

CBSTV Network To Start Color

NEW YORK (AP)—The big push in color television gets under way in the next few weeks.

In the forefront will be those perennial arch rivals of tinted TV, the Columbia Broadcasting System and Radio Corp. of America with many independent telecasters and other set makers in the parade.

CBS television network begins its first large scale color operation Aug. 22 while RCA's National Broadcasting Co. steps up its broadcast programming starting Sept. 14.

On the manufacturing side, CBS is trying to get a jump with a new 19-inch tri-color picture tube already in production by its Hytron Division. Its Columbia Division plans to start producing its own color sets, using the new tube, in late August.

RCA, which already has turned out 5,000 15-inch color sets, plans to unveil a new 21-inch color tube and simplified set Sept. 15. It plans to turn out at least 5,000 of the 21-inch sets by year-end, plus 100,000 three thousand of the tubes for other set makers.

Several other companies are coming out with big screen sets. Motorola brought out a 26-inch model recently for $895. Westinghouse first out with 15-inch models, has a 19-inch model in the works while Admiral is planning a 21-inch model. Some still are waiting for technical refinements before launching color production.

The big spurge of activity will come eight to nine months after formal approval of the present system of color telecasting by the Federal Communications Commission and a year after the FCC had definitely announced it would give its okay.

In the interim, color TV has moved at a snail's pace so far as the public was concerned although there has been feverish activity in laboratories, factories and color studios.

Public acceptance of color was held back mainly by the small screen size of sets, the $1,000 price and the lack of enough color programs on the air.

Hospital Drive At New Smyrna Reaches $6,500

NEW SMYRNA BEACH—More than $6,500 in contributions was received at Memorial Hospital Fund Headquarters in the first nine days of the 15 day campaign launched here to raise $15,000 by Aug. 1, in order that the Fish Memorial Hospital may be opened by Aug. 15.

Co-chairman Walter T. Slattery and David L. Shannon reported that all 9 physicians in the city were listed among contributors totaling $1,000. Many sizeable gifts have been received from outside of the city, including a former resident from Ormond and a Daytona Beach doctor. The biggest contribution, however, came from three building firms, each of which contributed $1,000. They were Mitchell-Alexander Lumber Co., Bond-Howell Lumber Co., and New Smyrna Builders Supply Co.

Campaign headquarters were opened here at 212 Canal St. July 19, official opening of the drive to raise more than $1,000 a day in order to meet the $15,000 goal by Aug. 1.

The 34-bed hospital, was recently completed at a cost of $304,170 exclusive of property on which it stands, which was given by the City of New-Smyrna Beach.

Strolling In Sanford

In case Pete Osborne, Herald writer, seems lost in thought now and then—he has good reason. He is going to become a member of the Army next month, having received his "Greetings" recently.

Adam Miller's three children for about a week coaxed their father to get them kittens. Finally, he got one for them. Then at the former Auction, at Friday, he bought a surprise package. What was in it? Four cats.

Dawn Bishop, a music major at Florida State University is in the orchestra appearing in the film at the Ritz today, "Water Swimming." Mrs. Guy Bishop, her mother, has received word that former vocal student, Dugal Beck, is a member of the world champion Air Force quartet that appeared July 25 on the Ed Sullivan Show. The quartet will show and will be on Orlando TV Sunday. She taught him when she lived in Adams, N.

Nixon Is Quoted As Saying Smith 'On Right Track'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) today quoted Vice President Nixon as saying Smith is "on the right track" with a proposal to investigate Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) as a substitute for a move to censure McCarthy.

Smith told reporters that if his substitute is defeated, however, "I would feel compelled" to vote for a resolution by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) proposing to "condemn" McCarthy's Red-hunting tactics as chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee.

As a substitute for the Flanders resolution, Smith has proposed that the Senate create a special committee, headed by Nixon, to investigate "the alleged goal or evil of so-called McCarthyism." The committee would report to the Senate next year.

Smith said he discussed the plan with Nixon this morning and "the Vice President thinks I'm on the right track."

Smith said some senators have told him they would not support his substitute because it looks like "ducking the issue" regarding McCarthy's activities.

Smith said he would feel "somewhat" to do so.

Boy, 5, Struck By Car In South End Of City

Navy Chief's Son Taken To Hospital After Mishap Early This Afternoon

A five-year-old boy was taken to the Fernald-Laughton Hospital with undetermined injuries early this afternoon after being struck by an automobile at 25th St. and Sanford Ave.

The injured youngster is Richard Simas, son of Chief Petty Officer and Mrs. Ralph Simas, 2649 S. Elm Ave. Driver of the car which struck the boy was Alton Burke, 45, 1201 W. 12th St. He said he was driving west on 25th St. at a speed less than 20 miles per hour when the accident occurred. He claimed at the scene that he did not see the boy until just before the car, a 1948 Oldsmobile sedan, struck him.

Apparently, the boy ran in front of the car after getting out of the car. Mrs. Conroy showed charges over the mishap.

Police men at the scene were Philip Arnold Williams and Ben Butler.

Sex Terrorist Escapes Death For Sixth Time

SAN QUENTIN (AP)—Richard Chasman, convicted sex terrorist turned best-selling author, returned in prison today after his fourth escape from a maximum in six years.

Chasman, 37, was released from San Quentin after serving a 10-year term for a 1947 escape. He was arrested in California in a search for a book he had written on the life of the death penalty in this state.

Chasman's 11th escape from San Quentin was reported today by the San Francisco Chronicle. He was arrested in California in a search for a book he had written on the life of the death penalty in this state.

U. S. Building Large Arsenal Of Atom Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's atomic arsenal is "growing rapidly" in total numbers, the government said today, and high-level action has been taken to assure continued U.S. superiority in A-bomb and H-bomb fields.

The Atomic Energy Commission told Congress today in its semi-annual report that production of uranium from domestic sources in the last six months and a "sharp rise" in the production of fissionable materials at lower unit costs.

AEC reported the start of operation of its big plant at Savannah River, S. C., where research on A-bombs or H-bombs can be made. And it reported continued progress toward development of reactors for industrial nuclear power.

The commission reported the near completion of the atomic power plant to drive the Nautilus, the Navy's first nuclear-powered submarine whose hull has been completed. A second atomic submarine construction and plans for early building of two more were announced yesterday by the Navy.

Paralleling nuclear weapon development since 1950, the commission said, "there has been in progress a concerted development effort on thermonuclear weapons (hydrogen bombs)."

In view of important development programs, a national policy decision was made to take every advantage of such progress to assure that the United States maintains its superiority.

SENATOR Joseph B. McCarty (R-Wis.) tells the Senate Rules subcommittee in Washington that Congress would be hampered rather than helped by proposed new rules for conducting congressional investigations. He said his own subcommittee has all most an ideal set of rules. The declared committee must not be "weighed down by procedural restrictions." The subcommittee is studying proposals for rule changes in investigations.

Cabbie Returns About $100,000 In Checks, Notes

TORONTO (AP)—A police man today returned about $100,000 worth of bank checks and company money orders and a reward, police said today.

The driver found the package in the back of his car. He could have cashed many of the checks, police said.

He turned the bundle over to police, who found the owner offered a reward, the driver, Hiroshi Osumi, 35, told it today.

Officials To Sign Millions In Bonds

TALLAHASSEE (AP)—Gov. John G. M. Baker and his cabinet today will sign $10 million in school bonds for the state.

The bond signing is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday at the Baker Center in Tallahassee.

Baker plans to leave for Tallahassee tomorrow to attend the signing.

The bonds are the second issue to be issued under the state bond fund.

A total of 100 million dollars expected to be raised for school buildings through the program.

Phillips 66 Station To Have Its Grand Opening Tomorrow

The grand opening of Mac's 66 Service, 217 S. Park Ave., tomorrow will be backed by Max Fudom's pledge, "The last word in fine products and efficient service," and an extra crew of service personnel has been called in to handle an expected day-long rush of business during the opening.

The station, which is managed by Fudom and handles Phillips petroleum products exclusively, will have regular hours from 7 a. m. to 9:30 p. m. Fudom has stated that he will show his appreciation for patronage through "a hearty welcome and friendly, efficient car care."

Grand opening gifts will include measuring spoons, oil can banks, lighter fluid, bubble gum for children, fine parts oil, and roses for the ladies. On hand from the Tampa division of the Phillips Company will be an engineer and four servicemen to handle the heavy turn-over of business. Fudom has promised that there will be no unnecessary delay in having cars serviced tomorrow.

The station will operate from 7 a. m. until 10 p. m. opening day, to allow for expected increased patronage. It was pointed out by L. L. Cook, station engineer from the Tampa office, that the Phillips stations are the most expensively-equipped of all major oil companies. Since coming to Florida only a year ago, Cook said, Phillips has expanded to one of the largest dealers in the state, and called this trend "indicative of the quality of our products."

Fudom is asking that everyone drive in tomorrow and look over his station, and receive a favor. Fudom will have the assistance of Charlie Bragg, ex-

Husband Cleared Of Wife's Death

BALTIMORE (AP)—George W. Eller, 46, of Parkville, Md., was cleared yesterday of any guilt in the death of his wife after taking the first official lie-detector test given in Baltimore County.

His wife, 37-year-old Mrs. Myrtle Eller, was killed early Wednesday morning. Eller told police he mistook her for a prowler at their home on the north-east edge of Baltimore.

W. T. Knight Is Selected As Elks Official

W. T. (Bill) Knight, a life-long resident of Titusville, has been honored by being selected district deputy grand exalted ruler of the east central division of Elks of Florida. Selection was announced this week by William J. Jernick, the newly-installed grand exalted ruler of B. P. O. E. in the United States.

Knight's division includes 12 lodges, located in Cocoa, Melbourne Eau Gallie, New Smyrna Beach, Daytona Beach, Orlando, Sanford, Winter Park, Orlando East, Leesburg, Clermont-Groveland and Kissimmee. Among his duties as district deputy will be an official visit to all 12 lodges in the division in addition to promotion of Elks' activities. He will be officially inducted into the office at a conference at the National Elks Home in Bedford, Va., on Aug. 21. Knight joined the Cocoa Lodge in January, 1942. He served in all the chairs in the Cocoa lodge, followed by a year as ritualistic chairman of the central division. He served a year as state chairman of the ritualistic committee under Dean W. J. Matherly, when Matherly was president of the Florida Elks Association, and a year as vice-president of the north-east division. During the past year Knight has served as co-chairman of the new lodges committee for the entire state.

Local Legion Ball Team Making Good Showing In Area Tournament

Coach Red Hires and his bunch of youngsters on Post 53's team in the American Legion Junior Baseball program certainly deserve credit for the showing they have made in the Legion's eighth area tournament at Wauchula.

After a mediocre season, the locals have turned on the steam and captured both contests they have played in the tourney, beating Clearwater, 6-2, and Avon Park, 13-8.

Drum Along The Potomac

Young Dwight David Eisenhower III, grandson of the President and all boy according to reports, has a shiny new drum. It is a gift from a company that has been manufacturing drums for a long, long time. A similar instrument was presented to the young son of Abraham Lincoln when the Lincolns were White House residents.

The drum is said to be a sturdy, well-made affair, not likely to be easily broken or worn out. But if the drum won't wear out what about President and Mrs. Eisenhower—will they hold out as well.

The President—when he was a general—was used to a great deal of noise. This offers hope, for the combination of artillery barrages, rifle fire and bursting bombs can sometimes approach the quality of the dip raised by a small boy with a drum.

Mrs. Eisenhower has made it very plain, however, that young Dwight David will beat the drum in the White House only so long as he does not abuse the privilege. Expecting even the best behaved youngster to exercise restraint when dealing with a drum is like expecting the Soviet Union to apply for admission to the States as Hawaii and Alaska are doing. The drum will end up in a closet, most likely. Boys will be boys and grandmothers will be grandmothers, even in the White House.

A free press The free press we enjoy today is a heritage from brave men who stood their ground in the past in the battle for the right to write what they believed to be the truth.

Such a man was John Peter Zenger, a printer and editor in New York City in 1735. Like many newspaper editors Zenger was an outspoken man. He dared to criticize the governor-in-chief of the province of New York and he was arrested. He came to trial on August 4th, 1735.

A great attorney, Andrew Hamilton, argued Zenger's case. Although the authorities were anxious to find Zenger guilty of libel, he should be acquitted. The principle that the truth should be the only limit on a man's ability to criticize his rulers was upheld by the jury. It was a milestone in the march toward an unfettered press.

The names of John Peter Zenger and Andrew Hamilton must be written with the names of the other champions of human freedom. Today, when there are so many countries where freedom of expression has been stifled, it is good for us to remember and pay homage to those whose courage made our free press possible. Without a free press none of our other liberties would long survive.

HAL BOYLE

McCarthy Takes Spotlight Again

WASHINGTON UP—The position Sen. McCarthy found himself in today—waiting while his fellow senators argued whether to censure him—was typical of the role forced in him in 1954. It's a new one for him.

Ever since 1950, when he first made headlines with charges of Communism in government, he had moved fast kept punching. He roared with the counter-punches, slugged harder in return. Nothing kept him quiet.

