LAKE MARY — The Federal Government's new health care program will be discussed Thursday evening in Lake Mary. The public is invited to attend a panel discussion on how the new program will or will not help various individuals.

Panel members are from the Omitoastmasters Club. They include Rosella Donham, Donna Palagano, Trisha Dunnavan and Sam Ryan, who are familiar with the various segments of the government's plan.

Questions will be taken from the audience although challenges will not be allowed.

The meeting will be held at the Old City Hall, 158 N. Country Club Road in Lake Mary, Thursday evening from 5:30 until 6:30.

For further information or reservations, call Trisha Dunnavan, 321-4681.

Kids to meet Cops

SANFORD — A fun day for youngsters, Kids and Cops Day, has been planned for this Saturday at Castle Brewer Court.

According to police officer Rick Poovey, "We'll have a number of activities, free hot dogs and soft drinks, and much more for all the youngsters in the area."

Units to be on display include the D.A.R.E. vehicle used in drug abuse prevention courses, the BATOmobile (breath analyzer unit) and members of the new community policing team.

"These are the officers who will be assigned specifically in the Castle Brewer Court area," said police Commander Dennis Whitmore. "They will be working directly with the people of that area, and this will be an excellent time for the children and residents to get to know them, as well as for them to meet the youngsters of the community."

Poovey said Metro Chrysler-Plymouth is donating a hot dog unit, and they will have plenty of canned soft drinks, free of charge for youngsters who attend the event.

"We will be near the basketball court area at Castle Brewer Court, next door to the Sanford Housing Authority offices from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. this Saturday," Poovey said. "It's free, and we hope all youngsters will turn out."

Falling oak limb crushes man

ORANGE PARK — A huge limb from a live oak tree fell on a Clay County man, fatally crushing him and injuring his 15-month-old nephew he was carrying in his arms.

Michael David Whynot, 30, was walking under the tree Tuesday when the rotting limb weighing 4 to 5 tons broke loose, crushing his skull and ribs.

"It sounded like the crack of lightning. I heard what sounded like a child crying," said neighbor David Darnell.

He said he was horrified to see Whynot pinned under the tree, his body shielding the screaming toddler, Christopher Pitts.

After running inside to call police, Darnell attempted to pry the limb off Whynot but could not move it.

Neighbors were able to free the child, who was flown to University Medical Center in Jacksonville. The child was listed in good condition.

Garbage rates to jump

Sanford's fee would be highest in county

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford commissioners who two weeks ago liked water bills as much as 24 percent say they are forced to propose a hike in residents' garbage collection fees to the highest in the county.

City Manager Bill Simmons is studying financial problems with solid waste collections. Rates are expected to be increased by 7.5 percent.

The Solid Waste Division's fiscal year 93/94 budget request, even with a substantial reduction of expenses, is out of balance with projected revenue by approximately $168,000.

Frank Kilgore, with the Public Works Department, says it is due to yard waste and recycling separation requirements causing higher labor and operation costs. Also, revenues are somewhat lower and landfill costs are higher than expected.

During Monday afternoon's city commission work session, Simmons gave the commission three alternatives to consider, which would help resolve the problem.

In each case however, the plans call for a reduction in personnel to help offset the imbalance.

Following a discussion of the various ways suggested to overcome the imbalance, the commission selected the first alternative which calls for no change in operation, but a rate increase.

Teen on trial for murder

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — "Come go with me. Tonight is the night, no other night."

Those are the words a former Winter Springs woman claims her boyfriend said over and over to her son that fateful March night last year. Before the night was over her boyfriend lay dead in the street. Her son is on trial for first degree murder.

Enchano Mahone, 18, Latonville is being tried for shooting Gill Lopez, March 4, 1992, at 258 Buttonwood Avenue, Winter Springs. The defense is claiming he shot in self defense.

Debra Mahone, 35, told a Seminole Circuit Court jury that her live-in boyfriend, Lopez, repeatedly taunted her son, Enchano. She told the jury Lopez did not say, "I'm going to kill you," or "I'm going to beat you up," he just kept repeating, "Come go with me. Tonight is the night."

County speeds road work to boost airport development

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners unanimously agreed Tuesday to speed up construction of a 3,000-foot connector between Silver Lake Drive and the new entrance to Central Florida Regional Airport to boost commercial use of the city airport.

"We do need this road," McLain said. "It's important to the entire county."

"Economic development has been on our minds as we looked to moving forward this project," said County Manager Ron Rabun.

Advancement of the construction project from its 1996 scheduled start will require the delay of three planned projects and a dip into the county reserves.

The delayed projects are the design and land purchases for Upsilon Road, design of Osceola Road improvements in Geneva and the completion of paving Brooks Lane near Winter Springs.

Construction and land for the Silver Lake Drive extension will cost $717,000. County Engineer Jerry McCallum said design work will have to begin in three weeks to meet the airport's construction schedule.

Rabun had included $1.2 million for next year to complete the design of the entire extension from Lake Mary Boulevard to State Road 36, where it will connect with State Road 415. The connector had been touted by commissioner Bob Sturm for several years as a revenue-producing link between west Volusia County and the

Recycling plant heavily damaged

SARASOTA — A paper recycling plant was heavily damaged today by a blaze that shot flames at least 40 feet in the air and smoke could be seen 10 miles away, fire officials said.

The fire at the Mid South Recycled Cardboard started shortly after 6 p.m. Tuesday, said Sarasota County Fire Department Lt. Brian Kehoe.

There were no injuries reported, and Kehoe said the 10,000 square foot warehouse was in a business district that didn't threaten residential areas.

"We had reports that they could see it several miles," Kehoe said. In fact, one of his firefighters living about 10 miles from the fire said he saw the smoke from his home.

Forty units from four separate fire departments, and 100 firefighters, battled the blaze, Kehoe said.

Teen indicted in woman's slaying

FORT PIERCE — A St. Lucie County grand jury indicted a teen-ager for first-degree murder and kidnapping in the beating death of an elderly woman who criticized the lyrics of a rap song he was singing.

Victor Brancaccio, 16, is accused of killing Mollie Mae Frazier on June 14. Police said Brancaccio beat Mrs. Frazier to death then later returned to burn and spray paint her body.

His attorney contends that Brancaccio was insane at the time of the killing because of a combination of rap music, alcohol and antidepressant drugs.

"We feel as though the kid deserves a break because of his age and situation," said longtime family friend Mike Santagata. "We need to support the lad morally and financially."

Trial

She told the jury, however, Lopez had threatened her, and her son in the three weeks leading up to that March 4 night. She claimed earlier, Lopez said he was going to take Enchano out alone somewhere and kill him.

When Enchano learned about the threats, he was angry and told his mother she did not have to take it anymore, she testified. Ms. Mahone said Lopez also warned her to stay out of his way, or he would massacre her, and her other children.

Although she did not know specifically why her boyfriend disliked her son, Ms. Mahone said Lopez complained Enchano was a "spoiled brat" and thought he was the father of the house. She also said Lopez called the teen "Momma's boy" and claimed the mother and her son were "too close."

Ms. Mahone testified she had known Lopez, a native of Puerto Rico for 13 years and he had been her boyfriend for six years. Due to the ill feelings between Lopez and Enchano, Ms. Mahone said her son lived part of the time with her and at other times, with his girlfriend. The day of the shooting, her son was at her Winter Springs home.

When Lopez and Enchano returned from different errands that night, the taunting and arguing continued between the pair, as the teen prepared a barbecue grill for a cookout. Ms. Mahone told the jurors, Lopez took a gun from his car and fired five shots in the air.

Earlier in the day several neighbors testified they did not hear any shots that night except around 10 or 10:30 p.m. when the shooting occurred.

As Lopez tried to grab Mahone as they argued in the street, Debra said she and her sister, Evette, tried to keep them apart. Lopez knocked both women down and went after Enchano, according to Ms. Mahone. Shots were fired. Lopez, who was still moving toward the teen while the shots went off, turned after the last shot toward the house.

"He was staggering with me back to the house," she said. "As we got to the driveway, he collapsed to the ground. I knelt down, holding his head and asked him if he was okay. He just looked at me. Then I yelled to call 911. I didn't see Enchano after the shooting."

Defense attorney Frank Bankowitz attempted to portray Lopez as a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" character whose personality changed when he drank. Ms. Mahone said Lopez was drinking beer the night of the shooting.

After assistant state attorney Stewart Stone rests his case, Bankowitz will present defense witnesses. Mahone, who claims he shot in self-defense, is scheduled to testify, possibly on Thursday.

