Party Machine fire deemed arson

SANFORD — Last Thursday's fire at the Party Machine, on Park Avenue, has now been formally labeled arson by Sanford fire investigators. Fire Marshall Richard Cohen said the fire was intentionally set in one location, although he declined to cite further details, saying the investigation is continuing. Cohen said two suspects have been identified.

The fire early Thursday morning did an estimated $120,000 to $130,000 in damage to the contents, although an insurance investigator has not completed an inventory, said Cohen. No one was injured. Cohen said the rear door of the club had been forced open to gain access to the club. The fire appeared to have been set by someone unskilled in arson.

"I'm not sure if it was the building or the contents they were after," said Cohen. "If we were going to intentionally set a building on fire, I wouldn't have done it that way."

Sign theft case comes to a close

SANFORD — A misdemeanor theft case against a Lake Mary man charged with stealing political signs during last year's election will end soon if he successfully completes a class conducted by the state attorney's office.

At a pre-trial hearing last week, Seminole County Judge John Sloop ruled to abate the case against James Leon McKeeby, 46, if he completes a class for misdemeanor offenders.

McKeeby was charged with taking political signs owned by Gary Bender valued at less than $300 on Nov. 1, 1992. Bender was a candidate for Lake Mary City Commission.

A Lake Mary resident reported seeing campaign signs for Bender and Mayor Lowery Rockett at Sun Drive at about 6 p.m., but reported them missing at 11 p.m. when he walked his dog.

McKeeby was charged with removing the signs.

Pat Nixon dead at 81

WASHINGTON — Pat Nixon, the uncomplaining silent partner in Richard Nixon's century of political triumph and disgrace, died of lung cancer today at the Nixon home in Park Ridge, N.J.

She was 81. She had suffered from lung disease for years. The former president and their daughters, Tricia Nixon Cox and Julie Nixon Eisenhower, were with the former first lady when she died.

Funeral services were set for Saturday at the former president's library in Yorba Linda, Calif., according to a statement from Nixon's office that announced the death.

In their 53 years of marriage — their anniversary was on Monday — through the dark years of Watergate, through the pain of his resignation from the presidency — the former Thelma Catherine Ryan was at Nixon's side, never showing in public how much it hurt.

"Pat" was only a nickname, bestowed by her father because she was born the day before St. Patrick's Day.

Mrs. Nixon's health had not been good since that Friday morning in 1974 when a helicopter carried them from the White House into exile. A major stroke in 1976 left her with a paralyzed left side and Nixon suggested that the sudden illness was linked to her having read "The Final Days" — a harsh account of the Watergate scandal.

Longwood cops may gain protection in charter

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — An effort to establish the police department in the city charter and remove it from politics prompted a lively discussion at Monday night's city commission meeting.

A draft ordinance proposed by commissioner Harvey Smerilson to establish the department in the charter is currently controlled by the city commission and a simple majority vote, three of the five commission members could abolish it. If the department is made part of the city charter, it would take a unanimous vote of the commission to make any change.

Mayor Paul Lovestrand questioned why the police department is being singled out for inclusion in the charter and not the public works or fire department. He said he thinks the move puts politics into the department rather than taking them out. Smerilson said he proposed the change because constituents of his expressed concern about rumors that another attempt was underway to do away with the city police department.

No new utility tax on phone users...probably

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — City Commissioners decided not to change the formula for utility taxes on telephone users, despite the city administrator's request to wait until they reviewed the city's revenue needs for funding the 1994 budget.

In an unofficial consensus, the five member commission agreed to continue to collect the 10 percent tax on local calls. The change, which the commission members rejected, would have reduced the tax to 7 percent on local calls, but would have also taxed intrastate calls. Residents face landowners: big cats, borrow pit

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Residents will face landowners today in two controversial proposals before Seminole County commissioners.

At 1:30 p.m. this afternoon, commissioners are scheduled to consider extending the time allowed for Excavated Products to mine their borrow pit near Geneva. The company currently has another year to remove a portion of the 2 million cubic yards of dirt from the pit under the county's October 1991 permit and requirements imposed by the St. Johns River Water Management District.

At 7 p.m., grade school teachers and other supporters of Tiger's Eye Productions are expected to give their encouragement to extend the animal handler school's operations permit to June 1996. Their special permit expires this month.

Hearing is set in case of rescinded promotion

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

SANFORD — Hearings are scheduled today and Wednesday for a woman who claims she wrongly lost a job promotion last year when Seminole County School officials gave into pressure from a union.

The case involves Rebecca Presley as the plaintiff against the school and NIPSCO (Non-Instructional Personnel of Seminole County).

Presley was promoted to assistant foreman of grounds maintenance in October, 1992. Over 30 co-workers signed petitions claiming favoritism toward Presley. The promotion was rescinded in November.

Affidavits from two grounds workers stated Presley told them she was going to get the assistant foreman job three days before the job opening was posted. The petitioners also claimed Presley's See Hearing, Page 5A

Panel takes over, channels money for social needs

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Three local residents met with 12 other Central Florida citizens Friday in the historic first meeting of the District 7 Health and Human Services Board.

A founder of a child-support advocacy organization, a former retirement home administrator and the principal of a local middle school will serve on a panel that will decide how to distribute state appropriations for health and social service programs. This year, those appropriations will total $190 million for the four counties in the district, including Seminole County.

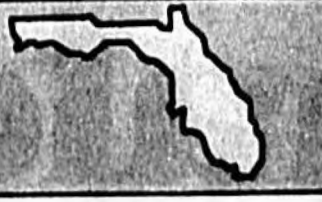

The board, one of 15 created throughout the state, represents a shift in philosophy for the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. Prior to this year, department officials have decided how to distribute appropriations to each program.

Now, the HRS boards will decide how to divide their district's appropriation into various programs. They can even decide to pay an independent organization to provide some services historically supplied by HRS. Their budget needs will be submitted to the HRS secretary for funding.

The boards will also screen candidates for district administrators and supply their top three choices to the HRS secretary for appointment.

The boards are appointed by the governor to provide input from a See Panel, Page 5A

Alligator attack confirmed

HOBE SOUND — Wounds on the body of a 10-year-old boy matched the jaw of an alligator captured and killed only hours after the fatal attack, a wildlife official confirmed.

"Our investigators have conferred with the medical examiners," Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission Lt. Jim Huffstodt said Monday. "They compared the wounds and they matched up perfectly."

Bradley Weidenhamer of Lantana was attacked and killed by the 11-foot-4-inch bull alligator Saturday as he waded in the shallow waters of the Loxahatchee River at Jonathan Dickinson State Park.

The boy's father, Gary, wrestled the boy from the jaws of the alligator as other park visitors beat the animal with canoe paddles. Bradley was later pronounced dead at a Jupiter hospital.

Investigators were still puzzled Monday as to the motive for the attack. Huffstodt said in many attacks there is information which provides an idea as to what provoked the animal — such as a female alligator feeling her nest was threatened.

But he said this case doesn't fit a typical attack profile.

Man accused of trying to kill wife, again

ORLANDO — A man who keeps trying to kill his ex-wife was charged — once again — with trying to hire someone to do her in, police said.

Woodson Poe was charged on Monday with trying to hire someone to kill Montilee Duffy. The would-be killer once again went to detectives to help get Poe arrested.

"He is just adamant about doing away with her," said Orange County sheriff's inspector Bill Morris, who charged Poe with solicitation to commit first-degree murder.

Poe was charged last July with trying to hire someone to kill Duffy, 43. According to detectives, he was in jail on a spouse abuse charge when he offered a fellow inmate $2,000 to slice up his ex-wife's face and then kill her later.

In February, on the day he was sentenced to house arrest, he used a pay telephone at his probation office to call and threaten his ex-wife, according to Orlando police reports.

In the latest case, Morris said, Poe offered a fellow prisoner $800 to kill Duffy. Poe gave the inmate a hand-drawn map to Duffy's house, Morris said.

Torching trial moved to West Palm

TAMPA — The trial of two white men accused of torching a black New York tourist will be held in West Palm Beach, the prosecutor said.

State Attorney Harry Lee Coe III said Monday the site had been selected after court administrators surveyed which city might be able to hold the racially charged trial.

"Fortunately for us, West Palm Beach was in a position to accept it," Coe said.

In West Palm Beach court administrator Susan Ferrante said a hearing was held Monday on a recommendation to move the proceedings from Tampa.

A tentative trial date of Aug. 23 has been set.

Three laborers are accused of abducting Christopher Wilson, a 32-year-old stock broker clerk, at gunpoint on New Year's Day at a shopping plaza. They allegedly drove him to a remote field, doused him with gasoline, and set him ablaze.

Mark Kohut, 27, and Charles Rourke, 33, are to be tried on charges of attempted first-degree murder, kidnapping and robbery in the attack on Wilson, who suffered burns over nearly 40 percent of his body.

