Sanford Declares Emergency To Fight Mosquitoes

With mosquitoes gnawing at Sanford residents, the city commission declared an emergency Monday and decided to spend $8,193 to launch an attack against the pesky insects, the ones that bite.

Unusually high amounts of rainfall in Florida this year have produced thick swarms of mosquitoes. The soggy conditions create ideal breeding grounds for them. In Sanford, City Manager Frank Faison said he has received numerous complaints about the insects from residents and city officials.

The commission's strategy, agreed to on a 4-0 vote with Commissioner Milton Smith absent, calls for attacking the bugs where they breed — retention ponds, ditches and ponds. Larvicide would be sprayed around these areas to kill newly-hatched mosquitoes.

Also included in the mosquito battle plan is the spraying of insecticide over the city during the next month or so.

Faison said this season's horde of mosquitoes has already reached adulthood and that only about 30 days remain before most of them die off.

Commissioners Robert Thomas and John Mercer, however, said Sanford residents want something done about the problem.

"I've begun to itch already. Let's hurry up and pass this motion," Mercer said jokingly.

The commissioners declared a state of emergency so Faison won't have to take bids for the chemicals and equipment — a process which usually takes 30 days. Under the emergency, Faison said he can probably get the equipment in 15 days.

The commission considered an $18,780 plan to start spraying the streets with insecticide, but

County May Revise Pet License Fees

The method of collecting pet license fees in Seminole County has some veterinarians upset, but the problem may be resolved when the county commission meets today.

Bob McIntosh, chief of Seminole County's animal control facility, said his department will ask the county to establish a revised fee schedule and make collecting those fees by veterinarians optional.

As it stands today, anyone who takes a dog or cat to a veterinarian in Seminole County and has their pet vaccinated against rabies pays $6 for unsterilized pets for the license and 50 cents for pets that have been neutered. Although it's an annual license which expires Sept. 30, the pet owner pays the full $6 for unsterilized pets if the license is purchased between Oct. 1 and March 31, and $3 if it's purchased after March 31, although the license still expires Sept. 30.

What's got some veterinarians upset, according to McIntosh, is that pet owners see only the bottom line of the vet's bill and ignore the fact that the $6 or $3 goes to the county. The county allows vets to charge the 50-cent fee in the case of neutered dogs to cover handling costs. The county itself doesn't charge for licenses for neutered pets if they're obtained from animal control.

Veterinarians also have to keep a record of fees collected and sent to the county for tax purposes, which also doesn't sit well with them, McIntosh said.

What he proposes is a slight reduction in the fee for unsterilized pets from $6 to $5, and a new fee of $3 for neutered pets, instead of the 50 cents.

Thomas' Panel A 'Go'

Sanford City Commissioner Robert Thomas' controversial proposal to create a committee to study human relations in Sanford received unanimous approval from the city commission Monday.

The request to have the city attorney draw up an ordinance creating the committee passed easily without opposition by a 4-0 vote — contrasting sharply with the commission's negative reaction to a similar proposal by Thomas in April.

At that time, commissioners blunted Thomas' attempts to form a "bi-racial" committee because they said he acted without consulting them and because they were unclear about the committee's purpose. Some of them also doubted whether such a committee was needed in Sanford.

But Monday, Commissioner David Farr, formerly the most vocal opponent of such a committee, said he changed his mind because he believes the committee would improve Sanford.

Farr said he still has "reservations" about the proposal, but added, "If it improves the quality of life in Sanford, I'm for it."

Farr was joined in approving the measure by commissioners John Mercer, Thomas and Mayor Bettye Smith. Mrs. Smith suggested the commission give Thomas the "honor" of motioning for the ordinance to be drawn up creating the committee. Thomas made the motion, it passed unanimously with Commissioner Milton Smith absent and Mayor Smith thanked her colleagues for passing it.

Thomas said after the meeting he was pleased with the vote and stressed that the committee is not his but the whole commission's.

The ordinance must now be advertised and passed at two commission meetings to receive final approval.

Under the plan, each commissioner will nominate people to serve on the 11-member committee. The commission will then appoint nominees to the board. Committee members must be residents of Sanford, but cannot be city employees. They will serve for three-year terms, unpaid.

Board members will be picked based on their interest and experience and shall represent the various racial, ethnic, and religious groups in Sanford. When possible, the committee will consist of attorneys, law enforcement officers, business people, and those specializing in human relations such as psychologists, counselors and sociologists.

Farr said the effectiveness of the board would depend on the "quality" of people picked to serve on the board.

His Absence Ruined DUI Case

Trooper Says 'Not Guilty'

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A Florida Highway Patrol trooper pleaded not guilty Monday to a contempt of court charge leveled at him by a Circuit Court judge for failing to show up for a DUI manslaughter trial.

Trooper James Mauney was on vacation and said he was not notified of the trial date. His absence destroyed the state's case against Michael Behnke, 19, of Sanford, who was allowed to plead no contest to a lesser charge, thus cutting the maximum sentence he could receive from 15 years to five. Behnke is scheduled to be sentenced Friday on a charge of vehicular homicide. The Florida guideline-recommended sentence for vehicular homicide is one year in the county jail.

Behnke was initially charged with DUI manslaughter in the Sept. 23 death of Kimberley Lynne Croty, 15, of 125 Mable St., DeBary. The girl, a passenger in his car, was killed when Behnke's vehicle, traveling between 70 and 100 mph, slammed into a telephone pole on U.S. Highway 17-92 just south of a bridge at the Seminole-Volusia county line. The car was sheared in half. Behnke's blood alcohol level was 0.2 percent, according to an FHP report. Drivers with a level of 0.1 percent blood alcohol are considered driving under the influence.

Behnke received head injuries in the accident and was discharged from Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, a few days after the crash.

Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Leffler said at a hearing Monday he wants to pursue the matter even though the State Attorney's Office declined to prosecute the contempt charge due to conflict of interest. According to Assistant State Attorney Kurt Erlenbach, Mauney was a state's witness in the case, so Erlenbach and the office's witness coordinator will most likely be called as witnesses at future legal proceedings regarding the contempt charge, he said.

Son's Wait For Heart Agonizing, Mom Says

Mrs. Gobbell said doctors have told her son that without a heart transplant he has no more than six months to live.

"This is the hardest, nerve-wracking waiting I've ever put up with in my whole life. I hope he gets a heart soon," she said.

Mrs. Gobbell said she wasn't sure how she felt about the prospects of her son having a heart transplant. "Some last a long while and some don't," she said.

Cabinet Rejects Clemency

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Cabinet rejected by a single vote Monday 76-year-old Roswell Gilbert's bid to go free while he appeals a 25-year prison sentence for the "mercy killing" of his terminally ill wife.

"The law does not give one person the right to kill another because of illness or age," said state Comptroller Gerald Lewis, who cast the deciding vote against a conditional clemency proposed by Gov. Bob Graham last week.

Gilbert needed support from three of the six Cabinet members to go free during his appeals, which could last two years. Two Cabinet members agreed to support the proposal but two announced opposition last week.

Earlier Monday, Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner became the third member of the panel to reject the governor's recommendation.

Graham asked his Cabinet to release the ailing Gilbert as "an act of mercy," and Gilbert's daughter, Martha Moran, called Lewis her father's "last hope."

But Lewis said Gilbert's poor health and age had no bearing on his decision.

"The law does not provide that an adult who commits a crim-

School's In 'Smoothest Opening Day In Years'

Except for a few tears from kindergartners and their parents, the first day of school for 38,062 students in Seminole County was "one of the smoothest opening days in the past several years," said Karen Coleman, spokesman for the school board.

There were 902 more students in the county on the first day of school this year than there were last year when the first day total was 37,160, she said.

In elementary schools there were 16,468 students in attendance; the total number of students in middle schools was 9,136. In high schools 12,458 students showed up for the first day.

However, school officials are expecting many more students to show up within the first two weeks of school. According to figures calculated over the last five years there have been between 1,700 and 2,300 more students at school on the tenth day than on the first day.

In 1980 there were 2,223 more students at school on day 10 than on day one; in 1981 there were 1,894 more; in 1982 there were 2,314 more; in 1983 there were 1,767 more; and in 1984 there were 1,769 more.

School officials are expecting a total student body of "well over 40,000" said Mrs. Coleman due in large part to the county's rapid growth.

Best Medicine Now Management Tool

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A professional humor consultant says laughter can be an important management tool and can help defuse potentially dangerous situations.

Take the case of a policewoman called to break up a domestic quarrel, said Malcolm Kushner. "The policewoman sees a TV being thrown out the second-story window. She knocks on the door."

"Who is it?"

"Now she knows if she says 'Police,' the guy's going to go crazy. So instead, she answers, 'TV repairman.' The guy starts laughing and opens the door."

Kushner, 32, said humor is essential for executives. He put his law degree away to start his new business three years ago. "Even if you don't think the world needs a humor consultant, you'll agree we can use one less attorney," he said.

U.S. Team On Way To Moscow To Investigate 'Spy Dust'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A medical task force left today for Moscow to investigate whether a chemical tracking agent used by the Soviets may have harmed any Americans who were exposed to it, the State Department said.

The Soviet visas necessary for the trip were not received early today but there have been private assurances there would be no problems from the Soviet side, said State Department spokesman Charles Redman.

Officials from the National Institutes of Health and the Environmental Protection Agency will head the four-man team, who were not identified, said Redman.

The Soviets have denied American allegations they used a potentially cancer-causing "spy dust." They claim the charges are an attempt to poison the negotiating atmosphere between Moscow and Washington.

Redman denied a report, appearing in The Washington Times Monday, that some American diplomats who had been tracked with the invisible chemical known as NPPD, had suffered skin lesions.

Prosecutors Acted Illegally?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department will turn over information on its doomed probe of Teamsters President Jackie Presser to a federal grand jury in Cleveland investigating whether prosecutors acted illegally, a spokesman said today.

The Justice Department has repeatedly declined to discuss the government's relationship with Presser, the only major labor leader to support President Reagan's re-election bid.

The government dropped its 32-month investigation of Presser last month when it learned that the FBI had allowed the union chief to make payments to "ghost employees" — the very subject of the department's politically sensitive probe.

U.S. District Judge Sam Bell of Akron, Ohio, called for a grand jury investigation Monday to settle nagging questions about the FBI's failure to disclose Presser's role as an informant when his uncle, Allan Friedman, was convicted of embezzlement charges two years ago.

Bell also agreed to grant Friedman a new trial, which his attorneys requested to clear his name.

West German Cabinet Meets To Discuss Growing Spy Scandal

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — An East German spy network has fanned out across West Germany and it is "probable that no other country in Europe has so many spies," a top aide to Chancellor Helmut Kohl said today.

The West German cabinet held a special session today to discuss a possible shakeup in the intelligence service because of the defection last week of Hans Joachim Tiedge, 48, who had been in charge of tracking down East German spies.

Kohl was expected to announce this week if he would fire Heribert Hellenbroich, the intelligence chief who kept Tiedge at his sensitive post although it was known he drank too much and was heavily in debt.

Three other alleged spies have been unmasked in West Germany this month, including the confidential secretary to Economics Minister Martin Bangemann, an army courier and a bookkeeper for an influential private refugee group.

All three have vanished and are believed to be in East Germany.

Cracks Linked To JAL Crash

TOKYO (UPI) — A preliminary report today on a Japan Air Lines crash that killed 520 people fueled speculation that cracks in the cabin bulkhead caused the tail of the plane to fall off, aviation experts said.

The interim report, issued after two weeks of investigation by the Transport Ministry and a nine-member U.S. team, was largely a compilation of data and did not specify the cause of the crash — the world's worst single-plane accident.

The JAL Boeing 747 went out of control and crashed into a mountainside in central Japan Aug. 12. Only four of the 524 people aboard survived.

The preliminary report on the crash did not mention the cabin bulkhead. But aviation experts said it tended to support the theory that cracks in the bulkhead allowed cabin air into the non-pressurized tail. As a result, the tail section, not built to withstand the pressure, burst like a balloon, the experts theorized.

Apology Demanded For Bombing

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — Prime Minister David Lange today denounced a French report on the bombing of the Greenpeace anti-nuclear group's flagship Rainbow Warrior and demanded a French apology.

The converted trawler was sent to the bottom of Auckland Harbor last month by two limpet mines attached to its hull. A Greenpeace photographer was killed in the blast.

The report acknowledged that a man and woman charged in New Zealand with murder and arson in the attack were French intelligence officers and that four men believed connected to the incident were members of the French secret service. Three of those four have surrendered to French authorities.

The Rainbow Warrior was in Auckland to lead a flotilla of small ships to Muroroa atoll to protest French nuclear testing in the South Pacific.

