County, Code Board at odds

By J. Mark Barfield
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — County officials are going to hold off consideration of challenging a decision last week by the county Code Enforcement Board to allow a Fern Park attorney to refuse fire inspections at his law office.

Although an option available to the county is suing its own board over a decision it feels is incorrect, that is an option county Administrator Iven Hooper said the county has not and will not consider because there is no evidence the decision is being used by other businesses to prevent the inspections.

County Attorney Nikki Clayton says the county would also probably not consider seeking a declaratory judgment on state fire code inspection rights to finally establish the county's right to inspect public access buildings, for possible fire code violations. Such a decision might be used to encourage the board to reverse its decision.

As a result of the code board's decision on June 23, a state fire official said the county may be liable for any damages or injuries that may occur at the office.

Clayton said the county may be liable for any damages or injuries that may occur at the office.

entry to commercial buildings to ensure their safety.

By deciding to allow Baldwin to refuse entry to inspectors, Naples said the county through its code board may have accepted responsibility that the building is safe from fires. Should a fire occur, the county may be liable, he said.

They've gotten themselves in an unnecessary legal jam, he said.

A two-hour closed door meeting on the problem was held Wednesday including Hooper, Clayton, Assistant County Attorney Louie Grant, Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser and county fire marshal Kirk Middleton. Hooper said

Middleton will monitor safety inspections for the next month to determine who then any other businesses refuse the inspections as a result of the code board's decision.

If the problem persists beyond the next month, Hooper said the group will consider options to take action on or suggest to county commissioners.

Hooper said one of two work sessions will be scheduled to educate code board members on their responsibilities and duties. Three such work sessions have been held since January to discuss the board's staff and its relationship with county staff, which has become more

Offices to close on Fourth of July

Federal, state, county and city governments will be closed in observance of Independence Day, which falls on a Monday this year, giving employees a three-day weekend.

Banks and post offices will also be closed. The exception will be the Main Post Office at 10401 Tradeport Drive, Orlando, which has open 24 hours a day every day of the year. Since Independence Day is a widely observed holiday, collection boxes will be pulled at the times shown for Sunday Holiday.

There will be no garbage collection Monday by the cities of Sanford or Altamonte Springs, where Monday's pickups will be made on Tuesday and Tuesday's will be made on Wednesday.

District judge melts 'ice cream wars'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Haagen Dazs is the winner in a hard fought antitrust battle dubbed the "ice cream wars" which pitted the famous ice cream maker against competitor Double Rainbow Gourmet Ice Cream.

U.S. District Judge Charles Fegge Wednesday dismissed the antitrust claims by Double Rainbow, which alleged Franchek, N.E.-based Haagen Dazs tried to monopolize the gourmet ice cream market.

Blood pressure checks are on last Fridays

SANFORD — Free blood pressure checks will be offered at the Food Plus store on East First Street every fourth Friday of the month, not the first Friday, as inadvertently printed in a Herald picture caption Wednesday.

The Downtown Kiwanis Club is sponsoring the program and doctors who are members of the club are furnishing personnel to administer the tests.

The next free tests will be offered on the last Friday in July.

Mandela granted birthday party

JOHANNESBURG (South Africa) (UPI) — Imprisoned apartheid fighter Nelson Mandela is getting a birthday present from an unexpected source — the South African government. Authorities will allow Mandela a six-hour meeting with some 15 members of his family to celebrate his 70th birthday which is July 18.

Hospital's poison garden learning place for kids

By Carol Rumary
UCF Intern

SANFORD — Look but don't touch is the rule when visiting the poison garden at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

The garden is one of only three such sites in the country, according to Kay Bartholomew, hospital marketing director. Its main purpose is to educate visitors.

According to Bartholomew, many very common plants and flowers are poisonous. A simple brush of your skin against the leaves of some plants may harm you, while others must be eaten to cause problems. Learning to distinguish between good and harmful plants can be a wise investment of time, especially for pet owners and parents of young children.

Did you know, for example, that all parts of the azalea are poisonous and a child may cause a severe vomiting, abdominal pain, headache, weakness, slow pulse or respiratory failure? Or that contact with the milky sap contained in a poinsettia may cause burning inflammation or eye irritation? Also, if the leaves or seeds of a poisonous are ingested, death may result.

A shared effort between the hospital and Sanford's Ivora Garden Club, the garden has become a popular spot with school and civic groups and has garnered regional and state awards. Free posters and brochures can be obtained for those interested.

The hospital is located on the shores of Lake Monroe in Sanford. For further information on the garden, contact CFRH at 322-4500.

Should you come in contact with a poisonous plant or suspect that you have, immediately contact your physician or the Poison Control Center at 1-811-5222.

City manager: Budget is one of maintenance

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The 1988-89 fiscal budget proposal soon to come under the scrutiny of the city commission is philosophically different than in past years, according to City Manager Frank Eason.

The 200-plus page budget proposal Eason's fourth as city manager is one of maintenance and differs from the growth budgets of the last three years, he said.

In the past, growth was hitting us and we had to play catch up within the infrastructure. We had to spend money on roads, pipes, police and fire, and pump money in to catch up.

Now we have the pressure of things wearing out. With the exception of the sewer business (201 plant, this is a flat plant, revenues have not caught up with the cost of services, I would like it to be stronger, with more revenue on the table).

That was Eason's message to the city commission in his introduction and general comments contained in several pages preceding the actual budget numbers.

"I've tried to give them a better insight," said Eason. "My philosophy is not to put a book with a lot of numbers in front of them. I have put the numbers together, but with some insight."

The $187 million proposed budget is $14 million higher than the current budget, but includes a proposed millage reduction from the current $4.95 to $4.47 per $1,000 of assessed valuation and no rate increases for water and sewer customers.

A look at several current department budgets and the current proposals by Eason reveals an important characteristic throughout the entire budget proposal — most departments are scheduled for a cutback in funds.

Eason said many of these cuts could be misleading because the four percent cost-of-living increases for the city's 256 personnel are not included in the proposed budget for each department.

He said when all departments submitted their budgets, the total was over $12 million, but I only saw $10 million in the general fund.

Still, the final decisions regarding departmental cuts will rest with the city commission during its budget sessions scheduled for 4 p.m. next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

With the exception of the police department budget, for which Eason proposes a 3 percent increase to $33 million, budget most of the remaining departments could face cuts.

The police department, headed by Police Chief Steven Harnett, currently has a $32 million budget and Harnett requested $30 million for the next fiscal year.

Klan leader planning to take Storer to court over air time

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

WILMINGTON, N.C. — Klux Klan grand wizard Tony Bastianzo said he will take Storer Cable to court because of the company's decision to drop the Klan air time on the cable system.

In a June 28 letter to Bastianzo, Storer Cable operations manager Tony Pupo told the Klan leader from Apopka, Storer would not air the half-hour show called Florida Klan News because they were not required by law to provide public access programming.

Storer Cable serves much of Seminole County with customers here and in Lake Mary. The company serves approximately 16,000 homes, according to Pupo.

Approximately three weeks ago, Bastianzo had requested air time from Storer on a public access paid basis, according to Pupo.

"We told him that first we would have to have a written proposal and a copy of the program before we could take it seriously."

"After we received a copy of the tape from the Klan, we began to review our requirements for public access broadcasting," said Pupo. "Our attorneys found out that there is no franchise requirement to have public access. Based on the size of our system and federal law, we are not required."

Bastianzo, 32, said he would file suit on moral grounds. They do provide public access programming, but after they found out who we were, they started making excuses. Bastianzo said, "I think they're being lies."

"I'm a little more than aggravated by it due to the fact that they said I only had to meet three requirements: quality programming, no profanity and no pornography."

Bastianzo said that he has invested his own money in taping food programs, a cost of $400 each. He said he was to host the program which would show tapes of Klan meetings and rallies and provide Klan news.

Pupo said that Storer franchise agreements with local governments require the company to provide local government access broadcasting. He said the cable company meets that requirement by televising the Lake Mary City Commission meetings.

Pupo said that he has not had any communication from Bastianzo concerning the June 28 letter denying the program an air time.

Sanford man shot twice after refusing robbers

By Wayne Mize
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A 33-year-old man was shot twice in an apparent robbery attempt early this morning near Third Street and Mangosone Avenue, according to police reports.

Morris Wade Harmon, 1506 Third St., told police he was on his way to a nearby 7-Eleven convenience store at 12:40 a.m. in his 1985 Ford truck when he was flagged down by three males in front of the Lake Monroe Terrace apartments.

According to the police report, one of the suspects approached Harmon with a small-caliber chrome handgun and stated, "Give me your wallet."

When Harmon tried to drive away, the man shot him once in the stomach and once in the arm.

"I ducked down and started to speed away when he shot me in the stomach and arm," said Harmon in his report.

Harmon then drove himself to nearby Central Florida Regional Hospital, where he called police.

According to a hospital spokesman, Harmon was treated in the emergency room and released.

According to the police report, the gunman was approximately 5-8, of slender build and wearing pink and white shorts.

No arrests have been made but police are still investigating, a spokesman said.

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Two killed in car crash

CASSELBERRY — Two 18-year-old teens were killed Wednesday night when the car they were in struck a light pole in unincorporated Deer Run.

Paul Shorten, 2427 Beaman Court, Winter Park; and Jack Benedict, 4361 Cloverleaf, Casselberry, were killed a fifth of a mile north on Neighborly Way on Eagle Circle when Shorten failed to negotiate a curve in his 1987 Honda and lost control of the car. The car struck a concrete light pole, killing Shorten and Benedict, who was a passenger in the car, a Florida Highway Patrol spokesman said.

FHP Capt. Mark Sanders said a witness reported this morning the car was travelling at 60 or 70 mph in the 30 mph zone.

The two deaths brought to 19 the total of traffic fatalities in Seminole County this year, the spokesman said.

Orlando men face charges

CASSELBERRY — Two Orlando men were arrested Wednesday evening on charges of strong-arm robbery and criminal conspiracy. Both were held in the Seminole County Jail on $2,000 bond.

John Rivers, 34, of Orlando, and Daniel Robert Grage, Cambridge Court East, Goldenrod, were arrested after an employee of Walgreens Drug Store at 1448 State Road 436 said she reportedly saw Rivers leaving the store with her purse tucked in his pants. She said she had reportedly seen him earlier near the locked storeroom when he asked for the bathroom.

The victim grabbed the purse and then she and a witness said they followed Rivers to Lurias, where he met with Grage. Grage left the shopping center, but the victim saw his tag number and reported it to police, who found him at a nearby shopping center parking lot.

