It would be located adjacent to Lake Howell, east of State Road 436, and would include thirteen, 10-story buildings.

The council also set Feb. 23 for public hearings for a proposed revised ordinance on building heights. The current ordinance states that buildings up to 100 feet may be built in the city with the council's approval.

At a Jan. 26 work session, the council informally voted 3 to 2 to reduce the height limitation to 35 feet.

Sanford, Maitland Men Hurt In Pa. Plane Crash

The twin-engine plane which crashed in Pennsylvania Monday with two local men and 110 pounds of explosives on board went down less than a half-mile from the airstrip.

A spokesman for Express Airways of Sanford said its Beechcraft 18 twin-engine plane, which carried military ammunition. came to rest "maybe not more than a good city block" from the runway.

The plane crashed about 9 a.m. Monday in a field about five miles north of East Berlin, Pa. Injured were the pilot, Richard Barnett, 49.

of Maitland, and co-pilot, Gregory Ryan, 22, of Sanford. Barnett was listed in serious condition at York Hospital today with severe back injuries. Ryan was recuperating at the hospital from a cracked vertebra and was expected back in Sanford by Thursday.

The plane's cargo of explosives was undamaged in the crash and has been transported to the nearby Letterkenay Army

Around the turn of the century, a small hospital was operated by the Plant Railroad system on West 9th street. It was moved to Waycross, Ga. in 1904 and for some 15 years the city was without a medical facility. Then in 1919 a large residence on Oak and 5th was donated by George H. Fernald and his wife, Mabel. It became the Fernald-Laughton Memorial Hospital and served as Sanford's only hospital until Seminole Memorial opened its doors.

The event marked the end of a 30-year effort by the community to secure a new hospital. A brief ribbon-cutting ceremony was held that February by several men who were to a great extent responsible for obtaining the new building. On hand were T.T. #### Chicago Mayor Says Press Can't 'Loiter' Near Office

CHICAGO (UPI) - Mayor Jane M. Byrne denied her former maid has been placed on the city payroll, but she's done some housecleaning of her own in City Hall. Mrs. Byrne's press secretary, Ray McCarthy, told reporters Monday they no longer will be allowed to "loiter" in the mayor's outer office to quiz mayoral visitors - or the mayor herself. The mayor also removed a phone used by reporters.

The action reportedly stemmed from news reports the mayor has put her former maid, Johnnie Mae Nix, on the payroll as a $2,300-a-year administrative secretary.

Chinese Surprise

$30.00; Year, $57.00.

There was never any doubt that the trial of China's Gang of Four would end in convictions. A show trial arranged by a totalitarian government always has a predictable verdict. Nevertheless, it may have surprised Jiang Qing, the chief defendant, that she escaped with her life.

An explanation for the suspended death sentence could lie in the purpose of the trial, which was highly publicized to show the Chinese people that some kind of "rule of law" would henceforth be followed in their country. To execute Jiang and her co-conspirators would smack of the familiar purges of the past and create martyrs for the radical elements she represented.

So Jiang and former vice premier Zhang Chungiao are off to a remote collective to learn repentence through hard labor, their cases to be reviewed in the future to determine if they deserve a permanent commutation of their sentences to life imprisonment. The other two members of the Gang of Four face sentences of 16 years to life.

Thus we see the outcome of an extraordinary ritual — an effort to convince millions of Chinese that someone has been brought to justice for the disorder and atrocities of the Cultural Revolution of the 1960s. The new ruling clique headed by Deng Ziaoping, with a single stroke, has rid itself of the losers in the post-Mao power struggle and demonstrated there is a judicial mechanism in place to deal with political conspirators in the future.

The trial also provided a deft compromise with history. Evidence about the Cultural Revolution was carefully presented to leave the impression that Mao himself was guilty only of a "political" mistake in conceiving it, while his widow and others were guilty of "criminal" offenses in the way it was carried out. Thus Mao's image can be preserved in the national memory as an inspiring though fallible revolutionary leader — a symbol

Jellybean Era

Already, President Reagan has done as much for the jellybean as Jimmy Carter did for the peanut. And no sooner had Mr. Reagan moved into the Oval Office with his familiar bowl of iellybeans than the dentists and nutritionists were on his back.

Mr. Reagan should be aware that jellybeans are bad for the teeth. He should be aware that they are only empty calories with no nutritional value. Well, chances are he has known as much all along - and still likes to reach for a jellybean now and then. He has even urged his cabinet members to keep some around.

What's wrong with that? Mr. Reagan and his team are doing battle daily with a budget that won't balance, with a stubborn bureaucracy and a family. sensitive Congress. They must stay awake through tedious conferences and smile their way through stuffy receptions. They have to put up with the Washington weather. A jellybean promises a moment of sweet respite languages, including Farsi and Arabic. from the bitter necessities of power. Limbert is a 37-year-old career diplomat who was the economics officer in the U.S. Embassy at the time of the seizure. His father, John Limbert Sr., also was a foreign service officer. The younger Limbert first saw Iran when his father was temporarily stationed there. The youth liked the country so much that he decided to study Middle Eastern culture in college.

