SHDWA seminar set

SANFORD — The Sanford Historic Downtown Waterfront Association is holding a special seminar beginning at 5:30 this evening in the meeting of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. The program is through the combined efforts of SHDWA and Sanford Main Street, and will be aimed at helping business owners and operators learn more about safety of their businesses, and how they may undertake improvements to make them more crime-proof. Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell will be the special guest.

The meeting is free of charge and open to the public, especially business owners.

Hold them accountable

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas says poverty and racism are no excuse to commit crimes.

"A system that does not hold individuals accountable for their harmful acts treats them as less than full citizens," Thomas said Monday. "In such a world, people are reduced to the status of children or even worse, treated as though they were animals without a soul."

Thomas spoke to a meeting of two conservative groups, the Federalist Society and the Manhattan Institute.

"An effective criminal justice system, one that holds people accountable for harmful conduct, simply cannot be sustained under conditions where there are boundless excuses for violent behavior and no moral authority for the state to punish," he said.

Inner-city problems such as poverty, substandard education, splintering families and unemployment are often raised as "modern excuses for criminal behavior," noted Thomas.

"Many began questioning whether the poor and minorities could be blamed for the crimes they committed. Our legal institutions and popular culture began identifying those accused of wrongdoing as victims of upbringing and circumstances," he said.

Housing starts down 2.5%

WASHINGTON — Housing starts fell 2.5 percent in April, the government said today. Analysts had expected rising mortgage rates to begin to slow down residential construction.

Drops in the South and West more than offset gains in the Midwest and Northeast.

The Commerce Department said construction of new homes and apartments totaled 1.46 million at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, down from a revised 1.49 million in March. The initial March estimate was 1.47 million.

The 12.3 percent jump in March was partly a rebound from a weather-related 21.2 percent plunge in January and a slower-than-expected 4.5 percent revival in February. Starts shot up 14.7 percent in December to a 1.61 million rate.

But many analysts said rising rates, after initially pushing some tentative buyers into the market, would slow consumer demand and builder enthusiasm. They were predicting a 1.45 million starts rate last month.

Homelessness grows

Feds unveil plan as more area families at risk

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Homelessness is less than a paycheck-less week away for many in Central Florida.

No longer the realm of "winos" and "bums" the homeless in Sanford are families, headed by hardworking parents who are simply out of work. Mother Blanche Weaver of the Sanford Rescue Outreach Mission said.

"It (the problem of homelessness) is awful here in Sanford," Weaver said. "We're seeing families, five and six people come in all the time. There are people of all races. It's not just old men. It's everybody."

Meanwhile, the Clinton administration today unveiled a $1.7 billion strategy for getting government aid to homeless people on the street and then helping them into homes of their own.

The 100-page report, if approved by President Clinton and submitted to Congress, would represent the first time the government has labeled homelessness as a major problem demanding large-scale federal action.

The plan, compiled by the Interagency Task Force on the Homeless, suggested that homeless people be taken in through short-term emergency shelters, given transitional housing while they undergo counseling or job training, then placed in affordable, permanent homes.

OVIDO — Michael J. Vlasaty Jr. was chosen by his teachers and advisors at Oviedo High School as the senior who works the hardest at that school.

Vlasaty was selected as the school's winner of the Commissioner's Choice Award, given by Seminole County Commissioner Larry Furlong.

Furlong gives the scholarship awards annually to graduating seniors at each of the district's six high schools and at the Crooms School of Choice. The awards are for $1,000 each and represent 25 percent of Furlong's annual salary as a commissioner.

Furlong began giving the scholarships in 1991 in fulfillment of a campaign promise.

The students selected for the awards must be registered voters (or be pre-registered if they are SANFORD — The Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee will meet tomorrow afternoon. An initial artist's conception of possible lakefront development proposals are expected to be studied.

Professor Peter Prugh, his graduate assistant Kirman Quinn and several students from the University of Florida Architecture Studio Project are scheduled to be on hand. The committee has contracted for the UF project including conceptual designs of what may be proposed for waterfront development. The drawings are to be based on input from the committee, as well as other proposals by various study groups and design engineers including Andres Duany.

At the April committee meeting, Professor Prugh reported he had received some comments from the Sanford Historic Trust, and said he planned to incorporate them into the modifications being suggested. See Waterfront, Page 5A

Woman accused of threatening Clinton

TAMPA — A woman called the 911 emergency line and told an operator she planned to buy a gun, take a bus to Washington and kill the president, a federal agent has testified. A judge ordered a competency evaluation for Gloria Ferrell, 42, during a brief court appearance Monday. Court files show she had been arrested twice in the past on similar charges, said Richard McClelland of the Secret Service in Tampa. Ferrell was arrested Saturday before she hung up the telephone at a county bus station in Clearwater, said Wayne Shelor, Clearwater police spokesman. Shelor said Ferrell blamed President Clinton for getting her "hooked" on cocaine. She reportedly told the operator she planned to buy a firearm on June 1, then head north. According to files, she was convicted in Savannah, Ga., in March 1993 of making threats against the president and is on probation; and in 1983 was turned over to mental health authorities after telling police in Winchester, Va., that she intended to kill the president. No charge was filed in that case. U.S. Magistrate Tom McCoun scheduled a status hearing for the St. Petersburg woman for May 28.