Seminole Circuit Court Judge Alan Dickey is presiding in the case.

Ordinance passed

Longwood mayor warns voters of massive tax increase if passed

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — A massive tax increase would be necessary if voters pass the ordinance placing the city police department into the city charter warns Mayor Paul Lovestrand. He was the only "no" vote when the ordinance passed Monday night.

According to the guidelines for manning the police department used in the ordinance, Lovestrand claims, the city would have to add 10 to 19 new officers at a cost of between $400,000 to $800,000. There are currently 34 police in the department.

In the ordinance, it says, "The police department shall consist of such other members as shall be determined by the guidelines as established by the Federal Department of Justice's 'Crime in the United States' for the South Atlantic Region."

Lovestrand obtained a copy of the those guidelines, which set forth the number of officers based on the city population. Based on the Longwood population of 13,828, he said the guidelines say there should be either 3.2 or 3.8 police for every 1,000 citizens, either 53 or 44 depending on the figure used.

Commissioner Harvey Smerilson proposed the ordinance at the request of some citizens to try and remove the department from political wrangling, such as the move to abolish the department last year. Lovestrand worked hard circulating petitions to get the proposal on the ballot. However, 70 percent of the city citizens taking part in the election voted to retain the city police.

As a charter based department, it would take a unanimous vote of the commission to change it rather than the three-fifths vote now required.

Smerilson assured the commission members, the staffing provision was a guideline and not a requirement for police department.

Lovestrand claims the word "shall" is an imperative, requiring the city to staff the department according to the guidelines.

The voters will decide in a November referendum whether to okay placing the police department in the city charter.

Lovestrand said a political action committee (PAC) will be formed to fight the measure. If the measure passes, the mayor warns, "brace yourself Longwood. Big taxes are coming."

Auditors question overtime

By Associated Press

TAMPA — A handful of Tampa water department employees were paid thousands of dollars in overtime pay for being on standby and wearing beepers, auditors said.

Larry D. Livingston, a city water department crew supervisor, earned $31,549 in overtime pay for eight hours of work and 1,625 hours of toting a beeper, auditors said.

In Livingston's case, city auditors found the emergencies rarely occurred — but the overtime pay was constant during a two year period.

His standby pay for two years amounts to a 55 percent increase in his annual pay of $28,537, giving Livingston a total of $88,623 in earnings.

In a report released Monday, auditors found the standby pay seemed to be meted out to a small group of employees — a practice that Water Department Director David Tippin defended as necessary since workers would not report to work voluntarily.

"An employee can refuse to come to work for recall, and many have, if the employee is not bound by standby hours," Tippin wrote in response to auditors' questions about the practice.

In other instances, five water department equipment operators earned $17,415 for approximately 893 hours of standby. During that time they were called back to work for only 21.5 hours.

Seminole County Expressway. The link was dubbed the "Sturm Spur" by former commissioner Bill Kirchhoff.

Airport Director Steve Cooke said airport officials have sought the link for two years. Cooke told commissioners the Sanford Airport Authority has received $3.3 million in state and federal grants to build four- and two-lane sections of an access road between the airport and Silver Lake Drive extension. Cooke said the extension will direct traffic from the expressway, now expected to be completed by next February, to the airport. The ease of expressway access should encourage companies to locate to the airport's industrial area and still trade with Orange County businesses, he said.

The analysis lead commissioner Larry Furlong to query, "If we build it, they will come?"

Cooke also said the link will also eliminate much of the traffic on Wylly Avenue and Airport Boulevard, estimated at 7,000 to 8,000 cars per day.

Airport and city officials at the meeting found a warm reception from commissioners Tuesday. Earlier meetings, in December and January, found Sturm and Furlong reluctant to use sales taxes or property taxes for the project.

Investigator says illegal prescription drugs in Castro hands

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Million of dollars in prescription drugs paid by Medicaid and sent by exiles to relatives in Cuba are actually being seized by Castro's government and distributed to hospitals catering to foreign tourists, investigators said.

Agustin Garcia, an investigator with the Dade County

Commission, said Tuesday Cuban dictator Fidel Castro has mounted an advertising campaign to lure visitors from other Caribbean nations to Cuba with the promise of cheap health care, provided in part by the illegally obtained American drugs.

The investigation focuses on Cuban Americans in South Florida who use Medicaid to obtain prescription drugs and send them to relatives in drug-starved Cuba.

"I was outraged," Garcia said. "You're awinding twice."

A caller told investigators the drugs are being seized by Cuban government agents under a law that requires incoming drugs to arrive in sealed pharmaceutical containers. The drugs are transported to a warehouse in Cuba, then distributed to hospitals catering to foreign tourists.

Garcia said the scheme amounts to a giant rip-off for South Florida Cubans, who are paying to have the drugs shipped to relatives in Cuba who never receive them.

The illegal shipments of prescription medication to Cuba were discovered two years ago. Since then, about 100 packages of prescription drugs bound for Cuba have been seized in random inspections.

But no one has been arrested for the offense, which takes little priority among other trafficking crimes in South Florida.

An ongoing investigation by state social services officials could lead to Medicaid clients losing coverage, doctors and pharmacists being fined and banned from handling Medicaid accounts, and possible criminal charges.

State Rep. Luis Rojas, R-Hialeah, said the problem may require new legislation.

Operation Rescue leader defies court, arrest ordered

By The Associated Press

TITUSVILLE, Fla. — A judge ordered the immediate arrest of Keith Tucci, executive director of Operation Rescue, after he defied the court to appear as a witness by keeping a speaking engagement in Minneapolis.

Tucci on Friday promised visiting Judge John Rudd he would comply with a subpoena and appear Monday as a state witness in the trial of 39 protesters accused of violating a court-ordered buffer zone outside a Melbourne clinic. Rudd found 38 of the defendants guilty.

When Tucci did not appear at the trial Monday morning, Rudd issued a bench warrant for his failure to be in court.

However, when prosecutors on Tuesday told Rudd the religious leader had been in Minneapolis at a speaking engagement on Monday as part of Operation Rescue's "Cities of Refuge" campaign, Rudd revoked Tucci's appeal bond.

Give 'em the boot

Sanford police officer William Crappa placed a restraining "boot" on a vehicle parked near the Seminole County Courthouse yesterday. It is used in cases where a vehicle owner is found to be behind in paying traffic fines. Police said the owner of this car was in arrears by $65. While this was the first time a boot was used by Sanford police, it inaugurates the start of what will be an on-going use of the restraining equipment.

Young girls in peril at public pools

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — The kids at the city's public swimming pools call it the "whirlpool." Boys form a circle around girls and churn the water. Sometimes, the girls get trapped. Sometimes, the boys get out of control.

Authorities say the game has led to a series of attacks in which shrieking girls have been stripped and fondled. At least six such sexual assaults have been reported at city pools in a week.

In the latest incident, on Sunday, about 12 boys surrounded a girl at a pool in Manhattan's Washington Heights neighborhood, ripped off her bathing suit and fondled her as they chanted the rap lyrics, "Whoops, there it is."

Police arrested three boys. Mayor Dinkins launched a campaign against such behavior Tuesday, introducing buttons that read "Don't Dis Your Sis" and "Whirlpool Ain't Cool." He said he wants rap singers to work with the campaign.

"It is not acceptable to have young men put upon young women," he said. "It's not macho. It's cowardly. They are brutes."

The series of assaults began July 5 at a pool in the Bronx. Two boys were arrested for allegedly stripping a 14-year-old girl and fondling her.

Ben Rosario, 18, said he saw the boys moving in.

"It's not right, man. The girl was defenseless," he said Tuesday at the pool. He said he turned away as the girl's top came off because he didn't want the assailants to think he "ratted them out."

The women and girls at the pool were taking no chances Tuesday. Many double-knotted their swimsuit tops and sunned with towels around their waists.

"Guys get too loose with their hands," 25-year-old Anna Conception said. "They don't know when to stop."

Fraternity involved in FSU rape refused reinstatement

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A fraternity whose members were involved in the 1988 gang-rape of a female student will be barred from Florida State University for at least three more years.

In a letter dated Monday to national Pi Kappa Alpha leaders, Jon Dalton, Florida State vice president for student affairs, said memories of the assault are still too fresh.

"The institutional and community memory of the tragedy five years ago is still very strong and very negative," Dalton wrote. "It would be extremely difficult, if not impossible at this time, to recruit new pledges and to expect support for new members."

