Sanford Joins Request For SR 436 Work At Night

The city of Sanford has joined with Altamonte Springs in asking the state Department of Transportation to concentrate the reconstruction of the section of State Road 436 from Boston Avenue to Douglas-Wymore road during night hours.

The state project calls for the widening of Altamonte Springs' main highway from four to six lanes over the stretch designated.

Construction is to begin around Labor

Sanford May Close Trailways Bus Depot

The Trailways bus station at 1002 S. French Ave., at the southwest corner of 10th Street may be closed by the city of Sanford.

The City Commission voted unanimously earlier this week to give John Root, depot owner 30 days to pave a parking lot at the station or be faced with the city removing his occupational

City Commissioner David Farr said he discussed the issue with Root and warned him that the city might "lift his license" if he didn't comply with city requirements concerning the paving.

For Plant Sewage

2 Alternative Discharge Sites Offered

By MICHEAL BEHA Herald Staff Writer

Plans to use Elder Road Canal as a discharge site for an expanded lake Monroe Utility sewage plant have been diverted by two proposals submitted by County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff.

The state Department of Environmental Regulation already has established waste load allocations and other restrictions for an expansion to 75,000 gallons from 50,000 gallons per day of the plant's treatment capacity.

But residents along Elder Canal told DER representatives at a meeting Tuesday night at the Seminole County Courthouse that increased flow from the sewage plant would create flooding in their yards. To alleviate that situation and to eliminate a possible source of pollutants on Elder Canal, Kirchhoff recommended that DER and the utility examine the Smith Canal and an unnamed Department of Transportation easement near Interstate 4 as possible recipients of the discharge from the plant. Of the plans to use the Elder Canal for the discharge, Kirchhoff said, "What we've got is a county drainage ditch that's taking runoff that also carries effluent."

"We as a county would rather see the effluent going into Smith Canal than the Elder Canal," he said. "It would help the county if all of this went into the Smith Canal. If it can't we'd prefer that it not go into the Elder ditch."

He said the DOT's easement adjacent to the Interstate 4 Industrial Park would make an ideal discharge site because no residences would be affected.

Greg Drummond, representing Dr. J. W. Hickman, owner of the industrial park and the sewage plant, said the company would not object to discharging into the Smith Canal. And he supports discharging into the DOT easement but warned that state and federal officials might not give approval for the plan.

Randy Armstrong, water analyst from the DER's Tallahassee office, said neither Elder nor Smith canal meets state standards. With improvements to the sewage treatment plant, the water quality in Elder Canal will meet state standards.

Armstrong said the DER is not considering granting approval to the facility as it is now. Lake Monroe Utilities must develop "sophisticated, well-operated treatment to meet standards. But I don't doubt you'll find violations in this ditch and others, particularly after a heavy

It is periods of heavy rain that concern Elder Road residents. They showed the DER representatives pictures taken after heavy rains when water is the canal flowed into their yards.

During heavy rains the "living filter" system used at the plant also falls to function as it is designed. Excess water sends the effluent into the ditch before it is completely treated, Armstrong said. Kirchhoff said if either Smith Canal or the DOT easement is used, the excess water will not affect residents. And Paul Porter, a consulting engineer working for Hickman, agreed that Smith Canal seems to be a logical discharge site.

Armstrong said Smith Canal already is polluted.

By law, DER has until March 15 to grant or deny a permit for the plant. But Drummond said Hickman will waive the deadline if DER will consider the alternative discharge altes.

Board Considers Financing For New Industrial Building

Financing for a new building at the Port of Sanford was on the agenda for today's Seminole County Port Authority meeting.

Dennis Dolgner, director of the port authority, said Robert Chilton of Chilton Construction Co., the Cocoa firm that will construct the building, will be at the 4 p.m. Wednesday meeting to tell board members what financing arrangements have been made for the facility.

Chilton has built three other facilities at the port complex west of Sanford. In two of those buildings, the company splits the profits with the port authority. Dolgner said the terms of the financing for this building will be similar to the other two agreements.

The port facility's buildings are now filled and the new building is needed to meet expected industrial growth in the area, Dolgner

Under terms of the port authority's contract with Chilton, the construction firm will build this building and one more at the port. Chilton and the port authority signed an agreement following construction of the first building at the port for the company to build four more. Construction of the building is expected to be completed within four months.

Automated Telephone Calls Illegal If Unsolicited

Unsolicited telephone calls placed by automated systems with a recorded sales message, which seem to be an increasingly popular marketing tool, is not only an annoyance but it is also against the law.

According to state Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, Florida already bans the solicitation method.

A recent article in the Evening Herald which told of local telephone subscribers who had received calls from a computer that asked questions and responded to answers or lack thereof Selph quotes the Florida law regarding automated telephone

"No person shall use a telephone or knowingly allow a telephone to be used for the purpose of offering any goods or services for sale or conveying information regarding any goods or services when such use involves an automated system his marketing strategy," said Selph, since most merchants who use outside telephone solicitation are unaware of the prohibition.

"Secondly, contact your telephone company and inform them of this prohibited marketing practice.

"Automated dialing is illegal under the law," agreed Jim Schnell, community relations manager for United Tel of Florida, "and there have been a few such cases we're aware of, but when the individuals were advised what they were doing was against the law, they stopped immediately.

"We have had no complaints recently," Schnell added.

Busing Has It Outlived Its Usefulness?

United Press International

A decade after cross-town busing integrated most Southern schools, some educators believe the practice has "outlived its usefulness" and caused problems that must be corrected by restoring "neighborhood schools."

Civil rights leaders, meanwhile, are greeting attemps to end busing with a weary de ja vu, saying neighborhood schools are segregated schools.

School boards in Nashville, Tenn., and Norfolk, Va., rekindled the busing controversy by proposing to reduce or eliminate it on grounds it has lowered academic achievement. caused a "white flight" and is too costly.

The U.S. Supreme Court shot down Nashville's effort, but the Norfolk school board voted this month to eliminate busing in favor of "neighbood schools."

The Norfolk plan, developed by Board Chairman Thomas willinson, would establish 25 ncighturhood schools — 10 that would be 95 percent black, and six that would be 70 percent

"Now we go to court," Johnson said. Alabama school superintendent Wayne Teague agrees with Norfolk's assessment of busing. "The cross-town busing idea really created a monster that was self destructive," Teague said. "It's easy to look back on history and see the mintakes we made. If the court had said we have a freedom of choice and strictly enforced it, we would have had a lot more integration than we have today," Teague said. Nashville's effort to reduce busing with a neighborhood schools plan was thwarted in January when the nation's highest court refused to review the 1971 federal court order mandating cross-town busing. School officials in Nashville and Norfolk insist there are no racial overtones in their efforts to eliminate busing. Kent Weeks, chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Education in Nashville, says the city's neighborhood schools plan was intended to upgrade education by shifting the money needed to buy and operate buses to new buildings and programs. Busing, according to Weeks, "is a tool."

"The issue comes over the extent of busing and whether there are some alternatives," he said. "The goal of this (proposed system) is quality, integrated education. Transporting can be useful, but so can programs."

Johnson says busing has actually resegregated Norfolk's schools by prompting white families to move out of the city. "The Norfolk school system over the last 10 years appears to be resegregating in and of itself," Johnson said. "By that I mean the school system is gradually losing its middle class. If you sit there and do nothing, you're going to end up with a racially identifiable school system (with busing)."

NAACP general counsel Thomas Adkins disagrees and called the Norfolk plan "fraudulent."

"It is an attempt to deceive the public into thinking they're going to get something that they will not," Adkins said. "It is not a plan that will save money. It is not a plan that will move Norfolk forward. It will move the school system backward. It will resegregate the schools. It will divide the community."

Other Southern school administrators admit busing creates problems, but say it is necessary to achieve desegregation. The U.S. Supreme Court sanctioned cross-town busing as a practical way to achieve school desegregation in 1971 in a case against North Carolina's Charlotte-Mecklenburg school system.

Twelve years later, Charlotte-Mecklenburg Superintendent Jay Robinson says there are no plans to abandon busing.

"If we abandoned our busing and had no busing for racial integration purposes, we would have a tremendous resegregation in our school.," Robinson said. "Our community has worked too hard, too long in making this plan work to turn around and discard it now.

"I think it will take several more years to see it through to the point that busing will not be necessary in order to eliminate the problems that were caused by having a segregated school system," Robinson said.

North Carolina Superintendent A. Craig Phillips says busing is a necessity caused by continually shifting housing patterns. "I don't think we ought to change the system, and I don't think we should change it," Phillips said. Norfolk and Nashville administrators claim that students who are bused to achieve racial integration suffer academically.

Thomas Tocco, superintendent of the mostly all-white Cobb County, Ga., system, disagrees. He says there is no "direct link" between a decline in academics and busing.

"There are a number of black school systems that have demonstrated they can perform on or above the national increasing attack by those who want to go back to Once regarded as the best way to integrate southern schools, busing is now coming under the "neighborhood school" concept.

level," Tocco says. "I don't buy the perception that more blacks or busing lowers standards."

Robinson also disputes the "lower scores" argument, saying students in Charlotte-Mecklenburg now perform consistently above national averages on standardized tests. "We never did that before," he said. "There is clear, unquestionable, documented evidence that children in Charlotte-Mecklenburg are achieving at the highest level in the history of the system. It would be very difficult to make a case that academic achievement has suffered in our community because of busing." Southern school administrators also disagree on the extent of "white flight." Norfolk commissioned a $60,000 study by sociologist David Armor, a vocal busing opponent, and he subsequently reported that white parents with pre-school children will either moun ar send their children to private schools to avoid busing.

"There's been no doubt that some whites have left the school system because of integration." Robinson said. "I think the problem has been minimal in Charlotte. There are not a high percentage of students attending private or parochial

Cal Admson, Georgia's assistant state superintendent, says there has been some white flight, "but I think they are coming back."

"There are several reasons for white flight," Admson said, "but one of the reasons students are coming back is the economy and the improvement in school systems. There were some 4,000 fewer students in private schools this year than

In Dade County, Fla., school spokesman David Arnett said administrators "diffused" opposition to busing by providing "people with an outlet and somebody to look into their case."

"Busing has not been a hot issue, though there are still areas of discontent that we are addressing," he said, but added busing has not outlived its usefulness and the school board is "committed" to maintaining the desegregation of Miami-area schools.

Superintendent Ronald McWhirt of the Charleston County system in South Carolina says he believes systems should spend more money on programs and teachers, not on busing.

"I don't think busing has really contributed that much to improving education," McWhirt said. "A lot of places across the country have just resegregated. You constantly have that problem with people becoming more mobile.

"Busing is not necessary to achieve better education for whites or blacks. In Charleston County our need is to spend more time on improving the quality of our teachers and their resources."

McWhirt agreed with Johnson that taking children away from a neighborhood school reduces parental support for With busing, McWhirt said, "there is a drop in the general confidence in the school system with the public not being able to identify with the school closest to them. If you don't have strong neighborhood community support, you are not going to have a good school, whether it is predominantly white or School officials, meanwhile, will undoubtedly keep close tabs on the Norfolk and Nashville plans as they go through the "If the Norfolk plan is upheld by the courts, I think there will be many efforts to establish neighborhood schools," Teague says. "I think parents of all races don't want to see their little children sent out of their neighborhoods." Says Johnson of the Norfolk plan:

"Busing started out as a remedy, and the Supreme Court, in its own word, said that was an interim remedy. Norfolk has been declared by the court as a thoroughly, legally desegregated school system, and that's what sets Norfolk apart. We've cured and remedied the constitutional violations in our system, and now we're struggling to maintain a stably desegregated school system, not to resegregate our schools."

To which the NAACP's Adkins replies: "Nothing is unique in Norfolk. They simply want to resegregate a school system. That's not new anywhere in the

Facing Death, Deputy Leaps Into Action

By VICTOR ASSERSOHN Herald Staff Writer

When a man pointed a gun at Seminole County deputy sheriff Wayne Murphy and said he was going to blast him, Murphy sprang on the gunman and disarmed him.

According to Murphy's report, this is what happened: Murphy had been called to 240F Lake Howell Apartments in Casselberry after someone had reported hearing gunfire at the apartment complex about 11 p.m. Tuesday.

Murphy knocked on the door of the apartment and was told to come in. Instead, he asked the occupant to come outside. But the man said no and added that if Murphy wanted him, he was going to have to come in and get him.

Murphy drew his service revolver, hid behind a wall and pushed open the door. Sitting on a couch inside was 38-year-old David Taylor

Ledford who told Murphy, who could see bullet holes in the glass door, that someone had been shooting at the apartment. Murphy, however, noticed two shells lying on the floor and asked Ledford if he had a gun and Ledford said no.

By this time, Murphy had holstered his revolver and asked Ledford a second time if he had a handgun, and he again said

Suddenly, Ledford pulled a gun from a zippered pouch which had been hidden behind his back and pointed it at Murphy.

Murphy was only three feet away from Ledford and jumped toward him and wrestled the gun away.

"Murphy had his gun in his holster and couldn't reach it in time and he knew what the outcome would be if he didn't disarm the man, which he did," according to spokesman for the sheriff's office.

Ledford was arrested and charged with aggravated assault, improper exhibition of a firearm and discharging a firearm in a public place. He was released from the Seminole County jail on $5,000 bond.

Langley All For Saving River, 'But Don't Use Property Taxes'

Legislation introduced by Sen. Richard Langley, R-Clermont, could gut St. Johns River Water Management District plans to acquire over the next 10 years the wetlands property necessary to increase the river's flow during the dry season and solve its pollution

Langley's proposed legislation forbids the use of property tax money for a water management group to acquire property.

Langley said he admires the St. Johns district program's goals, but he doesn't admire its source of revenues.

"I'm not against funding the purchasing of land," Langley said.

"And I'll gladly vote to fund it from somewhere else (other than property taxes). It's a great idea."