UF president gets raise for rejecting job

TALLAHASSEE — This is what University of Florida President John Lombardi gets for declining to be president of Indiana University — a $20,000 annual pay raise. The state Board of Regents' finance committee approved the raise Monday while reviewing the salaries of the presidents of Florida's nine state universities. John Lombardi's raise, which takes effect July 1, will give him an annual salary of $217,220 — which is more than what his boss, state Chancellor Charles Reed, makes. Reed is expected to approve the raise, making it official. A private university foundation also gives Lombardi the use of a house and car and a $15,000-a-year deferred income annuity. Two months ago, Lombardi was a finalist for the presidency of Indiana University in Bloomington, where he spent most of his career before coming to Florida. But he withdrew his name from the list before the decision was announced. Reed said he made Lombardi the higher offer after conferring with regents who didn't want Lombardi to leave Florida. "We would be very disappointed if he were to accept an offer outside the state of Florida," said James Heekin, finance committee chair. Lombardi's development of statewide reforms such as the teacher incentive program — for which the Legislature has allocated $10 million — demonstrate that his leadership "transcends the university itself," Heekin said. Lombardi said he plans to stay at the Gainesville school. The only thing that attracted him to Indiana was the "pull of the past," said Lombardi, who was at Indiana for 20 years as a professor and administrator. He left Indiana in 1987 to take a top academic administrator job at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and came to Florida in 1990. The decision to increase Lombardi's salary came after a Pennsylvania consultant recommended that Florida's university presidents be paid more. Under the recommendations, presidents who currently earn in the $120,000 range would be bumped to the $140,000 range. And Reed's salary could increase from $174,900 to $188,500. The consultant's report showed that presidents at public schools the size of the Gainesville school earn between $188,100 and $225,700. The best-paid presidents, measured by national standards, are Lombardi and the three presidents who were hired relatively recently — Talbot "Sandy" D'Alemberte at Florida State University, Betty Castor at the University of South Florida and John Hitt at the University of Central Florida.

Jury seated for HRS computer trial

TALLAHASSEE — A jury has been selected for the trial of the only person facing criminal charges connected with the development and purchase of Florida's welfare computer. Attorneys planned to make opening arguments today, the six jurors were chosen Monday. Judy Mitchell, who had worked as director of the project, is charged with official misconduct and making false official statements. Prosecutors say she approved $11.5 million in contractor payments for work that she knew had not been completed. Defense attorney Robert Harper contends Mitchell was a scapegoat to take the heat in what grand jurors called "one of the biggest fiascos" in state history. If convicted of the misdemeanor and third-degree felony charges, Mitchell could be sentenced to five years in prison. State Attorney Willie Meggs began investigating the $202 million computer in August 1992, a year and a half after it came on line. Last fall, a grand jury blasted the development of the system, which was supposed to consolidate the various welfare programs the state administers. Top administrators at the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services acted unethically, ignored checks and balances, and wasted millions in building the computer, which piled up $260 million in errors, the panel said. The grand jury said Mitchell was incompetent and purposely misled HRS officials.

Farmworkers jam courtroom

MIAMI — More than 100 black farm workers traveled from Martin County to hear final arguments in their discrimination lawsuit against Caulkin's Groves, a major producer of the famed Indian River citrus. An estimated 150 workers made the 110-mile trip from Indiantown Monday in time to hear their lead attorney tell jurors that evidence presented in the four-week trial supported their case. But the grower's lead attorney countered that none of the evidence or testimony brought up in court proved blacks employed at Caulkin's Groves fared any worse than whites. The case was scheduled to go to the nine-member jury Tuesday, court officials said. The farm workers contended in their 1984 class-action lawsuit that Caulkin's Groves, the largest citrus grower in Martin County, long has maintained a "pervasive policy of discriminating against blacks." They are seeking unspecified damages and an end to the grower's alleged discriminatory practices.

Link sought to brain tumors found in girls from small town

Three days after Kara's surgery, Mickle operated on Miriam Martin, 16, who was born in Pace, a Pensacola suburb of about 6,200 residents, and he has another patient from here, Jessica Wallace, 6, who has undergone seven operations since 1990. The four girls all have had non-cancerous brain tumors. Two of the four had the same type of tumor but the other two have different varieties. "My question is: Are there more?" Mickle said. "All of that is highly suspicious. You don't see it. That's why we are going to pursue it." He plans to ask an epidemiologist to look for a possible link.

Train collision investigation

Officials may focus on Orlando loading as possible cause

By NICK PFEIFAUER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — None of the 12 Sanford-bound Amtrak passengers on the Silver Meteor were injured according to Amtrak spokesman Howard Robertson at Amtrak's Washington, D.C. headquarters. All 12 have now been bussed into Sanford, their original point of departure from the train. It was not immediately known if all 12 were actually on board the train when it collided with a CSX freight train yesterday near Smithfield, N.C. Robertson said any who were waiting to board the train south of the point of collision were also bussed to their destination. The investigation of the collision meanwhile, may be focusing on a loading area in Orlando. Information obtained during the preliminary investigation indicates a trailer loaded on a flatcar in Orlando last Saturday, was not properly anchored. Amtrak engineer William Black said a trailer on the passing freight train seemed to come out of nowhere when it hit his passenger train, killing the Silver Meteor's assistant engineer and injuring scores of others. Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board arrived at the scene in Smithfield, N.C. Monday. CSX spokesman Jay Westbrook says the board's investigation likely will focus on how the trailer load was anchored to the piggyback freight car. NTSB investigator Mike Martino said a locking mechanism that keeps the trailer on flatbed cars had not been recovered. He said a second trailer on the flatbed didn't come loose, but was destroyed when the flatbed overturned. Videotape made at the freight train stops in Savannah, Ga., and Charleston, S.C. will be examined to determine if the trailer may have been out of alignment at those locations. Black meanwhile, of Leland, remained in serious condition early today with two broken legs and a concussion, said Nancy Jensen, a spokeswoman at Duke University Medical Center. "All of a sudden, a trailer came out in front of me," Black told an Amtrak transportation manager shortly after the crash Monday.

It was just mass confusion: Fire, smoke, people screaming. It was just one of those things you never want to respond to.

-Officer Craig Fish

Brooks Woodward, 41, of Laurinburg, was killed. He was running the train at the time of the accident. "It was just mass confusion: Fire, smoke, people screaming," said Smithfield police Officer Craig Fish, the first on the scene. "It was just one of those things you never want to respond to." Hours later, suitcases, mattresses and clothing littered the tracks. Bed sheets still hung from the coach doors and windows where passengers tried them to escape. Most of the cars were completely off the track and listing at angles of 45 degrees or more. Thousands of passengers along the East Coast were delayed up to two hours while workers began removing the wreckage and repairing the tracks. Traffic was to return to normal by early today, Amtrak officials said. The wreck was the fifth for Amtrak in little more than a year, said Amtrak spokesman Cliff Black. The worst was in September in Mobile, Ala., where 47 people were killed when a train plunged into a bayou. Black said each accident was caused by external forces that were out of Amtrak's control. He said rail travel is 10 times safer than auto travel, although after the accident "that statement sounds hollow." Amtrak President Thomas M. Downs in Washington, D.C., said 415 passengers and Janke Black, 40, of 1st Drive, Sanford, was arrested by police at a store at 25th Street and Airport Blvd. Saturday. He was accused of attempting to remove New York strip steaks valued at $12.42 from the store without paying. He was charged with retail theft.

