

Kennedy Faces Final Primary Tests In Maryland, Oregon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) faces his final primary tests in Maryland and Oregon this week before the struggle for the Democratic presidential nomination moves into the smoke-filled rooms.

Kennedy is heavily favored to defeat Sen. Wayne L. Morse (D-Ore.) in the Maryland voting Tuesday but is conceding the Oregon primary Friday in advance to Morse as a favorite son candidate.

However, Kennedy flew to Oregon over the weekend to campaign in an obvious bid to win. Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) also will be on the Oregon ballot.

Humphrey withdrew as a presidential candidate after losing to Kennedy in the West Virginia primary last week. His name stays on the Oregon ballot, however, and he is not expected to advise his Oregon supporters to support any other candidate.

Symington issued a statement Sunday denying that the Oregon vote would test his strength against Kennedy. He said he had not campaigned there while Kennedy had, Symington said Oregon voters should support Morse as a favorite son.

Maryland's 24-vote national convention delegation is pledged to vote for the winner of its primary on the first ballot and as long as the "conscientious judgment" of the delegates indicates he can win the nomination.

Besides Kennedy and Morse, Maryland Democrats can vote for an uncommitted delegation and for a political unknown who provides only token opposition.

Oregon's 17-vote convention delegation also will be pledged to the winner of the contest there. Johnson and Symington were entered in the primary without their consent and neither has campaigned in Oregon.

'New' Canning Process Underway

ORLANDO — An experimental concept in canning of frozen fruit concentrate whereby aluminum cans are assembled and packed in one continuous operation was announced today by Minute Maid Corporation and Reynolds Metals Company.

The first on-premises production run of cans in the history of the concentrate industry is now underway at Minute Maid's big plant in nearby Auburndale. About 8,000 aluminum cans supplied by Reynolds are being assembled and packed with frozen orange concentrate in a single production line.

The announcement was made by John M. Fox, president of Minute Maid, and David P. Reynolds, executive vice president in charge of sales for the aluminum firm. The two officials emphasized that the operation is experimental.

Reynolds predicted that Florida's entire output of orange, grapefruit and blend frozen concentrates would be canned in aluminum within two years.

Mr. Fox said Minute Maid placed the order with Reynolds after test-packing frozen orange concentrate in aluminum cans during the past few years.

"The run is proving successful from every viewpoint," Mr. Fox said. "If this test program produces the results we expect, Minute Maid will increase its use of aluminum cans in future years."

Rockefeller Asked To Stay In Race

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—Supporters of Nelson A. Rockefeller put the New York governor back into the Republican presidential race today and asked him "not to rule himself out."

GOP State Chairman L. Judson Morhouse said a Republican victory in November depends on a candidate "capable of the appeal that thrills across and beyond party lines. He said Rockefeller attracts support of independents and Democrats as well as Republicans.

"The fact remains that he—along with the vice president Richard M. Nixon—is one of the truly forceful and distinguished leaders on the national scene," Morhouse said.

"The Republican Party as a whole, therefore, must look to one or the other of these men as its best hope in 1960. It must designate its best and wisest choice in the July convention."

The statement from Morhouse was prompted by Rockefeller's announcement Saturday that widespread pressure on him to accept the vice presidential nomination against his wishes had compelled him to decide against attending the convention "in any capacity."

Morhouse is one of the governor's top political advisers and probably will head the big New York Republican delegation at the Chicago convention. He said he was urging New York delegates to remain uncommitted until the convention convenes.

LONDON (UPI)—A member of Parliament claimed today Russia's space ship was violating British air space. He asked what action the British government is taking to shoot it down.

Conservative Sir Richard Glyn introduced a question in Parliament for an answer May 25. It asked the defense minister how many occasions in the last three weeks a "foreign aerial machine" has violated British air space.

Glyn asked what action the minister has taken to "shoot down or otherwise interfere with" any such machine.

Midwest, Plains Belted By New Storm Wave

By United Press International
A storm system belted the Midwest and plains states with tornadoes, high winds, hail and torrential rains Monday night.

The storm caused widespread damage but no serious injuries. Winds of 80 miles an hour lashed Keokuk, Iowa. Tornadoes destroyed farm buildings in Illinois, Kansas and Missouri. Flash flood warnings were issued for southwest Wisconsin.

The Keokuk storm uprooted trees, knocked down a radio tower, capsized 75 private boats moored on the Mississippi River, and tore the roof off an industrial plant.

About 20,000 homes in North St. Louis lost electric power for a short time when a thunderstorm swept across the city. Hailstones as big as golf balls fell in St. Louis County.

Strong winds and heavy rain also knocked out electric power temporarily in Edwardsville, Ill. Several power lines were downed, and one fell on a tractor trailer truck, starting a small fire.

A tornado destroyed farm buildings near Peoria, Ill., and Kirksville, Mo.

Other damage to farm buildings was reported near Chillicothe, Wheeling and Chula, Mo.

Khrushchev Boycotts Summit Talk, Threatens Berlin Move

PARIS (UPI)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev boycotted an emergency session of the collapsing summit conference today and Communist sources made it known he is preparing drastic new moves against West Berlin.

Eastern sources revealed Khrushchev is ready to carry out this week his threat to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany, ending four-power rights in the approaches to West Berlin.

Khrushchev told a sidewalk news conference today he would fly to East Berlin Wednesday unless President Eisenhower made a public apology for US spy plane "aggression" against the Soviet Union. Eisenhower refused and Khrushchev prepared an even bigger Berlin crisis even as the summit talks were dying.

President Charles DeGaulle invited the heads of state to the Elysee Palace in a desperate effort to save the conference. But Khrushchev, who had been on a picnic, drove instead to the Soviet embassy and the three Western leaders met with an empty chair facing them.

The three Western heads of state met for two hours, and later it was announced that they would hold another session tonight.

Within minutes Communist diplomats leaked word that Khrushchev would go to East Berlin to sign a separate peace treaty—a move that could plunge the world into its gravest crisis since World War II.

Khrushchev has made it clear that such a treaty would end all Western rights in West Berlin. He warned in a series of violently anti-American speeches last week that any attempt to save Berlin with force would be met by force.

Communist diplomats said this afternoon Khrushchev considered the period of negotiations with the allies on Germany terminated for the time being and that Russia would proceed unilaterally on Berlin.

The Communists said a draft peace treaty already had been worked out and that Khrushchev brought it to Paris, ready to sign. They said Khrushchev now felt himself freed from last year's Berlin truce accord with Eisenhower and other Western leaders.

While skipping the summit session Khrushchev issued a formal statement at the embassy announcing an impossible demand: he was ready to return to the summit if the United States publicly condemned its "aggression," punished all those responsible and assured Russia intelligence flights will not be repeated. Eisenhower already had stopped them.

It was clear the United States could go no further than to end the flights. To go further would be public humiliation before the eyes of the world and an admission that the Soviets were the "peace" leaders and the West the "aggressors."

The Communist propaganda machine did not even wait for a reply. Diplomats began spreading the word that Khrushchev was ready to sign the treaty that would divide Germany forever.

Khrushchev brought the conference to the brink of failure Monday when he insulted Eisenhower and the United States with charges of "treachery" and issued an ultimatum—an apology or he would go home.

He brought a step closer today when he repeated the ultimatum in a sidewalk interview before driving 80 miles into the country on a sight-seeing expedition while the world waited to see if it could hope for peace.

Already the free world was rallying to the side of Eisenhower and blaming the blowup of the summit conference squarely on Khrushchev. The Communist world replied with the worst outburst of anti-American propaganda in many years.

Many persons blamed the stubborn Khrushchev stand on serious difficulties within the Soviet Union itself. Paris newspapers speculated that Khrushchev no longer held the power he once held—that the disgraced Stalinists were re-emerging as the true leaders of Russia.

From Paris to Tokyo, newspapers berated the Soviet leader for being "crude . . . bellicose . . . rude."

The Communist press blamed the U. S. intelligence plane incident for the summit blowup. Communist China's reaction indicated that if Khrushchev had laid his plans in advance, he had not mentioned them to Peking. Nearly a day after the Khrushchev statement rocked the conference, the Communist Chinese press and radio were silent on the subject.

"Don't be so bloody rude," the London Daily Mirror advised Khrushchev in fat headlines. "Who do you think you are? Stalin?"

"The impression grows that all of this was prepared with forethought by Soviet diplomacy," West Germany's Frankfurter Allgemeine wrote.

The news hit West Berlin hard. Berliners had hoped the summit would bring them some relief from the threat of a Soviet takeover.