Boy, 13, Banned From Attending School

AIDS Victim Learns By Phone

KOKOMO, Ind. (UPI) — The excitement on the first day of classes at Western Middle School was created by a student who wasn't even there — AIDS victim Ryan White, who was hooked up to class by a telephone link from his home.

White, 13, is barred from school because he contracted acquired immune deficiency syndrome during treatment for hemophilia.

"Everything went well with the initial tests of the (telephone) system during math class," Principal Ron Colby said Monday. "That was in the third period."

"All the media is in the science class just to see how things work and how the other students react to the situation. It's been quite an exciting day for most of the students."

Colby said he had student meetings during the first two periods for older students, but White's problem was not mentioned. But he said he spent a few minutes explaining the abundance of media attention at the school.

The telephone hookup for White was arranged as an alternative to allowing the boy to attend classes. It will be the only way Ryan will be in contact with his teachers and classmates.

Western School Corp. Superintendent J.O. Smith ruled earlier this month the boy could not attend school because the school is not equipped to accommodate students suffering from AIDS.

The telephone link was installed in the boy's home Friday. He also has a portable computer — capable of transmitting history assignments and those occasional pop quizzes teachers are infamous for — over the circuit.

Colby said the school likely will use videotaping for subjects like science lab that will require visual lessons later in the school year.

"He'd rather be at school, but he's anxious to see how it's (telephone system) going to work," his mother, Jeanne White, said. "He realizes that there would be problems if he went to school, even though he really wants to go."

State Health Commissioner Woodrow A. Myers has said Ryan should be admitted to the school because his condition would not threaten other students.

The Whites decided to battle the school corporation's decision in federal court, but the judge refused to hear the case until all local and state remedies have been exhausted.

The next step in determining whether Ryan should be admitted to school is a "case conference" among school board members, teachers, parents and health experts. Details of that meeting have not been revealed.

Meanwhile, Ryan's classroom is his bedroom.

"He's got his room set up real nice to do his work," his mother said.

Ryan's classes for the fall semester include mathematics, science, English, history and computer literacy. His homework assignments will be sent to the school to be graded.

Sanford To Firm Up Policy On Free Civic Center Use

Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith says the city commission needs clearer guidelines when deciding what community organizations get to use the city's Civic Center free of charge.

The issue came up Monday when city Parks and Recreation Director Jim Jernigan, also vice president of the Sanford Rotary Club, asked the commission for free use of the center for a club fundraiser scheduled for March.

Mayor Smith said she "loves Rotarians" but said the commission's policy for handling such requests is too vague and needs further study. She questioned why the Rotary Club should get free use of the building when a group raising money to help fight arthritis was recently denied the privilege.

Jernigan said the commission has considered such requests on a case by case basis since the center opened in 1958. Commissioner David Farr said requirements for free use are that the group has to be a non-profit organization and the purpose of the event promotes Sanford.

Jernigan said the Rotarians would pay for the electricity used to air condition the building during the event and would pay the city custodian for his services. He also added the Kiwanis Club was recently allowed to use the center free of charge for its fundraiser. But he conceded that as the growing number of community groups seek to use the center the commission may have to draw the line.

Mayor Smith said the policy as it is leaves organizations seeking use of the center "at the whim of the commission."

Farr agreed and moved that the request be tabled until the commission can firm up the policy. The motion was approved 4-0.

Parents' Night At Trinity Prep

Parents' Night, an annual tradition at Trinity Preparatory School, 4001 W. State Road 426, is scheduled to begin at 7:15 p.m. September 10.

According to the headmaster, Rev. H. Benton Ellis, "Parents' Night is an excellent opportunity for parents to meet their child's faculty and to understand how homework is to be assigned, how the course is structured and grades are derived, and in what areas parents may be of help in the academic progress of their child."

The program is designed to allow parents the opportunity to follow their child's schedule for a typical day.

Parents are urged to attend, and should arrive by 7:15 for registration in the Thomas C. Dickinson Memorial Activity Center. The program will begin at 7:30.

Third Time Was A Charm For Shuttle Launch

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Shuttle Discovery beat an advancing rainstorm and blasted off today, splashing the dawn sky with flame and thundering into orbit on a twice delayed flight to fix a broken satellite.

The giant space freighter shot away from its launching stand at 6:58 a.m. atop brilliant streamers of fire from its powerhouse solid rocket motors to begin one of the most spectacular flights in the 4-year-old shuttle program.

"That cloud is black!" commander Joe Engle yelled as the shuttle knifed through a heavy cloud deck just over the launch pad. Thirty-five minutes after takeoff, heavy rain showers rolled in, obscuring the launch pad from view.

In contrast to the last shuttle launch July 29 when one of Challenger's three main engines shut down prematurely, it was smooth sailing for Discovery today with no problems reported by the flight crew.

Launch director Robert Steck said a freighter in the launch danger area held up the blastoff by two minutes. He also said while the weather at launch time was "obviously marginal," it was acceptable for blastoff.

"I would say the attitude of the launch team and management was obviously to get this thing off the ground but we were not going to take any risks," Steck said. It was Discovery's third launch try after back-to-back weekend "scrubs."

Late in the day, the astronauts planned to launch the first of three on-board communications satellites. The spacewalk rescue of a stranded Syncom relay station is scheduled for late in the weeklong flight.

Discovery was visible for less than a minute before it disappeared from view, swallowed by an upper level layer of clouds. About 40 minutes after launch, Engle fired the shuttle's maneuvering rockets to place Discovery in a circular orbit about 218 miles high.

Joining Engle, who celebrated his 53rd birthday Monday, were copilot Richard Covey and crewmates are James "Ox" van Hoften, William Fisher and John "Mike" Lounge.

Throughout the final hours of the countdown, a fast-moving system of thunderstorms barreled toward the Kennedy Space Center, but NASA mission managers continued launch processing, hoping to get a break during the 49-minute-long launch opportunity.

The gamble paid off. As the "launch window" approached, an opening in the storm system moved over the cape and mission managers gave final clearance for blastoff.

The crew's takeoff on the 20th shuttle mission was thwarted at the last minute Saturday by sudden rain showers at launch time and on Sunday when a $1.2 million flight computer, one of five on board, broke down.

33.7 Million Americans Are Poor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of people living in poverty declined in 1984, the first significant improvement since 1976, but the number is still much worse than when the Reagan administration took office, the Census Bureau said today.

The government's annual report on poverty showed 14.4 percent of Americans — 33.7 million — below the official poverty line in 1984, a major reduction of 1.8 million people from the 15.3 percent proportion in 1983.

The reason for the improvement was the low inflation rate, which has allowed poor people to catch up somewhat with the rest of the country as it enjoyed a 3.3 percent increase in family income during the year, bureau officials said.

The report also illustrated how far the dramatic shifts in American society of the past few years have gone, with the poverty rate for children now far higher than for the elderly, reversing the pattern up until the early 1970s.

The improvement in the poverty rate was across the board for virtually every category and was significant even when food stamps, were counted as income, the report showed.

But at 14.4 percent, the proportion of people living in poverty was still well above the 13 percent in 1980 and the 14 percent in 1981.

The rate declined only slightly in 1983, less than necessary to be statistically significant, officials said.

Handicapped Caught Up In Catch-22

Disability Often Keeps Them Out Of Housing Set Aside For Them

By Gregory Gordon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Barbara Gilley, who raised three children while confined to a wheelchair, says she thought it was obvious she was a capable person — until she began looking for a federally financed apartment unit built for the handicapped.

Gilley said that when she approached managers of buildings financed and regulated by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, she was surprised, angered, and finally, disillusioned by "obnoxious" treatment. She suspects it was aimed at convincing her to look elsewhere.

"After raising three children, marriage and divorce, I had to get a rehabilitation counselor who would certify that I could live on my own, that I could take care of myself," Gilley said.

She said apartments specially equipped for the handicapped were vacant when she made telephone inquiries but would become unavailable when she arrived to fill out an application.

Gilley believes she was a victim of what one housing coordinator for the handicapped described as "the Catch-22" of taxpayer-financed housing.

"You must be handicapped to qualify for some of these programs, but the handicap may be the exact reason you are denied (admittance)," said the coordinator, who requested anonymity.

According to HUD and Farmers Home Administration budget directors, the agencies will spend over $1.5 billion in 1985 on mortgage programs that require developers to build wheelchair-accessible units. An additional $623 million in HUD funds are already committed for the next 20 years.

But handicapped and civil rights groups charge that HUD — which flies a banner outside its national headquarters in Washington proclaiming, "Fair Housing, 85 is Our Year," — has failed to enforce fair housing laws not only for minorities, but also for the handicapped.

They say that despite a General Accounting Office audit warning of the problems four years ago, only a fraction of the handicapped units are occupied by handicapped persons.

When Gilley, paralyzed below the waist from polio, applied to an Alexandria, Va., HUD complex she was immediately told, "the waiting list is very long — at least a three-year wait."

At the time, she said, non-disabled people were living in the handicapped units — designed with ramps, wider bathroom doors, grab bars by the toilets and adjustable countertops. So she asked about a separate waiting list for units for disabled people to help shorten the wait. She said she was told the list was "very long."

"They had accessible units occupied by people who didn't need them at the same time that they had long lists of disabled people," Gilley said. "It just didn't make sense."

"I never did find any (subsidized) housing, I gave up and moved to Waynesboro, (Va.), where the cost of living was cheaper."

HUD has yet to implement a regulation to require fair housing for the handicapped, and its officials acknowledge they have lost track of how many wheelchair-accessible units exist or where they are located.

Handicapped and civil rights groups allege that the Farmers Home Administration has discriminated in similar fashion.

Rachael Warren, national director of the United Cerebral Palsy Association, said the organization's "usually very long waiting lists" for accessible housing units are "getting worse."

"Lots of (handicapped) people are competing for these spots," Warren said, but they often are coming up losers.

Gilley, who now works at the Independent Living Center in Alexandria helping other handicapped people obtain housing, said managers routinely ask "very personal, very embarrassing" questions of their handicapped applicants.

For example, she said, a disabled man recently applied to HUD-financed apartments and was asked questions that were "such a blow to his self-esteem that he gave up."

"The questions were incredible," she said. "He was asked 'How do you get in and out of the bathtub? How do you get in and out of your wheelchair? How do you get on and off the toilet?'"

"The rental agent was obviously trying to discourage him from living there," she said.

Allegations of discrimination and haphazard occupancy procedures in HUD and FmHA programs are not new.

In 1981, GAO audited the agencies' projects for the elderly and the handicapped and reported that only 27 percent of the wheelchair-accessible units of the projects visited were occupied by people in wheelchairs.

The report said some disabled people were being rejected for reasons such as not being old enough, or because they had someone come into their homes during the day to provide special services such as cooking meals.

Such practices are prohibited by law.

The congressional investigative arm recommended that the agencies take action to advertise the availability and location of handicapped units, to require waiting lists for the handicapped units and to stop discriminatory practices.

To date, FmHA has only added a regulation to the project managers' handbook giving priority to people in wheelchairs for the accessible units. A FmHA official in the Property Management Division acknowledged that no letter was sent to the managers explaining or even pointing out the new rule.

Margaret Milner, a HUD program analyst, said HUD developed a "needs assessment" program for the handicapped, but it has not yet been tried.

HUD officials, whose agency financed all but one of the housing programs audited by GAO, said they have no data on the number of wheelchair-accessible units or their location.

Lex Frieden, director of the National Council for the Handicapped, said if the GAO "did the same study today, they would get the same results."

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 barred federal agencies from discriminating against the handicapped, but HUD will be the last federal agency to implement the rule.

HUD attorneys said its regulation is still in the planning stages and far from complete. But Bonnie Milstein, a civil rights attorney, says HUD's proposed rule will create more problems for the handicapped if adopted in its draft form.

Milstein, from the Center for Law and Social Policy, said HUD's proposed rule would give project managers too much control, allowing them to bar a person in a wheelchair for reasons such as "the wheelchair will leave skid marks in the hallway."

For example, she said, one manager of a HUD-financed project evicted a blind tenant because other tenants complained about his cane clicking in the halls.

Managers also could bar certain handicapped people if admitting them would create an "administrative or financial burden," Milstein said. "Of course, they'll (managers) always be able to find some administrative burden."

Meanwhile, handicapped associations said the number of people requiring wheelchair-accessible housing is growing.

Marilyn Woods, president of the National Association of the Physically Handicapped, said: "I get many, many calls from people looking for accessible housing. We can't seem to find housing for them."

Bob Ardinger, HUD's national 504 coordinator, said his office has handled about 700 handicapped discrimination complaints in the past three years and admits HUD has not done enough to increase the percentage of disabled people in the accessible units.