For most of this year he has been forced into a role sometimes passive, sometimes defensive. It has been that way with him ever since the Eisenhower administration early this year struck back at him.

In the past he called his shots, getting attention when he wanted it with a statement or an attack. This year the shots have been called on him. Most of the attention given him in 1954 has not been of his choosing.

McCarthy, a man of energy who thrived on action, has been slowed down. Whether or not anyone in the administration foresaw the result of the decision to hit back at him, the result was to crimp his style.

Sen. Flanders' effort may fail. The 73-year-old Vermont Republican wants the Senate to censure McCarthy. If it fails, McCarthy may take that as a vote of approval and come bounding back like a wild horse.

Although it was his own Republican party which had taken over, McCarthy began sticking needles into the Eisenhower administration early in 1953. He kept on sticking them.

The decision to tell him "whoa" was made when the Army charged McCarthy and his Senate investigation subcommittee staff had sought special treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine and had threatened retaliation if they didn't get him.

When McCarthy counter-charged that top Army officials had used Schine as a "hostage" to make McCarthy pull up on his search for Communists in the Army, the fight was in the line. The Senate itself had to step in to investigate, and the subcommittee temporarily sided with McCarthy's fight in case McCarthy was slowly down. McCarthy, glued to the hearings, was like a boxer with his hands tied behind his back.

He filed his briefs in the long weeks of the hearings he had to concentrate on one subject: trying to make himself and his staff look good and the Army bad. He fought hard, he was nimble, and before the hearings ended the Army and the administration may have washed the whole thing had never been permitted to start.

If the administration had planned, or hoped, to keep McCarthy off its back for most of the congressional session, it succeeded. For even when the hearings ended McCarthy did not resume his fight.

First of all, he went off for a rest of almost three weeks. Then he wanted, he said, to go after Communists in defense plants. All through the hearings he had complained they were delaying his search for Reds in those plants.

He made a brief stab at holding hearings on that subject and then dropped them, at least for the time being. He has probably been more quiet since the hearings ended than in any similar period since 1950.

For there was some unsettled business: What his own Senate subcommittee, which conducted the hearings, would say when it finished working on its report. It hasn't finished yet.

In the meantime, he lost his right hand man, Roy M. Cohn, who resigned after it was reported a majority of the subcommittee—three Democrats and one Republican—were after the young New York attorney's scalp. Cohn had been chief counsel for McCarthy and, judging from what McCarthy said, invaluable.

Meanwhile, Flanders had been trying to cook up grief for McCarthy, first with an effort to get the Senate to take McCarthy's committee chairmanships away from him and when that seemed ticketed for failure, to censure him. But whether or not anyone likes or dislikes McCarthy, Flanders and his friends probably agree: He has never so far looked like a quitter when the going was rough. He'll probably sound back, ensure of no censure, as soon as he sees an opening.

Artery Banks Now Aid Patients with Aneurysm

HOSPITALS, like automobile agencies, have now developed spare parts departments. Thirty years ago, the idea that parts of one human body could be replaced by parts from another human body was held to be highly unlikely.

We now have many types of banks in hospitals to help repair the human body. There are bone banks, blood banks, eye banks, skin grafting bank, and cartilage banks.

Today, we have a new type of bank known as an artery bank. Portions of blood vessels can usually be stored for a considerable length of time under proper refrigeration.

A fairly common disease found in many people is known as an aneurysm of the artery. This is a weakening of the wall of the artery, which may burst and cause a fatal attack.

Artery banks have a new start at the large blood vessel banking service.

reaches the abdomen. The vessel swells like a large balloon. It can rupture, due to the weakened wall, instantaneously killing the patient.

On a Powder Keg

The patient with an aneurysm is like one sitting on a powder keg that may explode at any moment. It is here that an artificial graft becomes important. The diseased portion of the artery can be clamped and tied off, and the artery replaced. Drugs to prevent clotting often must be used to keep the blood from clotting to this new graft while the surgery is being performed. This type of operation may be life-saving.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. T.: I have got it in my mind that drinking of alcoholic beverages may cause a liver attack. Answer: Yes, it does. Many persons may have a liver attack after drinking of alcoholic beverages.

NEW DEVELOPMENT, OLD CHINESE CUSTOM

Rev. Paul Hoyt To Speak Sunday

Rev. Paul C. Hoyt, pastor of First Methodist Church, Brattleboro, Vt., will fill the pulpit of First Methodist church, Sanford, on Sunday evening at the eight o'clock service. The Rev. Mr. Hoyt and Mrs. Hoyt, formerly Helen Chapman, with their two children, Bill and Pat, are here in Sanford on a visit with Mrs. Hoyt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Chapman.

Mr. Hoyt is an A. B. graduate of Florida Southern College and a B. D. graduate of Boston University. His theological training also included work at Hartford Seminary.

Mr. Hoyt's sermon topic for Sunday evening is "No Greater Sin!"

Christian Church To Have Program Sunday Afternoon

Approximately 100 young people from the Orlando District of Christian Churches are expected to attend a Christian Youth Fellowship meeting in the Christian Church of Sanford, Sunday Aug. 1.

The program will begin at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon with a song service followed at 6:30 by the youth from the Daytona Beach Christian Church who will present a special worship program for the young people.

Later a short business meeting will be held and a light dinner is to be served by the members of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the Sanford Christian Church.

Nurse Lady

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

"ARE YOU going to register again?" Cynthia asked after Nora had told her of her patient's death. She had fixed coffee and a lettuce and tomato sandwich, which she now put down before the other nurse.

"No, I don't think so. I think I'll just stay home—until Alan gets here." At mention of her sweetheart's name, Nora's small, piquant face lighted up so that it was not plain at all that beautiful. "Not until that," Nora returned, "but it will give me a chance to do some shopping."

"Trouseaux?" Cynthia teased. She poured herself another cup of coffee and sat down opposite Nora. She had had a busy morning, showing Miss Whiting about the clinic. And having been out late last night, she was ready to relax and take things easy, too.

It had been a pleasant evening. She and Norman had driven to a little roadside place where they had danced to their heart's content. Norman had proved a good partner. Cynthia had not danced in so long she was afraid at first she would be awkward and find it difficult to follow his lead. But when the new step had been managed without too much effort.

"Yes," Nora said, her face lighting up again. "Alan wants to be married almost as soon as he gets here."

"I should think you'd be waiting long enough." And there could be no doubt as to their love. Cynthia thought, with a small pang of envy. They had known each other so long, grown up together, shared a great many things, never thought there might be anyone else for either one.

It seemed to her that that was the way love should be. Not a thunderbolt, as Norman claimed. "It has been a long while," Nora sighed. "But I'd wait all my life for Alan if I had to."

"Well, that might be all right for some people," Cynthia thought, but did she want to wait a lifetime to try to wake Walt up—to be old and gray, as she had said to him. She wanted to build a marriage, a home; she wanted to have children of her own, not spend all her life taking care of other people's.

"I'll go shopping with you," she said. "I just adore looking at lovely things, even when I can't afford to buy them."

"Don't you have to work?"

"I stopped today." Then, at the other nurse's astounded expression, Cynthia laughed and added, "I'm on vacation." It seems that Dr. Bellare thinks I need a rest, and a change, too."

"Well, it all works out beautifully," Nora was pleased. She had not caught the slight suggestion of irony in Cynthia's last remark.

Eighth Birthday Is Celebrated By John Appleby, Schoolmates

John Appleby celebrated his eighth birthday Wednesday with his many friends at Forest Park School in Orlando. Each child wore a colorful hat of crepe paper and John, who was king for a day, wore a silver crown.

The luncheon was lovely with its colorful paper streamers, hanging balloons, and in the midst of the table was John's happy birthday cake with eight candles.

Mrs. A. J. Peterson of Sanford told the children a story entitled "The Plink". Games that could be enjoyed by those who sat in chairs were played. A fishing pole was handed each child as he pulled a gift out of a hidden pond and songs were sung.

Pink and white ice cream was served on heavy birthday plates following which John opened many useful and lovely gifts from his teachers and friends.

Mrs. George Pittard, driver of the bus that takes Seminole County children to the Orlando school, stated, "John blew out his candles and his wish is known by only him and God, but his prayer is 'Lord, give me daily strength and help me to be a better boy'."

"It was a night that would warm any heart to see 55 of those who come each day for therapy treatments at Forest Park summer school all filled with gladness to celebrate the last day of school and John's birthday."

Mrs. Pittard continued, "My heart is happy because of the happiness Forest Park has given Seminole County's 12 handicapped children. Those who have made it possible have eyes that are opened to a need. As Mrs. Peterson said, 'If a need is not known, we are not alerted. I have seen limbs that were once stiff and useless become useful because of the therapy treatment that these children receive.'"

"There is a blessing waiting for those who help these children, the help that we need. We need your continued interest. John, I enjoyed your birthday party. It was wonderful," concluded Mrs. Pittard.

Driving Lessons Cost Less Than Crumpled Fender

If your teen-ager takes out his youthful exuberance on the family car, here are some tested methods to get him and his friends back to the car in one piece.

Hot rodders show off safely in a teen-age roadster, sponsored by your community or the Junior Chamber of Commerce. This is a series of tests in driver skills.

The "take it easy" race teaches drivers economy as the youngsters try to reach 100 miles per hour in a gallon.

Racing against par features an obstacle course. First a police officer rides over the course obeying all traffic rules. Then contestants do the same. Object of this race is to get youngsters to obey the rules instinctively.

The "drag strip," which started in California, is a straight line track devised with the hot rodder in mind. If the teen-agers want to see how fast they can go—this is the place to do it, where it is supervised and free from pedestrians and other cars.

Hot rod clubs have sprung up all over the country to teach members to abide by safety rules.

Another way to cut down on the 2,450,000 yearly accidents in which persons under 20 are involved is to teach them the right way to drive while they are still in high school.

The American Automobile Assn. reports that more than 330,000 high school students took behind-the-wheel training courses last year and an additional 250,000 had only classroom instruction. One-fourth of the nation's secondary schools participated.

Cost per student for the full course is only $36—less than the cost of repairing one crumpled fender.

About two-thirds of Florida's twenty-million acres of woodlands. Only about one-fifth of all Southern forest lands are under any form of organized fire protection.

More than twenty million acres of poorly stocked forest lands is in need of reforestation in the South. Florida alone needs productive trees on over three and a half million acres. Where reforestation by natural seeding is not possible, the job will have to be done by hand.

More women than men wear glasses—36.4 per cent of wearers are women.

Georgia Thigpen Becomes Bride Of Elton H. Myers Jr.

GEORGIA THIGPEN, 20, of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Thigpen, is announcing the marriage of their daughter, Georgia Ann, to Elton Myers Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Myers.

The wedding was performed by the Rev. J. B. Root at his home on June 27. The bride wore a powder blue dress accented with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For a honeymoon the couple traveled to the Florida west coast and they are presently making their home on S. Sanford Ave.

Small Children Chill Easily On Hot Summer Day

By DOROTHY V. WIPPLE, M.D.
The hotter the day, the more tempting a nice cool spray of water. Children love to put on bathing suits and run in and out of the spray of the lawn sprinkler.

It's fun and it seems harmless enough. However, there are a few hazards, especially for boys. If the day is very hot and it's on such days that the play comes up—the difference in temperature between the air and the water may be very great.

Little children chill quickly. If a child becomes chilled, he or she could catch a cold. The child's very likely to come down with a sore throat the next day.

It's best to avoid a sudden change in temperature. If you must get a child chilled, do it gradually. When the thermometer is hovering in the high 80's, it's the best time to get a child chilled.

Older children seem much better able to withstand a reasonable amount of chilling without ill effects. But the little tots, the ones, three- and four-year-olds, have not built up much resistance to this kind of abuse. Not all of course, but a fair number develop colds and sore throats after chilling.

Since it's such a lot of fun to play in the spray, there's nothing to do to make it safer.

Yes, avoid chilling. Have your sprinkler play when it isn't so blistering hot. On a warm sunny day, not a very hot one, there's less danger. But the air temperature and water temperature will be so far apart as to cause chilling.

Also, if there is any wind, you can run a hot of water through the garden hose and have the problem solved for any day.

If you're going to permit it any way, and take the danger, at least have the child with a towel and dry the child off quickly as soon as he comes out of the water. This at least cuts down the hazard, though it does not eliminate it.

If instead of a sprinkler you have a backyard wading pool, it's easy to see that the water isn't too cold. If you just put the pool in the sun for an hour before the children play in it, the shallow water will warm up. If your pool is in the shade, fill it with warm water instead of cold water.

AVERAGE 15 PLUS
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Seventeen swimmers, forgetting their weight—crowded into a University of California elevator with a 2,000-pound load limit. P. lunch between floors, impressing them for 15 minutes. No one was hurt.

Ice cream packed in a carton then wrapped with several pieces of dry ice in heavy paper, or packed in a corrugated box and lightly sealed may be kept without other refrigeration from two to eight hours, depending on the amount of dry ice used and how complete the wrapping is.

THE FLORIDA PERISCOPE
By GORDON R. ELWELL

Oysters may not be the most glamorous of water creatures—but the Florida branch of this bivalvian family is one of our state's economic beauties.