The St. Johns District raised property taxes during the current fiscal year to get sufficient money to purchase some $9 million worth of flood plain land this year. The wetlands are to be used to store water during rainy seasons and release it into the river during dry

The state source of funds for acquisition of lands came to less than $4 million for the district this year. The balance of more than $5 million will come from property

The state increased by 5 cents per $100 the cost of documentary stamps, which must appear on every sale of real property. But with the economy down, revenues from the source are down, necessitating the use of property tax funds.

Langley said the state insists that water is a state resource and thus all the people of the state should pay the costs of saving the St. Johns River, not a select few - the property owners in the 19 counties included in the St. Johns River Water Management District including Seminole County.

Some district boards composed of non-elected officials are abusing their property taxing powers, Langley said. He said a, county

ERA May Succeed This Time Around

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)-Senate President Pro Tempore Jack Gordon plans a parliamentary maneuver to show Congress that one of the states instrumental in rejection of the Equal Rights Amendment last year will

This message out of Florida or other states that were final battlegrounds in the ERA fight might speed up congressional approval of a second amendment and bolster the chances for national ratification, he believes.

Gordon, a retired Miami Beach banker who has been the amendment's chief Senate sponsor over the years, wants to get the majority of the Senate to sponsor a resolution asking Congress to approve the amendment once again and send it

He circulated the resolution while senators were in town for interim committee meetings last week and got twenty signatures, one less than a majority. He is confident of getting more signatures and believes that the current Senate is pro-ERA, a sharp break with its predecessors. Gordon intends to formally file the resolution for consideration during the 1983 regular session beginning in April, but he probably won't try to get it passed. "The point will be made if the majority of the people sponsor it and it is filed," Gordon says. "It will show that the Florida Senate will pass the ERA if given the chance." Florida NOW conducted a survey of the Senate following last November's elections and concluded that the ERA would pass 25-15 if a vote were taken today. The last time a vote was taken, only days before the national deadline for ratification last summer, the Senate rejected the amendment 22-16. Florida was one of the states targeted by pro-ERA strategists and the setback apparently ended the chances for national approval.

The Florida Senate defeated the ERA several times over the years, while the House always passed it.

Kelly Jo Stewart of Lake Brantley High School and Jere Moore of Seminole High School are among the Central Florida students chosen to compete nationally in the Scholastic Art Awards contest.

Their work and that of other Seminole, Brevard, Orange, and Osceola County middle and senior high students is presently on display at the seventh annual Central Florida Regional Scholastic Art Awards Exhibition in Robinson's at the Fashion Square Mall Store in Orlando through Feb. 27 during store hours.

A 17-year-old resident of Altamonte Springs, Miss Stewart is a senior at Lake Brantley.

Her portfolio was one of 10 selected by regional judges to be sent to the national scholarship competition. She also received three gold key awards for other

Miss Stewart's art work received a Hallmark Seal and she is a candidate to be judged at the national level for a Hallmark Honor prize of $100 for her

The color photography entry of Jere Moore was awarded a Kodak Seal and will be judged nationally for a Kodak Medallion of Excellence as well as a cash award. Miss Moore is a 17-year-old senior and the daughter of Sanford Mayor and Mrs. Lee P. Moore.

Gold Key Awards, the highest regional honor, also went to the following Seminole County high school artists:

Lake Brantley: Tom Ardillo and Steve McClure; Lake Mary: Jerri Fockler, Debbie Franklin (2), Sean Kane, Jennifer Martius, Dave Noell, Stephen Parsons, Richard Sanborn, Michelle Sawyer (2), April Smet, Brian Webb, and Willie Williams; Lakeview Middle School: Ana Martinez; Lyman: Michael S. Geric, Wendy Kafka, Margaret Knapp, and Sheryl Sidman (2).

Blue ribbon finalists, which will be sent to New York for consideration by the national judges were submitted by the following students: Lake Brantley: Hiwa Kaneda and Kelly Jo Stewart (3); Lake Mary: Emery Berger, Brian Cook, Carol Franklin, Debbie Graham, Jim Helser, Lori Lanier, John Norton, Michelle Sawyer (3) and Anguenette Whack; Lyman: Kimberly Fennell, Dena Moore, Terri Rosenthal, Sheryl Sidman, and Michelle Waters.

Honorable mentions went to Alan Flynn, Jackson Heights Middle School; Ashley Harvey and Joseph W. Hirsch III, Lake Brantley: Fianna Lane, Lakeview Middle: Carol Butera, Terri Rosenthal, Sheryl Sidman (2), and Frank Watts, Lyman High.

Honorable mentions were also given to Yashpaul Dogra, Becky Durak, Amy Fluet, Carol Franklin, Sandy Glatting, Sean Kane, Matt Paulumbo, Cathy Russell, Richard Sanborn, Markus Siebmann, and Gary Zuyus.

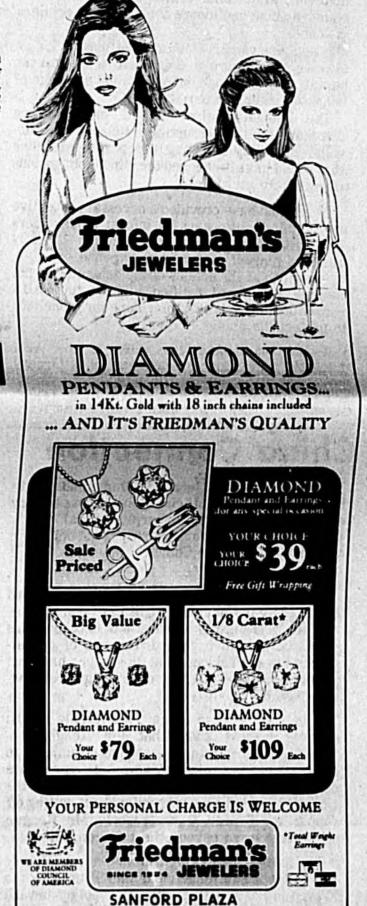

Grady Kimsey, professor of art at Seminole Community College, was one of the seven judges.

Entries were submitted to Robinson's in January by art teachers in both public and non-public secondary schools as the best work by their students. A panel of outstanding artists and photographers in the Orlando area, serving as judges, selected winners for inclusion in the regional show. The national exhibition of winning art work will be held June 2-19 in the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D.C. Winning photography entries will be exhibited in New York City Sept. 14-

Recipient of the Best of Show Award is Nancy Januzzi of Winter Park High School (also a Hallmark Honor Prize candidate). Her entry was selected by the regional judges from among 350 entries comprising the exhibition.

The aim of the Scholastic Art Awards program is to encourage and recognize talent in art among secondary school

New Business Class Challenge To First Class Airplane Travel

NEW YORK (UPI) - "The age of the passenger airline has enormously increased both world trade and domestic trade in major countries," says Jacobus J. Dekker of KLM Royal Dutch Airlines.

American companies alone are believed to spend $20 billion a year on air travel, said Dekker, KLM's vice president for U.S. operations. How much is spent worldwide is impossible to calculate but most of it is clearly justifed, Dekker said.

"Back when businessmen had to travel by train and steamship and take days or weeks for trips that now take hours, the total volume of trade and of the industries that depend on trade, were tiny com-pared with now. I don't have the figures to prove it, but I'm convinced the correlation is real," he said.

Rationalists may argue that business could be conducted more quickly by long distance telephone and two-way closed circuit television and picture phone circuits. Dekker said, however, like so many rationalist theories, that flies in the face of intractable human nature. It also flies in the face of long-established and unbreakable customs, especially in regions like the Middle East, where so many of the biggest trade and industrial op-

"There is a place in business for teleconferencing and the long distance telephone gets cheaper and better all the time but they never can really replace the personal relationships created by face-to-face meetings," Dekker said.

Nevertheless, the high cost of business travel is forcing changes in the airline business, Dekker added. Ever since World War II, a large proportion of business air travel, both domestic and international, has been first class. That seems to be coming to an end.

The world's airlines have been establishing a new "business class" accommodation offering many of the first-class amenities at about half the price. This has been so successful on both international and domestic routes that Dekker predicted first class on domestic routes in Europe may be a thing of the past and first class sections on international flights will be reduced.

At present, he said, about 80 percent of first class seats are sold for business use. Tomorrow, most of them may be sold only to wealthy persons paying their own way rather than traveling on expense

The growth of business travel has been accelerating. The Airline Passenger Association says it grew by 28.3 percent in 1977, 35.5 percent in 1979 and 36.2 percent in 1981, for example. Airline travel for vacations and personal reasons grew only 4.85 to 5.4 percent during the same year.

A recent survey by Runzhemier & Co., the Michigan-based travel research bureau, said more than half of all North American corporations now send employees on plane trips in business class instead of first class or the cheaper tourist classes.

The Airline Passenger Association study confirmed that business class fares are taking business from the economy classes as well as from first class. It also said that at least 40 airlines around the world are offering business class fares, including, somewhat surprisingly, the airline of the People's Republic of China.

What is business class?

It's a special section of the plane, the size varying with the configuration of the plane and its route. It has somewhat wider seats offering more leg-room and greater reclining ability, facilitated check-in and special airport lounge privileges, a greater choice of meals aboard the plane, and free drinks.

The Retreat Of The ABA

The American Bar Association has sounded a shameful retreat from the legal profession's ethical responsibilities. It recently rejected guidelines that would have encouraged attorneys to blow the whistle on law-breaking by their

Not only did the ABA House of Delegates refuse to approve the badly needed new guidelines, but shockingly voted to weaken the current ones that permit an attorney to disclose a client's intention to commit a crime.

The inconsistent logic of those trial lawyers who led the successful opposition to the proposed guidelines permits attorneys only to disclose a client's intention to commit a crime involving the possibility of "imminent death, or substantial bodily harm."

The trial lawyers lose their credibility when they invoke the sanctity of client relationships involving white-collar crime, but are willing to violate a client confidence dealing with a crime of is any less candor from a client needed for an attorney to prepare a defense to a murder or assault charge than to defend against a charge of fraud or dealing in narcotics?

The delegates also showed an appalling disregard for the corrupting influence of whitecollar crime by rejecting a separate guideline that would have broadened the ethical obligations of corporate attorneys.

This would have provided a necessary incentive for corporate attorneys to inform stockholders and prosecutors when an executive illegally enriches himself at corporate expense.

Inasmuch as the actions of the delegates do not become final until ratified by a future ABA convention, there is still some hope for guidelines to protect the public.

We cannot believe the votes of the ABA delegates represent a consensus of attorneys throughout the country. The nation's attorneys should revolt at the callous ethical indifference displayed by their profession's representatives.

China Connection

Secretary of State George P. Shultz had barely left Peking when the official Chinese news agency delivered a commentary sharply critical of U.S. policy in Asia. This would be surprising only if we expected more of the Chinese connection than it could possibly deliver.

Ever since former President Nixon made his historic trip to China in 1972, it has been obvious that the relationship between our two countries would be limited by the divergence of our attitudes toward Taiwan. That divergence has been papered over for the sake of making a relationship possible at all.

It is reasonable to assume that Shultz let the Chinese leaders know that the Reagan administration's statement last year promising to discontinue arms sales to Taiwan at some future date is the most they can expect. Peking wants the United States to be more specific about cutting off support for Taiwan. Quite properly, Mr. Reagan is refusing to go beyond the 1982 committment.

The tone of the Peking commentary may have been intended to make clear that Premier Zhao Zivang is not satisfied with U.S. policy toward Taiwan regardless of any positive developments that may flow from Shultz's visit. With reports coming out of Washington that Zhao plans to visit the United States later this year, Peking does not want to suggest that it is backing off from its demand that the United States end all assistance

Both Shultz and his Peking hosts spoke of the importance of a "stable and enduring relationship" between the two countries. Stable and enduring, yes, but given the magnitude of some of the issues that separate us, not particularly close.

BERRY'S WORLD

Winter Park Telephone Company is no more and they're calling it the "end of an era." The passing was duly noted last week when the former corporate headquarters was renamed the Galloway Building in honor of the founding family responsible for this truly American success story.

Winter Park Telephone became a part of United Telephone Company of Florida on Jan. 1, along with other affiliates. United Telephone System purchased the company and its two subsidiaries in 1979.

The last of the Seminole County family active in the management of the Winter Park Telephone was Al Galloway, last surviving son of the founder, Carl Galloway. Al retired in January 1981 and died in December of the same year. During his 46-year-career, he had moved up the ranks from installer-repairman to senior vice president. He was founder and major contributor to the telephone museum of the Maitland Historical Society.

For it was in Maitland that the Galloways first got into the telephone business in 1910. Carl H.

Galloway in partnership with his father, B.A., opened the Winter Park-Maltland Telephone Exchange in the back of his father's grocery store in Maitland. He invested $60 in 10 telephones, a magneto switchboard and wire. He strung the wire on trees and fences and installed the phones free of charge to the grocery store's largest customers. When these customers learned they could call each other, the demand for the telephones grew and so did the exchange.

When the grocery store partnership was dissolved in 1915, C.H. Galloway began charging for the service. Two years later the central office moved from Maitland to Winter Park. The company was formally incorporated in 1921. The operation was handled by the Galloway family, which lived upstairs in the telephone building at 128 E. New England Ave. Carl's wife, Lena, served as telephone operator while taking care of her three sons, Joe, 11, Al, 7, and Carl Jr., who was born that year.

His son, Joe, went to work in 1926 as installer repairman for the Winter Park Telephone Co., which listed Carl as general manager and Lena as secretary-treasurer.

In 1933, Al Galloway began work as installer repairman for the company. Joe's telephone career was interrupted in 1940 when he joined the U.S. Navy to serve during World War II. He. remained on active duty for seven years attaining the rank of commander. The company went public with sale of stock in 1956. At that time C.H. Sr., was president and chairman; Joe, executive vice president; Carl Jr., second vice president; Al, vice president, plant; and Lena, secretary-treasurer. Carl H. died in 1959 and Joe was elected president. In 1967 Joe was elected chairman of the board and Russell P. Hulbert was elected the first non-family member president. Carl Jr., also a World War II Navy vet died in 1971. In 1978 Joe retired in March and died in October. Hulbert was elected chairman. Winter Park Telephone moved its corporate headquarters to the seven-story building on State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs in 1976. Customers in United's Winter Park and South Seminole areas will be served from ground floor office in the building.

