New kidney 'dream come true'

By LACY BOWEN
Herald People Editor

SANFORD — The last feeling Kenny Eckstein, 22, felt this morning before being wheeled into surgery was euphoria.

His dream, to be freed from the mandatory 12 hours a day he had been spending hooked up to a kidney dialysis machine, was coming true.

"He was real excited," sister Christine, 21, said.

Kenny, son of Sanford City Commissioner Whitey and Pat Eckstein, was taken into surgery at 6:45 this morning to receive a kidney for which he has patiently waited two years.

"Everything is going so quickly. I'm speechless," Kenny said earlier while undergoing preliminary blood work at Shands Hospital in Gainesville, where his surgery was expected to last at least four hours, officials told Pat late this morning.

"I'm so excited I can't even think of my name," Pat, who traveled to Gainesville last night to be by her son's side, said.

The Eckstein family has been plagued by a form of nephritis that has robbed three of the five children of any kidney function. Only David, 16, and Ricky, 18, remain untouched by the disease. Daughter Susan, almost 20, was the recipient of her mother's kidney in November, 1988.

"Susan's fine now and Pat's fine," Eckstein said last night. He joined other family members in Gainesville this morning. "We've waited a couple of years for two more kidneys. Part of that waiting is up tonight."

Donor Christine, 21, is also on the computer list that matches donors and recipients nationwide.

Kenneth Eckstein

ches donors and recipients nationwide.

"Kenny and I went on it together. I'm glad he went first. He needs it. He hasn't been doing as well," Christine explained. Kenny has had to submit to machine dialysis for a total of 12 hours out of every 24. Christine has been able to cleanse her own system four times a day, which she said, has worked well with her busy schedule.

"I do the dialysis myself four to six times a day. It feels weird at first, but you get used to it. The timing works out for me. It's been harder for Kenny."

Kenny, a senior at University of Florida, will recuperate until fall term begins. Christine explained that it will take about three weeks for doctors to determine if Kenny's body accepts the transplanted kidney, which was located and flown in from another state.

"But the timing is perfect. He can make fall term and graduate in the spring," she said. "Then we need one more. I'm next," she said.

City program taps young talent

By VICKI DeSOMMER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Nearly 100 youngsters ranging in age from six to 12 years old crowded into the Sanford Civic Center to show off their talents yesterday.

Sanford Star Search is an annual event sponsored by the Sanford Recreation Department.

Youngsters from the summer playground programs divided into cheering sections for Ft. Mellon Park and Lee P. Moore Park.

"Ft. Mellon is best!" proclaimed one sign held aloft on one side of the room. "Lee P. Moore #1" read the rebuttal across the aisle.

"I like seeing my friends doing stuff up there."

said Brian Garner who said he didn't want to perform. "I'm not a showy person."

He said that the summer recreation department program at Ft. Mellon Park where he spends most of his mornings is very fun. Most of all, he said, he enjoys playing basketball and flying kites.

While Garner didn't want to exhibit his talents, there were plenty of youngsters who did.

"We had a really good turn out this year," said Mike Kirby, recreation department supervisor, who was acting as a judge at the event. "All these kids are so talented."

Sara Millia and Brenna and Meghann Doherty donned ruffled skirts and tap shoes for some down home clogging.

Nation watching Florida education reform

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The country is watching Florida as it prepares to transfer authority over schools from the state to the local level, the head of a national panel said Thursday.

"Your work is so very important," Pascal Forgione, executive director of the National Educational Goals Panel, told the Florida Commission On Education Reform and Accountability.

"The eyes of the nation are really upon you," Forgione said. "The work you're about to deliberate on will likely have a major impact — not only on your state's educational reform but, I think, on national reform."

Forgione said that his experience as an educational official in Connecticut had taught him the influence wielded by big states like Florida, which ranks fourth in population.

"When the major states speak, then America listens," he said.

Midway leaders and sheriff clear the air in 'rape' case

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — About 50 Midway residents and Seminole County Sheriff Don Ealinger came away from a meeting Thursday with hope that communication and understanding will continue.

"The communication is open and I think it is excellent," said Johnell Jackson, president of Midway Citizens Against Drugs. "Things are going to change. I'm looking at the community to change."

"It was a positive, upbeat meeting," said Ealinger. "We all recognize the problem. Perception is the problem."

At about 6 p.m., the four suspects in the alleged weekend rape of a Sanford woman were released from custody. Robert Lee Williams, 47, William Henry O'Neal, 20, Joseph Watkins Jr., 20, all from Midway, were allowed to leave the county jail on a pre-trial release. A 16-year-old juvenile, held in the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center, was released to his parents.

The three adults are scheduled to appear before Seminole County Judge Harold F. Johnson. Seminole Circuit Judge Newman Brock will try the case.

The youth's uncle, Emanuel Hillery Jr., said with the release of the four suspects, tensions will ease in the community.

Ealinger gained the acceptance of many gathered at the meeting at the sheriff's office by apologizing, unsolicited, for his remark Monday that the rape suspects were "animals."

"If the people of Midway thought that I was calling anyone in their community an animal, I certainly was not and I apologize," Ealinger told the group.

Lake Mary bond targets 4 projects

LAKE MARY — No immediate action was taken last night as the Lake Mary City Commission discussed a $5 million bond proposal. The main concern was not over approving it, but how to spend the money.

For its upcoming budget year, the city had included four major items that would require the issuing of a revenue bond. The total amount suggested was $5,013,000 for four major projects. They included Phase I of the Lake Mary Sports Complex construction, beautification of Lake Mary

County's manager shakes up his staff

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County Manager Ron Rabun has begun the reorganization of county administration by hiring a new deputy manager and laying off two directors.

This morning, he announced the hiring of Richmond, Va. Deputy City Manager Sharon Goode Laisure, to fill one of two county deputy manager positions vacant since October 1989. It was then that former county manager Ken Hooper and both of his deputies, Montye Beamer and Jim Bible, announced their resignation.

Thursday, Rabun announced he has asked for the resignation of county budget director Don Carter and purchasing director David Galnor. He has not named replacements for those positions. Carter has served since March 1990 and Galnor served since last July. Carter will serve until Oct. 1, the start of the new county fiscal year. Galnor will leave in August.

Local high schools recognized

From staff reports

SANFORD — Seminole County district schools are moving toward greater accountability for what their students learn.

Every high school in the district was awarded a grant from the state last year as a result of their increases in test scores, graduation rate and decreases in the drop out rate. It was the only district in Florida to have all high schools so honored.

Many state-mandated restrictions on how students are taught have been lifted from the district. However the financial assistance which also paid for many of the programs has also been taken away.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

New cosmetic surgery offered for men

MIAMI — Plastic surgeons, who have long offered a quick fix for crooked noses, fat thighs, double chins and small breasts, are now offering a solution for yet another physical insecurity — penis enlargement.

During recent weeks, two Miami doctors have been placing newspaper ads for penis enlargement surgery. Dr. Ricardo Samitler's ad seeking volunteers for a new procedure ran first. Dr. Harold M. Reed says he saw it and figured that since he was already doing another type of enlargement, he might as well let people know.

Augmentation phalloplasty (lengthening) can add up to 1 1/2 inches. Circumferential autologous penile engorgement (widening) doesn't have those limitations.

Augmentation phalloplasty was developed for serious medical reasons. Boys are sometimes born with retracted or deformed penises, as do some spinal cord patients and extremely obese men.

Gainesville murder suspect moved

OCALA — The lead suspect in the slaying of five students in Gainesville last summer was moved from Hillsborough County to the Marion County Jail Thursday to face sentencing for an armed robbery conviction.

Danny Harold Rolling, 37, originally was scheduled to be brought to Marion County on Monday, but Hillsborough authorities decided Wednesday night to bring Rolling in early, said Towles Bigelow, assistant jail supervisor.

Rolling is set for sentencing Tuesday before Circuit Judge Thomas Sawaya. The prosecution is seeking a life sentence for Rolling under Florida's habitual offender statute.

Rolling pleaded guilty last year to the Sept. 7, 1990, armed robbery of the Winn-Dixie grocery store in Ocala.

This week in Tampa, Rolling pleaded innocent to charges of assault on a law enforcement officer, armed robbery and burglary.

Cocaine lab discovered

ORLANDO — Two teen-age brothers and a woman were in jail Thursday after police discovered a cocaine lab and $100,000 in a grocery bag in the woman's apartment.

"We got a lot more than we ever bargained for," said a drug agent after the Wednesday night haul in Orlando.

The apartment was searched after police followed a car, arrested the three people and seized about $6,500 and a 6-ounce bag of crack cocaine.

"Our guess is they used the apartment to store their drugs and their money and they probably did their dealing on the west side of town," said Sgt. Bruce Parker.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Death row: Yes to TV executions

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Some inmates on Florida's Death Row favor televised executions but other people generally don't, according to preliminary results of a House committee survey.