Two members of the fraternity's chapter at Florida State and a visiting fraternity member from Auburn University were charged with sexually assaulting the student at the fraternity house in March 1988. One Pike was sentenced to a year in jail, and the other two were put on probation.

A five-year suspension imposed by the university expired in June, prompting the fraternity to request a new chapter. Women's groups objected strenuously and intend to continue pushing for a permanent ban.

"We commend FSU for sending a strong message that sexual violence is an unacceptable part of campus life," Lynn Rosenthal, executive director of the Refuge House battered women and rape crisis center, said Tuesday. "We want a permanent ban because of the horrific nature of these crimes."

The victim was gang-raped, sodomized with a toothpaste tube, had denigrating remarks scrawled on her body and was dumped at a neighboring fraternity. Five hours after the attack, she still had a blood-alcohol level of 0.349 — more than triple Florida's legal limit.

During a recent review, the fraternity made "no recognition of the apprehensions and negative attitudes and perceptions" about the Pikes at Florida State, Dalton wrote.

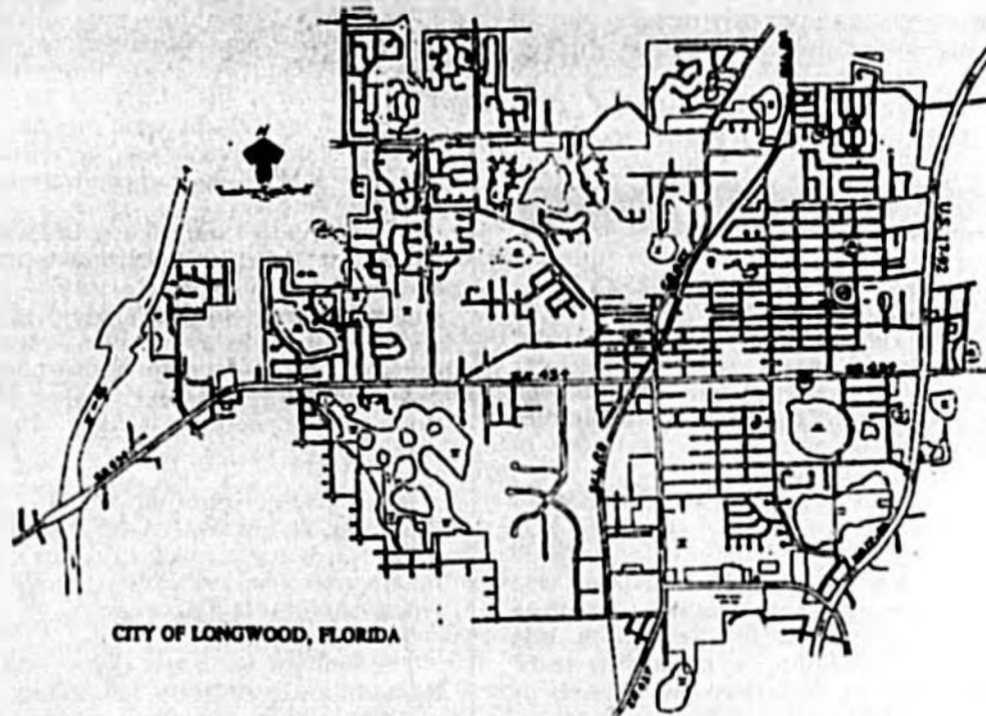

Pike can appeal the decision, but officials at the fraternity's national headquarters in Memphis, Tenn., did not return a telephone call seeking comment.

Dalton outlined several requirements Pi Kappa Alpha must meet to be considered for reinstatement in 1996. Even if those are met, however, he said there's no guarantee such a request would be approved.

Partners in education

Earlier in this century, elementary school graduates had a choice. They could go on to high school, en route to college, or enroll in a trade school.

Trade schools were specifically aimed at helping youngsters learn an occupation to help them earn a living by the time they reached their late teens.

By graduation, students at such schools had more than a basic education. They were privy to hands-on experience and training. Employment was easier to find.

In this modern day, an extensive education is more prominent. High school graduation is often not enough. A degree is required for many jobs.

Yet in the industrial world, there is still a strong need for actual hands-on experience during schooling.

School graduates of the 90's are often faced with one of two responses when looking for work. Either they are told they should obtain more education, or they are told the job requires prior experience.

Although vocational education has been available, programs involving industry in the process is new to the area.

Through cooperative efforts of Seminole Community College and Siemens Stromberg-Carlson in Lake Mary there is an opportunity to have both.

While attending junior college, a number of electronics students are involved in actual operations at the Siemens plant. By the time they are ready to receive their Associate Degree, they will have already had some training in real-world work.

For high school level students, Siemens also has a cooperative program which offers job experience but at a slightly lower level.

As a result, they may be much better employees, and thus have less problems in finding a job.

The cooperative program is patterned after education and work combinations in Germany.

We see this as an excellent move, and commend Siemens Stromberg-Carlson and SCC for their involvement.

At the present time, this project only involves specific occupational fields, basically in electronics.

There are some programs underway involving other schools and businesses which also help provide on-the-job training during the school year. But if more businesses would become involved, the expansion of this training could grow to an even higher level.

On filling prison beds

Say it isn't so! Tell me that it is not true that 6,077 prison beds are empty while at the very same moment the Governor says Florida's prisons are so overcrowded that we must build another 21,000 prison beds or else he will be forced to release violent felons on October 1!

It is either outright deceit or mismanagement at its worst...or both.

Who can we believe?
Florida's elected and appointed leadership was repeatedly asked in committee hearings, according to legislators, if the need for new beds was predicated on the maximum use of existing beds. The legislators were led to believe that these beds were full.

"We've been lied to," said Representative Carol Hanson, R-Boca Raton, as reported in several Florida newspapers.

Tragically, for the last five years violent prisoners have been released early because of prison overcrowding. On November 18, 1988, a violent felon named Charlie Street was released from Martin County Correctional Institution — having served only half his sentence for attempted murder. Days later, he brutally murdered two police officers on the streets of Miami. At that time the State had 35,000 prison beds and not enough room to keep Charlie Street in prison where he belonged. Five years and two administrations later, Charlie Street's unconscionable early release from prison is still standard operating procedure in a much larger 52,000 bed prison system in which the typical inmate serves less than one-third of the sentence.

After hardly mentioning this problem for two years, the present administration highlighted it this year as a major problem which had to be solved by building more prisons to house 21,000 more inmates. He vetoed a bill passed by the Legislature which provided 7,000, then called a special legislative session on the subject and settled for 10,500 beds at an additional construction cost of $200 million.

Why weren't the true facts explained? — that an additional 6,077 prisoner capacity existed but was not being utilized.

High court undermines voting rights

The U.S. Supreme Court last week rendered an atrocious 5-4 decision that raises legitimate fears it could weaken the 1965 Voting Rights Act. Nevertheless, though the ruling was based on faulty logic and bad law, it had the perversely useful effect of reinvigorating an unsettled debate about the proper remedies in today's world for yesterday's racist discrimination.

Specifically, the court decided that geographically "bizarre" redistricting plans drawn solely to guarantee success for minority candidates can be challenged as a possible deprivation of the rights of white voters to equal protection under the Constitution.

In doing so, the narrow majority effectively repudiated what Congress, the executive branch and the courts had all long ago decided was settled law. It also guaranteed a lengthy period of legal uncertainty in that handful of congressional districts that would appear to fit the extraordinarily vague proscription written for the majority by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

But some of the initial reaction was knee jerk and overwrought. Nowhere is it written that the best way to achieve full equality in this country is through the continuing, self-conscious and deliberate segregation of its politics. At a given point, old tools should be abandoned in the face of new understandings.

First, however, it is necessary to reiterate two basic truths. One is that race has been the great American dilemma and its angry wound from colonial days to the present. The Constitution was written by men who explicitly refused to abolish slavery and counted slaves as less than fully human for purposes of political representation from the states. Those who piously renounce race-based remedies for racially inflicted inequalities turn a blind eye to history.

The second is that gerrymandering has historically created weird and wonderful district lines — hence the designation, a combination of the name of one notorious district's creator, Elbridge Gerry, and the salamander it was said to resemble. Perhaps none was quite as long and narrow as the new 12th Congressional District in North Carolina, the object of the lawsuit that the Supreme Court sent back for rehearing last week, but many were equally tortured in design. Their intention was to advance or retard a number of special interests, often of party, sometimes of factions, incumbents and urban or rural voters. In the South, they were frequently drawn to minimize or eliminate the potential strength of minority voters, and in particular, black voters.