"It would be most deplorable and outrageous if Soviet maneuvering succeeded in preventing a breakout of the conference before it has started," Mayor Willy Brandt's government said.

less President Eisenhower made a public apology for US spy plane "aggression" against the Soviet Union. Eisenhower refused and Khrushchev prepared an even bigger Berlin crisis even as the summit talks were dying.

DeBary Firemen Get $500 Check From Auxiliary

The DeBary Volunteer Firemen's Assn. held its final meeting until the fall at the Fire House and the 75 members present witnessed the presentation of a check for $500 to the association.

The check, presented by Mrs. Everett Phillips, outgoing president of the Firemen's Auxiliary, was earmarked $300 for the building fund and $200 for the operating fund.

The building committee submitted an estimate for the construction of the proposed 120 by 50 foot recreation building. The estimated cost, not including the stage and kitchen equipment, was $25,000. More than 20 percent of this figure already has been received.

Water Tax District Hearing June 14

The County Commission today set the wheels in motion for a special election to establish a tax district in Loch Arbor for flood control purposes.

The board received certification from the registrar's office that 132 registered freeholders out of 240 signed a petition asking that a tax district be set up.

The board today set a public hearing on the district for June 14.

Following the public hearing an election would be held within 60 days.

If the majority of the property owners favor the district, a plan to eliminate flooding would be put into effect by the fall.

The plan would cost approximately $45,000 and would include the construction of a series of pipes from Lake DeForest, through the Country Club section into the Smith Canal.

In other business during the meeting, the board heard Tax Collector John Galloway explain the need for painting his office.

"I brought this before the board last year and nothing was done about it then," Galloway said.

The board appointed J. H. Van Hoy, to check the matter and find out the estimated cost of painting the office.

The commission also postponed its May 24 meeting because of the second primary election.

Hancock's Voting Record Criticized

By United Press International
Doyle Conner continued to bang away at W. R. Hancock's voting record in Monday's campaigning for commissioner of agriculture.

Hancock responded by attacking Conner and his record.

Conner said at St. Petersburg that Hancock showed an "appalling" lack of concern for children when he failed to vote on a recent $6 million Lake County school bond issue.

Hancock, whose home is at Groveland, has produced affidavits saying he did vote on the issue. But Conner replied, "regardless of how many letters from friends my opponent waves around, the official record of Lake County shows he did not vote."

Hancock said Conner and Johns, who are both from Starke, "both voted twice to close the public school system. Both voted every chance they got with the small loan lobby in raising the legal amount the loan people could lend."

Hancock said at Orlando, "If Conner is elected commissioner of agriculture, Johns will have won a seat on the Cabinet because Johns is his political coach and chief adviser."

Conner promised firm support for education if he receives the Democratic nomination next week.

Johnson Seeks To Override Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson may seek a vote to override President Eisenhower's veto of the depressed areas bill.

But even if such a move came, it appeared doomed for defeat. Senate approval of the bill was only by 45-32, considerably short of the necessary two-thirds to override.

Johnson conceded as much Monday. But some Democratic Senators were strongly urging such action. They want to go on record against the veto and use it as a campaign issue this fall.

Governor Campaign 'Charges' Along

MIAMI (UPI) — Doyle Carlton Jr. released what he said was a sworn affidavit Monday night that Farris Bryant attended a dinner at a Jacksonville Negro restaurant and solicited votes for governor.

Carlton had stated on television Sunday night that Bryant "ate dinner" with Negroes at the restaurant. At that time, Bryant said, "You stoop so low, sir, to charge me with something I didn't do."

Bryant indicated Monday that what he was denying was that he ate in the restaurant.

Bryant produced documents today which he said proved that his opponent told deliberate lies to hurt Bryant on the race issue.

Bryant dealt with Carlton's charges against him on interposition, school closing, eating dinner with Negroes and Negro voting in Volusia County.

"The reason that I am concerned at all about this," Bryant said, "is that I don't know what lie he told tomorrow."

"I am worried about charges that might be leveled in the closing days of the campaign when I would not have time to refute them and the people won't have time to find out the truth."

Carlton had charged Bryant was for interposition and he was against it. Bryant showed a certified copy of a letter, purportedly written by Carlton to a constituent in which Carlton said he was for interposition.

Carlton stated that Bryant said he would close schools in the face of federal integration attempts. Bryant produced the voting record of the 1957 Legislature in which Carlton voted for the law which provides for closure of schools if federal troops come to back up integration.

Carlton said Sunday that Bryant ate dinner with Negroes while making a political appearance at a Negro restaurant in Jacksonville. Bryant showed an affidavit from a Negro woman at the dinner in which she said nothing about Bryant sitting or eating with Negroes.

The affidavit Carlton produced Monday said Bryant attended the dinner and solicited votes, but did not say he ate.

Bryant repeated his denial Monday night saying, "the statement by my opponent that I ate dinner with a group of Negroes is an utter falsehood." Bryant did not deny Monday that he attended the meeting and made a speech.

He demanded an apology from Carlton, saying Carlton was using desperation tactics.

Carlton's prepared statement Monday night stated:

"My campaign headquarters is now in possession of a number of affidavits certifying that during the month of January, 1960, my opponent, Farris Bryant, attended a dinner meeting with a group of Jacksonville Negroes at Buster Ford's Restaurant. . . . I take no pleasure in making this announcement. But I feel compelled to do so after the false accusations leveled at me."

Carlton had charged that Bryant carried all but one of the predominantly Negro precincts in East Volusia County in the first primary. Bryant displayed voting records which showed he carried none of them.

"These have been the points of issue and tension in the second primary," Bryant said. "He (Carlton) raised every point. He has been casting race against race and North Florida against South Florida, and on every issue I proved him to be false."

Should women be allowed to drive 'Jeep' vehicles?

(asked of 'Jeep' vehicle owners)

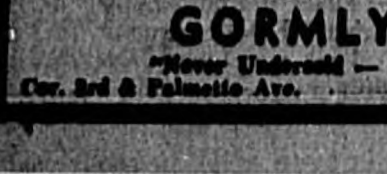

Sam Bryson, Mechanic

Not definitely no! 'Jeep' vehicles do a man-sized job and should be driven only by men. Women don't even understand what 4-wheel drive means, so how can you expect them to operate a vehicle that's engineered for 4-wheel drive from the ground up?

Myra Slade, Farm Wife

What a question! I drive a 'Jeep' Universal every day. I cross some rough country, and I'd sure hate to be stuck without 4-wheel drive! Anyway, women are more careful drivers than men.

Eating On The Run Can Be Trouble

By MYRTIE C. WILSON Home Demonstration Agent "Can't stop for breakfast. Got to run."

"Let's skip lunch and run down town—we'll have to hurry." "Put the dinner back in the oven; we'll eat it after the meeting, there just isn't time now." So often when there isn't time for eating we take time from everything to do the other things. We all know this isn't good. Sooner or later it catches up and we pay for it by lack of pep, a tired, worn-out feeling and becoming a good candidate for the many infections so common this time of year.

Eating on the run is not recommended. However, a well-chosen snack is better than nothing and will help to prevent excessive wear and tear on our bodies and provide them with something to keep us going. Perhaps you over-slept. An egg and a glass of orange juice are quickly prepared and easy to drink while getting dressed.

Safety Program Set By Chuluota Club

The Chuluota Women's Club will present a water safety demonstration at 8 p. m. May 24, at the Community House.

The program is being planned by the beach director of the Greater Chuluota Community Club, Mrs. Virginia Chadwick, under whose direction an extensive water safety program was conducted last summer at the Community Club beach.

Plans are now underway for swimming classes again this summer and it was felt this would be an opportune time for the water safety demonstration to take place.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Steve Beckner, authority on water safety and an authorized American Red Cross First Aid and Water Safety Instructor. Beckner is owner and operator of the Aquatics Co. Pool in Orlando where he donates much of his time and services in promoting water safety.

A film will be shown on "Teaching Johnny How To Swim" and "People and Boats in and Around the Water." There will also be a demonstration of the now accepted method of mouth to mouth artificial resuscitation, demonstrated by water safety instructors, Phyllis Howell and Sharon Howell.

Admission is free and the Women's Club cordially invites all in the community and surrounding communities to attend and to bring their children and ask their teachers to attend.

Occasionally there just isn't time for lunch. A box of crackers, some of those cheeses that come in one-ounce sections and a box of dried fruit kept in the car, in a desk drawer or locker make a quick tasty lunch that takes only one hand.

Dinner is the third important meal of the day. It is a time to relax and enjoy a meal well planned for good nutrition and good eating. But it does happen that schedules get jammed up. A peanut butter sandwich and tomato juice is not much of a dinner. But you'll be surprised how much quicker you can handle the business of a meeting if you take a few seconds necessary to make and swallow it.