"If the so-called 'majority' in this state want the state to kill people, they should be required to see what they think they favor ... instead of keeping it behind closed doors," wrote one of the state's 317 Death Row inmates.

"If the victim is willing, it should be televised. If killing us is so right, why the question of televising it?"

All but one of the 22 inmates who responded to the House Corrections Committee survey said they supported televised executions. About 100 inmates were among the 400 people surveyed.

But the margin among non-inmates so far is running 2-to-1 against putting executions on the air. That group includes law enforcement officials, media representatives and victims' families.

Television "would turn an execution into a circus event (like) the day of the Roman Empire and the executions in the Coliseum," wrote one state attorney.

A similar response came from a victim witness counselor. "The death penalty may be morally correct but to put it on TV would make it a circus. This is a ridiculous idea."

Ninety-four of the surveys had been returned by Wednesday, according to a story in Thursday's editions of The Tampa Tribune. The names of the respondents were not released.

Gov. Lawton Chiles said Thursday he was "just beginning to look at that" and noted that witnesses, including journalists, already are present at executions.

"There are a lot of factors that come into that, whether that weighs plus or minus," Chiles said. "What is the effect of it? Does it trivialize what's taking place? What is the safety of the prison system with this?"

Corrections Committee Chairman Willie Logan, D-Opalocka, said he expected Death Row inmates to advocate TV.

"They would want one last chance to plead their case about the death penalty," Logan said.

The Department of Corrections remains opposed to any effort to televise executions, said spokesman Bob Macmaster.

Logan and Sen. Vince Bruner, D-Fort Walton Beach, who chairs the Senate Corrections Committee, said they didn't expect the survey to produce any legislation.

MacKay asks for effort to limit road fees

By BILL BERTONSON, Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay called Thursday for another try at limiting attorneys' and appraisers' fees that could eat up more than 10 percent of next year's $100 million or more in highway right-of-way spending.

Transportation officials have failed in the past to get the Legislature to limit such fees.

MacKay suggested an end run by devising a way to use the Florida Taxation and Budget Reform Commission's authority to put questions to voters on the 1992 ballot without going to the Legislature.

More people with property being bought for state projects are hiring lawyers and appraisers and forcing the state to deal with them in condemnation proceedings.

AIDS debate

Doctors respond as mandatory testing pressure mounts

By CATHERINE WILSON, Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — As Congress and medical societies debate mandatory AIDS testing of health workers who perform invasive medical procedures, two Florida doctors are taking their own measures.

Dr. David Baron, a Loxahatchee neurosurgeon on the staff of five Palm Beach County hospitals, is requiring his patients to take an AIDS test before surgery.

He notified doctors and workers compensation attorneys of his new policy last week and has posted a notice to patients.

Dr. Charles Thomas of rural Homosassa Springs said AIDS was a daily topic of discussion for his patients before he posted a notice last October saying he and his two-member staff had tested negative.

"Immediately, it stifled the conversation about that subject," he said.

After testing negative for AIDS twice in three years, Baron decided to limit his exposure to the deadly disease by requiring the testing of patients referred to him for surgery. He said he would continue to perform emergency trauma surgery without testing.

"Because the patients are saying that the physicians are giving them AIDS, he's covering himself by saying he wants the patients tested," Pat Mastrogliacomo, Baron's office manager, said Thursday. "He wants to limit his exposure to the virus and his staff's exposure."

Baron cited "recent legislative decisions and media hysteria for health care workers to be tested" in his policy notice.

The U.S. Senate voted 81-18 last week for 10-year prison terms and $10,000 fines for AIDS-infected health workers who continue invasive procedures without disclosing their condition.

Baron's new policy sounds as if it follows a policy statement issued last month by the American Medical Association, said Florida Medical Association spokesman Jerry Soud.

"I think the health care community is being hung out to dry, so to speak, by Congress," Soud said. "The medical community 'feels a sense that they are being segregated and that they are being isolated' when they are at greater risk of being infected by patients than transmitting the disease to them.

State Rep. Lois Frankel, D-West Palm Beach, a leader in AIDS legislation and policy, said she doesn't have a problem with Baron's policy, saying the decision should be left to patients and doctors.

But with more than 20,000 doctors, 10,400 dentists, 6,800 hygienists practicing in Florida, Frankel is worried about the potential for overloading testing laboratories if more workers volunteer for tests or if tests become mandatory.

She also is concerned that medical care would be endangered for patients who test positive.

"What happens when you have 10, 20, 30, 40, 50,000 people who cannot get medical treatment?" Frankel asked.

The issue has been especially sensitive in Florida because the late Stuart dentist David Acer is the only known case of a dentist passing the disease to his patients. Genetic tests show he transmitted the virus to five patients, most likely through contaminated dental tools.

Deputy charged with living off prostitution

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — A Broward County sheriff's deputy has been accused of living off his wife's acts of prostitution, watching many of the encounters from their bedroom closet and keeping a detailed record of them.

Investigators said they were led to the case by a disgruntled customer who allegedly had been warned by Deputy Jeffrey Willets, 41, a 14-year law enforcement veteran.

"It was quite a shocking thing. I guess even to these detectives who have seen just about everything," sheriff's spokesman George Crollus said Thursday.

Willets apparently nodded off once when he was supposed to be watching.

"Our information is that (Willets) watched from the closet and was snoring in the closet once," said sheriff's spokesman Lt. Dave Green. "A previous customer gave us the information in an attempt to help her out. He was under the impression she was under duress to do this."

Willets was arrested Tuesday on a felony charge of deriving support — as much as $2,000 a week — from the proceeds of prostitution. He was booked at the Broward County Jail, released on $1,000 bail and suspended with pay.

Kathy Willets, 33, had a client at the couple's home when officers moved in, but she was not arrested because officers did not witness any sex act, Crollus said. A report on her will be forwarded to prosecutors for review.

"Upon questioning Mrs. Willets, we learned that Deputy Willets had been taking money paid to her for sexual favors for about six months and had generally directed her illegal activities," Crollus said.

Willets was confronted at the sheriff's substation in Tamarac, and he gave permission for officers to search his patrol car. They found a briefcase containing a record of Mrs. Willets' encounters.

"They found the records in his handwriting in his briefcase in his department vehicle, so that was pretty conclusive," Crollus said.

Police believe robberies in five counties linked

From staff, wire reports

Authorities believe armed robberies at 14 fast-food restaurants in Seminole and four other Central Florida counties since February are the work of the same two masked men.

The pair are suspected in three robberies Wednesday — two near Tampa and one in Kissimmee.

The targets are fast-food restaurants, mostly McDonald's, in Hillsborough, Orange, Lake, and Osceola as well as Seminole County, where a McDonald's in Sanford was robbed after assailants fired at least one shot. The robberies have taken place just after closing or before opening. A Wendy's and two Burger Kings also have been hit.

The first of what authorities believe may be 14 related robberies took place Feb. 25 in Seminole County.

The latest string of heists began at 12:45 a.m. Wednesday in Plant City. All were near Interstate 4, which cuts across the state's mid-section.

Sgt. Roger Stemmer said two exterminators working outside a McDonald's restaurant were forced at gunpoint to ask the manager to let them inside.

Once inside, the robbers forced employees into a walk-in freezer, made the manager open the safe and fled with an undetermined amount of money. Stemmer said.

Forty-five minutes later, two men forced their way into a McDonald's in Dover, not far away. The pair threw concrete blocks through a locked glass door, struck an assistant manager in the face with a .44-caliber Magnum and forced him to open the safe, said Hillsborough sheriff's Capt. James Walker.

A third robbery was reported at 3 a.m. in Kissimmee. Two men broke through the McDonald's glass door, herded employees into a walk-in freezer, ordered the manager to open a safe at gunpoint and fled with $3,200, said Osceola County sheriff's Sgt. Ken Hughey.

Tampa police reported a similar robbery at 1:45 a.m. Tuesday at a Tampa McDonald's, where two men wearing scarves used concrete blocks to smash their way in.

Until a mid-July robbery in Apopka, the robbers displayed only a sawed-off shotgun. However, in the Apopka incident, an Uzi machine gun was used as well, according to Robert Jaynes, an investigator for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office.

Mike Ray, McDonald's security manager for the Tampa Bay region, said the three robberies Wednesday may be connected to the earlier holdups. He declined further comment.

Descriptions of the two suspects Wednesday were similar to those from earlier robberies. The two were described as in their early 20s, black and weighing about 150 pounds, Stemmer said.

Man, boy charged in rape of mentally disabled girl

By Associated Press

SANFORD — A man and a teen-age boy have been charged in the abduction and rape of a mentally disabled, 12-year-old girl, officials say.

