Update on fatal accident

SANFORD — A Deltona man was killed and five people were injured Friday morning in an accident on C.R. 415, about a quarter mile north of the Osteen bridge.

David F. Merrill, 23, Newmark Drive, Deltona was killed when he attempted to pass several vehicles while traveling southbound during morning rush hour.

Merrill's car struck a pickup truck driven by Angela D. Richardson, 28, Osteen. Passengers in the truck were Arlene Patterson, 25, Robert Rahls, 29 and six-month-old Carteria Rahls, all of Sanford. Gerondy Busby, 3, was also a passenger in the truck but no address was available for the child.

The adults were treated for minor injuries at Central Florida Regional Hospital, according to a spokesperson at the Florida Highway Patrol. The children were airlifted from the accident scene to Halifax Hospital. Their condition was unavailable Saturday evening.

Chamber offers itchy greeting

DEBARY — At the chamber of commerce in DeBary, it's a termite invasion.

Not content to stay behind the walls, they descend from the ceiling. They accumulate on furniture. Little silver termite wings drift aimlessly into coffee cups below.

"It's ridiculous," said executive director Mariam Peabody, who last month sat down for a meeting with new business members and had to flick the little pests from her arm and her hair.

"It didn't look very professional, but it's not like it was something you could really help," Peabody said. "I'm just lucky I don't have a wooden head."

Exterminators cannot tent the 420-square-foot building because it could contaminate a water well behind the back door, she said. With the condition of the 50-year-old building, Peabody isn't sure treating it would be worth the expense.

She would rather build a new building on nearly two acres the chamber owns surrounding the existing office. After talking with area builders, Peabody estimates it would take $100,000 to $135,000 to construct a 2,000-square-foot building with conference rooms and office space that could be leased.

Peabody thinks her termite "friends" can make that happen. When promoting the idea, she carries around a collection of bugs that have accumulated in a ceiling light globe. It's an effective visual aid.

Chlorine leak forces evacuation

LONGWOOD — A leaking chlorine tank, located near The Woodlands subdivision in Longwood, prompted authorities to temporarily evacuate a small area until the leak could be sealed Saturday afternoon.

According to authorities, the odor of chlorine in the subdivision was called in shortly after 1 p.m. Upon investigating the incident, a chlorine tank located near Western Fork Road was discovered to be leaking the hazardous gas.

By 2:30 p.m., officials had the tank sealed and residents were allowed to return to the homes.

Crime in public housing

Eviction of lawbreakers to be looked at individually

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Crime committed by residents at local public housing units may lead to eviction from their rent subsidized home. However, the Sanford Housing Authority will continue reviewing evictions based on criminal activity on a case-by-case basis after board members discussed the matter last week.

"The board of directors has basically reaffirmed its standing position," housing authority attorney

Ned Julian said, "which is, that each case must be looked at individually, and that it would be inappropriate to have a hard and fast rule. That's my opinion."

Phyllis Richardson, executive director for the housing authority, asked for direction from the board on the eviction policy based on proof of criminal activity on the premises. Under a lease provision, housing authorities may evict tenants if they have proof drugs or criminal activity occurred in public housing.

The lease for public housing units, based on requirements by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) says that tenants or persons under the tenant's control are not to engage in illegal activity on the housing authority premises, basically to the extent that the activity interferes with or endangers the health, safety, welfare, etc. of other tenants and the peaceful operations of the housing authority.

"That doesn't mean, that if a tenant's child, for example, sells dope at 25th St. and Sanford Ave., that the housing authority has a legal right to

Sun Lake damaged by fire

By ROGER HARNACK
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Several units were damaged and at least two families are temporarily homeless today after flames shot through the roof of a three-story building at Sun Lake Apartments Saturday afternoon.

According to Seminole County emergency management public information officer Ken Roberts, the fire was reported to authorities shortly after 2 p.m.

"We had the fire under control in about 20 minutes," Roberts said. "It took about 40 minutes to extinguish the fire."

Roberts said this fire was a particularly tough one to fight.

"Apparently, the fire started in the wall on the second floor. It climbed up the wall and into the attic and through the roof," Roberts said.

Once the fire reached the attic and burned

Herald publisher to retire May 31

By NICK PFEIFAUPE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Wayne Doyle, Sanford Herald publisher for the past 20 years, has announced he will retire from his post after work Tuesday, May 31.

Doyle was named publisher June 1, 1974, after coming to the Herald in 1970.

Prior to that, he was assistant to the publisher at a newspaper in Linton, Indiana, and has been closely connected to print media since 1944.

"Back then, most of the time I worked in the office," he said, "but occasionally, when something big happened, I would go outdoors and help by selling papers on the street."

One of his favorite recollections was being called out of class during high school to help distribute the paper announcing VE Day (victory over Europe on May 9, 1945).

Sweet corn and sweeter memories

The phone rang. The lady on the other end of the line said, "I enjoy your column but I just can't stand grits." Okay, I said, you enjoy your home fries on Saturday night's left over mashed potatoes made into patties and fried for breakfast, but I'll stick with my grits. She said, "Fair enough."

Of course, the first time I was up north and they served "mush" for breakfast I thought they were trying to poison me. But, it's everybody to his own taste.

But everybody loves good sweet corn. Do you remember my telling you some months ago the Meriwether Farms on Celery Avenue developed a variety of sweet corn called "Silver Queen" and how everyone last year went bananas over it. Well, this year's crop is in and old timer Bobby Newman says if you want some you'd better "high tail" it out there and get what you need before it's all gone.

This spring we've visited the Meriwether's place quite frequently and bought red grapefruit. Bobby tells me the real name of this fruit is "flame" instead of "red" but he said he doubted if some people would know what one meant by "flame" grapefruit.

I can't wait until this fall when the Meriwethers are ready to sell a new variety of citrus fruit. I can't rightly remember if it has a name yet but it's a combination of grapefruit, orange, and peels like a tangerine. Now, won't that be somethin'.

And, when we go out that way we swing around to SR 415 and head south toward SR 46. We've been stopping at a produce stand that has the best tomatoes you'll ever eat. Usually they're the famous "Ruskins." And if you like boiled peanuts there's the place to get 'em. They're not those little old

There's more family fun today after parade, games, characters

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — Sir Gus the camel, the clowns and a wide array of motorized vehicles were the crowd pleasers Saturday as members of the Bahia Shrine from throughout Central Florida gathered in Sanford.

Most of the weekend Shriners' activities are private, including induction ceremonies, but they took time out for a public parade.

Youngsters and adults alike waved "hello" to the men in the elegantly decorated burgundy colored fezzes.

Pleasantly cool temperatures and the bright sunshine made it a perfect day for a parade. Many of the parade watchers also attended "Fun Day in the Park" at Ft. Mellon.

Judge refuses to block anti-nudity law

MILTON, Fla. — A judge has refused to block an emergency ordinance intended to ban sunbathing in the buff at an isolated Florida Panhandle beach that nudists have used for more than a decade.

Panhandle Free Beaches, formed to promote clothing-optional beaches, filed a lawsuit challenging the new law on grounds Santa Rosa County commissioners abused their authority by declaring beach nudity an emergency.

Circuit Judge Paul Rasmusen dismissed the suit Friday. He found the group failed to show it would be harmed by the ordinance and that the defendants were improperly served with legal notice because papers were given to a secretary instead of the commissioners.

A lawyer for the group, David Theriaque, said the suit would be refilled, although the issue may soon become moot because commissioners are planning to readopt the ordinance without the emergency clause on June 9.

Declaring an emergency allowed the panel to immediately pass the ordinance May 12 without meeting public notice and hearing requirements that add nearly a month to the procedure of adopting a regular law.

Theriaque said his clients may challenge the permanent law, as well as being overly broad.

"The ordinance would even ban a woman changing her baby's diaper on the beach," he said.

It bans exposure of genital areas, bare bottoms or women's nipples on public beaches and in public parks. Breast feeding of babies was exempted. The maximum penalty for a violation would be 60 days in jail and a $500 fine.

The nude beach is about a mile from the nearest road east of the Navarre Beach community on Santa Rosa Island. It abuts property owned by Eglin Air Force Base.

Pastor's son faces fraud charges

LAKE LAND — The son of a prominent pastor has been charged with operating a pyramid scheme to bilk more than $3.7 million from the elderly, including some of his father's parishioners.

Daniel David Strader, 36, was arrested Friday on 259 charges including racketeering, racketeering conspiracy and organized fraud. He was jailed on $3.5 million bail.

"He was recommended to me as a good Christian man," said an 84-year-old widow who placed $15,000 with Strader. "This was my life savings, and he's hurt me very badly."

The woman, who asked not to be identified, was one of at least 64 investors from Polk and Hillsborough counties.

According to arrest papers, since June 1987 Strader sold two types of securities. One was to buy "income-producing real estate" in Central Florida. The other was to underwrite the purchase of "discounted mortgages" near Atlanta.

Investigators concluded that Strader "was conducting a Ponzi scheme whereby early investor returns were paid substantially from later investors funds, not from income-producing real estate as presented by Strader."

Strader is the son of the Rev. Karl Strader of Carpenter's Home Church in Lakeland. Associate Pastor Joe Perez said that to the best of his knowledge between eight and 20 churchgoers have invested with Strader.

Casino foe: Beating won't change views

SARASOTA — Prominent dog track owner Jerry Collins says the beating of his housekeeper will not intimidate him into softening his stance against casino gambling.

"I'm still opposed to it," he said Friday. "They damn sure can't budge me."

Flora McLeod said two men approached her Thursday, put something around her throat and gave her a message for Collins: Either he gives up his opposition to casinos, or his entire family will die.

McLeod was treated for cuts and bruises and released from Sarasota Memorial Hospital.

Sarasota police are taking the threat seriously. Detectives and crime-scene technicians spent eight hours at the house searching for evidence and they are providing around-the-clock protection for Collins.

Police spokeswoman Beth Muniz said there are no suspects and no hard evidence in the case.

"They were trying to get to him through me. That's all I know," she said, adding the men also took her wallet "so they'd know who I was."

Collins, the 86-year-old millionaire owner of dog tracks in Orange and Sarasota counties, has been opposed to casino gambling since the first proposal made the ballot in 1978. He said the lottery alone has cut his business by 70 percent and "casinos would absolutely kill dog racing."

Collins said his views are unchanged by Limited Casinos Inc. proposal to place casinos within dog tracks and other existing pari-mutuel businesses.

That group late Friday posted a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of McLeod's assailants.

Call for fight against litter

Lake Mary commissioner asks residents to keep it clean

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — City Commissioner David Mealor is calling on citizens and business leaders in Lake Mary to join in the fight against litter. He is inaugurating a roadside quarterly cleanup campaign.

You can call it an Adopt-A-Street program, or adopt-a-road, or subdivision, or parking lot, or whatever you want to call it," Mealor said. "As long as you help keep it clean."

He also suggested some larger organizations may adopt an entire route possibly of several miles.

With previous approval by the city, Mealor presented the new sign to be erected in specific areas, during last Thursday night's commission meeting. The sturdy signs include a colorful city logo.

"Just below this sign we will have another sign," Mealor said. "It will include the name of the sponsoring organization which will accept responsibility for at least a quarterly cleanup in that specific area."

Mealor says since he first began working on the project, a number of volunteers have come forward and already signed up to undertake the project. After more volunteers are signed up, he said, "I plan to come out with a list of people who, by doing this, are showing that they care about Lake Mary and how it looks to our residents as well as visitors."

Lake Mary City Commissioner David Mealor, left, and police Chief Richard Beary, with the sign Mealor wants displayed in areas to be kept clean by volunteer residents.

In addition to the quarterly cleanup, Mealor is working on plans to have city trucks make special trips to pick up trash that volunteers will have bagged and placed in specific areas.