You can't beat the need for nourishing food to keep you on the go. If you must skip a meal once in a while; at least go halfway. Make sure you have some sort of nourishing food for the go, go, go, to go on.

Watch Labels

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — University of Vermont extension service clothing specialist Mrs. Lois Soule advises, "Save the label on every fiber product you buy and you'll be money ahead."

She said, "If you know the fibers in your curtains, upholstery and household linens, as well as clothing, you can avoid expensive mistakes when you wash or clean them."

Everybody's Looking

The eyes of everybody are upon Florida right now and close checks are being made on its activity in industry, business and government by a number of reporting agencies.

Christian Science Monitor, the internationally circulated newspaper noted for its accurate analysis and factual writing, recently started a whole series of articles on Florida's "explosion."

Important among the problems the Monitor lists for Florida are building new highways, improving municipal facilities and efforts by county governments to provide services for growing populations with limited tax revenues.

"Some tend to be apathetic about their local governments, have little civic consciousness," the Monitor reported to the world on Florida citizens.

We can apply that to Seminole County as a part of Florida and see that we must work harder to impress the many, many people who survey us that we are alert to the opportunities of the times.

WASHINGTON CALLING

by Marquis Childs

PARIS—In the memory of veteran diplomats no international meeting has ever begun under such a shadow as darkness the summit here in Paris where the four heads of government are meeting. The cloud cover of suspicion, fear and uncertainty is well-nigh impenetrable, and if it is broken even slightly by the sun the conference ends it will be something of a miracle.

The climber at the top—President Eisenhower, Premier Khrushchev and Prime Minister Macmillan—are all facing in different directions. So far as the American president is concerned, since the U.S. was shot down and the official American position is to uphold the right of penetration by espionage planes, the problem is to determine in which direction Eisenhower actually is looking. The familiar words of goodwill that he utters seem at complete variance with the policy.

Since it is the plane incident and Khrushchev's exploitation of it that has largely altered the climate of the conference, it is important to see what this alteration really means. In private it is being widely said here that the diplomatic-negotiating faction in the American government engaged in a long argument with the military-intelligence faction over the degree of risk that could safely be taken in trying to penetrate the barrier of Soviet secrecy. As in other instances in the past, the president either could not or would not resolve the dispute and it came to a climactic end with the shooting down of the U.S. 1,300 miles within the borders of the Soviet Union.

If the debate were public the military-intelligence faction would surely argue that the mosaic of photographs said to have been put together in four years of espionage flights justifies any risk. The mosaic of this faction, including several State Department figures in important positions, knows no limits and it is strongly colored by a conviction of the need to proceed the cold war without abatement. Their argument has validity as a harrowed defense of an ugly necessity in a time of grave danger.

But what they entirely overlook are the political consequences of their acts, and it is here that the recent events must be weighed in relation to the summit and to America's standing in the world. In the view of this observer the political consequences can be appraised as follows:

1. The modest hope of agreeing at the summit on a new and limited objective in the disarmament talks, on a nuclear test agreement and perhaps on an interim status for Berlin has been diminished. Whether hope has been eclipsed entirely we should soon know.
2. The French feel confirmed in their policy of refusing to submit their navy and air force to NATO control without agreement for full consultation on every phase of the alliance. The French press has printed inspired stories to the effect that the U.S. incident shows the perils to America's allies of failing to stand fully on all aspects of policy.
3. The strain on the alliance is evident in Great Britain despite the typical moderation in the foreign policy debate in the House of Commons. Macmillan is faced firmly in a hopeful direction, recognizing the belief that progress can be made on disarmament and nuclear testing a crisis over Berlin may be averted. It remained for Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the opposition, to speak solemnly and solemnly of the grave threat to the United States of the right to penetrate the sovereign territory of another power.
4. Ratification of the Japanese-American defense treaty has been put in jeopardy in Tokyo. Time passing by, the proposed policy of U.S. flights from Japanese bases has further accentuated Washington's troubles. The uneasiness in other Allied capitals from which American planes operate is scarcely concealed.

So much in brief, for the consequences in the non-Communist world. The effect inside the Soviet Union must be a matter for Krom-Hology—the kind of speculation that too often cancels itself out in these long on conjecture and what on earth.

The comment speculation here is that Khrushchev did want a relaxation of tensions; that he took speeches by Secretary of State Herter and Under Secretary Dillon and statements by DeGaulle on a double of the desire to resolve peacefully the outstanding policy challenges at home to show what in a practical way he was getting out of all the smiles and the talks he seized on the plane episode and determined to make the most out of it to put the United States and the West in a hole.

WORRY CLINIC by Dr. G. W. Crane

CASE 1-46: Eli Miller, aged 47, is Mrs. Crane's father.

For 30 years he has lived in the little house on our Indiana farm. In recent years he has been arthritic and semi-invalid. Oh, he would hobble around the house slowly with the aid of an aluminum "walker," which is a great boon to elderly folks.

But a year ago he got so helpless he was bedfast. We had to dress him and lift him from his bed to an easy chair. We fed him in the easy chair, which he occupied all bedtime. Then we'd lift him back upon the bed.

Throughout his last few years he has taken vitamins and mineral supplements, plus the "red salt" used for cattle, which contains several trace minerals.

Two years ago he got progressively worse until he grew so foggy mentally he didn't even recognize us. He'd think I was his father or his grandfather and imagine he was a boy back on the farm.

Some years ago I wrote about the new emphasis in modern medicine on adding trace chemicals to our food to supplement such deficiencies in our vegetables and fruits.

Last year, for example, a survey of the water in various rivers showed that about 30 chemicals were totally lacking, though they would be in our soil.

Cancer researchers likewise warn us that "cancer is apparently linked to some chemical deficiency."

We have several ailments that appear primarily when we reach middle age and which seem to be due to chemical deficiency instead of germ or virus infections.

For example, baldness and gray hair, diabetes and cancer, possibly multiple sclerosis and myasthenia gravis—these are just a few ailments that may be due to lack of certain essential trace chemicals.

State agricultural colleges have thus recommended the addition of seven or eight trace chemicals to cattle salt, and the animals are then found to flourish better, be less anemic, less likely to be sterile, etc.

So I mentioned these facts a couple of years ago in this column and also in some of my articles for medical magazines.

Soon thereafter C. E. Sumner, a retired college engineering professor and said he was sending me a gallon of concentrated sea water.

"Ocean water has every soluble chemical that appears on this earth," he added, "so it goes much further than the trace mineral salt."

"Why don't you try it on your father-in-law and see how he reacts?"

Well, Mrs. Crane decided it might be a good idea, so she placed one teaspoonful of the concentrated sea water in Grandpa Miller's oatmeal every morning.

It was just early enough to make the oatmeal tasty. Grandpa didn't even know he was being used as a guinea pig, as were the rest of our family, for we all decided to test it.

No other change in his food or pill-taking occurred. His foggy thinking gradually cleared up, but nothing striking occurred for four months.

Then I saw a striking change, as I shall describe tomorrow or perhaps this case and its follow-up!

"I had no idea there was so much dirt in a garden!"

"SOMEBODY'S BEEN EATING MY PORRIDGE"

POSTCARDS by Stan Delaplane

The Coast Grade, between Los Angeles and San Francisco, was once the supreme test of any car.

We chugged up this mountain in steaming low gear (the railroad still hooks up two engines to haul over this natural division point).

We called into the beginning rise with set teeth and a delightful heart flutter. Within a quarter of a mile we were down to the lowest gear. You could hear almost-human panting and groaning in the engine.

Halfway up, you found the cars that were stalled. Spouting steam and rusty water, I have gone behind a faltering car, PUSHING on that grade. What a memory!

They showed that Henry Ford meant well by you.

The brakes, naturally, went off duty.

We then clamped down on the reverse pedal. This set up a terrible chattering. But it did not slow you much.

When all else failed, we had a desperation maneuver—something like the passes the quarterback throws in the last five minutes when his team is 30 points behind.

We jammed down the reverse pedal; we jammed down the low-gear pedal; and we yanked on the emergency brake. I suppose I was going about 10 miles an hour when I hit. But since I never could get that Ford up more than 25 miles with a tail wind, it seemed quite fast.

The Model-T hit the rear end of that monster. And it bounced off! It bounced back five feet like a rubber ball. What an amazing car!

Anyway, I found that exact spot. I had to edge off the new highway and follow a dead-end on the old steam-spattered highway. But there it was.

It was the same time of year—the hills green with Spring grass and the patches of blue lupin and yellow California poppies.