But, he said, "Not only does HUD need to get it all together, so do the disability groups."

"If they wait for the federal government to do it, then we'll end up with another GAO audit saying nothing's been done," Ardinger said.

Frieden says his group is preparing a "major report" on the unmet needs of the handicapped that it expects to submit to Congress in February.

Reagan Rules Out Friendlier Ties With Cuba; No S. African Sanctions

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan says he is looking "with a kind of jaundiced eye" at approving economic sanctions against South Africa, but the United States should maintain its 24-year-old trade embargo against Cuba.

The president said over-throwing the Castro regime, as sought by many Cuban-American activists who support Reagan, is not the answer to the island's open support of revolution in Latin America.

Complaining that Cuba is "openly a satellite of the Soviet Union," Reagan told Miami radio station WRHC, "We see no opening for us to be of help" renewing friendlier ties with Fidel Castro.

Asked about Cuban overtures, Reagan said: "We've responded and then we've found that really they had no concrete proposals. They were offering nothing."

"I do not believe that armed overthrow is the answer, but I believe that we should continue some of the restraints and restrictions that we have," with Cuba, he said.

The United States imposed a total trade embargo in early 1961. After the 1962 missile crisis, President Kennedy made an informal agreement with Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev to remove Russian missiles from Cuba in exchange for removal of U.S. missiles from Turkey and an American promise not to invade the island.

Reagan said the Cubans have violated "other facets of that kind of informal agreement" such as "his (Castro's) interference in Central America and Latin America in an attempt to get overthrows of legitimate, democratic governments and all."

But the president said the United States should "make it evident that any time that they want to prove by deed, not just words, that they are willing and want to come back to the community of American nations — as they once were — we'd be very happy to open the door for them."

In a separate interview with a Washington public relations firm called Washington Broadcast News, Reagan virtually ruled out signing a bill imposing sanctions on the white-ruled regime in South Africa.

He reiterated a long-standing conviction that, "I am basically opposed to the idea of punitive sanctions. I think in this particular case, South Africa, they would hurt the very people we want to help" by increasing unemployment among the black majority.

"So I can tell you I'm standing back and looking with a kind of jaundiced eye at what may come to me (from Congress), but then the final decision whether to veto or not will depend on exactly what does hit my desk."

Reagan also gave the clearest indication yet of the decision he must make this week on whether to slap imports or quotas on foreign shoe imports, which account for more than 70 percent of the U.S. market. The U.S. International Trade Commission recommended that he let the government auction the right of importers to bring in a specified level of shoes, and aides have split over whether to raise tariffs or impose a quota.

"I am opposed to protectionism. You may help some particular industry with protectionism, some group of employees, and you find you've done it at the expense of other industries, other employees," Reagan said.

Woman Gets 150-Day Jail Term In Illegal Search For Clothes

A 28-year-old Altamonte Springs woman has pleaded guilty to trespassing and criminal mischief for breaking into an apartment where her clothes were supposed to be.

Carmon Elaine Cromody, 28, of 101 E. Altamonte Drive was sentenced to 150 days in the Seminole County jail by Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor who gave Miss Cromody credit for 68 days already served.

Police were called twice on June 16 to the home of Daniel R. Kupfer, of the same address.

Kupfer told police the woman broke a window about 2:30 p.m., entered his home and demanded her clothing. He told her he had given her belongings to one of her friends. She then allegedly attacked him and he forced her from the home, the report said.

The woman was at the scene, outside the apartment, when police arrived but Kupfer refused to press charges. At the request of the apartment complex manager, officers issued a trespass warning to the woman.

The woman walked away, but in about 10 minutes police were called back to the apartment. The woman was spotted outside with a small steel pipe in her hand and broken glass from a window around her feet. Her feet and hands had been cut by the glass, the report said.

Kupfer decided to press charges and Miss Cromody was arrested.

In other court action:

— Steven Michael Pytel, 18, of 600 Cedar Run, Longwood, pleaded guilty to resisting arrest without violence. He was arrested May 5 for battery to a law enforcement officer following a traffic stop. Pytel, who pleaded guilty to the lesser charge, could receive up to a year in the county jail when sentenced Aug. 29.

— William Bruce Marshall, 20, of 258 Short St., Longwood, arrested Feb. 27 following the clubbing of a Longwood farmer, Marshall, who pleaded guilty to a charge of aggravated assault, faces up to a year in the county jail when sentenced Oct. 21.

'Someone's Been Sleeping Under My Bed And There She Goes'

A Sanford woman has been charged with burglary to an occupied dwelling after a couple reportedly found her under their bed.

Walter Bryant and Andra Hayes reported finding the woman under their bed at 719 E. 8th St., Sanford, at about 7:30 a.m. Sunday.

They nabbed the woman and held her for Sanford police, but she fled through the same bathroom window where she had apparently entered the home at about 2 a.m., a police report said.

Officers caught up with her at 814 Locust Ave. and arrested her at 8:35 a.m. She allegedly told police she had been threatened by a man she refused to identify who forced her to enter Bryant's home to look for cocaine. She didn't find any cocaine and fell asleep under the bed, the report said.

Reported missing from Bryant's pants pocket was $100, the report said.

Christine Elizabeth Hayes, 26, of 1015 Hickory Ave., was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond.

p.m., charged with robbery and grand theft. He was being held in lieu of $8,000 bond. The cash was not recovered, the report said.

CAR RAIDERS

An Apopka couple that allegedly raided cars at the Interstate Mall, Altamonte Springs, as police watched Friday has been charged with burglary to a conveyance and grand theft. The man was also charged with possession of burglary tools.

Police reported the couple entered or attempted to enter several vehicles around 11 p.m. Friday. At least $300 worth of items were reportedly taken in the raids and several vehicles were damaged in the forced entries, police reported.

Jeffrey F. Mitchell, 19, and Barbara Ann Murry, 18, both of 2266 Illinois St., have been charged in the case. She was released on bond and he was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

SOLD TO POLICE

An Oviedo man who allegedly sold marijuana to an undercover policeman in Oviedo on June 19, has been charged in the case Friday after the undercover officer identified a suspect for Oviedo police, a police report said.

The alleged sale of $20 worth of marijuana was made outside Browdy's Bar, State Road 419, Oviedo, and that's where the arrest was made at 7:32 p.m. Friday.

James Edwin Jordan, 27, of 318 Chinaberry St. was being held in lieu of $8,000 on a charge of sale of a controlled substance.

MOTEL RAID, ROBBERY

Three members of an Anderson, S.C. family were held at gunpoint at about 3:30 p.m. Saturday by two bandits who forced their way into the family's unlocked motel room, demanded cash, ordered the three into the bathroom and fled with $1,160, a sheriff's report said.

The robbery occurred at the Holiday Inn, Interstate 4, west of Sanford, and one of the victims reported seeing the pair drive away in a silver vehicle. A motel clerk said she had seen the car at the motel a few days before the robbery, the report said.

The victims are: John Denton Smith, 75, Blanche C. Smith, 73, and Dennis L. Smith, 31, the report said.

GRAVE TAMPERING

Ruth Swaggerty, 72, of 3955 Narcissus Ave., Sanford, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that her family grave plot at Sylvan Lake Cemetery, Sanford, has been tampered with.

Ms. Swaggerty told deputies Sunday that she discovered sod had been removed from a gravesite. A few days earlier her father's tombstone had been knocked over, a sheriff's report said. Deputies said the grass appeared to have been disturbed within 24 hours of their being called to the scene and it appeared the culprits had been scared away from the scene before completing whatever they intended to do.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

George Miltstead, 27, of 1590 Arden St., Longwood, reported to deputies that his wallet containing $700 was stolen from his car on Saturday.

A pocket recorder set worth $385 was stolen from the car of Charles Budzian, 42, of 1001 Hudson St., Longwood, on Sunday, a sheriff's report said.

Gold jewelry worth $1,290 was stolen from the home of Gail T. Speigle, 34, of 1356 N. Delaware St., Sanford, between Aug. 21 and Sunday, a sheriff's report said.

Mark D. Cross, 31, of 9430 Sombrero Drive, Apopka, told deputies a $150 gas grill was stolen from his carport Saturday or Sunday.

A thief took a television and a microwave oven with a combined value of $600 from the home of Nancy Chancey of 1517 Balmly Beach Drive, Apopka, between Friday and Sunday, a sheriff's report said.

Lucille S. Weinman of 466 Wilford Ave., Longwood, reported to deputies many items of antique jewelry and old coins and cash of an undetermined value were stolen from her home Friday.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

— Hargrove Harold Neff Jr., 31, of 684 Dunn Drive, Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 4:15 a.m. Saturday on Miami Springs Road, Longwood, after he started riding his motorcycle up a hill and fell off.

— Steven Harold Ewing, 31, of 2341 Hunterfield Road, Maitland, was arrested at 7:59 p.m. on U.S. 17-92, Sanford, after he had been warned not to drive by a Sanford policeman who had reportedly seen him urinate in Zayre's parking lot.

Clarification

The Evening Herald reported Monday that the Sanford City Commission was expected to discuss the Scenic Improvement Board's 1985-86 budget and give it money to clean up the city during its Monday meeting. The commission was only scheduled to discuss how the money would be spent. The board will get no money until its budget gets final approval by the city commission in September.

A War Of Propaganda

Nicaragua's civil war is being fought these days as much with propaganda as bullets, and the targets are just as often in Washington or Peoria as in Managua or Esteli.

So it comes as no surprise that the left-wing Sandinista government actively encourages sympathizers among liberal American church groups to travel in Nicaragua on ostensible peace missions.

Typically, the Americans spend a few days in Nicaragua's crumbling capital of Managua listening to canned speeches from Sandinista apparatchiks.

Then comes the obligatory demonstration in front of the American Embassy there — folk songs mixed with chants of "Nicaragua, no pasaran."

Then the Sandinistas arrange transportation out into the bush where, with a little luck, the well-meaning Norteamericanos can confront the evil contra guerrillas with pleas for "peace" — i.e., a contra surrender.

With even more luck, the whole charade might be covered by, say, CBS News and conveyed to millions of Americans right in their living rooms.

Does this serve the Sandinistas' cause? Of course it does.

And how much better that cause will be served when, as seems inevitable, some wayward band of naive Americans stumbles tragically into an ambush or firefight.

The resulting headline — "U.S.-backed contras kill American peace protesters" — should be worth a score of votes in Congress the next time the House and Senate vote on whether to provide more beans and bandages to Nicaraguan insurgents fighting a pro-Soviet regime.

All this is by way of saying that no one should be fooled by that little drama recently on the San Juan River, where 29 American activists from something called Witness for Peace, plus 18 journalists boarded a 50-foot barge and floated into contra country along the Nicaragua-Costa Rica border.

The Americans were detained overnight by unidentified armed men who might have been contras, or might have been Sandinistas for that matter.

Fortunately, the Americans were released unharmed the next morning and the entire affair ended harmlessly enough.

But it can only be a matter of time before an American dies on one of these propaganda excursions.

The Sandinistas could prevent it but are instead encouraging still more would-be "witnesses for peace" to venture into the known war zones in Nicaragua.

The most significant story out of Nicaragua in recent weeks is the big contra offensive sweeping down south of Esteli and blowing bridges on the Pan American Highway.

That, plus the growing numbers of contra volunteers, is no doubt the news the Sandinistas wanted to obscure.

And, as one of the Sandinista comandantes might well have put it over a cold beer in Managua, if a few gringo lives could be risked in the process, why so much the better.

White House Doesn't Accept American Express

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It isn't easy to get into the White House these days.

You need an I.D., and a driver's license will do while the police put your name through a computer.

But some identification will not do.

When excerpts from Jerome Alden's new play "Teddy and Alice," based on the life of Teddy Roosevelt, were performed in the East Room, one of the producers was asked for an I.D. at the gate. He pulled out an American Express card.

Sorry, he was told, the White House does not accept American Express cards.

What's in a name? But still Alden would like you to get it right. Before introductions were made he told a White House aide his name was not Jermome Aldrich and not John Alden.

He was introduced as "John Aldrich."

Vice President George Bush is going to declare his freedom — but not until 1988 when he runs for the presidency.

Bush told Leo Rennert, Washington bureau chief of the Sacramento Bee, that he reserves the "option of advocating policies different from President Reagan's" as a White House contender in 1988.

Bush has been a loyal member of the team. Never a word of deviation from the party line has been heard from his camp.

As a consequence he is held in high esteem among White House aides who do not feel threatened. Bush and White House chief of staff Donald Regan may not have that good a relationship, however.