Steven Brubacher, 21, listed as homeless, was arrested by Sanford police Sunday at a retail store in the 1500 block of S. French Avenue. He was accused of attempting to remove two bottles of wine from the store. He was charged with retail theft.

Warrant served

Torrey Lee Taylor, 24, 510 E. 5th Street, Sanford, was served a warrant by Altamonte Springs police Sunday. He was wanted on an Orange County warrant for violation of probation on a conviction of battery.

Fourth interest rate hike imminent?

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — A fourth increase in interest rates appears imminent, but the Federal Reserve's credit tightening for this year may be drawing to a close, many analysts believe.

The Fed's key policy-making group, the Federal Open Market Committee, planned to meet behind closed doors today to consider its next interest rate move.

Every time the committee has met this year it has decided to raise interest rates, and there was widespread speculation the central bank would do the same this time.

In fact, some economists were looking for something more dramatic than the three separate quarter-point hikes in the federal funds rate that the Fed has engineered so far.

The funds rate, the interest that banks charge each other on overnight loans, has gone from 3 percent to 3.75 percent.

Many analysts believe the 3.75 percent rate will be increased by one-half percentage point and that the boost will be accompanied by a half-point hike in the Fed's discount rate, the interest that the central bank charges on direct loans to commercial banks. The discount rate, currently 3 percent, was last increased in February 1989.

While the Fed's previous three small rate hikes have sent stock and bond markets spiraling downward, analysts said they were not looking for such a negative reaction this time.

Indeed, on the eve of the widely anticipated rate hike, financial markets staged a modest rally Monday. Bond yields fell to 7.45 percent, compared with an 18-month high of 7.63 percent a week ago, and the Dow Jones industrial average climbed by 11.82 points.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan and other Fed officials have insisted they are not trying to choke off the economic expansion with the rate hikes, but are merely pushing interest rates to a "neutral" level where they are neither spurring growth nor retarding it.

The trouble is that the Fed has been vague about just where that neutral territory is, and many critics complain that its why long-term interest rates have risen faster than short-term rates.

"We feel that the Fed needs to be much more definitive and much more clear about what their purpose is and about what they're trying to accomplish," said Tommy Thompson, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

Thompson, a builder in Owensboro, Ky., said his group believes that the rate hikes that already occurred will reduce new-home construction by 3.6 percent from what was forecast at the beginning of the year.

Last week, the national average on 30-year mortgages hit a two-year high of 8.77 percent, according to a survey by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

However, many economists believe long-term interest rates should drop as financial markets become less worried about the pace of Fed rate hikes and as signs mount that the economy is slowing.

Welcome, Shriners

Several hundred Shriners, known for their red fez hats, will be invading Sanford this weekend. Contrary to what was believed several decades ago, the Shriners do not involve themselves in outlandish pranks in their public appearances.

For Shriners, the big event of this weekend will be the ceremonial initiation. For the general public, it's showtime. The Shriners will be marching in a giant parade complete with traditional go-carts, motorbikes, and other equipment for which their activities are noted.

Even the traditional camel will be parading down the streets.

Exactly seventy years ago, in May of 1924, a similar event was held in Sanford. At that time, 3,000 Shriners gathered for the ceremonial initiation and parade. The front page of the Sanford Herald on May 22 reported on the parade complete with chorus girls, the monkey man, a mule, and a doctor who rode a float massaging a pig.

Contingents came from all over the state, mostly by train, with many riding in their own pullman cars. It was a gala occasion, and a good time was reportedly had by all.

This week, the event will be held again in Sanford. It will be as outstanding as the Shriners and general public make it, (with the hoped-for assistance of good weather).

Welcome Shriners. We are pleased to have all of you in our city. We hope you will take some time to look around and see what we have to offer.

For the general public, welcome these guests. Our visitors in the red fez will be seeing all of us. Let's make them feel at home.

LETTER

Candidate responds

This letter is in reply to Mr. Carpenter's letter printed in the Sanford Herald April 14, 1994 where he attacks my honor, integrity and dedication to the citizens of Seminole County. Adams was there, where was Carpenter?

Mr. Carpenter, do you deal in facts or fiction?
Fact: Winfield (Win) S. Adams joined the non-partisan Thomas Jefferson Club in June of 1992.

Fact: Win Adams was the deputy treasurer. You stopped coming to the meetings.

Fact: Adams suggested the club become a Seminole County "Tiger Bay."

Fact: Adams supports the best candidate for the job.

Fact: Adams, a longtime Republican, switched parties because President Bush said "Read my lips, no new taxes." Then taxes!

Fact: Adams joined the Democratic Executive Committee to learn about its local leadership and philosophy.

Fact: Adams switched back to the Republican party, because he is against the tax and spend big government philosophy.

Fact: Win Adams is a member of the Republican Executive Committee.

Fact: Adams fought to lower the taxpayer burden during Seminole County budget hearings. He questioned the validity of 1.1 million dollars of expenditures.

Fact: Adams stopped Seminole County bureaucrats from spending $100,000 on a computer software program because there was no cost justification.

Fact: Adams serves on two citizen advisory committees for Seminole County, Road Impact Fee and Expressway Authority.

Fact: Adams wrote a computer program to calculate road impact fees (30 pages of code and 28 different reports) and gave it to Seminole County free of charge.

Fact: Adams rode with a deputy sheriff from 8:30 p.m. until 6 a.m. to find out "first hand" what these men deal with on a daily basis. It was an enlightening experience. (You make decisions on facts not fiction.)

Fact: Win Adams is a cost control expert with 20 years of Fortune 500 industrial company experience.

Fact: Winfield (Win) S. Adams, Republican, is running for Seminole County commissioner District No. 4 because he is sick and tired of government wasting our hard-earned taxpayer dollars and with voter approval, he will stop it.

Mr. Carpenter, I hope these facts answer your questions of, where I've been, where I am, and what I want to accomplish. Also, before you attack a man's honor, get your facts straight!