The girl told authorities she was dragged off her bicycle Tuesday afternoon and raped in the boy's house in the Bookertown community west of Sanford, sheriff's spokesman George Proechel said Wednesday.

Mike Perry, 20, and a 16-year-old youth were charged with sexual battery to a minor and sexual battery by multiple perpetrators. They were being held Thursday without bail at the Seminole County jail.

SCC phone registration a success

By VICKI BOGARDNER

SANFORD — Registration for classes at Seminole Community College just moved into the 21st Century.

And it's been very popular. This week, students returning to classes in the fall have been taking advantage of the opportunity to register for their courses by telephone.

"It's been better than we expected," Jim Sawyer, vice president for student services, said of the popularity of the program.

Sawyer said that they have averaged about 40 complete registrations per day during the first three days of registration.

"We've gone back there a couple of times and all eight lines have been in operation at once," Sawyer said. "We didn't expect that at all."

Telephone registration has been used at some larger institutions, including the University of Central Florida, for nearly a decade. It's a novelty at community colleges, however, with fewer than a quarter of the state's 28 junior colleges using such a program.

"We're trying to make sure that we get all the bugs worked out," Sawyer said.

Only returning students in good standing will be allowed to use the phone registration system.

Sawyer attributes the success of the program to its simplicity.

A six page instruction pamphlet mailed to eligible students proclaims that it is "easy as childplay."

The telephone program, in a soothing male voice, guides the user through each step of registration. The instruction manual has those steps one at a time to allow the registrant to be sure they are prepared for the questions they will be asked.

Sawyer noted that a touch tone telephone is needed for the program.

Orlando goes after maintenance center

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — Orlando is proposing a package of financial incentives that could total $100 million to attract a $1 billion aircraft maintenance facility planned by United Airlines.

The Greater Orlando Aviation Authority would like to situate United's facility on an 800-acre tract of land between the third runway and a fourth runway now under construction at Orlando International Airport, said Egerton van den Berg, a lawyer for the authority.

"We're entertaining the idea of building facilities and leasing them to United," van den Berg said Wednesday.

But he and other officials offered no other details of the proposal being presented to state officials and United in the next two days.

At least 10 other cities, including Miami, are trying to attract the planned maintenance center, which would employ up to 7,000 by 1998.

The carrier announced plans earlier this month to expand its operations in Orlando Oct. 31.

Florida Sen. Bud Gardner, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee who met with authority members Wednesday, said the state would not be able to provide financial incentives.

"Given current budgetary constraints we just can't fund it," he said.

But the state might participate in a financial plan that provides reimbursement later, he said.

Earlier this year, the Legislature approved about $10 million in tax breaks and other benefits to attract United to Miami.

Rep. Tom Feeney, R-Orlando, said the consensus among state officials is that Florida cannot come close to matching a package of tax breaks and other benefits valued at $290 million offered by Denver. United has announced it is looking elsewhere, however.

Nuclear sanity

After nearly a decade of tough negotiations, the United States and the Soviet Union have finally reached tentative agreement on a significant reduction of their long-range nuclear arsenals.

The breakthrough was achieved recently when both sides resolved their differences on the nettlesome question of throw-weights, or the payload capacity of a ballistic missile. Throw-weights were a major sticking point that helped undermine the 1972 Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union.

It now remains for the negotiators to complete the details of the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START) in time for President George Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to sign it when they meet in Moscow later this month.

START, in tandem with the Conventional Arms for Europe (CFE) accord signed last November, should bring about an ever greater thaw in the Cold War and lessen the likelihood of a thermonuclear conflict between the two superpowers.

Although much remains to be done in scaling back these weapons of mass destruction, the START agreement is a major achievement. It slashes Soviet ballistic warheads by 50 percent and halves the number of Soviet SS-18 missiles from 308 to 154. The latter point is especially important because the SS-18 is the largest and most accurate missile in the Soviet arsenal, capable of delivering as many as 30 warheads.

All told, the Soviet Union is obliged under the treaty to pare its strategic nuclear arsenal by approximately 30 percent to roughly 7,000 weapons from 11,000. For its part, the United States will cut its arsenal by about 25 percent to 9,000 from 12,000.

Although less than the 50 percent reduction envisioned by former President Reagan when the talks began nine years ago, the accord should have a stabilizing effect. The deep cuts called for in land-based missiles, would greatly limit the ability of either side to launch a first strike. This in turn would shift the strategic emphasis to sea-based and air-based missiles that lack both the range and the accuracy of ICBMs.

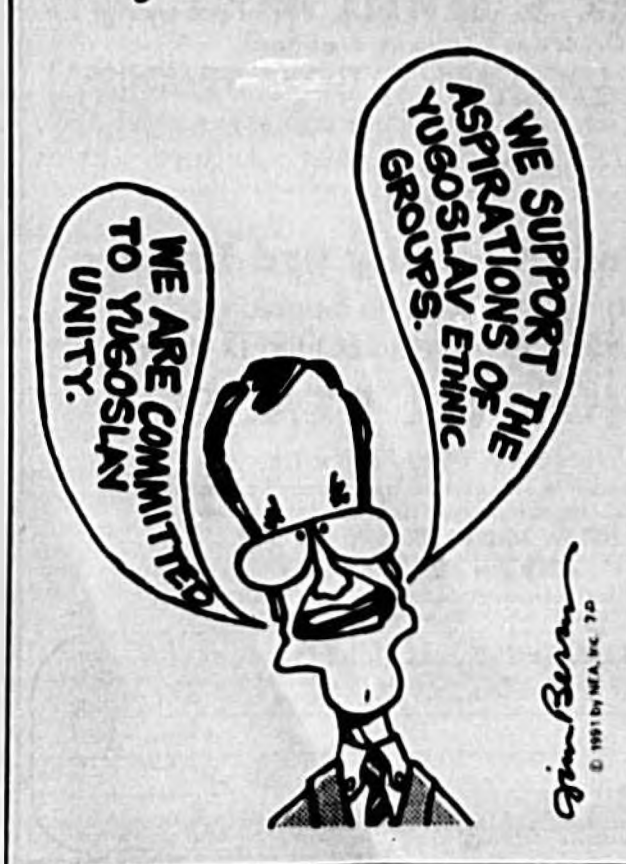

Even so, the superpowers would retain enough nuclear firepower to destroy the world several times over. Which, of course, argues for still deeper cuts in future arms talks.

For now, however, it is crucial that there be no ambiguities in the START accord that currently numbers 700 double-spaced pages. The time constraints of a Moscow summit in less than two weeks must not cause U.S. negotiators to gloss over potential areas of misunderstanding. Nor should they give any ground on the verification procedures designed to monitor compliance with the agreement.

The START accord is a historic achievement for two reasons. It marks the first reduction of Soviet and U.S. long-range nuclear arsenals, rather than simply limiting their size. And the verification provisions are the most intrusive and far-reaching of any previous agreement and could serve as a model for future arms agreements.

Most important, it will significantly scale back the most destructive and destabilizing weapons known to mankind.

Rockefeller aims two-cushion shot

It is only a year, now, until the Democratic National Convention, and the silence of the chief possible prospects for the party's presidential nomination is getting pretty deafening. They all appear to agree that President Bush is probably unbeatable, and see no point in playing horse, as the saying goes, to his Lady Godiva.

There is, however, one man who is still debating whether to run, and who may have an extremely shrewd strategy for ending up in the White House. Moreover, there is a historical precedent for his strategy (if it is indeed his).

In 1944, we were in the closing, triumphant stages of World War II, and Franklin Roosevelt was running for a fourth term. The possibility that any Republican could defeat the wartime commander in chief was, to put it gently, negligible.

It's true that FDR was in fact a dying man (he survived less than eight weeks into his fourth term), but the Democrats, with their usual help from the media, managed to conceal this — though they took the precaution of replacing the flaky Henry Wallace with dependable Harry Truman as their vice presidential nominee.

Nonetheless, New York's youthful and aggressive Republican governor, Thomas E. Dewey, accepted the Republican nomination and conducted a highly creditable campaign, winning 99 electoral votes and more than 48 percent of the popular total against the great FDR.

It has long been believed that various Republican leaders prevailed on Dewey to make the 1944 sacrifice by pledging him their support for a second try in 1948, which looked infinitely more promising. As we know, Dewey did seek and obtain the 1948 nomination, though he was narrowly deprived of the presidency by Harry Truman's surprise victory.

West Virginia Senator John D. "Jay" Rockefeller IV may very well have a similar two-cushion shot in mind. Suppose he goes privately to the by now desperate leaders of the Democratic Party and offers to take on the unbeatable Mr. Bush, on the understanding that they will be grateful and remember his sacrifice in 1966.

Suppose he then wages a hard-hitting but well-financed and high-class campaign against Bush, and winds up winning a respectable number of popular and electoral votes. We can assume that the liberal media will hail his struggle as the most impressive political performance since Pericles, and will spend the years 1983-1988 comparing Mr. Bush's allegedly grubby second term to the Golden Age America would have enjoyed under President Rockefeller.