Because of water pollution in some sections, the Florida oyster is far from reaching its potential as one of our major economic bulwarks. Studies by the Florida Oyster Division of the State Board of Conservation and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service indicate, however, that our oysters offer something better than pearls.

Major oyster beds in the state are located in Apalachicola Bay. From these and other scattered beds in the state, more than 339,739 pounds of oysters were produced in 1952. That is just a beginning on what the oyster industry can really do, according to the experts.

And the oyster offers a real opportunity to the business man. For example, scientific studies are being carried out which indicate that Florida oysters produce faster over longer periods of time than any other variety in the United States.

The famed oyster producing areas of Chesapeake Bay and Long Island Sound are, apparently, slowly becoming barren. The oysters that do grow in these areas take from four to four and a half years to reach maturity. Their spawning periods cover from six weeks to two months.

In comparison, the Florida oyster spawns over a period of eight months out of each year. Their growth is phenomenally fast—taking only a year and a half to reach full maturity from a microscopic beginning.

Another idea—top that uninteresting unframed mirror over your dresser in the bedroom with a valance, such as the one illustrated here (it can be cut to any width), then paint it to complement your room.

This valance is the old standby—probably the most variable decorating helper. It is shown here doing living or bedroom duty, but it can support wall-to-wall traverse drapes in the dining room as easily. And it can help to hide windows as well as it can to keynote them.

You can wipe away those odd-shaped, old-fashioned openings, like doors and recessed shelves, with a valance and drape. Be careful not to make them spotty, cover most of a wall rather than the separate eye sores.

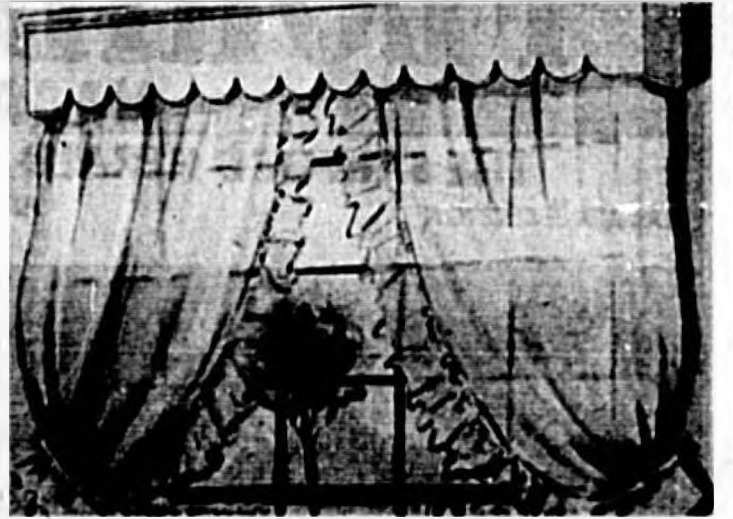

Decide where you want your valances, then send for Build-It-Yourself Pattern No. 27, which gives you a complete material list plus step-by-step instructions and illustrations on how to assemble it. You trace the pattern on the lumber—so you just can't go wrong. It's fun to do too, it could start you on a pleasing and eventually profitable hobby.

After building the valance, paint it shades to match your walls or, in a few cases, bright or subtle complementary tones. Some people wallpaper them or fatten decals, depending upon the type of room being rejuvenated. You might even get a circle stencil and dot the scallops for a perky playroom note.

Send 25 cents for Window Valance Pattern No. 27 to Pattern Dept., All Florida Magazine, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, New York. (Allow two weeks for delivery.)

How many folks remember the early Florida railway line that was known as the "Celestial Railroad"? It ran between Jupiter and Juno.

Speaking of railroads, do you know that you can board a train and, without changing cars, travel from Cornell to Vassar, Stanford, Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Wellesley on the 50 miles of the Washington, Idaho and Montana Railroad. That is if anyone wants to go to school that bad.

Another fascinating statistic is that you could take all the cross ties under all the tracks of American railroads and encircle the earth with a "boardwalk" 50 feet wide. If you have the time and energy, that is.

And to end the department of useless statistics . . .

There is a railroad in the Dominican Republic that was financed by the Dutch, built by Belgians, has British bridges, uses American rolling stock, is owned by Dominicans and operated by Americans.

North-South All-Star Games To Herald Fall Prep Seasons

By DICK TAYLOR

Those whistles you will hear up in the north end of the state, August 11 and 12 will herald the beginning of Florida's fall football season, with a reminder that the basketball season is soon to follow.

We're speaking of the annual All-Star high school basketball and football games which will be played here on those dates, between the cream of last season's senior athletes from throughout the state. It's all part of the University of Florida's and the state prep coaches' week-long school on the Gator campus.

The school will feature football coaches Sid Gilman of the University of Cincinnati and Hank Crisp, of Alabama, and basketball mentor Everett Case of North Carolina State.

The all-star basketball game will be played in the vast Gator fieldhouse, Aug. 11, and the grid game will be staged the following night at Florida Field. The tilts attract thousands of fans, as well as noteworthy high school coaches.

This year, Ralph Chaudron of Tate High in Pensacola will guide the North's cage stars, and Vince Shaefer of Miami Senior, the South's ace graduates.

Another Miami Senior mastermind, Chatley Tate, will coach the South's gridlers against Leesburg Coach Ed Stack.

Dominating the South quintet are four Miami Senior players, while the Northern outfit is evenly represented by players throughout this section.

On the football teams, Tate's South aggregation boasts some of the finest players developed in state high school play, and almost all of the competitors on both teams made all-state honors this past season. Miami Edison, Miami Senior, Palm Beach and Coral Gables high schools each placed three men on the South team, while Pensacola's fine team placed four with the Northerners.

Here are the 1951 selections: basketball, North—Keith King, Dean Craig, Orlando; Darnell Owens, Jimmy Chambliss, Malone; A. C. Sheffield, Pensacola; Lenau

Huff, Jacksonville; Bobby Whatley, Tallahassee; Mose Walsh, Wilfwood; Robert Verlander, Marianna; Bernie Parrish, Gainesville.

South—Richard Hoban, Bob Bushong, Wayne Williams, Cliff Myers, and Charles Pike, Miami; Stanley Hobbs, Charles Rodriguez and Joe Cardinale, Tampa; "Scooter" Buck, Pompano; Larry Smith, Haines City.

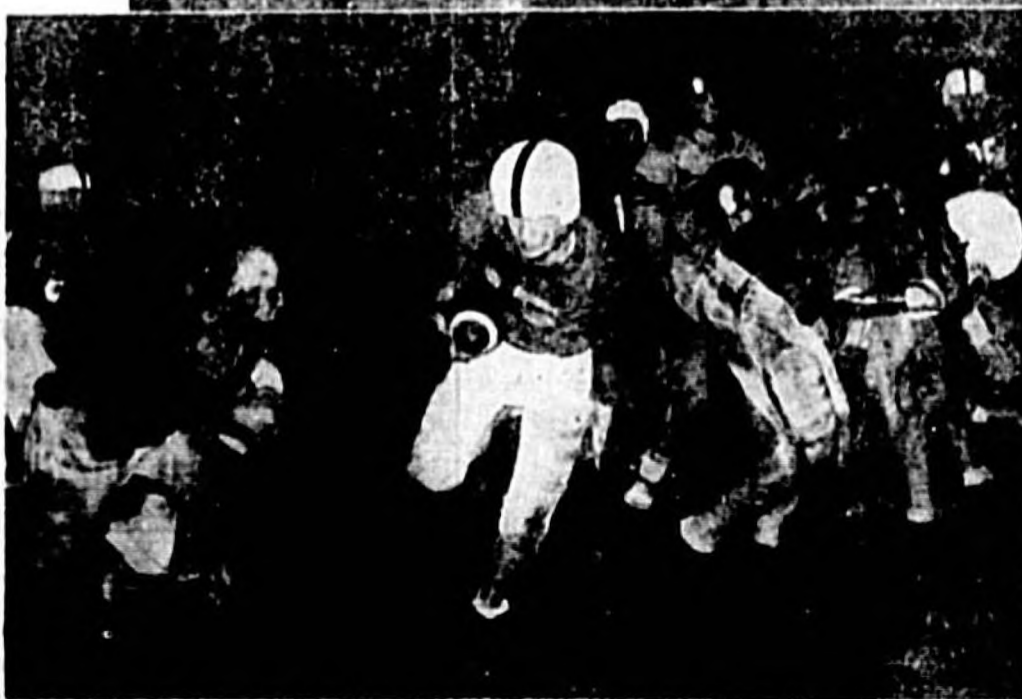

The North football stars: Robert Stewart, Ocala; Gene Ritch, Gainesville; and Dan Tredwell, Dixie County; centers; Henry Thieman, Jacksonville; Y. B. Patterson, Pensacola; Bob Morris, Bay County; Dick Mann, Gainesville; and Bill Brown, Orlando; guards, Larry Strom, Jacksonville; Max Baxter, Pensacola; "Bunkey" Burleson, Bay County; Merle Hutchins, Clupley; and Les Edwards, Apopka; tackles, Vince Fichtel, Leesburg; Louis Tenney, Palatka; Bob Zier, Jacksonville; Ken Seymour, Tate; and Les Edwards, Jacksonville; ends, Ed Sears and Lonnie Williams, Pensacola; Dick Whittington, Jacksonville; Joe Priest, Ocala; John May, Washington County; Jere Daniels, Gainesville; Don Pelham, Dixie County; and Emile Abood, Jacksonville; backs.

South all-stars: Charles Boyd, Manatee; Lynn Fort, III, Palm Beach; and Ed Williams, Lakeland; centers, Bill Durrance, Hardee County; Charles Gill, Tampa; Wathom Bailey, Haines City; Jimmy Rose, Miami; and Joe Atwood, Coral Gables; guards, Don Hicks, Charles Mitchell and Paul Smith, Miami; Matt Tracy, Palm Beach; and Frank Carter, Pinecrest; tackles, Jerry Strickland, Hardee; Bill Anderson, Manatee; Don Kennipp, Miami; Bob Harrell, Lakeland; and Jack Kelley, Coral Gables; ends; Dick McGhee, Ellis Baker, Jim Rountree, Ronald Renault, Miami; Buddy Reynolds, Palm Beach; J. V. Tanner, Clewiston; Al Carter, Sarasota; Bill Weaver, Coral Gables; Bill Wilkes and Bill Mooneyham, Bartow; and Fred Studstill, Brandon.

Four dream teams which will come alive August 11 and 12.

SPORTS

BOB BALFE, All Florida Sports Editor

Action galore will prevail when the cream of Florida's high school football players meet in the annual All Star game Aug. 12 at Gainesville. Accompanying photos were taken at prep gridirons over the state during the 1951 season.

Why Floridians Are . . . "DOING-IT-THEMSELVES"

By JULIUS STURM

With the cost of everything sky high, many Floridians have found the secret of increasing their incomes without finding any more of that green stuff in their pay envelopes. They've joined the "do-it-yourself" parade.

Do you scoff when you come across "How to . . ." articles and diagrams, like those on pages eight and nine? Well—one Tampa housewife received an estimate of $150 for repainting her living room and dining room. As she was operating on a tight budget, she finally did the work herself—for about $30, including the cost of the paint, roller, and dropcloth. She didn't scoff when she saved more in one day than she could have in weeks of skimping.

Then there's the businessman in Leesburg who gives his wife regular haircuts and pins up her home permanents. They're not scoffing, either.

Nor are the painters and beauty shops and plumbers and electricians and dozens of other service-type workmen scoffing as they see job after job slip through their fingers because people are learning to "do-it-themselves."

What's behind this trend, or movement, or fad, or whatever you want to call it?

It's a simple, but often overlooked, basic fact that a person making $50 a week can't afford the services of a person making $120 a week. That's the answer in a nutshell, but there are also other factors.

For one thing, it's more convenient for a man to rewire an electric outlet, devoting 20 minutes to a job that requires 20 minutes, when he has 20 minutes to spare, rather than pay an hourly rate that'll include the comings and goings during, say, a couple of hours.

Necessity comes into the picture, too. A plumber may not be available at two in the morning to stem the flow from a burst pipe, nor an electrician on Sunday morning to rewire a receptacle.

And there's this to consider: Once a man discovers he can fix a leak or rewire an electrical outlet, he's "hooked!" From then on he's a dyed-in-the-wool "do-it-yourself" adherent.

The areas of business which seem to feel this trend most keenly are the "services," but even there it's not too stringent. People are learning to do things for themselves that they used to pay for, and these things seem to fall into certain rather specific categories.

Whereas beauty parlors feel the pinch, manufacturers of home-permanents are enjoying a boom. Self-service laundries have sprung up to take a large slice out of professional laundry revenues. But, though all sorts of electrical kitchen gadgets are flooding the market and are readily absorbed into homes, bakeries continue to make money. Barber shops remain busy despite the trend to electric razors and do-it-yourself haircuts. More men are getting under the hoods of their cars now than ever before, but mechanics still have work lined up outside their garage doors.

The one area where something of substantial economic importance seems to be taking place is the home—building, maintaining, and improving the home and its surroundings. Since Floridians, as a group, spend about one-fourth of their annual income in this way, any change in the economic structure is of major importance. By examining one field—let's say, for instance, the paint industry—we gain an insight into what's going on.

