocrites.

ONLY A BOY

DEAR ONLY: Christ became a man at 13, and you are not too young to become a man either. One goes to church to learn about the Bible and the word of the Lord, although God dwells in one's heart, and it's not necessary to "go" to church to communicate with him.

A church is not a museum for saints. It's a hospital for sinners, so "judge not, lest ye be judged," young man.

DEAR ABBY: Re that person who knew an editor who said he would fire any reporter who used the word "very" — they should substitute the word "danned" instead.

Well, if they used my church title that way, only a very few parishioners would agree with him. Sign me...

THE VERY REV. FATHER DANIEL D. RESSETAK, HARRISBURG, PA.

Spouse Abuse Subject Of SMH Seminar

New awareness of an old problem, "Spouse Abuse", is the objective of a seminar on the subject being sponsored by Seminole Memorial Hospital June 3 at the Cavalier Motor Inn in Sanford. Time is from 8 a.m. to 3:15 p.m.

For health professionals the seminar faculty will help registrants in understanding the problem of spouse abuse and guide those involved toward a resolution of their conflict.

Objectives include identifying possible causes of spouse abuse, utilizing crisis intervention techniques in assisting spouse abuse victims, listing and pin-pointing the roles of at least four community agencies involved with helping spouse abuse victims, and summarizing the legal actions now available to victims.

Faculty members are: Edna Abell, Altamonte Springs Police Department; Kathy Anderson, Coordinator, "We Care"; Nina Cassidy, Family Department Coordinator, Circuit Court; Karen Casalese, University of Central Florida;

Carol Cohen, Counselor, CITE, Valencia Community College; Linda Kuen, Director, Victim Services, Seminole County;

Chris Ray, State Attorney's Office; and Ellen Spivey, Special Services, Seminole County Mental Health Center.

Fee is $18 per person and $8 for students. The seminar is approved for five Continuing Education hours, Florida State Board of Nursing.

To register call Nursing Education, Seminole Memorial Hospital, 322-4511.

Erin Fitzpatrick's "Self Portrait"

Rollins Art Major's 'Self Portrait' Wins Purchase Award

Rollins College Senior Art Major Erin Fitzpatrick has been honored by the Board of Visitors of the Rollins College Cornell Fine Arts Center.

Miss Fitzpatrick, a graduating senior from Sanford, was selected for the annual Senior Purchase Award by the governing body of the Arts Center.

The award means that a work of art by Miss Fitzpatrick will be purchased by the Board and presented to the college for its permanent collection. The selected work, "Self Portrait," was produced by Miss Fitzpatrick as part of her academic program in the Rollins College Department of Art.

"Self Portrait" and 117 other works of art by the five senior art majors at Rollins are currently on display through May 24 at Cornell Fine Arts Center on the campus of the College in Winter Park.

The Arts Center is open to the public with no admission charge, Tuesday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Saturdays and Sundays, 1 to 5 p.m.

The Senior Art Show is an annual presentation at the Fine Arts Center.

Rocking Chair Squadron Beckons Norris

The invitation read that William A. Norris Sr., ATC USN, Ret. would be inducted into the Rocking Chair Squadron, Active Branch, on May 18 with a ceremony May 18 at the idyllic home of Bill Norris and his wife, Jean.

Navy chow will be served, the invitation said.

So Bill Norris has reached his 80th birthday, but we doubt seriously that the rocking chair will have him — now or ever.

Over 30 Navy friends and others were on hand for the celebration when eat, drink and be merry was the order of the evening.

A table on the enclosed porch — in a setting of plants — was literally loaded with downhome food and dishes popular with the Navy. Delish!

Jean's lifelong 'sister' friend, Sidney Ashley, arrived from Madison to help Jean as co-hostess. Also attending were the Norris' daughter Jo Arline, and her children, Tommy, Amber and Nikki, from DeLand.

Everybody seemed to have lots of fun if the party breaking up at 2:15 a.m. is an indication of a good time.

If you should see Dr. and Mrs. Luis Perez (she's Dr. Maria Perez), wish them a belated happy 25th anniversary.

The popular Sanford couple celebrate their silver wedding anniversary on May 20, Cuban Liberation Day.

We wish them many more happy anniversaries.

May 18-20 marked a big event at Bayhead Racquet Club — the first Ladies Only Member-Guest Tournament.

