The Channel Section Clearly and messes agree to the Ballet Russe de Monte Carle.

However, most of the program added up to dull television. This has been a common failing for this program all summer. While the intentions are pure and noble, a small budget, cramped studie space, an apparent lack of cameers and other resources have led to some tacky-looking presentations. Often, I found I could enjoy the show's music just by listening and not watching. That's not good TV. Good radio, yes,

Since this show was devoted to music—something radio and record players can duplicate—it would have been wise, I think, to have concentrated more on pictorial values that would enhance the musical experience.

Anyhow, the series is over, if you're looking for classical music on a summer night from now on, don't turn on the TV tube. Get out the records.