Seminole County Commissioner

Crime bill won't make us safer

Americans are worried about crime. And rightfully so. Every 22 minutes, a murder is committed. Every 11 minutes, a citizen is victimized by violent crime.

Both the White House and Congress have heard the cries of the people for law and order. They have responded with a crime bill that will cost the taxpayers as much as $22 billion over the next five years; that supposedly will reduce the level of crime and violence in America.

But, as the gangsta rappers say, don't believe the hype. A close inspection of the crime bill reveals that there is much less to it than meets the eye.

Take the provision to put 80,000 to 100,000 more police officers on duty. It sounds good. And it might even drive down the crime rate if all those officers were deployed to, say, New York or Los Angeles or San Diego.

But they are going to be spread throughout the country, to as many states and congressional districts as possible. The average big city police force may bring on another two or three officers at most. I'm sure the criminal types are quaking in their boots.

Much has been made of the "three strikes and you're out" plank. If a criminal commits three violent crimes, he spends the rest of his life behind bars. It sounds tough. But it has absolutely no meaning at the federal level.

That's because almost 99 percent of violent crime convictions occur at the state level.

A criminal would have to go out of his way to qualify for the federal three strikes penalty. After two previous violent crime convictions, he'd have to complete his trifecta on federal grounds. Maybe rape someone at the White House or commit armed robbery at the Pentagon or kill someone in a national park.

The proposed new federal death penalty provisions are even more absurd. They would increase the number of federal crimes for which the death sentence may be imposed from two -- airline hijacking that results in death and certain drug-related murders -- to as many as 60.

But, again, a criminal would have to try awfully hard to qualify for federal punishment. He'd have to, say, torture someone on federal grounds. Or murder someone on an ocean oil platform. These kinds of crimes may occur in the overactive imaginations of federal lawmakers. But they rarely are true-to-life.

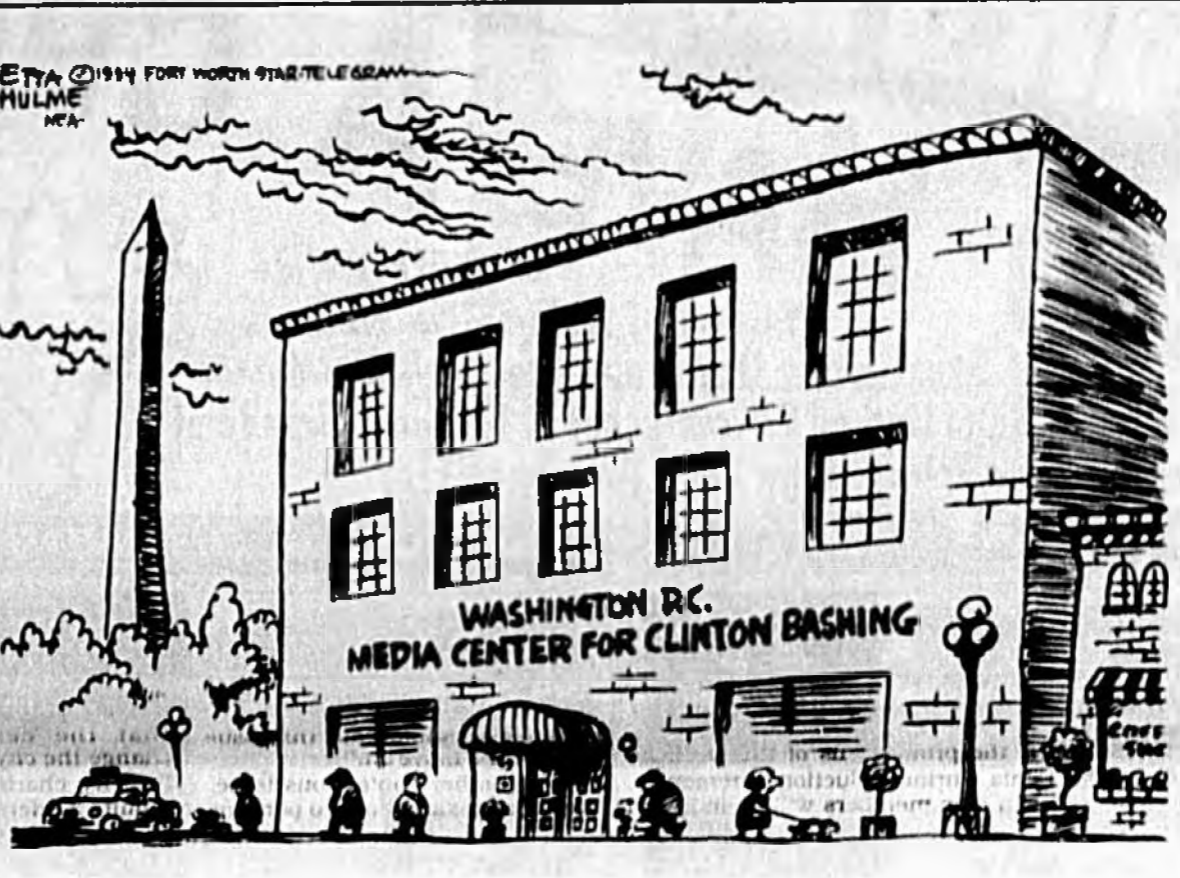

Speaking of which, the notion that the ban on 19 types of assault weapons, which passed the House yesterday, will have more than a negligible effect on gun-related crime also is a fiction. The federal government itself acknowledges that fewer than 1 percent of firearms recovered from scenes of violent crimes are so-called assault weapons.

So while former Presidents Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter and even Ronald Reagan have joined President Clinton's call to "end the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction on our streets," the reality is that doing so will spare few lives.

About the only provision of the crime bill that will have any measurable effect on the level of crime is the $3 billion in grants that will go to state prison construction.

But, as the gangsta rappers say, don't believe the hype.

DONNA BRITT

Louts in national consciousness

WASHINGTON — I have been thinking about setting my dog afire. If you are shocked, you clearly have not met Silverado. All of my friends -- even the vegetarians, the animal lovers, the ones who eschew shoe leather -- hate him.