According to Peggy Tyre, 24 teams participated in the 3-day affair "which included some fabulous feasting as well as super tennis in an atmosphere of friendly competition."

Members brought picnic lunches to share Monday and were served wine and cheese while afternoon matches were played.

Peggy said, "Tuesday, members did their thing with a covered dish luncheon, coordinated to the last detail, and fantastic in taste, decor and hospitality."

Serving on the committee with Peggy were Betty Reagan, Sylvia McNulty, Maggee Harper and Nancy Morgan.

Winners of the final matches were: first round consolation, Jan Renaud and Karen Newman; second round consolation: Kathy Gray and Judy Halzworth. The Grand winners were Jeanette Alexander and Flo Arnold.

Katherine Heagerty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Heagerty (Peggy Wright) of Bradenton, was graduated cum laude on May 10 from Duke University Medical School.

Katherine is the granddaughter of Mrs. Margaret Z. Wright and the late Mr. James Wright. Margaret said Katherine will continue her studies at the University of North Carolina this summer and transfer to Florida State University this fall.

Katherine is a registered nurse reaching for a career as a medical doctor.

Angela Marie Buchanan, Treasurer of the United States, is the scheduled speaker at Sanford University, Birmingham, Ala., graduates one of its largest classes in history.

Sanford's Cumberland School of Law will hold graduation exercises Sunday, May 24. U.S. District Judge Harry E. Clairborne of Las Vegas, a 1941 Cumberland alumna, is the guest speaker.

Robert Hunter Pfleger of Sanford will graduate, Doctor of Jurisprudence, from Cumberland School of Law.

'Sweet Sixteen'

In celebrating the 16th anniversary of the School of Dance Arts in Sanford, the annual Spring Recital, A Night of Dance, has been appropriately entitled, "Sweet Sixteen."

About 300 dance artists will perform Saturday at 8 p.m., and Sunday, at 3:30 and 8 p.m. Tickets are available at the door.

The Broadway-type variety show will run the gamut from tiny pre-schoolers to the advanced dancers of Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole.

Miss Harden 'Outstanding'

Dana Harden, a former student at Lake Brantley High School, has made outstanding accomplishment at the University of Tennessee where she is a junior.

Miss Harden has been elected president of her sorority, Delta Gamma, and she is "little sister" to Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

She was selected as one of 11 girls from approximately 250 to be student orientation assistant. Among her other honors, Miss Harden is the recipient of the Foundation National Scholarship Award.

Her sister, Cindy Harden, is a freshman at U.T. this year and is a member of Delta Gamma and she is on the scholarship committee.

The students are the daughters of Mrs. Mildred M. Harden of Longwood, and the granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller, Sanford.

SCC Leisure Time Classes

The following classes begin during the weeks of June 1 and 8 under the Leisure Time Program at Seminole Community College.

WU SHU KUNG FU — (evening class) — One of the oldest known martial arts. The purpose of Kung Fu is not only self-defense, but also physical and mental discipline.

KARATE — (evening class) — Designed to teach the fundamentals of the Japanese style Chito-ryu: basic exercises, kicks, punches, and blocks. The class is open to beginners, as well as advanced students.

AEROBIC DANCE-EXERCISE — (morning-noon and evening classes) — A physical fitness course involving vigorous exercise to music. Different routines are taught with the emphasis on dancing for movement and energy, to release tension, to become more aware of proper diet, to lose inches, and to develop proper posture and breathing habits.

Search Is On For Outstanding Dad

June 21 is Father's Day. The Herald is searching for the annual "Outstanding Dad," but we need the help of readers.

Tell us in your own words why you think a certain father is outstanding. First, write your name, full address and telephone number at the top of a page. Then add the name of your candidate, giving his full name, address and telephone number. About a page and one-half of information on standard size paper is sufficient.

Submit entries to OURSELVES Editor Doris Dietrich, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771, no later than noon on June 11.

GO WHERE THE ENERGY IS

No one is sure whether Hiram Riegman built the dam — It may have been there before his time. The lake has given his own legacy of refreshing beauty to the country-side.

But Hiram built his mill by the waterfall — where the energy was. There he and his sons spent most of a century grinding corn for their neighbors.

His descendants remember Hiram as "a God-fearing man." Not surprising, of course... you'd expect a man who goes where the energy is to have a deep respect for the Source of all energy.

Think about building your life... your family's future... close to the spiritual resources of your church or synagogue. Go where the Energy is!