"We have such a beautiful city," he said. "Yet people are always throwing something out of car windows or dropping items along the right-of-way. It's amazing how fast a city's appearance can improve if the streets and roadways are kept clean."

Mealor said any volunteers or organizations that would like to sign up for a particular area,

(and have special signs so designated) should contact Lake Mary City Hall as soon as possible.

"Do it as soon as you can," he suggested. "so you can get the area you want before one of your concerned neighbors or organizations do so."

For volunteering for the quarterly cleanup, phone Lake Mary City Hall at 322-3017.

Grading Clinton on the job he's done so far

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

Area locals recently gave President Clinton his own report card. They spoke out on how he's done thus far since his election. Readers commented on the scandals his name has been connected with and his job as president. From the opinions received, President Clinton's parents might have put him on restriction for bringing home that kind of report card. If the voters were the principal of his school, it appeared detention would be in order.

Jayne Young said, "He has done a good job compared to what? He's not my favorite character. On a report card I'll give him a D-. I don't think he's upheld what his platform was when he ran for office. They do need to keep his health reform."

Douglas Phillips stated, "To tell you the truth I don't follow what those clowns do. There has been too many promises that they make and don't keep. It's still a good country and a great system to live under. My tiny vote obviously didn't matter in this last election. I didn't vote for him. The only one I was impressed with was Bush and how he handled himself and how he kept us together through Desert Storm. I was also impressed with Reagan and his economic policies."

Clodene Richards said, "I don't really keep up with him, so I don't have much of a comment. I just don't care for him or his ways."

Novella Stanley said, "I think too much emphasis is put on the personal life of the president. If he handles his affairs with the government well, his personal life shouldn't be judged. It would be great if everyone had good morals, but not everyone does. As far as politically, he's fighting a tough battle, and has a long way to go. He hasn't had a lot of time to get things accomplished. I'm anxious to see at the end of a couple of years what he's accomplished, but I think he's going in the right direction. I'll give him a B-."

Delores Drennen stated, "I think if they leave him alone and let him tend to his business we'd be a lot better off. Leave his private life out of it. I think he's done a good job this last year and he could do better if they'd leave him alone. I think he's really trying."

Angie Atkinson felt, "I wish I hadn't voted for him. All the changes he's trying to make all at once isn't good. There has to be some truth behind the scandals with him somewhere. I'm not happy with the job he's done. To be nice, the report card I'd give him is a C. I don't put any trust in anything he says."

Lateisha Graham said, "I trust him as a person. I just think he hasn't done as much for the country as he should."

Lottie Lester-Kelly stated, "I think he's done okay. He's trying. I think there's something that could be improved but I'm not sure specifically what. I don't think he's guilty of any of the scandals. I'd give him a C as a president for the job he's done."

Joey Conrad felt, "Look at all the things he said he was going to do when he was governor of Arkansas. He didn't do them and changed his mind about them. I think anyone that voted for him shouldn't be the least bit surprised that he's so wishy-washy and doesn't keep his word. The only way he won was by electoral vote and not by the vote of the people. He also won because George Bush didn't have a great campaign and Clinton's name was in the limelight. I'd give him an F."

Greg Rios stated, "He's a traitor. I don't think he's living up to what he said in the beginning. Taxes, he said wouldn't go up and now he's raising them. The health reform bill isn't good. I don't believe the scandals are true. He needs to stick to his election plan and prove it to us. He's even said he

Correction

Due to a reporting error, an incorrect address was listed in connection with an arrest in Police Briefs in Friday's Sanford Herald. Tammy Sueann Schatt, arrested at her residence by Sanford police on May 16, resides at 3301 W. S.R. 46, and not on E. 21st Street as was listed. Also, Harry Bradley Bryant, 42, 2444 E. 21st Street, was not arrested in connection with Schatt. In a separate incident, he turned himself in on a warrant for violation of probation, on a previous conviction of robbery, as reported. The Herald regrets this error.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A 20-year old man, under house arrest for helping plan the murder of a motorcycle club president, was arrested Friday in the death of a friend's child.
Police arrested John Valois on charges of first degree murder in the death of two-year old Tiffany Llorca, Orlando. The suspect was arrested at an Orlando demolition company where he works. He is being held without bond at the Seminole County jail.

The little girl's mother, Sherry Llorca, 28, left the toddler and her twin sister with Valois while she went on an errand early last month. When she returned, she found Tiffany unconscious, a police report states. The little girl was taken to Orlando Regional Medical Center April 5 with head injuries. She died four days later.

Valois, 407 Majoren Ave. told authorities he was playing with the child, throwing and catching her. Valois said the child fell when she spread her arms and he was unable to catch her. She hit his leg then fell on her head on the carpet. Valois told investigators.

Autopsy results and a doctor at the medical center stated the child suffered severe blunt trauma to the head. The injuries are inconsistent with Valois' statement, the report states.

Valois was serving two years house arrest for his part in planning the 1991 shooting of Warlocks motorcycle club national president Wayne Sanzo.

Sanzo's daughter, Tiffany and three teenage friends were charged in the case. Sanzo bled to death after being shot by Freddie Mathis. Tiffany's boyfriend at the time, Mathis is serving 36 years in prison. Valois pleaded no contest to helping Tiffany plan the murder. He was sentenced to house arrest and 13 years probation in December 1992.

A fourth teen, Kamy Trickell was sentenced to house arrest and probation in the case.

Tiffany was released from prison in December after serving two years of a four year sentence. She is on probation.

Valois will be arraigned after formal charges are filed by the state attorney's office.

HRS bungles case of child AIDS victim

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE — Tashia shouldn't have died when she was just 11. And she shouldn't have died of AIDS.

But last March, Tashia lost her life, as much a victim of Florida's bungling social services bureaucracy as of the deadly virus. She contracted AIDS from being sexually abused by her mother's boyfriends.

The horrors of Tashia's life are outlined in court documents, police reports and the files of the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

The department first began investigating allegations that Tashia suffered from inadequate care, sexual, physical and emotional abuse in 1986, when she was 3 years old. After each complaint, the agency returned the girl to her mother or grand- mother.

And the abuse continued. "There was a day when they could have saved her life and it didn't happen," says Arlene Shipley, who became Tashia's foster mother two years ago. "This child didn't have to die like this."

In September 1986, police were called to a domestic disturbance involving Tashia's mother, Rosemary Fisher. A neighbor involved in the complaint told police the child grabbed his penis and said that her mother's boyfriend taught her to do that. But Tashia denied any sexual abuse and the case was closed.

Weeks later, Tashia's mother was accused of giving her little girl to a stranger. HRS placed Tashia in a temporary shelter. A report said she exhibited "inappropriate sexual behavior" by demonstrating sexual intercourse with anatomically correct dolls.

Counseling was ordered. Tashia was returned to her mother with the recommendation that the child not be left in the care of men.

A psychological evaluation of Ms. Fisher in November 1986 found her to be mildly retarded with "very poor parenting skills."

To settle the abandonment case, Tashia was placed with her maternal grandmother in February 1987. HRS staffers made periodic visits for about a year.

In February 1988, the HRS determined Tashia had been physically abused, probably by her mother. Although the girl was in her grandmother's care, she often stayed with her mother, reports said.

A year later, Tashia was diagnosed with herpes and gonorrhea. A medical report also noted damage to her hymen and vagina. The HRS concluded she was the victim of "chronic sexual abuse." Later, she was found to have syphilis and venereal warts.

"The police were unable to arrest a suspect for sexual abuse until February 1992 because of the mother's denials that she left the child alone with any particular men and because of the child's inability to identify a perpetrator," a grand jury report issued in January 1993 stated.

Levon Bernard King, one of Tashia's mother's boyfriends, was charged with capital sexual battery for assaulting the girl. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison after pleading no contest to a charge of attempted sexual battery.

Main Street adds an attractive touch

The Sanford Main Street (SMS) project is looking up. Specifically, they are looking up at the awnings and canopies above the various storefronts in the downtown historic district.

Take a look for yourself. Some are attractive, but others are in need of serious repair or even replacement. A few businesses don't have them.

In a message to members of SMS and the Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association (SHDWA) meeting last Tuesday, police chief Ralph Russell stressed the importance of having awnings and/or canopies with adequate lighting above downtown shops. He sees it as a help in reducing business crime.

Of major importance to downtown visitors, they provide an excellent rain covering. However, Russell says well lit canopies also help by providing a better look at storefronts by officers passing by on routine patrols.

Sanford Main Street is presently accepting applications for financial grants to help pay for awnings and canopies for as many as 90 buildings. Matching grants up to $750 are being offered for awnings not to exceed $1,500.

SMS has $5,000 presently available for distribution through Sept. 30 of this year. The money will come from the SMS Design Committee, comprised of business owners, residents, merchants and design professionals.

For persons not understanding the concept of awnings and canopies, SMS is also offering free assistance from Phillip Waley, a State Preservation Architect. He will visit the business, discuss suggested improvements, and perhaps supply drawings of suggested projects.

Improving the downtown appearance in this way may seem like a small step. But if a majority of businesses join together, visitors will see a remarkable improvement. Any business operator must admit, an improved appearance will increase the customer flow and be a profitable investment.

For information on these financial grants, contact SMS Director Faye Fulton, 322-5600, or Design Chairperson Laura Straehla at 323-5696.

This change may seem small in comparison to the refurbishing needs of some of the downtown buildings. It is however, a first step, and one which can go a long way in improving the appearance of the downtown business district of Sanford.

Prom controversy

As a Lake Brantley graduate who attended prom in 1993, I do not remember prom night being the controversy it is today. Parents' objections to prom focus on the big emphasis on sex and drinking.

If parents have raised their teens right, there will be little reason to worry on prom night. Parents should stop looking for reasons to distrust their teen-agers if the reasons were never apparent before. Parents should at least attempt to meet young people half way and unlock the keys to leashes they have placed on teen-agers.

Some changes in voter registration

Sandy Goard, Seminole County's Supervisor of Elections reflected upon the changes that have occurred since she first began her employment in the elections office. She began her tenure in 1977 as office manager. Cami Bruce was the supervisor of elections at that time. In 1977, there were 47,000 registered voters in the county, today that number has increased 135,362. The new National Voter Registration Act known as the "Motor Voter Bill" will usher in significant changes and will become effective January 1995.

Persons desiring to vote will no longer need to visit the county election office or area registration sites because registration forms will be available at multiple governmental offices. Beginning January 1995, voter registration forms may be obtained from: drivers' license bureaus, armed forces recruitment offices, food stamp offices and public assistance offices. Additionally, governmental social workers will be required to offer registration forms to the clients they visit. If the client elects not to register, agencies will be responsible for maintaining files relating to their unwillingness to register.

Citizens registering to vote will no longer need to swear to the oath before the deputy registrar. Individuals registering are simply required to read the form, sign it and mail it to the supervisor of elections. The space for the registrant's signature does not have to be witnessed or notarized, the oath still affirms

LURLENE SWEETING

United States citizenship, Florida residence and fidelity to the constitutions of the United States and Florida. Falsification of information is punishable by conviction as a third degree felon, up to a $5,000 fine, and/or imprisonment for up to five years.