That is why the Voting Rights Act of 1965 and its amendments 10 years ago required that race be taken into account "in order to avoid dilution of minority voting strength" as Justice David Souter wrote for the dissenting court minority. The Supreme Court agreed as recently as 1977. Affirmative action to open doors was required to undo what affirmative action to keep them shut had produced.

The results have been gratifying. Blacks in the formerly repressive South now vote in proportional numbers nearly equal to whites.

The closet is incompatible

BOSTON — Let me begin with the obvious: It won't work.

I am not being clairvoyant about the compromise over gays in the military that is being hatched for a July 15th due date. But I can say that any variation on the current theme entitled "Don't Ask, Don't Tell," won't work.

It won't resolve the legal questions. Sooner or later someone will ask, someone will tell, someone will be discharged and someone will be back in court.

It won't resolve the political questions either. Sooner or later, a compromise intended to satisfy the ambivalent majority — Americans who don't want to discriminate against gays and don't want to accept them — will fall apart from the weight of its own contradictions.

And it certainly won't resolve the conflict between the military leaders and the gay community.

When you get right down to it, "Don't ask, don't tell," is not really about ending the witch hunt. Nor is it really a gentleman's agreement not to talk about sexuality. Don't ask, don't tell, means don't talk...or else.

It means the closet.
The military no longer claims that gays and lesbians are a security risk. They no longer claim that homosexuals can't serve ably, even heroically. The last ditch effort to say that homosexuality is — "incompatible with military service" will fail because, as Rep. Barney Frank says, it's "incompatible with the truth."

In these months of a long and often unwelcome debate, the Pentagon has finally come down to arguing one thing: that the discomfort, the fear, even the hatred of gays is itself disruptive to bonding and morale. So disruptive that gays cannot serve — and here is the crucial word — "openly."

Now, openness means different things to different people. There is a lot of room between being in the closet and being in your face. There's a scale of behavior that runs from repression to flamboyance.

But gays have always been able to serve and succeed in the military, and everywhere else in society, as long as they were not "open." What differentiates the gay rights movement even now from that of blacks or women, is that homosexuals aren't discriminated against as long as they "pass."

For that reason, the primary symbol of gay repression hasn't been a ghetto or a list of segregation laws. It's been the much more psychologically complex image of the closet: the dark place where cultural hate meets, and makes, self-hate.

The closet may have claimed more gay lives in America than hate crimes. It has surely devastated more psyches, through hiding and lying, than dishonorable discharges.

Because of the closet, the gay rights movement has not just been about breaking the barriers. It's been about breaking silence. For a generation, the most important gay march has been a long line of men and women coming out, one at a time.

Some of these decisions have meant quiet and private talks with parents. Some have meant public and ostentatious pronouncements of a "Queer Nation." At times, as a gay comedian put it, "The love that dared not speak its name, can't seem to shut up."

This conversation about single-sex love, lovers and partners has, to put it mildly, made millions of Americans uneasy. But it has also made millions of Americans more comfortable with gayness. Each and every survey says that straight Americans who know homosexuals personally, as family members and friends, are more accepting than those who don't "know" any.

In that sense, gays and lesbians become change agents simply by making themselves "known." We've seen that too in the argument over the military. The soldiers coming out, with Purple Hearts and military bearing, are the ones who proved that homosexuality and heroism can go together.

It's the closet that's incompatible...with self-acceptance and public acceptance. And with change.

The compromise being worked out now will, at best, balance precariously on the threshold of the closet door. "Don't ask" offers a step forward for gays in the military. But "Don't tell" threatens a step backward in the overall direction of the gay movement.

Fused together, this may be the most we can expect from an anxious Congress, and angry Pentagon, a nervous president and an ambivalent public. A pretty good rule in politics is to take what you can get.

But take this one with a caveat. In the medium run, and maybe even the short run: It won't work.

Don't ask, don't tell, means don't talk...or else. It means the closet.

German firms may be trading with Iraq

WASHINGTON — Nearly three years after Iraq invaded Kuwait, evidence is seeping out that one of America's strongest allies may once again be fueling the fires of outlaw nations in the Middle East.

A new report prepared by Middle East expert Kenneth R. Timmerman for a House subcommittee alleges that dozens of companies in Germany may have sold technology with possible weapons applications to Iraq in violation of the United Nations embargo.

According to the study, German customs officials are investigating more than 150 companies for possible sanction-busting activities.

The German Embassy in Washington had no comment on the investigations, but a U.S. official who monitors proliferation issues confirmed that some of the findings are accurate. "Although it's a lot more expensive, and not quite the same volume, the Iraqis are essentially getting what they need to rebuild militarily..."

Unfortunately, German companies figure into this equation," the official told our associate Dean Boyd.

Among the deals German investigators are looking at, the report says, is the alleged sale of calutron magnets and special centrifuge piping to Iraq — material that can be useful in making a nuclear weapon. One company is being investigated for possibly exporting a specialized X-ray camera to Iraq. In the wake of the Persian Gulf War, U.N. inspectors found a similar item at Iraq's Al-Atheer nuclear weapons lab, where it was being used to make nuclear explosive lenses.

The staff report says several Iraq-owned front companies in Germany are also being probed for buying local machine tools with fake "end-use" certificates from Jordan. These certificates are designed to guarantee that the tools would be used for peaceful purposes in Jordan, allowing them to be legally exported there. But often once the equipment arrives in Jordan, it is put on a truck bound for Iraq, where it is later put to possible military use.

None of the companies in the report have been charged with any wrongdoing to date. Nonetheless, any new revelations about German business dealings with Iraq could strike yet another embarrassing blow to the country, which suffered a string of humiliating exposures about its pre-war dealings with Saddam Hussein. From 1985 to 1989, Germany was Iraq's largest supplier of high-technology, with sales of more than $4.2 billion.

Shortly after the Gulf War, U.N. inspectors discovered that German-made technology had played a crucial role in enhancing Saddam's chemical and nuclear weapons programs. More than 80 percent of Saddam's poisonous gas supply, as well as key parts of his nuclear program, were of German origin. An estimated one-fourth of the technology used to upgrade Iraq's infamous Scud missile, which hit civilian targets in Israel and Saudi Arabia, bore the "Made in Germany" label.

German Embassy officials say that since the Gulf War fiasco, their government has enacted five new laws and some 40 new decrees to limit proliferation of dangerous materials abroad. But in the case of Iraq's longtime enemy Iran, these efforts have proven to be little more than a paper tiger. While Iraq has been recovering from its beating by allied forces, Iran has been mounting an unprecedented military buildup in recent years. Much of the hardware for this boom has German origins.

One of America's strongest allies may once again be fueling the fires of outlaw nations in the Middle East.

From parlors to porches, wicker part of America

By NITA LELYVELD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Ah, the comforting creak of a porch wicker chair on a warm, breezy evening. It once was as much a part of America's summertime as baseball and lemonade.

But these days, watching the world go by from the veranda is a dying art, with the household wicker relegated to bathroom wastebaskets and clothes hampers.

That needn't be, as demonstrated by an exhibit at the Smithsonian Institution's Renwick Gallery that traces the history of the wicker furniture and highlights its glory days, when it suited the parlor as well as the patio.

Wicker furniture dates back so far that no one quite knows who invented it. The ancient Sumerians had it. So did the Romans.

But the furniture made out of willow, reed and rattan only found its full expression in America, where it bent to every change in American tastes.

"Basically each time there was a major change in the middle-class American home, American wicker changed with it," said the exhibit's curator, Jeremy Adamson.

"It becomes part and parcel of the development of taste in America," he said.

Portuguese merchants first brought wicker from the Far East in the 16th century. By the 17th century it was all the rage, and the first American colonists imported it.

But it wasn't actually made in America until the mid-19th century, when huge clipper ships began bringing back rattan from China. Soon after, massive factories were churning out wicker furniture.

At first, wicker was touted as good, warm-weather ware, and was destined for use in summer homes.

By the late 1800s, Victorian taste worshipped the ornate — and American wicker manufacturers kept up with it, producing furniture full of intricate curls, eyes, twists and ornamental designs.

There were wicker side tables, wicker reception chairs and elegant wicker settees. There were also wicker chairs and tables with motifs like sailboats and moons woven into them. Frames could be made of wicker. So could fireplace screens. Wicker baby carriages caught on quickly.