Firebombing probed

TAMPA — Arson investigators were probing the firebombing of a State Farm Insurance Co. office in Tampa, police said.

No one was injured in the Monday predawn fire, confined to the break room of the office on Busch Boulevard, said Steve Cole, police spokesman.

Someone hurled a molotov cocktail through a window at 1:25 a.m., he said.

"The glass bottle contained an undetermined substance, possibly gasoline," Cole said.

Arson investigators from the police and fire departments were investigating.

Bigamy charges filed

TAMPA — Bigamy charges have been filed against a Tampa dentist already accused of kidnapping and shooting his wife.

Dr. Charles A. Myers has been held without bail since May 12, a day after Tampa police say he lured his wife Evelyn Davis-Myers into his BMW, shot her three times, pushed her from the car and left her paralyzed by the roadside.

The bigamy charges were filed Monday in Hillsborough County after investigators said they believe they can prove that Charles Myers was married to Jacqueline Myles Myers when he wed Evelyn Davis Lamar on March 5.

A civil lawsuit filed by Davis-Myers on May 10, alleging that Charles Myers is a bigamist, prompted the philanthropic community leader to violence, said Hillsborough Assistant State Attorney Julia Beat Chase on Monday.

Prescriptions diverted to Cuba

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Medicaid prescriptions being diverted from Florida to Cuba that may be costing taxpayers as much as $2 million a week is being investigated by state health officials.

The prescriptions that have been discovered were traced back to Medicaid clients. Officials don't know whether doctors are cooperating in the scheme and wrote the prescriptions knowing they weren't going to be used by the patient.

State Rep. Luis Rojas, R-Hialeah, and the Dade County Commission have been looking into the practice and commissioners' aides estimate that $2 million a week in illegal Medicaid prescriptions might be sent to Cuba.

A shortage of food and medicine in the Communist country has caused several health problems for citizens of Cuba. The U.S. government also maintains a trade embargo against Cuba that prohibits selling goods to the island country.

About two dozen shipping houses in Miami are licensed by the federal government to send goods to Cuba. Rojas said the owners of those houses said they had no way of knowing the prescriptions had been paid for by Medicaid.

The practice isn't unique to the Cuban community, Rojas said. Similar practices have been found in large Vietnamese refugee communities, where prescriptions were illegally sent to Vietnam.

Effective date of tax cap postponed

By Associated Press

FORT MYERS — A Fort Myers circuit judge ruled the Save Our Homes state constitutional amendment shouldn't go into effect this year.

Circuit Judge R. Wallace Pack said he'll wait until today to decide whether the cap should take effect in 1994 or 1995.

The court hearing Monday was held to resolve a dispute between Lee County Property Appraiser Ken Wilkinson and the state of Florida about when the state constitutional amendment should take effect.

The amendment, which Florida voters approved in November, limits annual increases in the appraised value of home-steaded residential property to 3 percent, the inflation rate or the change in the home's market value, whichever is lower.

At Monday's hearing, Florida Assistant Attorney General Lee Rohe said that because no effective date was included in the amendment, state law requires that it take effect the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January, or Jan. 5 of this year.

But because property is assessed as of Jan. 1, Rohe argued, the amendment wouldn't become effective until Jan. 1, 1994, which would be a "base year." The date for determining the 3 percent cap would be Jan. 1, 1995. As a result, homeowners wouldn't benefit from the cap until their November 1995 tax bills are mailed.

Michael Tice, Wilkinson's attorney, described Rohe's argument as a "strained interpretation" of the law and argued that the "will of the people" was to apply the cap immediately.

POLICE BRIEFS

DUI charged

John Steven Porco, 33, 747 Baywood Cir., Sanford, was charged with driving under the influence and driving with a suspended license by Seminole County sheriff's officers on Saturday.

Officers said he was driving erratically when they tried to stop him. They said they caught up with him at U.S. Highway 17-92 and Bush Ave.

They said he smelled of alcohol, his eyes were watery and bloodshot and his face was flushed.

He was given a roadside sobriety test which he failed.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $500 bond.

Domestic violence charged

John Franklin Wheatley, 34, and Allen Lee Mann, 39, both of 1237 Upsala Dr., Sanford, were charged with domestic violence by Sanford Police.

Police said the two, who are brothers, got into an argument and the two hit each other in the face with their fists.

They were taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $2,500 bond each.

No driver's license

Denfield Rogers, 38, 116 Anderson Cir., Sanford, was charged with driving without a driver license and attaching a tag not assigned to his vehicle by Sanford Police.

Police said he had been stopped on a traffic violation when it was discovered that his license was not valid and that the tag on the car was stolen.

Police said that he admitted he was the owner of the vehicle but he "does not know how the tag got on his vehicle."

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $100 bond.

Disorderly conduct charged

Kevin Penny, 22, who identified himself as a transient, was charged with disorderly conduct by Sanford Police on Saturday.

Police said he was found trespassing on property and refused to leave.

He told them to "shoot me, I don't care."

Several people came out of their apartments in the area when he began shouting, police said.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $100 bond.

Open container law violated

Erick Lamar Young, 20, 1300 Sanford Ave., Sanford, was charged with violating the open container law by Sanford Police on Saturday.

Police said they performed a traffic stop on a car in which Young was a passenger.

When they looked into the car, police said, he had a half empty, open quart of beer at his feet.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $100 bond.

Domestic violence

Felicia Anderson Alexander, 25, 57 William Clark Ct., Sanford, was charged with domestic violence and in connection with a warrant for criminal mischief, Sanford Police made contact with her after they responded to a call of a domestic disturbance.

They said that her husband hit her in the back of the head so she began to chase him with a knife around the living room.

Her husband, Jackson Alexander, Jr., 24, of the same address, was also charged with domestic violence.

He was held on $2,500 bond; she on $500 bond.

Space shuttle closes in on quarry

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Endeavour's astronauts awoke to a full day of experiments today as the shuttle closed in on its quarry, a science satellite.

Shortly after the crew woke up to the song "Sitting on Top of the World" by Les Paul and Mary Ford, Mission Control told pilot Brian Duffy that Endeavour had moved to within 5,300 miles of its giant orbiting target.

"That's good news and we're pedaling as fast as we can," Duffy said. "We'll be there in a couple of days."

The satellite, called Eureka for the European Retrievable Carrier, has been orbiting Earth for nearly a year. Scientists are anxious to get back the 15 scientific instruments aboard — cosmic dust catchers, solar monitors, crystal-growing furnaces, among other things.

Endeavour's crew will use the shuttle robot arm to grab Eureka 296 miles above Earth and tuck

Pope appoints committee to study dismissal of priests who molest

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Pope John Paul II has assembled a committee to study whether to ease church law to make it easier to dismiss priests who molest children.

The panel will look specifically at whether the church's 5-year statute of limitations on dismissals can be lifted in such cases, Roman Catholic officials said Monday.

It will also study whether the age when individuals are considered minors can be raised from 16 to 18 and whether abusive priests can be dismissed even if their actions resulted from mental illness, said Deacon Christopher Baumann, a spokesman for the U.S. Catholic Conference.

The pope appointed the committee of Vatican and U.S. Roman Catholic officials at the request of American bishops.

In a letter to U.S. bishops released Monday, the pontiff said he has become aware how much Americans Catholics are suffering because of clergy scandals.

"I fully share your sorrow and your concern, especially your concern for the victims so seriously hurt by these misdeeds," the pope said.

The pope said the committee will study how church law "can best be applied to the particular situation of the United States."

Last week, leaders of the 55-million member Catholic Church in the United States established a committee of bishops to address the problem of priests molesting children.

In personal meetings with the pope, many bishops have expressed particular concern about their ability under canon law to dismiss a priest whose moral and psychological condition precludes his return to ministry.

Archbishop William Keeler, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said Monday that the pope "has taken to his own heart our concern for both the victims of abuse by priests and the priests who abuse."

David Clohessy, national director of Survivors Network of those Abused by Priests, said, "We're cautiously hopeful." The group favors lifting the statute of limitations.

"It is a good sign that the pope is taking an interest in this issue," Clohessy said.

There has been no systematic study of clergy sex abuse, but author Jason Berry has said that more than 400 Catholic priests in North America have been reported for molesting children since 1984.

'Last Action Hero' opens Movie in shadow of 'Jurassic Park'

LOS ANGELES — Arnold Schwarzenegger proved no match for the prehistoric beasts of "Jurassic Park."

The musician's "Last Action Hero" opened in second place over the weekend with a disappointing $15.3 million as Steven Spielberg's thriller about a dinosaur theme park continued setting box-office records in its second week.

"Jurassic Park" passed $100 million in nine days, the fastest ever. It has made $120.2 million to date, Exhibitor Relations Co. reported Monday.