New Bank, New Twist, Big Gains

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (NEA) - Today's typical bank is big and plastic and is located either on the ground floor of a building or in a shopping center, convenient to parking and foot traffic.

But the First National Bank of Beverly Hills is vastly different: It's located on a top floor of a nondescript office building whose ground level is occupied by branches of a major bank and a savings and loan, and there are no signs outside to indicate First National's presence.

First National is dedicated to a very different style of banking - and it might well be the most successful new bank ever opened in California, which sees dozens of new banks start up annually.

The First National Bank of Beverly Hills is a throw-back to the old European merchant bank, and its offices look like the California version of a fine Swiss bank. But it's a merchant bank with a difference, for it uses all of the electronic tools of the '80s to implement a centuries-old concept of banking.

The bank's method of operation is the brainchild of its president, Richard Rector, who has been in banking for 25 years. Before accepting his present post, Rector headed suburban Los Angeles' West Valley Bank, which he helped found in 1978. The investment firm of Wedbush, Noble and Cooke - an expert in banking stocks - says that West independent bank.

"I began to do some of the things we are doing here at West Valley," says Rector, "but West Valley was still a commercial bank geared to the individual depositor. I saw in this new bank a way to move away from that concept and into a merchant-banking con-

Rector says First National is organized "to meet all the financial needs of businesses with sales between $250,000 and $100 million a year. We are offering the small-and mediumsize business the kinds of financial servicesand more — that a Bank of America or Chase or Citicorp offers only to its beggest clients."

The nation's commercial banks are competing for car loans and money market deposits, but Rector isn't interested in attracting that kind of business. Instead, he and his staff involve themselves with the day-today operations of their clients' businesses.

Rector believes that If he can help his clients make more money, the new bank will also

Rector cites the example of a woman who came to the bank shortly after her husband died and left her with a small manufacturing

"She didn't have the slightest idea how to run the business," he says. "We went in, found new outlets for her product, helped her develop a marketing plan and found her a general manager to run the business."

Reflections On Gandhi

This is not a movie review, and I have him incredulously whether he was aware that deliberately chosen the title of George Orwell's famous essay on Gandhi's politics for this column.

But it would be boorish not to celebrate first of all the aesthetic beauty of the movie we infer, ruin his military career. Gandhi "Gandhi," which is now playing at theaters triumphed over the British empire, but only around the nation. The Indian landscapes are breathtaking, and the movie reminded me of Kipling's great novel "Kim" in its representation of the density and rich texture of life in that country. Ben Kingsley will surely be a strong candidate for an Academy Award for his performance in the title role.

But let's talk about Gandhi and politics. The movie is honest enough to raise Orwell's question, but it allows the Mahatma to slide off it with a single sentence equivocation. Asked whether his techniques of nonviolence would work against Hitler, Gandhi replies that, of course, his movement would suffer defeats.

"But," he goes on, "haven't we suffered defeats here?" I'm afraid that I have to agree with Orwell.

As the movie makes clear, Gandhi operated in the context of a British administration which, however incidentally brutal, believed in the integrity of law. Gandhi, himself a lawyer, knew that and played off it brilliantly. Gandhi espoused a Hinduism which closely resembled Franciscan Christianity in its optimism about the effect of example upon human nature. The British shared much of that religious orientation, at least to the extent that they regarded some forms of mass violence as unthinkable.

When a British officer orders his troops to fire into a crowd of Indian demonstrators, killing more than a thousand of them, he is hauled before a board of inquiry which asks there were women and children in the crowd. It asks, incredulously, whether he would have used a machine gun on the civilians if he had been able to do so. His affirmative answers, triumphed over the British empire, but only because he and they shared a great many

But, as Orwell points out, the situation would have been entirely different if Gandhi had been opposing Hitler or Stalin.

Hitler believed in a creed of superior strength, and he would have regarded Gandhi's turn-the-other-cheek philosophy as a certain sign of weakness and inferiority. Nor would Hitler have hesitated one minute to slaughter Gandhi and as many millions of Indians as it took to secure his rule.

It is a chilling thought that Hitler indeed had his eye on the conquest of India. Had he secured his empire in the West, and had Rommel prevailed in Egypt, nothing stood between the SS and the Mahatma, who would not have had another cheek to turn.

The same is true of Stalin, who ruthlessly eliminated all opposition, the toll running into the tens of millions. Gandhi would have disappeared into the cellar of the Lubianka prison, where several times a day custodians washed the gore off the walls with hoses.

Mohandas K. Gandhi was no doubt a great man, but he was a 19th-century man, really, battling 19th-century gentlemen who were running a 19th-century empire.

The danger of the movie "Ghandhi," magnificent as it is, is that audiences will leave imagining that Gandhi's tactics are somehow applicable to, say, the men who built and guard the Berlin Wall.

DON GRAFF Strength Rests On Weakness

The Saudis appear to be on their way to winning another one.

They were unable to persuade - or trick, as some reports interpret maneuvers at the aborted January meeting of oil ministers in Geneva - their OPEC partners into accepting lower production quotas to bring the world oil glut and sagging price structure under control. But their own massive production potential still gives them the power to twist enough arms roughly enough to pretty much get what they want.

Getting their own way in these matters is something that by now they've become accustomed to. And if they are the realists that few would question they are, something they should be getting worried about.

For each of their victories leaves them in a more exposed position — exposed to the rising resentment of their external rivals and to internal forces they may not much longer be able to control. The Saudis, for all their economic strength and manipulative political skills, are dealing from a position of inherent weakness. And it's getting worse.

Consider this: They rule a territory nation is not quite the word - of almost a million square miles, more than a quarter the size of the United States, with a population of a few millions.

Exactly how many millions is open to some question. The Saudis, who do not like to discuss the subject at any length, claim in the neighborhood of 10. Non-Saudi expert estimates go as low as five.

What is certain is that several million residents of Saudi Arabia are not Saudis. They are guest workers, brought in to construct the facilities, operate the services, teach the skills and do the dirty jobs of the advanced society the Saudis are trying to

They include the usual exiled Palestinians and expatriate Egyptians, skilled mercenaries found everywhere in the Arab lands. Also as many as half a million unskilled Yemenis, And also large contingents of Pakistanis, Indians, Thais, Filipinos and Koreans.

The initial idea was that once a Saudi work force had been introduced to modern ways and was ready to take over, the foreigners would be sent packing.

It hasn't worked out that way. The local Bedouins have largely chosen to remain as they are, the harshness of their nomadic lifestyle eased somewhat by services and subsidies provided by the government.

Urbanized Saudis, meanwhile, have taken to the comforts of the new society but are disinclined to do its work. The guest workers, therefore, would appear to be settled in for a long visit. And in increasing numbers.

Mini-Movie Shot Down By Interior

WASHINGTON - Like Soviet historians who rewrite the past every time the Kremlin's political wind shifts, officials of the Interior Department have been trying desperately to eradicate all trace of a documentary film produced during the Carter administration.

Fish and Wildlife Service employees were ordered to turn in all copies of the film and sign statements attesting that they had complied with the confiscation decree. An environmental group that had obtained a copy quite legitimately was accused by an Interior Department vigilante of having

Why all the uproar? Technically, I guess you could call the documentary film "explosive." It dealt with the kind of shotgun pellets used by the nation's nimrods.

There are two kinds of shot on the market -lead and steel. Some hunters prefer lead shot. They say it goes farther and truer, and doesn't chew up their gun barrels the way steel shot does.

But conservationists - including many hunters — say there's a serious problem with lead shot. It pollutes the environment.

Most of the pellets shot into the air miss the ducks or goese they're aimed at. Unlike Longfellow's arrow, they fall to earth we know just where - in the marshlands where the waterfowl feed. Some are inevitably ingested in the birds' food; if the pellets are lead, the game birds can die of lead poisoning. Thousands reportedly have met this fate.

In hopes of weaning hunters away from lead shot, the Fish and Wildlife Service assigned one of its ballistic experts to make a movie showing that steel shot - which doesn't poison the waterfowl - is just as good as lead shot.

The little movie was produced by an Oregon firm, Dan Biggs Productions, at a cost to the taxpayers of $28,500. But by the time it was completed, G. Ray Arnett, a Reagan appointee, was the Interior Department official who oversees the Fish and Wildlife Service. Arnett is an enthusiastic hunter. Sources told my associate Vicki Warren he's a traditionalist-a lead-shot man. Arnett himself would not answer questions on the subject.

In any case, the confiscation order was issued. But the film hunters learned they had missed one copy of the film. The National Wildlife Federation had it.

A Fish and Wildlife minion was dispatched to retrieve the film. He accused the environmental group of stealing it, but the federation produced a bill of sale from the producer.

Meanwhile, the ballistics expert lost his job in a reduction-in-force. He's now pushing steel shot through the Wildlife Federation and other environmental groups.

Footnote: Dan Biggs resents the fact that taxpayers won't be able to see the film they paid for. He's thinking of making another documentary - about the first film and the administration's efforts to shoot it down.

PIE IN THE SKY: The love affair between President Reagan and corporate America is an open secret. Now he wants to turn over the weather to the big corporations.

Specifically, he is considering a plan to deliver the government's land- and weathersatellite systems to commercial firms. The excuse is that this would cut down on the public funds that are now spent putting the information-gathering satellites up into

Unfortunately, it's not at all clear whether the government would wind up paying the private satellite operators more for the information it wants than it now spends to run its own satellites. And because the issue hasn't exactly caught fire on Capitol Hill, no definitive cost comparisons have been made. One of the few members of Congress who has taken an active interest in the scheme is Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y. "Currently these programs cost the taxpayer less than $200 million per year," he told my reporter Carolyn Farrar. "The only serious proposal for transfer (to the private sector) would cost well over $300 million per Scheuer's uneasiness over the cost question got what might be unintended support from a leading proponent of satellite privatization: COMSAT General Corp., which is practically salivating at the prospect of taking over the weather satellites. COMSAT evidently thinks it will make a bundle on any transfer.

In fact, COMSAT's big worry is the federal procurement law that forbids the award of a government contract on a non-competitive basis unless only one company is qualified to handle the job. Several other companies have shown an interest in running the satellites. So COM-SAT's lawyers wrote the Commerce Department expressing hope that the bothersome regulation could somehow be "In developing a ... plan to accomplish these (transfers), it is essential to avoid the inflexibilities which result from excessive reliance on procurement law precedents," the memo said. It described the competitivebid process as "utterly unworkable, unnecessary and inappropriate in this case." Critics of the transfer plan have voiced other concerns besides cost. One involves national security. As a congressional aide put enough not to send up duplicate satellites?" Sen. Larry Pressier, R-S.D., has sponsored legislation to require congressional approval before the government turns the satellite business over to private industry. Rep. Scheuer has scheduled hearings for next

He Was America's First Freed Slave

EDITOR'S NOTE: Today, the Herald publishes eventually died herself, and Jennison claimed the following article on Quock Walker in recognition control of the slaves. That did not sit well with some of February as Black History Month.

BARRE, Mass. (NEA)-The year 1983 was introduced with familiar routine in this wellpreserved New England community. The merchants held post-Christmas sales, the residents wished one another good health and prosperity, and the streets were once again frosted with snow. But there is one thing different about 1983 here.

It's the 200th anniversary of the Quock Walker case. You've never heard of the Quock Walker case? Neither has everyone in Barre. Yet the anniversary is worth remembering just the same. Walker, a local slave, was the first black man in America to ask for and receive a courtroom declaration against the institution of human bondage.

The particulars of the matter are kept in the files of the Barre Historical Society. It should be noted they are incomplete. Some of the facts have been lost in time, others have been bent by conjecture. In general, though, the whole thing is thought to have begun sometime in 1754.

Slavery existed all along the Atlantic coast then. And in that year a Barre land-owner named James Caldwell purchased three Negroes for 168 pounds, British currency.

A few years later Caldwell was killed by an accident. The story is that he was struck by lightning in a field. Therefore his property, the slaves included, was given over to his wife, who, following a decent interval, then married another Barre lanowner, one Nathaniel Jennison. Alas, the woman and the state supreme courts. The lower courts of the woman's other heirs, principally a son and local politician named John Caldwell. He didn't think Jennison deserved the slaves, and he set out to

It's clear what motivated the latter Caldwell in the pursuit. He is said to have hated Jennison, and thus he may have acted for malicious revenge. Then again, there are some indications that he was simply and genuinely interested in attacking the inhuman evils of the slave trade.

In any event, Caldwell asked Quock Walker to run away from Jennison in 1781. He told the 28-year-old man that he was being held in servitude illegally. He said Quock still belonged to the Caldwells, and they were going to grant him freedom and provide him with a wage earning job. When Jennison found out he was furious. He went to the Caldwell farm and found Walker working on the crops. Reportedly, he beat the black man with the handle of a hoe, and dragged him back to his own holdings. Later he threw Walker into a shed, and locked him there for several hours.

When Walker got out of the shed he fled again, this time to the law. And thereupon the case was given over to the courts. Encouraged by Caldwill, Quock Walker sued Jennison for assault and battery, and Jennison, in turn, filed a counter charge that Caldweli had stolen away his property.

The litigation took more than a year, and the arguments were heard in the county, the superior defendant was not properly a slave, and they awarded 8 pounds in damages for the assault.