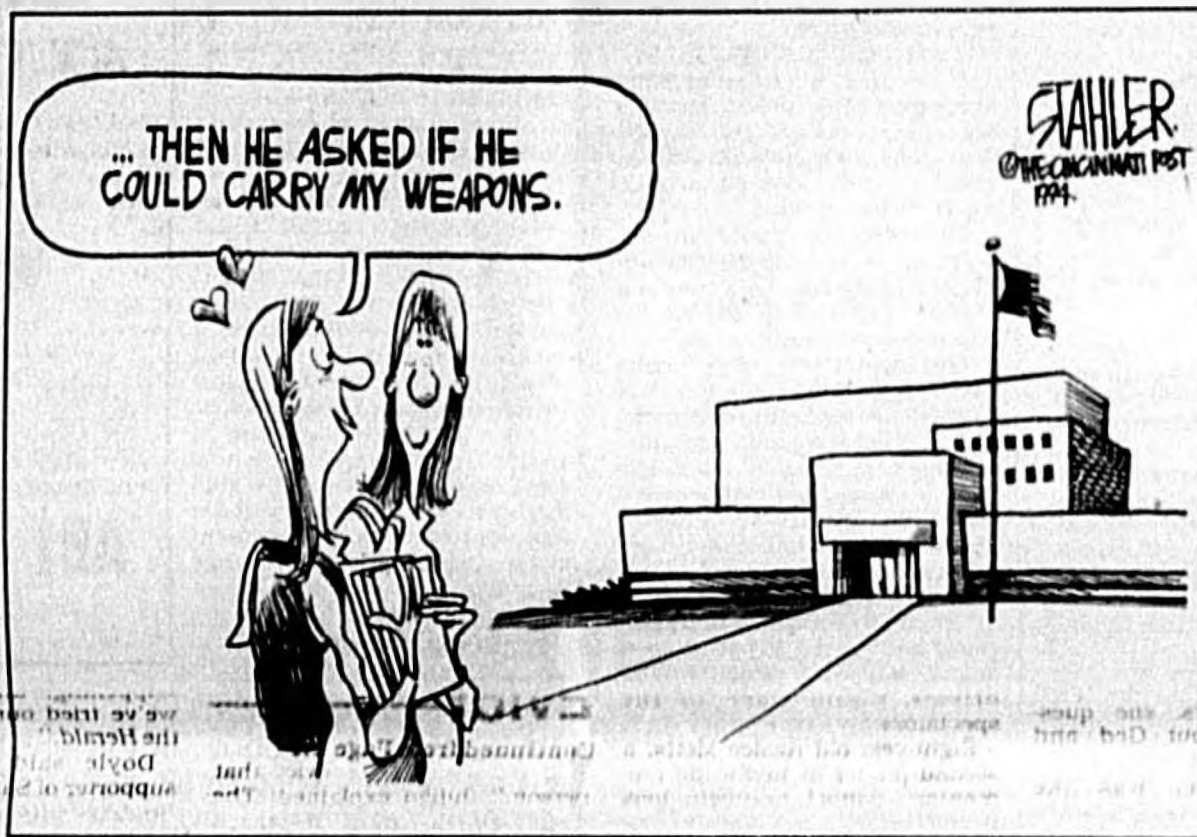

Goard applauded the state legislators for amending Florida's laws to comply with the new national law and avoid a dual registration system. The resulting uniform registration procedures deletes information about race, gender and place of birth. The matter of citizenship is addressed. Statistical data targeting specific group voting patterns relative to gender and race will no longer be accessible from voter registration forms.

The registration renewal program is also a casualty of the new law. In the past when residents abstained from voting or contacting the elections office for a two-year period, they were mailed renewal applications. For example, 14,000 renewal applications were mailed to Seminole County voters in 1993. Only 4,000 were returned, hence the 8,000 who failed to respond were removed from the rolls. Since this renewal process is no longer germane, it is conceivable that persons no longer residing in the county will be carried on the rolls indefinitely.

The "Motor Voter Bill" has been implemented in New Castle County, Delaware. The impact was phenomenal. Voter registration increased from 23 per day to 225 per day. If what happened in New Castle is any indication of what might take place in Seminole County, then an excessive number of registration forms will need to be printed. Generally only 20,000 registration forms are printed each fiscal year.

If there is a deluge of registrants, who later do not vote, voter turnout will be further depressed. The greater voter participation takes place during presidential elections. The general presidential election of 1992 found 85 percent of Seminole County's electorate visiting the polls. During the gubernatorial election of 1990, 60.1 percent voted. Preliminary elections have the least voter turnout. In 1990 28.1 percent voted in the first primary and 16 percent in the second primary.

Abortion pill comes to America

BOSTON — The estimated time of arrival had been delayed again and again. By now, RU-486 had begun to sound like the flight number for a plane permanently grounded by bad weather.

Indeed, the manufacturers of the abortion pill at Roussel Uclaf acted more like meteorologists than medicine men when they talked about their product. All through the 1980s and early '90s, they blamed "the climate" for their stubborn refusal to let RU-486 come to America.

The political atmosphere surrounding abortion here was too turbulent, they said. The pill would produce a storm of controversy. The company could be devastated.

In fact, Roussel Uclaf was in a rather strange position for any business. It had a lock on a product that it didn't want to sell. Indeed the pill had only gone to France, Great Britain and Sweden.

The Roman Catholic heads of its own parent company, Hoechst, had been directly lobbied by the pope himself against giving RU-486 to the United States. They'd been threatened by American pro-life groups with a boycott of all their products. And they'd worried as well about liability in the lawsuit-happy States.

But last year there was, to put it mildly, a change in the political weather in Washington. The prevailing winds in the abortion debate shifted direction about 180 degrees.

Two days after Bill Clinton was inaugurated he assigned the savvy and dogged secretary of HHS, Donna Shalala, the task of figuring out how to get RU-486 into this country. This week, after another full year of delays and a deadline ultimatum, an agreement was made.

So, RU-486 is finally off the ground. In words of Rep. Ron Wyden (D-Ore.), "This drug is coming to the United States."

The manufacturer has agreed to give the Americans patent rights to The Population Council, a non profit organization, in return for ridding itself of controversy and liability. The council will begin clinical trials this fall involving 2,000 women while they look for an American manufacturer. In two years American women will, in all probability, have at least as easy access to RU-486 as French women have today.

After all this time, it's hard to understand why so much controversy has focused on a method of abortion. After all, the pill only does what a surgical abortion does.

Pro-lifers have been convinced that RU-486 would make abortion easy and making it easier would make it more common. But in France at least, the pill hasn't changed the rate at all.

In fact, RU-486 hasn't yet made abortion as simple as either pro-lifers fear or pro-choicers hope. "The pill" — more properly described as a dose of Mifepristone followed two days later by a dose of prostaglandin — can entail three medical visits and the abortion can come with serious cramps. It's not like swallowing an aspirin.

But RU-486 will have a profound effect on the public debate. As Planned Parenthood's Pamela Maraldo said, "This will mark the beginning of a new era. It will go a long way toward ending the abortion wars."

RU-486 is used in the earliest weeks of pregnancy. At four weeks, there are no "silent screams" and no images to blow up into poster fetuses. Public support for a woman's right to decide is greatest at this stage. Indeed RU-486 is being clinically tried now as a "morning-after pill."

More importantly, you don't need a clinic to take a pill. In the past couple of years, the pro-life movement has shifted its tactics from winning cases to closing clinics.

from passing laws to harassing patients. But with RU-486, abortion will no longer have to be limited to clinics, hospitals, and the handful of doctors easily targeted as "the weak link" of abortion.

The pill can be offered by trained physicians in a thousand offices. As Maraldo says, "This will quiet and privatize the debate. It will take the debate off the streets and away for the clinics and bring it back to the minds of American women where it belongs."

The pill will never entirely replace surgical abortions. Nor will it change the moral and emotional dimensions of the decision faced by a woman with an unwanted pregnancy. But it will make her choice easier to exercise.

Yes, there's a change in the weather pattern. Last week, Congress passed a law protecting access to clinics. This week, the administration got RU-486 off the runway. Think of it as a lesson in the politics of climate control.

The manufacturers of the abortion pill acted more like meteorologists than medicine men when they talked about their product.

Health Police: Eat turnips or die!

You know what bothers me most when the Health Police announce yet another food they say will kill us?

It isn't the loss of the victual itself, although it is bound to be something delicious. It's the leers and sneers the Health Police effect when they tell us we can't have the goodly anymore. They get a by-damn kick out of tormenting us, and that's what really gets to me.

I can just imagine them snickering while they're preparing their assaults. "I can't wait to tell them they can't have movie popcorn. Tee hee." Or, "They're gonna green and pop their coxas when we tell them to lay off Moo Shu Pork. Tee hee."

You know they spend a lot of time planning their taunts because they're always ready with a quip or a colorful quote. They say things that don't just pop into a person's head and obviously had to be thought up beforehand. Things like, fettuccine Alfredo is "a heart attack on a plate" — which is what a Center for Science in the Public Interest person said when they zapped Italian food. Or, "Theater popcorn ought to be the Snow White of snacks, but instead it's the Godzilla" — which is what a CSPI person said when they waylaid movie popcorn.

Now comes this nutritionist from Harvard, Dr. Walter Willett, who says that margarine is more pernicious than pokeweed, or words to that effect. Actually, he was talking about vegetable oils that have been hydrogenated or partially hydrogenated to solidify them. They are full of trans fatty acids, which increase the bad cholesterol in our blood.

Dr. Willett has come up with an impressive number. He says that as many as 30,000 Americans may be expiring every year from trans fatty acid-induced heart attacks. Let me put it to you another way: Eat that cookie and die, pal.

I exaggerate, do I? Read the label on just about any processed food. Go ahead: Crackers, chips, pies, those little buttercrunch cakes. They are all made with hydrogenated or partially hydrogenated oils. Peanut butter? Check it out, buddy. You'd do better with a bowl of hemlock soup.

So, scores of wonderful foodstuffs get knocked off in one fell swoop — a stupendous accomplishment for the Health Police. Eggs, meat, milk, cheese — all these made the verboten list years ago. And sweets — you see where they are on the new food pyramid. Now lasagna and Kung Pao Chicken. Is anything left?

Well, yes, there is. Food scientists have discovered some new compounds they call "phytochemicals," which seem to prevent cancer and are therefore good for us. One of these substances, called sulforaphane, is found in broccoli, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, kale and turnips.

Did you get that? I said turnips. I told you 18 months ago I had evidence that a radical group of turnip farmers called the Turnip Underground was the real force behind all the assaults on food. The idea is to discredit every food substance except turnips. Since they completely control the turnip market, they will be rolling in clover.

I don't want you to think I'm capitulating or anything, but I have been collecting turnip recipes. Escallops de navet, turnip croquettes, Tournedos Nabos, stuffed turnips, turnip pizza and so on. If you have turnip recipes, let's share.

Because the Health Police will sooner or later find something wrong with turnips, too,

They get a by-damn kick out of tormenting us, and that's what really gets to me.

Death

Court and police files said that King placed his penis on the child's vagina and "hunched her" and lay on top of her. The abuse took place before Christmas 1991. Tests showed King was not infected with the AIDS virus.

Tashia was diagnosed with AIDS in February 1992. HRS said she contracted AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases from her mother's boyfriends. Tashia's mother also has been diagnosed with AIDS.

Tashia was finally taken from her mother in March 1992 when a caseworker found Tashia had a temperature of 105 degrees. Her mother had no plans to seek medical treatment.

It was that month when Tashia, timid, frightened, given to hiding in closets and hoarding food, came to live with Carl and Arlene Shipley, her foster parents.

"They didn't want to give you to us, as a first foster child," Arlene Shipley said in a letter to Tashia after the child's death. "I told them that you were the child God had chosen for us. Why else would a childless, white couple in their 40s, married 18 years, suddenly decide: 'Gee, we need to take in a discarded, little African-American girl who is dying of AIDS?'"

The family worked to build a loving home.

"She trusted us enough to start telling all these horrible stories. And we would have to sit at the dinner table and hear the most horrendous things come out of this child's mouth."

Because the Shipleys never knew how long Tashia could fight her disease — doctors had predicted she would live four months — they planned a party every month.