"Last Action Hero," an $80 million movie, fell short of minimum of $20 million predicted by Columbia. For comparison, Schwarzenegger's "Terminator 2: Judgment Day" made $31.8 million in its first weekend in 1991.

"Last Action Hero" has been savaged by critics.

The competition for "Last Action Hero" grows on Friday with the arrival of "Sleepless in Seattle," starring Meg Ryan and Tom Hanks, and "Dennis the Menace," with Walter Matthau.

Sid Ganis, Columbia's president of marketing and distribution, said he was nonetheless pleased with the performance of "Last Action Hero." But he conceded, "The next few weeks are going to be key weeks."

Here are Exhibitor Relations' estimated ticket sales Friday through Sunday, with distributor, weekend gross, number of theater locations, average per location, total gross and number of weeks in release.

Figures are based on actual receipts and projections where actual figures were not available.

1. "Jurassic Park," Universal, $38.5 million, 2,427 locations, $15,790 per location, $130.2 million, two weeks.

2. "Last Action Hero," Columbia, $15.3 million, 2,308 locations, $6,651 per location, $15.3 million, one week.

3. "Cliffhanger," TriStar, $5.7 million, 2,395

locations, $2,368 per location, $58.7 million, four weeks.

4. "What's Love Got to Do With It," Disney, $3.6 million, 428 locations, $8,435 per location, $3.6 million, two weeks.

5. "Made in America," Warner Bros., $3.5 million, 2,048 locations, $1,712 per location, $3.4 million, four weeks.

6. "Gully Guss Sixty," Disney, $2.7 million, 1,348 locations, $2,173 per location, $15.7 million, three weeks.

7. "Dave," Warner Bros., $2.5 million, 1,400 locations, $1,365 per location, $33.4 million, seven weeks.

8. "Once Upon a Forest," 20th Century Fox, $2.2 million, 1,487 locations, $1,484 per location, $2.2 million, one week.

9. "Menace II Society," New Line, $2 million, 379 locations, $5,333 per location, $15.9 million, four weeks.

10. "Life With Mikey," Disney, $1.4 million, 1,322 locations, $887 per location, $9.3 million, three weeks.

11. "Hot Shots! Part Deux," 20th Century Fox, $1.13 million, 1,275 locations, $889 per location, $32.9 million, five weeks.

12. "Silver," Paramount, $1.07 million, 1,037 locations, $1,039 per location, $34.3 million, five weeks.

13. "Indecent Proposal," Paramount, $1.04 million, 877 locations, $1,181 per location, $100.1 million, 11 weeks.

14. "Much Ado About Nothing," Goldwyn, $1.02 million, 131 locations, $7,857 per location, $4.3 million, seven weeks.

15. "Super Mario Brothers," Disney, $771,000, 1,190 locations, $648 per location, $18.4 million, four weeks.

16. "Unforgiven," Warner Bros., $402,000, 446 locations, $877 per location, $100 million.

Would you leave if hurricane hit?

An Associated Press poll of people in the area hardest hit by Hurricane Andrew on Aug. 24, 1992, indicates 93 percent said they would leave if another hurricane heads in their direction.

The percentage is far greater than the number who left when Andrew warnings were first posted in South Florida. After having sundered over $23 billion dollars in damage in the hurricane ravaged area, people are frightened. They have good reason to be.

Sanford and the surrounding area have never had a hurricane with the destructive force of Andrew. With the amount of land between the ocean and the city, the speed would quickly dwindle.

Yet Sanford has experienced hurricanes with winds of slightly over 90 miles per hour in the past few decades. The waters of Lake Monroe have risen high enough to reach First Street.

There is no guarantee we will not have a hurricane visit us this year. With that in mind, it's time to make plans on what to do in an emergency.

If a severe warning is issued, would you be willing to leave the area? Where would you go, how would you get there, and how will you pay for it?

Not everyone has a cousin Martha in the Panhandle, or an aunt in Cleveland with a spare room.

Low income families in less than adequate homes may have more of a reason to leave than others. How will they afford to pay for a motel elsewhere in the state?

For those who would refuse to evacuate under any circumstances, there are additional questions. Can you guarantee your family that the house is safe? Have you arranged for emergency food and water?

Prior to the arrival of a hurricane, there are two announcements. A hurricane watch indicates one may possibly move into the area. A hurricane warning means one is definitely approaching.

These questions regarding what to do must be answered and plans made before a warning or watch is ever issued.

In addition to property damage, hurricanes also cost lives. If a recommendation to leave the area is ever issued, do it without question.

Should we disarm law-abiding citizens?

As a response to Hodding Carter's editorial "Time to Put Away Our Handguns" regarding the need for gun control proposed upon law-abiding citizens, Rodney Peairs shot Yoshiro Hattori. Peairs was not "reacting" to societal training nor did he "react" and "let him free" because of a code whose origins can be traced to the nation's frontier past. He was tried by a jury of his peers, judged not guilty, and released. Carter identifies the problem as "behavior that has a certain logic when the law was somewhere over the horizon is inappropriate within 'civilized communities.'" Does he consider South Dade County following Hurricane Andrew, South Central Los Angeles during the riots, or Luby's Cafeteria in Killeen, Texas when a homicidal maniac shot, casually related, and continued to shoot fatally, 23 victims? Perhaps Washington, D.C. is civilized; have you walked their streets lately?

"When handguns are available to all, safety is available to none" is pure non-fact. Each year 845,000 law-abiding citizens use handguns, and 300,000 use rifles and shotguns in lawful self defense (Gary Kleck, FSU criminologist).

Carter identifies the problem as "those people who are armed with lethal weapons." Would weapons include automobiles — 41,000 deaths (1991), or smoking materials — 400,000 deaths (1992)?

"The statistics are at best misleading." FBI Uniform Crime Report (1991). There were 327 justifiable homicides committed by private citizens. That number is incorrect. The National Center for Policy Analysis states that "potential victims shoot to death 2,000-3,000 criminals every year."

Using a telephone to call police is certainly mandatory. It is even quicker, but what does an unarmed citizen do as he or she waits in the immediate vicinity of an armed felon?

"Tougher gun control laws would be an unrealistic hope." Is it true that you are a criminal. We already have almost 20,000 gun laws on the books today. Do we need more? Or do we need fewer criminals preying on society?

Remember, drugs are illegal by law. Have drugs disappeared? Should we disarm law-abiding citizens?

The responsibility for arts funding

The Los Angeles Philharmonic was in town recently. I had heard much about its brilliant young conductor, Esa-Pekka Salonen. As I followed his baton, I wondered if perhaps I might be observing a historic talent. Like visiting Picasso in his studio of watching Oliver on stage or hearing Caruso at a concert hall.

It never occurred to me that my artistic excitement that evening should somehow be subsidized by the government. As it was I who personally derived value from attending the symphony, it seemed perfectly reasonable that I should pay for that pleasure.

But the arts crowd does not see it that way. They believe that orchestras and theaters and dance troupes and museums have some sort of entitlement to government funding. They seem to think the taxpayers should gladly spare some change for aspiring thespians and divas and acrobats and ballerinas.

It is that mind-set that brought a gaggle of artists and art administrators to a recent meeting of San Diego's City Council. The artists draped themselves in black to dramatize the "black eye" that the financially straggled city supposedly will suffer if the council follows through with its plan to trim arts funding.

This is the kind of protest that greets government officials not only at the local level, but also at the state and federal level who dare to suggest that arts funding should be in the private domain. To the minds of the arts crowd, the withdrawal of government support for the arts will inevitably lead to America's cultural decline.

Art advocates often point out that some of the greatest works in history — some of Beethoven's symphonies, some of da Vinci's canvases, a Romeo and Juliet — were sponsored by aesthetic-minded governments. But, then, no such thing has changed over the last several centuries.

During the lifetimes of Beethoven, da Vinci and Shakespeare, wealth was concentrated in the hands of the few, mainly monarchs and nobles,

I wondered if perhaps I might be observing a historic talent.

Had it been left to the peasantry to financially support the arts, then artists truly would have starved.

By continuing in modern-day America the centuries-old tradition of government support of the arts, we actually do the average taxpayer an injustice. Go to the ballet or the symphony or the opera, attend a museum opening, check out a play or musical. Look over the audience. They are disproportionately affluent.

Government funding of the arts amounts to an income transfer from average working stiffs to the most well-off members of our society. If Joe Sixpack has to pay the full freight to catch a ballgame or a movie or rock concert, why should he be forced to subsidize the amusements of people who are earning far more than he?

There is another perverse aspect to public funding of the arts: Even as arts advocates in San Diego and certain other cities throughout the country lament cuts, certain segments of the arts are making huge sums of money. Broadway theaters, for instance, spent $327 million during the recent season, the highest total ever. Art buyers dropped $146 million in various contemporary, Impressionist and modern paintings.