Regular readers know that Silver was my nemesis long before the idea of immolation occurred to me Saturday -- after he sneezed a muzzle-full of dog snot in my face as I bent over to pet him. Veterinarians say there's one semi-sure way to decrease his ceaseless yapping, jumping, twirling and whining. That's right -- having someone perform an operation on Silver similar to that performed by Lorena Bobbitt on her resident hound. I just can't.

Actually, Johy Wayne Bobbitt is responsible for my cruel fantasy. Clearly, a woman who can't bring herself to deprive a dog of a sex life could never actually set fire to him. I would never have dreamed about publicly barbecuing Silver if Bobbitt hadn't made me. Aldeed, of course, by Cane Kid Michael Fay.

The idea occurred last week when I read that Bobbitt, 27, had been arrested on a charge of domestic battery after allegedly roughing up his fiancée. Freed from the clutches of knife-wielding Lorena, Bobbitt traveled to Nevada and into the arms of former topless dancer Kristine Elliott, 21 -- who early Friday called police to the Las Vegas apartment she shares with America's favorite former amputee. She accused him of yanking her arm during an argument and shoving her against a wall. Bobbitt, apparently drunk, was taken into custody.

Bobbitt, who was acquitted of abusing the estranged Lorena, calls the recent arrest "a huge misunderstanding." He said he will do "whatever it takes to make this (new) relationship work."

Please. Are we surprised by this development? Were we stunned when William Kennedy Smith, acquitted of date raping a young woman in Florida some three years ago, pleaded no contest to charges last November that he punched a bouncer at an Arlington County bar?

Why would we be? These guys are famous only for being acquitted of violent acts of which many people believed them guilty -- and in Bobbitt's case having a particularly vicious act performed on him.

I was surprised by official reports about Fay, 18 -- who stands to become a millionaire after weeks of publicity over being sentenced to a "brutal" cane lashing in Singapore for vandalizing several cars and possessing stolen road signs and flags. The Singapore government claims Fay shook hands with his caner and smiled after receiving his four-lash spanking. News reports had led me to believe he'd barely survive. But his lawyer's counterclaims that Fay actually was distraught and bleeding hardly amazed me. The more sympathetic Fay seems, the more he'll earn from TV and tabloid deals.

What is stunning is how often loutish guys like these and their female counterparts like Amy Fisher, become part of our national consciousness -- even among people who rarely read tabloids and don't actively follow their stories. I haven't a clue who the leading researchers are in the battle against AIDS or which activists are making the biggest strides against child abuse.

But I know who Joey Buttafuoco is. And Saturday, after hearing about the further antics of yet another guy whose name I wouldn't know if somebody had behaved horribly, I had to wonder: Why should a single cell in my already strained brain be burdened by such junk?

Enter Silverado. I was idly wondering what disgusting thing I could do to gain celebrity -- and the resultant multimedia deals, with Alfre Woodard playing me in the movie -- when Silver sneezed. Would the tragic tale of an overworked wife, mom and columnist losing it to the point of publicly fricasseeing her pet be gross enough to win her fame and fortune?

Probably not. The mere thought is nuts. But hey, so is America. So is any nation where men and women known only for their greed, tastelessness or brutality are rewarded, not shunned; where the media slavishly inform you of every move made by such marginal achievers as Cindy Crawford, Maria Maples, RuPaul, Sharon Stone, Ice-T and Howard Stern; where the likes of Roseanne Arnold and her twin husband can become national icons. How can we in the media credibly claim to be concerned about our children's values, when we constantly reward mediocrity and infamy?

I can almost understand it when our idol-worshippers have demonstrated gifts -- Tonya Harding, African American bottle-blond and bad-boy hoopster Dennis Rodman. And Bobbitt, who is hardly extraordinary, was extraordinarily victimized. But what has Michael Fay demonstrated, except a talent for decorating strangers' cars with eggs and spary paint, and whining when it came time to pay?

Are we surprised by this development?

SARAH OVERSTREET

The SAP helpline is now closed!

One of the greatest questions in the history of mankind is why some of us are so inclined to stay in relationships with people who treat us like doggie doo. And this is one area in which the worldwide male power structure hasn't firmed up a monopoly. I've known perfectly wonderful men who've let a woman claw their eyes out and then apologized for getting eyeballs on her clean floor.

So why do we do it? Well, psychologists might tell us that jerks learn these behaviors in their families and the behaviors become unconscious patterns. They might tell us these people only know how to relate with others by manipulation and taking repressed emotions out on inappropriate targets.

However, after 30 years of listening to my girlfriends and even a few of my male friends cry on my shoulder about their significant others, I think I've found the answer:

People stay with jerks precisely because they have people like me to phone at 11 o'clock at night and complain to. A long-distance call after business hours is considerably less expensive than $100 an hour for "It's about time to wrap up this season. We'll take this up in three weeks when I get back from Maui."

I call us "Shoulder Available Pals," or "SAPs" for short. One other great feature of us SAPs, which is unavailable in conventional therapy, is that the Shoulder Crier receives instant relief of his or her frustrations, without having to change so much as one nanosecond of behavior. Oh, we SAPs may suggest something once in a while, but we're easily rebuffed:

SAP: "Norma, I know I've said this 100 times before, but I think you guys are really to the point where you need some professional help."

Shoulder Crier: "After you suggested it the 99th time we actually went, but Elmer said the counselor was on my side so he won't go again. But let me tell you what Elmer did TODAY..."

Well, I am putting all my shoulder-crying friends on notice: This old SAP has had it. During the 1,578,000th service call of my career, something snapped. The Venetian blind went all the way to the top of the window. "Sarah's SAP Service, Open All Night, Immediate Service," is now closed due to the retirement of the proprietor. If you phone, your call will be answered by an Automated Response Unit:

"Hello, welcome to the Jerk Victim Helpline. If your boyfriend, girlfriend, husband, wife or otherwise Significant Other has been acting like a creature from 'Night of the Living Dead' but refuses to tell you what's wrong, press one."

"If he or she comes home seven hours late but won't expend any effort creating an excuse even your cat could believe, press two. For a mate who's sociable as an ulcerated tooth one day but becomes Prince or Princess Charming just as you start reaching for your suitcase, press three..."

Callers will expect to get good ol' SAP, but will instead receive a recorded message randomly chosen from the phone menu without regard to their real problem:

Response 1: "What, you're still WITH that no-account piece of human debris? Haan't your lobotomy grown back together by now?"