U.S. Infant Formula Vote Protested

HOUSTON (UPI) — The nation's two largest Presbyterian groups elected leaders at their annual meetings Wednesday and voiced opposition to the United States' dissenting vote on an international code for infant formula marketing.

The Presbyterian Church in the U.S., with 843,000 members in 18 southern states, elected Dorothy Barnard as its second woman moderator. She is a ruling elder from St. Louis, who recently moved to Naples, Fla.

The United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., with 2.4 million members concentrated in northern states, elected the Rev. Robert M. Davidson of New York as moderator.

The UPCUSA's 600-plus delegates also voted to telegraph support for an international infant formula marketing code to President Reagan. The action came just before the United States cast a dissenting vote at Wednesday's World Health Assembly meeting in New York.

The PCUS began its meeting too late for floor action on the code, which passed despite U.S. opposition. The PCUS issued a statement pointing out it was the first church body in this country to boycott products of the Nestle Co., a major supplier of infant formula to developing nations.

That move came in 1978, and United Presbyterians followed suit in 1979. Boycott supporters say infant formula is generally inferior to mothers' milk and is often overly diluted or mixed with impure water in developing nations.

Davidson was elected to succeed the Rev. Charles A. Hammond of West Lafayette, Ind., on the second ballot with 347 votes. He outpolled the Rev. Margaret Towner of Waukesha County, Wis., with 236 votes and the Rev. Keith R. Shinaman of Marcellus, N.Y., with 26 votes.

Barnard drew 205 first ballot votes in the concurrent meeting of her denomination to succeed the Rev. David Stitt, pastor of the Bellaire, Texas, Presbyterian Church. She defeated the Rev. A.A. "Bill" Markley III of Fayetteville, N.C., who garnered 168 votes.

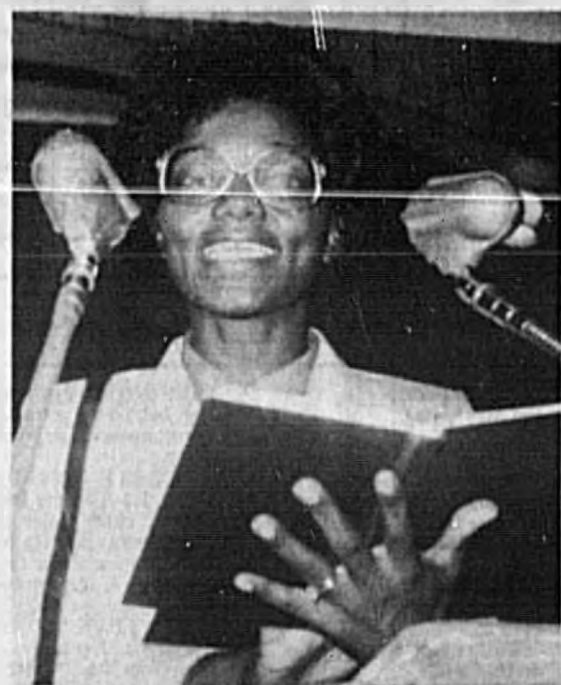

The meetings, which last through May 28, will consider a variety of internal matters and take positions on social issues.

The Rev. Mac Hart of Dallas, general presbyter of Grace Union Presbytery, said Wednesday both groups will be asked to take a stand on the confidentiality of counseling sessions between clergy and their followers.

The issue was sparked by a Presbyterian minister's being cited for contempt of court at a May 14 bail hearing for a parishioner in McKinney, Texas. The Rev. Ronald P. Salfen of The Colony, a Dallas suburb, refused to answer a judge's questions about what a church secretary charged with a crime told him during counseling sessions.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals will hear Salfen's arguments that the conversation is confidential in a May 26 hearing.

WOMEN'S DAY SPEAKER

Kathleen Gordon of St. Mark African Methodist Episcopal Church, Orlando, will be guest speaker at the annual Women's Day this Sunday at 11 a.m. at the New Bethel AME Church, Sanford. At 3:30 p.m. the Women of Bethel will sponsor a musical program.

United Methodists Convene In Lakeland

On Monday at 1 p.m. the 139th Florida Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church will convene in Branscomb Auditorium Florida Southern College, Lakeland. Bishop Earl G. Hunt Jr. will be presiding over his first Annual Conference as the Bishop of the Florida Area. The Conference closes on Friday noon, with a time of worship and the reading of the pastoral appointments by Bishop Hunt.