Government funding of the arts amounts to an income transfer from average working stiffs to the most well-off members of our society. If Joe Sixpack has to pay the full freight to catch a ballgame or a movie or rock concert, why should he be forced to subsidize the amusements of people who are earning far more than he?

Sky-bound drug interdiction not panning out

WASHINGTON — It has the elements of a modern-day "French Connection," except the chase scenes take place with some machines whirring in the sky. The integration of education, health services and family planning comprise the necessary structure upon which to build personal and family security, a declining population growth as a neutral factor in human affairs.

The policy is new not only for its change of direction, but for the principles of human rights it is grounded on. The United States is asserting that a woman's right to basic education, and her and her children's rights to primary medical care are fundamental concerns to the international community.

Education and health care are two of the essential elements of a nation's development. As a leader in the world, it has the duty to support these positions taken by the United States. The new policy on population growth is an investment in a healthier and more stable world community.

Clinton says he wants to reach man claiming to be half-brother

By RON FOURNIER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The California man who claims to be Bill Clinton's half-brother said today he hopes the president believes they are related but says he wants no favors.

Henry Leon Ritzenhaler said he was en route to New York when Clinton tried to contact him Monday. "I'd be very honored and very privileged to talk to him," he said on ABC this morning.

"I don't know what I'd say to him," he said on CBS.

The retired janitorial service owner from Paradise, Calif., says he and Clinton have the same father: W.J. Blythe. Blythe died a few months before the future president was born, and about nine years after Ritzenhaler's birth.

Without confirming Ritzenhaler's claim, Clinton said he tried to call him Monday. "I placed a call but there was nobody home. I don't think I should say anything until I've talked to him," Clinton told reporters, promising to release a statement as soon as he did.

Ritzenhaler said the only thing he wants from Clinton is recognition that they are related. "I know he's my half-brother. I know he is in my mind, my own heart. I hope he reaches the same idea," he said.

"I don't want nothing from Mr. Clinton at all. I don't want no favor from him," he said. "If he can't come to New York, I'll come to New York."

"When we never received a reply, we decided at that time we'd let it drop because we didn't know, one, if he was interested or if he even got the letter," Mrs. Ritzenhaler said. She shrugged off all questions about his father, saying he wanted his dad to "rest in peace."

election about 75 percent of the voters said they wanted to keep the city police department and not turn law enforcement duties over to the sheriff. Lovestrand supported the plan to do away with the city police.

In the November 3 election, commissioners Rex Anderson's, Fred Pearl's and Smeritlon's seats are up for election. Commissioners Steve Miller's and Lovestrand's seats are not. Miller and Lovestrand sometimes vote the same way on issues.

Lovestrand was the only commissioner to vote against drafting the charter amendment. The proposal includes a provision that the question will be placed on the Nov. 3 ballot.

City finance director Dan McNutt explained the change would have created more revenue for the city with the addition of the intrastate calls tax. The tax would have also applied to people using beepers, pagers and cellular phones.

The new tax formula would have adversely affected those who call relatives outside their calling area.

Commissioner Fred Pearl questioned how the city could be expected to pay for the intrastate phone tax from the 30 companies providing long distance services.

"How are you going to get some 10-by-night long distance carrier in Wisconsin to pay us?" Pearl asked McNutt. Pearl added that at least two of the carriers in McNutt's proposal recently had gone out of business.

City administrator James McFellin urged the commission to make a final decision on the new utility tax formula until seeking the proposed budget, which would be ready next week.

"I have a feeling we're going to need additional revenue," McFellin said. "We're faced with making substantial budget cuts. Please don't say 'No' yet."

The commissioners did not indicate they are interested in imposing the additional taxes.

Locally, Seminole County commissioners nominated three Sanford residents who were appointed by Gov. Lawton Chiles. They met Friday in an organizational meeting. The appointees are:

Debbie Brooks-Kantor, co-founder of the local chapter of ACES, Association for Children for Enforcement of Support, a support group that aids parents seeking child support from estranged partners. Brooks-Kantor is owner of About Marketing of Florida, a full-service marketing firm.

Paul Moore, a principal care, elderly health care and affordable health care for all his three areas of interest.

Longtime Sanford resident Art Harris, former administrator of Florida Manor in Orlando, a 420-bed nursing home. Harris served on numerous committees, including an early predecessor of the HHS board. He was a founder of Community Care for the Elderly and has served on the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission. Harris said he'll offer his services wherever ever he's needed.

Bill Moore, completing his first full year as principal of Sanford Middle School. He previously served as assistant principal of Lake Mary High. Moore is also past president of Seminole Education Association, the local teacher's union.

County staff has recommended approving the two-year extension, but not increasing the daily operating hours.

Near Oviedo, several neighbors of David and Paula McMillan's Tigris Eye Productions oppose their request for a three-year extension on their permit, first granted in 1990. Residents have primarily complained about the increased traffic on their rural roads serving the school for the annual McMillan's new site in south Orange County. McMillan said the site was swampy and unsuitable for their annual events.

In energy crisis or deficit crunch, taxing gas is tough

By WALTER R. MEARS An AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON — For 20 years, since the first energy crisis hit home at the gasoline pump, the option of taxing gas has been on and off the table, an idea that always stirred a struggle. And still does.

In the Senate this week, and in the congressional budget negotiations that will follow, energy taxes will be a major point of contention on President Clinton's economic program.

Not with him, though. He's staying out of the way, although Democrats in the Senate scrapped his original energy tax in favor of a 4.3-cent-against-all tax increase on gasoline and other transportation fuels, coupled with sharper spending cuts.

At least as small enough so that it's not particularly unfair to people in rural areas," Clinton said in a radio interview Monday. "I did not want just a 10-cent tax."

Indeed, he campaigned against the very idea of a gas tax, coming around after the election, and now says he was forced to that point when the Bush administration increased long-term deficit projections. Clinton recommended and the House narrowly approved a different energy tax, based on heat content and covering virtually all sources of energy, with a bill in the Senate. But the president said he still thinks that was a good concept, but it is blocked by 1997, proceeds had dwindled near zero.

The energy crisis eased, the oil imports flowed and later energy tax proposals were, like Clinton's, sought for the revenues they would raise to offset budget deficits. In 1983, Republicans in the Senate even considered a tax based on heat content, the kind of Btu tax Clinton proposed this year.

In one of a half-dozen radio interviews promoting his economic program on the eve of Senate debate, Clinton said his original tax plan would "reduce energy consumption, promote conservation and encourage shifts from oil to natural gas."

The plan also would have raised taxes when they were drawn to make energy policy; it's only a fringe benefit now.

All but unmentioned, reliance on imported oil has increased. Imports accounted for 35 percent of U.S. consumption when the first oil shock hit with the Arab oil embargo of 1973.

Human rights agenda asserted

The Clinton administration is reclaiming U.S. leadership to confront the social and environmental problems associated with the world's burgeoning population. The decision is a stark reversal of the Reagan-Bush view of population growth as a neutral factor in human affairs.

Loudoun, VA (Washington) 9,681	44.9%
Bergen, NJ (Bergen-Passaic) 56,968	44.8%
Howard, MD (Baltimore) 21,411	44.4%

*includes the independent cities of Fairfax and Falls Church

Five of 10 U.S. counties where the highest percentage of households under age 35 had incomes over $50,000 were in New Jersey. Putnam, N.Y., however, led the way for young affluents: Nearly 54 percent of households under 35 made over $50,000.

Clinton: Tax plan goal is fairness, rich included

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton, defending his deficit-reduction plan against Republican attacks, says his aim is fairness — not to soak the rich.

"This is not about the politics of envy, this is about who can afford to pay the freight," Clinton said Monday on WCBS Radio, New York.

"In the last 12 years, we had tax decreases on upper-income people and tax increases on the middle class, even though their income trends were just the reverse," Clinton said. Reversing that, he added, "is not about class war, this is about fairness."

Republican leaders have accused Clinton and his Democratic allies of an anti-business, anti-success attitude in writing a deficit-reduction plan that faces votes in the Senate later this week. The bill's biggest money-raiser would raise taxes sharply on those making more than about $100,000 a year.

"I don't buy the argument that just because we tax the rich a higher percentage, this therefore is a good bill," Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, senior Republican on the Senate Finance Committee, said after the panel's Democrats pushed through a version of Clinton's plan.

A new analysis by the Congressional Budget Office indicated those with incomes of $200,000 or more would pay 78.5 percent of the $249 billion tax increase in the Senate plan. They would pay $25,195 more a year, on average. Those with incomes under $30,000 would get tax cuts.

The typical family with income between $30,000 and $40,000 should pay about $61 more a year because of the bill's 4.3-cent-a-gallon tax on motor fuels, CBO estimated. The $40,000-to-$50,000 family should pay about $122 more; the $50,000-to-$75,000 family, about $338.