There appeared to be a small power struggle when President Reagan underwent colon cancer surgery on July 13 transferred to Bush for eight hours.

The White House press center is undergoing a general cleanup while President Reagan vacations at his mountaintop ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., with an entourage of reporters 20 miles below.

The press room takes a heavy wear and tear on the rugs, the draperies and the wallpaper.

No major changes are planned but a new brighter look is expected when the press corps returns to the White House on Labor Day.

There will be a changing of the guard in the fall with all the old faces from the first term gone from the White House. One of the last of the "old timers" is Edward Rollins, the president's chief political adviser, who is leaving around Oct. 1.

But he still plans to keep his hand in as a political consultant, running some GOP gubernatorial and senatorial campaigns.

Max Friedersdorf, assistant for congressional liaison, also is returning to his ambassadorial post in Bermuda after putting in a second stint at the White House.

With Rollins and Friedersdorf gone, White House chief of staff Donald Regan will have his own handpicked staff and will rule the roost.

Regan operates like the chairman of the board and from that aspect he is different from Treasury Secretary James Baker who as White House chief of staff had to share power.

Since he came into the White House seven months ago, Regan has been putting out fires, with the unforeseen taking over like the hostage crisis and Reagan's cancer surgery.

Now he's looking ahead, long range to the three remaining years the president will be in office and working out a game plan with his own team.

Regan is used to running the show and political observers wonder whether he will present the president with more than one option. Since he is a decision-maker they feel he might take it unto himself to offer the president only one road. Observers concede this has not yet happened but they wonder when he consolidates his own camp whether that will remain true.

Maddox's Cancer Treatment

By Joe Parham

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI) — Former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox says the late Rep. Larry McDonald — a physician and longtime friend — recommended he seek cancer treatment at a Bahamas clinic where he was exposed to AIDS and gave him $3,000 toward treatments at the facility.

Maddox, a 1960s leader of Southern segregationists who once brandished a handgun at blacks and passed out pick handles symbolizing opposition to integration, learned he had cancer in April 1982.

He said in an interview he went to McDonald, a urologist, leader of the right-wing John Birch Society and conservative congressman from Georgia, for advice on treatment.

McDonald was a passenger aboard Korean Air Lines Flight 007 that was shot down by Soviet missiles over the Sea of Japan two years ago. There were no survivors.

"Larry said it could be something serious and that I should determine just how serious," Maddox said. "I went to another urologist and learned it was prostate cancer."

"Larry was convinced the treatment at Freeport in the Bahamas was good, particularly for my type of low-grade cancer," Maddox said.

"He felt if I'd go there and take the treatment, I'd have at least a 99 percent chance of overcoming the malignancy — he said I could just forget about the cancer."

Maddox, 69, of Marietta, was not sure he could afford treatment at the Immunology Researching Center, a facility that espoused macrobiotic diets and injections of a substance clinic directors claimed would build patients' immune systems to help them ward off cancer.

McDonald, also from Marietta, gave him $3,000 to go to the Bahamas for his first trip.

"Larry said he knew I was having financial problems because of my campaign debt from all the years and so he raised $3,000 as part of the initial costs of the first trip," said Maddox.

"He said the money came from a widow who was interested in my condition. But I don't know where the money came from — it could have come from a lot of places."

Maddox learned last month that the treatments he and about 1,000 other patients received from the center were contaminated with acquired immune deficiency syndrome antibodies.

The live AIDS virus was found in at least one bottle of serum tested by the national Centers for Disease Control, in Atlanta.

Maddox, with a contribution from a local TV station, sent 19 vials of his own serum to Emory University for testing and the results showed the presence of both the hepatitis B virus and AIDS antibodies.

Reduced Cut In Amtrak Funding Urged

Sanford is fortunate to be among 500 U.S. cities served by passenger trains. For many other American cities, rail is not an available travel option.

Passenger trains have made a tremendous comeback under Amtrak, with ridership growing and federal funding declining. But the White House, in its desire to dismantle many federal responsibilities, wants to eliminate Amtrak. Administration officials advocate reducing our nation's travel options to two — air and highway. Meanwhile, the rest of the industrialized world, which long ago

Coastal Boondoggle

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — For years we've been pointing out a surefire way to bring the federal budget deficit down: Stop costly pork-barrel projects before they get started.

That's exactly what the Interior Department tried to do last year to the Army Corps of Engineers' grandiose plan to build a pair of huge jetties at the Cape Hatteras National Seashore, a fragile strip of barrier islands running for 70 miles along the North Carolina coast.

The jetties were intended to keep sand from filling in Oregon Inlet, a channel used by fishermen going to and from the Atlantic Ocean.

Interior refused to grant the Corps of Engineers a land-use permit to build the jetties. But now North Carolina's two Republican senators, Jesse Helms and John East, have sponsored legislation that would override the department's veto.

Experts familiar with the plan predict that the jetties would turn out to be an environmental disaster. They also argue that even if the project did what the Engineers claim it will — which is debatable — the cost (more than $100 million) would far outweigh the benefits. And they accuse the Engineers of cooking the figures anyway.

Fifteen specific complaints were expressed in a letter to the Engineers by a top White House budget officer. Our associates Donald Goldberg and Corky Johnson obtained a copy of the letter. Here are the highlights:

— "Our review of the economic analysis prepared by the Corps of Engineers disclosed the use of inappropriate study methodologies, questionable assumptions and lack of documentation," the budget official stated. "The supporting data shows that the project costs will substantially exceed its benefits if more generally accepted procedures and reasonable assumptions are applied."

— The Engineers hyped the projected benefits by using the highest possible estimated cost of dredging, the alternative method of keeping Oregon Inlet clear for fishing boats, the official charged. "Using a more realistic assumption, such as the historical average dredging costs, would show the project to be uneconomic," the letter stated.

— The White House official was also skeptical of the Engineers' cavalier brushoff of environmental problems the jetties could cause. "We are concerned about the divergent opinions of the Corps and ... the team of coastal experts retained by the National Park Service, as to the environmental impacts of the project," the letter stated. "Should the project not work as modeled by the Corps, there could be significant adverse environmental impacts which could add substantially to the total cost of the already expensive project."

— In a parting shot, the budget official observed dryly: "We are concerned that submission of such a defective report may indicate that the internal review processes of your office and of the Corps are ineffective."

The Engineers, secure in their historical role as provider of pork for members of Congress, responded to the White House letter by haughtily dismissing the criticisms as "totally unsupported."

Synfuels Well On Dry Side

DENVER (NEA) — In earlier years, when the production of synthetic fuels was being promoted as a promising new technology that would meet the world's energy demands, Exxon made a financial commitment matched by few other investors.

Exxon, the world's premier energy producer, paid $300 million to acquire a 60 percent share of the Colony Oil Shale Project here in Colorado, then invested an additional $400 million in a futile attempt to rehabilitate the troubled venture.

But after several years of re-design, Exxon in 1982 abandoned its efforts because the project's estimated cost of almost $6 billion made it prohibitively expensive, even with a $1.3 billion federal loan guarantee.

Exxon also scaled back other planned synfuels initiatives, including its Cold Lake Heavy Oil Project in Canada and its Rundle Oil Shale Project in Australia.

Exxon was hardly alone. Two months before the western Colorado venture, a major coal gasification project in neighboring Wyoming also was canceled.

When the world's largest and wealthiest industrial corporation evidenced doubts about the commercial viability of synfuels, federal officials should have re-examined the government's unquesting commitment to the technology.

In Washington, however, most politicians refused to reconsider the ramifications of the Energy Security Act of 1980, which established the Synthetic Fuels Corp., and gave that quasi-governmental organization authority to commit $14.9 billion in federal funds to synfuels projects.

Although synfuels technologies were untested, the law established unrealistic production goals — 500,000 barrels of oil per day by 1987 and 2 million barrels of oil per day by 1992.

Congress' Office of Technology Assessment warned that those quotas "appear unattainable without a crash program that would involve extraordinary technical and economic risks and extensive government intervention."

Urging the SFC leadership to "trade off some near-term production" for research and development, the agency's own staff argued that "the principal economic payoff from initial synthetic fuel projects will come from the information and experience they provide, not from the barrels of fuel they produce."

But political and corporate pressure pushed the nation into premature commercialization attempts.

Those who don't want to see Sanford's travel options reduced further — those who believe Amtrak provides a service worth keeping — should contact their representative and two senators before Labor Day. Urge them to shift appropriations to Amtrak from other programs if need be, so that Amtrak funding is cut no deeper than 10 percent.

Savages' Soap Opera Ends Run Successfully

Championship teams aren't always sugar and spice. Sometimes there's a lot of oil and vinegar. The Oakland A's were known for their off-the-field brawls as much as their skillful on-the-field baseball. Manager Dick Williams was forever refereeing spats among the likes of Reggie Jackson, Ilue Moon Odom, Joe Rudi and Sal Bando.

But when it came time to step onto the field, the fistcuffs ceased and the A's were one of the most compatible units ever. It's doubtful that Oakland's three consecutive World Series titles of the early 70's will be duplicated.

Seminole County had its version of the feudin' A's this summer. Manager Don Jonas and his Seminole Savages 15 and under softball team played the role to perfection — both on and off the field.

All told, 25 girls were at one time or another on the Savages' roster. The Savages also went through two coaching staffs before settling on Ron Homan and George Frey to assist Jonas.

"It was a summer-long soap opera," said Jonas candidly. "We're all glad it's over but we're all proud of what we accomplished, too."

And they accomplished a lot between all the arguments and defections. The Savages, a product of the highly successful three-year-old Seminole Softball Club, finished third in the ASA National Tournament. They also won the Metro championship at Orlando and they finished third in the Regional at Boca Raton. The Regionals qualified them for the Nationals.

The biggest problem Jonas encountered was the usual — playing time. "All of the girls were used to starting," said the only winning football coach in the University of Central Florida's brief history. "When some of them didn't get to play, they quit."

"It was unfortunate because some of them missed the experience of a lifetime. Something they can never duplicate."

The Savages finished the season with 13 girls. At one time or another, they had almost twice that many go through the roster. They came and went through a revolving door, usually opened by unhappiness over lack of playing time. The gamut ranged from subtle departures to a parent pulling a girl off the field in the middle of a game.

"It was like a circus," said Jonas, who thought he left Barnum & Bailey when he departed UCF. "Most of the girls were varsity starters somewhere in the county. When we brought up some of the younger girls from the Eagles, those eighth graders beat out the older players."

Jonas said he could understand the girls' disappointment, yet he was disappointed, too, at the way they put themselves above the team, thus sacrificing team unity. He said, however, that the best girls were going to start.

"Understandably, this was tough to take for the older girls. Some of them had never been subs in their lives and they couldn't handle it."

Jonas went on to say that if the Seminole Softball Club ever wants to win a national championship, some girls are going to have to accept the roles of substitutes. "Some teams that we played had 20 players," he said. "And they were all cheering the girls on the field. They knew their roles. They were just happy to be on a team that was playing the national tournament."

"That is the kind of attitude we have to develop here. That's the way it is at Plantation and Pembroke Pines. Why do you think Pembroke Pines has won 21 games in a row and has been three times national champions?"

Despite their problems throughout the season, Jonas said he feels all the moves and strategies were vindicated by the third-place finish at the Nationals. "The parents were ecstatic after the Nationals," said Jonas. "The final result is what we were after. Third place in the nationals speaks for itself."

Jonas likened the atmosphere to one he experienced when UCF won its first football game in the school's history against St. Leo in 1979. Jonas, a volunteer coach that first year, guided the Knights to a 6-2 record. "It was just a tremendous feeling," he said.

Frey, who served as scorekeeper and Jonas confidant throughout the soap, said the summer was beyond belief. "We were actually winning tournaments and losing players," he said. "We lost three girls after we won the West Orange

Don Jonas was all smiles when UCF went 6-2 during its first football season. Jonas guided a girls' softball team to a third place national finish this summer but the championship season, although satisfying, had as many frowns as smiles because of the controversies.

Buddenhagen Outlasts The Zombies

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Writer

She ran 5,000 meters Saturday morning then came back Saturday evening to run two more miles.

After those two grueling runs, where would you expect to find Lake Mary's Jill Buddenhagen Saturday around midnight?

Probably passed out from fatigue, right?

How about at "The Return of the Living Dead" midnight movie at the Interstate Mall?

Buddenhagen may have felt like a zombie when Saturday was finally over, but it was definitely worth it.

Saturday morning, the 1985 Lake Mary High graduate ran in the Wib Robertson Memorial 5K race at Showalter Field. She took first place in the women's division with a fine time of 18:31, almost a minute better than the second place finisher.

