As canvass takers get set for the task of compiling the information for the directory, officials predicted that some 3,000 persons will be listed in the 1959 version of the directory for the first time. The last directory was published in

A population growth of 3,000 in two years is little short of astounding. This figure is an estimate, not an actual count. But neither is the figure a wild guess. Before making the estimate, directory officials checked around with the utilities department of the city, the Florida Light & Power Co., Chamber of Commerce and a few other places which keep figures on population.

Should this estimate be only "close" to the actua! growth, Sanford would have been increasing its population by 1,500 persons yearly, more than 100 each month.

Business, government and civic leaders agree that Sanford is growing rapidly. There is no accurate method of measurement, except when the U. S. Census Bureau, the directory or some other such organization makes a canvass.

It will be most interesting to look over the Census Bureau figures for 1960. At the rate that Sanford is growing, it wouldn't be surprising if the city population had increased to more than 30,000, the county population to more

New Pope May Pick Any Name He Likes

VATICAN CITY (UPI) - The man who becomes the new pope wir be free under church laws to assume any name he wishes. Even if the next pope confines his choice to a name already used by one of his predecessors. he would still have 89 names to examine.

But in practice, no pope has adopted a new name since 916 A. D., and only five names-Benediet, Clement, Leo, Gregory and Plus - have been in use in the past two centuries.

Of the last 11 popes, seven have chosen Pius as their name. Church chronicles show that a total of 89 different names has been used in 20 centuries by 621 legitimate popes and 19 of the 26 listed "antipopes" (false popes). . The name most used was John particularly popular in the centuries when the sec of the pontiffs was at the basilica of 54 John's in Lateran.

There were 23 popes named when Artipope John XXIII was deposed by the Council of Constance. The name has not been ared since.

Second in popularity was the same Gregory, used by 16 popesince St. Gregory the Great, who was elected in 500 A D and first evangelized England

Fifteen popes were named Rene dict between 572 and 1922. There were 14 Clements, the first of them in 84 A. D. and the fast in Church annals list 13 Leos, from 440 to 1903, and as many popes named Innocent between 401 and

All of the 12 popes named Plus Were Italians. Three of thein-Pius I, Pius V, and Pius X-have been sainted. A fourth, Pius IX. is at present a candidate for sainthood.

Poremost among the names esed only once is, of course, that of Peter, None of his successors ever named himself after the prince of the apostles.