A special worship service at 7:30 p.m. will be led by Bishop Hunt and will feature special music by combined choirs from the Lakeland area, and a sacred dance choir from the Broadway United Methodist Church, Orlando.

The Tuesday session will begin at 8:45 a.m. with a Memorial Communion Service, recognizing those members of the Conference who have died since the Annual Conference in May of 1980, and celebrating the communion of all the saints.

A high point of any Annual Conference is the Ordination Service for Elders and Deacons. This year there will be 26 persons who have been recommended for Full Connection (Elders Orders); 24 for Probationary Membership (Deacons Orders); and three for Associate Membership.

A major portion of the time on Wednesday has been set aside for a presentation by the Florida Conference Council on Ministries; both of program proposals for 1982, and information on current programs in progress for 1981. The Council is the program arm for the United Methodists, and as such is responsible for all such events within the Florida Area.

The laity organizations of the United Methodist Church and the Florida Annual Conference will report on Thursday morning, and the Consecration of 10 persons into the Diaconal Ministry will be a highlight of the evening session. According to the 1980 Discipline, the diaconal ministry is recognized by the United Methodist Church as a called-out and set-apart ministry. Those consecrated as diaconal ministers retain their lay status within the church, while being called to full-time Christian service.

The speakers for the 1981 Annual Conference, in addition to Bishop Hunt, will be: the Rev. Dr. Oswald P. Bronson, president of Bethune-Cookman College, Daytona Beach; Bishop Robert E. Goodrich, Jr., retired of Houston, Texas; Bishop James W. Henley, of Lakeland, former Bishop of the Florida Area; and the Rev. George G. Hunter III, of Nashville, Tenn.

Dr. Bronson, a member of the Florida Conference and former Sanford resident, will speak on Thursday evening during the worship hour.

YOUTH WORKER

Michael D. Murray began his duties as Seminole Heights Baptist Church summer youth worker on May 14. A religion major, he just completed his sophomore year at Stetson University. Licensed to preach in 1979, he plans a career in the ministry. He is active in the Baptist Campus Ministry and served on Youth Revival Teams last summer. The son of the Rev. and Mrs. A. Darrel Murray, his father is pastor of Lake Shore Baptist Church of Jacksonville.

Checking Up On The Confessional

I threatened several folks back to check up on the confessionals in the Catholic Church and to rate them as I have been rating church services (from one to 12 stars) for the past three years.

My threat raised a loud outcry from Catholics who said that to invade the sacramental precincts in such a manner would be fraudulent and sacrilegious.

A columnist for a diocesan paper, under the headline, "Lay off the confessional, George," wrote that the sacrament of penance (or reconciliation, as it is now called) is "too sacred, too private, too important for any kind of public 'rating.'" I backed off—not, however, because I scare easily but because, as a non-Catholic, I didn't think I could do the job which a number of Catholics have told me needs to be done.

Are they right?

The May issue of "U.S. Catholic" magazine has a cover story on "10 reasons why Catholics have stopped going to confession."

Here are some quotes from that story:

"Catholics are losing confidence in their parish priests' ability to understand and relate to the real-life trials in the daily lives of their parishioners."

"Can you honestly see yourself," asks a 33-year-old career woman, "going with a serious moral problem to either the newly ordained seminarian in his 20s or the crusty old veteran who hasn't entertained a new idea in 40 years?"

"Linda is a 29-year-old homemaker and mother who has been a Catholic only since she was 21."

"The first time I went to confession," she says, "I came away feeling foolish. The priest dealt with my concerns in a simplistic, superficial way. My second experience was no better. I haven't been back for a third try."

"Catholics who continue to go to confession are often embarrassed or hurt by priests who imply that some of the sins they confess are nothing more than trivialities."

"I really resent priests who make me feel like my sins are a waste of time," comments a nurse-homemaker."

"At least part of the blame for the dropoff in confessions falls on priests, according to Father Pierre Hissey, 40, who is with the Missionary Servants of the Most Holy Trinity."

"A good reason why many Catholics are turned off to confession," says Fr. Hissey, "is the poor quality of many priests. For a long time priests have shown a sometimes obvious disinterest in the sacrament."