When interviewed, both men denied participating in the theft. However, when the police officer left the squad car with both suspects locked in the backseat — and with a tape recorder left on in the front seat — he reported the recording later revealed comments suggesting they had been involved in other criminal activities in the Orlando area.

Grand theft charges filed

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Three Orlando residents were arrested on grand theft charges Wednesday afternoon after police reported discovering stolen dresses from the Lerner's store at Altamonte Mall in their possession.

Sandra Naomi Moseley, 27, 528 Texas Ave., No. 8; German Rivera, Jr., 33, 528 Texas Ave., No. 10; and Arnaldo Rodriguez, 22, 625 Texas Ave., No. 10, were all arrested on grand theft charges and taken to the Seminole County Jail, where bond was set at $1,000 for each of them.

Police report spotting Rivera and Rodriguez entering the mall with shopping bags at about 3 p.m., then later leaving the parking lot in a car with Moseley. When they were stopped, nine dresses, valued at $384, were found in a box with a false bottom — a "booster box" commonly used by retail thieves — in one of the shopping bags.

Accused child molester arrested

SANFORD — A Sanford man was arrested Wednesday on charges he allegedly forced sexual acts on a 10-year-old girl over a nine-month period.

Terry Lee Freeman, 34, 155 Hendermon Lane, was charged with sexual battery on a child under 12 and lewd and lascivious assault. He is being held in the Seminole County Jail without bond.

After his arrest, Seminole County deputies discovered Freeman is wanted by Lake County authorities for an auto theft. Bond on that charge is $2,000.

According to statements given by the 10-year-old girl, the incidents reportedly first began at a Deland hotel last October and continued until May 20 this year when she and her mother, who had been living with Freeman, left for Tulsa, Okla.

The child told child abuse investigators in Tulsa that Freeman threatened to kill her if she told.

The child's story came out this month after she, her brother and her mother were returning to Sanford from a visit to Tulsa. They had left Freeman's residence in Sanford on May 21 to move to Tulsa and were returning on June 5 when the child told her mother she didn't want to return.

"Terry made me do things," the girl reportedly told her mother in the car when they were a few miles outside of Tulsa, then she began crying. The mother returned to Tulsa and notified authorities there.

The girl reportedly told authorities the last time the incidents occurred was the night before they left for Tulsa on May 20.

Lyman students rank high in national contest

By Carol Rumsey
UCF Intern

LONGWOOD — Two Lyman High School seniors took their automotive technology skills to Washington, D.C. earlier this month to compete in the national finals of the Plymouth AAA Trouble Shooting Contest.

Brian Moyer, 19, and John Vanderwerken, 18, under the instruction of Miles Ellis King, finished 15th out of 51 two-member teams vying for scholarships, money, awards and prizes.

For their efforts, Vanderwerken and Moyer each received $200 in scholarship money, a trophy and the tools used to compete.

The competition involved a 50-question written exam covering engines, brakes, transmissions and electrical work, and a timed "hands-on" display of students' repair skills.

Defects were placed in brand-new cars and work tickets issued just as professional mechanics might receive. Moyer explained a ticket might read: car idles rough or running light does not work. "It could be a bad pickup coil, a bulb in a taillight or map sensor," he said.

The Lyman team finished all tasks perfectly in 45 minutes, half the time allotted. The winning team from Washington State finished in 24 minutes.

To qualify, students enrolled in automotive mechanic classes first had to compete in a district competition. King said this year marks the 18th year Lyman students have participated in district trials.

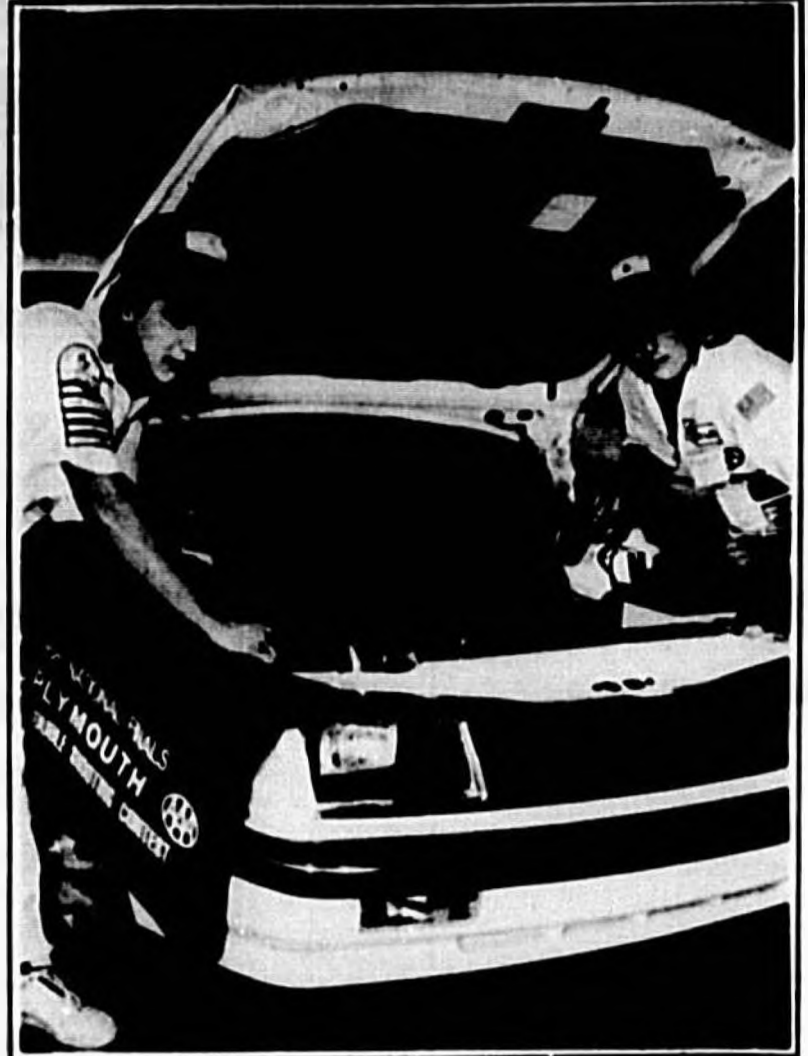

Moyer said he wishes they could have performed better in Washington, but is pleased nonetheless. "All Mr. King cares about is that we got a perfect car, and we did," Moyer said. "He didn't care what we placed."

Moyer, like the majority of King's students, is preparing for a career in the automotive industry. Just this week he received an offer from a shop near the Florida Mall in Orlando. "They will send me to their school," said Moyer. "I told them you've got me if you want me."

Moyer says it's performance that attracts him to cars and in particular the emergence of computer technology in today's automobiles. It is also a family occupation or preoccupation. His father at one time owned a car lot and repair shop in Oviedo.

Also, Moyer's older brother David, also a former Lyman student, competed in the national competition two years ago and placed 10th in the team competition. David advised his brother in preparation for the national competition. Moyer's younger brother, Eric, has been in the automotive program at Lyman for two years and hopes to compete in the contest next year.

King not only enjoys seeing the students excel and go on to build careers in the automotive industry, but also enjoys seeing the confidence they gain from doing good work. "Some of the kids come into the program so quiet and unsure of themselves," he said. "It's great to see them come out of their shells."

Hands-on experience

John Vanderwerken of Deltona and Brian Moyer of Longwood take a look under the hood of a car in need of repair. The duo, under the guidance of instructor Miles Ellis King, finished 15th out of 51 two-man teams at the national auto trouble shooting contest in Washington. The pair represented Lyman High in the competition.

Full moon hits year's lowest

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

Oops, we goofed, a little more than somewhat. An error in the moon phase schedule is bad but it can be catastrophic when dealing with the full moon. Especially when trying to deal with a moon watch. Let it be known that the full moon began its current advent at 2:47 p.m., July 29 and will conclude its phase at 6:38 a.m. on July 6. This full moon is something special because it is the year's lowest. If you don't believe this pop out tomorrow morning about 5:30 a.m. and look — big and yellowish like the harvest moon, and very low in the southwestern sky. Truly it's worth the early morning excursion.

During the past twenty-four hours, the full moon notwithstanding, we had our normal complement of summer weather. It rained in some parts of Seminole County, dry at others; temperatures ranged from 87 degrees to 93 degrees, depending on where you have been. It dipped to about 73 degrees overnight. Today will be somewhat the same with the usual chances of afternoon thundershowers.

Nothing really going on in the tropics. A suspicious area of clouds within a low pressure area east of Bermuda is moving westerly at about 15 miles per hour. At last reports it was located at 12 degrees north latitude and 45 degrees west longitude — way east of Barbados. Probably won't develop into anything and right now isn't even a menace to shipping.

The drought will get worse in the Midwest in July and the Ohio Valley will probably take the brunt of the scorching weather, the National Weather Service predicted Wednesday in its long-range forecast.

The weather service also said the center of the drought will move into the Southeast by September and leave the Midwest and Mississippi Valley steaming in unusually high temperatures.

"Both the medium (10-day) and monthly forecasts have the worst combination of hot and dry in the Midwest, and to some extent a little bit further south," forecaster Donald Gilman told a news conference.

If correct, the forecast means more punishment for the Midwest's corn crop, which is entering a crucial growing stage and desperately needs rain. The scorching weather also could jeopardize soybeans in the Midwest and South that usually reach their flowering and pod-filling stages in late July or August.

Just remember, the NWS forecasts have about a 60 percent chance of accuracy. Or, a 40 percent probability of inaccuracy, depending on your perspective.

Spotty rain fell earlier in parts of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota, dousing some farmlands and missing others just miles away.

"I missed us by about 30 miles. They keep talking about more later today, so maybe," Eldon Dorsey said of his quarter-inch sprinkle on his cornfields near Anita, Iowa. "At least we got some rain."

"This is not a drought-breaker," NWS forecaster Bob Collins said in Chicago. "We need another six to seven occurrences. We're pretty far behind."

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

Bush criticizes possible defense contracting fraud

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Vice President George Bush concluded a quick campaign visit to the West Coast with a speech endorsing America's military strength and criticizing possible fraud in defense contracting.

Bush, the certain Republican presidential nominee, planned to travel across the country today and appear before the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement in New York City.

In his speech Wednesday, Bush said the Pentagon procurement scandal must not be allowed to impair U.S. military strength and the support it lends to freedom fighters around the world.

"The greatest tragedy would be if the conduct of a few individuals would be used to undermine the consensus on rebuilding America's strength," he told the World Affairs Council.