After graduating with honors from Harvard with a major IN Russian studies and a minor in Mideast culture, the younger Limbert joined the Peace Corps. He ended up in Sanandaj, the capital of the Kurdistan region

There he met a doctor's daughter named Parvaneh, whom he married in 1966. The couple remained in Sanandaj for a year before leaving for the United States so that Limbert could pursue his Ph.D. in Persian studies at Harvard.

In 1972, they returned to Iran, and Limbert began teaching at Pahlavi University. Their children, Mandanna and Shervin, were born during this stay and, therefore, carry dual citizenship.

Limbert and his family returned to Boston in 1974 so that he could finish his doctorate. Then he decided to follow in his father's footsteps by joining the Foreign Service.

After a stint as a desk officer in Washington, Limbert was assigned successively to the United Arab Emirates, Abu Dhabi and Saudi Arabia, his last post before

Struggle Still On Over Persian Gulf

WASHINGTON - The removal of the American hostages from Iran unfortunately has not defused the Iranian crisis. The captive Americans were merely pawns in a far more deadly struggle for control of the Persian Gulf. Here are the frightening facts that now confront President Reagan:

- Iran dominates the Persian Gulf, which is the source of most of the western world's oil. Yet this strategic land has fallen into the hands of fanatics who have brought the government to the brink of chaos. Their ruling ayatollah, who looks like the Wrath of Allah, with blazing black eyes and a fierce pontifical scowl, is viciously anti-American. A devotee of purposeful suffering, he has dramatized the vulnerability of the mighty

Soviets with an opportunity to move in on the United States before the powerless zealot. - The nearby Soviets are expected to slide across the great divide into oil dependence later this year. In a desperate attempt to increase their production, they injected water into some oil fields but merely flooded the wells and damaged the understructure. Now the weakening of Iran has presented the - According to Kelley's secret testimony,

Yet top military hands warn it not only is crippled by interservice rivalry but could never be a match for the Soviet juggernaut across the Iranian border. Its Marine commander, Gen. P.X. Kelly, had admitted in classified testimony that the Rapid Deployment Force would be no more than a "trip wire" against the Soviets. The contingency plan calls for a nuclear strike to

They have demonstrated their ability in the past to manipulate U.S. policy to advance their own history in the Middle East of unreliability. criminality and dubious loyalty. During the last Arab-Israeli war in 1973, the chairmen of Exxon, Texaco, Mobil and Standard Oil of California dispatched a secret, hand-delivered memo to Alexander Haig in the White House. The memo warned bluntly against increasing military aid to to influence U.S. action; they also furnished Saudi Arabia with exact information about the amounts of Saudi oil normally going to the U.S. armed forces and the precise steps necessary to choke off this supply. When I learned about this, I alerted the Senate Subcommittee on Multinational counsel, checked into it and reported back to a secret session of the subcommittee: "You can form your own judgment as to the propriety of these activities, but to us it reads as if (the oil companies) are instruments ( the Saudi Arabian government and carrying out Saudi orders in terms of influencing U. foreign policy."

Miss Holmes, R.R. Harden Repeat Vows

Audrey Elaine Holmes and Robert Roy Harden were married Jan. 10, at 4 p.m. The Rev. Dr. Virgil Bryant performed the double ring ceremony at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Spencer Harden, Wekiva River Road, Sorrento.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Rebecca Holmes, Lake Mary, and Walter Holmes, Oviedo.

Mrs. Alice Trammell, cousin of the bride from Atlanta, sang and played guitar selections, "The Wedding Song," and "Whither Thou Goest."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a two-piece candlelight lace gown fashioned with a high neckline, wasp waist and long tapered sleeves terminating in lace ruffles. Two tiers of lace ruffles accented the skirt. The bride created her veil of sheer illusion which was secured to a crown of ribbon rosebuds. She carried a cascade of ivory roses

These last few weeks I have been called upon to make some heartbreaking repairs on some very beautiful little faces that had been pitifully mutilated from accidents that came about in just this way. All it takes is one abrupt stop for a youngster's face to meet a windshield, dashboard or the back of the front seat with such force as to break face bones, knock out teeth and cause disfiguring injuries.

Today I nearly wept while I worked with an eye surgeon for nearly two hours in a vain effort to save the eye of a little boy who had been standing in the back of his mother's car when she slammed on her brakes. ### KKK Turns Over New Sheet

MERIDEN, Conn. (UPI) — Klansmen in the Northeast have quit Bill Wilkinson's militant Invisible Empire because "we don't want a race war," King Kleagle Gary Piscottano has told United Press International.

The decision to shift allegiance fro. . Wilkinson to Robert Shelton's United Klans of America, acknowledged by the Justice Department to be the least violent of the three most active Ku Klux Klan factions, evidently turned on several policy disagreements.

These involved charges Wilkinson was a headline-hunting troublemaker, a big spender at the expense of the local klaverns, and the Northeast's insistence on using polygraph testing for members But the main reason for turning over a new sheet was that

Wilkinson formed commando-type units in the South devoted to "preparing for a race war," and the possible export of the concept to the North. "Special force training camps aren't going to accomplish anything because they deal too much with violence. We don't have any special forces here. Never did," said Piscottano, 28, a construction worker from nearby Southington "We want to deal with the issues - taxes, the economy, affirmative action, forced busing, gun control and national defense," he said.