I had left a little headlight glass on that spot. But apparently it has been swept away by the years. I could not find a sliver on the roadside.

Even so, it was a heady experience to stand in such a historic spot.

The Cadillac man said: "My gosh, boy, don't you look where you're going!"

And I said: "I saw where I was going but I couldn't stop where I was looking."

We then bent our fenders back into shape. Simply by putting one foot on the tire and pulling. It was that simple before cars were adorned with expensive chrome.

I uncrowded my radiator cap—using an old rag to keep from getting burned. And a mushroom cloud of steam shot up in the air. And after that cooled, we went on our separate ways.

Nowadays, I guess we would exchange cards and insurance companies.

This morning we sailed over the four-lane grade in about ten minutes. By-passing the town of San Luis Obispo on an intricate over-and-under roadway.

The "compact" did not steam. In fact, the temperature needle stayed steady. Everybody smiled over at 65 miles per hour in this wonderful era of high-powered cars.

At times below, at times above us, you could see the narrow ribbon of the old highway. The one we pushed and pulled and ballied our way over.

It is not half as much fun now. The machines have taken over.

When I was using a Model-T over this route, we were all first-class mechanics.

It was on this route, the downhill part, that I ran into a powerful 1928 Cadillac.

He was letting the steam out of his radiator when I came boiling around the bend.

I put my foot on the brake—we did that hopefully but usually nothing much happened. Ford brakes in those days were more a matter of company good intention. They showed that Henry Ford meant well by you.

The brakes, naturally, went off duty.

We then clamped down on the reverse pedal. This set up a terrible chattering. But it did not slow you much.

When all else failed, we had a desperation maneuver—something like the passes the quarterback throws in the last five minutes when his team is 30 points behind.

WASHINGTON by Ed Koterba

WASHINGTON — Our perfect answer to the Soviets' sensational cries of righteous indignation over the flying spy episode would be to bag ourselves a Russian plane from within our own borders.

And, from all available authoritative information, this could well have been accomplished a number of times the past several years.

Soviet planes violating the borders of North America? I recall an incident of intrigue a year ago in the underground headquarters of the Strategic Air Command in Omaha.

The Air Force officer accompanying me switched in on a closed circuit television picture from the North American Air Defense Headquarters in Colorado Springs.

An outline map of the continent was projected on the screen. Two objects listed as "unidentified" were shown, as of that moment, moving south on this side of our Distant Early Warning Line.

"Most likely Russian planes," the man said calmly. When he saw my look of amazement he pointed out offhandedly that Soviet planes frequently penetrate the North American boundaries.

"Why don't we shoot them down?" I asked. He simply smiled. Was it, perhaps, that we held our fire for fear that the Reds would retaliate on our "snooping" planes?

There have been reports that Russian planes have been spotted as far south as the Northwest states. The Central Intelligence Agency obviously has the full details on these reports in its files.

Despite the dim-y and unashamed in Washington after the spy story first broke, there was some reason for rejoicing.

It proved at least one thing: That the CIA had, finally, produced its first solid piece of evidence of real honest-to-goodness spying - what we're paying good, hard-earned money for.

Over the years, the CIA has become a sprawling giant. Right now they're completing a $80 million building on the other side of the Potomac in Virginia which approaches the size of the Pentagon.

Last year, it is said, the intelligence people (numbering far in excess of 10,000) spent just a shade under $1 billion. We ought to be able to get a lot of spying done for a billion dollars . . .

Ironically, the disclosure that the United States has spies at work will not make us lose face around the world. As Sen. Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.), an Army intelligence man himself, said on the floor of the Senate, "Spying is as old as Biblical history."

It's the manner in which the whole show was botched up that hurts our prestige. To be sure, the CIA at times acts a bit strangely. For one thing, they've gotten so cloak-and-daggerish in Washington that they refuse to admit that they know who they are.

One example: the number listed in the telephone book for the CIA is Executive 3-6115. I dialed the number. CIA's operator came on and coyly said: "This is Executive 3-6115."

I replied: "What agency is this?" Spherly, she said: "This is a defense agency. . ."

Three Minutes A Day

By JAMES KELLER

A veteran actor fell dead just a moment after he made his exit into the wings of a Boston Theater. For 54-year-old Louis Heydt, Act I, Scene I of "There Was A Little Girl" was his final curtain.

The only one aware of what had happened was a fellow actor who came to his aid. The other members of the cast were not told of their colleague's death until the end of the performance.

The audience found out about it in their papers the following morning.

It is difficult for any of us to imagine ourselves making our final exit. But make it we will, and more than likely in the way we least expect.

Viewed in its proper perspective it should be a stimulating thought, not a grim one. The part we play, brief and insignificant as it may seem, is important in God's sight.

If we use our talents to honor God and benefit others, our final exit will be a triumphant entrance into heaven.

"Blessed are those servants whom the Master, on His return, shall find watching." (Luke 12:37)

Demo Rights Plank Approval Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Chester Bowles (D-Conn.), chairman of the Democratic platform committee, says the party's 1960 civil rights plank will not force the South to bolt nor will it compromise on principle.

Bowles said Sunday the problem of keeping northern and southern Democrats together "can be bridged and will be bridged." But he added, "There will be no compromise on principle as far as I'm concerned."

LETTERS to the Editor

Editor: Regarding your editorial "Some Rather Be Bitter Than Right," Thank you for one of the most logical, fair-minded and clear thinking editorials as published in the Sanford Herald on May 11 last, that I have ever read, and for which the thinking public is deeply appreciative.

This editorial, in effect, pointed out that not only the present, but the future of Seminole County has been laid before its citizens for their impersonal, unselfish and dispassionate consideration.

Seminole County has been and is directly in the path of fast moving progress, and until the past few years, for reasons of indifference or apathy, has failed to realize that no person, place or object stands still, that it is either in progress or to retrogress. Therefore, the day of reckoning eventually and inevitably had to come. That day is now.

It being the duty and obligation of the free press to keep the public correctly informed, I am confident that such soul searching as called for by your excellent and timely editorials will cause the responsible thinking citizens of Seminole County to cast aside all selfish motives and work together for the mutual benefit of themselves and future generations.

The eyes of Florida have been on Seminole County—What have they seen? What will they see?

Sanford Rips Tarpons, 7-1

By JERRY COVINGTON
Left-hander Ron Banovic registered his fourth win of the season against one defeat here Monday night as the Sanford Greyhounds coasted past the Tampa Tarpons by a score of 7-1.

The little port sider was in control all the way and was never in serious trouble. He fanned six batters and issued but one walk while working the full nine innings. He missed his shutout bid in the sixth inning when Bill D'Allessandro led off the inning with a double, the only extra base hit by the Tarpons. Bill Sorrell followed with a single to left and Bob Hattan hit a sacrifice fly to right field scoring D'Allessandro. From here on out Banovic gave up but two more hits and was never threatened.

BOSTON (UPI) — Heavyweight Johnny Twohads stepped into the glare of the ring lights at Boston Arena Monday night and stripped off his robe. The crowd of 3,724 fight fans screamed their delight. Twohads forgot his boxing trunks.

A NEW WORLD speed record for outboards is set by Burt Ross Jr., of Spokane, Wash., as he pilots this custom-built hydroplane powered by a production 60-cubic inch Mercury outboard motor through a one-kilometer course on Seattle's Lake Washington at an average speed of 115.547 mph. Ross, who went faster than any outboarder in history, eclipsed by almost eight mph the old internationally-recognized world record of 107.9 mph.

Outboard Speed Record Broken

A new world speed record for outboards was set recently when a custom-built hydroplane powered by a production 60 cubic inch Mercury outboard motor ran twice through a one kilometer course on Seattle's Lake Washington averaging 115.547 miles per hour. Driver Burt Ross Jr., Spokane salesman, went faster than any previous outboarder in history eclipsing by almost eight m.p.h. the old internationally recognized world record of 107.9 m.p.h. set by Hu Entrop with a similar engine. Ross' run establishes a new Union of International Motorboating (UIM) Class X outboard speed record.

Jordan Upset; Robinson Doesn't Show Up For Bout

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Young Marvin McFarland demanded a shot at Don Jordan's welterweight crown today for upsetting him in a non-title tuneup Monday night, but Jordan was flying to Las Vegas, Nev., for a title defense against Benny (Kid) Parek of Cuba on May 27.

Meanwhile, as a result of Monday night's wild but profitless fight at the Memorial Stadium, middleweight challenger Sugar Ray Robinson was threatened with indefinite suspension for failure to appear in a scheduled co-featured tuneup.