Saturday evening, about 6, Buddenhagen ran in the Seminole Summertime Cross Country Jamboree two mile race at Seminole Community College. In her first ever cross country race, Buddenhagen finished second with a time of 12:03.

She still had enough stamina to stay awake for the midnight movie, probably her last one of those since she began her freshman year at the University of Central Florida Monday.

"I'm still tired from yesterday," Buddenhagen said. "I slept in between races and then I slept all day today (Sunday), too."

For Buddenhagen, Saturday's double duty capped off what was a sensational summer.

After a fine senior season in track at Lake Mary High, Buddenhagen ran in a number of road races over the summer and won every one she entered. The road races she won included the Sanford Zoo Run, the Orlando 8K Run, the DeLand Half Moon Frolic 8-mile run and Saturday's Wib Robertson Memorial 5K.

"I really had nothing else to do this summer so I kept on training with Matt Palumbo and the guys on the cross country team," Buddenhagen said. "I run with them every day and it's really helped me a lot."

Since she plans to run cross country at UCF this year, Buddenhagen decided she should run in the Summertime Cross Country Jamboree to get the feel of what she was getting into.

"I'm not used to all those bumps and stuff," she said. "I think it's harder to run cross country."

Buddenhagen not only proved to herself that she can run cross country, but she outdueled a couple of opponents she hadn't beaten this past track season. Lake Howell's Lisa Samocki and Trinity Prep's Adrienne Polittowicz.

"I was happy to beat Samocki and Polittowicz," Buddenhagen said. "I didn't know I could beat them."

Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson was also impressed with her cross country debut. "It was her first cross country race ever," Gibby said. "She looked real good. She's really come a long way since track season."

Because of her success in road races over the summer, Buddenhagen was invited to run on a team on the Grand Prix circuit.

"I wanted to run on the Grand Prix but I think cross country might conflict with it," she said. "I don't want to get burned out."

Buddenhagen's success just goes to show what hard work and dedication can do for you. A year ago, she was just a mediocre runner on the Lake Mary track team. Little did she know that when she got serious about running in 1985 that she would be climbing aboard for the ride of her life.

Manning Retires — Danielson Beats Out Kosar

United Press International

Archie Manning never played on a winning team during his 15 years in the NFL. Still, he considered his career a successful one after announcing his retirement Monday.

"I'm grateful for the fact that I played longer than most players," said the 36-year-old quarterback at the Vikings' training camp in Mankato, Minn. "I'm going home tomorrow to see my wife and boys and I'll try to adapt to a normal life."

Manning, 36, said an elbow injury that hindered him last season prompted the move, leaving the Vikings with three quarterbacks — starter Tommy Kramer, five-year veteran Wade Wilson and rookie Steve Bono.

"Last year, my arm started bothering me," Manning said. "It bothered me during the off season too. Last week, it started acting up again. It was it (my arm) or out."

Manning, a highly touted All-America out of the University of Mississippi, survived 11 losing seasons with the hapless New Orleans Saints, but still was recognized as a quality player.

A two-time Pro Bowl selection, Manning's best year was in 1980 when he led the NFC in completions (309) and passing yards (3,716), including six 300-yard passing games.

In his career, Manning has completed 2,011 of 3,642 attempts for 23,911 yards for a 55.2 percentage. He threw 172 touchdown passes.

Manning also played briefly with the Houston Oilers before being acquired by the Vikings in September, 1983.

In the biggest deal of the day Monday, Washington Redskins receiver Charlie Brown, who had publicly demanded a trade, got his wish when he was dealt to the Atlanta Falcons for veteran offensive lineman R.C. Thielmann.

Brown was quickly replaced by wide receiver Malcolm Barnwell, a deep threat who was acquired from the Los Angeles Raiders in a separate deal.

Those moves were among many completed Monday as today's deadline to trim rosters to 50 players drew near. In other training camp news:

— The Browns said Gary Danielson will be their starting quarterback this season while rookie Bernie Kosar learns the ropes. "Gary is our guy," Cleveland coach Marty Schottenheimer said. "I said a long time ago choosing a quarterback wouldn't be a very difficult decision. The quarterback derby is over."

— Former Philadelphia running back Wilbert Montgomery says a disagreement with teammate Jerry Robinson and a concern about how the Eagles would use him this season prompted his trade to the Lions.

Football

"I hadn't said anything negative about Jerry," Montgomery told the Philadelphia Inquirer. "Everything I said about Jerry was a plus. But I didn't want to come to camp and get blind-sided in practice."

Added Montgomery: "It was my knowledge the team was going to use me up in '85. Someone in the organization told me they were going to run me right, run me left and I was going to take a terrific beating."

— The Bengals traded wide receiver David Verser to the Green Bay Packers for an undisclosed draft choice.

— The Dolphins cut six players — including kicker Eddie Garcia — and placed QB Bryan Clark on injured waivers.

— NFL Players Association President Tom Condon was among nine players cut by the Chiefs. Other veterans cut were wide receiver J.T. Smith, running back E.J. Jones, defensive back Kerry Parker and linebacker John Zamberlain.

In Monday's lone game, Dallas edged Chicago 15-13.

At Irving, Texas, Rafael Septien's third field goal, a 24-yarder with three seconds remaining, gave the Cowboys a 15-13 victory over the Bears.

One of those touchdowns came with 6:29 remaining Monday night, a 10-yard throw from Mike Tomczak to fellow-rookie James Maness.

The game also marked the first major action of preseason for Chicago's Walter Payton and the first of any kind for Dallas' Tony Dorsett.

Payton gained 57 yards on 11 carries while Dorsett, who staged a training camp holdout before coming to terms with the Cowboys less than two weeks ago, picked up 36 yards on nine carries.

Pain Continues For Original Bucs

TAMPA (UPI) — The 10th year in franchise history is proving quite painful for the three remaining original Buccaneers.

Tampa Bay placed starting strong safety Mark Cotney on injured reserve Monday and waived six others to reduce its roster to 53, three over the NFL limit with a cutdown deadline of 4 p.m. EDT today.

Cotney, one of three original Buccaneers still with the club, suffered an injury to two vertebrae at the base of the neck in an Aug. 17 pre-season game against Atlanta. He did not play against New Orleans Saturday night and team physicians indicate the 33-year-old defensive back probably has a career-ending fracture.

The two other 10-year Buccaneers, All-Pro defensive end Lee Roy Selmon and center Steve Wilson, have also been hit by injuries. A herniated disc has wiped out the 1985 season for Selmon while Wilson hurt his knee in the opening exhibition against Pittsburgh and missed the next two weeks.

Waived Monday were defensive end Byron Bragg, offensive lineman Glenn Bujnoch, rookie wide receiver David Retherford, linebacker Danny Spradlin and defensive backs Anthony Washington and Leon Williams.

Becker Stirs U.S. Open Anticipation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not since the retirement of Bjorn Borg has there been such a degree of heated anticipation on the eve of the U.S. Open Championships.

Thanks to the incredible introduction of Boris Becker to big-time tennis, an exciting new element has been added, and there is strong curiosity surrounding his debut in this premier American competition.

The 17-year-old West German became the youngest man and first unseeded player to win at Wimbledon in July, but even then there were some unanswered questions. He didn't have to play any of the top four seeds, and there was little pressure as not too much was expected of him.

It's all different now. Becker

Tennis

'I could get a facelift if that's what we need.'

— Martina Navratilova

not only is seeded No. 8, but he will be the most watched player as long as he survives.

"I'm looking forward to it," said Becker, who had little time to wait because his opening round match was scheduled for today against Australian Peter Doohan. "A lot of people think I have a chance to reach the semifinals or to win, so there is more pressure on me. But I'm not looking forward to winning or the semifinals. I'm only looking to tomorrow."

To reach the semifinals, Becker most likely would have to deal first with John McEnroe, the top seed and defending champion. They are in the same quarter of the draw, and thus would meet in the quarterfinals if they both get that far.

McEnroe was scheduled to follow Becker on the Stadium Court today against Israeli Shlomo Glickstein.

On the women's side, it looks much more like business as usual. Chris Evert Lloyd and Martina Navratilova are the top seeds, and there is every likelihood they will meet in the final Sept. 7, just as they did at the French and Wimbledon championships. Not since 1982 has any woman other than Evert Lloyd or Navratilova captured a Grand Slam crown.

"I could get a facelift, if that's what we need," Navratilova said Monday when asked about the prospect of new talent emerging among the women. "Actually, we do have some new faces with people like (Gabriela) Sabatini, (Helena) Sukova and (Claudia) Kohde-Kilsch.

"Others are starting to catch up. They're playing better tennis than two, three years ago, and the level among the top 10 is higher than it was a couple of years ago."

Murray's 3 Homers, 9 RBI Rout Angels

United Press International

In a ballpark so close to Disneyland, Eddie Murray enjoyed a night almost beyond imagination.

Murray ripped three home runs and drove in nine runs Monday night, powering the Baltimore Orioles to a 17-3 rout of the California Angels.

"It's not very often you get to knock in nine runs," Murray said. "That's as many as I've ever knocked in. I'm sure I'm going to remember it."

The decision dropped California's lead in the American League West to 1 1/2 games over Kansas City.

"I've had respect and admiration for Eddie Murray since he came into the league," said California manager Gene Mauch. "I like the way he handles himself, but I'm not too crazy the way he handles us."

Murray added an RBI single in the second inning to go 4-for-5 on the night.

"I'm happy with Eddie Murray every night," said Baltimore manager Earl Weaver. "This was an outstanding night. I hope he can come back tomorrow night and do the same thing. Eddie Murray is an outstanding ballplayer. He's always there when you need him."

Murray inched starter John Candelaria, 2-1, for a three-run homer in the first inning, hit a solo shot off reliever Alan Fowikes in the fourth and chased Fowikes with a grand slam in the fifth.

Murray's last two homers, his 23rd and 24th of the season, were both hit left-handed. After his grand slam, Murray was saluted by the Anaheim Stadium crowd of 25,805 with a standing ovation.

The 29-year-old first baseman, who has driven home 102 runs, has hit 11 home runs and driven in 44 runs since the All-Star break. He tied club records for home runs and RBI in a game.

Baltimore hit seven homers to tie a club record set May 17, 1967, against Boston. Dennis Martinez, 11-7, went eight innings for the victory.

A's 3, Yankees 2

At Oakland, Calif., Dave Collins' two-out infield single with the bases loaded scored pinch-runner Steve Kellar with the winning run in the bottom of the 15th to lift the A's. Collins, a former Blue Jay, dropped the second-place Yankees four games behind Toronto in the American League East.

Royals 9, Rangers 2

At Kansas City, George Brett homered for the fourth consecutive game, scored three times and knocked in four runs to propel Charlie Leibrandt and the Royals. Willie Wilson chipped in three singles, three stolen bases and three runs to help Leibrandt improve his record to 13-6. Jeff Russell fell to 1-4.

Indians 4-3, Brewers 3-8

At Cleveland, Charlie Moore's two-out RBI single in the eighth broke a 3-3 tie, pacing the Brewers to a split. The decision also snapped the Indians' five-game winning streak. In the opener, Jerry Willard's one-out sacrifice fly in the ninth scored Pat Tabler with the winning run for Cleveland.

Blue Jays 4, Twins 3

At Minneapolis, George Bell smacked a solo homer, his fourth in as many games, and Garth Iorg hit a two-run double to spark the Blue Jays. Doyle Alexander, 13-8, scattered six hits, striking out two and walking none over 6 1/3 innings to end a personal two-game losing streak.

White Sox 7, Red Sox 6

At Chicago, Greg Walker smashed a out-out, upper deck home run in the 10th, leading the White Sox. Walker's homer, his 17th of the season, came off reliever Bob Stanley, 6-6. Bob James, who pitched 1 2-3 innings, raised his record to 6-5.

Tigers 6, Mariners 3

At Seattle, Darrell Evans belted his 29th homer, a two-run shot, and Lou Whitaker also drove in two runs to spark Detroit. Juan Berenguer, 3-3, and two relievers combined on a seven-hitter. Willie Hernandez got the last out for his 27th save. Frank Wilks, 4-6, took the loss.

IN BRIEF

Arguello Returns To Boxing Ring With 'Warmup' Against Local Pro

LOWELL, Mass. (UPI) — Alexis Arguello, the former junior welterweight champion, returns to boxing Tuesday night with a six-round "warmup" bout against a local pro. It was announced Monday.

Arguello, a 28-year-old Nicaraguan and three-time world title holder, retired after being knocked out for a second time by Aaron Pryor in September 1983. He will face Manuel Madero, 23, at the Lowell Auditorium in the feature fight of a seven-bout card.

"It's a warmup fight for him," said Conrad Jareski, a spokesman for Tri-Star Boxing, the fight promoter. "He hasn't fought in two years."