Bush's visit to the San Francisco area began Tuesday with a tour of NASA's Ames Research Center and included appearances at two private fund-raisers that a spokeswoman said raised $300,000 for his presidential campaign.

The candidate avoided mention of his prospective Democratic challenger, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, and did not take questions after his San Francisco speech.

Although the talk was billed as a "foreign policy address," Bush spoke about the Pentagon scandal involving allegations of kickbacks for inside information passed to defense contractors.

"We cannot tolerate lawlessness in the Congress, in the Pentagon or on the streets," he declared. "We have a right to expect those doing business with the United States government to hold their employees to the highest ethical standards."

Bush said the country should "take the patronage and pork out of defense" and carry out the proposals of President Reagan's 1985 Packard Commission, headed by Californian David Packard of Hewlett-Packard, which probed procurement waste and fraud during a scandal over Pentagon spare parts purchases.

"When the accusations were first made public last week, I expressed my thoughts in no uncertain terms. This could be worse by far than a common case of corruption," Bush said.

Those involved "will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law and if guilty they've got to pay a price," he added. But he warned against instituting reforms so drastic as to undermine U.S. military strength.

Turning to foreign policy, Bush asserted the administration's commitment to meeting "Soviet aggression and subversion around the world" has "made the world a safer place for freedom," but he warned the Cold War is not over.

"Today we watch with guarded optimism the changes being talked about in the Soviet Union. In a totalitarian system, talk can be revolutionary," he said, and "some of the reforms (Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev talked about just yesterday would be revolutionary if put into practice."

The vice president concluded, "The steel door has opened a crack and the fresh air of freedom is beginning to seep through" in the Soviet Union.

Dukakis sees his lead in polls slipping away

CHICAGO (UPI) — Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis is trying to seize some basic pocketbook issues in the economically pressed Midwest amid signs that his substantial lead over Republican George Bush is evaporating.

The Massachusetts governor, on a five-state campaign swing through the region, saw a chance today to renew his calls for better jobs for average Americans, more employer-sponsored health insurance and the plant closing notification bill so strongly opposed by President Reagan that it played a major part in his veto of overall trade reform legislation this year.

Dukakis, who visited a farm in Iowa late Wednesday as he began his Midwest tour, arranged to take his economic message today to a factory near Chicago and then to Detroit and Terre Haute, Ind.

Before heading to the industrial areas, Dukakis spent most of Wednesday continuing his search for a running mate, holding several private meetings with senators in Washington, D.C.

He huddled one-on-one with some of the most discussed candidates — Sens. John Glenn of Ohio, Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Bob Graham of Florida and Sam Nunn of Georgia — but Nunn took himself out of consideration, telling Dukakis he preferred to stay in the Senate where he heads the Armed Services Committee.

Dukakis steadfastly refused to talk about the sessions, saying only that he had "an awfully good day" on Capitol Hill. Even as he was engaged in those meetings, however, a pair of polls cast a cloud over his day by showing the huge lead he appeared to be enjoying over Bush is disappearing.

An ABC News-Money Magazine survey gave Dukakis a 45 percent to 42 percent edge over Bush — much smaller than most other recent polls, which have put him ahead by margins of about 15 percentage points. The survey, conducted June 22 through Sunday among 1,013 voters, had an error margin of 3.5 percent.

Meanwhile, a new poll from the Gallup Organization showed almost identical results, placing Dukakis in the lead by 5 points, 46 percent to 41 percent.

That survey, taken among 1,210 voters late last week, had an error margin of 3 percent.

Bakker enters PTL bidding war

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — A bidding war appears ahead for the bankrupt PTL ministry with disgraced founder Jim Bakker claiming he has $100 million to spend and court-appointed trustees saying four other offers already are on the table.

Bakker met privately with U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds after a three-hour hearing Wednesday on numerous claims against PTL, that drove the evangelist's wife, Tammy Faye, to tears.

Bakker did not divulge the substance of his talk with the judge, saying only "we had a lovely little conversation." But he stood on the steps of the courthouse afterward, waving a piece of paper in the air and proclaiming that he has $100 million to buy back Heritage USA, PTL's headquarters and theme park.

of his newfound wealth, but said the piece of paper in his hand was a letter of intent from the benefactor pledging $100 million so he could buy back the television ministry he lost last year in a sex scandal.

"We are committed to the restoration of Heritage USA as a Christian retreat center," Bakker said. "When we asked for the money, we were looking at a debt between $72 and $80 million, so we only asked for $100 million. That's what this letter promises — but now they (the unnamed benefactor) say they will advance the amount that can be justified by a first mortgage on the property."

Reynolds ordered appraisers to assess the value of PTL, its buildings, undeveloped real estate, theme park, television operation and various other enterprises.

Call a halt to the fire sale

Picture Uncle Sam, right hand raised in a gesture of peace, left hand offering a Stinger missile. That's the image we get after reading Secretary of State George Shultz's recent remarks at the United Nations. Shultz urged Third-World nations to help them reduce international tension by cutting their demand for arms.

His were words of wisdom. Unfortunately, they came at a time when the Reagan administration is asking Congress to substantially increase American arms sales abroad. We find it difficult to reconcile the administration's two impulses.

Addressing the General Assembly's special session on disarmament recently, Shultz pointed out that Third-World nations in 1986 increased their imports of modern weapons to $180 billion. That's an increase of 40 percent in five years. Buyers go to Warsaw Pact countries for half their arms purchases and to North Atlantic Treaty Organization members for 37 percent.

The administration that Shultz serves wants to increase business. It is proposing that this country sell more than $15 billion worth of weapons, $3.3 billion more than last year. And, there is no dearth of customers.

Many have profited from the sales, including illegal sales as witnessed by the parade of defendants into the Federal Courthouse in Orlando charged with arms sales and shipments to Third World countries.

As Shultz pointed out, this arms proliferation among Third World nations coincides with a resurgence of "age-old ethnic, religious and communal conflicts." Such conflicts are not only "tragedies in themselves," Shultz said. They also threaten the rest of us.

Why toss a match to a conflagration? Why not, as a matter of policy, urge Third-World nations to follow the lead of the superpowers, who are beginning to scale down their nuclear arsenals? George Shultz knows the words to that admonition: It's time for his arms-hawking colleagues to learn the music.

Enough is enough

Eugene McCarthy, former senator from Minnesota and former darling of the anti-war, anti-authority and anti-establishment crowd, recently announced that he would make a fourth run for the presidency.

This time around he is the candidate of the Consumer Party — yes, there is a Consumer Party — and he hopes to be on the ballot in 30 states, though Florida will probably not be one of that number.

Those are pretty high hopes for a man representing the political fringe, a man whose face probably not one American in 1,000 would recognize and whose name long ago lost the luster and the clout that rallied young Democrats and forced Lyndon B. Johnson out of the White House.

It has been 20 years since McCarthy first ran for president. 20 years since the crazies rioted in Chicago and tore a party and a national convention asunder.

One of the ironic aspects of the Chicago phenomenon was that McCarthy was anything but a rabble-rouser. He was soft-spoken, witty and scholarly, a former university history professor. He wrote poetry for fun. He was decidedly not a heavy-handed, sharp-tongued firebrand, though he seemed to attract the type like flies.

Those who remember McCarthy in his prime must be saddened by his fourth run for the Rose Garden. He is reminiscent of another Minnesotan, Harold Stassen, who spent 40 years running for president.

Like Stassen, McCarthy doesn't know when to quit. His alliance with the Consumer Party would be humorous if it didn't have an edge of desperation about it.

Embattled Eritreans fight Ethiopians

One of the longest, bloodiest and least-known conflicts in the world is the bitter struggle for independence being waged by the people of Eritrea against the government of Ethiopia. Four million people living in the province of Eritrea in northern Ethiopia have been trying to break free since 1961. In doing so, they have built what some observers believe to be the most effective guerrilla force in the world.

Writing in the July issue of The Atlantic magazine, Robert Kaplan concludes: "The long-term trend of the fighting ... seems unmistakably in favor of the guerrillas." He adds that if the Soviet-backed government of Ethiopia falls, it will be not so much because of the famine that has wracked the Ethiopians in recent years as the military pressure of the Eritrean independence movement.

Eritrea, an area about the size of Pennsylvania lying along the Red Sea, is Ethiopia's only outlet from an otherwise landlocked position. The late Emperor Haile Selassie devoted the last 15 years of his reign to combating the Eritrean rebellion. Indeed, as early as 1935, when Mussolini invaded Ethiopia, the Eritreans were so anxious to break away from Selassie's rule that they assisted the Italian invading force.

The U.S.-supported Selassie was overthrown in 1975 by a group of junior military officers. It seemed at first that the new government would work out a settlement with the Eritreans, who were then supported by the Soviet Union and the Arabs. But these hopes were soon dashed when the new government began a hard-line effort to quell independence, including efforts to deny Eritrea food aid necessitated by the chronic famine.

In 1977, the new administration of President Jimmy Carter decided to cut off U.S. aid to the Ethiopian government because of its bad human rights record. Almost overnight, the Ethiopian leader Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam was embraced by the Soviets, who were eager to replace the United States as the key power in Ethiopia. The Soviets just as quickly deserted the Eritreans.

The Ethiopian army, with Soviet and Cuban help, has grown from 65,000 men to 300,000. Mengistu in return has offered the Soviets base support for naval and air operations. Meanwhile, the Eritreans, with 35,000 well-trained and highly organized guerrillas, are confronting the government at Addis Ababa with a most effective guerrilla force.

As Kaplan points out, over the past quarter century more than 250,000 people have died in battle in Ethiopia, and three times that number of Eritreans have been exiled or at least displaced from their homes. It now seems likely that the survival of the Ethiopian government is seriously threatened by the stubborn Eritrean rebellion.

VIEWPOINT

Afghan's political future

By Ronald de Valderano

LONDON — With parades and much publicity the Soviet army is beginning to withdraw its troops from Afghanistan. But this is not a defeated army. Soviet forces were not defeated in any major battle with the Afghan freedom fighters. This was hardly surprising given the enormous superiority of Soviet weapons and the Mujahedin's tactics of hit and run ambushes.

Rather, the withdrawal is a political decision made by the Soviet leadership. The Afghanistan war was leading them nowhere. It was costing the Soviets quite a few casualties and was an expensive nuisance. It was holding up the infinitely more important intermediate-range weapons treaty. It also was counter-productive in the Soviet propaganda war against the West. Afghanistan was constantly thrown in the Soviets' faces by nonaligned and neutral states and by communist parties in Europe.