Meanwhile, Robinson, former middleweight and welterweight champion, and his advisor, Gainford, were ordered by the Maryland commission to appear at a Baltimore hearing Thursday, to show cause why they should not be suspended indefinitely for Sugar Ray's failure to go through with a tuneup at the stadium Monday night.

George Gainford, Robinson's advisor, was similarly threatened by the Maryland Athletic Commission. A disappointing crowd of only 2,014 saw McFarland, an over-stuffed lightweight from Philadelphia, win a unanimous 10-round decision over the ring-rusty Jordan and belt him groggy in the ninth round.

However, since 25-year-old Jordan emerged from his first fight in more than five months without any injuries, advisor Roy Renard announced that he would go through with next week's Las Vegas defense, for which he is guaranteed at least $85,000. Jordan received only 25 percent of the net gate of $5,540 or $1,385 for Monday night's second straight non-title defeat. McFarland got $1,000.

Faith In Rookie Paying Off As Orioles Take Over First

United Press International
Manager Paul Richards' faith in a rookie who hit .000 in two previous trials has paid off to make the Baltimore Orioles a dark horse contender in the American League race.

I'm convinced he'll hit," Richards told skeptical experts who were consigning the Orioles to the second division. "And, if he does, he'll be tougher than anyone thinks."

Giants Release Al Worthington

By United Press International
Al Worthington, a right-handed pitcher who has been bouncing between the majors and minors since he joined the Giants in 1953, has been released outright to Minneapolis of the American Association by the Boston Red Sox.

Ron Hansen, a 22-year-old, 6-foot, 3-inch shortstop, isn't the only youngster making Baltimore fans forget the "old Orioles." But he's been the most spectacular and Monday night his fifth-inning homer gave the "young Orioles" a 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Athletics and lifted them into sole possession of first place.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why do short fellas ask tall girls for dates? Sometimes a girl just doesn't know how to say no.

I am a tall girl and it seems that every shrimpy I know wants to date me. Not wishing to hurt his feelings, I accept. Then I feel so foolish when we dance. Other people point at us, nudge each other and snicker.

Please print this, Abby, and tell short boys not to ask a girl who is taller than he is for a date. Thank you.

LONG TALL SALL

DEAR LONG TALL SALL: Not all tall girls share your point of view. Furthermore, a short fellow (please not a "shrimp") who asks a taller girl for a date is paying her a compliment. He assumes that she has the intelligence to measure a man for what he is—not how much of him there appears to be.

DEAR ABBY: Is there no justice for an innocent widow? I am 32 and have two children, 10 and 11. About six months ago I met a man who told me he was divorced. I fell for him hard. We started to make plans for marriage. Then one night he came over here with his suitcase. He said his wife had kicked him out of the house and he was moving in with me. I was stunned to learn that he was still married. I told him Oh, no, he wasn't, because although I loved him, I wouldn't live that way before my children. He left and his wife called me. She said she was divorcing him and naming me. I got in my car and went over there. Her story and his didn't jibe. She doesn't believe me, and if she names me, I will lose my job, and maybe my children. Can you help me, Abby?

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: If you can't afford a lawyer, get in touch with your local legal aid society. And the next man who tells you he is divorced, ask to see legal proof. If he's on the up and up, he'll respect you for your good sense. And if he isn't, the sooner you know it—the better.

DEAR ABBY: Our 24-year-old son has recently returned from the service. I realize that he is no longer a child but a grown man and what he does is none of my business. Yet while he is under my roof, isn't it my business where he goes, what he does, and what time he comes home?

I have other children (younger) and he is setting a very poor example by his conduct. He has gotten to be the talk of the town because of an affair he has been carrying on with a woman 15 years his senior.

Don't tell me to have his father talk to him. His father says he is a man and can do as he pleases. How can I keep him in line? Or can I?

DEAR HELPLESS: While your son is under your roof (at any age) it is your business how he conducts himself. If he is not willing to live more discreetly, you should ask him to headquarter elsewhere.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JENNIE: Of course the "circumstances" are important, but I would say that a man who had been married and divorced four times was a very, very, very, very poor risk for marriage.

Here Are New Ideas For You

Dear Edyth: I am thirty pounds overweight and really look a sight. I feel heavy and lumpy, but I have never been able to diet. Do you suppose anyone like me could finally get up enough will power to reduce at the age of fifty—Mrs. W.

What would be the best buy for wear while shopping in town, lunching at the hotel and going to see friends and sitting on their porches—a black linen sheath, a black chiffon or a black figured China silk dress? I am tall, thin and can sew—Myrtle.

The black linen would "go" more places with different accessories. But, if you can sew, why not pick up a bargain in material and make a black and white figured dress to alternate with a black linen? The same hat and accessories would go with it. "Do people still wear deep lace bertha collars? I have a deep round one in beige lace and am willing to dye it if it would help—Mrs. T. O."

Freedomland Will Trace U. S. Heritage From Pirates To Rockets

NEW YORK (UPI)—An amusement center as large as American history will open June 18 on what used to be 203 acres of swamp land in the far reaches of New York City's Bronx County.

There, at a cost of $45,000,000, raised through public sale of stock, will be unveiled Freedomland, U. S. A., the metropolis answer to Disneyland. It was created by the man who directed technical phases of the successful California playground.

The project proper, comprising 83 acres — the rest of the land is for parking space, a motel and other ancillary items — is contained in the shape of the continental United States. Within its borders will be:

Colonial New England, Little Old New York, Chicago of the great fire era (they burn it down every 20 minutes), a Civil War battleground in the old South (battles while you watch), the Northwest of Lewis and Clark, the West in the days of gold and silver mining glory, San Francisco's old time Barbary Coast and Chinatown (complete with earthquake and fire), Hollywood in the days of its silent screen fame, Florida with 18th Century pirates and a satellite base check by jowl, Texas of the oil boom years, the pioneer Southwest with

Exchange Student Talks On Germany

Norbert Peters, German exchange student at Seminole High School, showed a preview of slides and gave a talk on the problem of divided Germany to the Junior and Senior English classes on Monday.

The student stressed the fact of Communist propaganda used in East and West Germany divisions and its effect on the people. Norbert explained the danger of even visiting West Berlin, the free section of the city.

He told of a friend who was traveling with him to the section and was taken off the bus because he had taken pictures of the guard station at the border. Luckily, the boy was returned with his camera.

Voting and the importance of politics in West Germany was also included in his talk. The German people realize the importance of keeping communism out of the government and there is a great turnout on election day.

TV Tonight

CBS pre-empta the 8-8:30 time of Dennis O'Keefe's series for the first of two special news reports on the summit conference.

Norbert concluded by saying that the youth of both countries must realize their importance in the future if the nations are to maintain their democratic state.

Red Skelton's guest star on CBS at 9:30 is Marilyn Maxwell. Carol Haney and Alan King are on Jerry Moore's CBS hour at 10.

NBC's report on the first day of the summit conference is from 10:30 to 11.

Flare Up In Paris May Rob GOP Of Cherished Peace Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Many Democrats and some Republicans were privately convinced today that the summit conference flare-up may have robbed the GOP of its cherished "peace" issue for the 1960 campaign.

'60 Candidates Discuss Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Here is what the major presidential contenders say about the summit conference crisis over the U-2 plane incident.

DEMOCRATS

Sen. John F. Kennedy (Mass.): "We can hope that the voices of moderation and mutual self-interest in preserving world peace can prevail... but on one point, Mr. Khrushchev should be absolutely correct. He cannot divide America as partisan lines in matters affecting the security of the United States."

Sen. Stuart Symington (Mo.): "All Americans had looked forward to this summit conference with hope and the news is most distressing."

Sen. Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.): "Khrushchev's agreement price for negotiating at the summit 'is one that is obviously unacceptable to the United States.' Johnson questioned whether the Soviet Union 'actually wants a world of peace or a constant tension which must end in disaster.'"

Sen. Wayne Morse (Ore.): "The leaders of the big governments of the world owe to the rest of mankind the duty of rising above emotional reactions and work out understandings that will prevent nuclear war... The issue is on anyone who threatens to pick up his marbles and go home."

Adlai E. Stevenson: "This whole issue discloses the painfully precarious state of our relations... We must hope that, based on the fact that the flights have stopped, the calmer judgment of Mr. Khrushchev will prevail and that it may be possible to resume the meeting and salvage something from the wreckage."

dent Richard M. Nixon, the probable GOP presidential nominee. One worried Republican said, "The Democrats are trying to put on a united front now. But they're going to hit us later charging that 'it all adds up to a great deal of bungling. Khrushchev has mousetrapped us. Our position has been weakened.'"