That would set Rockefeller up rather nicely for a second run in 1998, against whatever Republican emerged from the GOP's bruising primary contests.

Of course, Rockefeller has no patent on this strategy. It has presumably been considered by most of the other Democratic possibilities. But a presidential campaign is a cruelly expensive affair, even if the nominee accepts the campaign funds available to his party under the law, because he must win the necessary primaries with his own money plus whatever he can raise.

Rockefeller has no patent on this strategy.

Is God in eye of beholder?

WASHINGTON — In the summer of 1981, six children claimed that the Mother of God appeared to them on a hilltop overlooking the town of Medjugorje, Yugoslavia. They said she was silent at first, but as the days passed they began speaking with the virgin and one of the kids said that he touched the Madonna's robe.

Now, a decade later, the apparition is said to still be visiting the remote area. And others say they are seeing it as well. Fifteen million people have visited Medjugorje, and even with civil war brewing in the former Warsaw Pact country, the pilgrimage may reach its zenith during this 10th anniversary season.

They say those who go can be profoundly affected. Some Arizona Catholics, for example, believe that after they traveled to the hilltop in 1987 they began getting their own messages from Mary, and also from Jesus. The messages have since been recorded in a good-word booklet that is titled: "I Am Your Jesus of Mercy."

The messages began in July 1988. They are short, and listed in what the authors say is sequence. Mary talks of "the kingdom," and her "Immaculate conception." Jesus speaks of such things as the pain of his "scourging," of "mockery," and how he "accepted my thorns," and "carried my cross for my people."

It is noticeably conventional, in other words. Perhaps pat. Certainly stuffy. And one must wonder if God would waste his time with folks repeating phrases found in ancient prayers and scriptures. The priest leading the group says yes; Father Jack Spaulding of Scottsdale adds: "I don't have to justify it."

There are those who would argue that the priest certainly does have to justify it. He is an agent of the church, and he has an obligation to explain his activity in that connection. To skeptics, faith without evidence is mere superstition; and given the history of hokum, skepticism is a healthy religious property.

Then again, faith does not always have to bend to reason. Most of us can recount occasions where trust alone has been the substantiation for wondrous experiences. If you will permit a personal note here, I remember one in the mountains of Honduras, a few years ago, not far from the southwest border with El Salvador.

I was there to find rebellious Salvadoran guerrillas who had erected camps on the Honduran side of the boundary. And I stopped for directions in several small villages, where strangers without guns were welcome. Invariably, groups of men and children gathered round my car, and asked more questions than I did.

A journalist? Ah, la prensa. Bang, bang, bang. They inspected my camera, offered bottles of Coca-Cola, and were politically deaf and dumb. No one knew where the guerrillas were hiding. But at a road side infested with barking dogs and scratching chickens someone said I might be interested in seeing "Pepe's Jesus."

Pepe was an old man who lived on the edge of a meadow. I'm taking liberties with his name, by the way, because I don't remember what it was. At any rate, he had become locally noted for having a singular relationship with God, who, he said, made almost daily appearances in the hardwood forest that encircled his home.

The home, as it happened, was a dilapidated collection of paintless boards and corrugated aluminum, decorated with magazine cut-outs of haloed saints. Pepe was broken down, too — a man in his 70s — but generously hospitable, happy to see callers. After greetings all around, he led us outside to sit on folding chairs.

"Look that way," he said, pointing to a thin line of trees a hundred yards toward an enormous mountain. I believe the trees were mahogany. They were tall, thick, magnificently dark, littered on high with green leaves, and when the sun rose over the mountain, it provided a backlight, like peepholes in the foliage.

Pepe told us to look at the tallest tree. "You see," he smiled. "It's Jesus." He said the image came usually at mid-mornings, leaving about noon. He said it waved sometimes, and other times it spread both arms, like the plaster statue in the chapel. "He is always smiling," Pepe said. "You can see he is always smiling."

I didn't see anything but trees, of course. Neither did anyone else. Pepe was transfixed by the eye of his mind. The big tree was a body, the branches waved like arms with the wind, and the steadily shifting sunlight drew numerous portraits in the greenery, as it does in each forest. Pepe's Jesus no doubt among them.

The villagers said Pepe had recently buried his wife. And he had grown lonely and concerned in the meadow. Who was it who said faith is the best cure for fear?

Faith does not always have to bend to reason.

EPA union wants agency shaped up

WASHINGTON — For nearly 11 years, occupants of the White House have, in not so many words, told the Environmental Protection Agency not to do its job too well. That anti-environment bias has decimated the ranks of concerned scientists in the EPA.

Those who are left find themselves pitted against their own bosses in a fight to force the agency to live up to its name and protect the environment.

Now the EPA management is leaning on one of the last strongholds of protest — the vocal union representing white-collar EPA workers. Management is trying to curtail the amount of work time that union members can spend on union business and has ordered the union leaders not to use agency time to talk to Congress, the public or the press.

The EPA union, Local 2050 of the National Federation of Federal Employees, made a name for itself in 1988 when it protested an environmental hazard close to home — the air quality in the EPA headquarters building in Washington. Perhaps as many as 20 percent of the 5,500 workers in the building suffered an adverse reaction to something in the air. Some even required medical treatment. The EPA improved the ventilation, banned smoking and replaced carpeting, wall and floor boards that were thought to be emitting offensive chemicals.

EPA management now minimizes the problems with the building, but the union isn't convinced. There are still 47 people who do their EPA work at home because they can't tolerate the air in the building. Twenty people have filed a $45 million lawsuit against the owner of the building who leases it to the government. "The building is Band-Aided all over the place," one EPA source told our reporter Nick Budnick.

The episode at EPA headquarters helped to make a national issue out of indoor air quality, and the union has continued to lobby for changes not only in their own building but all across the country. The question now is, does that and other pro-environment activities by the union constitute union business? And should it be done on office time?

The Civil Service Reform Act allows federal employee union leaders to do union business during their work day. But EPA lawyers say the union there is representing the interests of private environmental groups and calling it union business. From where we stand, it sounds like everyone's business. The union has continued to deal with outside environmental groups seeking indoor air quality reforms, has pushed for tough peer review of EPA scientific research, has questioned the amount of fluoride allowed in drinking water and this week testified before Congress on the Indoor Air Bill. The EPA doesn't think the union always has the scientific data to prove its points.

The current union president, Dwight Welch, was moved to a backwater job in the agency when he became too adamant about the need to put "flammable" warnings on indoor pesticide foggers or "bug bombs."

Earlier this year, the EPA brought in an outside consultant, described by the union as a "union buster" to give management a course in how to deal with union members. One source familiar with the course said it was "delivered with a rabid anti-union message."

The union has reported its complaints to the Federal Labor Relations Authority, and last week union members met with congressional staffers from the House and Senate asking for help. One key Senate staffer told us that the union presented "a very disturbing case of what could be going on over at EPA."