Response 2: "Has it ever occurred to you that someone with a history of depression and a $5,000-a-year therapy addiction has no business dating a person who just never seems to get around to filing for divorce?"

"If you feel like you need more counseling, leave a message after the beep. Someone will get back to you... oh, about August 2032."

People stay with jerks precisely because they have people like me to phone at 11 o'clock at night and complain to.

Homeless

 women and children will include job training through the Private Industry Council, social service assistance and help in finding affordable housing, Weaver said.

"The men can go out there and find a room to live in while they're trying to get on their feet," she said. "It's not so easy for women and children so we have to give them transitional housing and assistance."

In places like Sanford, one city department head says homelessness is a complicated problem.

"According to the census figures, we only have like five homeless people in Sanford," said Charles Rowe, director of the Community Development Agency in Sanford. "But, of course, homeless people don't have mailboxes where they can get the census forms to fill out. We have no way of knowing the real numbers. There are hundreds, at least."

Weaver said more than 350 people a day come to her mission to seek free meals and shelter.

But without official (census) counts to back up their claims, the Community Development office has no money to help the homeless find affordable housing. Rowe said the homeless would need to find homes and then he could help them with money to fix the places up.

"Of course, that's easier said than done," he noted.

Rowe said he'd like to do whatever he can to help the homeless in Sanford.

"But I have two questions: What? and How?" he said.

The Clinton Plan also recommended a dramatic overhaul of current programs, and called for "emergency measures" to move homeless people back into society.

"We must remember that government's role is to help people help themselves," the report said. "The current homeless system across the country was not planned, but rather evolved as a result of uncoordinated efforts.... The result is a disjointed approach which provides for some needs while ignoring others."

The administration described two classes of homeless people: those with long-term, disabling conditions and those in "crisis poverty," who are so poor that sudden tragedy, such as the loss of a job or a house fire, pushes them onto the streets.

"Homelessness is not just a housing problem, but a condition that can result from poverty, substance abuse, a lack of affordable housing or the collapse of institutions," said Housing

Secretary Henry Cisneros, chairman of the task force.

The task force report estimated the nation's homeless population at 7 million at the close of the 1980s, with 600,000 on the street on any given night. Previous administrations put the figure at 600,000; the most recent draft of today's report gave a range between 4.05 million and 9.52 million.

The population estimates did not include 1.2 million families who are on waiting lists for public housing, the 1 million seeking federal rent assistance or untold numbers who move in with families or friends.

In Sanford, there is a four year waiting list for people seeking a place in the public housing areas of the city. No new applications have been accepted for two years.

"People, especially in the lower rent sections, just aren't moving on," Phyllis Richardson of the Sanford Housing Authority said. "It is a housing crisis."

Richardson said that much of Sanford's housing problem is caused by people from other areas coming here because they could not find housing elsewhere.

According to Weaver, many of the homeless also come here from other places.

"They send their overflow from Orlando and we're seeing a lot from Lake County, too," she said. "It says to me that there is a much bigger problem than just what we have in Sanford. It is a problem everywhere."

National counters did tally up to 1.5 million homeless children, as many as one-third of whom were not attending school regularly as recently as 1992. Those who did attend often drifted from school to school, without adequate supplies or a place to study.

The draft plan suggested creating special school and recreation programs for homeless children, to remove "significant barriers" to equal education.

It also recommended spending large amounts of money on housing, mental health care and making sure that homeless people who qualify claim the earned-income tax credit for low-income workers.

There is not a plan in place to school students who are homeless in Seminole County, though the district will offer education to students who have settled into an attendance zone, even if it is only temporarily, a spokesman said.

Information from the Associated Press is contained in this report.

Waterfront

According to the agenda, the meeting will include an open discussion regarding "quick-sketch" design studies prepared by participating students. The quick sketches are planned to form the basis for further development and refinement during the remainder of the first session of University of Florida studio involvement.

The main scope of having the U of F presentation at tomorrow's meeting has been reported to provide a consensus to students involved in the university project, on a direction to be specifically pursued.

Organizers of the meeting say this will be an important opportunity for members of the Waterfront Steering Committee to state their preferences regarding the progress of the study.

Included among reports will be one from an ad hoc committee designed to establish a community redevelopment agency, which has been deemed necessary in order to bring about development of the lakefront area. Fay Fulton, subcommittee chairman is to report on the Florida Redevelopment Association Peer-to-Peer program.

The meeting is scheduled to begin tomorrow (Wednesday), at 4 p.m., in the city manager's conference room, second floor, of Sanford City Hall.

Longwood

district. She declined to say where she is house sitting.

During the public participation portion of the Longwood City Commission Monday night, Jane Cleeton, who lives on Longdale Avenue questioned whether Vacca still lives in district 4.

"I, myself, don't believe, you are living there," Cleeton said. "I do not believe you live in my district." She said she talked with the man who owns the Raven Avenue property who said Vacca's family did not live at the residence. Cleeton also said a telephone number for Vacca is a voice mail number.

Vacca said she paid rent to the man's wife and the Raven Avenue address is her legal residence.

"I didn't realize the city charter states a commissioner can't leave town," Vacca said, referring to her family's house-sitting stint which began a week ago and will end later this week.

Commissioner Steve Miller questioned Cleeton's concern over Vacca's address hinting the issue was being raised on behalf of a commission member. Miller did not name the individual. Miller stated further that within a week Vacca would be moving into a house at 1061 Ream Street within her district.

Miller said he did not think Cleeton came up with this issue on her own. He said a commissioner had called the landlord several times demanding to know Vacca's whereabouts.

"That conduct was totally inappropriate but we all know how this took place," Miller commented. "We all know who's involved. It is inappropriate and I think we should put this issue to rest and move on."

On another contentious issue, the deannexation of two portions of two major roads, Miller and Mayor Paul Lovestrand came out on the opposite side of the issue. Initially, Lovestrand backed the deannexation of Hwy. 17-92 from General Hutchinson Parkway to Raven Street and State Road 434 from Tarrytown Road to Markham Woods Road. However, the loss of ticket revenue and public opposition to the move helped change his opinion.

Miller wanted to concentrate police time patrolling within the city rather than working traffic problems on the outskirts.