Wicker of the casual porch variety came into vogue later in the century, as Americans rebelled against the fancy stuff and demanded plainer, smoother lines. Simple wicker chairs and recliners graced the porches of homes, hotels and spas.

Wicker also kept pace with technology — and was used in the early 20th century to make lamp stands and even phonograph cases.

But the Great Depression virtually put an end to the business, and today wicker is mainly mass-produced in Asia. It's often thickly layered in paint at the factory.

Adamson hopes the exhibit will change that trend.

"I want it to bring back dignity to wicker, to rescue it from all that white paint," he said. "It's a part of American history."

"American Wicker: Woven Furniture From 1850 to 1930" will remain at the Renwick Gallery through Aug. 1.

Des Moines' dilemma: Too much water—and not enough

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa — Donna Boetel-Baker is the answer lady, trying to calm a city flooded with water and worries.

Sandbag volunteers? She'll tell you where to go. Need a shower? She has a list of spots. No water to drink? She'll set up the delivery.

In her drier days, Mrs. Boetel-Baker is the city clerk. This week, she's a one-woman rescue squad working out of a high school cafeteria, zipping through thousands of calls at a hot line set up to help this city cope with its crisis.

"We have virtually shut down," Mrs. Boetel-Baker said Tuesday during one of her 15-hour shifts. "Every major business is closed. There's no transit. There's one road linking the north and south of the city."

Des Moines has a dilemma: There's too much water where it shouldn't be and none where it needs to be — faucets and toilets.

Today, the capital city entered its fourth day of water woes. The trouble began Sunday when the Raccoon River surged over the 15-foot levees and sandbag dikes protecting the Des Moines Water Works, contaminating filters and pumps.

About 250,000 people have empty taps and are depending on tens of thousands of gallons of bottled water available at about 60 distribution sites.

Officials estimate Des Moines' flooding will cost $253 million. Business and home losses account for more than half that. Levee repairs alone will cost $75 million.

President Clinton was to get a look at the devastation during a visit to the city today. He has declared the entire state a disaster area. Iowa's flood losses are expected to top $1 billion.

Many residents here have tried to be creative, collecting rainwater to use for toilet flushing, relying on paper plates to avoid having to wash dishes, grilling instead of cooking, traveling to nearby towns for showers.

Gov. Terry Branstad joined the pilgrimage of shower seekers, heading to his brother-in-law's house in Alleman, just north of the city, and waited in line for his allotment of bottled water.

His spokesman, Richard Vohs, simply stepped outside during Tuesday's rains and let nature be his shower. "We have a very secluded back yard," he explained.

Darlene Lewis, director of the YWCA in nearby Altoona, has welcomed more than 2,200 people to her building for free showers since Sunday. "It's something you don't think about until you lose it," she said.

Hotels canceled weddings, reunions and hundreds of bookings. The empty Savery Hotel moved some $50,000 in fine wines from the basement to the third floor.

"At moments you feel like crying. At moments you feel like laughing. You're at a point where you're almost delirious," said Carole Chambers, the Savery's marketing director.

Aspin: Gays in military should't tell

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Les Aspin is recommending allowing homosexuals to serve in the military as long as they don't declare their sexual orientation, sources in the gay community say.

Aspin told White House officials Tuesday that "this is as far as the Joint Chiefs will go" on the matter, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The sources said they received their information from senior Defense Department officials.

President Clinton will have the final say on the proposal and the White House could have an announcement by week's end. The president faces possible strong congressional opposition to any policy change that lacks the backing of the military.

Aspin's recommendation would allow gay men and lesbians to serve as long as they keep their sexual orientation private, a version of the "don't ask, don't tell" policy put forth by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the Senate Armed Services Committee chairman and a leading proponent of the 50-year ban on gays serving openly in the military.

Homosexuals would be barred from making public or private declarations of their orientation, the sources said. The policy would allow some latitude for gay service men and women to confide in close friends.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff voted two weeks ago for a policy that retains the current statement that "homosexuality is incompatible with military service." Aspin's policy would include a variation that describes homosexual conduct as incompatible with military service but recognizes that gay people have served honorably and will do so in the future.

Those who make a public declaration of their homosexuality would be forced out of the service, and military investigators would have the authority to pursue allegations about homosexual acts because there would be no proposed change to the Uniform Code of Military Justice that makes sodomy unlawful, the sources said.

Reps. Barney Frank and Gerry Studds, D-Mass., the two acknowledged homosexuals in Congress, were briefed at the White House on Tuesday on Aspin's recommendation.

Defense Department officials refused to describe Aspin's recommendation. "It's a presidential decision," Capt. Michael Doubleday, a department spokesman, told a Pentagon news briefing Tuesday.

Clinton said during his presidential campaign he would lift the ban. The military and members of Congress resisted in January when the president attempted to move forward on an executive order implementing the change.

Instead, Clinton was forced to back down and adopt a compromise in which recruits were no longer questioned about their sexual orientation and formal discharges for homosexuality were temporarily suspended pending the policy review.

SANFORD — Get your children off the street, close your windows and lock all your doors. They're going to be a war in Sanford next week.

The orphaned Orphans and their leader Gager last week set up a battle for the league title next week with Ken's in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Tuesday Night Spring Slowpitch Softball League at Pinhurst Park.

The Orphans got their win the easy way, 10-0, through play from Mobil Tech. Gager's Pest Control had a much more difficult time of it, scoring a run in the fifth inning to break an 11-1 tie and adding five runs in the fifth inning to post a 17-12 triumph over Orkin.

In the other game, which were made ups from games rained out June 22nd, Mobilite Corporation used an 11-run third inning to crush Signature Homes 17-0 in five innings.

The Orphans are now 9-0 on the season, while Gager Pest Control is 8-1. Gager's lone loss came at the hands of the Orphans by the narrowest of margins 11-10 back on May 25th.

Leading the leaders in the standings are Mobilite Corporation (14-0), Mobil Tech (10-0), Signature Homes (2-7) and Orkin (1-8).

Next week in games originally scheduled for June 29th, Orkin plays Signature Homes at 6:30 p.m., Mobil Tech faces Mobilite Corporation at 7:30 p.m. and the Orphans Gager Pest Control battle set for 8:30 p.m.

A win next week by Gager Pest Control would force a one game playoff for the league champion.

Hopkins nears league title

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The gleam at the end of the tunnel is becoming clearer for Hopkins Meat Packing.

Vicky's Permit Service was the latest victim as Hopkins continued its unerring drive toward an undebated season in Sanford Recreation Department Women's Spring Slowpitch Softball League action at the Ft. Mellon Park Softball Field Tuesday night.

The Hopkins defense held Vicky's to a single hit while the offense put a six spot on the board in the first inning and never looked back in blanking Vicky's 12-0 in five innings.

Davey Allison succumbs to injuries

By JAY REEVES
Associated Press Writer

HEEVY TOWN, Ala. — Davey Allison, who steered his family's car racing legacy to NASCAR stardom of his own, died Tuesday of injuries suffered a day earlier when his helicopter slammed into a track infield.

The death brought new pain to the racing world and the Allison family, one of the sport's most successful families that has also known its share of tragedy.

When one hurts we all hurt and this is a hurting situation, said NASCAR driver Darrell Waltrip.

Allison, 32, the eldest son of retired racing star Bobby Allison, never regained consciousness following the crash at Talladega Superspeedway in east Alabama. He died of head injuries.

Allison bought the chopper less than a month ago and was at the controls when it went down Monday afternoon.

He loved to fly. It was an

Van Alstine wins marathon at SpeedWorld

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Coca's Gene Van Alstine won the marathon, fender-bender Mini-Stock feature event Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld.

The 15-lap event, which had seven caution periods, took 40 minutes to go from green flag to checkers. In contrast, most 15-lap events are completed in about 10 minutes.

Van Alstine, who started on the pole, led every circuit to notch his fifth victory of the season.

"This sure was a long, hot race," said the 44-year-old Van Alstine, who has been racing for 21 years. "I've run 100-lappers that didn't take this long. I'm sure glad all the wrecks were behind me. It's fun to win, especially when you take the car home in one piece."

Some pushing and shoving took place early in the race, as Dave DeBillus, substitute driving for Osteen's Bobby Sears, scraped by Kelly Jarrett for the third spot going into turn one. Two laps later Jarrett returned the favor by banging DeBillus coming out of turn two, bringing out a caution.

Chasing Van Alstine to the checkered flag were Dink Sullivan, Richard Newton, Dave Lecklinter and J.D. Duncan.