In August 1993, Mrs. Shipley and Tashia flew to California to visit with Roseanne Arnold and watch a taping of the television show "Roseanne." Mrs. Shipley, Tashia, and Roseanne all were abused as children. They also went to Disney World and made weekly trips to a restaurant, where Tashia could eat crab legs, her favorite food.

Arlene Shipley proudly spreads her photos of Tashia over a monogrammed green chair and cushions. Tashia as an infant, as a toddler, Tashia sitting on Santa's lap, the first time in her life that she recalled celebrating Christmas.

Three HRS social workers were assigned to Tashia in the summer of 1993 after courts terminated her natural mother's parental rights. They grew to love her.

"She was a gift. That's the type of child she was," says Gwen Tennant, Tashia's social services counselor.

Tammy Anderson, a legal services counselor, recalls spending seven hours fixing "Little Miss Tashia's" hair with beads and dreadlocks before a court-allowed visit with her natural mother.

Attempts to locate Tashia's natural mother for this story were unsuccessful. She does not have a telephone. Neither the

Grieving mother on hunger strike

By The Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — The grieving foster mother of an 11-year-old girl who died of AIDS she contracted from sexual abuse has begun a hunger strike in hopes of changing politicians' views about the helpless, especially children.

Arlene Shipley began her hunger strike on May 10, two months after her foster child, Tashia, died at Wolfson Children's Hospital.

"We have to take back our children's lives," she said. "I can't watch another child die."

Tashia died March 10 from AIDS. She contracted the disease from sexual abuse from one of her natural mother's boyfriends.

Mrs. Shipley is asking people who agree with her to send her a copy of their voter registration card. She said she will end the strike when she receives 2 million cards.

"Everyone told me not to do this. I was told people would think I'm crazy and that nobody would care," she said, fighting back tears. "But I think people do care."

She said she plans to send the copies of the cards to politicians in each state to show that people are interested in the helpless and the welfare of children.

Mrs. Shipley said she was inspired by Randall Robinson, who went on a hunger strike to protest U.S. foreign policy toward Haiti.

Editor's Note: Arlene Shipley is asking people to send copies of the voter registration cards to her at: FMAD, P.O. Box 47185, Jacksonville, Fla. 32247-7185.

HRS nor Mrs. Shipley could provide an address. Ms. Fisher is a convicted felon, a fact used by HRS to help terminate her parental rights.

"The visit 'was the last wish of a dying child,'" says Teresa Lussier, an HRS supervisor.

"She was a tough little girl. She wanted what she wanted. She prided herself on looking nice. She was a little Southern belle," Ms. Anderson says.

"She could manipulate you in a heartbeat," Mrs. Shipley recalls.

For much of those two years Tashia was in foster care, she had to take more than 20 medicines daily, including an AIDS drug.

"She couldn't play outside. She couldn't run. She couldn't ride a bike. Physical activity left her tired out," Arlene Shipley says.

"Tashia knew she had a disease she could die of. Toward the end, she knew she had a disease she would die of. But she did not know the name of her disease," Mrs. Shipley says. "All we said was she had bad blood and she accepted that."

In the two years Tashia spent with the Shipleys, she questioned them about God and heaven.

For her, heaven was like Disney World and God was like Mickey Mouse.

"I told her there was no pain in heaven. She would have a brand new body in heaven," Arlene Shipley says. "God would protect her and no one ever would hurt her again. And that she could slide down the rainbows."

Her battle with AIDS ended two years to the day that she had moved in with the Shipleys. The little girl died in March after an unofficial "adoption" ceremony was performed in the hospital to make the Shipley's her Mommy and Daddy.

"She was so afraid that we wouldn't find her in heaven if she wasn't Tashia Shipley. "I believe Tashia chose to die

"I am so grateful for the privilege of having this child in my life. She wanted everyone to know her name."

"The system" that allowed the abuse balked when the child needed counseling, wanted to attend school and asked to travel to California, Mrs. Shipley says.

Frustrated, she contacted HRS Secretary Jim Towe, telling him, "I want you to come here and look this child in the eyes so that when she dies that I know somebody who is part of the system has this child's soul on their conscience."

About four months before Tashia died, First Coast Advocates Inc., a non-profit agency appointed as Tashia's guardian filed a lawsuit on her behalf.

"This is a case where a child did not have to die," said Jacksonville attorney S. Orter Wells, who filed a lawsuit against the HRS claiming "negligence in the performance of its duties" in failing to protect the young girl. Any money collected from the lawsuit, will go to help other children like Tashia, Wells said.

The HRS' handling of Tashia's case resulted in a grand jury investigation in early 1993. It called the agency's lack of action "inexcusable and shocking."

"Her life cannot pass without having some meaning," Johnson said. "Her life is a beacon shining a light on the terrible result of child sexual abuse and AIDS."

Fun

Richard Robinson Deltona watched the half hour long parade from the comfort of a lawn chair near the Park.

"Like the stress," he said.

Two Sanford Police cars with sirens, whooping a welcome, led the way for the parade units which came from throughout Central Florida. From Lake County to New Smyrna Beach and all points in between the Shriners rode by in vehicles ranging from classic Mustang convertibles to miniature Tin Lizzies.

Tiny race cars dubbed the "Roadrunners" performed close order street maneuvers zipping along, turning circles, then smartly coming to a stop side-by-side at curbside so the drivers would wave to the spectators.

Eight-year-old Azalee Metts, a second grader at Ivywild Elementary School excitedly took up the parade route alerting her sisters and mother in each new unit moving up the street.

Daphante Metts, Sanford, brought Azalee and her other daughters, Alicia Flaundig, 2, and Amy Flaundig, 3, and a friend, Suzanne Session, 10, a fourth grader at Hamilton Elementary School to watch the parade. "It was the camel," Azalee said, when asked what she liked most about the parade. "And I touched the clown's hand," she added with excitement.

After the parade, the family strolled through Family Fun Day in the Park at Ft. Mellon Park. The event was a fund raiser for the Main Street Program. Sanford resident Shelly Jack brought her three-year-old daughter, Devan to the parade.

"I think the Bahla are wonderful for what they are doing," Jack said, referring to their funding for hospitals caring for children. "I support them in all they do. I'm going to a circus they are sponsoring soon."

As her mother watched, Devan was sitting astride a pony named "Honey" getting a $2 ride. The pony rides were part of the Fun Day event.

Devan confidently rode in the saddle as the little brown pony was led around a shady circuit. Devan has ridden horses before at her grandmother's, Jack said. When the parade ended, attention shifted to the park where children lined up to play a number of games featuring Disney characters. At the "Gone Fishing" booth, children cast a fishing pole over sheets decorated with Ariel, Flounder and Sebastian from "The Little Mermaid." After a few seconds, the lucky child reeled in a prize pinwheel. Other game booths, featuring Winnie the Pooh, Dumbo, and Sport Goody yielded prizes for the players and were a hit with the children.

A raffle for Disney tickets and silent auction for a variety of merchandise including a car were also part of the fund-raising effort.

Fun Day continues today from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

person," Julian explained. The illegal activity must occur on housing authority property for eviction to be considered.

Although the lease is designed to make the person who signs the lease responsible for their cohabitants and guests' actions under threat of eviction, there may be extenuating circumstances, the attorney noted. For example, juveniles may be engaged in illegal activities without their family's knowledge or if the parents or grandparents know, they are threatened, intimidated or even battered to maintain their silence.

In such cases, residents are urged to consult housing authority officials for help, he added. The Juvenile Justice Reform law recently signed by Gov. Lawton Chiles provides alternatives to the practice of returning teens who beat up their parents or caregivers to their home.

Even if drugs are found during an arrest, the attorney said, it must be proven who owned the drugs, which is sometimes difficult if more than one family.

Doyle

He also recalls turning on the Associated Press wire early one morning, and being the first in his town to know of the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

When asked which of his two dozen years with the Herald he considered the best, he responded, "Not any one particular year. As each year has passed, each one has been my favorite."

He explained, "Every one of them brought on some kind of challenge to the paper, and we had to handle it in such a way as to continue serving the community in the best possible way. I see our job as being responsible for informing the community and its citizens of what is happening, and that is what we've tried our best to do with the Herald."

Doyle said he is an avid supporter of Sanford. He paints a bright picture for its future.

"When I came to Sanford," he observed, "some people were looking at it saying it was in its retreating years, that it's like many other similar communities suffering in a slow economy."

"But Sanford has always fought back," Doyle said, "and right now we are on the verge of moving into a great future and building a stronger economic base than ever before."

Doyle has been heading the Sanford Herald during many major projects in Sanford. Among the most exciting he cites are the opening of the Seminole County courthouse, the moving of the zoo from downtown Sanford to W. U.S. Highway 17-92, the more recent fight to keep the zoo from leaving the Sanford area, the new law enforcement building, new Sanford City Hall, and sale of the hospital to HCA, which he supported verbally as well as through editorial.

He looks at the upcoming Seminole Towne Center Mall, major businesses which are expected to be added to the western Sanford area, the development of the Lake Monroe waterfront, and the revitalization of the downtown area as steps now being taken toward making Sanford a better city than ever before.

Regarding the future of print media, he said newspapers will continue to operate and thrive.

"We may not continue to be printed as we are now, with all the home computerization coming out," he said, "but someone has to produce the printed word for other people to read. I don't see any decline in the industry."

When asked his philosophy on retirement, he wasted no time in responding, "I don't look at this as retiring," he said. "Life is a series of voyages. Each new voyage takes us to a strange place and puts us in an unfamiliar situation. From there, we adjust, learn to live with it, and if we are energetic, we thrive. Then, along comes the next voyage, and off we go again to face the next challenge. What we call retirement is to me, my next voyage," he observed.

SHS singers wrap up season

O.K. The touring is over and the sponsors should be proud.

Returning from Tallahassee late last week, the choir of Seminole High School have had plenty to celebrate about.

Early last Thursday at Florida State University, the music department had six entries for judging at the Florida Vocal Association state contest.

First on the state with two numbers was Pizazz, the all-female show choir, who entertained better than they had all year.

And adding to their list of accomplishments, the group was awarded a Superior rating at the contest.

Souls were ignited when the Gospel Choir had the audience and the judge rocking with three numbers from their repertoire.

Led by Richard Grey, they picked up the first Superior rating ever earned by a Gospel choir at Seminole High.

Jaime Dilman

Destiny was as impressive as always with their assortment of jazz and blues they completed the school's sweep of Superiors with a rating of one.

After the equipment was broken down and loaded on the buses the students took a breather then the soloist room was filled with support for Lisette Guillen.

Beautiful as always, she dazzled with Italian and Classic English.

After missing the state competition last year because of the chicken pox, she earned an Excellent rating for her stunning solo.

Onward to the Madrigal performance.

The 16 women did justice to the Sixteenth Century songs arranged by Benjamin Brittain.

And after everyone changed into regular clothes, they learned they received an excellent rating also.

The choral department was accompanied by the award-winning show band which earned straight A's on their performance.

After congratulations to all, it was out to lunch and then back home.

Thanks is given to all parents, chaperones and community sponsors who have supported our cause this year. And special thanks go out to Mr. and Mrs. Hoops for their generous personal contribution, as well as to Hoops' sister who donated $100 toward our expenses in Kathleen's memory.

To all who helped out: you can remember next time you're asked to contribute that you've made possible many memories and dreams come true for some who otherwise wouldn't have gotten the opportunity or the chance.

Thanks for being part of our year and we look forward to increasing our department in the fall.

How could it do anything but good?

By LINDSAY HODGES
Special to the Herald

As a freshman who is presented with this program, I can't help but think "How could 75 hours of community service do anything but good?"

In order to qualify for the Florida Academic Scholarship, all people who are freshman this year or younger, must have at least 75 hours of community service through an organization that is approved by the Seminole County school board.