The withdrawal of Soviet troops doesn't mean that Soviet influence will cease. A considerable Soviet investment has been made in the northern provinces of Afghanistan. Factories have been built and machinery installed. The economy of the area has come to rely heavily on this new industry which finds a ready market in the Soviet Union just over the frontier.

Many Afghan children were taken to the Soviet Union and have been indoctrinated and trained there and returned to Afghanistan as young men and women. Any Afghan government in the future will have to rely on these young people.

With the withdrawal of the Soviet forces, the war will continue between the government forces and the Mujahedin. Both will continue to be supplied with the sinews of war, the Afghan government forces by the Soviet Union and the Mujahedin by the United States.

Some wish to see Afghanistan and Islamic fundamentalist republic under the control of the Mullahs, as in Iran, and they are backed by Iran; and there are those who want to see a more secular, democratic and modern state, Islamic but not fundamentalist, where the Mullahs would play little part.

A civil war is inevitable, in which very many old scores and personal vendettas will be settled in a sea of blood. The Soviets may have gone or be going and that is a good thing, but Afghanistan's troubles are very far from over.

Complaints continue to plague car maker

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — The 1980s brought a new wave of automobile horror stories — cars with minds of their own that trigger sudden, unwanted accelerations.

The Reagan administration has apparently sided with the car makers who claim their cars only lurch into trees, people or other vehicles if the driver confuses the gas pedal with the brake.

This mistaken-pedal syndrome has run so rampant among Audi 5000 drivers that some parking garages in New York posted signs: "No Audis." The New Jersey Department of Motor Vehicles only recently rescinded a rule that no driver tests could be taken in Audi 5000s.

Despite three recalls to tinker with Audi 5000s, the complaints continue to pile high. More than 1,800 complaints of runaway Audis have been linked to at least 400 injuries and five deaths. All involve models with automatic transmissions.

Rep. George Hochbrueckner, D-N.Y., can't swallow the explana-

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

America's heartland

WASHINGTON — Remember Middle America?

Those words were at the heart of countless political stories in the 1970s. Pundits and politicians were very mindful of the existence of "silent" Americans who felt that they weren't represented by the political operatives and ideologues in Washington. They eagerly hoped that Heartland America would be represented in national councils in the years to come.

Their expectations haven't been fulfilled, however. The Reagan administration's drive to inject another $14 billion in the World Bank, one of the prime international giveaway agencies, is the latest piece of evidence, indicating that Middle America is being ignored.

Recent news stories on the economic advisers around the presidential candidates also strongly suggest that Middle America won't have representation in the next administration. The Wall Street Journal reports that Gov. Michael Dukakis' economic advisers "have strong ties to Harvard University." In fact, the press has said that the John F. Kennedy School of Government is a kind of government in waiting.

On the other hand, the Journal's rundown on Vice President Bush's economic advisers points to much the same Eastern, Ivy League stamp. Among the named Bush advisers are Prof. Martin Feldstein of Harvard, who comes from the Rockefeller wing of the GOP, and Jack Hennessey, Chairman of Credit Suisse First Boston. These are able men, but they hardly represent the economic thinking of Middle America.

Unrepresented in the parties is the economic thinking of small- and medium-sized businessmen around the country. These businessmen aren't identified with multi-national companies. In the main, they are economic nationalists, not internationalists. They are concerned with their businesses in Indiana, Tennessee, or Oklahoma, for example, not in building subsidiaries in Mexico or Taiwan. They are interested in the well-being of people in Illinois and Texas, not in keeping the bankers in Zurich or Tokyo happy. They believe in strengthening the dollar, not in further devaluation in order to please foreign central banks. They are concerned with American business, American energy production, American resource development, and with the overall economic health of the American Heartland.

There's something about the financial centers of the East that wants to cut out or downgrade the influence of Heartland institutions.

Many people in the Northeastern power centers seem to have the idea that the only smart people in the United States reside in their communities, not in Jacksonville or Omaha, Richmond or Denver, Milwaukee or Harrisburg, Pa. There's an undoubted and marked regional prejudice against the American Heartland and its Middle America educational institutions and leadership. The Northeastern leaders are interested in hiring advisers from Harvard and Yale, not from Purdue or the University of Kansas.

The 1988 presidential election is a good time for the presidential candidates to seek economic advice from Middle America.

Cirrhosis treatment promising

By Rob Stein
UPI Science Writer

BOSTON (UPI) — An ancient drug used for centuries to treat gout appears to offer the first medication that can prolong the lives of patients with cirrhosis of the liver, researchers reported Wednesday.

In the largest and longest study of its kind, researchers from the Salvador Zubiran National Institute of Nutrition in Mexico City, Mexico, reported the drug colchicine significantly improved cirrhosis patients' survival rate.

"The results of this long-term controlled study confirm that colchicine prolongs survival in patients with mild to moderate cirrhosis of the liver, regardless of its cause, and indicate that it is safe," the researchers wrote in reporting their findings in The New England Journal of Medicine.

Drs. James L. Boyer and David F. Ransohoff of the Yale University School of Medicine in New Haven, Conn., called the findings "striking" in an editorial accompanying the study.

But the pair said the results should be interpreted cautiously because of several questions about research, including whether the two groups of patients in the study were comparable.

Other researchers, however, cited the drug's long safety record, low cost and pointed out that there is no other drug effective for treating cirrhosis of the liver. They said the findings indicate colchicine should probably be recommended for at least some patients.

Cirrhosis of the liver is blamed for about 27,000 deaths a year in the United States, making it the nation's ninth leading cause of death. It is even more common in many developing countries.

Colchicine, which is made from the autumn crocus plant, has been used for centuries to treat gout, which is a form of arthritis. While there are several theories, researchers are uncertain why colchicine would be beneficial for treating cirrhosis of the liver.

In the study, 100 patients with various forms of cirrhosis of the liver received either colchicine or useless drug five days a week for up to 14 years. Patients who received colchicine lived an average of 11 years, while those who received the dummy drug lived only 3 1/2 years on average.

Although several patients experienced nausea, diarrhea and abdominal pain, all the symptoms were relatively mild.

tion of driver error. He asked the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) to probe deeper. Hochbrueckner, a former aerospace engineer, thinks NHTSA is reluctant to challenge the claim of the West German auto maker that the problem sits behind the wheel, not under the hood.

Audi recalled the 5000 model in 1986 and installed a shift-lock mechanism, which forces the driver to step on the brake before shifting into gear. Most of the incidents occurred when the driver shifted into gear. Now, a spokesman for Audi of America says, "There is nothing left to investigate."

Hochbrueckner is not so sure. In March, he pressed NHTSA to force Audi to make public the complaints, including 400 from owners of Audis with the shift-lock protection. Our associate Jim Lynch reviewed some of those documents.

Last June, Anita Gallison backed her Audi 5000 out of her carport in Humphrey, Mich., and the car lunged in reverse. It sideswiped one tree and bashed into another before coming to a stop.

Audi talked to Gallison, inspected her car and filed this report: "We must conclude the driver was startled by the scraping of her vehicle's mirror against the house and inadvertently applied pressure to the accelerator pedal."

This is the way Gallison described it to us: "It was like I was shot out of a cannon. I heard a sound like the engine was shifting gears and then it took off. I had both feet on the brake. I couldn't make the car go that fast." Gallison claims her Audi 5000 hit 40 miles per hour before the trees got in the way. Her car was totaled.

Hochbrueckner is so unhappy with NHTSA's work that he has launched his own study of Audi's problem. He argues that the premise of driver error doesn't make sense because there are more sudden-acceleration complaints about Audi 5000s than there have been about any other car in NHTSA's 28-year history. The NHTSA "should take its blinders off," Hochbrueckner says.

He suspects a high-tech electronics malfunction, possibly computer failure in the Audi's cruise control.

An NHTSA spokesman said the agency has already examined the possible role of electronics and continues to study the Audi 5000. The agency also has investigated sudden-acceleration complaints in nine other car models besides the troubled Audi.

Hochbrueckner's investigation is supported by the Center for Auto Safety, a consumer group that accused the Reagan administration of being soft on auto safety.

Meanwhile, with more than 100 court cases pending against Audi, the company has proposed a settlement that would give 390,000 current Audi owners up to a $2,000 rebate on the purchase of a new Audi.

At least one of the seven plaintiffs named in the class action suit representing the 390,000 owners is outraged at the settlement offer. He told us, "It's an insult. The last thing I want to do is buy another car from Audi. I'd rather get $1 in a settlement than credit toward another Audi."

NATION IN BRIEF

Reports of document shredding in defense probe revealed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Documents with potential evidence were shredded in at least two instances since the government made public its investigation into defense contracts, federal court papers show.

The papers filed by the U.S. attorney's office in Brooklyn late Wednesday were in response to a request by the newspaper Newsday to unseal various search warrants and affidavits in the investigation.

Joseph Aronica, assistant U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia, revealed in the court papers. "In the short time since the execution of the search warrants became public, the government has already become aware of several incidents of destruction of documents related to this case."

The U.S. attorney's office maintained that unsealing the search warrant for the Hazeltine Corp., a defense firm with offices in Arlington, Va., and Greenlawn, N.Y., "could reveal the identity of a person who has been cooperating with the government's investigation."

Anti-discrimination law broadened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A woman who vowed she "was not going to be run off" from her bank job is delighted the Supreme Court agreed with her and expanded the reach of federal laws against employment discrimination.

The high court ruled 8-0 Wednesday that minorities can sue employers not only for obvious bias but also for using subtle and subjective factors in giving preference to whites.

The unanimous decision means Title 7, which bars discrimination in employment, applies not only to intentional acts of discrimination but also to subjective practices that work to the detriment of minority groups.

WORLD IN BRIEF

U.S. considering $500,000 reward in slaying of naval attache

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Diplomatic sources say the U.S. State Department is considering a $500,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the killers of an American military attache in Athens.

The disclosure Wednesday came hours after the leftist extremist group November 17 claimed responsibility for the car-bomb slaying of U.S. Navy Capt. William Nordeen. The group warned in a statement it would continue to strike at U.S. targets.

Diplomatic sources said the announcement of a reward would probably be made simultaneously in Washington and Athens, where the U.S. Embassy would issue a statement.

The sources said the $500,000 State Department reward offer would probably be made with Greece's approval under terms of a treaty of cooperation on combating terrorism.