City after city reports a yearly drop in union membership as men desert the painting trade. Painters also complain they're having trouble getting apprentices to learn the business.

Contrast this with the old gold-strike in the paint industry. Never in the history of Florida have we been using so much paint. What's using it? Certainly not the painters. The answer is that homeowners themselves are splashing on gallons and paying low prices for the privilege, whereas they used to pay painters big wages for doing it. Now when professional painters confine themselves mainly to new construction.

The majority of this amateur painting is being done by none other than the lady of the house. And it's not surprising. Not only has much of the supposed mystery been stripped from the process, but the paint industry is now making available materials and equipment to simplify the job for her. One is the handy rubber-based paint, and a real boon it is. It's easily applied, won't show brush marks, dries swiftly, and the slight odor quickly disappears. Also (and here's where the manufacturers get a figurative kiss from housewives) any spots missed the day before can be touched up without any visible lapping. The new roller idea saves wear and tear on the wrist, and some of them have long handles so you can paint your ceiling without climbing a ladder. They're even putting out disposable paper dropcloths which retail at a dollar.

But not all the new labor- and money-saving devices are confined to the paint industry. The homeowner who does-it-himself is bombarded by manufacturers in many fields. Resilient flooring is now made in easily handled tile squares of plastic, cork, asphalt, linoleum, wood, and rubber. You can even get carpeting in this form.

Wallpaper has always been a bugaboo for the amateur. Now there's some on the market with slow-drying glue already attached. You hang it, then slide it around until you get it exactly where you want it.

Every conceivable type of product is now marketed for easy home use. Plastic pipe for all cold-water uses around the house, which requires only a screwdriver for connecting. You can get rain gutters which require no soldering. There are preassembled electrical fixtures to simplify wiring or rewiring.

And technology has kept pace with the trend, providing a wealth of combination-type tools. The professional workman disregards these because of the time needed to change from one operation to another, but the home workman hails the versatility they lend his activities while adding down his outlay for tools.

The intrepid do-it-yourselfers who tackle the building of their own homes from the ground up are the ones who reap the major benefits of this boom. On the average, these home builders lay out about two-thirds as much money and get 50 per cent more home, than the person who buys his already completed.

As one proud builder put it: "I figure I'm ahead three ways! I paid out less money than I would have had to put into a house. The value of my property is several thousand dollars greater than it would have been had I bought a ready-made job. And, probably most important, by building it myself I've been able to give my family a much nicer place in which to live than I could have in any other way."

If you're a millionaire this article probably won't interest you. If you're like the rest of us, you have to make the dollars count. Turn to page eight and try some easy projects. If you discover you can save a reasonably straight line and drive a nail without driving your thumb with it, then make your plans and jump right into the middle of this do-it-yourself movement.

There's no better time to start than right now.

BUILD YOUR OWN PATIO

Every year more and more Floridians are extending their living space to include the out-of-doors, and are taking as much pride in their yards as they do in the interiors of their homes. Patios and garden walks have become popular, especially in Central Florida, where one man in particular has helped increase this upsurge in outdoor beautification.

Frank Williamson of Winter Park has made the building of patios and walks an easy "do it yourself" construction job for homeowners. As president of Holloway Concrete Products and a keen student of outdoor landscaping, it was only natural that Williamson's two interests would result in concrete products for use in outdoor beautification. Today the Holloway Concrete stepping stones are decorating yards and gardens in many Central Florida cities.

Manufactured at Winter Park, they are precast concrete slabs which are durable and so simple to install that any homeowner can do the work himself.

Patios and garden walks may be owner-designed and as individual as the people who enjoy them since the stepping stones come in an assortment of patterns which make it possible to fit any area, regardless of how irregular it may be. They may be laid in basket-weave or strip patterns, and come in a choice of seven colors.

The stepping stones are machine-made so that they are completely uniform and are therefore easy to lay true. They are available in thicknesses of two and four inches, the latter being strong enough for driveways.

With stepping stones, Mr. Average Homeowner can have the fun of constructing anything from a simple garden walk to an extensive patio, with professional results at minimum cost.

Outdoor fireplaces in an infinite variety of designs provide a choice which makes it possible to complete any patio to the owner's taste and requirements.

Professionally built or owner-constructed, the outdoor fireplace may be as simple or elaborate as the taste dictates. It may be combined with the garden wall, if desired, or it may stand alone at the edge of patio or boundary.

In any case, it is a delightful adjunct to Florida living, and makes alfresco meals convenient as well as pleasant.

You, Too, Can Convert to COMFORT with...

LATEX FOAM

Have you a yen to "do over" a chair or some other piece of upholstered furniture in your home? It is much simpler and easier with latex foam. And the results will amaze you—more beauty, more comfort, and a cushioning material that will never wear out! Here's how to do it:

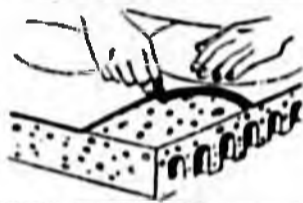

EQUIPMENT YOU WILL NEED No complicated special equipment is needed for upholstering with latex foam. It can be cut, shaped or trimmed with regular shears, a sharp knife, or razor. The only other items you will need for working with latex foam are rubber fabricating cement, ordinary tacking tape (or special latex foam adhesive tape), and soapstone.

MARKING YOUR PATTERN

Patterns may be marked on latex foam with a soft lead or wax pencil, with talc dusted through a perforated pattern, or with talc dusted around the edges of a solid pattern.

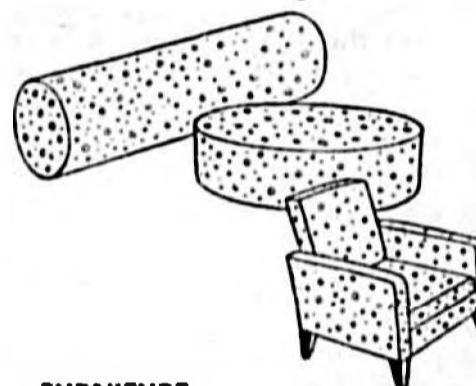

CUTTING THE LATEX FOAM Latex foam can be cut to any desired shape quickly and easily. In general, add $\frac{1}{4}$ inch to your pattern on all sides (including arm and frame posts) for upholstering allowance.

Latex foam can be bent, rolled or folded, cut or cemented together to form any shape. Latex foam can be used wherever a cushioning material is desired—over any type of surface and in any type or style of furniture.

HOW TO USE CEMENT

Cement may be used for securing the latex foam padding and cushions to the base of frame, for fastening tacking tape and for joining sections and fabricating cushions. Cement should be applied to both sections to be joined and should be allowed to dry long enough to become "tacky" before pressing together. Any cement left exposed on surfaces after fabricating should be dusted with soapstone. Cemented pieces should be permitted to set for several hours before they are used.

THE BACKYARD (IS IT AN EYESORE?)

Is your back yard a place of beauty which reflects the outdoors part of your life, or merely an area back of your house upon which you sometimes cast a reproachful eye, wishing it had a little more personality?

If, like many of us, you have to admit it's in bad shape, what's the matter with right now for painting that picket fence and repairing the back gate?

I know it's hard to overcome that spring fever, but if the yard is ever to be made into a picturesque setting for the little woman's flower beds, and a real asset to your home, we'd better get busy. As a starter, dress up that unsightly bare spot with a brick curbing and a few flowers.

Here are some more suggestions:

DRESS UP THE BACK GATE

Simplicity is the keynote in this gate arch. Easily built by amateurs like us, it is equally effective in a hedge-row or in a picket fence. A big, ponderous structure has no place in most back yards. This one gives you permanent, rigid posts for your gate, and makes an excellent support for your hedge or climbing vines.

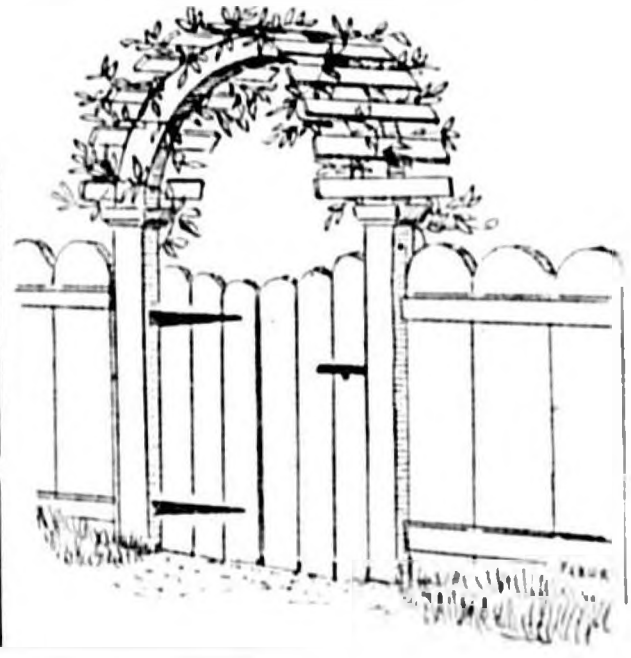

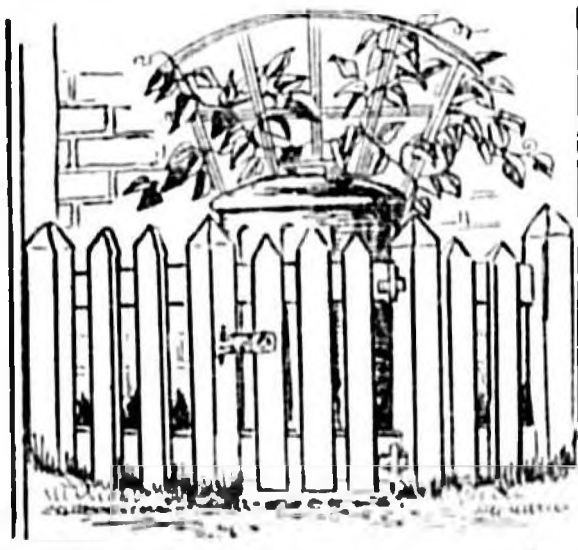

TRELLIS TO COVER "EYE-SORE"

Draw a circle using a piece of string with a nail as the center. Lay pieces of lattice stock over the circle, as shown in the diagram, and saw the ends to conform to the circle. Fasten with clinch nails, and creosote thoroughly the part going into the ground.

"ANIMAL-PROOF GARBAGE CAN"

Four 4-foot posts support 2x4 rails, top and bottom, to which are nailed pointed pickets. The area enclosed is just large enough to accommodate garbage can. A fan trellis behind the can makes a fine rose arbor.

FROCKS 'N FRILLS

By PAULA CLARK
All Florida Fashion Editor

LONDON—British cottons brighten the shop windows along Bond and Regent Streets and you'll be seeing more of them in the United States, but woolen walking suits are the costume of the day even at the height of summer.

Fortunately, a swift, smooth crossing on one of Pan American World Airways' flying yachts didn't rumple the only woolen suit in this Floridian's wardrobe. With a change of jersey blouse, it tripped out to tea at the Dorchester, where the doorman wears a high silk hat, to the Oliviers' exciting performance of "The Sleeping Prince" (curtain rises at 7:30 p. m.) and on to dinner at the "Coq d'Or," where the fashionables gather.

Only the truly valiant have been wearing cotton frocks in London this cold, cold summer, although Betty Sherwin, whom I met here, recognized a Marjoe frock aboard the Isle de France. Miss Sherwin, fashion coordinator from Burdine's, is better prepared for this chilly, damp summer, since she keeps a northern and southern wardrobe on tap for frequent jaunts to New York. We'll both be delighted to switch to our Miami cottons in Rome — unless the British weather overtakes us there.

Frederick Starke, president of the London Model House Association, is making a strong bid for American dollars with his medium-priced cottons, silks and sheer worsteds. He anticipates no trouble in pleasing the American woman, because, as he says, "Good fashion is universal." Currently, Starke's designs are showing up in smart shops from South America to South Africa.

Starke's designs, shown in a lovely carpeted showroom with wrought iron grillwork, accent coat dresses with beautifully gathered backs, scarf necklines, lace evening clothes, taffeta overskirts that convert sheaths to dramatic candlelight costumes.

Here we were introduced to the charming tea and coffee custom, with the casual question of "white or black coffee?" momentarily throwing us for a loss.

The British career woman in the executive bracket presents a beautifully tailored picture of poise and understated chic. The average woman (even her compatriots admit this) has a good deal to learn about fashion from her American sister.

But it is faster to snatch the warmest skirt and jacket available when the chill winds blow off the Thames, without worrying about coordination of line or color. And I suppose it is simpler to keep your footing on wet pavements if you are firmly anchored by heavy flat-heeled shoes.

John Cavanaugh's more expensive designs offer the dramatic high fashion you might expect in Dior or de Givenchy. Currently, he features the "palm silhouette," with graceful soft shoulders blossoming from a willowy trunk. The handsome young designer said he found inspiration for this theme during a Mexican vacation. His green palm frond stole, a round neckpiece of overlapping miniature palm fronds, looks real enough to rustle although it is made of silk. His linens lined with tweed have proven particularly popular in Australia.