A Democrat, who has refrained from any public comment, said privately: "This has blown the Republican peace issue clear out of the water—or wherever you blow issues. And Eisenhower's image of infallibility has been damaged. The whole matter has been incredibly mismanaged and with statements, admissions and then admissions that the admissions were false. I think this is going to be the real whipping boy of the campaign."

Similar views were expressed by a Midwestern Republican, who said: "The Democrats have been looking around for issues I think they've got one now. I think we're in a helluva shape."

Quotable Quotes

By United Press International PARIS—President Eisenhower on hearing Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's summit ultimatum: "The only conclusion that can be drawn from his behavior this morning was that he came all the way from Moscow to Paris with the sole intention of sabotaging this meeting of which so much of the hopes of the world have rested."

PARIS—Khrushchev at the summit, in the rare instance of a Communist leader invoking the deity: "As God is my witness, my hands are clean and my soul is pure."

PARIS—A British statement on the stand of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan issued before Macmillan undertook the role of summit peacemaker today: "He was glad that Mr. Khrushchev had not proposed that the conference should be abandoned out only that it should be adjourned. There was, however, a French saying to the effect that 'what is postponed is lost.'"

MOSCOW—Prof. V. I. Skovrov of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, writing on Russia's space ship satellite in the newspaper "Evening Moscow": "For the first time ever there is a telephone installation in the Sputnik for communication with earth."

Look For Khrushchev To Calm Down As Summit Meet Progresses

By PHIL NEWCOM
UPI Foreign Editor
Look for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to calm down as the summit conference progresses, and to make up with President Eisenhower. He has made all the capital he possibly can out of the U-2 spy plane incident. He has proved to his critics at home and in Red China that he is still a fighting Communist and a tough man with the West. He has won a considerable propaganda advantage for himself at the summit, and a strong bargaining hand for his argument against Western-aided arms controls and open skies inspection plans. He may not want to let the cold war relax too much before the U.S. presidential election, and he also may want to divert attention from some internal developments in Russia. But he can derive no major advantage from deliberately building up new long run international tensions.

If there was any way to do it gracefully, you could look for the United States to withdraw the two U-2 jet planes based in Japan. They easily could be moved to Okinawa and operate just as effectively. Based in Japan, the U-2 has become an issue complicating premier Nikita Khrushchev's already-difficult task of winning Diet approval of the U.S.-Japan security treaty. Meanwhile, United Nations officials refuse to confirm or deny the presence of any U-2s in South Korea.

The Commonwealth Prime Ministers Conference, which ended in London last week, apparently has laid the groundwork for possibly forcing South Africa out of the British community. This was the significance of the formal communique which said that South Africa must seek the approval of other Commonwealth members if it changes to a republic and still wants to remain within the grouping. Only one blackball would be needed and South Africa would be out, since Commonwealth decisions must be unanimous on this issue.

Mr. Billogg

There are two ways a father may get work out of his children: one is by command, the other by example.

Under the command method the father will state in no uncertain terms what needs to be done and tell the children to do it. It is a method which depends on compulsion rather than voluntary action.

The father appears in the role of a stern taskmaster. The children obey out of fear rather than a desire to please. In later years they will associate home with forced labor.

Under the example method the father will say nothing to the children, other than to remark that the place could be greatly improved in appearance by a tidying up. He will get into his working clothes, equip himself with a shovel, spade or fork and go out to dig in the ground.

When he has dug all that needs to be dug he will get to work with the lawnmower, and after that cut down clumps of weeds, cultivate the garden, spray, trim, water, put the wheelbarrow into play and perform various miscellaneous tasks for the purpose of making the house and its surroundings a neater, cleaner place in which to live.

The children cannot fail to notice the father as he goes cheerfully about his work. They get a picture of him not as a slave driver but as a man who rejoices in physical labor. They feel grateful that they have such a willing parent. Surely before long, impressed by his example, they will be getting into their working clothes, equip themselves with tools, go out to join their father and ask what most needs doing.

How much better example is over compulsion, appealing as it does to the higher instincts of the children. That is, were it not that the children, seeing how their father is enjoying himself, refuse to interfere and to sit idly where they are.

Enters Olympics

ROME (UPI)—Malaya today became the 88th nation to enter this summer's Olympic Games.

Federal land holdings in just five states—Alaska, Nevada, Utah, Idaho and Oregon—total some 325 million acres.

Baptist Preachers Told To Cut Down On Their Eating

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Southern Baptist preachers were told Monday to cut down on their eating.

"If exceptional weight shortens life," said Dr. Wayne E. Oates of Louisville, Ky., "we are shortening our service to God by intemperate eating."

Oates, a professor at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, said he knew it was hard for preachers to cut down on their food intake because they eat so many meals in the homes of their congregation members.

His suggested remedy—eat more meals at home and "let your stomach rest."

Oates led a panel discussion at the Southern Baptist Pastors' Conference, one of the preliminaries to the opening of the Southern Baptist annual convention tonight.

Oates also advised the preachers against accepting new cars or other personal gifts from their congregations. This obligates the minister unnecessarily, he said.

The convention president criticized the preachers for "popular preaching and delving too much into civic affairs."

Dr. Ramsey Pollard, pastor of Bellevue Baptist Church in Memphis, said, "Our task is not to magnify the Masonic Lodge, the Elks Club, or the Lions Club. Our job is to magnify the word of God."

Pollard predicted, "This can be one of the greatest conventions in the history of the Southern Baptists... We don't have any peppy problems to argue about."

A 1961 budget of more than 20 million dollars, an increase of about 10 percent over the current budget, is among the items up for discussion. The added money is planned for missionary work in France, Guinea, Pakistan and Viet Nam.

It's Hard To Believe But Texas Put A Ban On Hawaiian Passion Fruit

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—In faraway Hawaii there grows, amid the papayas and the pineapples, a delicious plant that is known as—you should pardon the expression—"passion fruit."

The natives of our newest state use passion fruit as a staple ingredient for such goodies as punches, pies, cake icings and sherbets. I'm told that some Hawaiian children even smoke the stems.

The plant also can be used as a base for a liqueur, and thereby hangs this tale. Word has reached me by a circuitous route that the state of Texas, of all places, has banned the sale of passion fruit liqueur as being a trifle too racy for the safety of its citizens.

I say "of all places" because of the widespread impression that Texans are waned on "red-eye" and maintain a lifelong tolerance for strong beverages. I've heard it said that if it's wet, they'll drink it.

Therefore, it's hard to imagine a Texas being intimidated by anything as relatively innocuous as a liqueur. Nevertheless, the Texas Liqueur Control Board has taken a firm stand against passion fruit liqueur.

In a letter to the Honolulu firm that makes the stuff, the board explained that the product was unacceptable in Texas because its name "infers that the consumption of same would stimulate the passion of the individual consuming same."

The islanders, however, are incensed over the placing of such a connotation on one of their favorite fruits. After doing some research on the subject, I can understand their position too. According to the dictionary, the name has a religious symbolism rather than an aphrodisiac one.

The concocters of passion fruit liqueur have written to Sen. Oren E. Long (D-Hawaii) urging him to intercede with Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) in an effort to get the ban lifted.

I wish Long success but I fear his task will not be made any easier if the word gets around in Texas that one variety of the fruit is called "purple passion."

I also fear his cause might be hampered by a book of Hawaiian recipes which contains a formula for "hot spiced passion fruit juice." That's enough to get the book banned in Boston as well as in Austin.

DeBary Veterans Hold Picnic, Party

The DeBary Barracks and Auxiliary of the World War I Veterans held a picnic and surprise party at Juniper Springs Saturday.

The surprise party was for Mrs. Frank Mildenberger, organizer and past president of the Auxiliary. The Auxiliary gave her a gift while Mrs. Nicholas Kahoe presented her with a miniature memorial gavel.

There were 76 men and women present for the picnic at the Ocala National Forest beauty spot. A covered dish luncheon was enjoyed by all. Various games were played, including one where the players tossed raw eggs through the air to one another.

Among those present were Mrs. MacDonald, past secretary-treasurer of District 7, and Mrs. Kelley, State Department Chaplain of the Auxiliary, both of DeLand. Mrs. Kelley initiated three new Auxiliary members, Mrs. Joseph Van Dusen, Mrs. Henry B. Morrison and Mrs. Mildred King.

A memorial service will be held at the Catholic Mission Church at the Community Center Building Sunday. World War I Veterans Barracks and Auxiliary are to meet in front of the Community Center at 11:45 a. m. on that day.

More Up In Paris May Rob GOP Of Cherished Peace Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Many Democrats and some Republicans were bitterly convinced today that the summit conference here may have robbed the GOP of its cherished "peace" issue for the 1960 campaign.

'60 Candidates Discuss Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Here is what the major presidential candidates say about the summit conference over the U.S. peace initiative.