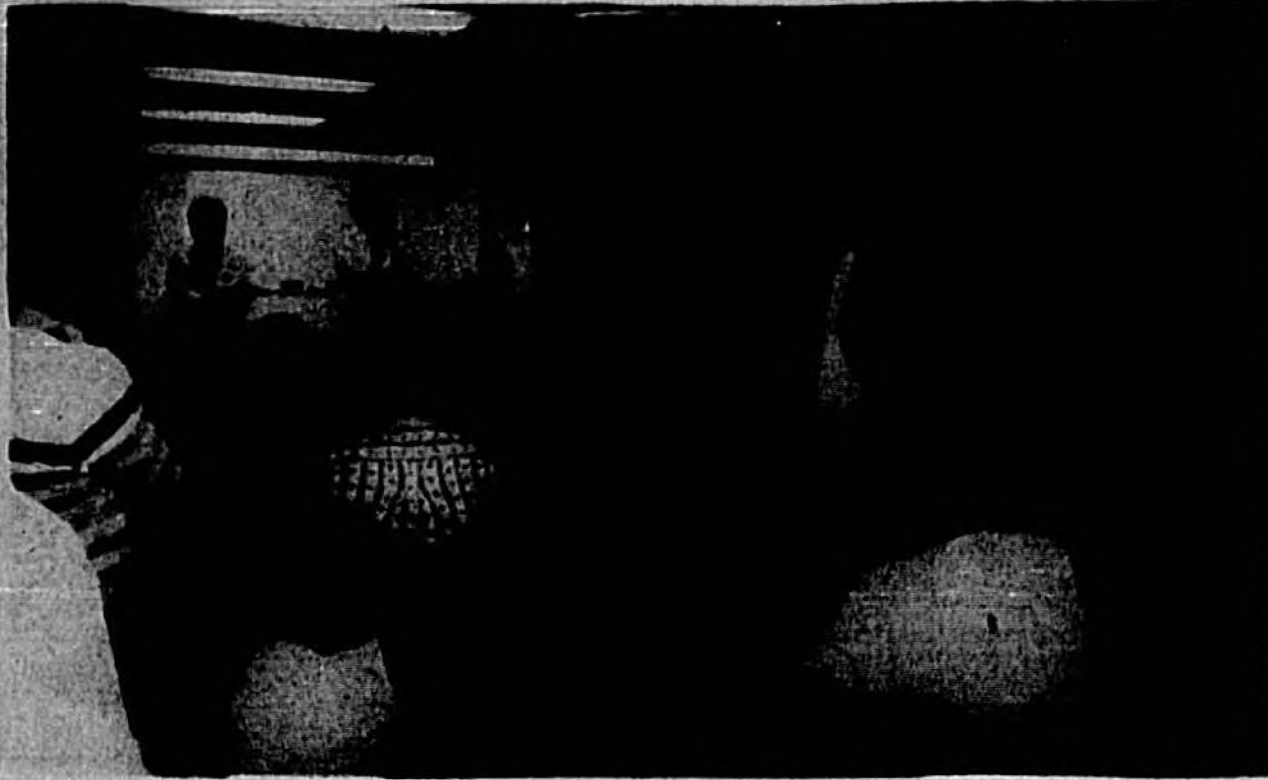

Anti-environment bias has decimated the ranks of concerned scientists.

"I don't think anything is going to change," said Larry Byrd. "The problems are still going to be there. But I feel a little better about it now that he apologized."

In a joint statement delivered to Eslinger by MCAD and Midway Improvement Association members, Midway residents said they wanted to heal wounds and show central Florida they are a people with pride, not fear. "We hope though, that in contrast to the sheriff's department use of the media on Monday, our use of the media will help others to see our community in its true light, a community ravaged by poverty and other related ills, but still possessing integrity and pride and asking only for fairness, equality, respect and dignity -- the birthright of all Americans."

the statement read. "The perceived damage that has been done cannot be erased," the statement continued. "However, we all stand to gain by doing what we can to try to repair it. The Midway community looks to the sheriff's department to take the lead in healing this unnecessary wound for which so many of us now feel pained."

"It's a shame a crisis had to bring the community together but let's go from here," said Rev. Arthur Graham Jr., pastor of St. Matthews Missionary Baptist Church in Midway. "We should establish regular meetings and establish better communication skills so we can eradicate some of these problems."

Jackson said he would arrange for regular monthly meetings between the community and Eslinger.

Boulevard, undergrounding of power lines, and paving and drainage improvements.

The item that produced the largest amount of discussion was the power line burial. As a result of a legal dispute with Florida Power Corporation, the city ended up with the responsibility of financing the burial of power lines, during the widening project underway on Lake Mary Boulevard. The city had originally requested that FPC move the lines during construction, as both a beautification and safety move. The bond called for $1.3 million to be allocated for the burial.

Commissioners David Meador objected to the power line issue. He suggested it should be removed from the revenue bond issue. "I don't think $1.3 million should be used for this undergrounding. I think we could work around that and have the money used to help pay for the sports complex." He said. "I've been in a number of other cities where they've had highway beautification programs. I've seen power lines above ground that still looked attractive."

Duryea said he was against the entire bond proposal. "I don't think we should get involved in the bond issue," he said. "I think we should concentrate on looking for ways to pay for it ourselves and not go into debt."

In the current plans, the sports complex, to be located between Country Club Road and Timucuan, north of the city, would be built in two separate phases. The first would seek the land development and the building of four major fields for baseball and softball, children's playground, fishing pier, restroom facilities, and several other features. Phase II, not to be built for two more years, would add tennis courts, racquetball courts, and the paving of the parking lot.

Because some state supported funding has been received to help in the park's construction, the complex will be available for use by all persons, not just residents of Lake Mary. The city however, would supervise the usage.

Following a lengthy discussion, Mayor Randy Morris called for the commission's decision on the total bond package. He explained that until a final written bonding proposal is approved, the specific amounts and projects for which they are used need not be finalized. "We're looking at the bond issue now, not how much should be spent for individual projects," he said.

Commissioner Paul Tremel moved to authorize the city staff to prepare the bond, take action to request a financial council, and estimate the exact properties to be identified in the total bond. He also moved to lower the amount to be bonded to exactly $5 million. "We can find that additional $13,000 somewhere," he said.

The vote was 4 to 1, in favor of drawing up the bond presentation, with Commissioner Duryea voting against it.

Following the vote, Morris announced, "Our next step will be a workshop meeting with the Seminole County Commission Tuesday afternoon, to discuss the boulevard project." The County has made a commitment to become involved in financing the beautification on part of Lake Mary Boulevard. "We hope to determine exactly how much the county is willing to pay for," Morris said, "then we can deduct that from our total need on the beautification, and determine exactly how much we want to request for each individual item in the bond proposal."

The first draft of the bond resolution is planned for August 2, and the second draft on August 9. The preclosing and final closing is expected on October 4.

this spring after weeks of debate, the parents, teachers and administrators at each school are to develop a plan to improve their school, starting in two years.

Dozens of state laws detailing what Florida schools teach and how they teach it have been lifted under the reform, giving individual schools more flexibility.

Once the plans are in place, schools will be measured against them, with the state Department of Education providing assistance to those that don't do well.

In the interim, a 23-member commission of lawmakers, educators and parents has been charged with figuring out the details of the overall plan. The commission's second meeting was Thursday. Gov. Lawton Chiles sat in for the first 50 minutes of the daylight meeting.

"If the answers were easy, we would have found them a long time ago," Chiles said.

But the governor said he was encouraged because the commission included a broad cross-section of Florida and represented a grassroots initiative that would attack educational reform from the bottom up.

That's the only way to get teachers, parents and lawmakers to support the changes, he said.

"Normally a few people will decide what the plan was going to be and then they'd try to impose the plan down," he said.

Florida is only one of a number of states that are moving in the direction of greater local control and accountability, Chiles said.

"We don't purport to be reinventing the wheel here," he said. "We're doing something that is a step that other states have realized that they have to take as well."

The commission voted unanimously Thursday to hire Michael Bianco as its executive director. Bianco, a former educator in the Miami-Fort Lauderdale area, has most recently worked as assistant superintendent of curriculum and instruction for Highlands County in Sebring. His salary has not yet been negotiated but will range from $42,839.96 to $73,868.12.

Americans wanted Saddam out

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Seven out of 10 Americans think that with Saddam Hussein still in power, President Bush ended the Persian Gulf War too soon, an Associated Press poll found.

Nearly three-fourths of Americans approve of Bush's decision to go to war Jan. 16, unchanged from an AP poll taken Jan. 23-27. But only 23 percent of Americans in the new poll agree with the decision to stop short of overthrowing the Iraqi president. Eight percent are undecided or had no answer.

A USA Today poll published today also found 60 percent agreed the United States ended the war with Iraq too soon, and 33 percent disagreed. That question did not mention Saddam Hussein remaining in power.

But when the USA Today poll asked people how concerned they were with Saddam's staying power, 74 percent said they were very concerned and 17 percent said they were somewhat concerned. The newspaper's poll Tuesday and Wednesday of 610 people has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

The AP poll taken July 17-21 by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., interviewed a random sample of 1,008 adults by telephone. The margin of sampling error is plus or minus 3 percentage points.

In the earlier AP poll, taken the second week of the war, 59 percent supported continuing fighting to force Saddam from power, and 38 percent opposed Kurdish rebellions encouraged by the United States. Instead, the Iraqi president suppressed the uprisings and consolidated his power.

American commander Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf told an interviewer in April he had recommended the offensive continue beyond Feb. 27.

McColum votes against fetal tissue bill

WASHINGTON — Supporters of fetal tissue transplants are halting a vote in the House to lift the ban on the procedures. They say the move advances medicine and strikes a blow against right-wing ideology.

But opponents of the transplants, which have shown promise in treating several diseases, are taking heart because the chamber fell short of the votes needed to override a threatened veto by President Bush.

The House on Thursday voted 274-144 to lift a ban the Reagan administration imposed in 1988 on federally financed transplants using cells from most abortions. The only exceptions the bill allows are for tissues from miscarriages and from abortions to save a mother's life. U.S. Rep. Bill McColum, who represents Seminole County, voted against the bill.

J. Sanford Schwartz, president of the American Federation for Clinical Research, the country's largest organization of medical researchers, said the vote was a message to Bush.

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon stops just short of saying a photograph purporting to show three American prisoners in Indochina is a fake, but a military report says almost all other evidence to show the men are alive is either wrong or highly suspicious.

The Defense Department report details a string of factual errors, silly-sounding letters that couldn't have been written by someone whose native language is English, and Cambodian con men.