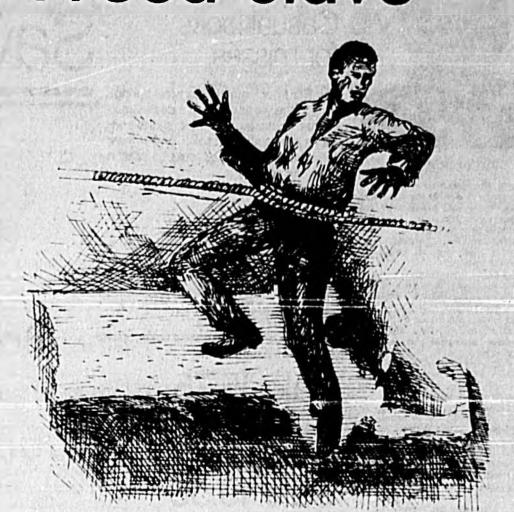

Then, in 1783, the supreme court weighed in. And history was made. Not only was Walker a free man, the court said, but the laws of the commonwealth clearly declared that every citizen of the state, regardless of his race, was "entitled to liberty and to have it guarded by law."

Thus Massachusetts became the first state in the union to abolish slavery. And that encouraged other jurisdictions to follow the example. Every slave in Massachusetts was set free by the end of the decade, and, by the early 1800s there were no slaves remaining in any northern state.

Interestingly, Quock Walker more or less disappeared along with the custom. No one seems to have any records of the man following the trials. He may have returned to Barre, or he may have moved elsewhere to escape possible repercussions. Nobody even knows when the former slave died.

And no seems to care a lot, either. Not at least in his hometown. Today Walker is all but forgotten in Barre. Many people don't know the name at all. Helen Connington, a local historian, says there is not so much as a plaque in the park to note the events of two centuries ago.

Yet nevermind the lack of memorials. Mrs. Connington says the important thing is that Quock Walker's legacy is still strictly commemorated here. There are now 4,000 people in Barre, she says, and three of them are black, and every one of them. and color notwithstanding, are free.

Central Florida A Rising Star In The Movie Industry

Special To The Herald

Ranked third in film production behind California and New York, Florida, specifically Central Florida, is the up-and-coming "object of affection" of over 1,000 movie and television commercial producers.

The ever-increasing number of producers coming to Florida marks a significant trend towards the state becoming the film capital of the world. Experts predict this could happen by year 2,000, possibly sooner.

And with Florida's increasing popularity as a filming location comes a great deal of money, according to the state Commerce Department's Motion Picture and Television

From January, 1979, to December, 1982, over $250 million was invested in Florida's film production, and $214 million in television commercials.

In 1982 alone, approximately 32 films were produced at a cost of $78 million, and the production of over 700 commercials and training films during the same period brought in another $64 million, the department says.

Taking into account the vast amount of money associated with the movie industry and the fact that 60 percent of a film's budget (which averages $5-$7 million) stays where the film is shot, many Floridians no doubt would like to see state predictions that Florida will soon become the star of the entertainment industry come true.

Florida's rise to stardom can be attributed to the state's wide variety of terrain, its yearround warm climate and, according to Ray Quinn, a senior representative with the Motion Picture and Television Bureau, "the fact that we have competent people who come in on time and on budget."

And the state's geographic center -Orlando-Quinn added, "has the potential to increasing activity in Florida." Easily accessible to other portions of the state with an abundance of talent and facilities, Orlando is ideally located, and has the airport and international services necessary to film crews.

Production in Orlando is off to a good start for 1983. JAWS-3D, the third sequel to JAWS, is currently being filmed at Sea World, starring Dennis Quald, Bess Armstrong and Lou Gosset, Jr, Quinn said.

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI)-A man said he forced 15 cars off the road, careened onto railroad tracks and assaulted two police officers because he was scared of getting a traffic ticket, authorities said.

On The Run

Donald Douglas, 33, of Huntington pleaded guilty in Nassau County Court to a second-degree assault charge.

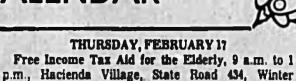

"I was driving with a suspended license, and I took off because I was scared about being in trouble again," Douglas told Judge John Thorp.

Authorities said police saw Douglas run a red light last November in Oyster Bay.

As they chased him, Douglas's auto forced the 15 cars oif the road, police said. He then drove 100 yards on a railroad track before coming to a halt.

When officer William Mathieson reached the car and tried to remove the Ignition key, police said, Douglas started the vehicle again and dragged the policeman for 15 feet.

Many Farmers In Panhandle Can't Pay Loan

PENSACOLA (UPI) — At least 50 percent of the farmers in the Florida Panhandle are unable to repay loans for operating expenses and capital improvements because of the current recession, bank officials say.

"It's just a crying shame that they are working as hard as ever and producing as much if not more than ever, and yet, they are still getting further and further behind on payments," Jerry Jackson, vice president of the Escambia County Bank in Flomaton, Ala., said Monday.

Officials with banks and loan companies estimated 50 to 75 percent of the farmers in the Panhandle and south Alabama are behind on loan payments. They expect it to take at least three years before commodity prices increase enough for farmers to make a profit.

"We carry forward—it seems like every year—a few more farm loans from the past that have not been paid off," Jackson said. "It used to be very much the exception but now it's sort of the rate that most of your farmers do tend to carry over some of their debts from prior years."

Although many are behind on payments, officials said they usually allow farmers to restructure their debt payments and make few foreclosures on farms.

"We are trying to hold foreclosures to a minimum," said Wade Hayslip of the Panhandle Production Credit Association, a farmer-owned cooperative. "That's a last means of collecting a loan — something for after all else fails. We are not out to take a man's farm."

Farmers said the low selling price for corn and soybeans, the two major crops in the Panhandle, make it impossible to earn a profit.

Corn sells for $2 to $2.50 a bushel but costs more than $3 a bushel to produce. Soybeans bring about $5 a bushel and cost nearly $7 to grow.

"There's no way this year that a farmer can plant a crop and cover his costs in the Panhandle of Florida or south Alabama," Marion Tidwell, a Santa Rosa county farmer, said.

Oil Companies Pay Billions For Innocence By Association

NEW YORK (UPI) — If people are capable of perceiving such a thing as guilt by association, then it only follows that innocence by association should be equally viable, which is why the Guif Oil Co. so far has sunk more than $30 million in the National Geographic specials on PBS.

Everybody picks on oil companies. They are variously accused of orchestrating everything from "obscure profits" and consumer ripotts to environmental exploitation, pollution and national resource banditry.

Edward Aduss, manager of corporate advertising for Gulf, says it isn't so, but he admits that the allegations — fueled by emption, not gasoline — sometimes outrun anything the oil companies can put on the track by way of refutation.

"It is a very difficult image which I think not only Gulf but the entire industry faces — not only the oil industry, but the chemical industry and the timber industry as well," Aduss said in a telephone interview from his Pittsburgh office. "People enjoy all the things ... that these major corporations and industries provide, but they don't like to see them destroying the environment, and I certainly can appreciate that. I live in the environment too, and I want to see it kept intact and preserved."

Gulf's answer to all the bad press and gossip whispers is, and has been for years, a venture called "Partners in Discovery," by which Gulf has managed a respectable "marriage" to the National Geographic Society.

Who, after all, could hate National Geographic? Only a cultural cretin could growl at such brilliant PBS specials as "Polar Bear Alert" or "The Sharks."

They constitute the most watched and critically acclaimed fare on public television — "The Sharks" being No. 1 after bumping a 1975 masterpiece called "The Incredible Machine" out of the lead last year.

The importance of such popularity could scarcely be lost on any businessman, which is why Gulf now is entering its eighth season as an underwriter.

"The National Geographic specials and the National

"The National Geographic specials and the National Geographic Society embody what we believe are the same objectives that we, as a corporation, like to embody — our concern for the environment and our desire to present really high quality altternative television programming," Aduss said.

"The majority of National Geographic specials tend to deal with environmental matters — the preservation of animals or land and things we have to be careful as humans to preserve and share the earth with.

"We don't want to have people think that we're providing them with the energy they need while simultaneously destroying the environment."

The public can only be grateful for Guif's multimillion-dollar concern over its image. Because of it, they have two more breath-taking specials immediately on tap.

On Wednesday, the National Geographic cameras go to Australia to bring back everything from cuddly koalas and wooly wombats to ill-tempered Tasmanian devils and patently impossible platypusses.

Thereafter, National Geographic will attempt to "Save the Pandas" with footuge shot in China

Pandas," with footage shot in China.

Exxon, the biggest underwriter, spent $5.5 million, Mobil forked over $4.5 million, Chevron anted up $3.5 million, and four other firms joined with lesser amounts to bring the total oli company tab to nearly $30 million.

Honey Bee Is Important Economic Link

WIMAUMA, Fig. (UPI) - The hard-working honey bee that few people notice unless they are stung is one of the most beneficial insects to man and represents an important place in Florida's economy.

Florida and California run neck-and-neck in the production of honey with the leader in any given year determined by weather and crop conditions.

But the production of honey is only the most visible benefit of the honey bee. Its real value to man is as pollinator of plants. Lloyd B. Shearman Jr., who maintains 1,500 colonies of bees at his rural home in Hillsborough County, said honey production nationally is a $100 million-year industry, but said bees pollinate many other crops.

"For some farm crops it (bee pollination) is a necessity," Shearman said. "Melons are completely dependent on bees. So are a lot of seed crops such as alfalfa. And hybrids are dependent on honey bees."

1,500 hives within a 20-mile radius of his home, bringing the honey-filled hives back to his own "honey barn" where the particular season is over.

Many other beekeepers are transient, following crops much like the migrant labor crews that will follow later when crops are to be harvested, going into areas where crops are going

The general rule of thumb is to place one hive for every acre of crop to be pollinated.

"The price the farmer is charged varies," Shearman said. "There is a lot of competition and I generally charge $20 a hive for the length of the blossom time."

Both methods have their strong points and their weak points. By being stationary, Shearman cuts down on the transportation overhead which can be tremendous for the traveling beekeepers. But when weather conditions cut back on the available bloom, he suffers.

"With freezes two years in a row, it has been a total disaster in Florida," Shearman said. "We had been making good profits but the last two years we have lost money. I'm fixing some pallets so I'll be able to move again if I have to."

But moving hives is not without its own perils. Elvin Oakes was en route from North Dakota to a wintering site in Hahira, Ga., in September when he hit a curb in Lansing, III. The impact knocked his load of hives to the ground, freeing an estimated 10 million agitated bees.

Beekeepers were called in to the south Chicago suburb to try to round them up but as dawn neared and the possibility grew that the sunlight would cause the bees to swarm, the decision was made to kill the bees.

Those already banded together in small swarms were doused with gasoline and burned and the others were killed when they were attracted to the fire. The loss was estimated at

Two-legged thieves pose as much a problem to beekeepers as to the natural four-legged predators.

"Theft is getting to be a problem," Shearman said. "For 30 to 40 years the wholesale price of honey remained constant at 12-15 cents a pound, while the cost of production was going up 500 per cent. Then, in 1969, there started to be a shortage as people became more health food conscious and exports, particularly to Japan and Germany, increased.

"That's when theft really became a substantial problem," he said. "It's almost impossible to get a conviction. The hives are branded but the thieves just take off the brands. You've got to catch them loading the hives on the truck almost."

That's just what happened last August in the small community of North Port, south of Sarasota.

Authorities tracing a license number given for a man seen stealing hives from groves in the area located the truck and 57 stolen hives and arrested Alan Brady Whisenant of Rubino on a charge grand theft.

The hives and their estimated a million bees still are impounded at the North Port Police Station. Police said the hives belonged to three major bee companies which had set them out the black bear which will ignore bee stings and devastate a hive to get at the honey.

"One bear can cause thousands of dollars in losses in one night," Shearman said. A lesser problem is the skunk which will remain outside a hive and catch and eat bees entering or leaving, but it leaves the honey alone. But in other areas of the country, raccoons are major villains, particularly in the Louisiana and Texas areas where production of queen bees and package bees to create starter sets is a major industry, according to Frank Robinson, secretary of the American Beekeeping Federation in Gainesville.

Bees produce honey anytime there are blossoms available and Robinson said in a good year, a strong colony will produce between 125 and 150 pounds of honey.

Prime sources in Florida are citrus trees, palmetto thickets, the galiberry, a plant that resembles holly and grows in pine woods, and in West Florida, the tupelo, a small tree that grows in swampy areas.

Robinson said the area around Apalachicola is the only place in the world where the tupelo is found in concentrations enough to be commercial and the tree's blossoms produce a premium honey which brings 30-40 per cent higher prices that the other

What Is Sen. Howard Baker Up To?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now that he has made public a badly kept secret, the only question that remains is - Why did Howard Baker decide not to seek re-election to the Senate in 1984?

Now, despite prevailing opinion, senators do retire. For many more of them, however, the decision to retire is made by the voters on election year.

Nor is it unknown that a Senate leader, as Baker is, decides there are other interests that

> Baker is 57. That makes him a virtual adolescent in the Senate, where members go on and on - in the cases of Jennings Randolph of West Virginia, John Stennis of Mississippi and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina into their 80s.

> Moreover, Baker is at the peak of his powers - rated by Republicans and Democrats as possibly the most effective majority leader since the legendary days of Lyndon Johnson. To begin with, consideration has to be given to the reason Baker gave for not seeking a fourth-term. To do so would be impolite and, for all anyone but he and his closest aides know, the absolute reason he is bowing out.

As he expressed in his statement at an airport news conference in Knoxville, Tenn., and in a letter to the state party chairman, Baker never meant to make the Senate a "lifelong career." Or, as he is supposed to have said in what could be an apocryphal story, he did not want to stay in the Senate forever and then, as his reward, lay in state in the Capitol rotunda. There is reason to take him at his word. Baker has made no secret of his utopian savings and there are mega-bucks waiting for him in the private sector. Burn out — The position of Senate majority leader, despite's Baker's uncommon ability as a negotiator, conciliator and persuader, may be untenable. There were some indications that Baker was close to "burn out" stage during the "lame duck" session.

Re-election - Baker, Tennessee's first Republican senator, has never won by big concept of a "citizen legislature" with margins.

College Offers Free Tuition For Kids Of Jobless

UPLAND, Ind. (UPI) - A few months ago, Brian Vanderford, a bright high school senior with a solid academic record and enough credits for early graduation, abandoned all hope of going to college.