Most exciting is Cavanaugh's white tulle evening stole, with enmeshed artificial flowers captured to the center of the back.

Cavanaugh minimizes seams, so that intricate darts and tucks form his silhouettes.

London itself is one huge garden of flowers, with window boxes blooming outside department stores. What will Paris bring?

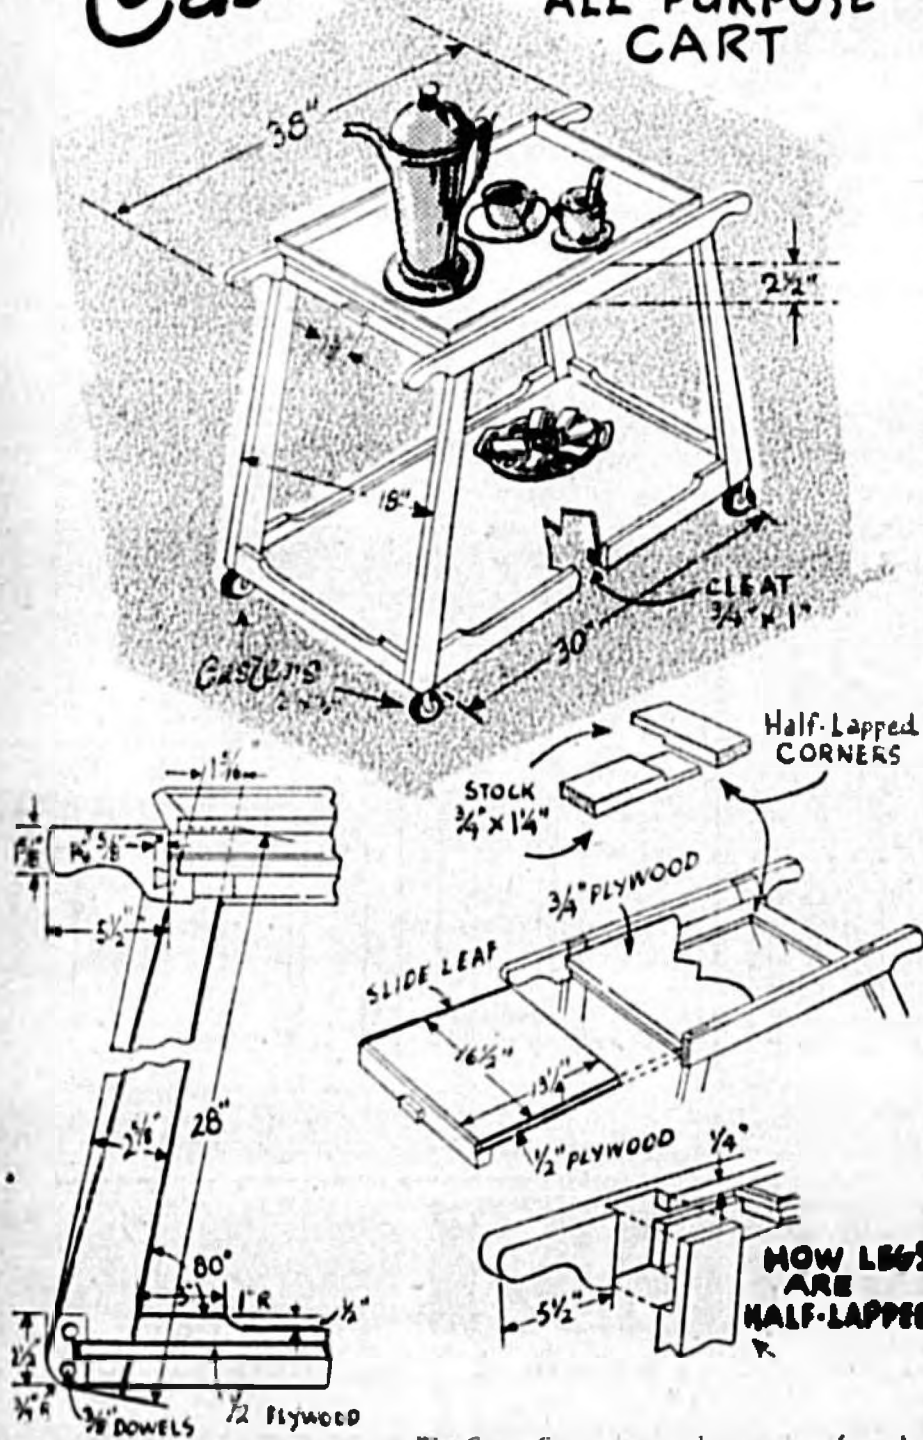

TWO-WAY NECKLINE, with the help of a removable peque dickey, distinguishes this tweedy-looking cotton with low-rolled collar, designed for campus and career gals by Marjoe of Miami. Narrow leather belt nips a neat waistline. All Marjoe frocks have pockets in the side seams. Style 403. Sizes 7-17 and B-18. Approximate retail $14.95.

The "Caster Caterer"

ALL-PURPOSE CART

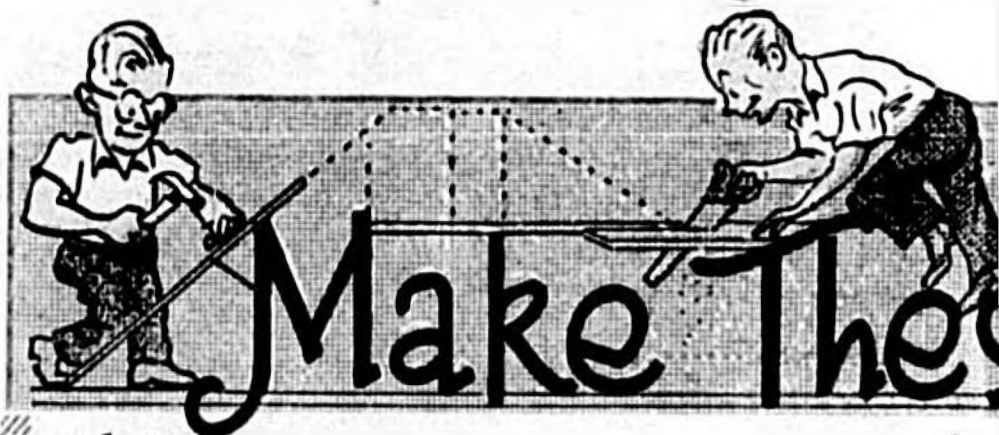

The Caster Caterer is a modern version of grandmother's tea wagon with the large wheels. It's designed to provide Florida's busy housewife with the ultimate in utility.

It can be used all over the house, and when it's not being used as a service wagon of one sort or another, it can still be parked somewhere and used as a table.

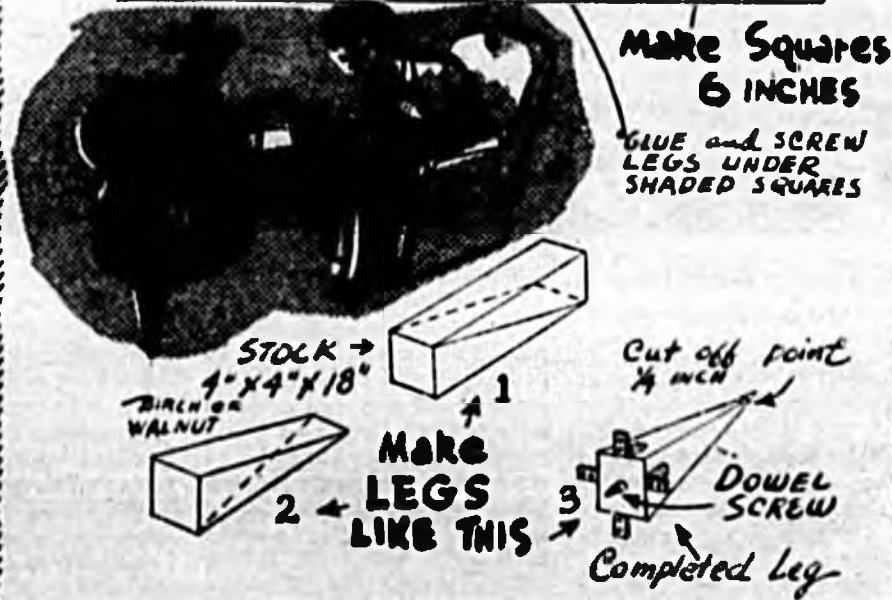

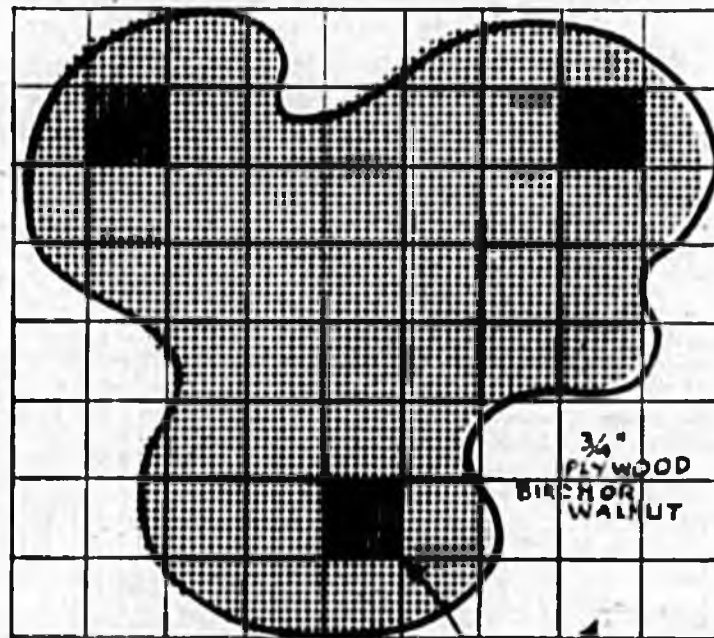

The secret is the four casters. The two large, unsightly wheels which made the older wagon difficult to handle have been discarded and in their place we use simple casters. These add to its usefulness by allowing it to be maneuvered into positions otherwise inaccessible.

All the good features of grandmother's tea wagon have been retained in this modern prototype—the pull-out shelves, the lift-out tray, the portability.

SURREALIST DESIGNED TABLE GIVES ROOM MODERN TOUCH

Admittedly, the surrealist top of this table looks crazy. Jemented perhaps. But doesn't all surrealist art?—No, let's not go into that!

Seriously, don't let the unconventional form of the top throw you. You'll be amazed how many of your friends can find places around it—all at once.

Use mahogany or walnut if you want a dark finish, birch plywood if you go for modern blond and light-colored furniture.

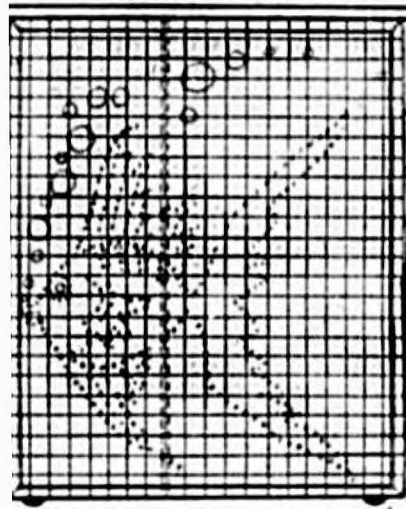

For a finish on plywood, use a white filler on the edge, then apply a blond stain. Finish with clear lacquer.

TROPICAL SOILED CLOTHES HAMPER

By Ralph DuBoise

1" SQUARES
MAKE FISH DESIGN BY BORING VENTILATION HOLES ALONG OUTLINE

Here's a real quickie designed specifically for the Florida home. It takes our hot, humid summer days in its stride.

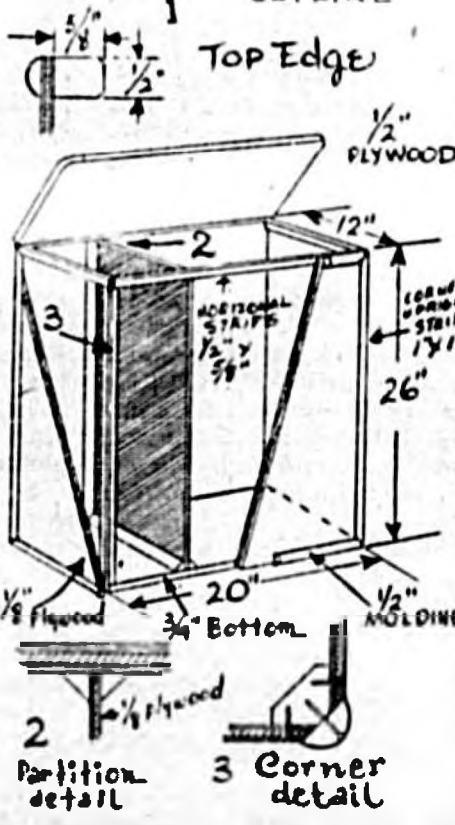

The fish design on the front serves an important double purpose. It's made by drilling holes of varying sizes which provide ventilation—and the tropical fish design gives this useful hamper a distinctive Florida touch. Holes may also be drilled in the ends to provide cross-ventilation.