Wilkinson, 39, an electrical contractor from Denham Springs, La., has said his special forces camps "violate no

Wilkinson would not bend when the Northeast's grievances were laid out at Christmas during a four-day meeting at a

Connecticut motel, Piscottano said He threatened to expel klansmen from New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island if they dared use polygraph testing, which some of his klansmen, Piscottano said, are licensed to do. "He was afraid it would scare people away, and it would mean less $20 initiation fees. We've got to keep insincere people out. He doesn't care about our security," Piscottano

Under Shelton's UKA, which is based in Tuscaloosa, Ala., use of the polygraph is "mandatory," he said, and is aimed at weeding out suspected informers and infiltrators.

Shelton's leadership was preferred because "he's an older guy, a lot smarter than Wilkinson, and he won't take just anybody. He wants decent people."

Piscottano said from now on the klan in the Northeast will seek as members men and women who are "sober, Christian, and mature patriots. We don't want barroom brawlers or people with personal grudges against blacks." He said the only way "we could get Wilkinson up here for the rally (last September) in Scotland (Conn.) was to pay all his expenses, and it cost too much." He declined to say how much. Piscottano also faulted Wilkinson for his appearances and comments in "hot spots" around the country. "You don't go to an area where there's problems and make more problems for the police. They have a tough enough job to do, and he's going in there agitating people," he said. Piscottano said Wilkinson was unwilling to give the northerners credit for the klan rally in rural Scotland. ... hich received extensive news coverage last fall. The rally was the first in Connecticut since 1910 and most editors felt obligated to call attention to the klan's resurgence "But he never mentioned a thing about it in the klan newspaper," Piscottano said, referring to Wilkinson's tabloid, "The Klansman", "You know what pictures were in there? Pictures of himself, and after all the work we did. "He loves his name up in lights. He'll do anything for newspaper story posing with automatic weapons, and that hurts us really bad," he said. Piscottano stressed, however, Northeast klansmen believe in self-defense and belong to gun clubs - "just like millions of other Americans." Wilkinson surrendered a licensed .45-caliber pistol at Scotland. Despite an agreement with state police, he was charged with carrying a dangerous weapon. The charge was

"He gets arrested half the time, and half the time the charges are dismissed," Piscottano said.

Wilkinson invited FBI agents to inspect an Alabama training camp in November after a Justice Department review found his group the most violent of the klans next to David Duke's new National Association for the Advancement of White People, and Shelton's UKA.

FDA's findings, I see little

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer County Administrator Roger Neiswender got a "go" signal from county commissioners Tuesday to begin the search for a new assistant county Annual salary for the position, vacant since November, will be in the $26,000 to $37,000 range, Neiswender predicted. A new job description for the position is to be worked up. Neiswender said, noting that the assistant county administrator responsibilities will be quite different from those performed by Jeff Etchberger when he held the job. Etchberger resigned from the office in November to become Altamonte Springs' first city manager. At the time Etchberger's salary was $39,000 annually. When Etchberger was assistant county administrator, he also served as director of the county's office of Management, Commission Chairman Bob Sturm said the job description will be redefined and advertised both in-house and in the area for apolicants. Sturm said the new assistant may be on the job as early as

Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE.)

Commissioners Sturm, Robert Feather, Barbara Christensen and design the job. Similar in name only to Etchberger's old post.

Assistant County Administrator was a title created for Etchberger and he has been the only person to work for the county in that capacity. When he resigned the post, Neiswender said Etchberger had brought a unique combination of skills to the job and said he did not feel he could be replaced. Formal approval of the job will be considered at a future official commission meeting. Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff was absent from the workshop. Neiswender said a good assistant county administrator should be able, in a minimum of two years and a maximum of three years, to take over the county administrator's job.

"He ought to have my job in three years," Neiswender said. Neiswender's recommendation that a new assistant administrator be hired was only one item on his list of proposed changes to revamp the organizational structure of the county government. He suggested that six services be pulled out of the county's four main departments and their responsibilities and functions be changed. He said under the plan, worked out with assistance from various county department heads, the offices of personnel, planning, OMAE, purchasing, data processing and general services would serve as consultants and research resource centers for the four main departments.

The assistant county administrator, in Neiswender's view, would coordinate the six offices to best allocate their time to the four departments. The four major departments - public safety, human services, county development and public works- would Under Neiswender's concept, the directors of departments would be responsible for all aspects of their departments to the county administrator after they had received assistance from the support services.

All of the county activities would be under the umbrella of the county administrator and he would be directly responsible to the county commission, he said. Neiswender said the reorganization would provide a better method of control. He said the county commission would continue its policy-making function.

Neiswender, whose salary is $47,782.35 annually, said a better allocation of County Attorney Nikki Clayton's time must be worked out. He said that Clayton currently spends a great deal of her time

Neiswender also recommended and received tentative approval to begin the process for selecting one of three senior budget analysts to be promoted to