Saints And Sinners

GEORGE PLAGENZ

If I were to rate the confessionals, I would not be the first. A weekly newspaper in Boston called "Real Paper" sent a reporter anonymously to eight Catholic churches last fall to "confess" that he had used drugs, had frequent sex, etc.

He also confessed—and this was the real reason for the paper's stunt—that he had voted for one of the pro-abortion candidates who came under Cardinal Madeiros' fire before the November election.

Only one of the eight priests who listened to the reporter's confession spoke of the pro-abortion vote with disapproval. Some didn't mention it at all when it came to giving penance and absolution.

The scheme was hatched by the editor of "Real Paper." He was enraged that Madeiros could presume to tell people how to vote after Rep. Robert Drinan of Massachusetts was forced by the pope to resign his seat in Congress because it was deemed inappropriate for a priest to be involved in politics.

"The Pilot," the archdiocesan paper in Boston, called the invasion of the confessional "a new nadir in blasphemy."

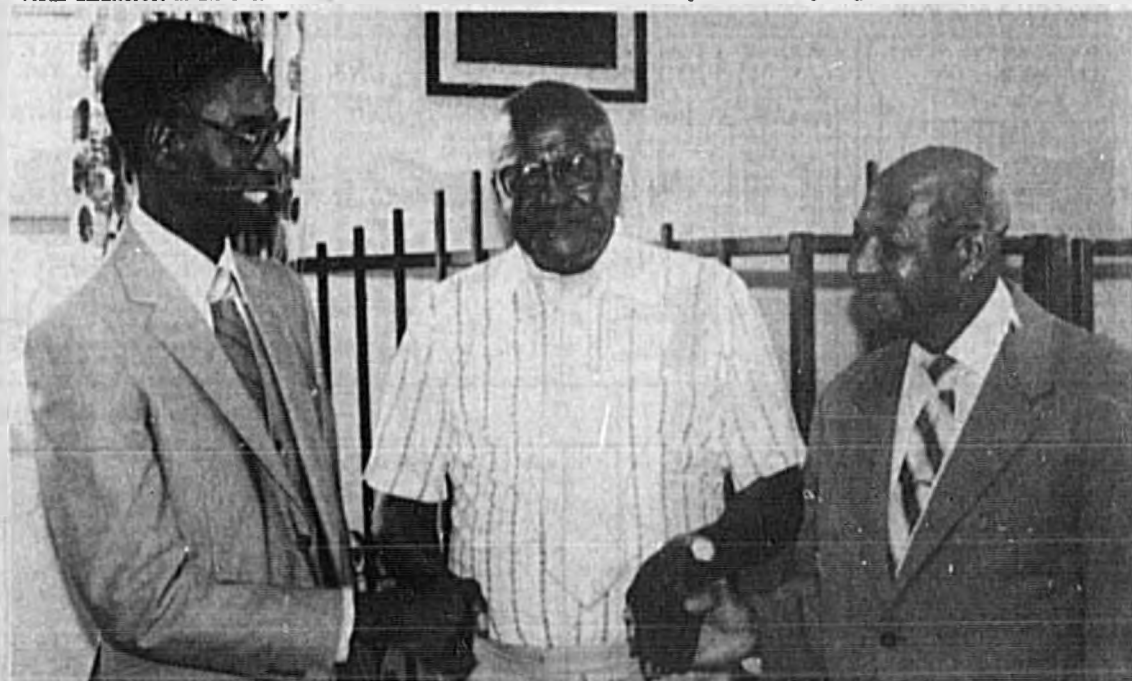

Maybe so. But, as the article in "U.S. Catholic" magazine shows, many Catholics are dissatisfied with the confessional and would probably welcome a little scrutiny of the sacrament. Some complain that confession has become routinized, a mechanical exercise in which penitents are given perfunctory penances to perform.

Novelist Edith Wharton once said, "Must wrong-doing works less mischief than its useless confession."

There is, however, another view of confession. In a day of relativism, it may keep us mindful that some things are right and some are wrong. There can be no reformation of life until we recognize that.

As the unfaithful (and uneasy) wife in "Same Time Next Year" said, "In the Catholic Church at least you know where you stand."

That may not be everything but it is something.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

When you have a part score of 60 or more the opening notrump is a bid of game. Combine that with the normal desire of nearly all bridge players to bid the first notrump and we find players who use a notrump range of 14 to 20.