Israeli soldiers kill Arab teenager

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli soldiers shot and killed a Palestinian teenager in the occupied West Bank after they were attacked by a crowd of stone-throwing protesters, hospital and Palestinian sources said today.

Two Israeli soldiers also were injured in the demonstration Wednesday, which apparently was touched off by a series of arson fires that destroyed Arab cropland in the Taibe area near Ramallah, 9 miles north of Jerusalem, an army spokesman and Palestinian sources said.

Vietnamese start leaving Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — The Vietnamese high command pulled out of Cambodia today as part of a 50,000-man withdrawal from the fighting that has cost 55,000 Vietnamese lives — slightly less than the number of Americans who died in the Vietnam War.

"From 1977 up to now we lost a total of 55,000," said Lt. Gen. Le Kha Phieu, deputy commander of the Vietnamese forces in Cambodia, in the first official acknowledgment of his country's casualties.

Phieu said an equal number of men were wounded and that 30,000 of the deaths occurred in the first two years of fighting.

About 58,000 Americans were killed in the Vietnam War.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia on Christmas Day, 1978, and its forces are still fighting a three-part resistance coalition.

Phieu said that Vietnamese losses have been reduced each year, and last year totaled 500 killed and 2,500 wounded.

The Cambodian News Agency, known as SPK, said Cambodian Defense Minister Soy Ieo rode to the airport with overall Vietnamese commander Maj. Gen. Le Nue Hien in a convoy of about 300 officers of the Vietnamese central command in Cambodia.

The Vietnamese troops were given a colorful send off by senior Cambodian officials, a group of Buddhist monks chanting prayers, and some 50,000 flag-waving students and government workers who lined the route to Phnom Penh's Pochnong Airport.

The pullout will leave another 50,000 Vietnamese troops still in Cambodia. They are scheduled to be completely withdrawn by the end of 1990.

DEAR AMY

Son-in-law steals from couple who treasure visits

DEAR AMY: We need help. Our son-in-law is a thief. When he and our daughter visit us, invariably after they leave we discover that several objects are missing. (They live in another town.) If we confront them, we will lose our daughter's visits. In the past she isolated us for a couple of years at a time because she felt we did not treat her husband "right." They have been married for 17 years, and the only really good part of their marriage is our one and only grandchild.

We love our daughter, but her husband is a liar and a thief. His last visit, he took three items from our home—one is something that is very precious to me. We do not want to do anything as drastic as notifying the police. Please tell us how to handle this.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.

DEAR WHITE PLAINS: Call your daughter and tell her what is missing—particularly the piece that is very precious to you. Then see how she responds. She surely knows that her husband is a thief, but if he steals from her own parents, and she accepts it, she is no better than he is.

Perhaps it would be better if you didn't entertain them in your home if you have to go through the emotional turmoil and fear of wondering what will be stolen next.

DEAR AMY: As a 47-year-old man who does not feel or think he looks older than he is, I resent clerks in stores asking me if I am entitled to a senior citizen's discount. Perhaps they think I look elderly, but I think it is impertinent of them to ask a question that implies that they think I am.

Some businesses offer discounts to "senior citizens," but it would be more tactful and better business for managers to provide clear, conspicuous signs explaining their senior citizens policy—then leave it up to the customer to decide whether or not to volunteer his (or her) age as a means of obtaining a discount. What do you think?

Please air this in your column, Amy, and see if other readers agree with me.

CHARLESTON, S.C. READER

DEAR READER: I like the sign idea. In a society that values

youth, as evidenced by the many products that promise to make us feel and look younger, it is not surprising that many people would be offended to be asked, "Are you entitled to a senior citizen's discount?"—especially those who look as though they are, but aren't. Readers?

DEAR AMY: The phrase "innocent until proven guilty" has been around for a long time and the wording really bugs me.

Wouldn't "innocent unless proven guilty" have a more positive effect on one's subliminal thinking?

R. BLOOMFIELD, POMONA

DEAR R.: Yes, "until" implies that the person ultimately will be proven guilty. "Unless" suggests that the person may remain innocent forever.

DEAR AMY: I just read the letter from the lady who didn't want her apartment sprayed for bugs because clearing the shelves was too big a job for her. (She was an older woman who also worked.)

Friends of mine just moved into the apartment of a woman who had never had her place sprayed for the same reason. They said they had seen roaches hiding in the cupboards, behind the wallpaper and in every nook and cranny, and those bugs were so used to people they were almost domesticated.

Isn't there a volunteer organization in her city that could send someone to help her clean out and restock her shelves?

JOE HOLM, LINCOLN

DEAR JOE: She didn't disclose her location, but any volunteer organization that provides that kind of service deserves to be thanked publicly. Who and where are they?

Abby: For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.

Haven't we met somewhere?

days. The get-together included dinner, dancing, a social hour and a time of silence for deceased classmates. Among recipients of certificates were Dora Bronson Srdal, of Freeland, Wash., who had come the farthest; Phillip Boyd, the father of six, for most children; and Norma Jean Ellis Hayes, who with six and a half grandchildren narrowly won the certificate for having the most.

Top law school honor goes to Sanford student

MACON, Ga. — Steven James Estep of Sanford received the highest award offered by Mercer University's Walter F. George School of Law—the George Waldo Woodruff Award of Excellence—at the school's commencement exercises June 6.

During the graduation ceremonies, Estep, who received the Juris Doctor degree summa cum laude, was the recipient of the prestigious Woodruff Medal for the highest cumulative grade point average. He also was honored at the Law School's separate hooding ceremony.

Throughout his three years in law school, Estep consistently was first in his class.

He has been the recipient of 10 American Jurisprudence awards for achieving the highest grades in criminal law, civil procedure, property II, torts, federal basic tax, constitutional law II, evidence, commercial paper, conflict of laws, debtor creditor relations, and domestic relations. Twice he has received the Connell Award for achieving the highest semester scholastic average in the law school.

During Estep's junior and senior years, he served on the Mercer Law Review. During his senior year, he was elected by the faculty to the Brainerd Currie Honor Society and to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. He also was selected for induction into the National Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi. In 1987, he received the first Charles Walker Scholarship for outstanding achievement in law.

Estep is the son of Jim and Phyllis Estep of Sanford.

He plans to begin work in the fall with the King and Spalding law firm in Atlanta.

Library drama to bring Florida history to life

CASSELBERRY — The comedy, drama and daily life of 18th-century Florida and its capital city of Saint Augustine will come to life at the Central Branch of the Seminole County Public Library System on Aug. 18 at 7 p.m. with a program sponsored in part by the Florida Endowment for the Humanities.

The statewide program, "Discover Saint Augustine at your Public Library," presented by the Saint George Street Players of Saint Augustine, features the Players' sparkling translations of comic sketches by Spain's 16th-century comedian Lope de Rueda. The program will be presented in the meeting room on the first floor of the Central Branch, located at 215 N. Oxford Road in Casselberry. For more information, call the library at 339-4000.

The sketches are performed by Esteban and Juana, two 18th-century Spanish actors shipwrecked on the coast of La Florida in 1740.

In "real life," Esteban and Juana are Steve and Joan Hansen, theatrical jacks-of-all-trades who founded the Players nine years ago as a living history theatre company.

Rotary Club installs officers, gives awards

SANFORD — The Sanford Rotary Club greeted its new board of directors and officers for the 1988-89 Rotary year during its annual installation banquet at the American Legion Hall in Sanford.

At the June 20 banquet, the following were named as those who will begin serving as officers on July 1: Daryl McLain, president; Bill Jacobs, president-elect; Brad Lang, secretary; Ben Dyal, treasurer; and Rocky Ford, sergeant-at-arms.

The new board of directors consists of John Mercer, Rocky Ford, Alan Dickey and Tony Russel.

Paul Harris Awards, Rotary's highest honor, were presented to Bud Lauer, Gary Vogel, Clyde Robertson and Robertson's son, outgoing president Robbie Robertson. Named after Rotary's founder, the award is given to club members who have shown outstanding leadership in dedicating time and financial support to Rotary.

The Sanford Rotary Club meets every Monday at noon at the Sanford Civic Center.

Market active, prices up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 8.89 Wednesday, was up 6.57 to 2128.55 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 429-213 among the 1,011 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 16,250,000 shares.

Stock prices suffered modest losses Wednesday after a rally attempt late in the session failed to generate enough momentum to overcome early weakness.

The Dow showed a deficit of more than 20 points in early afternoon trading before staging its partial recovery.

"I think all you have here is a market that is tired and just wants to consolidate," said Dennis Jarrett.

Dollar slightly lower; Gold, silver edge up

By United Press International

The dollar was slightly lower today in light trading on major world money markets. Gold edged higher.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar closed slightly lower against the Japanese yen, closing at 132.20 yen, off 0.20 from 132.40 yen on Wednesday.

Bank of Japan Governor Satoshi Sumita hinted at a possible central bank intervention in the market but discounted the possibility of a continuous rise of the dollar against the yen.

He said the market is displaying some caution over the dollar's excessive hike.

Dealers said the dollar's upswing slowed on speculation that the German central bank would raise the discount rate later in the day.

In Europe, the West German Bundesbank's major policy-maker, the Central Bank Council raised its discount rate 3 percent from 2 1/2 percent and kept its Lombard rate unchanged at 4 1/2 percent.

The West German Central Bank said it will also increase its rate on securities repurchase agreements to 3 3/4 percent from 3 1/2 percent on Friday.

The decision to raise the West German discount rate was made in order to support the weak deutsche mark, the bank said.

The boost was widely expected in the financial markets, mostly because of the recent surge in the dollar.

Foreign currency traders in New York said the announcement had little impact on the dollar and had already been discounted by the market.

On the Frankfurt Foreign Exchange, the dollar opened at 1.8135 West German marks, down from 1.8248 marks on Wednesday.

Manufactured good's orders drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New orders for manufactured goods took their biggest dive in May since August 1987, dropping 0.6 percent, mostly because of slower orders for aircraft, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

The 0.6 percent decline to $218.0 billion was the first drop in new orders since a slightly smaller dip in January and was led by a 1.9 percent fall in orders for expensive, long-lasting items such as aircraft, the department's Census Bureau said.

The drop in orders for expensive heavy equipment may indicate a certain pessimism about the economy and a reluctance by business to commit capital to such items.

The transportation sector overall took a 10.2 percent dive in May, with all components down except for motor vehicles and parts. Excluding transportation, new orders for factory goods rose 1 percent from April.

Counsel decision hailed, decried

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional leaders and others are cheering the Supreme Court's "slam dunk decision" upholding the independent counsel law, a ruling that crushes a challenge championed by President Reagan's administration.