Republicans

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R., Ariz.) said the summit conference is a "tragic mistake" and that the GOP should not support it.

Democrats

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex.) said the summit conference is a "bold step" and that the Democrats should support it.

Richard M. Nixon, the probable GOP presidential nominee, said the Democrats are trying to get on a limited front now. But they're going to hit us later, charging that "it all adds up to a great deal of bungling. Khrushchev has outwitted us. Our position has been weakened."

Quotable Quotes

By United Press International PARIS—President Eisenhower on hearing Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's summit ultimatum:

"The only conclusion that can be drawn from his behavior this morning was that he came all the way from Moscow to Paris with the sole intention of sabotaging this meeting on which so much of the hopes of the world have rested."

PARIS—Khrushchev at the summit, in the rare instance of a Communist leader lambasting the West:

"As God is my witness, my hands are clean and my soul is pure."

PARIS—A British statement on the stand of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan issued before Macmillan undertook the role of summit peacemaker today:

"He was glad that Mr. Khrushchev had not proposed that the conference should be abandoned but only that it should be adjourned. There was, however, a French saying to the effect that 'what is postponed is lost.'"

MOSCOW—Frank V.I. Steyer of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, writing on Khrushchev's speech earlier in the newspaper "Evening Moscow":

"For the first time ever there is a telephone installation in the Kremlin for communication with earth."

Look For Khrushchev To Calm Down As Summit Meet Progresses

By FRANK MURPHY, UPI Foreign Editor

Look for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to calm down as the summit conference progresses, and to make up with President Eisenhower. He has made all the mistakes he possibly can out of the U.S. spy plane incident. He has proved to be a critic of home and in Red China that he is still a fighting Communist and a tough man with the West. He has won a considerable propaganda advantage for himself at the summit and a heavy bargaining hand for his program against Western-dominated arms control and open arms competition plans. He may not want to let the cold war relax so much before the U.S. president leaves and he may want to show the attention of other Communist bloc members. It is hard to say whether he will want to make peace with the group. Only one Marshall would be needed and South Africa would be the other Communist bloc member. He can derive no major advantage from deliberately leading up now to a long run international summit.

The Communist Prime Minister, Clement Attlee, who led in London last week, reportedly has told the government for possibly to send South Africa out of the British community. This was the intention of the summit conference. He said that South Africa would be the other Communist bloc member. He can derive no major advantage from deliberately leading up now to a long run international summit.

If there was any way to do it gradually, you could look for the United States to withdraw the two U-2 jet planes based in Japan. They easily could be moved to Okinawa and operate just as effectively. Based in Japan, the U.S. has become an even more complicating premier Nikita Khrushchev's already-difficult task of winning Diet approval of the U.S.-Japan security treaty. Meanwhile, United Nations officials refuse to confirm or deny the presence of any U-2s in South Korea.

Mr. Billogg

There are two ways a father may get work out of his child: one is by command, the other by example.

Under the command method the father will state in no uncertain terms what needs to be done and tell the children to do it. It is a method which depends on compulsion rather than voluntary action.

The father appears in the role of a stern taskmaster. The children obey out of fear rather than a desire to please. In later years they will associate home with forced labor.

Under the example method the father will say nothing to the children, other than to remark that the place could be greatly improved in appearance by a tidying up. He will get into his working clothes, equip himself with a shovel, spade or fork and go out to dig in the ground.

When he has dug all that needs to be dug he will not work with the lawnmower, and after that cut down clumps of weeds, cultivate the garden, mow, trim, water, put the wheelbarrow into play and perform various miscellaneous tasks for the purpose of making the house and its surroundings a neater, cleaner place in which to live.

The children cannot fail to notice the father as he goes cheerfully about his work. They get a picture of him not as a slave driver but as a man who rejoices in physical labor. They feel grateful that they have such a willing parent. Surely he does not, impressed by his example, they will be getting into their working clothes, equip themselves with tools, go out to join their father and ask what most needs doing.

How much better example is ever commencing, appearing as it does in the higher instincts of the children. That is, were it not that the children, seeing how their father is enjoying himself, refuse to interfere and to sit idly where they are.

Baptist Preachers Told To Cut Down On Their Eating

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Southern Baptist preachers were told Monday to cut down on their eating.

"If exceptional weight shortens life," said Dr. Wayne E. Oates of Louisville, Ky., "we are shortening our service to God by intemperate eating."

Oates, a professor at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, said he knew it was hard for preachers to cut down on their food intake because they eat so many meals in the homes of their congregation members.

His suggested remedy — eat more meals at home and "let your stomach rest."

Oates led a panel discussion at the Southern Baptist Pastors' Conference, one of the preliminaries to the opening of the Southern Baptist annual convention to-day.

Oates also advised the preachers against accepting new cars or other personal gifts from their congregations. This obligates the minister unnecessarily, he said.

The convention president criticized the preachers for "popular preaching and delving too much into civic affairs."

Dr. Ramsey Pollard, pastor of Bellevue Baptist Church in Memphis, said, "Our task is not to magnify the Masonic Lodge, the Elks Club, or the Lions Club. Our job is to magnify the word of God."

Pollard predicted, "This can be one of the greatest conventions in the history of the Southern Baptists. . . . We don't have any peppy problems to argue about."

A 1951 budget of more than $2 million dollars, an increase of about 10 percent over the current budget, is among the items up for discussion. The added money is planned for missionary work in France, Guinea, Pakistan and Viet Nam.

It's Hard To Believe But Texas Put A Ban On Hawaiian Passion Fruit

Bryant, Carlton's Words Grow Sharper, Shorter

By United Press International

The campaign words of Ferris Bryant and Doyle Carlton grew shorter and sharper today as they race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination entered its final week.

"Lee," said Bryant concerning several race issue accusations directed against him by Carlton. "And at Fort Lauderdale, Carlton unleashed an attack against the bloc of No. 1 Florida senators known as 'The Pork Chop Gang.'"

Carlton said he had fought the Park-Choppers throughout his eight years as a state senator and "as governor, I shall continue to fight them so that right can prevail."

"I will use all the powers of the governor's office to defeat the park-barring theories."

Bryant took issue with assertions by Carlton that (1) Bryant ate dinner with Negroes while campaigning in Jacksonville, (2) Carlton opposed interposition, (3) Carlton opposed the closing of public schools, and (4) Bryant carried all but one of East Volusia County's predominantly Negro precincts during the first primary.

In rebuttal, Bryant (1) said he neither ate nor sat down at the meeting in Buster Ford's Restaurant in January, (2) showed a letter from Carlton to a constituent saying Carlton favored interposition, (3) displayed a record showing a 1957 vote by Carlton supporting school closing if federal troops came in to enforce integration, and (4) produced voting records indicating he carried none of the disputed Negro precincts.

Bryant accused Carlton of unfair tactics during Sunday night's TV debate in Tallahassee by "padding" until a minute and a half before the program closed" by bringing up the integrated-dining charge.

He announced he had received the endorsement of Gov. Frank P. Taylor, chairman of the governor's bi-racial committee on segregation.

Boos Put Nikita In A Rage As He Makes More Threats

PARIS (UPI)—Nikita Khrushchev, almost incoherent with rage at repeated booing, told a press conference today that further American spy flights over Russia would lead inevitably to war.

He compared President Eisenhower to "a thief caught red-handed in his theft."

The booing and jeering among 1,500 to 2,000 persons at Khrushchev's farewell news conference was unprecedented treatment of a head of state. Khrushchev responded with a fist pounding display of pyrotechnics in which he reminded the crowd he was head of the powerful Soviet Union.

In a rapid series of angry statements and threats, Khrushchev repeated all of his insults of Eisenhower and the United States, threatened to renew nuclear bomb tests, to end the general disarmament talks, and to reopen the Berlin crisis at a time of his own choosing.

He threatened to break off the Geneva disarmament talks and was booed. He attacked West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in unusually bitter terms and was booed again. A few Communist correspondents applauded.

Khrushchev, red-faced with rage, blamed the United States for torpedoing the summit talks and was jeered when he repeated an insult—that he would be glad to resume Big Four negotiations once Eisenhower had left the White House.

He was booed earlier on the streets of Paris by angry Frenchmen who blamed him for breaking off the summit talks and throwing the world into a new crisis with the threat of war greater than in years.

He reached his most threatening vein today when he spoke of the U2 incident and his decision to write a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany—a treaty that might divide Germany forever and cut off Western lifelines to West Berlin.

Russia has reached the end of its patience on Germany, he said.

Then he turned to his Camp David talks last fall with Eisenhower and said "I almost opened my mouth," to speak of U. S. intelligence flights over Russia.