Lovestrand called SR 434 the lifeblood of Longwood noting accidents on the corridor can tie up traffic affecting citizens and businesses. City police have a quicker response time to the scene than the time it would take Florida Highway Patrol officers to arrive, resulting in even longer delays and traffic backups.

Under the mutual aid agreement, Miller noted, Longwood police might still be called to the scene of a bad accident. However, police chief Greg Manning explained, if the road was deannexed, the highway patrol would be in charge of the investigation and clearing the accident.

Lovestrand estimated the city gets about $50,000 a year in ticket revenue from the two roads in question. He asked where the city could make up that loss of revenue if the roads were deannexed. He noted a certain "political advisor" had lobbied to deannex the roads for several years.

"The businesses don't want it, the citizens don't want it," Lovestrand said. "There's apparently only one person who wants it, a certain political advisor. He has lobbied me and Hank Hardy before me to deannex (the roads). We'd have lost a quarter of a million dollars by now if we had."

Commissioner Iris Benson suggested the commission draft a deannexation ordinance only for the section of Hwy 17-92 and keep SR 434 under city jurisdiction. The commission okayed the motion by a 4 to 1 vote with Lovestrand the lone "no" vote.

City attorney Richard S. Taylor Jr. expressed concern that the deannexation will change the city limits and under the city charter the move may require a referendum. He said he will research the matter.

In other business: Miller agreed with Lovestrand that the discussion of salary increases for city workers making less than $7 an hour will be taken up during budget sessions planned for June.

Miller was critical of articles in a large metropolitan newspaper which asserted the lack of street lighting contributed to several accidents along Hwy. 17-92. An editorial was critical of the commission for rejecting a plan for the installation of street lights by the state, but requiring the city to pay the energy costs. Drugs and/or alcohol, not street lighting, Miller said reading the accident reports, were factors in most of the accidents.

The commission by a 4-to-1 vote okayed a zoning change on the north side of SR 434, east of Grant Street. The change brings the parcel into compliance with the comprehensive zoning ordinance. Benson voted against the change. The landowner has applied for a conditional use on the property for a used car lot. The commission will vote on whether to approve or deny the conditional use after the zoning is changed.

The commission approved three mutual aid agreements with local law enforcement units.

Parade

Following a tight turn on Sanford Avenue it will go to Seminole Blvd., then east back to Mellonville, and back to the Shrine Club on Lee Avenue.

On hand for the event will be the traditional mascot of the Bahia Shrine, Sir Gus, the camel. Also in the parade will be the show-stopping motorbike team, and floats, marchers or units from as many Shrine organizations in the Temple's area as possible.

Bahia Shrine Potentate Thomas E. Embree said he expects the parade will be one of the greatest in many years.

In addition to holding parades and the East/West Shrine Bowl football game, the Embree said Shriners are probably best noted for their work with burned and crippled children.

Early this past week, Embree helped airlift two Seminole County girls who were severely injured in an auto accident on S.R. 434, to the Shrine clinic in Cincinnati.

"I've also been helping a young man who was severely handicapped," Embree said. "I first started working with him when he was three years old. Recently, at age nine, on stage and in front of a packed audience, he handed his mother his crutches, and walked alone for the first time in his life."

"People said he'd never walk," Embree said.

"but because of the help the Shriners have been able to provide, he proved them wrong."

At the present time, Shriners have approximately 22 hospitals across the nation. Since the first was organized in 1922, the hospitals have treated almost a half million children. Thousands have been fitted with arm and leg braces and artificial limbs.

Three burn units are also in full operation across the nation.

National Shrine headquarters is located in Tampa.

For Shriners, the prime focus of the weekend will be the Bahia Shrine induction ceremonies. Over three dozen new members will be inducted into various clubs, approximately a half dozen into the Sanford club. This will all take place in Sanford.

"Right now we have approximately 150 members in Sanford," Colgrove said. "And we'll be acting as host of the event."

Colgrove said he would like to invite everyone in Sanford and the surrounding area to be on hand for this parade. "We haven't met in Sanford like this since 1987," he observed, "and it's really something to see, as members from throughout the Central Florida area will be participating."

Colgrove suggested persons visiting the "Family Fun Day in the Park" event Saturday at Fort Melon Park will have a double treat with the addition of the parade.

In between those activities and his studies, Vlasaty also finds the time to volunteer his services at the Lawton Elementary School Head Start Program. In addition he helped organize the

"Michael is a hard worker and an excellent role model for his peers," Furlong said. "I have no doubt he will be as successful in

23 crew members were aboard the New York-to-Miami train on Monday.

The Silver Meteor derailed at 4:42 a.m. after striking the tractor-trailer filled with cat litter. The trailer fell off a northbound CSX freight train and hit the passenger train's engine car. All but one of the Amtrak's 19 cars derailed, but only one of the freight train's 52 cars left the track.

Downs said the Amtrak train was traveling about 70 m.p.h. at the time of the crash and the CSX freight was going about 35 m.p.h.

More than 350 people were injured in the wreck.

About 180 people were treated at Johnston Memorial Hospital's emergency room, said Gail Stewart, a nursing supervisor.

Five other passengers remained hospitalized Monday night, she said.

Another five were admitted to Duke University Medical Center in Durham, about 45 miles away.

Passenger Dick Hutchinson of Wilton, Conn., said he was lucky. A regular train rider because his wife doesn't like to fly, Hutchinson said he frequently rides at the front of the train to be near the dining car. This trip he was riding in the last car — the only one that didn't derail.

"We felt a tremendous bump," said Hutchinson, who skinned his shins. "I started to slide out of my seat under the seat in front of me. Then we felt two more thuds."

Most of the passengers on the train were heading to Florida — including 43 children who were members of a choir from Madison Middle School in Miami. Eleven children and five of the six adults in the group were injured, said chaperone Fay Hepburn, the one adult who wasn't hurt.

After the accident, the children who weren't hurt sat on the armory lawn singing and drawing to pass the time until the railroad made travel arrangements.

About 285 people were taken to a Red Cross shelter at the National Guard Armory on Monday. Some passengers were put on buses to their destinations and others were put in hotels to await new trains.

Information from Associated Press is included in this report.