The energy tax is the only part of the bill that would raise higher taxes on most middle-income people. However, about 2 million retirees with incomes of about $32,000 (single people) or $40,000 (couples) would pay tax on a bigger share of their Social Security checks.

Senate Republicans, outnumbered 56-44, are drafting dozens of amendments to eliminate the bill's tax increases and replace them with additional spending cuts. Several more targeted amendments also are likely.

Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., has some Democratic support for exempting jet fuel from the fuel tax. He argues that the airlines, after losing $10 billion over the last five years, can ill afford another $2.3 billion in fuel taxes over the next five.

Other Republican amendments would kill a provision prohibiting businesses from taking a tax deduction for any executive's pay over $1 million; exempting small businesses from the higher individual income tax rates; and eliminating Clinton's proposal to cut the 80 percent deduction for business meals to 50 percent.

Democrats have some amendments in mind, too.

Several liberal senators object that the Finance Committee voted $69 billion of restraints in Medicare and Medicaid reimbursements, when Clinton had asked for only $50 billion.

And members of both parties want to kill the huge superconducting super collider research project in Texas and the space station as prime examples of spending that cannot be justified in times of tight budgets.

Clinton went on six radio talk shows Monday in an attempt to win support for the bill. He would not suggest how the final version would tax energy, but predicted it would be smaller than the $72 billion broad energy tax he recommended and the House passed and bigger than the $25 billion fuels tax in the Senate plan.

New estimates by the Congressional Budget Office indicated the Senate plan would reduce the deficit by $516 billion over the next five years, or $16 billion more than Clinton asked.

Although the bill to be voted on this week would impose $249 billion in tax increases and restrain mandatory programs, chiefly Medicare and Medicaid, by almost $107 billion, it only promises cuts in a broad range of other federal programs.

CBO said that if those cuts totaling nearly $102 billion are enacted, the government will save another $58 billion in lower interest charges, yielding a total deficit reduction of $516 billion.

Public works law fails to produce promised jobs

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A massive federal public works law enacted in 1991 is helping restore America's transportation system but has not lived up to advance billing as a job-creator and has other growing pains, an Associated Press survey shows.

Across America, vast stretches of highways are being repaved and scores of bridges replaced.

In two years, the law has helped pay for new bus yards in California, bicycle storage lockers in Ohio, park-and-ride lots in New York and a pedestrian overpass spanning Las Vegas' famed casino strip.

But an AP survey of two dozen states shows many projects put on hold because the federal government has provided only about 85 percent, or nearly $41 billion, of the $48 billion Congress originally promised for 1992 and 1993. The law has four more years to run.

The economic stimulus package President Clinton sought this year would have restored the missing funding for 1993. The package was filibustered to death by Senate Republicans in April.

Transportation Secretary Federico Pena, a strong supporter of the legislation, said, "We've got to recognize it's time to invest in America" or "we will have a country in the year 2000 we may not like."

Officially called the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991, it was signed into law by President Bush who predicted it would generate 4 million jobs by 1997.

That goal apparently will not be realized.

Connie, Mike and Jeff Smith of Smitty's Snappin' Turtle.

A Tradition On The Cutting Edge

"Mow. Mow. Mow your lawn gently down the...." wait a minute - what was that noise? Oh, just the sound of the engine blowing up. You don't think I sound worried? Why should I be? As long as Smitty's Snappin' Turtle Mowers is around I don't have to worry about my lawn mower.

People find it easy to trust the years of experience behind Smitty's Snappin' Turtle Mowers. The seeds for the business were sown early in the 1940's when Alexander "Smitty" Smith designed the original Snappin' Turtle. In this age of mass production, it is hard to believe that the original mower was hand built and that there were only 13 made. One of the original proto-types is still displayed in the store as a constant reminder of their roots.

"Smitty" began concentrating on the sales and service aspects of his dealership in 1950 when McDonough Power Equipment took over the large task of production. The tradition of quality sales and service continued after "Smitty's" son, Mike Smith, and wife, Connie, bought the business in January, 1971. Jeff is the third generation to play a part in the family business. He just graduated with a B.S. degree in Business Management from Palm Beach Atlantic College.

Smitty's Snappin' Turtle Mowers, one of the oldest snapper dealers around, will be happy to service your snapper. Let 30 years of snapper product experience care for your equipment. Carrying a variety of engine parts lines enables them to service most other brands of mowers and equipment and to handle warranty and service work for most of the mass merchants in the area. Smitty's maintains a good supply of most parts and is usually able to receive out of stock parts in 24 hours to provide quick service for its customers. In order to stay informed on product changes and service procedures, the staff attends many service update schools each year. A service facility is maintained to provide an average turn around time of only 2 or 3 days in season.

What began as a simple snapper dealership has grown to include many other brands.

Mike and Connie Smith invite you to visit them at 2506 S. Park Drive and experience the family tradition of quality sales and service. No matter what type of lawn and garden equipment you have they can service it for you in a quick, efficient, and friendly manner. Go see them today before the grass starts growing under your feet.

Last group in HIV-infected Haitian refugees land in U.S.

By RAJU GHEBIUM
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — For Michel Vilsaint, one of the last HIV-positive Haitians who arrived here from a U.S. military base in Cuba this week, returning to Haiti would be like "going to my own death."
Vilsaint, 29, said he left Haiti on a boat with 183 other people nearly two years ago because the Haitian military was after him for being a supporter of ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.
Vilsaint, who acted as a leader of the mostly HIV-positive Haitians at the Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, was among the last of 139 Haitians to be brought to the United States for resettlement in the past week.

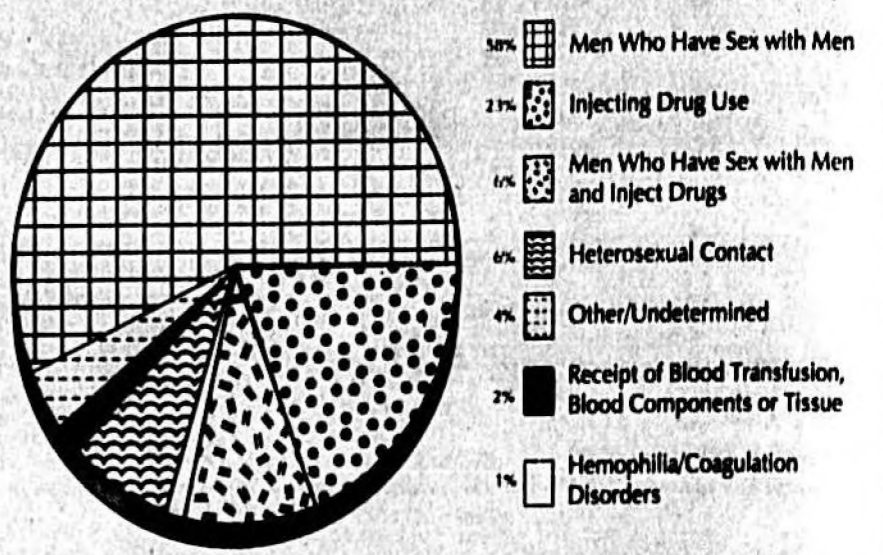

Immigration and Naturalization Service officials in Washington didn't immediately answer requests for information about two pregnant women airlifted out of Guantanamo separately for medical reasons and a man brought to Florida Monday, whose asylum request remains unsettled.
The detention facility at the U.S. Naval Base in Guantanamo Bay, described by a federal judge as an "HIV prison," is scheduled to be closed over the next two weeks.
"What was really bad was there were no medical services," said Vilsaint, who is HIV-positive. "The soldiers acted as though we were at war with them."

"I came from Haiti where it's bad and I went to Guantanamo where it was worse. Anywhere else should only be better," said Vilsaint, a former agriculture extension agent in Haiti, who left a wife and two children behind. He will be staying with his sister-in-law in Miami.
The Haitians brought to this country during the last week shouldn't be affected by a U.S. Supreme Court ruling on Monday that upholds the policy of returning Haitians intercepted at sea without hearing their claims of political asylum.
"The (HIV-infected Haitians) were already interviewed and determined to have a fear of political persecution," said Cheryl Little, director of Florida

Rural Legal Services, which provides legal counsel to Haitian refugees. "Since they're already interviewed ... they are not affected by this ruling."
Justice Department officials confirmed the refugees weren't affected by the Supreme Court's ruling.
The duty camp which held 12,500 Haitian migrants at its peak last year stayed open in recent months to shelter the HIV-infected Haitians seeking political asylum but unable to enter the U.S. because of their HIV infection.
Immigration officials have determined that the refugees risk political persecution if they're sent back to Haiti.

What's driving medical costs up so fast?