But the grainy photograph showing three men holding an undeciphered sign remains an enigma. Families from California say they're positive the three men are their missing relatives, presumed dead since they were shot down while flying missions during the Vietnam War.

Milwaukee massacre portrait chilling

MILWAUKEE — The portrait emerging in the "Milwaukee Massacre" grows more bizarre and chilling by the hour.

A convicted child molester who has confessed to murdering and mutilating his victims is believed to be responsible for 17 killings dating back 10 years, police said. Some were stalked at gay bars or on city streets, then lured back to a tiny apartment where they were drugged, strangled and dismembered.

Jeffrey L. Dahmer, 31, engaged in homosexual acts with at least three victims, including one who was already dead and whose heart he saved "to eat later," according to a criminal complaint filed Thursday in court.

"This is a very sick young man who has many kinds of mental problems," said Gerald P. Boyle, Dahmer's lawyer.

U.S. cracks down on doctors

WASHINGTON — The government today issued strict rules designed to keep doctors from taking kickbacks in exchange for referrals of Medicaid and Medicare patients.

The so-called "safe harbor" rules spell out the types of patient referral situations that the Department of Health and Human Services can guarantee won't trigger prosecution.

The rules strictly define what the government views as acceptable arrangements under which doctors send patients to laboratories or clinics in which they have a financial interest.

New era in use of telephones nears

Business sees big consumer benefit; watchdog angered

By ROBERT HAYLER JR.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A new court ruling puts the regional Bell telephone companies a step closer to the day when they may begin providing home shopping, banking, stock prices and gee-whis products such as two-way interactive video, all through the phone.

The seven giant phone companies say consumers and small businesses should welcome the prospect, which was made possible Thursday when U.S. District Judge Harold Greene lifted part of a federal consent decree that had prohibited provision of such services by the Bell companies.

But a consumer advocate said the ruling could mean another phase in monopoly — one that will prove costly to regular phone users.

"Consumers and small businesses are the real winners ... because they stand to gain the most from more competition in the electronic information services," Edward E.

Whittacre, chairman and chief executive officer of Southwestern Bell, said in a statement.

However, Gene Kimmelman of the Consumer Federation of America called the decision "terrible for consumers" and said it "signals the beginning of a monopoly environment" in information services.

"We regret that Judge Greene felt obliged to rule against fair competition and the rights of consumers," said Cathleen Black, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Greene allowed the so-called Baby Bells into information services despite his own reservations. Doing so, he said, "would allow them quickly to dominate that market and to eliminate both competition and the independents which would make that competition possible."

But Greene said an appellate court decision reversing his 1987 refusal to grant such permission created a higher standard — whether the judge could be certain that letting the regional Bells into the market would lessen competition.

"The decision is a negative," the judge wrote.

However, Greene delayed the effect of his ruling until it can be appealed by the opponents of lifting the ban.

The phone companies decried that decision.

"It's time to call a halt, once and for all, to the endless litigation."

—John J. Connors, phone official

"It's time to call a halt, once and for all, to the endless litigation," said John J. Connors, vice president of federal relations for Ameritech.

Robert Levetown, vice president and general counsel for Bell Atlantic, said the judge's stay could tie the matter up in litigation for another two years.

The seven companies were barred from selling electronic information services as part of the 1982 consent decree, which Greene overruled, that broke up the old Bell System monopoly.

The Justice Department joined the regional phone companies in asking Greene to allow them to use their phone lines to sell information services, saying it would increase competition.

Opponents said at an April court hearing that the regional companies would use unfair practices to squeeze out competitors.

IN BRIEF

Local golfers at Florida Open

WEST PALM BEACH — Local golfers took apart the two courses at the West Palm Beach Polo Club in the first round of the 50th Florida Open, but then again, so did the rest of the field.

All-in-all, 95 of the 192 participants shot under par on either the Dunes or Cypress courses Thursday.

Casselberry's Casey Middleton and Mark Bueck at Winter Springs led the massacre with four-under-par 68's, two back of Gary Baker and Tom Cleaver.

Rick Henderahot of Longwood, Winter Springs's Dan Wood, and amateur John Pettit, a former Oviedo linkster, each shot a 70 to keep themselves in contention. Pettit stands tied for sixth among competing amateurs.

Dennis Postlewait of Timacuan shot a one-under-par 71.

Rounding out the other area golfers were: David Smith of Longwood (74), Casselberry's Tony DeMaria (75), and Batt Bauer of Winter Springs (78).

Sanford's John Brott shot a disappointing 76, leaving himself in the back of the pack.

BASKETBALL

Hungry Howies wins ICBA

OVIEDO — Cliff Williams of the Geico Blazers tossed up a three-point attempt, as the horn sounded, the ball rolled and rolled around the rim before finally falling off and Hungry Howies had hung on for a 75-73 triumph in the championship game of the ICBA Men's Basketball League at Oviedo High School.

The game was a study in momentum as first one team and then the other would go on scoring spurts of 15-20 points that would result in an 8-10 point lead change.

Leading the Hungry Howies scoring were Rick Lorraine (19 points), Buzz Younce (18), Jeff Morris (15), Jay Evans and Jeff Meyers (eight points each) and Brian Marincov (seven).

Doing the scoring for Geico, which split the regular season series with Hungry Howies, were Garth Bloton (21 points), Williams (19), Sam Haynes (17), Marcus Neal (10) and Eddie Norton (eight).

Bolton was named the Most Valuable Player of the league. Named to the All-Star team were Younce and Lorraine (Hungry Howies), Dan Michalak (Magic), Jeff Whipple (Domino Noida), Russ Lawrence (Brenders) and Nels Fite (Oviedo Gun & Pawn).

SOUTHERN LEAGUE

Suns split duce

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Tony Manahan hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to key the Jacksonville Suns' 3-0 nightcap victory Thursday over the Knoxville Blue Jays in a split of a Southern League doubleheader.

Knoxville won the opener 8-0.

FOOTBALL

UM loses recruit

MIAMI — University of Miami recruit Lawrence Wright, a defensive back from North Miami High, will attend junior college instead because he failed to score the NCAA minimum 700 on his Scholastic Aptitude Test, coach Dennis Erickson said.

AUTO RACING

Marlin grabs pole

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Sterling Marlin said it felt like his car wasn't running very fast.

But his laments fell on deaf ears after the second-generation NASCAR stock car driver won his second career pole and second of the month, taking the top qualifying spot for Sunday's DieHard 500 at Talladega Superspeedway.

In this age of carburetor restrictor plates and big rear spoilers, the most impressive thing about Marlin's fast lap of 192.085 mph was that it was faster than the speeds turned in by 42 other drivers on the 2.66-mile oval Thursday.

Mark Martin's qualifying lap of 191.919 was just a bit slower, relegating him to the outside of the all-Ford Thunderbird front row.

After Marlin and Martin, the next two qualifiers were in Chevrolet Lumina's, with Ernie Irvan at 191.658 and series point leader and defending race and series champion Dale Earnhardt at 190.993.

Bill Elliott, who set the race qualifying record of 209.005 back in the non-restricted summer of 1986, was fifth at 190.985, followed by surprising Chad Little — with new crew chief Harry Hyde — at 190.803, Davey Allison (190.727), Rusty Wallace (190.253), Harry Gant (190.177) and Alan Kulwicki (190.098).

Tourneys forge ahead

DeLand, Deltona put an end to Sanford Post 53 campaign

From Staff Reports

DeLAND — All things come to an end, but why so suddenly?

The Sanford Post 53 Orioles (Seminole High School's summer baseball team) lost to DeLand 14-8 and Deltona 10-0 to be eliminated from the American Legion District Tournament.

Sanford thus ended a summer of discovery with a 24-10 record.

"We gained experience this summer," said Sanford head coach Mike Powers. "Everyone got a lot of innings and at bats. We found out who works hard and who is dedicated to playing baseball."

Five errors hurt Sanford against DeLand in its first game of the day. Six Sanford players were taking part in a Pony League baseball tournament, their absence forcing the Orioles to use some players in unfamiliar roles.

Trailing 7-2 after three innings, the Orioles scored four runs in the top of the fourth to pull within one run. But DeLand scored three runs in their fourth and sixth innings.

"We hurt ourselves with errors," said Orioles' manager Kenne Brown. "We didn't really play heads-up baseball. A lot of our players were playing positions they weren't used to."

In the second game, Ron McGrew held Sanford to a single by Jason Bender to lead Deltona over Sanford. McGrew struck out eight, did not walk a batter and allowed just two runners to reach second base.

"Give credit to Deltona," said Brown. "They hit well, play good defense, and Ron McGrew did an excellent job. They shut us down."

Todd Braden, who led the Sanford Babe Ruth All-Stars to a second place finish in the state tournament, pitched all seven innings for the Orioles. He yielded seven hits and was victimized by four errors.