Wayne Anderson continued his outstanding year as he dominated the Late Model feature to notch his 12th victory of the year.

Anderson, who led wire-to-wire, crossed the finish line 12 car lengths in front of Jimmy Sills. Trailing the lead duo were Duke Southard, Don Fenn and Jim Groff.

Barbara Pierce edged Jim Robinson to take the win in the Sportsman main event.

Despite repeated challenges by Robinson, Rick Johns and Bill Loomis, Pierce maintained her position to score her fourth win of the year.

Rounding out the top five behind Pierce and Robinson, were Johns, Loomis and Guy McRoberts.

Kenny Heckle out-muscled Bruce Thompson to take top honors in the Modified feature race.

Joe Adams was third, Glen Carter, fourth, and Kelly Jarrett, fifth.

Jacob Warren took a flag-to-flag victory in the Limited Late Model Division.

Warren, who now has eight feature wins on the season, took the checkered flag ahead of John Mikalowski, Michael Williams, Rob Lyon and Tommy Peters.

Glen Castro captured the checkers in the 30-lap Bomber Special. Completing the top five were Mike Hughes, Wally Semrow, Geln Cordell and Rick Schlimmer.

Jim Cook scored his first every feature win in the Run-About Division, ahead of Doug Samison, Teresa Lyon, Jody Flynn and Eugene Wilks.

Chris Hardin was victorious in the Four-Cylinder Bomber main. Finishing second through fifth were Ray Short, Bill Lucas, Doug Johnson and Sniper Napier.

Meredith wins duel at New Smyrna

By PAUL MARSEGLIA

SAMSULA — Apopka's Ed Meredith outduelled a hard charging Wayne Anderson in the waning laps Saturday night, to capture the checkered flag in the Late Model feature event at New Smyrna Speedway.

Meredith, aboard the Part General/S & S Drywall Oldsmobile Cutlass, led the first 14 laps only to slip out of the groove, allowing Anderson to take the point.

With two laps remaining, Meredith regained the lead and held off a late race challenge by Anderson to pick up his first checkered flag of the season.

"I'm real pleased with the performance of the car tonight," said the 35-year-old Meredith, an 18-year veteran of the stock car wars. "I messed up real good going through into turn one. The track was a little bit slick, so I tried to tip-toe through the turn and got a little high, and Wayne (Anderson) got by me. I went back to my old line and got by him with two laps to go."

"This is the car that Scott (Bramlett) drives," added Meredith. "He felt we had a little problem with it, so I tried to sort it out for him. We reworked it from front to back and I think we've got it now. I set the car up as if I was driving it and it seems to work alright. Scott now will have to adjust to the car instead of us adjusting the car to him."

Trailing the lead duo to the stripe were Greg Froemming, John Kennedy and Bruce Lawrence.

Surviving four caution periods, Jeff Anderson out-gunned Dave Savicki to take the victory in the Modified feature.

Chasing Jeff Anderson and Savicki to victory lane were Osteen's Marc Kinley, Jim Trice and Jim Crowe Jr.

Dale Howard claimed his 14th checkered flag of the season, running from the pole position to the checkered flag unheaded in the Sportsman Division.

Rounding out the top five, respectively, were Art Chapman, Barbara Pierce, Don Tracy and Jerry Smith.

Winning in the Limited Late Model Division at New Smyrna Speedway is becoming a routine for Jacob Warren.

Warren, piloting the Boyd Engine Chevrolet Camaro, held off a furious late-race charge by Keith Balga to record his 18th victory of the season.

Doug Pilla was third, followed by Robert Lyon and John Michalowski.

Dave DeBillus, driving in relief of regular shoe Bobby Sears from Osteen, came from the back of the pack to score an impressive win in the Mini-Stock feature event.

DeBillus picked his way through traffic to overtake early race leader Ted Vulpius on lap seven.

Holding off repeated attempts by Vulpius and Jerry Symons to take the point, DeBillus raced to his first ever Mini-Stock win.

With a last lap pass, Symons and Dink Sullivan got around Vulpius to finish second and third. Vulpius held on to fourth place ahead of J.D. Duncan.

After several laps of wheel-to-wheel racing, Bob Filliger edged past Wally Semrow to score his first ever Bomber feature win.

In tow behind Filliger were Wally Semrow, George Semrow, Billy Beltfower and Bobby Stevens.

Lyle Messinger was the winner of the Action Performance Run-About Classic. Finishing second through fifth behind Messinger were Tim Welter, Brad Cogswell, Mike Sanarco and Al Thomas.

Earnhardt still holds big lead

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH — Dale Earnhardt lost nearly one-third of his lead in the NASCAR Winston Cup stock car racing national standings after Sunday's Slick 50 300 race at Loudon, N.H.

Earnhardt, who entered the race with a 251-point advantage over second-place Dale Jarrett, now leads by 171 points. 2427-2256.

That lead after first 16 races of the 30-event, $26.5 million season is still more than the 148-point difference between first and 42nd place in a single race. Rusty Wallace, who won Sunday's race, is 250 points behind Earnhardt, trailing with 2177.

"Every week you do the best you can. Most weeks we've done pretty well. I guess we had a few problems this week," said Earnhardt, who finished 26th at the 1.058-mile New Hampshire International Speedway.

"We would have certainly liked to have won the race," said Dale Jarrett, who finished fourth. "But we did in a way. We finished in front of Earnhardt and we picked up a lot of points. There is still a long way to go this season."

Morgan Shepherd is fourth in the NASCAR Winston Cup standings with 2112 points, followed by Davey Allison, 2104; Kyle Petty, 2088; Rookie of the Year points leader Jeff Gordon, 2056; Mark Martin, 2048; Ken Schrader, 2026; and Ernie Ivan, 2007.

Earnhardt also easily leads the circuit in money-winnings with $1,095,615. Ivan is second with $693,125, while Jarrett is third with $688,310.

The NASCAR Winston Cup circuit next moves to the 2.5-mile Pocono (Pa.) International Raceway for Sunday's Miller Genuine Draft 500. Pole qualifying is scheduled Friday afternoon.

IN BRIEF

'America's Most Beautiful Baby'

The directors of the world's only nationally televised children's pageant "America's Most Beautiful Baby" will conduct an official search for "Florida's Most Beautiful Babies" on Aug. 8 at Winter Park Mall in Winter Park.

This program is open to all children from newborn to five years old only. The children selected to represent their hometown will advance to the nationally televised finals which are aired on USA Network, where they will have the chance to win a $10,000 college scholarship, a new car and thousands of dollars in cash prize.

Carol Adlon, director of this program states "Absolutely no experience is needed, we are simply looking for cute, happy babies with lots of personality. "America's Most Beautiful Babies" is based on the same premise as the "Miss America" pageant, except we focus our attention on the achievement of children! This is a childhood experience that can lead to a successful career in the modeling or entertainment industry for these children. This is a beneficial program for those children who show an early interest in modeling or entertainment. It's an inexpensive way to test their potential, while at the same time, win some great prize, become a little celebrity in their hometown, and represent their hometown at the televised national finals in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

This program provides the opportunity for young children to begin building funds for college. A $10,000 college scholarship is awarded to one of "America's Most Beautiful Baby" contestants annually. A $1,000 college scholarship will be the Highpoint Champion Award at Winter Park Mall on Aug. 8.

To obtain further information on "America's Most Beautiful Baby" call Mrs. Adlon at 1-800-654-6949, or pick up an application form at Winter Park Mall. To be considered, children must apply prior to August 8.

Cook of the Week

Olszewskis stay 'busy and involved' in and outside the home

COOK OF THE WEEK

RENEE KEITH

Ellen Olszewski loves to be, as she puts it, "busy and involved," and that seems to be exactly how her life is going these days. Her effervescent personality is almost "catchy" in a very warm way.

Hailing originally from Connecticut, the Olszewskis moved south to Florida making Lake Mary, their home for the last 15 years. And what a warm, lovely and yet very busy home it is.

Ellen has been married for, as she puts it, "20 lovely years" to her husband Ed. "A friend of mine set me up with him on a blind date." "We met at Disneyland and the rest is marital history," says Ellen.

Ed and Ellen have three daughters. The girls, much like their parents, also have very full schedules, especially where their educations are concerned. Shelly, 19, is currently attending Rollins Junior College. She is working towards a double major in math and economics, with a minor in English. This by no means is a small task. The twins, Kristie and Kelly, are 15 years old and attend Lake Mary High School. This summer they have chosen to take some additional classes which will ease the required credit load for their graduation. Kristie and Kelly also volunteer their time to the Seminole County Humane Society.