A failing economy dashed Brian's dream of a college degree in elementary education. His father was laid off in December after 18 years with International Harvester and, suddenly, money was tight.

"I was really looking at colleges until Dad got laid off," said Brian. "Then I decided, well, the miltary's always been in the back of my mind."

But when Brian heard about Taylor University's offer of free tuition to the unemployed or their children he knew that was the path he wanted to follow.

"It's a lot of money," the 18-year-old from Fort Wayne, Ind., said of the $2,212 no-strings deal. "I'd still be in high school if it wasn't for this program, and next semester I probably wouldn't have been in college."

Brian is one of 15 new students from five states taking advantage of Taylor's non-government version of unemployment compensation. Another 19 students already enrolled at the university, sons and daughters of unemployed parents, also signed up.

The college estimates almost half of them might have dropped out without the break or tultion.

"We have resources we can use to be of assistance to those who have some needs, and we want to help," said Ronald L. Keller, dean of admissions at the evangelical Christian college located between some of Indiana's worst pockets of unem-

"From the standpoint of one Christian to another, it certainly fits into New Testament theology. Everything's theory and we all know what the theory is, but let's see practice."

No-Show Jones Says He Is 'Going Straight'

By CATHY KEIM United Press International

It's not really news any more when country singer George Jones fails to show up for a concert. In fact, the Rainsville, Ala., Civic Center was only two-thirds full for Jones' scheduled performance last week, since so many of his fans have been victimized by his noshows in recent months. But Jones not only arrived on time, he told the audience: "Honest to goodness, I'm straight tonight and I'm going to keep it that way." Jones has been in and out of trouble involving drugs and alcohol over the past year.

Geraci has run the 26.2-mile marathon in 2:50 and Durden believes the diminutive Stone Mountain, Ga., runner can earn a starting position at the trials next spring in Olympia, Wash.

Cowboys are a breed apart - just ask Joe Sitton. Sitton manages a 1,000 acre farm in Verona, Va., and says it's easy to tell the real thing from the trendy urban cowboy. "A lot of people buy hats and pickup trucks, but most of them ain't got sense enough to saddle a horse and get it in the right direction," according to Sitton. He says a cowboy has long jeans trayed it the bottom from chafing the saddle and dragging the ground. Cowboys go to work before the sun goes up and quit after it goes down. Sitton's cowgirl wife loves the lifestyle, too, even if it means getting tossed 30 feet across the pasture by an angry cow. That happened to her, she said, adding "I don't remember the flight but I remember the landing."

The White House Vs. The Real World

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Reagan White House wants reporters to focus on what is right with the country, not what is wrong.

The most vocal on the subject has been White House spokesman Larry Speakes, who says that reporters should be more "upbeat" and spotlight the "good news" in the economy. "My question is, have we now arrived at the journalistic standard where good news is no news?" he asked in a pep talk to the National Association of Government Communicators.

An administration naturally wants to emphasize any gains and trends it sees in the economy, but resents a reminder of its failures.

When the gross national product showed a slight increase, reporters were treated to a briefing by Martin Feldstein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. And when the unemployment ligures dropped a few tenths of 1 percent, President Reagan made an unheralded appearance in the press room to proclaim a triumph and an America "on the mend."

And when the figures are bad, reporters are given one or two sentences by Speakes that an improvement is expected in the coming months or year.

Speakes has a printed slogan on his desk: "You don't tell us how to stage the news and we don't tell you how to cover it."

That is only half true. There is no question that this administration controls and manages the news to the best of its ability. The problem is it also wants to cover it by denying reporters the responsibility of putting things in per-

'It seems that 10.8 percent unemployed is big news, while 89.2 percent of the Americans who have jobs and enjoy the highest standard of living in the world is not news," Speakes

"Does the public perception that things are bad come first? or is it that the public only thinks things are bad come first? or is it that the public only thinks things are bad after they've seen the bad news night after night? Think about it before you talk to your next caller from a pollster."

This administration is no exception in wanting to play down some of its defeats. It was ever thus. It appears that in all things economic, the administration still is prepared to blame President Jimmy Carter and some of his predecessors.

Not only are reporters expected to report only the upbeat news, from Speakes point of view they are also expected to ignore presidential remarks or to assume that he didn't mean what he was saying.

Such was the case when Reagan said he knew he was going to "kick myself" for saving that the corporate income tax should be abolished and went ahead and said it anyway.

The next day, instead of trying to cut the losses, Speakes accused the press of "jumping up and down, clapping your hands and licking your chops over this statement."

Federal health officials say 42 million Americans run a greater-than-normal risk of dying from a bout with in-luenza, but only 20 percent of them get flu shots.

"Twenty percent is a good ballpark figure," said Dr. Karl Kappus of the Centers or Disease Control's influenza surveillance branch.

"That figure seems to have been pretty steady through the years," Kappus sald, and it has public health officials wondering what can be done to make influenza vaccinations more popular.

Dr. Stephen Schoenbaum of Boston, Mass., a member of the CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, told a recent committee meeting: "I wonder whether, in fact, our influenza policy is sensible." Schoenbaum suggested the committee re-examine its longstanding influenza recommendations "to come up with something that is implementable." Schoenbaum said the committee may re-define those who are at greatest risk of death or serious complications from an influenza infection.

The ACIP for many years has recommended that persons over 65 and those with chronic diseases, regardless of age, be immunized against the flu. The only departure from that policy occurred in 1976, when the CDC launched a $135 million national effort to vaccinate 200 million Americans against an expected onslaught of swine flu. That program was quickly halted after reports surfaced that the swine flu shots could cause Guillian-Barre syndrome, a sometimes fatal paralysis.

In 1978 and 1979 Congress funded a modest $8 million effort to provide free flu shots to high risk groups. But there was no rush to get the vaccine and with a tightening of federal purse strings the program was stopped.

Health officials offer various reasons for the disenchantment of Americans with flu vaccinations. Some cite the swine flu vaccine and its statistical connection with an outbreak of Guillain-Barre disease; others mention the high cost of the vaccine, now ranging up to $20.

And Kappus said some physicians, although apparently aware of of the CDC recommendation, don't urge their susceptible patients to get the shots.

Last year, 19,825,776 doses of flu vaccine were distributed, down 9 percent from the previous year.

The vaccine administered to high-risk individuals is much less than the number of doses distributed, health officials said.

Seminoles Sink Spruce Creek

By GEOFFREY GIORDANO Herald Sports Writer

Seminole's soccer squad successfully completed its first District 4A-9 match Tuesday afternoon as it pressured the Hawks of Spruce Creek en route to a 3-1 victory at Seminole High School.

The Tribe came on as the hungrier team of the two, and limited Spruce Cited to less than 10 shots on goal the entire game. Right from the beginning, Seminole took complete control of the ball, and refused to give up its advantage.

Spruce Creek put a scare into the 'Noles, but alert defensive play by Stan Bacon and goal tender Dean Shoemaker averted two sure Creek goals. From then on, the Hawks were hard pressed to of tries against the Tribe. penetrate Seminole territory.

credentials to be a district champion, but coach Bill Moore's squad will have a tough task in knocking off the tournament's favorite, the Jones Tigers who didn't play enough district games to be seeded. Lake Mary and Jones didn't meet during the regular season, but, barring any upsets, the Tigers and Rams should meet for the district title.

"Jones is the definite favorite," Lake Mary coach Bill Moore said, "They played an extremely tough schedule and have some of the best talent around."

The Lady Tigers come in with a 22-4 record, ranked seventh in the state's 3A poll. Of its four losses, two were to second-ranked (4A), Evans, one was to third-ranked (4A) Satellite Beach, and the other was to eighth-ranked (3A) Ocala Vanguard.

"They have the quickest guards around," Moore said. "Their best player, Washington, averages 27 points per game. It will be extremely tough for anyone to beat Jones."

The team that will meet Jones in the opening round is Oviedo's Lady Lions. Oviedo has one of the top scorers and rebounders in the area in junior center Fayetta Robinson. But the Lady Lions don't have the quickness of Jones, and, the next highest scorers are Natalie Barth with a 6.0 average and Stephanic Nelson, 5.8.

Also in the starting lineup for the Lady Rams are Lisa Gregory (4.6 assists, 5.3 points), Kim Averill (8.0 points) and Michelle Swartz (6.7 points). Bench strength comes from Courtney Hall, Andrea Johnson and Andrea Fenning.

The winner of the Lake Mary-St. Cloud game will meet the winner of the Eustis-Bishop Moore game in Friday night's first game.

Saturday's final is 8:30 p.m. It will be preceeded by the junior varsity championship between Eustis and Osceola at 6:30 p.m. A coin toss put 32 points and Bill McCartney added 11 as Osceola's JV in the title game ahead of Lake Mary's JV.

Carried by senior center Paul Hoffman's 31 points, Lake Brantley's Patriots, now 7-16, upended cross-town rival Lake Mary, 82-72, in an emotion-packed contest at Altamonte Springs. "It's a game of spurts and we (Lake Brantley) just concentrated on playing the whole game without any negative spurts and to get out early," said Brantley skipper Bob Peterson. And the Patriots did get out early, opening a 10-2 lead early in the first period. Coach Willie Richardson's Rams soon awoke though, knotting the score at 14 on three Billy Dunn long-range jumpers. In the second quarter Brantley again got out fast opening a 23-16 advantage. Dunn and the Rams, nevertheless, bounced right back, aided by two Brantley technical fouls to pull even midway. Playing at an even faster-paced speed tilt, Brantley again gained command late in period, taking advantage of Lake Mary fouls with hot free-throw shooting (9 of 12 in second period) to take a 39-32 halftime edge. After halftime, both clubs squared off in an even third quarter. Brantley's builish Hoffman continued to control the boards, scoring eight points in the quarter to hold the Pats lead at 56-49, heading into the fourth.

Richardson's Ram's scratched and clawed their way back to within one at 64-64 at the 2:13 mark but Brantley would meet the challenge. Reeling off four straight buckets, two by guard Mike Garriques, Peterson's Patriots pulled away for good.

"We've been playing all our games in spurts. After they (Lake Mary) got close I just told them they'd played 30 minutes and they can't let it get away now," explained Peterson.

Raiders' Bats Come Alive In 9-2 Rout Of Rollins 'B'

Seminole Community College had its most successful day at the plate Tuesday as the Raiders struck for 14 hits in a 9-2 rout of the Rollins College "B" Team.

Bryan Holzworth had three hits in four trips to the plate including his first homer of the season while designated hitter Stephen Page ripped a pair of hits and knocked in four runs.

For SCC, 24, Alan Soyer, Jody Ryan, Mike Dunlap and Ron Leazier combined for a six hitter with Dunlap getting credit for the victory.

After a scoreless first three innings, SCC struck for two runs in the fourth, and three in the fifth to take a 5-0 lead. Rollins scored its two runs in the sixth.

Dwayne Johnson hurled a one-hitter for the Lions who now stand 3-0 for the season. Brett Theyer ripped two hits including a homer and knocked in two runs to pace the eight-hit Oviedo attack.

Lyman Netters Top Tribe

Seminole's girls tennis team doubled its pleasure Tuesday against Lyman, but the singles killed it. The teams of Susana Huaman and LaDona Merrifield along with Tracy McNeill and Britney Tyre took doubles victories but the Lady Greyhounds had already built an insurmountable lead for a 4-3 victory. In singles, Lyman's Kim Faulkner topped Huaman, 8-1, Gina DeFrancisco whipped McNeill, 8-3, Grace Coppola tripped Merrifield, 8-3, and Amy Lister blitzed

The Tribe's lone singles' win came when Tyre nipped Jamie McNamee with a tlebreaker, 5-4.

Lyman is 2-0 while Seminole is 0-1. The boys match was no contest as Lyman rolled to seven straight victories.

Fighting Seminoles Prospecius 1982 Five Star Finish: sixth Returning lettermen: five Returning starters: two Promising newcomers: three Strength: hitting Weakness: pitching

Seminole baseball coach Bobby Lundquist hopes first impressions aren't lasting. After viewing his 1983 baseball team against the alumni Saturday, the personable Tribe skipper came away unimpressed.

"Judging from Saturday, we didn't look too good," said Lundquist about the 10-1 loss. "Our pitching was terrible. (Greg) Hill wasn't loose. (James) Hersey was everywhere. Andy Griffith looked about the best." Pitching, as most baseball prople know, is the key ingredient of any team and Lundquist feels he needs key performances from Hill, sophomore Hersey and Griffith. Southpaw William Wynn will help but not until basketball

Hill had an excellent sophomore season two years ago but faltered somewhat last year, although he did pitch a no-hitter. The 6-5, 220pound right-hander always works the most innings on the staff and has good control. Hersey is an untested 10th grader with a live arm while Griffith is a steady senior.

Lundquist is counting on the trio to replace graduated seniors Fred Howard and Tracy Walker. The 'Noles also lost Greg Register.

Alton Davis (SCC), Brett Von Herbulis, Jeff Litton and Bill Burgess.

Griffith, who had an excellent summer with the bat playing American Legion, takes over at first base while junior Kevin Smith handles second. He'll be challenged by Paul Griffin when soccer ends. Brian Rogers will open at shortstop but will move to third base when Bruce Franklin or possibly Vernon Law comes out after basketball season ends. Sophomore Tony Cox will play third base.

Hill will get the opening nod for Thursday's Seminole County Preseason Tournament against Lake Mary with junior Steve Dennis handling the duties behind the plate. Game time is 3:30 p.m.

Right-hander Chad Braden and left-hander Chris Colon complete the mound staff. Basketballer Steve Alexander will fight for an outfield spot while junior Jim Smith will supply depth in the infield. "I can't foresee us burning it up at the beginning of the season," said Lundquist. "Once we get all the basketball players out we should come on strong late in the season. "But it's the same old story, we've got to get some pitching. Maybe we'll get some sur-

Lake Mary Prospectus 1982 Record: 12-9 हिम्पारकांग्य lellermen: लंडोब . Returning starters: six Promising newcomers: three Strength: defense Weakness: pitching Like just about every other county coach. Lake Mary's Don Smith is looking for someone to throw the ball over the plate this spring.