For example, a student could choose to volunteer at the American Heart Association.

Students who participate in the program will be earning a half of a credit at the same time.

Other students like sophomores through seniors may also participate to earn a half of a credit.

This could be the ticket to a new future for Seminole County if you have students doing community service and helping others they will be setting the standard for others.

This will show people that with the same energy used to do bad, you may do good.

Well, it's not exactly egg drop soup, but eggs were falling from the balcony at Seminole Community College earlier this week. Encased in small six-by-six inch boxes, eggs were dropped from the balcony at the north of the school's library to the grassy quadrangle below by students in the architectural design class. Horace Alexander used a parachute to try to break his egg's fall. Other students used balloons, cushions and springs. Alexander's egg did not survive the fall.

IN BRIEF

Choose Hospice

"As a society we should be concentrating on relieving suffering rather than killing the sufferer," says Anne Thal, president of Florida Hospices, Inc. and chair of the Ethics Subcommittee on Euthanasia and Assisted Suicide for the National Hospice Organization.

The assisted-suicide alternative became more visible when both Michigan and Washington confirmed the right of mentally-competent terminally-ill patients to ask physicians to help them end their lives. Advocates of physician-assisted suicide have said they will challenge other state's laws as well.

"Hospice takes a strong stand against physician-assisted suicide," says Thal. "Studies have shown that there are three reasons why terminally-ill people look to suicide: 1) they fear a painful death, 2) they fear loss of control and 3) they don't want to be a burden to their families. Hospice deals with all of these issues."

Hospice supports the patient and the family so the final part of life is pain free, comfortable and rewarding. Once these concerns are dealt with, the desire for suicide usually disappears."

Family practice weekend

Sanford family physicians Charles Hardwick and Peter Oostwouder recently attended the Florida Academy of Family Physicians' 60th Family Practice Weekend at The Billmore Hotel in Coral Gables, April 22-24, with more than 230 other family physicians.

The Florida Academy of Family Physicians is the state chapter of the American Academy of Family Physicians formed in 1947 to promote the highest standard of continuing comprehensive health care for the American people and to train personal physicians for the family unit. The academy is the largest medical specialty group in the United States with nearly 79,000 members.

Family practice, approved as the 20th medical specialty in 1969, stands at the forefront of medicine today as the country approaches health care reform. With 2.5 million uninsured Floridians, the return of the old-fashioned family doctor and a "health care home" for these residents is needed more than ever. Today's family physician is specialty-trained to treat all family members.

Continuing medical education is a vital requirement of membership in the Florida Academy and this Family Practice Weekend provided 21 different lectures with up-to-date information for the attendees.

Peach earns associate status

LONGWOOD — Kenneth Peach, vice president of support services at South Seminole Hospital, Longwood, was admitted to associate status in the American College of Healthcare Executives on April 20.

Founded in 1933, the college is a Chicago-based international professional society representing more than 27,000 healthcare executives. With comprehensive programs in credentialing, self-assessment, education, career counseling, publications, research and public policy, the American College of Healthcare Executives works toward its goal of enhancing excellence in healthcare management.

Patient partners fight arthritis

May is National Arthritis Month. Arthritis is America's No. 1 crippling condition, the nation's most prevalent chronic health problem. One in every seven Americans, 37 million people, have arthritis. Arthritis costs the American economy an estimated $55 billion annually in medical care and lost wages. Rheumatoid arthritis typically occurs between the ages of 20 and 55, and afflicts three times more women than men. Osteoarthritis affects an estimated 15.8 million Americans, most of whom are over age 45.

The Searle Patient Partners in Arthritis program is a grass-roots effort involving more than 500 arthritis patients across the nation. Patient Partners are dedicated to giving patients greater control in managing their condition and enhancing the quality of health care for all people with arthritis. Patient Partners work with patients and physicians to improve arthritis diagnosis and treatment techniques. Last year, they reached more than 25,000 primary-care physicians and countless patients.

For information on how to contact a Patient Partner in your area, please call Denise Connolly at (212) 886-3117 or David Rosen at (212) 886-3110.

Financial officer promoted

SANFORD — Columbia Park Healthcare System and Central Florida Regional Hospital have announced the promotion of Sheila K. Maynor, CFRH's chief financial officer, to vice president of Finance at Winter Park Memorial Hospital in Winter Park. She will assume her new position at WPMH on June 1.

Maynor joined CFRH in Oct., 1989, and has worked in hospital finance for 14 years. She began her career at HCA Chippenham Medical Center in Richmond, Va., and also worked with HCA in Charlotte, NC, before moving to Florida. She is now employed by Columbia/HCA Healthcare System because of the recent merger of the two companies.

Winter Park Memorial Hospital is a 339-bed facility offering a full range of services, including "The Baby Place," a Cancer Care Center and an extensive community outreach program. The hospital is a part of Columbia Park Healthcare System, which also includes Central Florida Regional Hospital, Lucerne Medical Center in Orlando, and Osceola Regional Hospital in Kissimmee.

Inn lends helping hand to families

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The Days Inn Altamonte will provide complimentary rooms to needy families of chronically and terminally ill children treated at Florida Hospital North as part of the Days Inn Sunshine Helping Hand program.

The program is part of Days Inns of America, Inc. national sponsorship of the Sunshine Foundation which for the past 16 years has granted the wishes of more than 18,000 chronically and terminally ill children.

"We are pleased to be able to provide a service which betters our community. As a member of the hospitality industry, we offer these rooms as one member of the community helping another in need," said Michael Harding, general manager of the Days Inn Altamonte, located at 235 South Wymore Road.

Days Inn Sunshine Helping Hand is patterned after several successful programs of Days Inn Franchisees.

There is no bureaucratic paper work or negotiations to determine eligibility. The hospital makes the determination of need and calls the hotel to reserve an available room, said John Russell, president of Days Inns of America.

"This is not a program to make us look good. This is a program to do good everywhere we can. From our good friends at the Sunshine Foundation we know what family support means to a child who is ill and in a hospital away from home," Russell said.

The Sunshine Foundation was founded by Bill Sample, a former Philadelphia policeman who patrolled St. Christopher's Hospital for Children where many of the patients were critically ill, suffering from cancer, cystic fibrosis, kidney disease and similar afflictions.

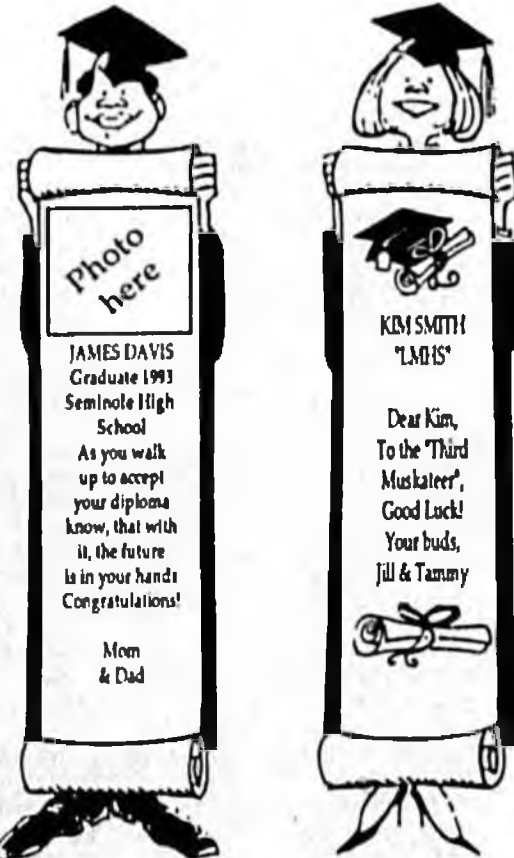

Unable to help their physical conditions, Sample decided to grant the children's special wishes.

Evict

occupies a housing unit. It must also be proven the lease holder knew the drugs were there to begin eviction, Julian explained.

SHA board of commissioners Edward Blacksheare, James Valerino, Bernard Brown and Shirley Allen have essentially said they're not going to tolerate criminal activity in the housing authority property that violates the lease, Julian said.

"To the extent that it can be demonstrated satisfactorily to a county court judge," the attorney continued, "that a person has engaged in criminal activity, that the activity occurred on the housing authority premises and that that activity does have a detrimental effect on the housing authority, certainly we expect appropriate action to be taken by the executive director."

"I will tell you, however, that it's easier to prove a violation of the lease when you have a conviction because then the court has, essentially as a matter of law, determined a violation has occurred," he explained. "In the absence of a conviction, the housing authority, then would have to become a sort of pseudo-prosecuting attorney and basically prosecute a case before a county court judge in an eviction action. Sometimes the evidence necessary to prove the violation of the lease is not available while there are pending criminal proceedings before the criminal court. That's just how the system works."

Although an arrest is public record, details of a police investigation of a case are not available to the public.

"Until that criminal prosecution has been completed, those records and testimony available from the police officers is generally not available to the housing authority to use in a civil prosecution," Julian explained.

Investigating officers could be called to testify in civil evictions, but substantiating evidence would not be available.

"The prosecuting attorney would tell that police officer that the records that would support his testimony were confidential records until the criminal prosecution is completed and that he, essentially would not be permitted by the prosecuting attorney to testify," Julian explained.

"The housing authority board of directors reaffirmed its position it does not condone illegal activity and to the extent that it is by anybody's standards inappropriate for a person to continue residing in the authority, Mrs. Richardson is then directed and authorized to take appropriate action," he said. "A lot of times there are mitigating circumstances. Other times, for example, you have a minor living in the housing authority, at least the first time through, I can tell you, you are going to have a hard time convincing a county judge that you ought to evict grandmother.

"Now once it becomes apparent that grandmother isn't exercising any kind of control and is permitting the activity to continue and is in essence winking, or whatever, the more it happens," Julian said, "the easier it would be to convince a county judge that the lease is being violated and should be terminated."

The cost of an eviction may play a part in the number of actions filed.

"The housing authority is not rolling in dough. Its source of income comes from its rents which are structured by HUD and what little money it gets from HUD anymore," Julian explained. "Even a simple eviction is not inexpensive anymore. The other thing that the housing authority has to look at is kind of a cost/benefit ratio. What is it going to cost us if the tenant comes in with an attorney, which is frequently the case because Central Florida Legal Services provides legal counsel. Is this case really truly serious by ordinary standards to warrant the expense of attempting to get that person out of the housing authority?"

Julian or one of his associates represents the housing authority in evictions.

"I can tell you, the rates we charge the housing authority are less than we charge private individuals. Generally, you have a discounted fee for governmental agencies," he explained. "You have to look at each case. You have to see what's going on. You have to see what the activity is. You have to see what the potential is for getting the activity stopped by alternative means and so forth. Sometimes it takes two or three times," the attorney said, before an eviction might be successful for criminal activity.

Julian said he has not filed eviction proceedings for drugs under the authority's criminal activity addendum to the lease which was added last year. He filed two drug-related evictions during his previous tenure as housing authority attorney.

"The commission is concerned and it has reaffirmed its position," Julian said, "that no conviction is not needed but we'll look at each case individually and there may be times when there's no conviction and the housing authority will consider evicting someone and there may be times where there is a conviction but because of surrounding circumstances, it doesn't seem appropriate."

"Goober" type. These are the great big ones and they're good. In fact, we have stopped there so many times we got to know the folks who run it. They're Leonard and Pauline Shannon.

Leonard is a member of the old time Shannon family so many of us knew back in the 1930s. There was Fred, Watson, Hiram, Dave and Leonard. Dave was a "world class" (in my opinion) fiddler. Hiram played any stringed instrument you put in front of him. The Shannon boys always had at least a five-piece combo on tap all the time and would entertain you at school or anywhere else at the drop of a hat. They played what today would be called "Kentucky Bluegrass Mountain" music.