"Todd Braden pitched well and threw strikes," said Brown. "He's young and facing ball players of higher quality than he's used to facing. Even though he gave up 10 runs, he's still a top pitching prospect."

LONGWOOD — For the past week, the Lyman Bullets have been in the offensive doldrums. Most of the players haven't been hitting the ball solid and those who have seem to drill the ball right at opposing fielders.

On Thursday night, however, the Bullets ended their slump at the right time and in the right place, pounding out nine hits as they routed Bishop Moore 11-1 and advanced to the second round of the National American Baseball Federation district tournament at Lyman Stadium.

In the other first-round contest, Lake Howell rallied for three runs in their last at-bat and pulled out a 4-3 win over Oviedo.

Babe Ruth: Southeast teams eliminated

From Staff Reports

OVIEDO — Tournament play for the second-year Southeast Seminole Babe Ruth League of Oviedo/Tuskwilla ended quickly this summer as the league's three division All-Star teams finished a combined 2-6.

At the Junior Bambino (9-10 year olds) state tournament at Tavares, the Southeast Seminole team, under Coaches Don Beldsoe and Mike Zelanes, finished 1-2.

The Juniors lost their first game 11-2 to Flagler American. Matt Tulip led Southeast Seminole's 10-hit attack with a pair of singles. Getting one hit each were Jeremy Zelanes, Billy Law, Brad Bledsoe, Jarod Peer, Graham Howell, Steve Hurley, Nate Lindstrom and Tim Ganger.

The locals stayed alive with a 3-2 victory over Flagler National as Tulip scattered eight hits for the pitching win while Law led the offense with three hits.

But Southeast Seminole's run came to an end in the next game, however, as they were eliminated by Santa Fe 14-2. Tulip and Howell had three hits each in the losing cause.

The Bambinos (11-12 year olds) were eliminated in two straight games in their state tournament at Longwood. Nick and Chris Caldwell, Matt Golsteyn and Emile Mohabir had the only hits for Coach Jerry Golsteyn's 11-year-old-dominated team.

Randle knows new contract doesn't guarantee roster spot

By FRED GOODALL
AP Sports Writer

TAMPA — Now that he has signed a new contract, Ervin Randle figures he faces the battle of his career to stay with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The seventh-year pro ended a six-day holdout Thursday after signing a one-year deal that reportedly could pay him more than $490,000 if he wins the starting strong-side linebacker job.

If he doesn't beat out teammate Kevin Murphy, Randle doesn't think he will remain with the team.

"I was asking for the same salary as Murph was making. You've got two guys making the same salary at one position," Randle said. "Only one's going to start and one's not going to accept the role of backing the other up."

Randle, who earned $360,000 in 1990, has been a starter for five of his six seasons with the Bucs. He played inside in the four-linebacker scheme Tampa Bay used last year, but doesn't anticipate having any problems moving outside in the team's new 4-3 defense.

Although Murphy is No. 1 now, Randle believes their battle "will go down to the wire." If he loses, he said he's prepared to walk away with no regrets.

"The way I look at it is if he's the starter there's no need for me to be here. We both feel like we could start somewhere," Randle said. "I don't think they're going to pay a guy to back up another guy with that type of salary when you've got young guys who could probably do the same job as a backup."

"Besides, you wouldn't want a disgruntled player on your team," he added. "Because that could cause a whole bunch of confusion."

Exhibitions give rookies chance to show something

MIAMI — For Mark Sander and other rookie free agents, a poor preseason would mean no regular season.

That's why Sander regards tonight's game between the Miami Dolphins and Chicago Bears as more than just an exhibition opener.

"I've just got to do some things that catch the coach's eye," the Dolphins linebacker said. "A fumble, an interception — big plays would help me out."

Roster long shots such as Sander will see plenty of action. Coaches use early preseason games primarily to sort out candidates for backup jobs and special teams.

"A young guy might turn out to be much better than a three-four-year guy who you would be more comfortable with going in," Bears defensive coordinator Vince Tobin said. "We might have more depth than we think."

During training camp workouts, the Bears' biggest surprise — literally — has been defensive tackle James Williams, a 310-pound free agent from Cheyney State. The coaches also like 10th-round draft pick Tom Backes, who this week moved from defensive line to shore up the offensive tackle spot.

Miami coach Don Shula has had praise for several rookie free agents, including Sander, from Louisville; Dwayne Pelham, a linebacker from Appalachian State; and Richard Buchanan, a receiver from Northwestern.

"We've had them in the past come out of nowhere and make Tulip had a pair of doubles, the only Southeast Seminole hits, in a 13-1 loss to host DeLand in the second game. Mike House and Kenny Lysiak were the only other locals to reach base.

Bram Towers hosts fashion show

By DONIS DIETRICH
Herald Columnist

SANFORD — A colorful fashion show was just what the residents of Bram Towers needed to take some of the sizzle out of the heat of the long hot summer.

According to Arlene Boyd, administrator, "between 75 and 100 attended" the event held July 10 at 1 p.m.

Presented by Fashions Galore, Towers residents served as models and showed styles created for Florida living and fun under the sun. Ruby Over, a Towers resident, said the show featured cruise fashions plus casual styles and daytime dresses. "All seemed to be having a good time," she said.

Fashions Galore president, Sheila Keaton, said the Melbourne-based company handles fashions designed for the 40-year-old and up woman.

stressing comfort and a casual approach for an active Florida lifestyle. Pants sets with feminine tops and airy dresses dominated the scene. Comfort and pizzazz were key words in describing the models' outfits.

"We understand the importance of lightweight wearable outfits," Keaton said.

Towers ladies wore merchandise that was custom dyed in a gorgeous array of solids and prints in cottons and blends. The ladies agreed prices for the garments were reasonable.

Rerefreshments for the event included homemade cookies and punch made by Towers residents.

Modeling the light and breezy fashions were: Beverly Southwick, Ruby Amatutz, Peggy Sampson, Dorothy Schroeder, Helen Mitchell, Jeanne Carter, Gloria Jones and Wandalee Mahan. Arlene Boyd introduced the models.

Bram Towers ladies select favorite fashions after the show.

Mom fears Ukraine letters are full of radioactive news

DEAR ABBY: I have a question that has been bothering me a great deal. I feel embarrassed to ask, but I must.

My teen-age daughter has been receiving pen-pal letters from a girl in the Ukraine (U.S.S.R.) who happens to live a few hundred miles from the Chernobyl disaster in a city called Dnepropetrovsk. Because I'm a natural worrier, mother of five and pregnant again, every time she receives a letter, I can't help but wonder if it is safe (non-radioactive).

I realize it has been five years since that tragedy, and cleanup has taken place, but I don't know whom to ask. Please help me.

LOUISIANA WORRIER

DEAR WORRIER: Put your mind at ease. According to William Curtis, project leader at the Environmental Protection Agency's Office of Radiation Programs, there is nothing to worry about. (Mr. Curtis is an oceanographer who journeyed to Chernobyl last year to conduct surveys for the EPA on radiation levels in the Black Sea.) He assured me that if his word isn't enough to ease your worry, you may take the envelopes to be analyzed at any university that has a radiation department.

DEAR ABBY: I know you can help me. I have a son who's 14 years old, and he is terribly afraid of the dentist. I started taking him to the dentist when he was 3 years old, but each time it was a terrible experience.

He has not been to a dentist for a checkup for more than three years because he is terrified of shots. (He even complains about how painful it is to have his teeth cleaned.)

My question is: Are there any dentists in Michigan who treat patients who have a phobia about dentists? My son needs to have a couple of teeth extracted.

LIVONIA MAMA
DEAR MAMA: If your family dentist cannot (or will not) refer you to a dentist who specializes in phobic patients, get in touch with your county dental association and ask for some referrals. Please don't cave in on this very important issue, Mama. Proper dental care is essential to

WORSHIP GOD THIS WEEK

TAKING IT HOME

It is summertime. That long awaited and eagerly anticipated week at the beach is now a reality. It is so easy to interact happily and positively with each other against a background of sun, sand, and surf... not a worry in the world. There are no dishes to wash, no grass to mow, or homework to dread.

Wouldn't it be wonderful to be able to take that vacation spirit back home with us... back to reality?

There is a way in which we can live together each day in more complete harmony. The Bible tells us in John 15:11-12, "These things I have spoken unto you, that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full. This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you." If we internalize this love and acceptance of others, even with their imperfections, we will realize a spiritual intimacy with our fellow man which will indeed fill our heart with more warmth and joy than we have ever known.

God's house is always open to you. Visit there and learn how to possess a happy and accepting spirit which will enrich all of your relationships every day.