After cutting to size, join the back and bottom with screws and glue. Next construct the frame, planing the uprights into the triangular shape shown in the drawings.

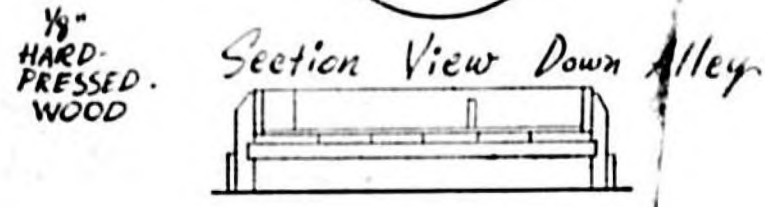

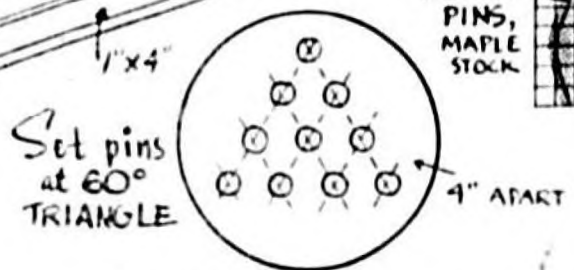

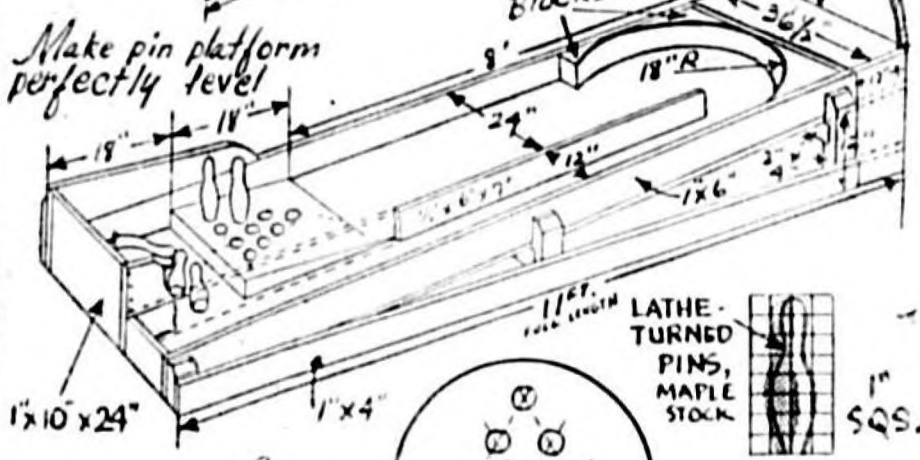

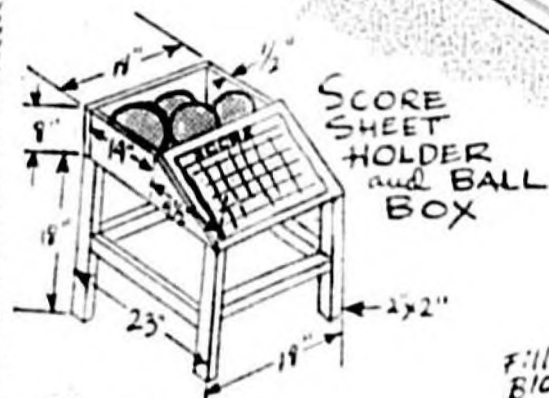

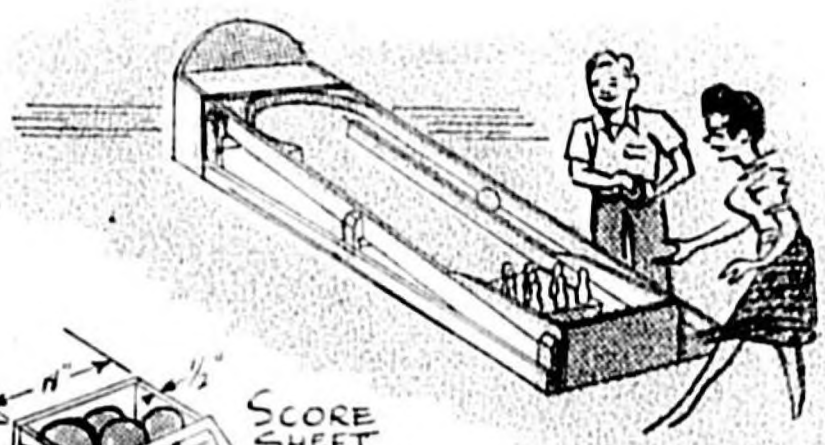

Cut the front and side panels, drill the holes for the design. Then locate the pieces, fastening them with glue and small brads. Plane and sand all exposed edges, bevel front corners.

Install partition, using small triangular blocks to steady it. Hinge top to the back panel.

Finish with white inside enamel.

Miniature BOWLING ALLEY

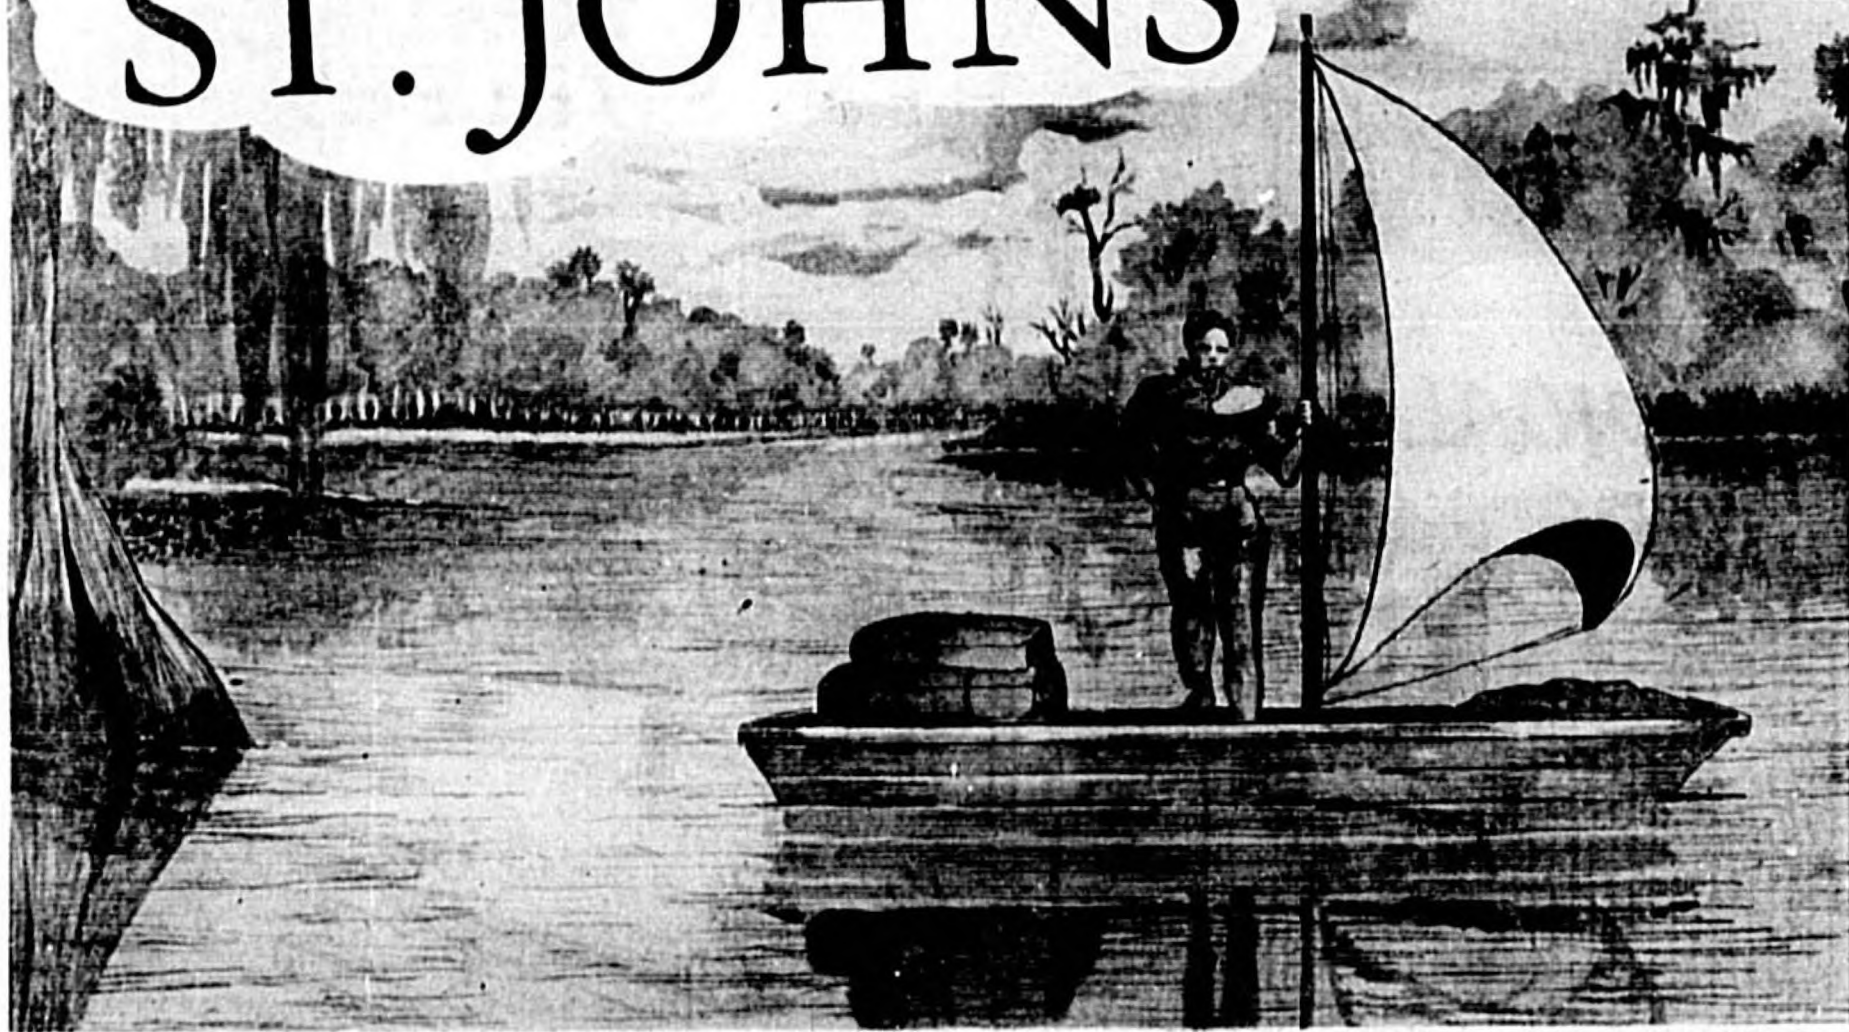

This miniature bowling alley can be made larger or smaller depending upon the size of the room where you plan to use it. It has several advantages—the players can set their own pins, and the (croquet) balls return each time automatically.

Common lumber can be used throughout, but the floor should be a single piece of tempered, hard pressed board, or some other surface which is strongly wear-resistant.

The entire alley is inclined, as shown in the diagram, but the pin table must be level. Pins are turned on a lathe from maple or other hardwood, and finished with clear varnish. Painted spots show where to set pins.

A simply constructed box provides scoreboard, ball storage, and towel ring. Scoring is identical with that at your favorite alley.

THE ST. JOHNS

By JOHN R. HABERMAN

In the spring of 1774 William Bartram had arrived at Cowford on the St. Johns River, the future site of Jacksonville. From there, in pursuit of botanical knowledge, he planned to take a trip up the river—in spite of the threat of possible violence from the Indians, who had already raided several trading posts. He had learned that his chest containing personal belongings, which he had sent on ahead, had been hidden away by the traders to keep it out of the hands of Indians.

From one of the large indigo plantations in the vicinity he purchased a small sailboat, just big enough to carry himself and his gear, and for which he paid the munificent sum of three guineas. His equipment consisted of "fishing tackle, a neat, light fusee (musket), powder and ball." And Bartram courageously embarked on the broad St. Johns.

His tiny craft was put to a severe test the first day out. A violent electrical storm, with dangerously high winds, came barreling down the river and almost swamped the boat. It suffered severe damage before Bartram was able to reach shore and set up camp. He spent a windy, rainy night in a crude tent formed by the sail of his boat slanting from the trunk of a fallen tree to the ground.

In the morning he found that the wind was still blowing in strong towards the shore, and there was no possibility of getting off in the boat. So he began to scout about in the vicinity of his camp, looking for better shelter.

Suddenly Bartram was startled by a musket shot close by. And presently an Indian stepped out of the bushes. He was carrying a gun and had a large turkey gobbler slung over one shoulder.

Bartram didn't know what to expect—until the Indian spoke. "I work for a white man," he said. "His plantation is not far away. My master is a kind man. He'll be glad to see you."