Hiram and I were in a local National Guard unit that was federalized into the 31st Dixie Division a year and two weeks before Pearl Harbor. "You knew Hiram?" Leonard asked one day. Sure did. When we were at Camp Blanding we lived in the same tent. In fact shared the same bunk. He occupied the upper berth while I used the lower.

Found out (other day) Fred was gone and so was Dave. Watson is still living, so is Hiram and of course, Leonard, too. Couldn't help the other day but ask Pauline if she was from an old time local family. "Sure was," she opined. "My dad was Rev. B.W. Miller. Do you remember him?"

Anybody who lived in these parts in the 1830s, 1940s and 1950s and didn't know who Rev. B.W. Miller was must have been deaf and blind. If he wasn't he was close to being one of those hell, fire and brimstone preachers who made it plain if you didn't fly right in this life you were going to land in hell. He said what he thought was right and he didn't care who you were. And, if you were a politician all the better. Most of all he liked to tell office holders he didn't agree with where to go.

Brethren, we live in a small world, don't we. Oh, yeah, Leonard has a prolific garden and grows a lot of his own produce like string beans, peas, and, boy, he recently grew some of the best mustard greens I ever ate. He reaped 'em at their prime and they were good. So, the next time you're driving the eastside, get some of Meriwether's Silver Queen white corn and stop at Shannon's produce stand. You don't have to be an old timer to enjoy being with some fine folks.

Was reading my mail the other morning. It included a newsletter from the First Baptist Church. In it was an item expressing sympathy to the family of Ed Smith. Surely that couldn't be the Ed Smith I knew as a deacon, an usher, a railroad locomotive engineer and a fellow member of the 124th Infantry of the Florida National Guard who entered fulltime military duty when the 31st Dixie Division was activated in November 1940. But it was, I called his wife, Helen, to be sure. I nearly fell out of my chair when she said he passed away April 8. The only reason I could imagine for missing it was at the time I was preoccupied with the death of my brother, Herbert Stenstrom.

Ed was one of our real old timers. He was 72 and a native of our town. During nearly five years of active duty in the Army he left the 124th and was a part of a contingent of American troops that went to China (it was Nationalist China then) to teach native troops how to use American munitions against the Japanese. When he returned to Sanford he went to work for the Atlantic Coast Line and spent 40 years with the company, retiring in 1985 as a locomotive engineer.

He was a dedicated member of the First Baptist Church where he served many years as a deacon and later deacon emeritus. He married a classmate of mine, Helen Varner, who was the youngest of seven children. Her father was a South Sanford Avenue celery farmer. Ed and Helen were wed 47 years, parenting four children. Only two of them survive. They are Rick who is associated with a law firm in Tallahassee and Jim of Sanford who is a district manager for the Commonwealth Land and Title Company of Orlando. Ed and Helen have five grandchildren of whom they are extremely proud.

When it comes to grandchildren, my wife, Louise, and I know what they mean. Between our two marriages each we have 10 grandsons, 10 granddaughters, five great granddaughters and four great grandsons.

Hearing of Ed's death came as a complete shock. You see, Ed never changed. He always had a most delightful smile that conveyed his love for life and people. Shock may not be the right word. I suppose flabbergasted would be better. You see, within the past few weeks, I saw both Ed and Helen at the funeral of my sister-in-law, Mrs. Douglas Stenstrom, and our dear old timer and friend, Roy Britt.

Was it Will Rogers who said he never met a man he didn't like? Well, I never met anybody who didn't like Ed Smith.

Thought I have from time to time. Whatever happened to the talk some years ago about removing the water tank tower at French Avenue and 13th Street? Hope they don't.

I saw my first television in 1950 when I'd sneak out of my office in downtown Jacksonville, walk over to the once famed Cohen Brothers store and watch the telecasts of the World Series that featured the Philadelphia "Whiz Kids" as they were called.

Who sent me the photo of W.A. Lefler, S.O. Chase, Sr., Joshua C. Chase and T.W. Jones we used as a "Way Back When" photo, related to the re-opening of the Sanford Museum? Would like to return it.

knows he's not going to be re-elected. His report card should have a grade of D. His wife should have been elected. She's make a better president than him."

Bill Chapman stated, "Let me put it to you this way, as a former business manager of a labor union; as far as organized labor, he's done well. As far as NAFTA we're very opposed to NAFTA because it's taken our jobs across the border. Nobody's perfect. There's skeletons in everyone's closets. I'm sure you'd find some in past presidents' closets, somewhere along the line. He's done all right. Bottom line, he has to do what Congress will approve. I'd give him a B on his report card."

Jerry Brewer said, "As far as scandals, that doesn't matter to me. I think he's spending more money than he's saving us. In order for him to save us more money, he has to spend it. His plan seems to be working against us. I don't believe he should have outlawed guns. Strict codes on guns, maybe, but not doing away with them. A 'D' - needs improvement, is the grade I'd give him."

Valeri Lampton said, "I think his personal life should be left alone. His job in the White House should be all that we need to be concerned about. He's done a good job in some issues so he needs to improve others. I'd give him a B."

Her husband, Scott, disagreed by saying, "President Clinton has reneged on a lot of things. I'd give him a D grade."

Craig Brownfield stated, "I don't believe in the scandals. I don't think it makes much of a difference. He's done a pretty good job in office. However, I disagree with the gun control law he passed. He could improve some. I'd give him B grade."

Sara Willow stated, "An F is the only grade for him. One nation under God, not with an ungodly man in office. He's lied unmercifully and deceived the voters."

Her friend, Kate Simons, agreed by saying, "Definitely an F grade is deserved. Lying, cheating and other problems don't belong as a role model for children and a president of the country."

Sam Long said, "The country has never been in so much financial and moral ruin. His character and the way he conducts himself cannot help but reflect in his work. A bad moral personal life only carries over into the business or in his case, the office. An F is the grade for him."

Tara Fields said, "All I can say is report card 'Unsatisfactory. D or an F.'"

With as many D's and F's as the president received one can only assume a repeat of this school year. Shall the voters hope for a better report card next semester?

remained that could flare up.

Kathleen Kennedy, bookkeeper at the complex, credited maintenance worker Terry Bradley with making sure there were no injuries.

"He went to all the apartments and made sure everyone was out," she said.

Bradley did not wish to comment on his heroic actions, but admitted he did go door-to-door making sure everyone was out of the building.

Kennedy said that when the first fire truck arrived on the scene, she did not realize there was a fire in the complex.

After watching firefighters preparing to enter the building, Kennedy said she observed thick smoke billowing from a 24-unit building.

"It just seemed like there was just smoke everywhere, and then all of a sudden, there were 10-foot flames coming out of the roof," she said.

Firefighters checking the apartments for residents rescued two dogs from the third floor of the building.

Although their owners were not around at the time of the blaze, compassionate neighbors volunteered to take care of them until their owners could be located.

All together, eight units were believed to have been damaged in the blaze, and several other apartments are expected to have smoke and water damage.

As of late Saturday afternoon, officials were still investigating the cause of the blaze.

Information on the tenants of the damaged apartments was not made available Saturday to give authorities an opportunity to contact them.

Roberts did not want to speculate on what caused the fire.

"We will investigate this to determine the cause and origin of the fire," Roberts said.

Shaq back at LSU

BATON ROUGE, La. — Shaquille O'Neal will be hitting the books instead of the boards next month, working on some of the 70 credit hours he needs to graduate.

O'Neal, who left LSU in April 1992 for a seven-year, $40 million contract with the Orlando Magic, enrolled in the session from June 8-July 1, but not for either of the two later summer sessions. He registered last week as a junior, with 58 hours of the 128 that he needs as a general studies major.

FSU knocks off Clemson

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Link Jarrett drove in four runs as Florida State stayed alive in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament with a 10-4 victory over Clemson on Saturday.

The Seminoles (47-19) were to play either North Carolina State or Georgia Tech in an elimination game later Saturday. Clemson (54-15), which lost for the first time in the tournament, will play in Sunday's championship game against one of the remaining teams.

Florida State continued its torrid hitting in the tournament. In their last three games, all wins, the Seminoles have 60 hits and 35 runs.

Tabasco Cat wins Preakness

BALTIMORE — Tabasco Cat, a four-legged nightmare for D. Wayne Lukas in December, became the trainer's Preakness dream horse on Saturday at Pimlico.

The colt, who made headlines by running over and almost killing Lukas' son, Jeff, in the Santa Anita stable area, made headlines again on this brilliantly sunny day by outdueling Kentucky Derby winner Go for Gin.

At the top of the stretch, it looked as if Go for Gin might put himself into position to win the Triple Crown. But it was not to be as Tabasco Cat, ridden by Pat Day, loomed up on his outside and then won the duel to the wire in 1:56 2/5 for 1 3/16 miles on a fast track.

Stretch-running Concern, a Maryland-bred stable at Pimlico, finished third while Kandaly, another stretch runner, finished fourth.

Pats fall in semifinals

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

SARASOTA — For the second straight week, an obviously superior Seminole County high school team squandered golden scoring chances early in the game and was eliminated from state championship contention.

On Friday night, the victims were the Lake Brantley Patriots, who failed to plate a run in the first two innings with runners in scoring position and less than two outs and fell to Coconut Creek, 6-5, in the Class 5A semifinals of the FHSAA State Baseball Championships at Ed Smith Stadium.

A week ago Thursday, wasted offensive opportunities cost the Lyman Greyhounds in the Class 5A fastpitch softball state semifinals.

The Patriots had Cougar ace Jason Gray (12-1) on the ropes in the first inning, but two running miscues cost Lake Brantley.

Jeff Butler and Joey Harmer both walked to open the game. Jeff Shaw put down a sacrifice bunt and reached safely when Gray's throw sailed into the baseline and was knocked out of the first baseman's glove by Shaw.

Butler could not see the ball as it rolled toward right field and did not attempt to score. But Harmer rounded second too far and was caught in a run down. During the play, Butler was caught at the plate while Harmer took third and Shaw went to second.

No runs scored, however, as J.B. Carimill's soft liner was caught by the Coconut Creek shortstop and Tourneys' impact on bass studied

First year results are in on a three-year Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission study to determine how fishing tournaments affect largemouth bass populations in Florida.

Due to the fact that the number of bass tournaments has proliferated throughout the state over the past two decades, fisheries managers have become concerned about effects these events may have on Florida's bass fisheries.

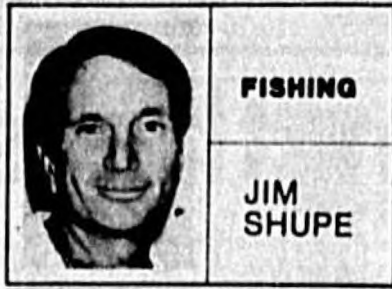

"We spent most the first year developing procedures to permit tournaments and identify such concerns as delayed mortality and displacement of bass," said Ray Watson, supervisor of the agency's Tournament Monitoring Project. "By monitoring events, we now are able to collect catch-and-release data that will help us research tournament-related issues."

First-year findings show that most of the monitored tournaments were in Florida's best known bass-fishing waters. Nearly 60 percent of these tournaments were conducted on the St. Johns River (31); Kissimmee Chain of Lakes (31); and Lake Okechobee (27).

Collectively, these three areas accounted for 85,000 of the 112,750 hours fished in tournaments between September 1992 through June 1993.

Among other data gathered during the project's first year researchers concluded that:

- More than 12,000 anglers

FISHING

fished 112,750 hours and caught 14,758 bass weighing 30,800 pounds.