"This is his comeback. If he looks good, he'll have a fight a month later in Los Angeles with Cuptino Perez."

Perez, a Cuban, lost a split decision earlier this summer to world lightweight champion Hector Camacho.

Arguello, who has been training for the past six months in Laconia, N.H., at a camp owned by millionaire businessman Bill Miller, has won 74 of his 78 pro fights, 68 by knockouts. In addition to the junior welterweight crown, he also held the featherweight and lightweight titles.

Madero of Lowell has an 18-3-3 record. Jareski said the bout was approved over the weekend by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission.

FSU Suspends Starting Tailback

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida State starting tailback Tony Smith has been suspended for one week for breaking a training rule and will miss the Aug. 31 opener at Tulane, Coach Bobby Bowden said Monday.

Bowden would not disclose the nature of the violation.

"Tony broke a written training rule and the action I am taking is consistent with our policy," he said. "This matter is between Tony and myself and this will be my last comment on the issue."

Smith will work with the scout team this week and will rejoin the varsity next Monday. He rushed for 212 yards on 34 carries last year and was the Seminoles' leading rusher in the Citrus Bowl, gaining 65 yards and scoring one touchdown.

Sophomore Chuck Wells is expected to replace Smith for Florida State, which is 14th in the pre-season ratings. Apopka's Sammie Smith has moved up to second team.

Committee Wants Nominations

Nominations for the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame are being taken up until Sept. 15.

To be eligible for the hall, candidates must have lived in Seminole County for a period of not less than three years or must have worked in Seminole County for not less than five years.

The candidate must have made an outstanding contribution to his/her sports field as a player, coach, administrator or fan.

Candidates must be 21 years of age on the date of nomination.

Anyone who wishes to submit names for consideration should send them to: Sports Committee, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Drawer CC, Sanford, 32772-0868, along with verifiable data of the nominee's accomplishments.

Oviedo Needs Women's Teams

The City of Oviedo is contemplating running a women's softball league this fall. There will be no age minimum or maximum with the teams being of class C or D caliber.

The first call will be for teams from Oviedo. Then team from Seminole County and Eastern Orange County, Church teams, class C teams who finished in the lower half of their standings in the spring or class D teams will be included in the league.

A ten game schedule is proposed with the league operating one or two nights a week at the Oviedo Little League complex. League fees, ASA or USSSA affiliation, playing rules and playing nights will be discussed at the first organizational meeting in September.

Any teams interested in joining the Oviedo Women's Softball League, or wishing to learn more about it, should contact Mickey Norton at 365-4040.

Celtics Carr Hangs Up Sneakers

MARSHFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — Inevitably, on M.L. Carr's final day as a Boston Celtic, his trademark towel was in his hands. But this time, it was for his tears instead of cheers.

The popular cheerleader for the Boston Garden crowds, but often a target of abuse in other arenas, announced his retirement Monday after a nine-year career in the NBA.

"This team has a lot of talent and I said 'I'd do whatever it took for the team to win, and so now it's time for me to move along,'" Carr, 34, said at a news conference at the team's rookie camp. "This time the towel's not to get the fans cheering but for wiping my eyes."

Winter Haven Trims Osceola

Tony DeFrancesco's single in the bottom of the 12th inning pushed across the winning run as Winter Haven trimmed the Osceola Astros, 4-3, Monday night in Florida State League baseball at Winter Haven's Chain O' Lakes stadium.

Osceola, which has already clinched the Central Division, hosts Winter Haven tonight at 6:30. Bob Parker, ex-Lyman High and SCC star, stole his 32nd base and scored for Osceola.

In other minor league play, Orlando was rained out at Greenville. The O-Twins will play a twinbill tonight.

Rogers Runs Off 23rd Win

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — After starting sixth on the grid, David Rogers moved up on the point on lap five and went on to win the 25-lap late model feature on Saturday night at the New Smyrna Speedway.

For Rogers and the Wayne Densch Budweiser Firebird, it was their fifth victory in a row and win No. 23 of the current season. LeRoy Porter was second, followed by Lee Faulk who has just signed a major sponsorship agreement with Champion TV and Appliances Rentals. Finishing fourth and fifth were Joe Middleton and Tim Noonan, respectively.

Driving the Humphreys/Watts Gold Exchange Firebird, with power by Jack Tant, Stan Eads dominated the thundercar division. Eads, the 1985 World Series Champion, turned the fastest time, won the fast heat and led every lap of the main event. Pete Starr, Ken Copley, up from last starting spot, Ben Booth and John Cochran rounded out the top five.

Lance Smith and the Hunt's Used Cars/Bud Light Oldsmobile finally made it to the winner's circle in the street stock main, but the win was definitely not an easy one, as Wild Bill Kinley, in his big block Cougar, gave him a tough run for his money. Early race leader Ted Mitchem was third, followed by Doug Howard and Sanford's Joey Wurmack.

Rookie Allan Wakler, a natural talent behind the wheel of a stockcar, scored his fourth victory out of seven starts, at the wheel of the Kirkland Sod Chevlele.

The four-cylinder main went to Jerry Symons.

The pit stop contest went to LeRoy Porter's crew headed by David "Tank" McDonald.

Kenny Burdines of Ocoee brought a roadrunner to the track, but it locked up a reverse, so he entered the backwards race and won it.

End of the Month Championship events for all divisions, including a 50-lapper for the super late models are slated for this coming Saturday.

U.S. Open Thumbnails

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thumbnail sketches of the top 10 seeds in the men's and women's singles for the U.S. Open Tennis Champion ship.

MEN

John McEnroe (1)
Temperamental, tempestuous and fatigued, McEnroe is the defending champion and is seeking his fifth Open crown in seven years. A 28-year-old left hander, McEnroe believes that no one is capable of beating him if he doesn't beat himself. Although he lost his No. 1 world ranking last week, McEnroe has been the year-end No. 1 in each of the last four years, and he was seeded No. 1 in the Open for a record fifth consecutive year. Following his loss in the quarterfinals of Wimbledon, McEnroe has won his last two tournaments.

This powerful Czechoslovakian has reached the final of the U.S. Open the last three years and lost each time. He has a reputation of falling in big matches, losing finals of the French and Australian Opens as well. His only Grand Slam title came in the 1984 French Lendl. 25, has been ranked among the world's top three since 1981, and currently is No. 1. Lendl has a wicked serve and devastating forehand. A severe exercise program and a loss of weight in recent months has given him added speed and confidence.

Mats Wilander (3)
A few days past his 21st birthday, this quiet Swede already owns four Grand Slam championships, winning the French and Australian twice each. Wilander has a tendency to downplay his own abilities, and with his reliance on a baseline game he never has made it past the quarterfinals on the fast courts of Flushing Meadow.

Jerry Connors (4)
This gallant warrior is nearing the close of a glamorous career, and has dropped several hints that the end may be near. Connors has won the Open five times, and is the only person to capture the championship on three different surfaces. There is concern that, a few days shy of his 30th birthday, he may no longer have the staying power to win another major, but it is worth noting that none of his major rivals are ready to write him off.

Kevin Carron (5)
Owner of one of the more devastating serves in tennis, Carron is a definite threat on the fast surface of Flushing Meadow. He generally plays his best in Grand Slam events, and this year he upset both McEnroe and Connors at Wimbledon before losing the final to Boris Becker. In the 1983 Wimbledon, Carron served 33 aces against Connors to reach the semifinals.

Anders Jarryd (6)
An excellent doubles player, Jarryd first broke into the top 10 in singles last year. He is a bit more demonstrative than the other young Swedes, who are known for their self-control. Jarryd, who is 24, had a good victory over Wilander earlier this year to win the Belgian Indoor Championships.

Thomas Meek (7)
After winning the French Open in 1983, the first Frenchman to do so since 1968, Noah was troubled by a series of injuries last year and fared poorly, playing only 11 tournaments and winning a mere 23 matches. Marriage, plus the return of health, have lifted his spirits. Meek and Noah marked his return to championship form by winning the Italian Open in May.

Boris Becker (8)
At 17, this strawberry blond West German is the most exciting newcomer in several years. A professional of less than a year, Becker achieved instant notoriety by becoming the youngest man, and first unseeded player, ever to capture Wimbledon. Prior to that he also won at Queens, the 6-1, 175-pounder is aggressive and intimidating, possesses a fierce serve, and has no fear of diving anywhere on the court in pursuit of the ball.

Miloslav Mecir (9)
The 21-year-old from Czechoslovakia has risen quickly in the rankings this year after winning up 1984 at He. He gained his first professional triumph by winning at Rotterdam, the Netherlands. March, and he followed this by beating Henrik Sundstram in the final of the German Open. Mecir was the losing finalist to Noah in the Italian Open.

Joachim Nystrom (10)
Nystrom is another player who made his big move in 1984, winning four tournaments and helping Sweden to its victory over the United States in the Davis Cup. He reached the round of 16 in the U.S. Open last year. His tournament successes this year include the Bavarian and Swiss Opens.

WOMEN

Chris Evert Lloyd (1)
Probably the most determined of the women players and an athlete who is deeply committed to her game. Rather than give in to the recent onslaught of Navratilova, when she dropped 13 consecutive matches to her rival, Evert Lloyd instead became even more determined to prove herself. Evert Lloyd attained her goal by beating Navratilova twice this year, including the French Open final, enabling her to regain the No. 1 ranking. Evert Lloyd, 30, has won the U.S. and French Opens six times each and Wimbledon three times.

Martina Navratilova (2)
All this naturalized American wants to do is to be recognized as the greatest women's tennis player of all time. She has given herself a good start in this direction, winning the U.S. Open the last two years, gaining her fifth Wimbledon crown in July, and winning the French and Australian twice each. Navratilova has strung together several incredible seasons, and in 1984 she lost only two of 80 matches, setting a record by winning 74 consecutive matches.

Hana Mandlikova (3)
A moody and erratic player, Mandlikova is a graceful athlete and has the ability to beat anyone, when she is on her game. Like Navratilova, she is aggressive, attacking the net when she can, and is an attractive player to watch. The 23-year-old from Czechoslovakia is comfortable on the fast surface of Flushing Meadow and has reached the quarterfinals of the Open the last five years, making it to the final in 1981.

Pam Shriver (4)
Although she has ranked among the world's top 10 since 1980, Shriver is frustrated at her failure, except for a brief period in 1984, to crack the top three. Tall and lanky, she is another serve-and-volleyer and has produced several notable upsets of Navratilova, her friend and doubles partner. Including a semifinal success in the 1978 U.S. Open. A young veteran at 23, Shriver took a two-month break early in 1985, and she returned to the circuit with a positive attitude, winning a couple of tournaments in Australia.

Clavia Korda Klitch (5)
A fastener, Korda Klitch has made a new commitment to tennis this year, working on her speed and building on her confidence. During the summer she put together a string of four semifinal appearances in six tournaments, culminating this with a victory over Shriver in the final of the Virginia Slims of Los Angeles which she called "the greatest match of my life."

Zina Garrison (6)
A product of a public parks program in Houston, Texas, Garrison first broke into the top 10 in 1983, two years after winning both the Wimbledon and U.S. Junior titles. The 21-year-old is the youngest of seven children. In her first tournament as a pro, the 1982 French Open, she reached the quarterfinals.

Helene Sukova (7)
Sukova, whose late mother Vera once coached Navratilova in Czechoslovakia, earned a niche in history when she defeated Navratilova in the 1984 Australian Open semifinal. This triumph ended Navratilova's record string of 32 consecutive match victories and also denied her a seventh successive Grand Slam crown. Sukova, who had broken into the world top 10 only a month earlier, still took the final to Chris Evert Lloyd.

Manuela Maleeva (8)
A relative newcomer to the spotlight, Maleeva earned notice when she defeated Chris Evert Lloyd in the final of the 1984 Italian Open. An 18-year-old from Bulgaria, Maleeva won five tournaments in all in 1984 when she climbed to a No. 6 ranking and she was voted "Most Improved Newcomer."

Kathy Riordan (9)
Riordan is one of the whit kids to escape early burnout. Among her "youngest" credits are youngest player to win a match at Wimbledon (14 years, 91 days), youngest player to turn pro (in 1981) and youngest quarterfinalist in the history of the French Open (1983). Now a mature 18, Riordan won her first American tournament last week by winning at Mahesh, N.J. She also was a Wimbledon semifinalist.

Gabriela Sabatini (10)
At 15, this 5-foot-7 Argentine is one of the bright newcomers to tennis. She turned professional Jan. 1 this year after ranking as the No. 1 world junior in 1984. At last year's U.S. Open she became the youngest player ever to win a match, reaching "the third round, and she also gained the third round at Wimbledon this year.