With the dead gobbler bobbing on his shoulder, the Indian led Bartram through the forest to the plantation. The owner treated him cordially, and Bartram spent the day there.

There was a large orange grove on the plantation. The trees had been there from the beginning, growing wild. All that had been necessary was to clear the ground around them. Furthermore, these were not the only oranges Bartram found. He discovered sweet wild oranges growing all along the St. Johns, side by side with live oaks, pines, and other native forest trees.

Thus Bartram had no worries about food. It was all over the place: on foot, on the wing, and on the fin—with juicy Florida oranges for dessert, to be had for the picking.

He continued his voyage the next day, undisturbed by anything but the plunging of alligators around his boat as he sailed close along the shore. When he reached the next plantation on the river, where he was able to get his boat repaired, he heard welcome news. The troubles with the Indians had been settled, or so it was hoped, by a conference between the Governor of British East Florida and the chiefs of the Creeks and Seminoles.

The chiefs had claimed that the depredations on the trading posts had been committed by irresponsible braves, without the sanction of the tribes. These braves, it seemed, felt that they had been cheated by the traders and had retaliated by raiding the posts. But now, much to Bartram's relief as well as the planters and traders, the affair was to be forgotten by both sides. The chiefs had promised that the vagrant braves would return the goods they had taken.

As Bartram voyaged on upriver past the deserted stone fort of Picolata, built long ago by the Spaniards, he was enchanted by the beauty of the country. Giant live oaks overhung the river bank. Sometimes their great limbs spread out for as much as 50 yards, and from these hung hoary streamers of Spanish moss often 20 feet long.

"The high forests of this coast now wore a grand and sublime appearance," wrote Bartram. Then he went on to describe that other forest mammoth, the cypress. "We are struck with a kind of awe, at beholding the stateliness of the trunk, lifting its cumbrous top towards the skies, and casting a wide shade upon the ground, as a dark intervening cloud." It was common for these great trees to reach a diameter of ten and 12 feet, and a height of 90 feet, with a flat top—"where eagles have their secure nests, and cranes and storks their temporary resting places."

Viewing all this magnificent scenery, which had existed there unchanged for millenniums, Bartram was filled with awed reverence for the Creator who made it. And he found that sublimity of spirit, that contact with the Infinite which comes to those who frequent the lost and lonely places of the earth. Along the St. Johns the forest was the church wherein Bartram worshipped. That was the secret of his courage, the secret of the greatness in his writing.

There were few breaks in the eternal forest. A solitary plantation now and then along the river was all. One of these was the ill-fated plantation of Denis Rolle, near what was later to become Palatka. Bartram found the houses rotting away. It was all deserted except for the mansion house, where an overseer still lived, and a blacksmith shop nearby, where the smith plied a lonely trade in the wilderness.

Bartram was now nearing his immediate destination, the first or lower trading post on the St. Johns. He almost lost his way among some swampy islands. Fortunately he was able to find the right channel, and then, as he sailed along, he was hailed by white men on one of the islands. They proved to be traders from the post who had hidden some of their goods there to keep it from the Indians. Among the other effects was Bartram's chest.

The traders told him that, since the Indian situation was settled, everything would be returned to the storehouse in a few days. So Bartram continued on to the trading post to rest awhile and plan new adventures.

MARY LOUISE'S

KITCHEN SHELF

Going on a picnic is a lot of fun for the whole family, if everyone has a share in the planning and in the food preparation.

Years ago, a picnic meant hours of cooking over a hot stove, and by the time everyone sat down to eat, the housewives were so tired from their toil in the kitchen they couldn't enjoy it.

Plan a simple menu, take along the needed articles, put everyone to work and the entire family will enjoy the picnic!

Supplies usually needed when cooking outdoors include long-handled forks and spoons, pot holders, newspapers (for starting the fire and wrapping the garbage), paper toweling and matches.

Start the fire well ahead of meal-time so you will have glowing coals. Charcoal makes fire building easy. A two- to three-inch bed of charcoal will burn to the proper cooking heat in 45 to 60 minutes.

Prepare salad greens at home, carry them wrapped with ice in aluminum foil, or in jars or refrigerator bags.

Newspapers, foil and heavy wrapping paper are good insulators—keeping hot casseroles hot, chilled dishes cold. Carry hot and cold beverages in vacuum jugs.

Make a picnic ice box by lining a metal box or pail with wet newspapers. Fill the bottom with a layer of crushed ice. Pack in the food (in tightly covered jars or tins) and add another layer of ice and more wet newspapers.

Don't forget to clean up and put out the fire before leaving a picnic spot.

A good picnic menu for cooking outdoors usually includes barbecue chicken — and a good barbecue sauce is most important. Use a basic recipe with catsup or chili sauce and start experimenting with "just a dash more of this or a pinch less of that" and you will be amazed with the result. In our cookbook cut-out page is a basic recipe for you to follow, along with several variations suggested for you to try. We have found them simply delicious!

If you would like to plan a menu that can be prepared ahead of time with nothing more to do than place the food on a picnic grate for 30 minutes, try the Hamburger Rolls recipe included on the cookbook page this week.

Fried chicken is always good on a picnic, and can be prepared ahead of time in the cool morning hours. Here is a tip: If you like your chicken crisp, place a mixture of half corn meal and half flour in a paper bag. Dip the chicken pieces in milk, and then shake in the meal-flour mixture. Pan fry until golden brown.

Ginger Ale Fruit Salad

- 2 tablespoons gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/4 cup chopped nut meats
- 1 cup ginger ale
- 1 cup grapes
- 1 banana
- 1 apple
- 2 oranges

Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes; dissolve in boiling water and cool. Add lemon juice, sugar and ginger ale. Cut grapes in halves and remove seeds. Slice banana. Peel and chop apple. Separate oranges into sections and remove membranes. When ginger ale mixture begins to thicken, fold in fruit and nuts. Turn into mold and chill. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves with Fruit Salad Dressing.

Fruit Salad Dressing

- 1 cup pineapple juice
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 cup cream (or canned milk)

Drain juice from canned pineapple. Mix sugar and flour and add enough juice to make smooth paste. Heat remaining juice and add flour mixture. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Place over hot water; add eggs, beaten until light, and butter. Cook about ten minutes, stirring to prevent lumping. Cool and place in refrigerator until ready to serve. Whip cream and fold into chilled mixture just before serving.

Household Hint: After hard-boiling eggs, crack shells while hot and put in cold water. When cool, shells will come off easily.

Stuffed Hamburger Rolls

- | | |
|------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1 lb hamburger | 1/4 teaspoon pepper |
| 2 tablespoons shortening | 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce |
| 1 onion, chopped | 1 cup shredded vintage cheese |
| 1/4 cup chopped green pepper | 6 frankfurter buns |
| 1/2 cup of chopped celery | butter or margarine |
| 1/2 cup of catsup | 1 teaspoon salt |
| | prepared mustard |

Melt the shortening in a heavy skillet. Add the onion, green pepper, and celery. Cook and stir five minutes. Add hamburger and cook until the redness is gone. Add the catsup, salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce and cheese. Cook slowly ten minutes. Chill.

Split the buns and hollow out the inside. Spread the inside surface with butter and mustard. Fill each bun with the hamburger mixture. (These are easier to fill when the mixture is chilled.)

Wrap each in aluminum foil. At serving time, heat the wrapped rolls on the outdoor picnic grate or in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes.

Basic Barbecue Sauce

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|--------------------------|
| 3 tablespoons olive oil or butter | 2 tablespoons honey |
| 1/4 cup finely-chopped onion | 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard |
| 1 cup chili sauce | 1/4 teaspoon oregano |
| 1/4 cup lemon juice | 1/2 cup water |
| | salt and pepper to taste |

Combine the olive oil and onion in sauce pan. Cook over low heat about five minutes, or until the onion is light yellow, stirring constantly. Stir in chili sauce, lemon juice and water, mixing well. Add remaining ingredients, blending thoroughly. Cook uncovered over low heat about 20 minutes, stirring constantly.

Some variations: For a hot sauce, add a few drops of tobacco sauce.

For a pungent sauce, add 2 teaspoons of prepared horseradish.

For extra flavor, add a bay leaf.

For a thicker sauce, add 1/4 cup finely-chopped carrots with the onion.