We like to bid notrump as much as anyone, but we deplore this misuse. Instead, we recommend that if your normal range is 15-17 to extend it to 15-18 and if your normal range is 18-19 you extend it to 16-19. We also recommend that you always prefer a five-card suit to notrump. In other words, don't open notrump with 5-3-3-3 if you have a big part score.

The direct raise to two notrump is clearly a slam try, but it should be a very mild one and only ask for a further bid by opener if he has a maximum. Assuming the normal one notrump is 16-18, responder needs at least 14 good points to raise to two.

Slaysman should be used with these high part scores, but not without enough strength to be willing to play in two notrump.

Let's look at some sample hands opposite one notrump:

1: S-K Q 6 4 H-K J 8 6 D-x x x C-J x. Respond two clubs and pass a major suit reponse, but bid two notrump over two diamonds. This is not a slam try.

2: 5-K Q 6 4 H-K J 8 6 D-A 7 5 3 C-J 2. Respond two clubs. Raise either major to three as a mild slam try or rebid three notrump over two diamonds if you feel adventurous.

3: 5-K Q 6 H-K J 9 D-A 7 5 3 C-J x x. Just pass one notrump. Your 4-3-3-3 distribution makes this hand unattractive. Change the jack of clubs to the queen and you should bid two notrump, while make that jack into the king and you can afford a jump to three.

4: 5-K Q 6 H-3 D-A Q 10 9 5 3 C-K 7 4. Respond three diamonds. This is a forcing bid. If partner simply rebids three notrump, you should pass. If he bids four diamonds you can go to five or pass depending on what your partner's bidding style is. If partner bids a new suit, he is accepting your slam try and you should bid the slam.

With a part score of 30 or 40, the raise to two notrump may be given with as little as six points. You are trying for game. Now the raise in three is a mild slam try and shows the same strength that a raise to two shows when you have 60 on score.

1: S-K Q 6 4 H-K J 8 6 D-x x x C-J x. Respond two clubs and pass a major suit reponse, but bid two notrump over two diamonds. This is not a slam try.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

May 24, 1981

A well-thought-out game plan is essential for you in the year ahead. Without it you could be so disorganized you'd dilute your chances for success.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may get an opportunity today to be a big help in teaching another how to look for that which is good in people, instead of that which is bad. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is a good chance someone will come upon your scene today and indirectly show you how to bypass an obstacle which has had you blocked for a long time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others know that your word is gospel. Today, you may find out just how much they respect and appreciate this quality in you. Your loyalty will be rewarded.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although the pay may be small in dollars and cents, the acknowledgement and praise you receive today for a job well done will be priceless.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You're adept at handling personal relationships today. You're also capable of advising others how to handle their complicated social affairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good day to invite persons to your place to be entertained who have feted you previously. Make it a merry group.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An opportunity may present itself today to gain the attention of someone whose cooperation you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Work on things today which can contribute to your security and feelings of well-being. Contact individuals you feel can be helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) The reason others will put tremendous stock in what you say today is because they can see from the example you set that your counsel is both wise and workable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The reason others will put tremendous stock in what you say today is because they can see from the example you set that your counsel is both wise and workable.

Two Arrested By FBI In Extortion Scheme

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The FBI announced Friday the arrests of two men in the infamous "B.A. Fox" extortion case involving the mailing of letters containing alleged disease-infested insects and mail bombs to various U.S. corporations and businesses.

FBI Mississippi special agent-in-charge John Kelly said Leon Cordell Horton, 33, and Arlis Odell Reed, 50, were arrested Thursday on federal extortion charges.

Kelly said Horton was arrested in Houston, Texas, and Reed was arrested in Irving, Texas. Both have been arraigned before a U.S. Magistrate in those cities, and authorities have asked the men be extradited to Mississippi.

If convicted, Horton and Reed each could be sentenced to a maximum of 20 years in jail, or fined $10,000, or both.

The FBI said the investigation into the extortion-bombing case began in October 1975 when numerous corporations around the United States received letters from a "B.A. Fox." The letters were postmarked from Jackson.

A federal grand jury returned a sealed indictment Wednesday against the two men, charging them with conspiracy to extort the businesses and conspiracy to disrupt commerce.

Specifically, Horton and Reed were charged with conspiring to mail these extortion letters under the name "B.A. Fox" during the period from August 1975 to February 1977 to numerous corporations.