"We don't have anybody who can get it across," said Smith while preparing his team for the opening round of the Seminole County Baseball Tournament against Seminole Thursday at 3:30 p.m. "I'm not crying the blues, that's a fact."

The Rams return everyone from last year's team, the first year of the school, except Paul Alegre who transferred to Lyman to take a refrigeration course.

Smith plans to start either junior Barry Hysell or junior transfer from DeLand Gino Fontana against Seminole. "We're going to throw everybody to see what we've got," said Smith. Along with Hysell and Fontana, Smith has lefty Mark Chasey, junior Mark Clothier, Melbourne transfer Greg Rue and freshman Mike Schmit. Schmit has been a standout for Altamonte's 12 and 13-year-old leagues the past two years.

When not on the mound, Hysell will anchor a strong infield from his shortstop position which includes Chasey at first base, returning starter Kevin Hill at third and Ft. Myers transfer Ron Natherson at second.

Prep Baseball

"Natherson is an extremely hard worker and a spray hitter," said Smith about his newcomer. "Chasey and Hill helped themselves in our fall program."

Lake Mary's outfield should be its strong point. Left-handed hitting centerfielder Scott Underwood had a tremendous summer season for the Altamonte 15-year-olds who finished second in the state. Underwood showed good power and was the team's main RBI man.

He is flanked by Altamonte teammates Keith Wallace in left field and Kyle Brubaker in right. All three swing good bats and Underwood, a sophomore, hit .321 last year.

Steady catcher Rod Metz returns to handle the pitchers. Metz also swung a big bat for the Altamonte squad last summer.

"Rod did a fine job late in the season last year," said Smith. "He's starting to sting the ball and has begun to develop leadership

The Rams have depth with infielder Scott Sienkiewicz, and another Melbourne transfer, utility man John Gerry.

"Eleven of these 14 players were together last year when we won 12 games (out of 21)," said Smith. "That should help us experiencewise. We are still pretty young (eight sophomores and one freshman). Our defense and hitting will have to offset an inexperienced pitching staff."

Hanley, Sacks Post 2nd Wins

NEW SMYRNA BEACH - Defeating full fields of stars and cars, Junior Hanley and Greg Sacks both scored their second victory of the World Series on Tuesday night at New Smyrna Speedway. Danny Knoll remained the class of the 100-plus thunder car field by winning the "A" main for that division. The "B" feature went to Darryl Shelnut.

Education Plan Draws Fire From Businessmen

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)-A controversial report calling for a de-emphasis on vocational education and the implementation of statewide standards for graduation from high school has run into opposition from school administrators and businessmen.

Administrators said implementation of the plan could result in a doubling of the dropout rate among high school students, while businessmen said cutting vocational education programs could hurt the state's push for high technology industry.

The report-prepared by the Governor's Commission on Secondary Schools was not military powerful supporters, however.

Senate President Curis Peterson noted the varying graduation requirements in Florida's 67 counties and said such decisions should be made on the state level.

Peterson said the Senate would address a comprehensive plan called the "Raise bill" aimed at standardizing graduation requirements, implementing a 6-period school day statewide, providing additional training for one-third of the state's teachers each year and extending the school year.

Jetliner Lands Safely

MIAMI (UPI)-Passengers aboard a jetliner that scraped up a shower of sparks in an emergency belly landing say they "saw doom" before the pilot brought his Boeing 727 down in a safe, screaching slide the length of the runway.

Eastern Airlines Flight 194, en route from Palm Beach, to New York with 67 passengers and a crew of seven, turned back to land at Miami International Airport Tuesday night when one of the plane's landing gears jammed.

After attempting to free the stuck landing gear with a "touch and go" brush of Runway 9-right, pilot R.R. Curti decided to land the jetliner on its belly.

9th Sun 'N Fun Fly-In Set For March 13-19 In Lakeland

Every March, sport aviation enthusiasts converge on Lakeland to launch another season of recreational flying. This year marks the ninth annual Sun 'N Fun Fly-In.

For the week of March 13-19, pilots from distant points like Vancouver, British Columbia, Houghton, Maine, and Mexico will converge on Lakeland Municipal Airport for an action-packed celebration of flight.

Every day from 2 to 4 p.m. there will be a major airshow featuring this country's top barnstormers. Eipper Aircraft president Lyle Byrum will be making his first appearance in Florida with his Quicksilver MX Super, a 260-pound, open-cockpit, ultralight aircraft that was designed specifically for aerobatics.

Sharing the flight line with Byrum will be the Coors Beer Silver Bullitt, the world's smallest jet aircraft, piloted by Bobby Bishop. Coors will also have their Lear jet on display and will sell chances for rides in the plane (the proceeds will go to charity). Miller's will alternate. puterized skywriting squadron of T-6's on Friday and Saturday. Republic will fill in the small jet vacancy on Friday and when it is not flying in the airshow.

Also included on the roster is the Aerosport Flying Circus which stages landings on the world's smallest airport-a platform mounted on top of a pickup truck. They follow up with a chained airplane formation flight, in and Bucker Jungmeister biplane are locked together with a steel chain.

will be flying each day in the most refined examples of serobstic aircraft in the world. They'll be joined by the Rosie O'Grady Flying Circus and a perennial favorite, Ken Brock in his KB-2 gyroplane or "Flying Chair".

One of the highlights of the Sun 'N Fun with Coors, presenting their com- Fly-In is the wide assortment of display aircraft that show up. There will be hundreds of homebuilts, antiques, warbirds, rotorcraft and ultralight Saturday with their BD-5 jet and a DC-9- airplanes. John Monnett, of Monnett 80 transport that will be open for tours Experimental Aircraft in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, will be bringing in two new homebuilt designs and the Moneral which was featured recently on the cover of Popular Science magazine. There snould also be over a dozen new ultralight configurations to look at.

After Tuesday, March 15, there will be which two planes, a Great Lakes Trainer educational forums running from 9 a.m. up to airshow time in three different tents. Every day there are commercial exhibits to visit and flying enthusiasts to Members of the U.S. Aerobatics Team — meet from all over the nation and at least

Sale Approved, Bank Reopens

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—New owners of United American Bank reopened the bank Tuesday, ending a financial scramble that saw flamboyant Tennessee politician Jake Butcher lose control of the insolvent institution.

The bank, trapped with bad loans estimated at more than $50 million, was bought by Tennessee's largest bank holding company late Monday, just 16 hours after it was declared insolvent in the fourth largest bank failure in U.S. history. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. selected First Tennessee National Corp. of Memphis after "intense negotiations" with 32 banks that sought to take over the centerpiece of Butcher's financial empire. "We're opening for business as usual and we're very excited about it," Armistead Smith, the new chairman for the merged banks, said after the sale was approved early today by Knox County Chancellor David Cate.

The new bank will be known as First Tennessee Bank-Knoxville.

Butcher, a silver-haired former gasoline truck driver who wheeled and dealed his way to the top of East Tennessee banking, lost his stock in the bank and ended up barred by the FDIC from his office atop the glittering 27-story UAB tower in

Alcohol Linked To Many Accidents

ATLANTA (UPI) - Federal health officials say the excessive use of alcohol is becoming a major cause of not only traffic deaths and injuries, but non-highway accidents. Citing studies conducted in several states and New York

City, the national Centers for Disease Control said the findings should encourage doctors in hospital emergency rooms to test injured persons for alcohol blood levels. Such action would both ensure appropriate medical management of injuries and serve as an intitial step in treating problem drinking or alcoholism. In the past, public concern has focused on the relationship between alcoholism and highway injuries, but what is "less generally recognized is alcohol's association with other injuries," the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. The studies cited were conducted in Washington, Massachusetts, California and Maryland in addition to New York City and showed the high percentage of non-highway deaths and injuries related to alcohol.

A study of adult drownings in Baltimore showed high levels of alcohol in the blood of 21 of 45 victims, the CDC

A New York City study revealed that that 41 percent of 54 fall victims, 46 percent of 28 fire victims and 53 percent of 19 drowning victims had alcohol blood concentration ratings of 0.10 percent or higher. A spokesman for the CDC said a 0.10 percent level was a common definition of intoxication used by law enforcement agencies in drunken driving

In the Washington state study, alcohol use was found in 10 percent of 1,740 persons with fall injuries reported at a large hospital emergency room. Alcohol was found in 22 percent of 78 of those fall victims who sought medical care for more than one injury during the one-year study.

The Massachusetts study, based on hospital emergency room visits, showed alcohol blood readings of 0.01 percent and higher among 22 percent of 620 persons treated for injuries in the home.

Florida Cukes Ideal For Bread-Butter Pickles

Herald Correspondent

Edie Greathouse hails from Illinois but now makes her home in Chuluota. Edie and her husband James and son Frank moved to Florida last July after only two vacations to the Sunshine State.

Edie says she grew up in rural Illinois in a little town called Christman where she learned homemaking skills from her mother. Mother would cook and can everything from sausage to green beans." Edie says she has canned ever since she was old enough to know what vegetables are.

Since moving to Florida, Edie has canned Bread-'N-Butter Pickles. "I like to start canning pickles when they are ready for the first picking," she says, "when the cukes are about four or five inches long."

Once Edie's garden produced a bumper crop of mangoes (green peppers) so she decided to pickle a few quarts. She used the same vinegar solution as for her bread-'n-butter pickles. And, in preparing the peppers, she removed the caps and seeds, quartered them and packed them loosely in sterilized jars. Then she poured in the hot vinegar and spices, sealed the jars with boiled caps and seals and stored them upside down.

Since, Edie spent quite a few years working at the Zenith Radio and Television Corp., she has a lot of recipes for use with her microwave. "After you've spent eight to 10 hours away from home working, it sure is nice not to have to spend a lot of time in the kitchen when you get home."

Edie and her family are especially fond of Microwave Meatloaf, and through a little experimentation, Edie has found that using tomato soup in place of any other tomato product results in a moist meatloaf.

Another "secret" that Edie and her husband discovered one time when baking a turkey in the microwave is that basting the bird with butter several times during the cooking time, and turning it over twice will produce a turkey that is evenly browned on the outside, and equally as tender as it is good looking. Edie always uses her own special dressing when baking a microwave turkey.

Do you ever get frustrated when it comes to finding something new to cook with ground beef? Edie Greathouse has a dish that uses canned biscuits, cheese, tomato sauce and diced onions layered in a casserole.

Edie says when it comes to desserts, her all-time favorite has to be Peanut Butter Pie.

BREAD-'N-BUTTER PICKLES 3 large onions, cut and pushed into rings

1/2 bushel medium cukes, sliced 1/2-inch thick 34 cup salt

3 gallons cold water

Soak cucumbers and onions overnight in cold salted water. The next day, drain well.

Edie Greathouse says she has canned ever since she was old enough to know what vegetables are.

1 medium onion, chopped fine

1 cup crushed cracker crumbs 12 can of undiluted tomato soup

Salt & pepper to taste Mix all ingredients well and place in a glass loaf pan. Bake 20 to 30 minutes watching closely at end of cooking time so as not to burn edges of meatloaf.

AICROWAVE TURKEY AND DRESSING

Prepare dressing by combining the following ingredients and mixing well:

4 cups toasted bread crumbs 3 cups chicken broth

2 eggs

1 medium onion, chopped

1 cup chopped celery 6 tablespoons butter

2 tablespoon losely at end of cooking time so as not to

112 teaspoons salt

1/2 teaspoon pepper Wash a 10 to 12-pound turkey well. Salt ins de of cavity and brush inside and outside of bird with melted butter. Stuff turkey with dressing and close cavity. Place in shallow glass pan and microwave for 30 minutes. Turn turkey over, brush liberally with melted butter, and microwave an additional 30 minutes. Turn bird over again and brush with a final coating of melted butter. Microwave for 40 minutes. Turkey should be tender. If additional cooking is required, microwave for 10 minutes and test for doneness.

HAMBURGER CASSEROLE

2 cans of biscuits (10 count each)

2 pounds lean ground beef

I pound sliced American cheese 1 16-ounce can tomato sauce

4 cup diced onion

1. Fry ground beef adding 1 teaspoon salt and 4 teaspoon pepper. When nicely browned, drain meat and set aside. 2. Roll 5 biscuits out into a very thin layer and place in bottom of a casserole dish.

3. Cover biscuits with a thin layer of cooked ground beef. 4. Spread on a thin coat of tomato sauce, and sprinkle this with diced onions.

5. Place 3 to 4 slices of cheese on top of other ingredients. 6. Repeat layering, ending up with thinly rolled biscuits on top.

7. Bake for 25 minutes in a 350 degree oven. Optional: Additional seasonings may be added when browning ground beef such as Italian, garlic, or chili powder.

PEANUT BUTTER PIE 5 eggs, well beaten

1 cup sugar 14 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon vanilla

3 cups milk, scalded 4 cup peanut butter

Combine all ingredients except peanut butter in top of a double boiler. Stir and cook until thickened. Remove from heat and stir in peanut butter until mixture is creamy and smooth. Pour into two 9-inch ple shells. Bake for 10 minutes at 425 degrees and 40 to 50 minutes at 375 degree until pies are done.

For Fourth Year

Club 'Most Outstanding In District

The Junior Woman's Club of Sanford, Inc., was represented by 18 members attending the annual District Seven Award Junior Night and Arts and Craft Festival. The club is a member of the Florida Federation of Woman's Clubs. Junior Sorosis Club of Orlando hosted the event.

Awards were presented after judging by the Junior District Director Mrs. Nancy Arnold. The nine Junior Clubs in district Seven submit annual reports on all aspects of Club work. The awards are determined by these annual reports.

The Sanford Juniors won awards in eight of 12 categories. First place awards were given to the GFWC Jr. Project-Alcohol-Drug Abuse, Leadership, Membership and Public Affairs.

Second place awards went to Education, Programs and Public Relations-Communication.