Baptists adopt new gift plan

Florida Baptist Family Ministries' Board of Trustees has adopted the "Model Standards of Practice for the Charitable Gift Planner," formalizing and publicly acknowledging the ministries' longstanding commitment to the highest ethical conduct regarding planned gifts from donors, according to Gary Kinsler, a representative of the ministry.

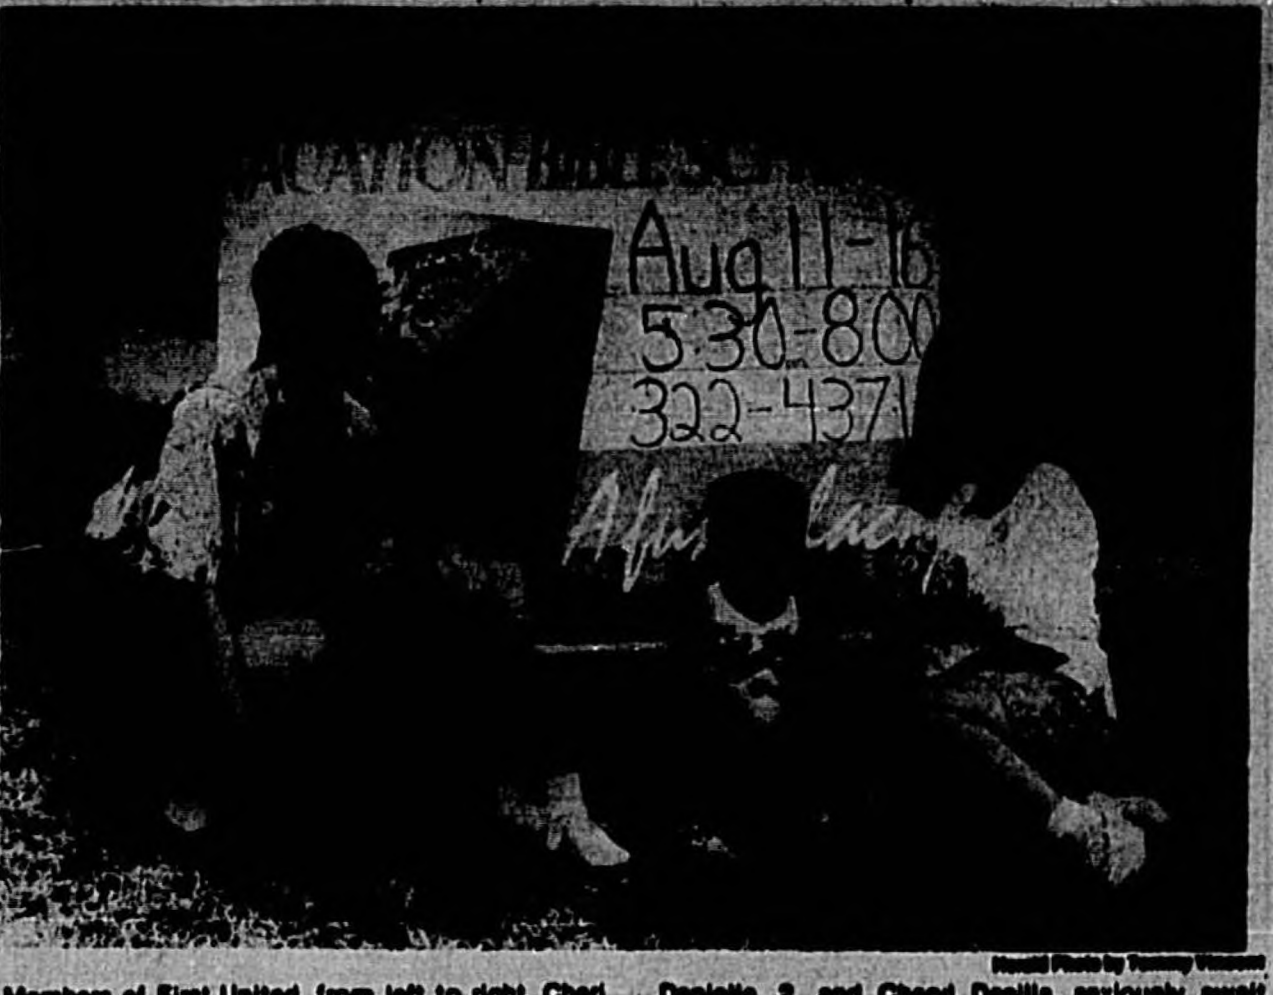

These standards were first adopted by the National Committee on Planned Giving (which represents 50 local planned-giving councils with some 4,000 individuals involved in planned giving) and the Committee on Gift Annuities (which represents more than 1,200 public charities across the country).

The standards clarify that the primary purpose of planned giving is to benefit worthy charities around the state.

Florida Baptist Family Ministries, based in Lakeland, is the corporate parent of Florida Baptist Children's Homes throughout the state and the Florida Baptist Retirement Center in Vero Beach. Through a variety of social services including residential care and counseling, the organization serves needy, dependent, troubled children; developmentally disabled women; senior adults; and their families.

"The Model Standards express a level of professional behavior to which gift planners are encouraged to aspire," said Tal Roberts, chairman of the Committee on Gift Annuities, "with special emphasis on areas such as disclosure, compensation and competence."

It is anticipated that the Model Standards of Practice will be adopted by charitable institutions across the country, their employees and independent practitioners involved in the gift-planning process.

First United Methodists Camp Can-Do plans fun for everyone

SANFORD — Camp Can-Do is the theme of the First United Methodist Church's 1991 Vacation Bible School scheduled Sunday, Aug. 11-16, from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

The school, for adults and children, is open to the public. According to Cheri Cowell, director of Youth Ministries and Christian Education, ages are "from nursery through 110." Registration is a must. Call 322-4371 by Aug. 4 to reserve a spot.

The church fellowship hall will be converted into a camp forest. Cowell says, "We've transformed our building into a friendly campsite, complete with campfire sing-alongs, crafts, games, Bible stories, and lots of creative learning activities. All the special touches that make camp so much fun! Except at Camp Can-Do, there are no mosquitoes and no cost, either. It's free!"

The chow wagon will serve dinner at 5:30 p.m., followed by classes around the campfire from 6:15 to 8 p.m.

Adults will have three classes from which to choose including: "Christians in Japan," taught by Lucy Fitzgerald, who has lived in Japan. She will focus on what it is like to be part of the religious minority and how a Christian deals with the religious government in Japan.

The Rev. Jean Querry, church pastor, will teach "Encounters with Jesus in the Book of John" through experiences of oppressed peoples throughout the United States and third world.

Sharon Butler is the instructor for "With Integrity of Heart," a study of coping with today's pressures and values in the changing times.

Dinner prices are as follows: $1.50, adults; and 50 cents, children under 12. The menu is as follows: Sunday, hobo stew; Monday, Knapsack sandwiches; Tuesday, Wisner roast; Wednesday, skillet spaghetti; Thursday, open fire baked chicken; and Friday, all will bring a covered dish (there will be no charge this night).

Does clergy believe in resurrection?

Did I underestimate the number of today's clergymen who believe in the physical resurrection of Jesus?

In a recent column I spoke of the widespread disbelief in the bodily resurrection among clergy in the liberal mainline denominations (Episcopal, United Methodist, Presbyterian, United Church of Christ), some of whom conceal their lack of belief through the use of traditional terminology.

Most clergy responding solidly affirmed their own belief in the resurrection. Some spoke also for their colleagues in the pulpit. A United Methodist pastor in New Jersey wrote, "I know about 75 percent of the United Methodist clergy in the state of New Jersey and 95 percent of all clergy in Salem County and I do not know one of them to believe as is suggested (in Plagenz's column)."

The tone of many of the letters was, "What evidence does Plagenz have for the things he says?" Because there were more United Methodists who wrote than clergymen from any other denomination, I will cite evidence from several United Methodist sources.

The pastor of a United Methodist parish in Indiana wrote in Good News, a bimonthly magazine for United Methodists published by the Forum for Scriptural Christianity, that people in the pew who still talk about sin, prayer, right and wrong, the Second Coming and the resurrection "have assumed that when their pastors went off to seminary they learned about such things and that when those pastors use religious terminology today the words carry traditional meanings."

But after reading the theological beliefs of four well-known United Methodist seminary professors, he says he was forced to "ask if there is anything of the Christian tradition that is still affirmed by these professors."

The bodily resurrection, he said, and other Christian truths as traditionally understood "have been placed on the discard pile by these spokespersons from our United Methodist seminaries."

He concluded, "The gap between classroom and pew widens."

That article was written in 1982. Many of the students who studied under the four professors are now holding United Methodist pastorates.

In 1978 Ohio magazine quoted a professor of the New Testament at the Methodist Theological School in Delaware, Ohio, as saying, "The resurrection is a central affirmation in the New Testament but we are not committed to conceive of it as a physical event."