"Today's decision is a resounding statement that conflicts of interest in sensitive investigations will not be tolerated," said Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, after the justices handed down their 7-1 verdict Wednesday.

"It gives all of us the assurance that where there is credible evidence a high executive official has violated the rule of law, there will be a vigorous but fair investigation," agreed Archibald Cox, the special prosecutor fired by President Richard Nixon after just five months probing the Watergate scandal.

The high court's decision defused what could have been a major threat to the prosecution in the current Iran-Contra scandal, legal observers noted. It also strips ex-Reagan aides Michael Deaver and Lynn Solziger in their efforts to get their criminal convictions thrown out as unconstitutionally prosecuted.

At issue before the court was whether the 1978 Ethics in Government Act violated the Constitution's separation of powers principle by taking the traditional role of the executive branch to prosecute and giving it to the judicial branch through the right to appoint independent counsels.

The law, amended in 1982 after a battle between Congress and the Reagan administration, was devised in response to the Watergate scandal to ensure evenhanded investigation of charges of high-level government crimes.

"Given the ethical wasteland of the Reagan administration, it is not surprising the administration wanted the independent counsel law killed," remarked Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo.

Deaver, Solziger and Attorney General Edwin Meese are among the Reagan aides investigated by special counsels. The specific case brought to the Supreme Court involved Theodore Olson, under investigation by the independent prosecutor Alexia Morrison for allegedly lying to Congress during its probe of the 1983 Environmental Protection Agency scandal.

If the court had struck down the law, not only would attorneys for Deaver and Solziger have challenged their convictions — for perjury and illegal lobbying, respectively — but lawyers for ex-White House aide Oliver North and other defendants in the Iran-Contra criminal case also would have attacked.

They were expected to have challenged the authority of independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh during the time he was gathering evidence without a "backup appointment" from Meese designed to avoid the constitutional question.

Walsh was appointed Dec. 19, 1986, to investigate the secret U.S. arms sales to Iran and diversion of profits to Nicaraguan Contra rebels, but Meese did not make the parallel appointment until March 5, 1987.

Then, after that appointment, the Justice Department joined the challenge to the independent counsel law, insisting the administration could be trusted to handle sensitive prosecutions.

Meese, asked by reporters Wednesday if the decision was a major defeat, said only, "These are... tough constitutional issues. We put up, on behalf of the administration, the best legal arguments that we can."

...Budget

The fire department, headed by Fire Chief Tom Hickson, currently operates under a $1,886 million budget. Hickson has asked for $2.06 million for the next fiscal year, while Faison has recommended $1,885, $1,000 less than its current operating budget. However, included in Faison's proposal is $24,000 for a new pumper. Hickson asked for five additional personnel, and Faison recommends one.

The Public Works Department, with its five divisions, is currently operating on a $2.2 million budget. Director Bob Kelly has asked for $2.1 million for the next fiscal year, and Faison is recommending $1.8 million, an 18 percent reduction from the current budget. Kelly asked for four additional personnel for grounds maintenance, and Faison recommends one.

The Recreation and Parks Department, with three divisions, currently operates with a $1.3 million budget. Director Jim Jernigan requested a $1.23 million budget for next year. Faison recommends $930,000, a 28.5 percent cut from the current budget.

Recreation and Parks was hit hardest in personnel requests. Jernigan requested nine additional personnel, which included six maintenance workers Faison recommends none.

The Utility Department is operating under a $5.8 million budget, and Faison proposes $6.1 million for next fiscal year, a 5 percent increase. However, the utility department came out the best in additional personnel. Faison recommends all eight additional personnel requested be approved.

Under the Engineering and Planning Department, the Code Enforcement division enjoys the biggest increase in budget proposal.

Currently, Code Enforcement operates under a $7,051 budget but has requested a 632 percent increase to $51,612, and Faison has recommended approval of the request.

According to Faison, the division's duties have grown so much over the last several years that the additional money is necessary.

The entire Engineering and Planning Department, under director Bill Simmons, currently operates under a $556,000 budget. Simmons requested $633,000 for next year, while Faison recommends $596,000, which is about $10,000 less than this year, excluding the code enforcement division. Simmons did not request additional personnel.

Other items in the budget under Special Programs, include continuing the capital improvement program. Items that the city commission are expected to approve are a new fire station and work on the Civic Center and the Senior Citizen's Center.

Also under Special Programs is a $53,000 allocation to pay health insurance for the city's retirees. This program for retirees was mandated by the state several years ago, according to Faison.

Winter Springs, county at impasse

By J. Mark Barfield Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners and Winter Springs councilmen reached an impasse in their negotiations Tuesday over funding for a 2.4-mile stretch of Tuskawilla Boulevard in the county's road impact fee program.

The often tense 90-minute meeting left in doubt the likelihood all seven cities will sign the county's interlocal agreement to split $210 million in impact fees and county gas taxes for county roads throughout the county.

Should some cities decide to opt out of the program, as a Seminole circuit judge said they could, the county's plans to relieve frustrated drivers stuck in traffic jams could be delayed for years.

County commissioners voted to appeal the judge's decision and if successful, the negotiations would not be needed because the county would then have the authority to impose the fees throughout the county without the cities' approval. The county sued Winter Springs, Sanford and Casselberry last year because they refused to go along with the county program.

Without the three cities participating, the county has lost about $500,000 in fees since the impact fee program began in March last year.

Winter Springs councilmen were angered that a technical committee and the county split a project widening Tuskawilla Road from two to four lanes over a 10-year period. Under the funding program, the 3.3-mile southern stretch of road between State Road 426 and East Lake Drive are scheduled for widening between 1991 and 1995, the third highest priority on the 14-project list.

But the 2.6-mile northern section between East Lake Drive and State Road 434 isn't scheduled for widening until 2001. The councilmen said a delay in widening the northern section will create a bottleneck at East Lake Drive.

Councilman Marty Trencher offered a compromise that the county fund two traffic-projection studies on Tuskawilla Road in 1990 and 1992 and if traffic is higher than the county currently predicts, the project can be moved up.

County commissioners rejected the compromise proposal, saying the other six cities paid for their own traffic studies and participated regularly in discussions about the priority list. Winter Springs, they said, had not.

After the meeting, Trencher said the next decision is up to the county on whether to accept the proposal.

When county commission chairman Fred Streetman was asked when county commissioners would formally take up the proposal for consideration, he said, "I think we already did."

...Board

ingly strained as the board makes decisions stallers don't like.

At least nine times last year, Fern Park attorney John Baldwin refused to allow county firemen and fire inspectors to inspect his law offices at 7100 S. U.S. Highway 19-92. He relented twice, on Feb. 5, 1987, and following a court order on Dec. 11, 1987. County fire inspectors reported finding five violations on the first inspection and eight on the second.

Baldwin refused to allow inspectors to enter his building a third time on several occasions this year so they could determine if the December violations had been corrected.

On June 23, code board members, in a decision surprising to county attorneys and fire officials, said county fire inspectors had no probable cause to believe additional violations existed which would justify entering Baldwin's offices a third time. They granted Baldwin the right to refuse inspections.

J.R. "Hap" Hattaway, in making his motion, said a potential existed for county inspectors to abuse their powers.

"The fire marshal and the fire chief have tremendous powers," Hattaway said. "The ability for harassment exists."

Hattaway and board members Steve Cook, Hugh Harling and Ainsley Fry voted to allow Baldwin to refuse the inspections.

Board chairman Sara Jacobson and member Victor Eyal voted against the motion.

Before the vote, Eyal commented it was "totally irrelevant" to the charge that Baldwin had refused to allow the inspections in the first place.

At one point during the discussion, Cook commented "I've been subjected to this. We need to set up some sort of procedure."

At another point during the discussion, Cook said "I'd like this one to go to court. I don't want to deal with this one."

Johnson's blast sinks Pirates

United Press International
The momentum in the National League East was ready to shift. Just one more strike and Pittsburgh would move to within 3 1/2 games of first-place New York.

Reliever Jim Gott had two strikes on Howard Johnson, with two out in the ninth inning Tuesday night and the Pirates led 7-6.

Johnson, who clubbed many big homers for the Mets in their 1986 championship season and drilled a career-best 36 last year, rocketed a delivery from Gott over the right-field wall to silence the frenzied crowd at Three Rivers Stadium.

Two innings later, New York would score again for a stirring 8-7, 11-inning triumph — and a much more comfortable 5 1/2 game edge.

"I think the momentum would have shifted if they would have won the series," Johnson said. "We came back. Now we can't let up. There are no letups now."

New York didn't let up, and for that matter, neither did Pittsburgh.

Roger McDowell, 4-1, entered with the bases full and one out in the ninth, inducing both Mike LaValliere and Rafael Belliard to groundout.

McDowell then began the winning rally with a double off Bob Kipper, 1-2, and raced home on Kevin McReynolds' single.

The playoff-like game was witnessed by 41,217, pushing total for the three-game set to an all-time Pirate record of 127,717.

"We're tickled to death with the fans who showed up," Pittsburgh Manager Jim Leyland said. "We're disappointed we didn't give them two out of three. It looked for a while like we were going to, but I don't think anyone walked away to-night ashamed of this ballclub. I don't think anyone walked away thinking they didn't get their money's worth."

The Pirates took a 7-6 lead in the sixth on Jose Lind's second, two-run single of the game, creating the fourth lead change.

"It was just back and forth all night," New York's Wally Backman said. "It was fortunate for us to be able to come out on top."

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Elsewhere in the National League, San Diego edged Cincinnati 3-2, San Francisco tipped Atlanta 7-2, Philadelphia downed Chicago 4-2, Los Angeles blanked Houston 2-0 and Montreal nipped St. Louis 3-2 in 10 innings.

In the American League, it was Oakland 7, Milwaukee 2; New York 7, Detroit 3; Toronto 4, Baltimore 2; Boston 5, Cleveland 1; Kansas City 9, Chicago 8; Texas 1, Seattle 0 in 12 innings; and California 2, Minnesota 1.

Padres 3, Reds 2

At Cincinnati, Roberto Alomar smacked a two-run homer in the fifth inning to snap a tie. Eric Show scattered five hits over 8 1/3 innings, walking none and striking out three in improving to 6-8. Mark Davis got two outs for his 14th save. Tim Lirtsas lost his first decision in his first start of the season.

Giants 7, Braves 2

At Atlanta, Don Robinson, 3-1, was a winner in his first start since 1985, going six innings and combining with Scott Garrelts, who earned his fifth save, on an eight-hitter. Will Clark smacked his league-leading 19th homer of the season, off Pete Smith, 2-8.