- A average tournament had 70 anglers fishing for 8.7 hours;

- Total bass weighed in ranged from three to 952. The median number caught per tournament was 55;

- On average, tournament anglers weighed in one bass for every 6.6 hours of fishing;

- Only one 10-pound bass was reported in over 100,000 hours of fishing;

- The average "big bass" weighed 5.4 pounds and only three big bass weighed over nine pounds.

- Reported live release at weigh-in averaged 98 percent.

Watson said anglers were most successful on Lake Okechobee, weighing in one bass for every five hours of fishing. "The Big O" was followed by the Kissimmee Chain where it took over six hours to bag one bass.

SHUPE'S SCOOP
Bass are much more difficult to keep alive in the summer than in the cooler months because oxygen is retained in cooler water more efficiently. Bass must be kept in well-aerated live wells during the hot months.

FISHING FORECAST

Bass fishing continues to taper off with warmer weather. The river continues to be good from Ponce Lake south. Topwater lures and small Rapalas are working well.

The end of snook season is rapidly approaching, and you can rest assured that Sebastian Inlet will be packed right up until June 1. Redfish, jack crevalle, ladyfish and a few blues are also running at this popular spot. The entire outgoing tide and the first portion of the incoming tide seems to provide the best action.

Action is hot out of Port Canaveral. Dolphin are thick offshore, from 80 feet of water on out. They are hitting a wide variety of lures, but take along some tiny offerings for the smaller "schoolie" fish. Good numbers of wahoo and king mackerel are also being caught.

Trout and redfish are on the flats of the Banana and Indian rivers, and some fun can be had with topwater lure.

Ponce Inlet has plenty of sheepshead and bluefish to keep everyone busy. Redfish, drum, ladyfish, flounder, and jack crevalle are also mixed in.

Mosquito Lagoon is excellent for trout, but many will be below the 14-inch limit. Use larger lures to discourage the smaller fish.

Patriots

Harmer was doubled off third.

Another chance went for naught in the second inning as Moises Navarro singled and Brian Krot doubled to start the frame. But a strike out another soft liner to short and a second strike out left the Patriots runless.

Meanwhile, Patriots starting pitcher Chris Tibbetts (9-2) was outstanding on the mound, retiring the first eight men he faced, five on ground balls to shortstop Pete Gaidis. The first runner to reach base for the Cougars was on a dropped third strike with two out in the third inning.

Coconut Creek finally broke through in the fourth inning. Kurt Martucci singled and Jeremy Stone hit a ball down the third base line that bounced over Navarro's head and landed right on the foul line behind third base for a double.

Joe Gimmule walked to load the bases and Gray singled in the first two runs of the game. Todd Cville and Frank Cannizzaro followed with run-scoring singles. After a foul out, Ryan Rushin lifted a sacrifice fly to right and Steve Hill singled in a run to give the Cougars a 6-0 lead.

The Patriots did not quit, however, and scored two runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings to cut the lead to 6-4 entering the seventh inning.

Harmer led off the seventh with a single. An out later, Cartmill hit his third straight single. After the second out, Krot's third hit scored Harmer to close the gap to 6-5, but that was as close as Lake Brantley would get.

Coconut Creek (26-6), which has won 16 straight games, was to have played the top-ranked team in the nation, the host Sarasota Sailors, Saturday night for the state title. Sarasota advanced with a 5-0 victory over Miami-Bradwood Friday night.

Lake Brantley, which entered the game with an eight-game winning streak, ends the season with a 28-9 record.

Providing the offense for the Patriots were Krot (3-for-4, double, run, RBI), Cartmill (3-for-4, two RBI), Harmer (2-for-3, run), Brad Van Der Weide (single, run), Navarro (single) and Butler and Gaidis (one run each).

Sessions are to be held for one Friday each month, from September of this year through May, 1995.
This will be the second year of the program, held through the auspices of Seminole Community College, and several dozen major corporate sponsors.
The classes are designed to stimulate community involvement with leaders to guide Seminole County business into the next century.
This past year's class examined such topics as government economic development infrastructure and environment, transportation, health care and human services, education, law & justice, arts & culture, and Leadership Vision 2000.
Application forms are now available. They must be signed by the candidate, financial sponsor and candidate's employer. The deadline for submitting application forms is 4 p.m., June 24. The class will be as demographically representative of the entire county as possible.

Selected applicants will be notified by July 1, at which time a $100 deposit and a black & white photo will be required.
According to the criteria set forth by Leadership Seminole, applicants must have displayed leadership and a sincere commitment, motivation and interest to serve the greater Seminole Community.
Employers must be willing to contribute one full day (a Friday) off of work for the applicant during the 9 months of sessions.

Downtown businesses get help with awnings

By NICK PPRIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — An estimated 90 businesses fall into what is known as the downtown Sanford historic district. Each owner or manager is eligible to apply for a matching grant to install a new canopy or awning over the front of their business.
The grants are being made available by Sanford Main Street (SMS) Design Committee, comprised of business owners, residents, merchants and design professionals.
According to SMS officials, after analyzing Sanford' streetscape, it was determined that awnings and canopies would be this year's focus of improvements.
The SMS presently has $5,000 in grants available for this year's program. The grants are limited to a maximum of $750, or half the project cost, whichever is less.
Application forms and information may be obtained from SMS Executive Director Faye Fulton, 322-5600, or Design Chairperson, Laura Straehla, 323-5096.
"We want to stress that these grants are reimbursable," Fulton observed. "The merchant will be required to pay first, then obtain the grant, and previous SMS approval of a request will be required."
In addition to the grants, SMS is also offering the services of Philip Wisley, a State Preservation Architect, who will be available, free of charge, to merchants and property owners who wish his assistance.
His services may include a personal site visit, discussion regarding possible facade improvement projects, and if needed, sketches/drawings of suggested solutions.
The requests for canopies or awnings must also comply with City of Sanford codes and have been approved by the Historic Preservation Board prior to receiving the grant.
A written cost estimate for the project must be provided with the application.
Depending on the time required to have the work completed, grants will be available through Sept. 30 of this year.
See a special editorial on this subject on page 4A.

New B&B for historic district

By NICK PPRIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A new Bed and Breakfast business is being planned in the city of Sanford. James and Laura Straehla have been restoring their second historic home in the area, with the intention of operating a three-suite B&B.
The couple appeared before the Sanford City Commission work session earlier this month, requesting city approval to move the proposal ahead to the Planning & Zoning board, and subsequently the city for an occupational license.
Straehla, who has lived in the historic residential district for the past six years, has been extremely active in a number of historic restoration and development projects in the city's historic district, a member of the Sanford Historic Trust.
In a letter to the city commission, the Straehlas wrote, "We are committed to the preservation, restoration and economic growth of Sanford, and feel that a business of this nature will enhance our historic community."
During the work session discussion, Laura Straehla said she had been in contact with Walt Padgett, owner of Higgins House at 420 S. Oak Avenue. The city's first Bed and Breakfast operation, and had obtained a great deal of valuable information regarding setting up such a business.
"If you and a man who would be a competitor in this business got together and discussed this," said Mayor Bettye Smith, "I think that's commendable and shows good business spirit."
The commissioners gave a consensus show of approval to continue pursuing the establishment through other city boards.
At the present time, there is no indication as to when it may be placed on the agenda for the P&Z meeting.
The Straehlas have indicated they are in the process of making an application to the state for a Hotel/Restaurant license for the establishment.

The home at 813 S. Magnolia Avenue in Sanford, established at 420 S. Oak Avenue, may become the city's next Bed and Breakfast establishment.

State Farm rates to climb

By NICK PPRIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

State Farm Mutual has announced it will raise its overall auto insurance price level in Florida by an average of 8.7 percent. The increase becomes effective on June 15.
At the same time, State Farm says it will start giving larger discounts to many of its accident-free customers in Florida.
The information has been released by the State Farm Florida Regional Office in Winter Haven. It says most of the price increase will come in the bodily injury liability, personal injury protection, medical payments and uninsured and underinsured motor vehicle coverages, which pay for injury to people.
The statements says rates for automobile comprehensive coverage, which pays for losses from theft, storm damage, fire, vandalism and glass breakage, "...are not going up overall." The use of the word "overall" however, was not specifically explained in the announcement.
It did report that rates for automobile collision coverage will be reduced.
Under the new accident-free discount plan, policies that have been in force at least three years without a chargeable accident, will be eligible for a ten percent

Attorney Charles E. Lewis addresses AARP.

Lawyer explains living trust to AARP members

The Lake Mary chapter of AARP held its monthly meeting Tuesday, May 17. This month's speaker was Charles E. Lewis, MBA, JD, attorney at law. The subject was "living trusts." A living trust is a funded trust which can be amended or revoked by the person creating the trust. A living trust can be funded with bank accounts, stocks, bonds, a home or other assets.
One of the purposes of a living trust is to avoid probate. When a Florida resident dies owning property, a legal proceeding is begun to determine the last valid will, the extent of the decedent's assets, the extent of debts, and the method of distribution to heirs. This is a costly and time-consuming process.
A living trust does not avoid all taxes that may be due, but it avoids the cost of probate and it makes your estate confidential. With just a will you have not only the cost of probate, but also upon your death, the will becomes a public document. Anyone can go to the courthouse and request a copy of it. With a will you heirs receive their inheritance after the will goes through probate. With a living trust, you can specify when your heirs receive their inheritance. In other words, if Junior is not quite as mature as he should be, you can set a certain age for him to inherit, regardless of when you die. This doesn't mean you don't need a will. With a living trust, a will can simply assign all assets (without retaining them) to the trust.
An important thing to keep in mind is a relatively new law regarding wills. A simple will, where your signature is witnessed by two people, requires that those two people be brought into court upon your death. This could be a problem if one or the other moves or dies before you die. This will should be prepared with an affidavit of witness on hand at the signing of the will, then signs an affidavit of witness on hand at the signing of the will. The witnesses don't have to go to court when the will is probated.
Planning is essential. If you don't have a living trust or a will, you should have one drawn up by an attorney. If you can't afford an attorney, you can obtain low cost assistance by calling the local bar lawyer referral service. There is also a Legal Hotline for Older Floridians sponsored by the AARP. They will put you in touch with a lawyer who will help you at a reduced fee. That number is 1-800-252-5997.

planes," as he called it, dates back a few years. "A guy that I was a partner with in my carpet cleaning business got me interested," he said. "I like to build them and watch them fly. I haven't built one yet that didn't fly." A heart attack a couple of years ago was what Stair credited to realizing that life needed slowing down and the fact that he needed more relaxation. That's when he took a trip to Fun Hobby in Longwood to check out the planes his partner had showed him. "I found if I bought supplies from there they would teach you how to fly them," he said. "Garth, there at the store, has been a great source of information. He's an instructor too."

Stair discussed the importance of belonging to the AMA, Academy of Model Aeronautics. "It makes you legal to fly your plane in a field. They give you $100,000 worth of insurance in case of an accident. The club I'm in flies at a particular field." He said he tried to get together with others in the Sanford Sun Flyers

"We go to the field off of 427 and fly the planes for a while," he said. "Young and old are there. We compete about once a year among the 35 or so members. If the wind really comes up you have to be a really good flyer to handle the plane in the wind. Certain types of planes don't fly well in the wind." He spoke of the varieties of planes available. "There are trainer planes, which are the least expensive," he said. "They have a high wing, which has a lot of dihedral, and a low wing. Then there are jet type. They have a low wing and no dihedral."

Cost factors are the issues when a lot of people plan to invest in the hobby Stair said. "A new plane can cost from $500 to $2,000. That is if you buy the equipment and build it yourself. It takes about 100 hours to build one. A used plane can cost around $350. That's a trainer plane and a used radio." Kits are for sale at hobby stores and have manuals with direc-

the time of her life at her 90th birthday celebration on Saturday, May 14. "I had a wonderful time," Frieda said. "It was wonderful!"