PUDDIN' PROOF

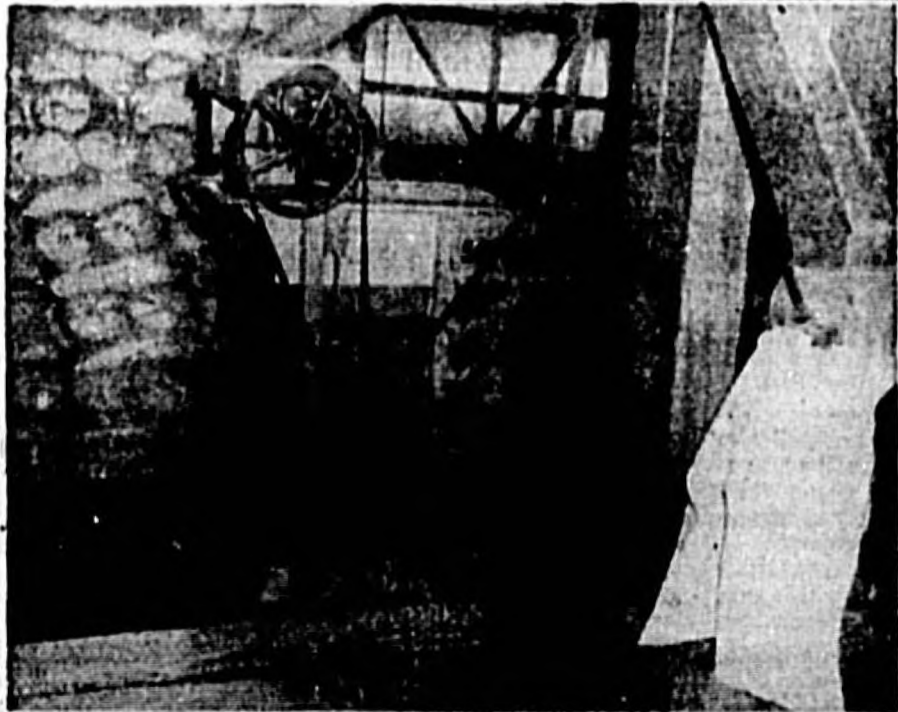

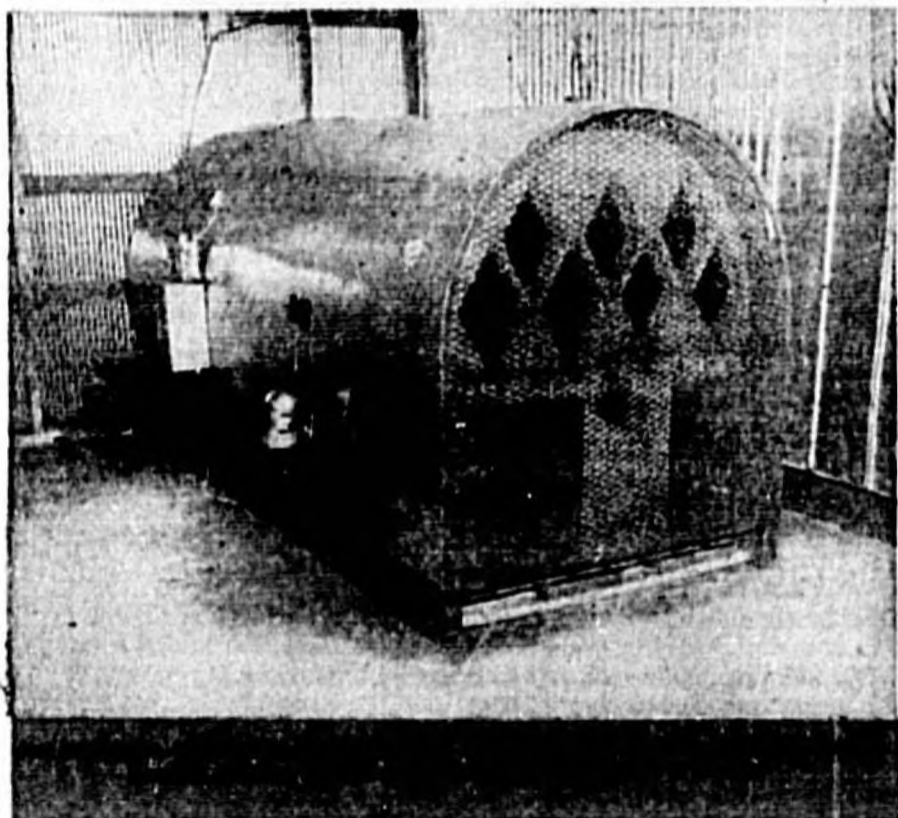

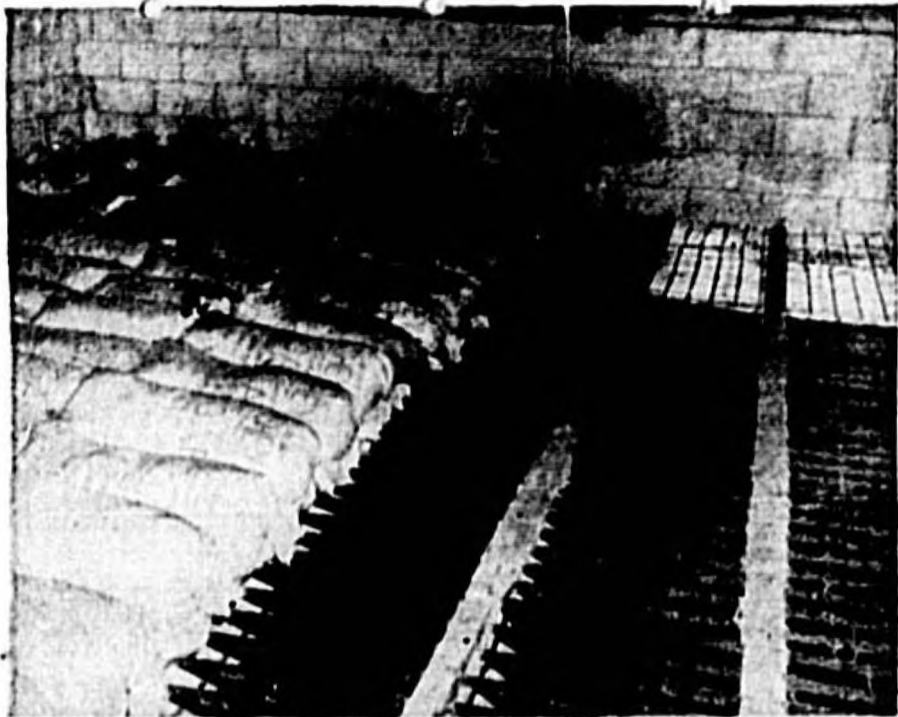

Nothing is more appealing to the eye than rows of home-canned fruit on the pantry shelf. Anyone who hasn't tasted home-canned peaches just hasn't lived, and unless you have canned fruit yourself you have a thrill in store for you when you take the time to do some fruit canning. Peaches are plentiful this year and by now you should have a pantry shelf full. Even though you have already canned some you will want to try this recipe sent to us by Mrs. R. C. Hulbert, 1430 East Jackson St., Pensacola.

Peach Preserves

- 8 cups peaches, cut up
- 8 cups granulated sugar
- 1 large orange, rind, cut fine
- Juice of one lemon
- 1/2 cup maraschino cherries, sliced thin

Cook together, with the exception of the cherries, until thick. Add cherries the last ten minutes. Let cool over night. Put into jars and seal.

A Boon To Florida Farmers . . .

HAY-SEED DRIER BEATS THE RAIN

By ETHEL MALES STANCIL

Florida has soil and weather conditions suited wonderfully for the growing of hay crops, certain grains, grasses and legumes, but often it is a poor place for sun-curing them. Frequently when they are ready for harvesting, the rainy season is in full swing.

The crop drier is the answer to the farmer's need at this time.

The first drier with the slatted floor system, now in use in Florida, was built in Live Oak during 1917. The number of driers has steadily increased since that time until now there are approximately 100 stationary crop driers and 75 portable drying units in the state. Crop driers are prevalent in all of the Atlantic and Gulf Coast states, also in Tennessee, Ohio, Washington and Oregon.

In Florida, where the humidity is high during the summer, supplemental heat is required to successfully operate the driers. They are heated only at night and when the humidity is high during the day, unless the farmer is in a hurry to complete drying. Such heat increases the capacity of the air to hold moisture, shortening the drying time.

A hot air furnace, burning fuel oil, is the most economical method for providing heat. An electric motor operates the blower or fan, which sends air under pressure through the slatted floor.

The bin or mow floor over the slatted floor varies in size. Some are so built that heat and air may be applied only to certain sections, thus making it practical to dry small as well as large amounts. Some bins accommodate products in sacks, which are filled about three-fourths full, while others accommodate products in bulk. When drying products in bulk, the bins are lined with a canvas-type material which will prevent the seed from falling through the floor.

Crop driers are equipped with various mechanical controls to insure efficient operation. The operator may set the temperature from 100 to 160 degrees, depending upon the product he is drying. Any seeds which are to be planted are not dried at a temperature higher than 115 degrees. Hay and corn (for feeding purposes) may be cured with a temperature as high as 160 degrees. During the drying period tests are made from time to time to determine the extent of moisture remaining in the product, and the amount of moisture in the air, the latter test to determine whether or not it is advisable to use heat in conjunction with the fan in the present drying process.

Peanuts are thrashed direct from the windrows and are brought from the fields to the driers in bulk, where they are cured in from 6 to 8 hours.

Driers take the extra moisture from corn as it comes from the picker (husked) and works equally well in curing sorghum, oats and rye, and the clovers.

Grass seeds go to the driers straight from the combines. It is interesting to note that Bahia grass seeds are so small and pack so firmly that they must be cooled again, with the process perhaps being repeated several times, to insure a quality seed which will germinate well.

Hay cured in driers is generally of a much better quality than that cured in the sun. In the drier it can be cured without loss from leaves shattering, bleaching, and rainfall. Also, danger from spontaneous combustion is practically eliminated.

Plants with young growth, which make the best quality of hay yet are most difficult to sun cure, may be satisfactorily cured in a drier. Hay crops not too stemmy, which do not tend to hold moisture, are best suited for curing on hay driers.

It takes from four to six days to dry a barn of hay, if the moisture content has been reduced to from 35 to 50 per cent by field drying before being placed in the drier. This is practical, from a cost standpoint. Hay should be mowed in the morning and the sun allowed to hit it for several hours, then baled and taken directly to the drier where the cure is completed, after being cooled to prevent its going through a heat.

If products come into the drier wet, as following a rain, it naturally takes longer to cure them, but, generally speaking, the cost of drying seeds and cleaning them ready to plant or market runs from 4 cents to three cents per pound. Curing hay runs from $5 to $10 per ton. Many crop driers provide a cleaning service for seeds.

It is estimated that 60 to 80 per cent of the Bitter Blue and Sweet Lupine, Bahia grass, Hairy Indigo and clover seeds produced in Florida last year, were mechanically dried; likewise, from 10 to 20 per cent of the peanuts harvested, and nearly all of the hybrid seed corn produced in the state.

Yes, rains may come during the months when hay and grass seeds, legumes and grains mature, but Florida farmers are learning to make good use of crop driers. They are learning to make hay and dry seeds while it rains.

The American crocodile is very wild, being much more so than the alligator. A native of Florida, this reptile is found wild only in this state. The crocodile is considered much faster and fiercer than the 'gator, and when pitted against each other, the
'croc' will either whip or kill his 'gator adversary. Scientists did not learn that the crocodile inhabited this continent until 1875, when they were found in what is now the Miami area.

There are several hundred species of hummingbirds, but only one—the ruby-throat—is native to Florida. However, many kinds
tion season.

Strolling In Sanford

Amiable Charlie Morrison, former employe of The Herald started work today for Wm. Johnston and Radio as a sales man.

Ernest Cowles, bandmaster of the Seminole High School Band returned Friday afternoon with members of the band who were attending a summer music camp at the University of Miami. Presentations were made to members as follows: Joe Fisher, senior, outstanding musician, outstanding athlete and outstanding progress; Robert Newman, senior, outstanding service, citizenship and athlete; and Bob Reely, junior, outstanding athlete, musician and progress.

Harry Robson says he hasn't seen such mosquitoes as those in his area. He said he thought those that used to be thick in New Smyrna were big but that the Sanford variety beats 'em. New Smyrna has been putting big dents in its mosquito population with fog.

New Type Mess Greeted Warmly

ENID, Okla. (AP)—A GI dream—waitresses dressed in trim, white uniforms—Army Base airmen as they went to choose this morning. It was only the second day of the Air Force's experiment in turning kitchen police duty over to a catering service. But the first day was so successful that the Air Force immediately pronounced a tremendous success.

"Everyone was very enthusiastic, especially the enlisted men who ordinarily put KP every 15 or 20 days," said Lt. Joseph A. Flays, public information officer. The girls loved it too. Sharon Ruch, a stenographer for the catering firm who helped in the kitchen the first day, said she liked it so well she thought of discarding her typewriter for an apron. "The girls were overwhelmed by the reception," said Jack McGaha, southeast division manager for the National Food Service, Inc., of Chicago. "I asked if there was ever a time when you were not a girl?" "Yes, there was some of that going on here," she replied. "Here's what the men thought of girl KPs." "It's more appetizing—the food, I mean." "They can feed me dog food now and I wouldn't know the difference." "It's better than eating in a restaurant. The only difference is you walk out without paying." "Cafeteria style still prevails. But instead of the old trays where the gravy slopped over on the apple pie, girl chimaera is used. The girls clean off the table."

Mrs. P. W. Bates Dies At Residence

Bedell Smith Talks On Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Under Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith says the "new era" line of Russia and Red China is an admission that these "so-called bulwarks of the West" have failed. What the Communists are really trying to do by their overtures toward America's allies, Smith said in a television interview last night in Washington, is to "use the free world's solidarity and virtues to 'isolate' the United States." He said he had seen no signs the Communist nations are ready to "settle down to peaceful membership of society."

Two Senators Clash Over Secrecy Issue

Knowland Requests Senate Send Censure Proposal To Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) today formally asked the Senate to send the resolution to censure Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and all amendments to the resolution to a special committee of three Republicans and three Democrats.

Knowland said Vice President Nixon should name the members of the special committee and that it should report back to the Senate as expeditiously as equity and justice will permit.

Knowland made his motion an hour and a half after the entire day of debate on the resolution by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) to censure McCarthy for conduct that tends to bring the Senate into disrepute.

The Republican leader did not ask that Nixon sit as a member of the special, or, as he called it, "select" committee.

The pending amendments to the Flanders resolution include the various specific charges which have been filed as bills of censure by Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) and Morse (Ind. Rep.).

Before Knowland's motion the Republican leader had told the Senate that Morse, who centred McCarthy's attitude toward secret government information, had himself once revealed part of a "top secret" document in a political speech.

Morse, springing up in rebuttal, said Knowland was referring to a speech Morse made at Minneapolis during the 1952 election campaign.

And, Morse declared, he then President Truman had declassified the document and made it available for use in the speech.

In tones of astonishment, Knowland said "I am deeply shocked by the revelation" from Morse.

The Knowland-Morse clash came on the third day of debate on the resolution by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) to censure McCarthy.

McCarthy, outwardly confident of victory, was calling for an early showdown.

And some of his critics were conceding they saw little chance of putting over the censure move.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) saying he was not passing judgment on the question of censure, suggested creation of a special Senate committee to draft formal charges against McCarthy with the aim of a vote before Congress adjourns.

This idea met with little immediate enthusiasm.

Conservationist Advises Farmers On Soil Erosion

By JAMES R. SARGENT, Soil Conservation Service. Soil erosion is a destructive factor in agricultural production in Seminole County. We have in Seminole County mostly sheet erosion which is caused by the surface action of water. Through the movement of the soil surface by wind and water, much of the organic and other soil substance is removed, leaving behind the less productive parts. There are some easy conservation measures we can use to prevent this destruction. Chief among these are cover crops, crop rotation, management strip, crop residue management, strip, dual purpose, they prevent erosion and improve the tilth and fertility of the soil. The farmer, himself, is not the one who suffers from this erosion. It is passed on to the merchants and citizens of the community. When the farmer's fertile soil is washed away, he fails to make a profit on his crops, because he has no money to buy his food, clothing and equipment from the merchants, and the merchant has no need to employ other citizens to help him run his business. So it goes to show that soil erosion can be the downfall of a community. It takes many years of proper land use and treatment to replace one inch of fertile top soil in a farmer's field. It takes many years to save it for future use.

Ag Leader Calls For Farming Cut

Lester S. D. Under Secretary of Agriculture. True, I know you are all farmers and you are all proud of your farms. But I am sure you are all aware of the fact that the country is producing more food than it can consume. This is a serious problem. We must find a way to reduce our production of food. I am calling for a cut in farming. We must reduce our production of food by 10 percent. This will help to balance our food supply with our demand. It will also help to reduce our national debt. I am sure you will all agree that this is a necessary step. I am calling for a cut in farming. We must reduce our production of food by 10 percent. This will help to balance our food supply with our demand. It will also help to reduce our national debt. I am sure you will all agree that this is a necessary step.

$100,000 Bonds Set On Four Top Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. Commissioner Joseph D. Neff set bond at $100,000 each early today for four top communists nabbed together in a Los Angeles hotel.

The men and a woman were taken by FBI agents to city jail for questioning, then to the county jail. Commissioner Neff set the $100,000 bond for each of the four, along with that of Mrs. Patricia Blain, a Los Angeles housewife.

Battling Reported As Revolt

GUATEMALA (AP)—A quarrel between Guatemalan military cadets and the "liberation forces" of Col. Carlos Castillo Armas, chief of the country's ruling junta, erupted into a battle today. Two persons were killed and several wounded.

The fighting caused reports the cadets and some others had revolted in sympathy with the deposed leftist government of Jacobo Arben.

But later it appeared the fight was between the cadets and members of the Castillo Armas army.