The Arts Department received a third place award. The reports will now be sent to state officers and chairman to determine awards to be given at the State Spring Convention in April.

Junior Night is a time to be recognized for community service and involvement. The dedication and hard work of the Sanford Juniors was evident as once again, the Club received the coveted silver tray recognizing them as the "Most Outstanding Junior Club" in District Seven.

Eve Crabtree, Nancy Julian, Nancy Crawford, and now Bonnie Albers have had the honor of accepting this award for the club.

Ribbons were also presented in the Arts and Crafts Festival. There were four first place, six second place and three third place ribbons awarded to the Sanford Juniors.

Versatile Bean Basis For International, Regional Menu Ideas

Dry beans have long been known for their low cost and high nutritional value. A pound of beans, when cooked, will make about 9 servings, compared to 5 servings per pound of cheese and up to 4 servings per pound of meat, poultry or fish. Including cooked or canned beans in a meal, stretches the food dollar and adds a nutritional

A cup of cooked dry beans supplies about 225 kilocalories as well as significant amounts of fiber, protein, calcium, iron and thiamin. There is no cholesterol and only a small amount of fat.

Protein comes from two sources in the food supply, animal and plant. Protein from animal sources (meat, fish, poultry, eggs, cheese, milk) is "complete protein," since it has all eight of the essential amino acids (building blocks) present in the proper proportions for life and growth. Plant protein is "incomplete protein," since one or more of these amino acids are missing or in short supply.

Plant protein comes from three classes of foods: legumes, seeds, and grains. Dry beans belong to the legumes class, along with dry peas, lentils and peanuts. In order for the incomplete protein in dry beans to become complete, they must be combined with another protein source, from another class of foods, such as seeds, grains or animal protein.

Many recipes using dry beans also call for small amounts of meat or cheese, or for accompaniments such as rice, bread, tortillas or pasta. These "combination dishes" are high in protein and low incost. The following recipes are good examples of combination dishes. Some are universal favorites and others are regional specialties. You'll find the versatile bean provides the basis for new menu ideas and a change of

6 cups water 1 teaspoon salt

2 medium yellow Delicious apples, peeled and diced 1/2 cup golden seedless raisins

1 onion, chopped one-third cup sweet pickle relish

two-thirds cup brown sugar,

packed 1 tablespoon prepared musterd

1 teaspoon curry powder Combine beans, water and salt. Let stand overnight. Simmer 2 hours, adding water if needed. Drain beans, reserving liquid. Combine beans with remaining ingredients. Pour into 214 quart baking dish Add enough bean liquid to cover.

Bake at 300 degrees F. about 11/2 hours, adding more liquid if necessary. Makes about 8-10 servings.

RAGOUT (RAH-GOOD) 1 lb. stew beef or round steak cut into cubes 2 tablespoons shortening or

4 medium onions, peeled and quartered 1 green pepper, seeded and cut into strips Salt and pepper to taste 4 teaspoon sugar

2 cans (1 lb. each) beans in tomato sauce 1 can (12 oz.) beer

Brown meat in shortening in fry pan. Add onions and green pepper and continue cooking until vegetables are slightly browned. Add seasonings. Combine meat, vegetables and beans in a 2 quart casserole. Pour half the beer into frying pan and stir into meat juices. Pour over bean mixture and stir. Cover and bake at 350 degrees E. about one hour. Remove cover and bake another 30 minutes. Add remaining beer if mixture seems to be getting dry. Makes 4-6 servings. FRITTATA (FREE-TAH-TA)

6 eggs

1 can (1 lb.) pork and beans in tomato sauce, drained 1 cup cubed Provolone cheese

2 oz. thinly sliced Pepperoni 1-2 cloves garlic, minced 14 cup chopped fresh par-

1 teaspoon basil 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon pepper

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

In large bowl, beat eggs thoroughly. Add all other ingredients, except butter. Mix well. Melt butter in large fry pan or medium-high heat. Pour in egg mixture, cover. During cooking, occasionally remove cover and slip spatula under cooked portion to allow uncooked egg mixture to flow to the bottom. Cook until eggs are set and puffy around edges, about 10 minutes. Cut in pie-shaped wedges. Makes 6 servings. PASTA E FAGIOLI (FAH-

JO-LEE) 114 cups dry navy beans

6 cups water 14 teaspoons salt 2-3 cup oil 1 bay leaf

2-3 cloves garlic 3 carrots, diced 2 stalks celery, sliced 1 large onion, chopped 3 tablespoons oil

1-2 garlic cloves, crushed l teaspoon dry oregano 1/2 teaspoon dry basil Salt and pepper

6-7 tomatoes, peeled and chunked 1/2 lb. shell macaroni

Combine beans, water and salt. Let stand overnight in cool place. Add salt, 2-3 cup oil, bay leaf and whole garlic cloves. Simmer gently until beans are tender, 2-3 hours. Drain, reserve liquid, discard bay leaf and garlic. Heat 3 tablespoons oil in large frypan: add carrots, celery and onion and cook until onion is soft. Add crushed garlic and seasonings and simmer 30 minutes. Add tomatoes and cook another 10 minutes. Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until just tender. Combine beans, vegetables and drained pasts, along with 11/2 cups bean liquid. Cover and simmer another 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Garnish with chopped paraley and serve with grated Parmesan cheese. Makes 6-8 servings.

Orval Faubus Has No Regrets

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (NEA)-It seems like only yesterday that segregation was still in flower in the South, and intransigent governors such as Lester Maddox, George Wallace and Orval Faubus were confusing black people with pestilence and preventing them from sharing the nation's opportunities.

Now most of the aging leaders have repented. Maddox has repudiated his racist past in Georgia. Wallace has discovered the Negro constituency in Alabama. And Faubus? Well, let's talk about Faubus.

Faubus is the former governor of Arkansas. And he may be the last of the segregationists of yore and lore to refuse to apologize. He once ordered the National Guard to prevent the integration of a Little Rock high school, and he believes to this day that he did the correct thing.

"Sorry?" he says. He shakes his head. "Hell, no, I'm not sorry,"

Faubus is now 73. His neck is wrinkled and his eyelids sag. But he seems almost as defiant as ever. When he talks of his 12 years in the Arkansas statehouse, and his relationship with the civil rights turnoil of the time, he lights a cigarette, lifts his chin, and doesn't yield at all.

"Let's remember," he says, "that I wasn't completely responsible for what happened in Little Rock. I have never hated black people. I did not enjoy segregation. But I was the governor of the state, and I had to make the hard decision. Actually, I was a victim of circumstances."

The circumstances began in 1954, when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that racial segregation in puttic schools was unconstitutional. So Little Rock, like most Southern communities, stood in violation of the law, and was placed on notice to integrate its classrooms quickly.

And the city complied. Or at least it tried to comply. The Little Rock School Board voluntarily fashioned a plan to gradually desegregate the schools, 25 years ago. The plan called for a measured integration of Central High School starting in the autumn term of 1957.

One day before the high school opened, however, Gov. Faubus called up the National Guard. The next morning the troops were posted on the downtown campus. Nine black students were supposed to begin classes, but none did. The soldiers and a host of feering whites prevented the integration.

The defiance continued for three weeks. But before Faubus capitulated, in the face of federal resolve, he had become a symbol of steadfast Caucasian resistance. The media condemned him editorially. Arkansas whites were more sympathetic. He went on to serve as governor through 1966.

He went on to less impressive fates as well. In recent years, Orval Faubus has seen bad and bitter times. When he left office he wrote a couple of books, neither of which was successful; he also divorced his wife, remarried, lost a son to a drug overdose, and had heart surgery.

ORVAL FAUBUS ...former Arkansas governor was a leading segregationist back in the late 1950s and 60s and remains convinced that what he did was correct.

And he went broke. Or very nearly. Faubus ran an amusement park for a while ("Dogpatch, U.S.A.") he squandered funds on a pair of unsuccessful gubernatorial campaigns, and a few years ago he hit bottom when he took a job as a window teller in a rural bank; the job paid $5,000 a

Yet he says the skids did not break his spirit or his convictions. He still says he was right at Little Rock. He maintains he had no other choice: "People were not ready for integration then. There was blood in their eyes. I had to bring up the troops to preserve the peace."

So Faubus says his defiance was humanitarian. He claims he prevented wholesale violence and potential slaughter. He lets his cigarette burn down to the worn skin of his fingers, and he boasts that his controversial action may have saved lives and made eventual integration possible.

Some people on the scene at the time doubt that. Thus many black people in Arkansas still resent the Faubus defiance. Director of the state's veterans affairs department until Feb. 15, he is occasionally heckled, or even blasphemed, as he carries out his later life responsibilities.

Faubus says that he ignores the lingering criticism. He thinks it comes from the grossly misinformed. He says that he has served both black and white people all of his life, first as a young country postmaster, now as an old soldier, and he insists that he has never been a bigot.

Still, he adds that he's never been afraid to stick by his judgements, either. Let Maddox and Wallace confess all they want, maybe they have good reasons. But Orval Faubus looks back with pride rather than regret; he may not convince history he was right, but he has convinced himself.

Handicap Can't Stop This True Fisherman

McCLELLANVILLE, S.C. (UPI) - After Waring Hills lost his right arm and leg in a train accident 10 years ago, the first question he asked doctors was whether he could go fishing again.

"Nobody knew," the 44year-old retired railroad worker recalled. "They said if I really wanted to fish, I'd find a way. I found a way."

Hills, whose former boss called him "Creekman" because he was always fishing on his days off, lives near Tibwin Creek and fishes the Intracoastal Waterway in his 20-foot outboard boat.

Through trial and error, Hills fashioned a rod holder to use with his artificial arm.

"Holding the rod was a real pickle to start with," he said. "I have no side-to-side movement with the artificial arm, only up and down, and the weight of a fishing rod hampers that.

"I have to hold the rod at the foregrip with the hook and place the butt in a holder attached to the forearm of my artificial arm.

"The elbow joint is locked into position about 10 to 20 degrees straight up and out in front," he said. "This lets me work an artificial bait, set the hook and lean back to fight a fish."

Although the artificial arm makes some aspects of angling difficult, Hills said it also has a few advantages.

"Actually, the hook that I use is in many ways better than a real hand and arm, and I think in some ways I'm a better fisherman because of it," he said. "I use it like a vise while I'm tying on lines, hooks and swivels, and it's great for removing the barb from a fish's mouth or for holding it while you operate with the other hand."

Hills said it is easier for him to use spinning tackle since he has trouble casting and Hills said he climbs into his fishing boat "just like anybody else." "I crawl over the side," he explained. "If I can get my hand on the boat, I can get in - not very gracefully, but I get in."

The Creekman agrees with the adage that 10 percent of the fishermen catch 9 percent of the fish. But, he added, those 1 percent spend 90 percent of their time fishing.

Hills, who has lived on railroad disability checks since a train hit him while he was working as a flagman. has supervised the South Carolina Ports Authority's annual fishing tournaments for several years. But he never enters such contests.

"The biggest fish is always caught by luck," he said. "When you catch large numbers of fish, that's skill." A good fisherman must be patient, innovative, have the ability to recognize telltale signs of fish and be a sneak, Hills said.

"If you're not sneaky, you are not going to be able to fish a good drop because of other people who have seen you there," he said.

SCC Leisure Time Classes To Begin

The following classes under the Leisure Time Program at Seminole Community College begin during the last week of February and the first week of March. "These classes are self-supported by student fees at no expense to the taxpayer," according to coordinator Fay Brake. For information call SCC.

Jazz Dance-Exercise (morning, afternoon and evening classes)-A total form of dance and exercise in which you are taught proper body alignment, coordination, discipline, flexibility, and rhythm. You accomplish muscle toning, stamina, poise and confidence in yourself along with appreciation for music and total enjoyment.

Quilting - Beginners through advanced (evening class)—The following patterns will be taught: Cathedral Window, Log Cabin, Grandmothers' Flower Garden, Sunbonnet Sue, plus many more. The patterns may be used to make pillow shams, wall hangings, and full size quilts. Students are asked to bring scraps of cotton fabric to the first class meeting.

Drawing and Sketching (evening class)-Emphasis on fundamentals of charcoal sketching in preparation for painting and working in color. Students will work from still life, landscapes and live models. Students will furnish their own supplies.

Working with Wood(evening class)-

Students will learn how to manipulate hand furnish their own; supplies. and power tools and build shelves, cabinets, flower benches or any other item of wood. Students will pick their own projects and furnish their supplies.

Wu Shu Kung Fu(evening class)-One of the oldest known martial arts. The purpose of Kung Fu is not only self-defense, but also physical and mental discipline.

Advanced Wu Shu Kung Fu(evening class)-Before a student joins this class, heshe must have taken beginning Wu Shu Kung Fu. Advanced techniques will be taught.

Happy Birthday

Hettie McNamara, who has been a resident of Longwood for 87 years, turned 87 on Feb 10.

Although she was in the hospital for 10 days in January due to a heart attack and pneumonia and is feeling a bit weak, Hettie is as bright and charming as ever.

She was a school teacher for 48 years and finds enjoyment in crocheting slippers and rugs, which she gives to her friends.

Hettie also likes to do crossword puzzles and writes to

Inhibited Friend May Learn To Grin And 'Bare'

DEAR ABBY: Since my early childhood I have been going with my parents to a beautiful nudist camp that caters to families.

My problem is that I have met a very nice man who has proposed marriage, but he refuses to join me in going to the nudist camp. I love him very much, as he has many tine qualities. However, I don't think I could live without those wonderful outings in the sun at the camp. I would feel deprived, imprisoned and depressed.

He insists that he is too inhibited to feel comfortable in the presence of unclothed strangers. He's also afraid it might be sexually stimulating.

I want to marry this man, but I need to convince him to join the camp. Can you help me?

M. IN OTTAWA, CANADA DEAR M.: Inhibitions of this kind are difficult to overcome. But if you persuade him to visit the family-type camp just once, he may realize that it's a healthy family experience and there is nothing sexy about it. And if he really wants to marry you, he may decide to grin and bare It.