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Ross H. Arnett III knows the Medicare program inside out and can rattle off billion-dollar budget figures without blinking.
But when the federal official is asked what drives medical costs up so fast, he thinks back to the bill his mother-in-law got from a Pennsylvania hospital after her husband was felled by a massive heart attack.
"He had been stone cold dead for two hours by the time he reached the hospital, and they still gave him $6,000 worth of care," said Arnett, director of the Office of National Health Statistics. "We give people every last treatment no matter what the cost-benefit ratio."
Decades of double-digit annual growth in the nation's medical bill has finally forced Arnett and other Americans to pay heed to where their health dollars are going.
The nation will spend $912 billion this year, 14.6 percent of its gross domestic product, on health care. That covers everything: aspirin, heart transplants, nursing homes, dental checkups, everything.
The bill was up from $632 billion last year and $675 billion in 1990. Back in 1965, when Medicare was launched, Americans spent just $42 billion on health care, or 5.9 percent of the gross domestic product.
This cost spiral, more than the plight of the nation's 37 million uninsured, has compelled President Clinton to put health care among his domestic priorities.
"All of our efforts to strengthen the economy will fail unless we also take ... bold steps to reform our health care system," Clinton told Congress Feb. 17.

Polls show that many Americans believe the problem could be solved if doctors and drug companies, hospitals and insurers would stop raising their fees so rapidly.
But most experts agree it is not greed but technology that fans the fires of medical inflation.
And they point out that most consumers have third-party insurance cushioning them from the bills, and most doctors are rewarded for ordering more tests and procedures. Fear of malpractice lawsuits also spurs doctors to do more rather than less.
"Technology in medicine is not like technology in industry," said Dr. James S. Todd, executive vice president of the American Medical Association (AMA). "If you put a robot on an assembly line, you've saved money. If you put an MRI (magnetic resonance imaging machine) in a hospital, you've added 10 people to the payroll."
A recent AMA study blames the cost spiral in part on Americans being "overinsured." The doctors' lobby noted that health insurance is a tax-free fringe benefit for most workers and many consumers pay only 20 percent of health costs out of pocket.
That spurs demand far "beyond what it would be if consumers faced the true cost of services," the AMA said.
Dr. William B. Schwartz, a physician-economist and professor of medicine at the University of Southern California, said the polio vaccine that put iron lungs into storage was a rare advance that saved money.
"Most of the things we do add enormously to expenses," said Schwartz. "Take hip replacements. Before we treated it with aspirin and a walker. Now we do a hip replacement operation costing $20,000 or $25,000.

"We have wonderful new things that are both effective and expensive replacing old treatments that were both ineffective and cheap," he said. "We're victims of our own success."
Dr. Arnold S. Reiman, the retired editor of The New England Journal of Medicine, laments that medicine has changed from a largely non-profit social service to an entrepreneurial industry driven by profits.
"Medicine for the most part now is practiced as if it were a business," he said. "Hospital administrators talk about their market share and cash flow, and the government calls them providers."
Henry Aaron, director of economic studies for the Brookings Institution, said that even new technology that reduces the cost of a procedure can wind up costing more.
"Lithotripsy turn kidney stones to sand," said Aaron. "That's less expensive than kidney surgery, but since it's not invasive you use the lithotripter for cases in which the symptoms are a lot less acute than would be necessary to justify surgery."
"Technology keeps adding 3, 4, 5 percent to health care spending each year," said Aaron.
Marilyn Moon, a health economist with the Urban Institute, agreed.
"The new technology tends to add on, not replace, the old technology," she said. "You do an X-ray first, then a CT scan and then an MRI. You're doing all three."
No end is in sight.
Barring a change, the Congressional Budget Office expects health spending to hit $1 trillion next year and $1.6 trillion by the year 2000.

Clinton says Japan must open markets, no matter what its political problems

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Blaming Japan's political upheaval on a legacy of scandals and corruption, President Clinton says Tokyo will have to open up its markets to the West regardless of who is elected to head its shaken government.
"They can't withdraw from the world or shut us out now," Clinton said Monday.
He said the political turmoil would complicate next month's seven-nation economic summit in Tokyo but said he was confident they could make progress nevertheless.
The president said he wanted to take his 13-year-old daughter, Chelsea, on the Asian trip but was concerned that the educational value of the journey would be undercut by the intense press scrutiny she'd face.
Clinton made his remarks in an interview with Mutual Radio's Larry King, one of six radio interviews the president gave as he tried to seize the offensive to win Senate approval of a plan that he says will cut the budget deficit by $500 billion.
The White House is worried that Republicans have been able to characterize Clinton's programs on their terms as simply another tax-and-spend plan.
"There's been so much rhetoric around this economic program and so much inaccurate information put out there that it's not going to be easy to get the senators to make the tough choices to pass the bill," the president said.
Following fast on Clinton's heels, Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., appeared on the same radio stations and said Clinton was ignoring Republican offers to help with the budget.
"They want to play politics instead of dealing with the deficit," Dole said, challenging the budget savings claimed by Clinton.
In his interviews, Clinton argued repeatedly that his plan is fair and balanced, that it includes $250 billion in budget cuts and that most of the tax increases he proposes will be absorbed by Americans with incomes above $100,000.
Clinton also took a slap at an unrelenting critic, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.
Clinton noted that he supports the space station and the super collider, two projects important to Texas' economy, and pointedly said, "Sen. Gramm may need me this week because I agree with him on this issue."
Clinton's comments about Japan's political troubles were his first since Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa failed to win a vote of confidence in Parliament last Friday. The move forced him to call early elections.

LOCALLY

Easter Seal softball

ORLANDO — The Florida Easter Seal Society and the City of Orlando will host the 15th Annual Easter Seal's Double Elimination Softball Tournament for ASA (Amateur Softball Association) registered Men's and Women's 11, 14, 16, and Round Robin Tournament for Coed ASA registered leagues at the Lake Fairview Softball complex on the corner of Lee Road and North Orange Blossom Trail.

The event will be held the weekend of Saturday, June 26, and Sunday, June 27.

Donations to the tournament will go to benefit the Florida Easter Seal Society and specifically their residential camp, Camp Challenge.

Located in Sorrento, Camp Challenge is a 10-acre barrier-free, wheelchair-accessible camp that provides children and adults with disabilities and outdoor therapeutic and recreational experience.

For more information, contact Tricia Kanbar, The Florida Easter Seal Society, Inc., at (407) 596-1381.

Longwood softball

LONGWOOD — The City of Longwood Recreation Department will host summer slowpitch softball leagues for Men's C, Men's Super C, Coed, and Over 40 starting the week of July 12 and running two nights a week for five weeks.

The fee is $290 for Men's C and Super C, and $220 for Over 40 and Coed.

Interested teams should call Sandy Comox at 260-3443 for 260-3447 Monday through Friday.

AROUND THE STATE

Cardinals edge Marlins

MIAMI — Joe Mauer won his fourth consecutive start and Greg Jefferies hit his 10th home run leading the St. Louis Cardinals past the Florida Marlins 4-3.

Mauer (6-0) gave up five hits in eight innings. He allowed only one earned run — on Jeff Conine's two-run home run — and retired 12 batters during one stretch.

Conine (5-1) gave up two hits and a run but still earned his 24th save, the most in the majors. On a six-inning double play, he hit the run with a sacrifice fly, but with the potential tying run at second base, Jimmy Foy struck out and Dave Magallan hit out to right to end the game.

The red-hot Jefferies put St. Louis ahead in the first inning with a solo home run. His 10th of the season. It was just the third homer against Foy (4-1) in 12 1/2 innings this season.

Floyd Zide doubled home two runs in the third, then scored on a single by Tom Pagnozzi.

Labati stays at Miami

MIAMI — Coach Lorraine Labati, who has led the University of Miami women's volleyball team to three NCAA tournament appearances, accepted a multi-year contract to remain at the school.

In Labati's five seasons as coach, the Hurricanes are 129-111-28, with two Big East conference titles. In addition, all 11 players that completed their eligibility have graduated.

Labati, who is 45, was not disclosed, but The Miami Herald reported sources are saying she will now make about $2,000 a year in base salary.

AROUND THE NATION

Fisk to set record tonight

CHICAGO — Carlton Fisk played his 2,229th game as a catcher in the Chicago White Sox's 10th game over Texas to tie the major league record held by Bob Boone. Fisk is expected to break the mark with a start against Texas on "Carlton Fisk Night" at Comiskey Park.

Bonds holds All-Star lead

NEW YORK — San Francisco outfielder Barry Bonds maintained a big margin as the leading vote getter in early results for the National League All-Star team. Bonds has 808,794 votes, followed by Philadelphia catcher Darren Daulton with 412,087.

Clemens on DL

BOSTON — Boston Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens was placed on the 15-day disabled list retroactive to June 19, with a groin strain. Clemens' DL will be eligible to return July 1.

All-Stars, adults play exhibition

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — No matter how old you are when you put on the uniform, the little boy still comes out.