Kelly said the extortion scheme included the mailing of letters containing ticks (the insect) to leading corporations' officials with a note saying the ticks had been infected with various diseases.

He said the men also were accused of mailing a number of bombs to various businesses around the country.

Kelly said one of the mail bombs exploded in the offices of Merrill Lynch and Co. of New York in 1976, causing injuries to employees in the mail room.

Horton and Reed are further charged with conspiring to poison food and medicinal products on the shelves of retail stores to be purchased by customers.

Kelly said between December 1976 and January 1977 food and medicinal products — found to contain rat poison — were purchased in many stores around the country.

Former Scottish Warrior Commands Marion Pipe Band

PEKIN, Ill. (UPI) — Listen closely to the high-pitched shriek of Donald Legge's bagpipes and you may hear the musical remnants of his unusual life story.

It begins with a Scottish warrior who fought for his country and cheered the injured with his bagpipe music and Highland dancing.

It tells of a killed piper who traveled the world to perform for millions — including the royal family of Great Britain.

And it tells of a Scotsman who fell in love with an American lassie and followed her to Pekin, where his closest link to his heritage is a small, struggling pipe band in the tiny town of Morton.

Legge, a soft-spoken man of few words, prefers to let his pipes tell it all.

"The pipes can convey death, battle, a number of emotions. You can really make them talk," Legge said, referring to an old Scottish belief that bagpipes can speak by themselves.

Legge, the 30-year-old pipe major of the Morton Highlanders, was born in Fife, Scotland, and began piping at the age of 8. But he did not seriously study the wind instrument until he became a junior soldier and piper with the famed Black Watch at the age of 15.

During his 18 years with the First Battalion of the Black Watch — known worldwide as the oldest Scottish regiment — Legge, a lance corporal, served in six countries and toured as a Highland dancer and piper in four more.

"We were soldiers first and pipers second. That was our duty," Legge said with a thick Scottish accent. "Sometimes we'd go out for our normal patrols in the mornings and then we'd visit hospitals and perform in the afternoons."

The only time he feared for his life, he said, was in Northern Ireland during the turmoil of the early 1970s.

"We were on the streets trying to keep peace," he said. "Once there was a gun battle in the middle of Belfast. Two policemen were shot and anyone who had a gun joined in. There was a lot of sniping and it was our job to clear them out."

As fate would have it, a Black Watch tour of the United States led to romance for the short, small-boned, mustachioed Scotsman. While performing in Illinois, Legge met Pekin native Karen Simms and married her six months later in a traditional Scottish wedding in Inverness.

The couple spent a few years in Northern Ireland and England, where Legge was stationed, before moving to Pekin in 1978.

Although Legge now calls this small central Illinois city his home, he carries on his homeland's traditions by leading the Morton Highlanders. The 10-member band was struggling to stay alive when Legge first joined it about two years ago.

Now about 25 pipers and drummers — some from nearly 100 miles away — gather every Thursday night at the American Legion Hall in Morton for three hours of practice. Legge's wife, Karen, is a tenor drummer.

Altamonte Springs Asks Voluntary Water Use Cutback

Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Jeff Eitchberger presented city commissioners with 10 ways of voluntary water conservation to preserve the city's water supply.

Ordered by city commissioners last week to devise measures for eliminating waste, Eitchberger called a special work session for the commission to consider taking action on the package.

Although officials declined to pass any resolution on the package they did agree to ask that Altamonte Springs residents limit their lawn sprinkling to early morning hours.

Eitchberger said the city's goal would be to reduce water consumption by 20 percent. Utilities officials said the demand for water was up by 50 percent over this time last year.

After his week-long study of ways Altamonte residents could cut down on water usage, Eitchberger said: every faucet should be checked for leaks because a slow drip can waste 15 to 20 gallons a day; cutting shower time and the level of bath water would be helpful; don't do dishes or laundry in machines unless there is a full load.

Additionally, Eitchberger suggested toilet flushing not be used to dispose of scraps since each flush takes five to seven gallons of water; lawn and gardens be watered during late evening or early morning hours to reduce evaporation losses; and cars be washed from a bucket, using the hose only to rinse it off afterwards.

The water conservation package also suggested three mandatory provisions which could be considered for future implementation by the commission.

Those included banning all vehicle washing except at commercial facilities that recycle wash water; imposing odd-even days and specified hours of irrigation for different sections of the city; and requiring food service establishments to serve water only when requested. — SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