Ellen has been employed for the last four years with Saint Marks' kindergarten in Altamonte Springs as a teacher. She is a Girl Scout leader and has been a member of the Garden Club for eight years.

Ed has been employed with Fruitland Clearing, in Altamonte Springs for 15 years. He has a side business doing bush hog mowing. "He works seven days a week at times," says Ellen. However, they still manage to find family time together.

Plants and cooking are two hobbies that Ellen and Ed really enjoy doing together. Ed built a greenhouse for Ellen on their two acres. Although violets are Ellen's absolute passion, the greenhouse is also home to their breathtaking orchids. They grow several different varieties of plants, some more different than the next. For instance, as Ellen states, "I have this black plant. It's really weird and hard to explain," she said. "I guess I'd have to say that it almost looks 'Halloweenie.' But, it's really beautiful in its own way."

Cooking is another area Ellen puts a lot of herself into. She enjoys preparing different and new recipes ranging anywhere from dips to desserts. Marinated Chicken Wings is a recipe that has been handed down to Ellen from her 92-year-old mother-in-law. Her family enjoys this different way of having chicken, however, as Ellen says, "The first time I cooked it, I overcooked it. The meat, what wasn't burnt, was a little chewy." Of course, I've improved greatly on this one."

"My husband's cousin, Margaret, gave me the recipe for Taco Dip," she said. "It's a sure hit when I make it for my New Year's Eve parties. But then again, it's really good anytime," she concluded.

Quick and nutritious poultry dishes

Poultry is increasingly important in our diets as we aim at healthier eating habits. It is low in fat, mildly flavored, versatile and quickly prepared.

The microwave oven is ideal for preparing chicken that is simmered, baked, or sautéed. Its quick cooking will render it tender and juicy without drying and toughening.

The mild flavor of chicken is ideal for enhancing with a sauce or glaze.

The microwave oven also does a good job of partially precooking chicken before broiling or barbecuing. By first starting it in the microwave oven, you reduce the grilling time and help achieve a more moist barbecued product to say nothing of the time spent over the hot barbecue grill. (No fun these hot days.)

For turkey, microwave about 5 minutes per pound, turning the bird over once during cooking. For chicken pieces, microwave about 7 minutes per pound, before transferring to the hot grill. Cover the poultry with waxed paper or a casserole cover when microwaving.

This glaze will enhance the flavor of chicken and give a nicely browned appearance. The glaze can be used on pork roast as well as the whole chicken or chicken pieces.

POLYNESIAN GLAZED CHICKEN

- 1/2 orange, sliced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 3 lbs. frying chicken, quartered
- 1/2 tsp. dried rosemary leaves
- 2 Tbsp. soy sauce
- 2 Tbsp. catsup
- 1 Tbsp. honey

Place orange slices in bottom of 12x8-inch baking dish. Cut garlic into six pieces. Scatter over orange slices. Sprinkle underside of each chicken piece with a little rosemary. Place skin-side-up over oranges in baking dish.

Combine soy sauce, catsup and honey; mix well. Brush evenly on chicken using about 2 1/2 of mixture. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 100 percent power 22-25 minutes or until chicken is done. Brush with remaining sauce once during cooking. Let stand covered about 5 minutes before serving.

You can get this chicken dish at a number of restaurants around town or make your own. It takes about 20 minutes and they are good.

CHICKEN FAJITAS

- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 small onion, thinly sliced

MICROWAVE MAGIC

MIDGE MYCOFF

- 1 small red pepper, thinly sliced
- 1 Tbsp. olive oil
- 1 lb. skinned boneless chicken, cut into strips
- 1/2 Tbsp. cornstarch
- 1 Tbsp. lemon or lime juice
- 1/4 tsp. dried oregano leaves
- 1/4 tsp. paprika
- 1/4 tsp. chili powder
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. Cayenne pepper, optional
- 8 flour tortillas (8-inch size)
- 1 tomato, chopped
- 1 avocado, peeled and chopped

Plain yogurt
Combine garlic, onion, pepper and oil in 1-quart casserole. Cover with lid. Microwave on 100 percent power 3-3 1/2 minutes or until just about tender. Add chicken strips, cornstarch, lemon juice, oregano, paprika, chili powder, salt and pepper; mix lightly to coat evenly. Cover.

Microwave (100 percent) 6-6 1/2 minutes or until chicken is done, stirring twice. Set aside. Place tortillas on micro-safe serving plate. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (100 percent) 45-60 seconds or until warm. Serve warm chicken mixture in tortillas topped with tomato. See Microwave, Page 5B

Wife may be helpless widow

DEAR ABBY: I want to say something about a letter you recently had in your column. It concerned a woman whose husband refused to tell her anything about their finances. He seemed to feel that as long as she was well provided for and had everything she could possibly want, there was no need for her to worry her head about his investments, and how they stood financially.

I have a brother in Denver who is a CPA. He retired some years ago - very comfortably. I might add, he told us recently about two women who had become very rich widows in this last year. In both cases, he was bewailing the fact that neither woman had the slightest idea of her husband's finances - his assets, what he owed, etc. Of course, neither woman knew how to manage money. Like many husbands, they told their wives that they would always be there to look after them.

I'll admit, there are a lot of men who deliberately withhold this information from their wives. Some men have the mistaken idea that their wives need to be "protected," but who is going to protect them if their husbands die before they do?

DOROTHY L. DEAR DOROTHY: Good

ADVICE

question. Especially since most women outlive their husbands. My advice to married women: Insist on knowing all there is to know about where you stand financially. The same goes for married men concerning their financial status.

DEAR ABBY: I think parents who encourage their teen-aged daughters (and some sons, too) to get a nose job are doing their children a terrible disservice.

The message they are sending their children is wrong. They are clearly saying that the way God made them is not good enough - a plastic surgeon should be called in to improve on God's work.

Parents should put more emphasis on character. A beautiful, honest character is what makes a person beautiful - not the size and shape of a person's nose.

MANHATTAN MOTHER DEAR MOTHER: My mail is overwhelmingly in favor of nose jobs. For a typical response, read on:

DEAR ABBY: I worked for a plastic surgeon for over 20 years (appointment secretary), and the one comment I heard more than any other following rhinoplasty (the technical name for "nose job") was: "I'm sorry I didn't do this years ago!"

MARION G., RETIRED IN MALIBU, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the mother who is not sure her 15-year-old daughter should have a nose job: Our beautiful 15-year-old became terribly self-conscious about her "longish" nose, so we promised if she still felt that way at 17, we would take her to a plastic surgeon.

Well, she had her nose done in the summer before her senior year in high school and it made all the difference in her self-esteem and confidence.

Today she is a straight-A university student and a new bride. She says her new nose was the best gift her parents ever gave her.

NO REGRETS IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR MARION G. AND NO REGRETS: The Santa Monica, Calif., mother who inquired about plastic surgery for her 15-year-old daughter was concerned not about whether she should have it done - but only if the girl was physically mature enough to achieve the best result right now. The plastic surgeon's decision should prevail.

DEAR ABBY: My son and his wife were married three months ago at a formal church wedding. My husband's family is very large. One of his brothers (a professional) and his wife have five adult children who are all on their own; none of them live at home. Each one of them received individual invitations to the wedding. They all accepted, and enjoyed themselves.

At the gift opening, my husband, and I noticed that the whole family went together and pitched in for one gift - a two-slice toaster. Do you think my son and his wife should write six than-you notes?

DISAPPOINTED IN FLORIDA

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: One thank-you note addressed to your husband's brother, his wife, and their adult children would be appropriate.

avocado, and a spoonful of yogurt. About 8 fajitas.

Looking for a classy chicken dish? One that is light and summer-like? These orange-glazed chicken breasts topped with raspberries are ideal to serve with steamed rice, a fresh spinach salad and perhaps a lemon mousse for dessert.

RASPBERRY CHICKEN

- 8 skinned boneless chicken breasts
- 3/4 cup orange juice
- 1 Tbsp. cornstarch
- 1 Tbsp. brown sugar
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. poultry seasoning
- 1/4 tsp. paprika
- 1 tsp. grated orange
- 1-2 Tbsp. dry sherry or apple juice
- 1 cup fresh raspberries
- 2 Tbsp. brown sugar

Arrange chicken breasts evenly in 12x8-inch baking dish. Set aside. Measure orange juice into 2-cup glass measure. Blend in cornstarch and 1 Tbsp. brown sugar. Stir in salt, poultry seasoning, paprika and orange peel.

Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 2-2 1/2 minutes or until mixture boils and thickens, stirring once. Stir in sherry. Brush mixture over chicken breasts, using all of sauce. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on 70 percent power 16-18 minutes or until chicken is done. Sprinkle raspberries over chicken. Sprinkle with 2 Tbsp. brown sugar.

Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 2-2 1/2 minutes or until heated through if desired. Garnish with a few mini springs.

Next week: more chicken dishes.

Pasta Primavera: Good for what ails

By MARIALISA CALTA

According to Molly O'Neill's "New York Cookbook" (Workman Publishing, 1992), it was Stiro Maccioni, owner of Manhattan's renowned Le Cirque restaurant, who first created Pasta Primavera. That was in May 1974, and according to O'Neill, the restaurateur had overdosed on venison and lobster during a Canadian tasting tour, and said he "had to eat some pasta." He set out to make two sauces - an Alfredo sauce and a simple buttersauce with asparagus, zucchini and tomatoes. "At the last minute, he mixed the two together," writes O'Neill. "et voila, a star was born."

Mr. Maccioni had the dish on his menu until it attracted 50 percent of his orders, and he became concerned, according to O'Neill, that Le Cirque would become known as a "spaghetti house." He retired the dish 15 years ago.

Below is the original recipe that caused all the fuss, but first a tasty variation devised by the New England Culinary Institute in Essex, Vt.

LE CIRQUE'S SPAGHETTI PRIMAVERA

- 1 bunch broccoli, trimmed and cut into bite-sized florets
- 2 small zucchinis, quartered lengthwise and cut into 1-inch lengths
- 4 asparagus spears (about 5 inches long), peeled, trimmed and cut into thirds
- 1 1/2 cups green beans, trimmed and cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1/2 cup fresh or frozen peas
- 4 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 cups thinly sliced mushrooms
- 1 teaspoon finely chopped fresh red or green chile, or about 1/2 teaspoon dried red pepper flakes
- 1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
- 3 cups seeded, diced ripe tomatoes, juice reserved
- 1/4 cup finely chopped fresh parsley
- 6 fresh basil leaves, chopped
- 1 pound spaghetti or spaghetti
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup heavy (whipping) cream, or more if needed
- 2/3 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
- 2/3 cup toasted pine nuts

Cook broccoli, zucchini, asparagus and green beans in boiling salted water until crisp but tender, about 4 minutes. Add peas and cook 1 minute more. Drain and refresh vegetables by plunging immediately into a large bowl of very cold water. Drain and set aside in a mixing bowl.

Heat 1 tablespoon of olive oil in a large, non-reactive skillet over medium heat. When hot, add mushrooms and chile for dried red pepper) and saute for about 2 minutes. Add remaining 3 tablespoons of olive oil, garlic and tomatoes (but not their juice) and cook for about 4 minutes, stirring gently so as not to break up the tomatoes. Add parsley and basil, stir and set aside.

Cook spaghetti in a large pot of boiling salted water until just "al dente"; the spaghetti should retain just a slight resilience in the center. Drain.

Meanwhile, in a non-reactive pot large enough to hold the drained spaghetti and all of the vegetables, melt butter over medium heat. Add cream and Parmesan and stir constantly until heated through. When hot, reduce heat and cook gently on and off heat until smooth. Add spaghetti and toss quickly to blend. Add half the vegetables and pour in reserved juice of the tomatoes. Toss and stir over very low heat until the mixture is heated through, 5 minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Add remaining vegetables and toss gently. If sauce seems too dry, add additional cream - but don't make it soupy. Adjust seasonings. Add toasted pine nuts, and give mixture one final toss. Dish out into heated soup or pasta bowls. Spoon some of the mushroom-tomato mixture over each serving. Serve immediately.

Yield: 4 servings as main course; or 6 to 8 as an appetizer. Recipe from "New York Cookbook," by Molly O'Neill (Workman Publishing, 1992).

Gearing up for a gluten-free diet

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm told I need a non-gluten diet. Please give me some direction.

DEAR READER: Celiac disease, a chronic intestinal disorder caused by a sensitivity to gluten, leads to diarrhea, anemia, gas, bloating, bone pain, fluid retention and abdominal discomfort. Gluten is a protein present in many foods, especially grains.

Sensitivity to the product is hereditary. Therefore, the only successful treatment for celiac disease is avoidance of gluten. Patients can usually eliminate wheat, rye, barley and oats from their diets; however, gluten is commonly added to commercial foodstuffs, such as soups, ice cream and hot dogs.

Therefore, people on a gluten-free diet need detailed lists of "unsafe" edibles, and advice supplied by a licensed dietitian familiar with celiac disease. Once the diagnosis is made (by intestinal biopsy), patients must scrupulously follow the diet. Ask your doctor to refer you to a dietitian.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 36-year-old female who suffers from chest pain that radiates to my left upper back. Sometimes the pain is an ache, other times it's stabbing. I've had a chest X-ray, echogram, lung scan and upper GI, all of which were negative. My doctor has now suggested a pain clinic, and I'm very frustrated.

DEAR READER: Chest pain can be harrowing for patients, especially when it recurs and no cause can be found. Your doctor seems to have touched most of the bases by evaluating your lungs, heart and upper intestine. (I hope he obtained a gallbladder ultrasound, because gallstones can cause chest pain.)

Rather than send you to a pain clinic, I'd be inclined to refer you first to a gastroenterologist (for endoscopy, a technique of looking into your stomach to diagnose inflammation that won't show up on X-rays) and then to a neurologist (to make sure the pain isn't from a nerve disorder, such as intercostal neuralgia).

Ask for these referrals; you can always use the pain clinic as a

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Richard J. Ferris, the former president of United Airlines, said, "It is now possible for a flight attendant to get a pilot pregnant." And why not? Many years ago, all in-flight magazines contained several puzzle pages, which included a bridge column. Nowadays, though, a crossword is usually the only challenge to a passenger's analytical mind.

Therefore, I was pleasantly surprised to find that the Turkish Airlines in-flight magazine contained an interesting chess problem and today's bridge deal. The reader was shown all 52 cards and asked — I think — to analyze the play in three no-trump. Well, how do you think it should go?

North's bid of three no-trump is aggressive, but he has a good five-card suit and excellent controls. Aces are worth more than the four points we normally assign to them.

You start with six top tricks. The other three tricks can come from the heart suit. But while establishing that suit, you must lose the lead twice. If the opponents can establish and cash three diamond tricks to go with their two heart winners, you will fall to defeat.

The danger is a 5-2 diamond split. If that is the situation, you must try to cut the defenders' communication in the suit. The key play is to duck the first trick completely.

Win trick two in the dummy and lead a heart toward your 10. West may win and establish his diamonds, but he has no entry remaining. And if East wins this trick, he has no diamond to play.

If the opponents are trying to establish a suit, always consider a ducking play.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Oool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Thursday, July 15, 1993

The year ahead could be an exceptionally pleasant one for you, because some of your heart's innermost desires might be fulfilled. Dare to be a dreamer.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Although a new channel might not be very obvious to you at this time, it could be an avenue for fortuitous developments in material ways. What occurs today could get things rolling. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you could be in for a pleasant surprise when you receive an impressive amount of attention from a member of the opposite gender you thought never noticed you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Someone who is extremely fond of you might set something up today that could add to your resources in a substantial way. His/her gesture won't have any strings attached.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You could have ample reasons to be smiling today when you see your long range plans starting to unfold in the positive way in which you originally envisioned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An agreement into which you might enter today should work out mutually beneficial, as long as both parties involved are loyal to one another.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A member of the opposite gender to whom you're attracted is equally as interested in you. However, you better make a move because he/she might be too shy to do so.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Forego the strictly business attitude today and show a friendly warmth to persons with whom you deal in your business world. The effect could be very beneficial.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're going to get any unique type of lucky break today, it's a safe bet to say it could come through one of your favorite social contacts. Be friendly towards all.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A venture you thought was unprofitable and outmoded still has lots of life left in it. Reexamine it again to see how it can be revitalized.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're apt to be luckier today if you coordinate your efforts with someone else instead of trying to do everything on your own. The person you need is someone with whom you worked previously.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Chances are before the day is over you could garner some type of material rewards either as a gift, bonus or for a service you performed for another.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could be more fortunate than usual if you freely express yourself and let others know your true feelings, especially in the romance department.