Monday afternoon at Zinn Beck Field, a group of Sanford Recreation Department employees and recreation league coaches showed the Sanford Babe Ruth 14-15 year old All Stars that they still remembered how to play with the little white ball coming back from an 8-2 deficit to best the younger stars, 11-8, in a game called after six innings because of darkness.

"We're happy to win," said Steve Laurence, a local attorney who has coached for several years in the recreation leagues. "But that wasn't the purpose of the game. We come out here to have fun and help the All Stars get ready to play in the District Tournament."

"We've played a couple of these games over the years and this is probably as tough as any team has played us. Give the kids credit, they did a great job of hanging in there against two pitchers who played professional baseball."

The 14-15 year old Babe Ruth All Stars will open their tournament season at Laurus this Friday, playing at 3 p.m. The double-elimination tournament will be played through Sunday, with the winner advancing to the state tournament in Live Oak next week.

Monday's exhibition was the brainchild of Sanford Recreation Department Supervisors Jim Schaefer and Rocky Ellingsworth, who put the game together to help out the team coached by manager Jeff Small and assistants Brian Jones and Tom Kiger.

"It's hard for the All Stars to get game experience playing together because there really isn't many teams for them to play," said Ellingsworth. "This game gives them a chance to play in a relaxed atmosphere and we older guys get to have fun playing baseball again."

"The kids played great, they weren't intimidated at all. If they can play that tough this weekend they've got a good chance of going to state."

Schaefer, who runs the Babe Ruth League during the regular season, was also impressed with the All Stars.

Summer basketball league planned

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation and Parks Department is about to correct a "crime."

For years, an overlooked group of young adults in Sanford have been looking for a way to keep their basketball careers going after graduating from high school.

But because of a lack of facilities, about the only options they had was to either go to Orlando or Daytona to play in the adult leagues or to play on the local cement outdoor courts.

But that situation is about to be rectified according to Sanford Recreation Department Supervisor Jim Schaefer.

"If things go as expected we will offer a summer basketball league for young men ages

16 to 18," said Schaefer. "We hope to get everything finalized by next week so we can play during the months of July and August."

It's the league something that the Recreation Department have been wanting to do for a while, and now just seems like the right time to get it started.

Schaefer said plans are for the league to play on Tuesday and Thursday nights at the Sanford Middle School Gymnasium.

"We already have permission to use the gym now we just need to get together on dates so we can get started," said Schaefer.

Interest has already come from Seminole High School coach Bob Trama, who has already committed his summer team to play in the league. Also looking into putting a team in the league are Travis Perkins and Matt Parker, both of whom graduated from Seminole High School this year. They are hoping to put a team of SHS graduates together to play.

With Seminole Community College head coach Bernard Meritt also starting an adult league at the local junior college, Sanford could become a favorite locale for county basketball enthusiasts. At this six-team league, started playing last night and will play on Monday's and Wednesday's at the St. C. Health and Physical Education Center over the next eight weeks.

Anyone interested in either playing or coaching in the league or sponsoring a team, should contact Schaefer at the Sanford Recreation Department during normal business hours Monday through Friday at 330-5697.

Courier glad for anonymity at Wimbledon

By DAVID CRARY
Associated Press Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — With the attention focused on established professionals, Sanford-born Jim Courier, 21, made his Wimbledon debut, but he has no doubt he enjoys his status here as a relative outsider.

"I'm certainly not going to complain about it," he said of the low-key attention he has received.

Three younger power serving players cruised to straight sets wins. No. 6 Michael Stich of Germany, No. 9 Richard Krajicek of the Netherlands, and No. 14 Wayne Ferreira of South Africa.

Defending champion Andre Agassi, seeded eighth, won for the first time since early April, when he was sidelined by wrist and elbow problems.

"Could he win the title again?"

"I think so," said Courier, who has won 1990 Wimbledon. "I think he's got a good chance of winning Wimbledon again."

Ask me about the rumors of a get there, he said after Agassi's 6-3, 6-4, 6-3 victory over Courier.

For me, it's not my natural surface. It's a top-shoot really. I have to go out there and just take my chances, much more than any other surface.

Perhaps the player most at home at Wimbledon, three-time champion Boris Becker, moved into action Tuesday in an all-German battle with one of the tournament's rising young stars, Marc Goollier.

Ranked 47th in the world, Goollier has a powerful serve and a Becker-inspired nickname — "Baby Boom Boom."

Top-seeded Petr Sampras, given a one-day delay because of a sore shoulder, was to open against

Oh that elusive baseball. Cornell Daniels (top photo) of the Babe Ruth All-Stars can't quite reach a single over his outstretched glove, while Steve Laurence (standing) and Brett Counts look for the ball as it bounces into center field during Monday's exhibition game at Zinn Beck Field.

"They played hard against us and never gave up," said Schaefer. "I think everyone had a lot of fun and hopefully we can make this game a yearly thing, because I think it can only help the All-Stars to play a game or two before heading into the All-Star tournaments."

Schaefer also expressed his thanks to Duane LaFollette and Tom Nye from the Sanford Officiating Service for donating their time and efforts to umpire the game.

The All-Stars jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning. Brett Counts singled to right and moved around to third base on a pair of stolen bases. Cornell Daniels was then hit by a pitch and Counts stole on a passed ball. Daniels later scored on a passed ball.

The City Stars evened the score in the top of the second as former Minnesota Twin Mike Giordano walked, moved to second on a wild pitch and scored on a double into the "ivy" in right by Dean Smith. Smith came around to score on a single by Jerry Herman and a throwing error.

The All-Stars came right back in the bottom of the second inning with five runs. Walter Bryant struck out, but reached safely on an error and moved to second on a single by Ryan Colgate. The duo then stole a base and Bryant scored on a steal of home, but when the throw got past the City Stars catcher, Colgate was called out when the on deck batter interfered with the ball.

Alexis Acosta then singled off the pitcher's glove and advanced to second on a bunt single by Tommy Raines. Cedric Williams then lofted a fly to center field that fell in for a hit, with Acosta scoring. Raines moving over to third and Williams winding up on second.

Raines scored on a passed ball and Williams scored on a single to center by Counts. Counts stole second and advanced to third when the throw got past second and scored on another passed ball.

The Babe Ruth stars added another run in the third. With two out and no one on, Bryant tomahawked a single to left and stole two bases, eventually scoring on a throwing error on a grounder by Colgate.

The score remained 8-2 until the top of the sixth inning, when the City Stars exploded for nine runs.

Ellingsworth led off the inning with a walk and moved over to third on a pair of wild pitches. Tom Martin then singled to right to score Ellingsworth and advanced to third on a wild pitch and a stolen base as former New York Met Robert Smith walked. Tom Boyd then walked to load the bases and Giordano plated a pair of runs with a single to center.

Schaefer walked to reload the bases and Laurence was hit by a pitch to score Boyd. Dean Smith then singled to center to score Giordano with run number seven and Schaefer scored the tying run on a throwing error. Ken Cotter singled to left to plate Laurence with the go ahead run and Dean Smith scored on another single to left by Ellingsworth.

Cotter scored the final run on a long single to left by Robert Smith, but the All-Stars avoided further damage when left fielder Robert Dickerson made a great throw to third baseman Colgate who in turn made a perfect relay throw to catcher Donnie Hinson to retire the runner at the plate to end the inning.

Doing the damage for the City Stars were Dean Smith (double, single, two runs, two RBI), Giordano (single, two runs, two RBI), Ellingsworth (single, two runs, RBI), Cotter and Robert Smith (one single, one run and one RBI each), Martin (single, RBI), Herman (single), Laurence (run, RBI) and Boyd and Schaefer (one run scored each). Also playing were Ron McNeil and Jeff Deen.

Australian Neil Bowrick.

The two top seeded women, appeared headed for easy victories in their first-round matches, also against Australians. Steffi Graf, seeking her fifth Wimbledon title, faced Kiriilly Sharpe, a qualifier ranked 231st, and second-seeded Martina Navratilova, seeking her 10th title, faced Michelle Jaggard-Lal, ranked 89th.

Agassi used a new serving style which cut down on his backswing in order to ease the strain on his arm. It produced 10 aces, more than he had in any of his seven victories en route to the title last year.

But Stich, considered one of the top contenders this year, noted that Agassi's victim, Bernd Karbacher of Germany, had been weakened by bronchitis.

"He played a guy who had a virus for two weeks ... so I don't think that was a real test for him regarding his form," Stich said.

"He's not as good as he was last year," Karbacher said. "But I think he has a pretty good draw now, and these kind of players, they get better every round they play."

While the attention focused on the favorites, some lesser-known players waged epic struggles. In one striking upset, Sebastian Laracu of Canada, a qualifier ranked only 179th in the world, rallied to beat 36th-ranked Jonas Svensson of Sweden 2-6, 4-6, 7-6 (7-4), 7-6 (9-7), 10-8.