DEAR ABBY: For years I have been scolded by my husband for picking my teeth with a toothpick in public. Just how much of a breach of etiquette is that? He says I embarrass him. He is 71 and I'm 69, and we've been married almost 49

We're at a winter resort now. Yesterday we had dinner with friends, and I picked at my teeth at the table. Seeing no place to discard the toothpick, I chewed it up into small slivers and put

When we got home, my husband gave me a scolding. I don't think I did anything so terrible. All my other manners are good. What is the verdict?

Is my husband a nitpicker? Or am I a

VACATIONING DEAR VACATIONING: Your husband is not a "nitpicker" - neither are you a slob. However, it is considered inelegant to pick one's teeth in public. And chewing up the toothpick is another no-no. You could pick up Dutch elm disease.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this in order to save some other person from the same predicament I found myself in. I'm a high school student, living in a small town. I don't do drugs, I don't drink and my grades are very good.

I had one weakness. I was a compulsive shoplifter. I couldn't go into a store without coming out with at least one stolen object. This went on for quite a while until one day I was caught.

Man, talk about the biggest scare of your life! I was let go and only banned from the store, but that scare did something to me.

I completely reformed myself. I no longer feel the urge to steal anything. I feel much better about myself and I know the remains in my dinner napkin. I did all I'll never take another thing. Actually, I velope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box reported me a great big kiss! REFORMED STICKY FINGERS

DEAR REFORMED: You were luckier than most. One good scare is sometimes more effective than a hundred sermons. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I have started dating an older man. (I am 22.) He has been married twice and says he wants to marry again, but good sex is important to him and he doesn't want to make the same mistake he made before, so this is his proposition:

He wants me to go away for a weekend with him so he can see how I measure up. He wants to "grade" me on my sensitivity endurance, responsiveness, willingness to explore, etc. He is by far the most attractive man I have ever met, and I would very much like to be his wife, but this "trial weekend" he suggests turns me off.

I have not had sex with him, and although I am not a virgin - a fact he knows because I was completely honest with him - I do not want to be graded like a side of beef.

How can I let him know how I feel without losing him entirely?

DEAR PRIME: It's my guess that if you don't take his "test" you will lose him — which is probably the best thing that could happen to you.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, would like to give the person who 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

are not ready to commit explorers to a high-risk exposure situation," Lake Mary Fire Chief Jim Orioles explained, "However there are plenty of non-hazzardous jobs on a fire scene which we can assign to explorer personnel, thus releasing senior fire department members for actual firefighting assignments."

Other activities planned for post members include field trips to other area fire departments and a possible trip later to the state fire college in Ocala. Also in the planning stages are several social events, including a picnic and a possible record dance in the fall.

All explorers are recognized as regular junior members of the Lake Mary Volunteer Fire Department Association and are entitled to all the benefits of such membership.

Post meetings are held on alternate Sundays from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Lake Mary Fire Station. Anyone interested in additional information can contact Assistant fire Chief Bob Stoddard at

The Post is also holding an open house in connection with its first anniversary. It will be held Tuesday, Feb. 22 at the Lake Mary Fire Station beginning at 7:30 p.m. All potential explorers and their parents are cordially invited.

Try Family Lamb Suppers With A European Flair

The French and Belgians have raised the braising and stewing of meat to an art form. Hearty and satisfying dishes are a feature of their cuisines, with the Bretons in France and the Flemings in Belgium particularly adept at this style of Lamb, in particular, is appreciated in these regions. The recipes featured here use relatively economical and always available New Zealand Spring lamb shoulders for family dinners with a continential touch. Flash frozen at the peak of tenderness, the shoulders are from lambs that were milk-fed and grass-finished, grazing in the magnificent New Zealand pasture lands.

The Bretons have been combining lamb and beans for centuries, braising the succulent meat with their region's characteristic small white haricot beans. Brasied Shoulder of Lamb Bretonne is a simplified variation of the classic, calling for any small, dried white bean.

It will be a delicious as the original produced by the hardy, individualistic Bretons, for the flavors of onion, garlic and basil combine beautifully with the meat. The slow braising results in a tender shoulder that will be perfect for an informal dinner on a chilly night.

An alternative for a wonderful family supper in New Zealand Carbonnade, borrowed from the Flemings of Belgium. The Flanders region is famous for Vlaamse Karbonaden — a rich stew of meat and onions braised in beer. Lamb complements this distinctive combination, enhanced by sage and bay leaf.

Both dishes are nutritionally sound as well as delicious. Lamb has less saturated and internal fat than any other red meat and fewer calories, too. Also present are B vitamins niacin, thiamine and riboflavin - and iron. The addition of a green salad, and with the Carbonnade, noodles or rice, will bring to your dining room table the perfect antidote for cold

BRAISED SHOULDER OF LAMB BRETONNE 15 pound small, dried white beans

41/2 to 5 pounds frozen shoulder of New Zealand Spring lamb, thawed

14 teaspoon salt

- 4 teaspoon pepper 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 medium onions, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, mashed
- 4 cup flour
- 12 cup water
- 1 can (16 ounces) whole tomatoes, undrained
- 1 beef bouillon cube

1 teaspoon dried leaf basil Place beans in large bowl, cover with water, let soak at room temperature 12 hours or overnight. Drain; reserve. Season lamb with salt and pepper. In a Dutch overn or large, heavy kettle, heat oil; brown lamb on all sides. Remove and reserve. Saute onion and garlic until golden. Stir in flour; cook, stirring, 2 minutes. Mix in water until smooth. Add tomatoes, bouillon cube; basil, reserved beans and lamb. Cover. Bring to boiling, reduce heat, simmer 3 to 312 hours, or until meat is tender and pulls away from bones. Yield: 6 servings.

NEW ZEALAND LAMB CARBONNADE 41/2 to 5 pounds frozen shoulder of New Zealand Spring lamb.

Chinese Fare Whets Winter Appetites

To help you welcome the year 4681 (in the Chinese calendar) La Choy home economists have planned a dinner feast sure to spark mid-winter appetites. The highlight of the menu is Braised Spiced Pork, a dish fragrant with the flavors of tangerine, ginger, anise and cinnamon. Serve it with homemade Chicken and Water Chestnut Soup and hot cooked rice. To round out the dinner, serve Chinese Vegetables, a delicious medley which includes bean sprouts, pea pods, water chestnuts, red peppers, Chinese cabbage, bamboo shoots and spinach. Available frozen in supermarkets.

BRAISED SPICED PORK

- 2 pounds lean pork, cut in 1-inch cubes
- 3 tablespoons cooking oil
- 1 cup sherry 1/2 cup La Choy Soy Sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon powdered anise seed
- 1/2 cinnamon stick 4 whole cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup water 2 pieces fresh tangerine peel, about 1 inch square
- 2 green onions, sliced thin
- 1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger or prepared singer

Tangerine sections for garnish

Heat oil in deep saucepan or Dutch oven. When oil is hot, brown pork cubes quickly on all sides, stirring often. Add sherry, soy sauce, anise, cinnamon, cloves, salt and water. Bring to boil. Add tangerine peel, green onions, and ginger. Reduce heat, cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, about 11/2 hours or until pork is tender.

CHICKEN AND WATER CHESTNUT SOUP

- 6 cups chicken broth
- 1 whole chicken breast, skinned, boned and sliced thin 1 can (8 oz.) La Choy Sliced Water Chestnuts, drained
- 34 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 2 teaspoons cold water
- 1 tablespoon sherry

V4 teaspoon Oriental sesame oil (See Note) In large saucepan, bring chicken broth to a boll, Add chicken, water chestnuts and mushrooms. Reduce heat to low; cover pan and simmer 5 minutes.

Meanwhile, blend cornstarch and cold water. Add sherry and cornstarch mixture to soup. Cook over medium high heat, stirring constantly, until soup thickens slightly. Stir in sesame

NOTE: Oriental sesame oil, available in large supermarkets and Oriental food stores, has a pleasant nutlike flavor. It may be omitted if it is not readily available.

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 14 teaspoon pepper 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 4 medium onions, sliced (3 cups) One-third cup flour
- 1 can (12 ounces) beer, room temperature
- 2 beef bouillon cubes 1 bay leaf
- 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf sage, crumbled

Season lamb shoulder with salt and pepper. In a Dutch oven or large, heavy saucepot, heat oil; brown meat on all sides. Remove meat; reserve. Saute onions until golden. Add flour; cook 1 minute. Blend in beer until smooth. Add bouillon cubes, bay leaf, sage and reserved lamb. Cover. Bring to boiling; reduce heat; simmer 3 to 31/2 hours, or until meat is tender and pulls away from bones. Yield: 6 servings.

A touch of France pervades this delicious lamb dish.

Microwave Magic

CookCarrots To Peak Of Perfection

"Eat your vegetables" is a phrase most of us recall from our childhood.

Perhaps many children grew up not liking vegetables because first, the vegetables had very little color; the color loss was due to over cooking with too much water. Second, the vegetables were so soft they were often mushy; and, of course, the over cooking presented a product where flavor and some nutritional value was leached or damaged by heat. Use your microwave to cook

You and your family will be pleasantly surprised by the bright characteristic color of the vegetable and the enhanced flavor and tender - crisp texture of any vegetable properly microwave cooked.

For fresh vegetables, the rules concerning cooking in the microwave are as follows:

Cover the vegetables with a tight fitting cover or plastic wrap, use 100 percent power, allow 6-8 minutes per pound of vegetable, allow 5 minutes standing time. Use little or

Although there is little research that is conclusive, some findings have been published that indicate there is less nutritional value loss by microwave cooking than by conventional methods.

Carrots can be microwaved resulting in a good quality, (texture and flavor wise) entree accompaniment.

When purchasing the carrots look for firm, well-formed, smooth ones with bright color. Small to medium carrots have the best flavor. I'rim the tops but do not wash before storing. Good quality carrots can be stored in the refrigerator for several months.

To spark your families interest in carrots, try cutting them in different ways: Julienne style (long, lengthwise cuts) diagonal cuts and course shredded may be more interesting than the usual rounds.

The size of the carrot pieces does determine the cooking

Small fresh carrots about 12-16 oz. require 6-8 minutes microwave time and 2 tablespoons water.

Two inch cuts about 10-12 medium carrots, require 6-8

One-fourth inch slices, 2 cups, require 4-7 minutes and 1

GLAZED SMALL CARROTS

12 oz. fresh small carrots

2 tablespoons water Prepare according to previous microwave directions.

14 tablespoons butter

11/2 tablespoons brown sugar 4 teaspoon cinnamon 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves

4 teaspoon salt In a small bowl, microwave butter for 45 seconds. Stir in brown sugar, cinnamon, cloves and sait. Drain carrots, pour glaze over and stir to coat. Microwave 100 percent power for 20-50 seconds to melt brown sugar.

CARROTS WITH SOUR CREAM AND DILL 6 medium carrots, peeled and cut into Julienne strips

2 tablespoons water

1/4 cup chopped green onlon

4 cup sour cream

1 tablespoon brown sugar

1/4 teaspoon dill weed

In a 2-quart casserole combine carrots and water. Cover and microwave at 100 percent power for 7-8 minutes. Drain. Reserve 1 tablespoon liquid.

Stir remaining ingredients and reserved liquids. Cover and microwave at 100 percent power for 1-2 minutes. Next week's column: Greens.

Caramel Nut Pie is special treat.

Caramel Pie Perfect End To Dinner

Nut pies are especially popular in the South and in those areas throughout the country which have had an influx of Southerners through the generations.

A caramel nut pie is a rich treat, one that tops off a special dinner or a coffee-and-dessert party.

CARAMEL NUT PIE

3 eggs, well beaten 4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar

I cup dark corn syrup 14 teaspoon salt

2 teaspoons Angostura aromatic bitters 4 cup melted butter or margarine

1 can (6 oz.6 pecans or 1 can (8 oz.) walnuts

1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell with a high fluted edge In bowl, mix eggs, brown sugar, corn syrup, salt and bitters until well blended. Stir in butter and nuts. Pour mixture into pie shell. Bake in a 450-degree oven for 10 minutes to set crust. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for an additional 35 minutes or until pie is puffed and firm in the center. Cool to room temperature and serve topped with small scoops of vanilla ice cream topped with caramel syrup and a sprinkling of chopped nuts. This kitchen-tested recipe makes one 9-inch

Stuff Peppers With Nutrition

Take a portion from the meat group, another from the grain group and add a serving from the fruits and vegetables group! Sound like a lesson in nutrition?

Well, Ripe Olive Stuffed Peppers all by itself is a good example of a balanced meal with ground beef, rice, tomatoes, onion and black ripe olives inside a green pepper. So you can feel confident of supplying sound nutrition when you present this tasty and easy to make dish dramatized with ripe olive garnish.

RIPE OLIVE STUFFED PEPPERS

3 large green peppers 1/2 pound ground chuck 4 cup long grain rice 1 teaspoon salt 1 cup water

2-3rd cup pitted ripe olives 1/2 cup chopped onion 1 tablespoon oil

11/2 cups canned tomatoes 1 tablespoon tomato paste

1/2 teaspoon basil Dash pepper 4 teaspoon salt

14 cup grated Cheddar cheese 6 whole ripe olives for garnish

Cut peppers in halves lengthwise; remove seeds. Parboil for 5 minutes. Drain, and place in shallow baking dish. Brown beef lightly; stir in rice. Add I teaspoon salt and water; cover and cook 20 minutes over low heat. Meanwhile, preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Chop ripe olives coarsely. Saute onion in 1 tablespoon oil. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, basil, pepper and % teaspoon salt; simmer 10 minutes. Set aside 4 cup of the sauce for tops of peppers. Combine ripe olives and remaining sauce with cooked rice mixture. Heap into peppers. Spoon the 1/2 cup sauce over tops of rice. Cover and bake for 20 minutes.

Uncover, sprinkle with cheese, and bake 5 minutes longer. Garnish each stuffed pepper half with a whole ripe olive.

Now more than ever, we're right for you!