Phillies 4, Cubs 2

At Chicago, Juan Samuel, Bob Dernier and Von Hayes stroked consecutive RBI singles in the seventh to erase a 2-0 deficit and end the Cubs' four-game winning streak. Mike Maddux, 2-0, won. Steve Bedrosian earned his 13th save and Calvin Schiraldi, despite a career-high 11 strikeouts, fell to 4-6.

Dodgers 2, Astros 0

At Houston, Orel Hershiser fired a two-hitter for his fifth straight victory, six complete game of the season and second shutout, improving to 12-3. Mike Marshall drove in both runs off Nolan Ryan, 5-6, who hasn't won since May 29. Los Angeles upped its NL West lead to 4 1/2 games over second-place Houston.

Expos 3, Cardinals 2

At St. Louis, Herm Winingham hit a sacrifice fly to lift Montreal to its 10th victory in 13 extra-inning games this season.

LA's Mike Scioscia jumps on a bunted ball quickly. Scioscia and the Dodger supped their lead in the NL West to 4 1/2 games Wednesday with a 2-0 victory over the Astros.

Jeff Parrett, 7-2, threw two innings. Todd Worrell fell to 3-4. St. Louis' Danay Cox allowed one earned run over five innings in his first start since elbow surgery May 2.

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Brewers arrived home from Oakland, Calif., Wednesday, glad to be back on solid ground.

Living like the natives, the Brewers survived a couple of earthquakes on their six-game California road trip.

Sunday, Milwaukee experienced a 4.5 southern California earthquake before a 4-2 loss to the California Angels. The Brewers arrived in northern California Monday, just in time for a 5-7 tremor prior to a 5-4, 14-inning loss to the Oakland Athletics.

A 4.5 quake is classified "moderate," while a 5.7 quake is considered "strong." Last September's Los Angeles earthquake measured 6.1 on the Richter Scale.

BOSTON (UPI) — The Red Sox recalled rookie right-hander Steve Ellsworth from Pawtucket Wednesday and optioned first baseman Pat Dodson to the Triple A club. Dodson had been given a chance to win the first base job, starting 11 times between June 3 and June 22, but was batting only .178 with one home run and one RBI.

Ellsworth made the opening-day roster with a strong spring, but was 1-5 with a 6.30 ERA and was optioned May 20 to Pawtucket, where the six-foot-eight hurler was 2-4 with a 4.11 ERA in seven starts. He is the son of former major-league pitcher Dick Ellsworth.

Ellsworth was the International League Pitcher of the Week for May 22-28, pitching a near no-hitter against Oklahoma City.

Key gives Jays shot in the arm

United Press International
The Toronto Blue Jays got a shot in the arm from a pitcher who had been out getting his repaired.

Jimmy Key, making his first start since the May 6 surgery to remove bone chips from his left elbow, combined with two relievers on a seven-hitter, carrying the Blue Jays to a 4-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

"I got a lot of ground balls early, which let me get my feet on the ground," said Key, 3-1, who scattered four hits, struck out five and walked two over 6 2/3 innings. "I was calm. I wasn't nervous at all, but I was glad to get it out of the way. The elbow is fine."

"I didn't have a good breaking ball, but my fastball was decent. I wasn't uptight. It was like I had been out there all year. Maybe that's why I did so well. I've been looking forward to this one for a long time."

Key had not started a major-league game since April 14, but retired 12 of his final 13 batters before Rick Schu walked with two out in the seventh. Fifty-nine of his 91 pitches were strikes.

Tom Henke, who recorded his 16th save, gave up an RBI single to Joe Orsulak in the ninth inning before Cal Ripken grounded out to end the game, moving Toronto into fifth place in the AL East, percentage points ahead of Milwaukee.

"We needed a lift and he gave us one," said Toronto catcher Eric Wright. "Jimmy and Jeff Musselman are the key to the second half for us. Key pitched better than I expected. We got a lucky bounce, too."

Ward had walked Orsulak and hit Cal Ripken with a pitch in the eighth inning before Eddie Murray struck out on a foul tip that bounced off, then into Wright's mitt.

"He looked like Key to me," said Blue Jays Manager Jimmy Williams. "If he was rusty, he would have walked people. He pitched great. It was a big lift for us."

Elsewhere, Boston belted Cleveland 5-1. Oakland defeated Milwaukee 7-2. New York edged Detroit 7-3. Kansas City edged Chicago 9-8. California edged Minnesota 2-1 and Texas nipped Seattle 1-0 in 12 innings.

In the National League, it was Philadelphia 4, Chicago 2; Los Angeles 2, Houston 0; San Francisco 7, Atlanta 2; New York

8, Pittsburgh 7, in 11 innings; San Diego 3, Cincinnati 2; and Montreal 3, St. Louis 2, in 10 innings.

Red Sox 5, Indians 1

At Boston, Roger Clemens allowed three hits over seven innings in his first home victory since May 14, and Ellis Burks hit a three-run homer to lead the Red Sox. Clemens, 11-5, struck out 10 and walked one in his ninth complete game of the season. He is 8-0 in 10 career starts against Cleveland.

Athletics 7, Brewers 2

At Oakland, Calif., Mike Gallego and Dave Henderson homered to back the six-hit pitching of Bob Welch and lead the Athletics. Welch, 10-4, became Oakland's second 10-game winner, joining Dave Stewart. He fired his second complete game of the year. Bill Wegman, 6-6, left after 3 2/3 innings.

Yankees 7, Tigers 3

At New York, Claudio Washington went 3 for 5 with a double, triple and three RBI, leading the Yankees. The triumph was New York's first against Detroit in six games this season. The Yankees pounded Walt Terrell, 3-5, for five runs in 2 2/3 innings. Reliever Steve Shields, 1-2, pitched 2 1/3 scoreless innings.

Royals 9, White Sox 8

At Kansas City, Mo., Jamie Quirk, George Brett and Danny Tartabull homered in a five-run fifth inning and the Royals blew a nine-run lead but held off the Chicago. Floyd Bannister, 8-6, earned the victory. Melido Perez fell to 6-5.

Angels 2, Twins 1

At Anaheim, Calif., Chuck Finley and Bryan Harvey combined on a five-hitter, sending California past the Twins for their 10th victory in 13 games. Johnny Ray and Darrell Miller each singled in a run for the Angels. Finley, 5-8, gave up four hits. Starter Allan Anderson, 4-6, gave up nine hits over six innings.

Rangers 1, Mariners 0

At Seattle, pinch-hitter Barbara Garbey lofted a sacrifice fly with one out in the 12th inning and Charlie Hough allowed seven hits over 11-plus innings, leading Texas to their second straight shutout of the Mariners. Hough, 8-7, walked three and struck out eight.

Cubs don't expect heroics from Goose

CHICAGO (UPI) — During a long major-league career, Rich "Goose" Gossage has been called upon countless times in pressure situations. On many of those occasions he emerged the hero, and at other times he performed less nobly.

This season, he's being asked to accept a different role.

Chicago Cubs Manager Don Zimmer has decided to skip calling Gossage from the bullpen in game-saving situations when one of his other relievers seems to be on a streak.

"If one of my other pitchers is performing well, why should I call him out?" Zimmer asks rhetorically.

The apparent snub by Zimmer doesn't seem to bother Gossage, who zipped up a team-leading 9 saves in 21 appearances through the end of June.

"He's the manager," says Gossage, who turns 37 July 5. "There's nothing I can do about that. All I can do is try to go out and do my job."

Gossage, who was brought to Chicago after the Cubs decided to trade ace reliever Lee Smith to Boston, has accumulated 298 career saves since he broke into major-league baseball with the Chicago White Sox in 1972 — second only to Rolfe Fingers' 341.

Gossage, who recorded 11 saves with San Diego last season and 21 the year before, believes he would have more saves to his credit this season with a little more luck.

"There's a very fine line between winning and losing, and there's very little room for errors when you come into a game-saving situation," says Gossage, who was due to come off the 15-day disabled list July 1 after suffering a neck strain. "It's such a magical point. You're either the hero or the goat, and when you're the goat it seems that everything rests on your shoulders."

"But I believe you make your own breaks, and we just went through a period where we weren't getting any breaks. You go through stages where you struggle. Everybody does. That's just the way the game goes."

Zimmer says part of Gossage's struggle may be attributed to his nearly 20-year tenure in pro baseball. Gossage made his pro debut with Sarasota of the Gulf Coast League in 1970.

"There's no way he's the same pitcher he was 15 years ago," Zimmer said. "He's not the Goose Gossage of 1978 or 1979 when he was unbeatable and unkillable. We've got a guy a few years older now, but we feel that Gossage can still do a very credible job for us."

"I'm not looking for miracles and I don't expect him to pitch like he did seven or eight years ago, but I still think Goose is intimidating to hitters and I still think he can do a job for us."

Gossage, who recorded a career-high 33 saves for the New York Yankees in 1980 and has enjoyed 10 seasons of 20 or more saves, doesn't disagree that time has taken a toll on his body, but he says he's made the necessary adjustments to remain a major leaguer.

Physically, I'm probably in better shape than I was when I was 21," the right-hander said. "I may have lost some velocity on my fast ball and throw more sliders. I get paid to slam the door. That's my job. Sometimes it just doesn't happen like that."

Gossage, who doesn't like to compare one season to the next, says he doesn't try to predict the future, either.

"I always take things one day at a time," he says. "I never want to look back. If I looked back and said I was going to play this long, I'd have to pinch myself."

Gossage also says he hasn't made any plans for retiring.

"Baseball's my life, it's my livelihood. I love it. I'm just very happy I've had the opportunity to play this long. As long as it's still fun, I'll still be in it."

Punch, Connection claim softball wins

SANFORD — Pretty Punch came from behind to take a 9-4 victory over Stromberg Carlson and The Tim Raines Connection belted 31 hits as it destroyed Central Florida Regional Hospital, 22-12, Wednesday night in Sanford Men's softball action at Pinehurst Park.

Gordon Clark led Pretty Punch with a single and a home run finishing with one run batted in and two runs scored. Al Campbell added a triple, two doubles and a single with two RBIs and two runs scored. Jeff Aten came up with two singles a run batted in and a run scored.

David MacInnes tripled and scored with Tony Lavere adding a double with one run batted in and one run scored. Tom Burnham added a double with a run batted in and a run scored with Stephen Henry doubling with two RBIs as Gary Scott

Hoyt to get early release

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Former Cy Young Award winner LaMarr Hoyt will be given an early release from prison Friday and will serve the remainder of his sentence in a halfway house, court documents indicate.