...Becker

Becker won a tournament at the Queens Club in London, and he looks upon it as a favorable omen that on Sunday he captured the ATP Championship, easily defeating Mats Wilander in the final.

"It's the same as Queens, so I'm a little happy," he said Monday. "I played good to beat Wilander. He's the highest ranked player I've beaten, so I feel really good."

McEnroe, following his quarterfinal defeat to Kevin Carron at Wimbledon took a month's rest and then won his last two tournaments, beating Ivan Lendl in both finals. He, too, is eager in an attempt to annex a third successive Open title.

This is Becker's first appearance in the main draw of the Open, although he did play in the junior championship. Navratilova met with him Monday and warned him about the distractions at Flushing Meadow, most particularly the planes that are continually passing and noisy crowds.

"Bring cotton balls for your ears," she said. "I'm used to all the noise because I've been through it. There are so many distractions around you have to concentrate harder and it's harder to concentrate, so you have to make an effort."

Australian Wendy Turnbull, the 12th seed, was scheduled to open the competition at 11 a.m. EDT on the Stadium Court against Virginia Ruzici of Romania, followed by Becker-Doolan and McEnroe-Glickstein.

Johan Krick, seeded No. 12 among the men, was listed for the opening match on the Grandstand Court against Paul McNamee, followed by No. 15 Carling Bassett against Iva Budarova and No. 3 Wilander against Vijay Amritraj.

Cable Customers May Get Less TV For Their Money

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Cable television customers may get less choice for their money of what to tune in on the tube because of a recent federal court decision, a University of Florida professor says.

A July 19 ruling says cable companies will no longer be required to carry all TV stations whose signals reach any part of their franchise area. Ralph Lowenstein, dean of Florida's College of Journalism, said this can mean fewer programs if the ruling goes into effect as planned in September.

"It's probable that consumers will have less choice and will get fewer stations for the same amount of money," said Lowenstein, a member of the National Association of Broadcasters' First Amendment Committee.

The appeals court decision overturns a 1972 rule adopted by the Federal Communications Commission requiring cable companies to carry any high-power television station that could be received in their area.

"There will be instances in many communities where stations and programs people have been watching for years will no longer be available," said Tom McCoy, vice president of the National Association of Broadcasters.

McCoy said when cable companies weed out some local and regional stations, viewers will lose, because local news, weather and sports reporting will be affected.

Elephant Man Disease Probed

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Researchers are looking through the blood of four generations of a family to find the gene linked to Elephant Man's disease.

Fifty members of the Stone family, ranging in age from four months to 65 years, gave blood to be tested and provided medical histories.

The Stones may be the largest family ever studied in which neurofibromatosis is present. The hereditary disease, commonly known as the Elephant Man's disease, afflicts about one in 3,000 people. Its effects range from harmless birth marks to debilitating and disfiguring tumors that can develop at any age.

Researchers at the University of Miami School of Medicine will work with doctors at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore to take apart the chromosomes found in the blood, looking for anomalies that may be tied to the presence of neurofibromatosis.

The research may enable doctors to test for the genetic disease before birth. Some parents may choose to abort a fetus rather than chance the disease's potentially devastating effects. The study also could lead eventually to treatment, or possible genetic engineering, to control or eliminate the disease.

Coast Guard Rescues Haitians

MIAMI (UPI) — The Coast Guard airlifted to Miami 15 sick Haitians who were among a large group of refugees aboard a sailboat that washed ashore on a barren island in The Bahamas two weeks ago.

"Six of them are in pretty bad shape," said Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Bob Baerten Monday. "Their bodies are covered by sores, abscesses and ulcers."

The 13 women and two men were among a group of 136 Haitians who ran their 35-foot sailboat ashore on Flamingo Cay.

Nine other Haitians, including a newborn infant, were flown to Miami from Flamingo Cay last week for medical treatment. They were to be turned over to U.S. immigration officials for detention as soon as they become well enough.

schedule, McIntosh will ask the county to approve an optional fee collection system allowing veterinarians to collect the fees or not. If a vet doesn't want to collect the fee, he can give the pet owner a copy of the rabies vaccination certification along with an envelope on which the fee schedule is printed and allow the pet owner to mail the rabies certificate with the required fee to the county.

"We've had some vets complain about collecting fees, but there are some who say they don't mind doing it. They consider it an extended service for their clients."

"With this new fee schedule we can achieve a few things that will benefit the general public and educate pet owners," McIntosh said. "Our plan is to take $2 from each fee collected — the $6 for unsterilized pets, or the $5 for neutered pets — and establish a slush fund. Then we can encourage and induce people to have their pets neutered. Those who do will receive a $25 rebate paid from the slush fund. We'll also have literature printed up detailing county ordinances as they relate to pets, as well as material beneficial to pet owners that we'll include in the envelope we mail them the license tag in."

Another important element in the fee schedule McIntosh will propose is an annual pet license that expires a year from the date of purchase, rather than on a fiscal year basis as is the case now.

The $25 rebate will be tied to an animal adoption fee of $35 for cats and dogs. Anyone adopting a dog or cat from the animal control center would be eligible for the rebate, according to McIntosh's proposal.

squashed it after Faison and City Attorney William Colbert said oily residue from the spray may fall on people, cars and homes and generate complaints.

That much money would be needed "to get back in the business" of killing mosquitoes, Faison said.

The city had a fogging program but discontinued it in 1978 because it wasn't working, Commissioner David Farr said. When the city stopped the program, the equipment was sold.

Farr said the commission at that time determined spraying didn't work and that mosquitoes came with the territory.

Fogging, Farr said, is "just an exercise to make the people feel better."

Chuck Volk, operator of Monroe Harbour marina, which sprays its area for mosquitoes, agreed with Farr.

"When they fog, all the mosquitoes move to the other side of the island," Volk said.

But a Sanford man who did not give his name told the commission he is not just concerned with suffering from mosquito bites but from encephalitis, a brain disease carried by some mosquitoes. He said he has a swimming pool that his family can't enjoy after dark because the peaky bloodsuckers make swimming unbearable.

He also said Orange County sprays, so it must do some good.

Farr said he agreed with fighting the mosquitoes, but not just "running a fogger around town."

He suggested renting the marina's equipment, but Faison said it couldn't be leased.

Colbert told the commissioners fogging would up the city's liability. The public is more aware of environmental concerns and the effects of chemicals than in 1978, he said, and if residents experienced physical problems from spraying it could be more expensive than the equipment to pay correct any problems.

Gunman Surrenders At Orlando Naval Training Center

Ex-Sailor Frees Hostage

ORLANDO (UPI) — An ex-sailor who took a U.S. Navy officer hostage put down his gun early today and surrendered to police after a peaceful, three-hour standoff, authorities say.

Carey Smith, 20, of Georgia, apparently distraught over being discharged from the Navy and breaking up with his girlfriend, had taken Lt. Steve Gabriel hostage Monday night at the U.S. Naval Training Center in Orlando, Navy Lt. Kevin Wensing said.

Smith dropped his gun, released Gabriel and gave himself up after talking with police negotiators and a chaplain. No shots were fired, and police said Smith made no threats or demands during the standoff, Wensing said. "It was a pretty routine procedure," Orlando police spokesman Jeff Peck said.

Smith graduated from a nuclear power school at the center last year. He went to a nuclear prototype school in upstate New York where he apparently failed his classes. He was discharged from the Navy within the last six months.

He walked onto the base in Orlando around 9:30 p.m. Monday and held up another sailor, Petty Officer Stefan Holloway, for his identification card, Wensing said.

With the card, Smith got into the nuclear power school, a restricted area where Gabriel was teaching a class. Wensing said Smith grabbed Gabriel and took him to another building on the base.

Wensing said Holloway called base security — as did Gabriel, who somehow was able to make a phone call. Orlando and Navy police evacuated the building where Smith and Gabriel were.

Negotiators kept in contact with Smith and around 12:30 a.m. today he surrendered, Wensing said. He was taken to Orlando police headquarters for questioning.

Police said Smith will probably be charged with aggravated assault.

The plan calls for the board to elect officers and hold monthly meetings open to the public at city hall.

The purpose of the committee, according to Thomas' proposal, is "to stress the prevention of intergroup tensions and to continue the maintenance of harmony and unity among the citizens of Sanford while other changes of a rapidly growing city take place."

Thomas said it is envisioned the committee will encourage understanding, respect and equal opportunity among all of Sanford's citizens, regardless of age, race, religion or social status.

The committee will study problems or needs in the community and recommend appropriate action by the commission. Forums will be held where citizens can bring grievances, suggestions or be channeled in the right direction if they have a problem or complaint.

No date has been set for the commission to nominate committee members or for its first meeting.

Leffler said he cannot prosecute the case and remain neutral as the judge so he is going to appoint a special prosecutor to handle the case. A hearing date is to be set.

Although the state declined to prosecute the contempt charge, Erlenbach said he felt "horrible" when the trooper failed to show. He said he even entertained having the coast guard pick him up, because he knew Mauney was out scuba diving, but he didn't know where. When the plea was entered in open court, the dead girl's sister screamed "You murdered my sister. You killed her," Erlenbach said.

At Monday's hearing, Mauney's attorney, Stewart

Cohen, of Orlando, told Leffler that since he was pressing the issue and not the State Attorney's Office, he did not need to appoint a special prosecutor and the issue be resolved immediately, Leffler disagreed.

"The state ought to be represented in this matter," he told Cohen.

Cohen said his client was ready to go ahead with the case at that time and had witnesses ready to testify. Further, he said the trooper is "burdened" by the issue, would like to see it resolved, and that setting another court date would tax FHP's manpower because Mauney and his supervisors would have to be called off the job again to testify.

Leffler replied the case could proceed if Mauney was ready to admit that he failed to show up at the trial and plead guilty to the contempt charge.

Cohen said Mauney admits he was not at the trial and was off the Florida coast scuba diving at the time. However, Cohen said, his client contends he was not notified of the trial and thus pleads not guilty to the contempt charge.

Erlenbach, who was not at the hearing, said Monday he subpoenaed Mauney months in advance of the trial and talked to him a week before the trial telling him to contact the office immediately if there were any reasons he could not make the trial. Erlenbach said the office's witness coordinator also spoke to Mauney about the trial date.

Leffler said the conflict of whether or not Mauney was notified was "the reason why we need to get to the bottom of this."

Mauney's supervisor, Capt. Leland Newborn, said earlier that the conflict between the state and the trooper was a "misunderstanding." He said what might have happened was that the FHP dispatch office, following routine procedure, may have held up Mauney's mail notification of the trial until he returned from vacation.

If convicted, Mauney — called a "very conscientious officer" by Newborn — could be sentenced up to six months in jail and fined $500.

In a related matter, a wrongful death suit has been filed against Behnke by the girl's parents, Kenneth Crotty and Elaine Kobak. They are seeking an unspecified amount of damages in excess of $5,000.

trial act shall be judged according to age, and we must not say that acts such as the one committed by Mr. Gilbert shall be excused by circumstances of age or health," Lewis said.

Gilbert, a retired engineer, is serving a mandatory minimum sentence of 25 years for first-degree murder for the March 4 shooting death of his wife, Emily, 73, who suffered from two incurable illnesses — Alzheimer's disease and the painful bone disorder, osteoporosis.

"Mercy can be defined as compassion shown to a victim of misfortune," Lewis said. "Perhaps Roswell Gilbert's act was one of mercy, perhaps not. Nonetheless, he violated one of the tenets of our society."

"Mr. Gilbert is not a victim of misfortune, he is a man facing the tragic consequences of his premeditated and completely unacceptable act," he said.

Moran, Gilbert's only daughter, learned of her father's fate while participating on a talk show at Radio Station WIOD in Miami.

"I'm sorry that both these gentlemen seem to be unfeeling about the situation that Daddy's in," she said, breaking into sobs.

"I just don't know what's going to happen to him now. Somehow I failed Daddy and I have to live with that too," she said.

Moran tried to place a last-minute telephone call to Lewis from the station, but a secretary said the comptroller was busy and could not talk with her.

Conner said he feared a vote to free Gilbert would set a precedent and encourage attempts at mercy killings across the country.

"Mr. Gilbert's case in my judgment did not warrant setting a new precedent," Conner said. "He was not as compassionate as I think people might be."

Conner referred to a so-called mercy killing Saturday in Cleveland. Authorities said Joseph Tyukody, 77, "went off the deep end" from the constant strain of caring for his invalid wife, Mary, 78, and shot her to death.

"How many thousands of other cases exist like this in the United States, and what should be done about them?" Conner asked.