"I was on the point of speaking about it but the atmosphere was so convivial with President Eisenhower telling me to call him 'my friend' in English and using the same word to me in Russian and I thought: Why raise this matter with this friend?"

"The I thought there was something rather fishy about this friend of mine and it turned out I was right."

"When we caught the thief red-handed and said 'You are a thief,' the thief replied 'No, I am not a thief. I have a thief-like policy, that's all.'"

Khrushchev, in a black and raging mood, said between storms of booing: "Such flights are absolutely inadmissible. They can only bring about a war. If the flights continue, war is bound to come."

He said there are no real major disputes between the United States and Russia that should lead to war.

Earlier in the day Khrushchev snubbed Eisenhower when he paid farewell calls only on French President Charles DeGaulle and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Eisenhower is expected to leave Paris Thursday for a 24-hour visit to Portugal on his way home. Macmillan also will leave and make a statement to the House of Commons Friday.

The summit meeting dissolved Tuesday night with a final communique from Eisenhower, DeGaulle and Macmillan after a perfunctory 15-minute session. They expressed regret that the collapse of the conference and said "they themselves remain ready to take part in such negotiations at any suitable time in the future."

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty tagged this brief add to the obituary for the summit conference that had been 15 months in the making:

"I would say the mood not only of the president but of all the Allied leaders is one of complete disgust at the attitude of the Soviet delegation here in Paris."

Drainage Tax District Asked For Tanglewood

District 4 County Commissioner Vernon Dunn Tuesday asked the commission to help establish a drainage tax district in the Tanglewood, Temple Terrace and Goldenrod areas.

The commission agreed to turn over a map of the area to the tax assessor's office so property owners in the areas can be listed.

The next step would be to prepare a petition for property owners to sign—a "they want a tax district."

The three areas involved were among the hardest hit during the rainy spell in March and April.

The commission already has started a plan to help relieve the situation—a joint project with Orange County and Winter Park.

In other business during the meeting the board received word from the State Road Department that a survey of the Longwood-Oviedo Road is nearly completed and plans are expected to be ready within 90 days.

Dunn also told the board that speed limit signs in many subdivisions and road signs and markers are needed throughout the county.

City Residents' Aid Asked In Conserving Water Supply

The city will put into effect a water rationing plan unless residents cooperate by reducing their use of water on plants and lawns throughout the day, City Manager Warren Knowles said today.

Knowles said "we will have no other choice but to curtail our water supply unless we get the help of every resident in the city limits."

"The city manager said that city work crews were watering all city parks and lawns.

"If we don't get the cooperation of the residents, we will enforce the use of water rationing," Knowles emphasized.

Knowles pointed out that water use in the city Tuesday hit a new high with the 24-hour consumption of 2,644,324 gallons.

"This amount surpassed Monday's high record of 2,595,135 gallons," Knowles said. He explained that the high usage was evident in several areas of the city because of the severe water pressure drop.

Tuesday each city water customer used an average of 280 gallons during the day.

Knowles urged residents to try watering gardens and lawns between 8 a. m. and 10 a. m., or in the evening.

"Sprinklers allowed to run continuously are not helping plants grow, but simply wasting the water," he said.

"We use less water and keep the user and avoid any water rationing or curtailment plan," Knowles explained. He added that the water plant personnel are maintaining maximum safe pressure on the system with the gauge exactly on the red line.

"There has been no setback on other pressure or quality so far as the city is concerned. It is simply a case of concentrated use during a short time period. The consumption use of water is not a problem for the city," he said.

Storms Spread Damage In East, On Coast

By United Press International

Violent thunderstorms packing 60 mile an hour winds and golf-ball-size hailstones brought widespread damage to the East Tuesday.

Pennsylvania took the brunt of the storm. At Johnstown, 400 buildings were damaged. In a greenhouse, 100,000 plants were blown away to clear the 20 foot high wall of the greenhouse.

Lightning bolts killed a 10-year-old boy in Alabama and started a $10,000 barn fire in Pennsylvania.

A tornado swept into Madison County, Va., Tuesday night, damaging homes and property. No injuries or deaths were reported. The Weather Bureau said it tracked one twister near Goodsville and Madison and reported another in the Alexandria-Ft. Belvoir area. The disturbance missed Washington and headed toward Chesapeake Bay.

An 80-mph storm front swept out to sea, now spring turbulence built up in the West.

Tornadoes and severe thunderstorms raked Texas and Oklahoma, but most of the twisters struck in open country. No damage or deaths were reported.

Southwest Oklahoma and Laredo, Tex., received more than an inch of rain. Fifty mile an hour winds and quarter-inch hailstones struck near Oklahoma City.

The thunderstorms spread into the northern and central Rockies but turned to snow at West Yellowstone, Mont., where an inch covered the ground.

County Health Unit Recommends Stricter Water Code

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House subcommittee today opened hearings on legislation to dissolve the federal court membership overseeing the way Teamsters' President James R. Hoffa is running his union.

The AFL-CIO immediately announced its opposition to the measure, introduced by Rep. George E. Brown (D-Calif.) with the backing of five other House members.

Hoffa had lined up a dozen AFL-CIO unions to testify in support of the proposal to bar federal judges from starting or continuing any form of supervision over a labor organization.

His aides said they also expected several congressmen and some law professors to endorse the measure that would fulfill a Hoffa dream—disposing of the court-appointed monitors.

Hearing Is Started On Union Monitors

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House subcommittee today opened hearings on legislation to dissolve the federal court membership overseeing the way Teamsters' President James R. Hoffa is running his union.

The AFL-CIO immediately announced its opposition to the measure, introduced by Rep. George E. Brown (D-Calif.) with the backing of five other House members.

Conner Meets Seminole Backers For 'Big Push'

Doyle Conner, campaigning for commissioner of agriculture, visited Seminole County today for the fourth time in six months and criticized W. R. Hancock's "smear" tactics in the campaign.

Conner told his campaign workers at a coffee at Mrs. Appleby's Restaurant that his opponent has resorted to "lies" and a smear campaign to get the nomination.

"It is the act of a desperate man," Conner said, adding that "because of these tactics we are picking up a considerable number of Hancock voters."

Conner thanked his campaign workers in the county and told them "we must not let up now—work for the big push this week."

Conner and Hancock looked over their newspaper support Tuesday and both said they were pleased.

Conner found heartening his endorsement by the Palm Beach Post Times. It was the first metropolitan daily in South Florida to back the Starke candidate.

Hancock said "only two minor newspapers, three of them in North Florida," were behind Conner. Hancock totaled up of major papers which have endorsed him.

Hancock, working through Jacksonville, recommended abolition of retail milk price controls. He proposed protection of producers with a price floor.

The Groveland candidate continued to ask Conner with State Sen. Charley Johns, who comes from Conner's home town.

"There is no doubt," he said, "that if Conner is elected in the cabinet he will continue to follow Johns' special interest philosophy as he has done throughout his entire political career."

Court Strikes Act On Sheriffs

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—The Florida Supreme Court today "reluctantly" struck down the 1957 legislative act taking sheriffs in 48 counties off the controversial fee system.

In a suit brought by the Board of Commissioners of Calhoun County against Sheriff W. C. Reeder, the commission contended the law was a general one not of uniform and general operation throughout the state.

The salary schedule set by the legislative act was the court's main reason for throwing out the law. It said under the schedule, sheriffs in some counties were paid more than sheriffs in other counties because the salaries were based on population.

Other recommendations include that developments consisting of more than 25 lots and requesting individual water and sewage systems must have a lot area of one-half acre or more.

Dean Piver, a developer, told the commission that if these recommendations were established it "would kill off low cost homes in the county."

"In many cases it is just not economically feasible to install treatment and disposal plants," Piver said.

Piver urged the commission to launch a "broad" study of the situation bringing in developers, engineers and local officials.

Chairman John Krifer explained that something must be done soon "with all this concentration of subdivisions."

"If we don't watch out, we will create slums in the county," he said.

County Health Unit Recommends Stricter Water Code

The County Health Unit presented a list of recommendations to the County Commission Tuesday that, if adopted, would just about eliminate septic tanks in large subdivisions in Seminole County.

The commission decided to study the recommendations carefully before reaching any decision.

The recommendations include that a central water and sewer system be provided for areas consisting of more than 25 lots in any new subdivision.

However, County Sanitarian Val Robbins explained that this requirement would be reduced to 10 lots when the subdivision is established in, or adjoining, an established community where the sales potential already is established.

Robbins also recommended that plans and specifications for water and sewer systems be approved by the State Board of Health and County health unit prior to construction.