Hoyt is expected to walk out of the federal prison at Allentown, Pa., and return to his hometown of Columbia, S.C., to finish out his year-long sentence in a halfway house beginning Friday, according to documents filed June 6 in U.S. District Court.

Hoyt, 33, won the American League Cy Young Award with the Chicago White Sox in 1983, but his baseball career has since been derailed by repeated drug violations. He was in prison for drug possession and a probation violation stemming from an earlier drug conviction.

Hoyt's San Diego lawyer, Howard Frank, refused to comment on the matter.

SCOREBOARD

Tim Raines' stats are for 1988 season in first column, personal best season total in second column and current career totals (including 1988 games) in third column. GW RBI stands for Game Winning RBI. Raines went on the 15-day disabled list Tuesday with a right hamstring pull.

Strep throat will surely affect tonsils

DEAR DR. GOTT: My health class raised some questions our teacher couldn't answer. Why do you often get little white spots on the back of your throat when you have strep throat? Why do you often get chills when you have a fever?

DEAR READER: Streptococcal bacteria commonly affect the tonsils, where they cause little pockets of infection to develop. Often these pockets resemble grains of rice; usually they are fluffy and appear to stick to the tonsils; sometimes the areas of infection coalesce to form a whitish covering over the tonsils.

The end result is tonsillitis. This condition need not be acute. Young people will occasionally have chronic tonsillitis: hard pellets of infected material that are wedged deep into the crypts (crevices) of chronically inflamed tonsils. These can cause bad breath, a foul taste in the mouth, fatigue, swollen glands in the neck and a tendency to develop repeated fevers and upper respiratory infections. Sore throat may not be present. Antibiotic therapy may give temporary relief, but tonsillectomy may be the most effective way to cure chronic tonsillitis.

With respect to your second question: When a person is ill, Nature has provided a means by which the immune system can be helped to combat infection. This is fever — a complex biochemical reaction that forces the body to hold in heat. Because many bacteria and viruses grow best in a constant temperature of normal body heat (98.6 degrees), the body tends to inactivate the invading microorganisms by turning up the thermostat and, in a sense, trying to burn them out.

Since muscle contractions are a good way to increase body heat (as every athlete knows), Nature causes us to shiver and have chills at times when body heat must be increased. Chills are the turbocharging of fever. As uncomfortable as they are, they serve a purpose by making us pull on the covers and by producing more heat by muscle contraction.

In summary, chills and fever go together as a natural mechanism designed to disrupt the metabolism of foreign germs that are attacking the body.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
In "Tips for Tops," George Rosenkranz advises players to be as clear as possible in their suit preference signals. Today's example hand is not a classic. In that West's pre-empt of three hearts might not be made by many players. (They would view West's hand as too strong for an opening three-bid.) Nevertheless, the bid occurred as reported, and South duly arrived at four spades.

West led his ace of hearts, hoping that his partner might be able to ruff a second heart and then give him a diamond ruff. That thinking was all right, but see what happened subsequently. After the heart ace, West continued with the heart seven, intending for East to lead back a diamond if he could ruff the second heart. East did ruff the second heart, but looking at his king of diamonds and the dummy's A-Q, he simply could not bring himself to lead back a diamond. He still could not see the queen or the nine of hearts, and so he was not absolutely convinced that West was void. When he led back a club, declarer had no trouble drawing trumps and giving up a diamond to make the contract.

What should West have done? There was no reason for West not to play the heart queen at trick two. And now if East could not get the message to lead a diamond for West to ruff, he should take up another game. James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Oool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 1, 1988

It looks like there will be a number of interesting changes for you in the year ahead. Some you will initiate yourself; others will be governed by circumstances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best not to gamble on situations today that could affect others, as well as yourself. Both parties will feel badly if your calculations misfire. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try to resolve misunderstandings between you and your mate as promptly as possible. Something that starts out small could grow quickly if the flame is not extinguished.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You can lead associates to work today, but you can't make them perform. Things could get testy if you start bossing co-workers around.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, do not treat lightly commercial or business matters that require serious attention. If you're too indifferent, something that can be gained might be lost.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to yield to your nobler instincts today and put the priorities of others above your own. If you don't you might feel guilty later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's best not to jump to conclusions today, because your initial assessment of situations could be erroneous. Gather facts instead of frustrations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to re-examine your recent expenditures so you can determine the difference between essential and non-essential spending.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In front of others today acknowledge the help of people who have been instrumental in your success. This will assure their continued support.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Profit from your past experiences and guard tendencies to repeat mistakes that formerly caused you problems. Live and learn.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A close friend who has the reputation of being cool under fire is the person you should talk to before making a decision you are unsure about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Follow your inclinations today where your ambitious interests are concerned. Unenthusiastic associates who do not see things as you do could throw you off course.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Leave your work in the office today. Injecting shop talk into social situations might be of interest to you, but it could bore your listeners to tears.

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

Instructors penalized in Navy recruits death

PENSACOLA (UPI) — The sister of a water-phobic Navy recruit who died after allegedly being forced back into the water during a rescue swimming exercise wouldn't say if the punishment received by the instructors was severe enough.

"It's difficult for me to make a rational judgment because we do not know all of the circumstances in which these decisions were made," Lynn Johansen of Appleton, Wis., said Wednesday after two of the instructors were demoted and the other two faced pay cuts in connection with the March 2 death of her 19-year-old brother, Airman Recruit Lee Mirecki.

Rear Adm. David Morris, chief of naval air training, sentenced the four enlisted men during a three-hour closed-door hearing Wednesday. The four chose the Navy's offer of non-judicial punishment and avoided a court-martial.

Citrus canker decision appealed

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — State agriculture officials say they will ask the Supreme Court to overturn a decision awarding compensation to citrus growers whose crops were destroyed to halt the spread of a 1984 citrus canker outbreak.

"The Florida Attorney General joins me in feeling that the restrictions put on regulatory actions of officials and agencies by the Florida courts are an extraordinary burden," state Agriculture Secretary Doyle Conner said.

The state Supreme Court on Jan. 21 upheld a lower court decision awarding Himrod & Himrod Citrus Nursery and Mid-Florida Growers Inc. $1.9 million for plants ordered destroyed by the state in an effort to control the disease.

Reagan blasts Dukakis on taxes

MIAMI (UPI) — President Reagan took aim Wednesday at Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, calling the Democratic presidential candidate a "true liberal" who will raise taxes and overspend if elected in November.

Hitting the campaign trail with a fury, Reagan zeroed in on his old familiar enemies — higher taxes and fat government spending — and a new candidate he declared withering both back.

Martinez criticized for budget vetoes

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Legislative leaders say Gov. Bob Martinez was arbitrary, biased and vindictive in vetoing projects worth $150.2 million from the state budget.

Martinez issued the largest budget veto message in more than a decade Wednesday morning, then signed into law the $21.2 billion 1988-89 fiscal year budget.

Democratic leaders quickly charged the governor had targeted political opponents for punishment. They said he had been inconsistent and inaccurate in justifying the vetoes and apparently violated constitutional guidelines on issuing vetoes.

"This was a very partisan, a very biased, a very arbitrary and a very unprofessional piece of work designed to reach the people he wanted to reach," said House Appropriations Committee chairman Sam Bell, D-Ormond Beach.

Bell and Senate President John Vogt said the governor vetoed an inordinate number of items of concern to blacks, including black cultural education programs and community improvements in predominantly black areas.

Vogt said he would talk to House Speaker Jon Mills about the possibility of a special session to override some vetoes, but was not sure whether a session could be held.

Bell said 44 of the 136 vetoes had hit the districts of either himself, Vogt, Mills or Sen. W.D. Childers, D-Pensacola. Only 16 had eliminated projects strongly supported by Republican legislators, he said.

Bell said Martinez had apparently violated three different constitutional guidelines on vetoes, and that he would recommend Vogt and Mills file suit to determine the vetoes' legality.

Most of the vetoes were in transportation, where Martinez wiped out $67.7 million in construction projects. Many of those projects were "dirty road projects" pushed by individual lawmakers, but not approved by the Department of Transportation.

Martinez also cut $19 million in education construction, most of it individual projects not requested by the Department of Education.

The governor also vetoed $47.3 million in other funded legislation, such as money placed in the budget for bills that died in the session's final days. He vetoed $16.2 million in projects he said were funded inappropriately from the state's public works fund.

The largest single veto was a $30 million loan to build a new runway at the Orlando International Airport, the latest growing airport in Florida. Vogt and Bell were both sharply critical of that action.

Martinez said the project and four other vetoed airport projects had not been requested by the Department of Transportation and that funding all airport improvement requests would have meant unfairly using ground transportation revenues to subsidize aviation.

Heathrow reaches out

Thomas Reiman, seated, president of Heathrow Telecommunications, receives the first residential telephone call over the Heathrow fiber network. R.K. Snelling, standing, is executive vice president — network for Southern Bell, the company installing and maintaining the network. Northern Telecom developed and provided the telecommunications equipment needed to build the all-fiber network.

Airport loan veto stuns officials

ORLANDO (UPI) — Airport officials and local legislators were stunned and incredulous with Gov. Bob Martinez' veto of a $30 million loan to defray future expansion costs at Orlando International Airport.

The loan, which was to buy 3,500 acres for a future fourth runway at the state's fastest-growing airport before land prices escalate, amounted to about 20 percent of $150.2 million worth of items the Republican Martinez struck down Wednesday from the Legislature's 1988-89 fiscal year budget.

In addition to residents and business travelers, the airport serves millions of convention delegates and tourists drawn to Orlando by the central Florida attractions.

The airport reached design capacity in 1986 and has routinely surpassed by more than 10 percent monthly passenger loads from last year.

when it operated at more than 2 million passengers over capacity.

"I just regret he would view this as unimportant when, in my opinion, it's far more important than many other items he did not veto, the most obvious of which is $30 million for a baseball stadium," said Rep. Fran Carlton, D-Orlando, referring to the legislative package to help lure a professional baseball team to St. Petersburg.

"Besides," Carlton said, "this was a loan and wouldn't have cost the state anything in the long run."

Chairman Jeff Fuqua of the Greater Orlando Aviation Authority, Mayor Bill Frederick and airport director John Wyckoff were in New York negotiating bond prices for $430 million worth of current expansion that will double the main terminal and add 24 gates at an airside terminal Delta Air Lines will occupy.