For Hamilton, age is no barrier

By HERMAN SCHROEDER
Special to the Herald

SANFORD — Ruth Hamilton, world traveler, teacher and writer at age 95 is still very active with church groups and senior citizens giving her travelogue and slide programs.

As an educator, she continues to learn about the world and shares it with anybody who will listen.

Hamilton is of Viking ancestry, her mother was from Sweden and her father Danish. Her wanderlust and energy can be traced to the Viking era. She has visited over 20 foreign countries and was in the New Hampshire legislature for four years.

She shares her travels and adventures through slides and narration with other seniors at the Longwood Nursing Home and Bram Towers residents.

Her last program was on Portugal, soon to come is Athens, Greece.

Her most recent adventure was a Black Sea Cruise on a Russian ship that took her to 10 different countries which included Yalta and Odessa.

Cat tales are categorically denied

DEAR READERS: Our feline friends have had a lot of bad press in this column lately. In the interest of even-handedness, let's hear it from some readers who should know:

DEAR ABBY: When I was an infant, we had an adult female cat. She was a short-haired Siamese named Muffy. While I remember Muffy only from my later years, my parents have told me many things Muffy did when I was an infant.

Not once was Muffy seen trying to smother or hurt me. In fact, she would sit on the floor near my cradle, and whenever I cried out, she would race out of the room to find my mother; then she would meow persistently until my mother followed her back to my room. Then, after Mother had done whatever was necessary to quiet me, Muffy would resume her "post" by my crib.

KAREN STEIMAN
DEAR ABBY: People who insist that cats suck the breath out of babies belong in the same category as those who swear they have been guests on UFOs or "know" the earth is flat. These people may be sincere, but are confused at best.

ADVICE

I have known and loved hundreds of cats, and never have I seen one act out of jealousy or malice. On the other hand, dogs, whom I love equally, are often jealous, but do little more than just push the object of their jealousy aside.

Cats will always seek the warmest place in the house. Sometimes it's my chest when I'm lying down. It could be a baby's chest, so I agree, it may be best to keep cats away from sleeping babies. The cat does not know that it can suffocate an infant.

But as for sucking the breath out of a baby, or doing harm out of jealousy — utter nonsense!

THE COLLINS,
STUDIO CITY, CALIF.

DEAR THEA: Hundreds of readers have related stories of having caught cats in the act of sucking the breath out of the mouths of infants. An equal number of readers have written to say that cats are not malicious. However, they have a keen sense of smell, and when they smell milk on a baby's lips, cats, loving milk the way they do, go immediately for the baby's mouth. But they would never intentionally harm a baby.

On the contrary, cats have been known to protect an infant should it be threatened.

DEAR ABBY: I was dismayed to read those letters from people who witnessed cats attempting to suck the life out of infants. What poppycock!

I have had dozens of cats over the years, and there is nothing a cat enjoys more than curling up next to a warm human. When my cats try to share my pillow, I make them move; a helpless infant would not be able to do so, and might be suffocated by a very large and heavy cat — but certainly not due to evil intent or jealousy on the part of the cat.

Abby, letters such as those you published only add to the already staggering amount of ignorance and human hatred of one of God's most misunderstood and often-abused creatures.

PAMELA J. FRIZELLE,
SULTAN, WASH.
DEAR PAMELA, THEA AND KAREN: All right already, I'll take 20 whacks — with a cat-o'-nine-tails.

DEAR ABBY: Many people write to you to complain about having sent a gift that was never acknowledged. It is not always a case of bad manners.

Recently, my parents celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary with an open-house party. A good number of gifts were separated from the cards before the gifts were opened.

My parents would have been delighted to send everyone proper thank-you notes, if they had known whom to thank — and for what!

I read some time ago, in a helpful hint column, that it is a good idea to write a description of the gift on the back of the card accompanying the gift.

This is done by some people — but not enough. It is very difficult to write a thank-you note for a gift if you don't have a clue what the gift was.

Frustrated in Kansas
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Thank you for a valuable addition to this column. I plan to use that suggestion myself.

How to control intestinal gas

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a healthy 33-year-old, non-smoking, female homemaker who suffers from flatulence. It doesn't matter what I eat, everything gives me gas that is always accompanied by a very unpleasant odor. Is there a prescription I can take for control?

DEAR READER: Intestinal gas is a common medical problem. Although it can be associated with various diseases, such as tumors and ulcers, it's usually caused by certain foods in the diet: carbonated beverages, legumes and beans are major gas producers. Also, people with flatulence tend to eat quickly, chew their food inadequately and swallow large amounts of air. Once this air traverses the intestine, it takes on an unpleasant odor when it is passed.

I suggest the following: Eat slowly, chew your food, be careful not to swallow air, avoid gas-producing foods (including sugar-free chewing gum and candy), try a compound such as simethicone (available as non-prescription Gas-X), or consider using Beano-O (an over-the-counter natural product that reduces gas). In my experience, prescription drugs for flatulence, such as Librax, are no more effective than the non-prescription products I mentioned.

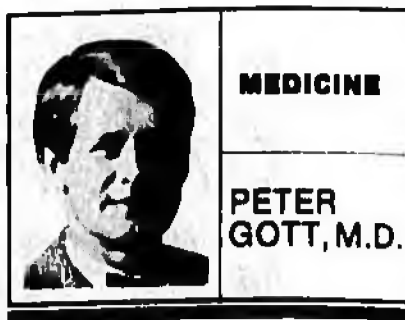

If these suggestions are ineffective, ask your doctor for specific advice based on your physical examination.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Digestive Gas." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A cousin's daughter has Gaucher's disease. Treatment includes steroids. Any information on this disease would be appreciated.

DEAR READER: Gaucher's

disease is an uncommon, inherited metabolic abnormality that results in an excessive accumulation of a fatty substance in certain cells in the body. This causes liver and spleen enlargement, swollen lymph glands, bone pain, skin pigmentation, a deficiency of blood cells, and hemorrhage. Although children may be affected early in life, the disease may not become evident until adulthood.

The diagnosis is made by biopsy. The condition can be confirmed before birth by analysis of the amniotic fluid.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Occasionally a deal will come along in which you must cling like a barnacle to a collection of low cards in one suit. Sometimes the highest card isn't as low as it looks. But today's deal exhibits a different reason.

In an international team event, only one pair reached the borderline six diamonds, via the given auction. They held only a combined 23 high-card points, but five heart tricks would be enough to bring home the slam. (Note that if North has the heart jack extra or South has three spades and two clubs, the slam is phenomenal.)

West led a top club and switched to the spade queen. South won with the ace and ran off six rounds of diamonds. West discarded four clubs and one of his "useless" hearts. Now it was easy for South to play hearts from the top and claim when the jack dropped. Suppose instead that West defends better, keeping all four of his hearts. Even though the percentage play in hearts is to play off the king, ace and queen, South will probably be aware that West has kept four hearts. If so, there are 10 low doubletons that East could hold and only five jack doubletons. So it is twice as likely that West has jack-fourth than four low cards.

If South thinks this way, he will cash the heart king and lead a heart to dummy's 10, going down with the actual distribution. When you have length in a suit in which an opponent is also long, always consider keeping your holding intact if you can.

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip Alder, in care of this newspaper. They can be answered only through the column.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Wednesday, June 23, 1993

In the year ahead devote your time and energies to the fulfillment of your ambitious expectations. Minimize participating in frivolous activities, because you'll have plenty of time to do that later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A sure-fire way to have others come down hard on your ideas today is to first find fault with theirs. Don't be the one who introduces controversy in the relationship. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be prudent and cautious in your commercial affairs today; if you make impulsive judgments, they could create a loss, regardless of whether you're buying or selling.

ANNIE

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't let your ego put you in a position today where you may feel compelled to do something you really don't know how to do. If you're honest up front this could be avoided.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone as strong willed as yourself might try to be the dominating force in your peer group today. A collision is likely if you oppose this individual.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you might have difficulty distinguishing between those who are in your corner and those who oppose you. Poor judgment lessens your chances for success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you're better equipped to deal with large ideas than you are to deal with little ones. Today, however, grandiose schemes could lead to your undoing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are in a cycle where it might prove unwise to invest in situations or people about whom you know little. There could even be potential problems in areas where you know what you're doing.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Persons with whom you'll be involved today won't like it if you take them or what they do for you for granted. This is a volatile area, so be careful.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Any important assignments you've neglected early in the week might start popping up to haunt you beginning today. Don't pretend they don't exist.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to keep your involvements with friends today as low keyed and uncomplicated as possible. Complex arrangements might be destined to fail.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It won't be an accurate measurement to compare the achievements of an outsider against those of kin. Your presentation could be prejudice towards any non-family members.