The birthday party, given by a granddaughter, Sheila Ray Schultz of Miami, at Frieda's home was attended by 25 family members. Sheila said the big event included pony rides, games, swimming, presents, cake, ice cream, hugs, kisses and much love.

Frieda Elisabeth Meir was born May 19, 1904 in Ottawa, Quebec Canada to Emma Keller and August "Papa" Gustave Meir. Frieda's mother died of typhoid fever when she was a small child and her father raised the family of three girls on the second floor of a two-story building while he ran his butcher shop on the first floor.

She married Edward Chester Daniels Sr. when she was 17 and they had three children by the time Frieda was 21.

Jane Lea Naramore, Frieda's first grandchild, called Frieda "Baby," a name that has stuck through the years.

Frieda watched as her big brother went off to fight for his country in World War I and then again, in World War II. Also, she saw all of her children enter the military during WW II. Her daughter, Elizabeth Freda Daniels Lea Schultz, now of Bradenton, graduated from nurses training and was an Army nurse. Her son Edward, of Cape Coral, joined the infantry, and her son, Warren, of Miami, signed up with the Navy.

Frieda's son-in-law, Harold E. Schultz, participated in World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam conflict. Also, her grandson, Archie Dean Lea Jr., flew missions during Desert Storm.

Still active in her church circle at the First United Methodist Church of Sanford, Frieda said her children were brought up in this church. She is also still a member of the Daughters of Wesley Sunday School Class.

Frieda has seen a world of changes during her 90 years. She moved to Sanford from St. Augustine 54 years ago and has been here since. All of her children attended Sanford schools. She now has 10 grandchildren, 19 great grandchildren and two great, great grandchildren, one who was born very recently to her grandson and wife in Dallas. Frieda beamed, "Not one smokes nor drinks."

A lot of changes have taken place in the world since Frieda's birth. She saw the first Model "T" Ford marketed and remembers when women got the right to vote. She also saw men walking on the moon and big band music move over for today's rap and rock and roll.

She talks about the growth in Sanford. "I like it," she said. "I don't think we ought to stand still."

Although her birthday was celebrated on May 14, there were other festivities on the actual birthday when several of her family members were still in Sanford.

"It's wonderful," Frieda said. An upbeat woman of the 90s and in her 90s, Frieda has a charming sense of humor. Yes, she is aware that her zodiac sign is Taurus the Bull, and she laughingly admitted that she could be "bull-headed" at times.

But most of the time, she is a real charmer.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 22, 1994

Two unusual commercial proposals might be presented to you in the year ahead by two business men you barely know. They could be legitimate, but to be sure, check both of them out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a possibility you might encounter someone at a convivial gathering today who arouses your animosity. Be careful not to say anything you might later regret. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're in an authority position today, don't set down rules that are too inflexible. First, they're not apt to be obeyed and second, they'll just get everyone up tight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be careful today about expressing your areas of expertise. What you say is likely to be challenged and if you don't know what you're talking about, it could make you look bad.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Buy only what you can afford today. It could prove wise in the long run to do without rather than to use funds that are earmarked for something more essential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually you're a pretty good negotiator, because innately what you desire is fair treatment for all concerned. Today, however, you might be more of a taker than a giver.

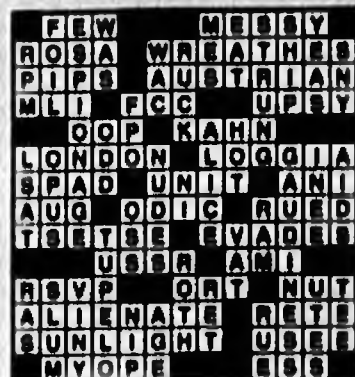

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Developments might necessitate assuming responsibilities today which may not be of your own choosing. Don't make things more difficult by rebelling or refusing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of expressing your independence and being your own person today, there's a possibility you might yield to peer pressure and participate in something you'd rather not.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Assess situations logically and realistically today, so that you do not become involved in a competitive development where the odds tend to favor the other guy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An idea about which you feel strongly might not be as enthusiastically received by someone as you hoped it would. Don't get mad at this person just because he/she disagrees.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you get involved in a joint endeavor today have a clear cut understanding going in as to what each participant would pay if it fails or goes awry.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Strive to be logical and unraveled at all times today, because if you make judgments out of spite or anger, they could cause additional complications.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your ability to withstand outside pressures has its limitations today. Don't fall behind where your duties and responsibilities are concerned.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 23, 1994

A relationship which has already proved quite beneficial might become of even greater significance in the year ahead. Mutual advantages will be generated through this alliance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Conditions are favorable today for fulfilling ambitious expectations. Once you commit yourself to a course of action, be persistent and follow through to its conclusion.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your perceptions are likely to be a bit better than those of your peers today, so if challenged, make your adversaries prove their points. Don't vote against yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A critical matter that has concerned you lately appears to be drawing to a successful conclusion. With this victory some type of profit commensurate to your efforts is indicated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Constructive evaluations might be garnered today from something you may learn the hard way. Keep these facts fresh in your memory all week, because they'll have many applications.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you've been doing good work recently, there is a possibility you might be awarded some type of bonus at this time. What you've accomplished has not gone unnoticed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might pull off something significant that may appear to others as if chance was the principle ingredient in actuality, however, all of your moves will be thoughtfully orchestrated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The road to success will be open today for the dedicated and the bold. If there is something constructive you can do, implement it now instead of just thinking about it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In order to get that which is owed you today, you might have to be a bit firmer than usual in your demands. Let persons with whom you've involved know you mean business when you speak.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Continue to be patient and persistent, because something for which you are now working very hard is not too far from becoming a reality.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have a special gift today for expressing your ideas with conviction in ways that will favorably impress others. This could encourage them to march in step with your thinking.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It might prove wise today to back off slightly in a situation where others share a common interest with you in order to permit them to assert themselves.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Cohorts will have a strong effect upon your industriousness and productivity today. Strive to associate with doers, rather than with those who are devoid of ambition.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Maybe you are aware that a collection of ravens is called an unkindness. What should a group of bridge players be called?

When declaring a bridge hand, you should be careful to take just as many winners as you need for the contract. Don't become greedy, especially if it might cost your contract.

Today's deal is a good example. South reached four spades. West led the diamond jack. Declarer won with dummies queen and played a trump to his ace, getting the news about the 5-0 split. How should he have continued?

Here North would have done better to raise to three no-trump, but it is normal to use Stayman when one holds a doubleton.

South decided that he had to find West with 5-3-3-2 distribution. Then he could win the first 10 tricks. West would be forced to ruff his partners third club winner at trick 13. However, when South tried to cash his third heart winner, West ruffed. Reading the position correctly, West switched to the king and another club, defeating the contract.

After finding out about the trump position, declarer should cash only two of dummies heart winners. Then he plays a diamond to the king and leads the diamond ace.

If West ruffs, dummy overruffs and trumps are drawn. The last heart winner in the dummy is South's 10th trick. But when West follows to the third diamond, dummies heart is discarded. Then a heart ruff in the dummy is South's contract-fulfilling trick.

How about an aggression of bridge players? Or a pack? Or an auction? Or a shuffle? Can you think of something better? Copyright 1994, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Sheriff takes the hot seat at benefit roast

By MARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

MAITLAND — The Seminole County Roasters put Sheriff Don Eslinger on the roasting table Saturday evening, May 14, at the Sheraton Orlando North Hotel in Maitland.

Three hundred well-wishers, family and friends enjoyed the event. Master of Ceremonies for the occasion was Art Grindle. The evening's roast began with the invocation delivered by the Rev. Bobby J. Payer and the Pledge of Allegiance by Seminole County Commissioner Dick Van Der Weide. The National Anthem was rendered by Cynthia C. Brown.

The roast is held yearly. It began with the late Seminole County Commissioner Robert (Bob) Sturm who founded the Seminole County Roasters. This informally structured group came together at various times to honor an outstanding community leader by conducting a good-natured roast. Bob Sturm recognized the Good Samaritan Home in Sanford and those who run it as an ideal beneficiary of this effort. One of the many legacies Sturm left is to continue the commitment to open our hearts and pocketbooks in reaching out to others.

The committee chairman, Fred Streetman, presented the history of the Good Samaritan home and played a video of the residents, workers and staff. A magic moment was the auction of a basketball signed by the Orlando Magic players to the highest bidder. A musical satire was presented by Diane Merket with Brian Garland accompanying on piano.

The Roasters for the evening who kept Eslinger on the $100 per plate, hot table were: the Hon. John Mica, U.S. congressman; mayor of Sanford, the Hon. Betty Smith; Dr. Frank Clontz, general and vascular surgeon; Hon. Norm Woffinger, state attorney; and Dennis Dolgner, administrator of the Sanford Port Authority.

Eslinger is the ninth sheriff in Seminole County's history. He was appointed by the governor of Florida in 1991 following the retirement of Sheriff John Polk. In November 1992, the voters of Seminole County elected him to a four-year term.

His mother, and wife, Mary, and other family members enjoyed the evening with the honoree. The man of the hour accepted his roasting with great humility. He thanked all the guests and Seminole County Roasters for selecting and giving him this honor for 1994.

Thelma Wilson Mike, Good Samaritan Home resident director, gave words of appreciation on behalf of the residents and staff of the home. She invited the community and well-wishers to come out and visit with the residents and tour the home. The Good Samaritan Home, located at 1704 West 9th St., Sanford, is licensed and regulated by the state of Florida and is a qualified 501(c)3 corporation. Donations are tax deductible.

"The home depends upon countless individuals, churches, organizations and businesses to provide funds, and volunteer efforts to continue to fulfill its mission," said the home's business administrator, Ruby Nathan Blake. She may be contacted at 322-3321.

As the evening ended, the audience held hands as Cynthia Brown sang, "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands."

Sheriff Don Eslinger

Flights of fancy

About 250 high school students toured the aviation facilities at the Central Florida Regional Airport in Sanford Saturday. Above: Mike Lavery, Ocala, gets the feel of an Embry Riddle

Onassis was also the first lady of fashion

By MARLENE AIG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Pillbox hats, bouffant hair, black-framed sunglasses and sleeveless suits.

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis made them famous. "She did not want to appear to be madly obsessed by fashion," Oleg Cassini, the first lady's official fashion designer during the Kennedy administration, said Friday. "She did not want to appear to be the darling of the fashion world."

Nevertheless, the fashion world made her its darling. And she, in turn, made fashion fashionable, becoming the first First Lady to select an official couturier.

The pillbox hat, designed by Halston, made its debut on Inauguration Day in 1961. When it almost blew away in a gust of wind, she shoved it back on, denting it.

The pillbox hat then had a dent designed into it. That hat became part of the nation's memory of President John F. Kennedy's assassination, as the first lady leaned over the dying president in a blood-spattered pink Chanel suit with navy piping.

For a Life magazine cover, Mrs. Onassis wore a leopard hat and coat that was copied so much, Halston said she "put that animal on the endangered species list."

A-line designs, simple and sophisticated, became the Jackie Look.

The Lane Bryant chain marketed "First Lady Fashions," featuring strapless evening dresses,ucci-print pants, jodhpurs and sunglasses. Store mannequins everywhere sported bouffant hairdos.

She even turned fashion into a tool of diplomacy.

She flattered the French by wearing Givenchy designs during a presidential trip to Versailles, and wore mantillas and bolero hats on a trip to Spain.

After she left the White House, Mrs. Onassis retained her smart style with a toned-down air, changing the course of daily fashion.

"She made the trench coat, pants and sunglasses her daily look," said Halston, who died in 1990. "It told everyone there's no need to dress up for day. That's exactly what happened."