Gilbert had no comment and was accepting no visitors at the Avon Park Correctional Institute, where he has suffered from a kidney ailment.

Gilbert, who was convicted May 9, contended during his trial he killed his wife of 51 years as an "act of love." Testimony by friends and neighbors of the couple showed that Emily Gilbert repeatedly asked her husband to end her suffering.

Medical testimony indicated that the osteoporosis, a degenerative bone disease, caused intense pain. Alzheimer's Disease slowly leads to senility.

Prosecutors said during the trial that Gilbert shot his wife twice in the head with a 9mm Luger pistol because she had become a burden.

transplant, his wife, Carol, said from Rockledge Monday. The doctors recommended the move to lessen his chance of contracting an infection while in the hospital, Mrs. Hudson said. He is in contact with the hospital via a beeper page and will visit doctors two or three times a week for checkups, she said.

"The waiting is getting very weary and depressing," she added. But she said the heart transplant patients she's seen in the hospital appear healthy, prompting her to trust such a transplant will give her husband vigor.

"We're hoping for a new life for him," she said.

She said that while they are hopeful he will receive a transplant, they also recognize the dark knowledge that for him to get a new heart, someone else has to experience tragedy. "Isn't that horrible?" she said.

Since going to Atlanta six weeks ago, Hudson has dropped 26 pounds, from 200 to 174, she said.

Hudson, a man who enjoys outdoor activities, had a massive heart attack in March 1983 and has had two since, according to his mother. She said it's the time before the transplant that is the most difficult to endure.

Mrs. Gobbell said her son's spirits shift from day to day as he awaits the operation that hinges on a suitable donor being found. She said she thought his former school mates would like to know of his situation.

She said heart problems apparently run in the family since she suffers from the same disease her son does.

"Mine's been bothering me for six years. I just stay on my medication," she said.

She said her son loves to fish and hunt, and was an avid bowler.

Hudson, a machinist, owns Brevard Machine Shop in Cocoa. A brother, Ray Hudson, 44, lives in Titusville.

The Hudsons have two children, Susie 13, and Michael, 3.

During May in a separate incident involving transplants, a 16-year-old Sanford boy became a heart donor after he was fatally injured in a car-pedestrian accident in Sanford. His heart was transplanted by a medical team from Augusta, Ga., into the chest of an ailing 42-year-old South Carolina man.

James Stephens, of Beech Island, who received the heart of Herbert Raymond Squires III, is out of the hospital and feeling better than he has for years, his mother, Mrs. James Stephens Sr., said.

Rebecca Rogers, spokesman for the University Hospital in Augusta, said Stevens is doing very well and is very grateful to the family of the donor.

Couple Repeat Vows In Dallas

Mary Catherine Schroeter and Clark Barto Gallagher, both of Dallas, Texas, were married Aug. 24 in St. Rita Catholic Church, Dallas. The Rev. Richard Toye, S.J., performed the 8 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schroeter, 5219 Del Roy Drive, Dallas. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. C.B. (Kay) Gallagher, Fern Park, formerly of Sanford, and the late Mr. C.B. "Bart" Gallagher.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a white formal organza gown fashioned along the Victorian silhouette lavishly embellished with reembroidered lace and seed pearls. The controlled skirt cascaded into a sweeping cathedral train complete with a mantilla veil of imported illusion attached to a lace crown. She carried a spray of white roses, orchids and baby's breath.

Debbie Harrison of Kansas City, Mo., attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a pink chiffon over taffeta gown and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Bridesmaids were Janet Lyng, sister of the bridegroom, Houston, Texas; Diane Schroeter, Atlanta; and Georgia West and Laurie West of Dallas.

Mrs. Clark Barto Gallagher

Mark Koschwitz of Houston, formerly of Sanford, served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Joe Arnette and Steve Easley, Athens, Texas; Renato Carrettin, Houston; Ray Daniel, Gainesville; and Gary Schroeter, brother of the bride, Atlanta. After the ceremony, the reception was held in the Galleria, Westin Hotel, Dallas.

Suicide Attempts Will Recur If Cry For Help Is Not Heard

DEAR ABBY: You frequently deal with many subjects that are socially taboo. May I bring to your attention one that is rarely mentioned: attempted suicide. For every successful suicide there are three to five failed attempts. Studies reveal that a person who makes one attempt is 10 times more likely than the average person to end up as a suicide statistic.

Adolescents and young adults are attempting suicide in alarming numbers. An attempt to destroy oneself is a desperate cry for help, an angry attempt to punish someone, or an effort to deal with feelings of intense pain, hopelessness, frustration and depression.

Some teenagers who try to kill themselves have fantasies of being "reborn," denying the finality of death. Many expect to be rescued. But tragically, when they are rescued after a long delay, they suffer from oxygen deprivation and/or the toxic effects of an overdose, leaving the would-be suicide with irreversible brain, heart, kidney or liver damage.

Unfortunately, many first attempts are not taken seriously, and the underlying problem surfaces again to end with tragic consequences for victims and survivors alike.

Abby, please print this and sign me...

A CONCERNED PROFESSIONAL

Dear Abby

would have appreciated more respect than "you guys."

She was a good waitress. We didn't want to report her to the manager. What would you have done?

CUSTOMERS, NOT "GUYS"

DEAR CUSTOMERS: A friendly, tactful word of caution to the waitress would have been an act of kindness. The next customers she "you guys" may report her to the manager, costing her her job.

I probably wouldn't have tipped her off (pun unintentional) until I read this.

DEAR ABBY: There is a chap in our office who is 35 years old, lives at home and seems perfectly happy. His mother packs his lunch every day, does his laundry and cuts his hair. He says he never invites a young lady out until he introduces her to his "Mum."

Abby, he likes the way he lives, but is it healthy for a grown man to depend on his mother so much?

OFFICE CHUMS IN VICTORIA, B.C.

DEAR CHUMS: If he likes the way he lives, it's healthy, and will probably continue to be until he loses his mother, or she loses him.

Madame Katherine Named Area's 'Best'

Madame Katherine, voted "best psychic for 1984" by readers of Central Florida Scene Magazine, has 50 years experience in advising people on affairs of life, love, marriage and business.

For 16 years she has been doing reading in the privacy of her Longwood home on U.S. Highway 17-92 (between Dog Track Road and State Road 434). She is located across the highway from the ABC Liquor Store.

She will read your past, present or future in you palm, cards, or crystal ball. "I do not ask you any questions about you entire life," said Madame Katherine. "I can read your life the minute you walk into my door."

"Why be unhappy and sad if I can help you in all problems of life concerning marriage and home?" she asks. "I reunite the separated and advise parents on problems with children. I have many mothers and fathers coming to me about their loved ones who are upset and on drugs."

Madame Katherine says, "I can also give

Israeli Inflation Prompts Plans For New Shekel

By Joel Greenberg
JERUSALEM (UPI) — The Israeli Cabinet has decided to introduce a new shekel to replace the almost worthless old one — whittled by soaring inflation rates to the value of one-fifteenth of a penny.

The new currency, which will knock three zeros off the old shekel, is the third since the founding of the Israeli state. The Israeli lira was the form of exchange from 1948 until 1980, when it was replaced by the shekel.

"It was done because of inflation and because of the many zeros our money had," Cabinet Secretary Yossi Beilin said Sunday after the Cabinet decision.

Beilin characterized the switch as a "symbol" because no new economic measures are accompanying the change of currency.

The step was planned for months but was only taken eight weeks after the government stabilized the value of the currency by freezing prices and wages.

The shekel, which will be introduced Sept. 4, was fixed at 1.5 to the dollar and will be worth about 66 cents — 1,000 times more than the old shekel.

The new bills will look like the old except for the disappearance of three zeros. A new set of coins will also be introduced.

Finance Minister Yitzhak Modai told reporters the change-over was technical and no further inflation-fighting moves were planned beyond those adopted by the government on July 1.

Almost five years of double-digit inflation — reaching nearly 450 percent in 1984 — drove the old shekel's value down from one to a dollar to 1,500 to a dollar — or one-fifteenth of a penny.

Calculation had become a nightmare of zeros, and more and more businesses have been quoting prices in dollars.

The currency switch must be formally approved by the Knesset, or parliament, on Sept. 3 and the new bills, which have been ready for months, will be introduced Sept. 4.

Israeli inflation soared from 35 percent in 1977 to 190 percent in 1983 and 449 percent in 1984. Current inflation is about 250 percent a year.

Drug Could Be Causing Alzheimer's Symptoms

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband, 57, got sick in 1977. He was very confused, had high blood pressure and couldn't sleep. He forgets more and more and can't keep a job. One doctor thought he might have Alzheimer's disease. Could this be a side effect from taking Fulvicin? What can be done?

DEAR READER — Fulvicin has been reported to cause headache, dizziness, mental confusion and impaired performance. Your husband should consult with a doctor to determine if he can stop taking the drug. Nonetheless, his neurological symptoms seem more serious than those customarily associated with a drug's side effect. Alzheimer's disease is a possibility, as are several other types of severe neurological disturbance.

Your husband definitely needs a thorough and methodical neurological evaluation. If the neurologist in your community does not have available the sophisticated equipment — such as a CAT scanner — that is used to evaluate profound mental changes, take your husband to a medical center. Many forms of dementia are treatable but, first, doctors must identify the cause of the problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I passed a calcium stone about four years ago. The doctor told me not to drink any milk or eat ice cream. Would it be all right to have a little milk on cereal if it were powdered, or if it were treated with LactAid?

DEAR READER — Your doctor is apparently concerned that you may make new kidney stones if you drink milk. Avoiding ice cream and milk on your cereal seems to me to be a little extreme. Humans need some calcium for proper metabolism.

I think it is acceptable for you to put milk on your Rice Krispies and enjoy a little Haagen-Dazs once in awhile. The use of predigested milk won't make any difference. Take it easy on cheese, though.

DEAR DR. GOTT — This is an embarrassing question, but I've been concerned for some time. I'm male and in my 30s. My nipples contract when I'm cold or when I scratch my breast. Is this normal?

DEAR READER — You're normal. Men and women were born with muscles that cause nipple erection when the breasts are stimulated. Don't be concerned. This is part of the biological fact that all embryos start life as girls; only later in development do boys alter their characteristics.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Octogenarian Joel Tarlo of Great Britain has had a long and illustrious bridge career. A frequent representative of his country in European and world competition, he has won many prestigious events. This recent deal shows that he is a dangerous foe when psychology is the crucial factor.

The bidding of this deal may not be accurate, but the play is reported correctly. Against the slam, West first played his ace of diamonds and then shifted to the queen of spades. Any declarer worth his salt is indifferent to going set an extra trick or two, not vulnerable in an undoubted contract, when there is an outside chance to make the contract. Tarlo is no exception. He won the spade ace and proceeded to play out all his red suit winners without bothering to cash the ace and king of clubs.

At the tenth trick, East had to make a decision. His Q-J-10 of clubs were needed to prevent dummy's clubs from becoming good (or so he thought). But need he really hold on to the king of spades? After all, didn't his partner promise possession of the spade jack when he led the queen of spades at trick two? Suiting his action to that thought, East released the king of spades. Joel Tarlo took the last three tricks with the J-7-5 of spades.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY AUGUST 28, 1985

Possibilities for success look strong in the year ahead, provided you don't spread your efforts too thinly. Focus on the areas of greatest potential and stay with it until it yields rewards.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Use your common sense and take safety precautions when working today. Don't attempt to do something on your own that requires a competent helper. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Guard against tendencies today to take seriously things that should be treated lightly. Laugh along with the crowd if you're the butt of a joke.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Family members, as well as yourself, could have low karmic points today. You can't control their behavior, but you can yours. Stay cool.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) When something annoys you, you usually bring it out into the open. However, today you may only grumble under your breath and cause others to wonder what is wrong.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have an outstanding financial obligation that you know must be taken care of, try to pay at least a portion of it today if you can't clear all of it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today if you feel a need to be assertive or pushy, work for everyone's collective benefit and not just for what serves your interests.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 19) You may not be too lucky today in getting others to do things for you, but conversely others may be lucky in getting you to bear their burdens.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A problem you've had with a person with whom you used to be friendly isn't totally resolved. Be tactful if you encounter this individual today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not be demanding in a delicate matter where you require the cooperation of others. If your behavior is arrogant, they'll let you fend for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could be asking for trouble today if you try to force your ideas or views on one who has repeatedly told you he doesn't endorse your thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Continue to move cautiously in your financial affairs. Don't take risks even if another encourages you to do so. The loss will be yours, not his.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your judgment may not be up to its usual high standards today if you feel impelled to make decisions under pressure. Don't let yourself be squeezed into a corner.