Hendrix Antiques - Your Furniture's Fountain of Youth

Ponce De Leon may have discovered the fabled Fountain of Youth in St. Augustine, but Walter Hendrix has the real thing just outside Oweeta. Hendrix Antiques is a veritable fountain of youth that can make your old furniture look shiny and new.

For the last 27 years, Walter Hendrix has devoted his business to making the old look new through his loving care and own special touch. He learned the art of refinishing antiques from D.L. Montgomery, "one of the area's best refinishers". Mr. Hendrix has used his knowledge and experience to teach 4 of his children how to refinish antiques.

What makes him different from other refinishers in the area? Mr. Hendrix's answer to this question is a simple one, "nothing - I just feel that the customer should be satisfied to the best of my ability". And they are! Why else would customers have their furniture shipped in from miles away to have it redone by Mr. Hendrix? What other reason is there for a customer in Miami to ship furniture to Oweeta to be refinished. What other cause could there be to his having had repeat customers for more than 21 years? These customers all recognize the pride and quality of his work and appreciate that it is backed up by his personal guarantee.

Mr. Hendrix will take in any wood piece in any condition. He will strip it to the bare wood, repair it, and prepare it for a new finish. In order to pay careful attention to quality results, all striping is done by hand rather than dipped. No job is too small for Mr. Hendrix. "If it's broken, I will fix it. If it's dull and scratched, I'll make it look new."

From Grandma's dresser to office furniture, Mr. Hendrix can refinish nearly any piece of wood furniture. He can miraculously take away years of wear and tear to replenish the true beauty and youth of your furniture. Local businesses have found that Mr. Hendrix can work wonders with their desks, chairs, and typing stands. Area churches such as All Souls, Mt. Calvary, First Baptist and St. James Methodist Church have come to realize his miracles in restoring their worn church furniture.

Hendrix Antiques is not just a refinishing business - they also have antique furniture for sale. You can find chairs, mirrors, tables, rockers, buffets, chests of drawers, and much more.

Although Hendrix Antiques is open Monday, Mr. Hendrix finds time for his six children and wife of 31 years. For the past several years, he has pastored at Friendship Missionary Baptist Church in DeLand. You can be assured that Hendrix Antiques is a Christian Family Business.

Mr. Hendrix is always happy to give a free estimate and does free pick up and delivery six days a week - Monday through Saturday 8:30 am - 4 pm. Come by to see the selection of antiques or drop off an item to be fixed and witness the amazing process of refinishing at Hendrix Antiques which is located 2 1/2 miles west of Oweeta on State Road 419/434. You can arrange to have Mr. Hendrix restore youth to your furnishings by calling 365-3740.

Hackers chop down Plant

CASSELBERRY — The PDS Hackers have got their act together. But it may be late. The Oviedo based-Hackers whitewashed Lake Branley Plant Inc. 12-0, whom they had lost to twice this season, Monday night in the Seminole County Women's Spring Class C Slowpitch Softball League at Red Bug Lake Park. "We have an excellent group of 10 players now," said Hackers coach Mickey Norton. "But unless we something drastic happens, I don't think we can get closer than one game out of first. We will make some noise though." Lake Mary's Teresa Wallburger was the star as she hurled the two-hit shutout and also went three-for-four with two runs scored at the plate. Also contributing were Terri Mann, Tammi Morris and April Stoner with two hits each. Stoner also scored two runs. Tammy Chesser had three RBI and Morris drove in two runs. Next week the Hackers (6-5) will play the Ball Busters, who beat league leading Pretzels Monday night, at 8:30 p.m.

Hoop fund-raiser at Lake Mary

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary High School faculty will take on the team from JAMZ 102 radio in a fund-raising basketball game tonight at 7 p.m. at the Lake Mary gymnasium. Cost is $2 and the proceeds will go to the Lake Mary High School basketball team.

New Sanford baseball league

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department will be starting a new youth baseball league this summer for boys ages 16-18. The league is for players who will not be playing NABF or American Legion this summer. Tryouts will be this Saturday at 1 p.m. at Sanford Memorial Stadium. For more information, contact Jim Shafer at 330-5697 starting Wednesday.

NCAA baseball in Florida

TALLAHASSEE — FSU and Miami will be hosting NCAA regional baseball tournaments. The Atlantic 1 regional is slated for Miami, May 27-30, with the Atlantic II in Tallahassee, May 28-29. Games are scheduled at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. on the first three days at FSU and at noon, 3:45 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at Miami. Clemson, Louisiana State, Wichita State, Tennessee, Oklahoma State and Texas will also host double-elimination tournaments. The entire 48-team field, seedings and first-round pairings will be announced next Monday.

Capriati in trouble

CORAL GABLES — Jennifer Capriati was arrested on marijuana charges when a tip about a runaway led police to her motel room. Police said they found Capriati, 18, alone in her room at the Gables Inn. During a search of the room, with Capriati's consent, police uncovered an undetermined amount of marijuana, said police Sgt. Mitch Fry. When the female runaway and a 19-year-old Miami man arrived at the room, which was in Capriati's name, they were arrested on heroin and crack cocaine charges. Capriati was charged with misdemeanor possession of marijuana and released to her attorney, John Ross.

Marlins top Mets

NEW YORK — Chuck Carr doubled three times and scored the go-ahead run in the eighth inning, as the Florida Marlins won their straight game, 3-1, over the New York Mets. With the score tied at 1, Carr doubled to lead off the eighth and moved to third on a sacrifice by Kurt Abbott. Dave Magadan followed with a grounder to first baseman David Segui, whose throw to the plate was too late to get Carr. Jeff Conine followed with a single, his fourth hit of the game, and Benito Santiago also singled, but Magadan was thrown out at the plate. Orestes Destrade later hit an RBI single. Robb Nen (2-1), who relieved Dave Weathers, retired all four batters he faced. Jeremy Hernandez got three outs for his ninth save.

Azinger beats cancer

TULSA, Okla. — PGA champion Paul Azinger, his shaven head gleaming under television lights at a news conference for the 1994 PGA Championship, said the lymphoma he has battled for six months has been beaten. The 32-year-old Azinger, who has completed six chemotherapy treatments, said he planned to return to competition in the PGA in August, possibly earlier. He will undergo five weeks of radiation treatment in Loma Linda, Calif.

Moose 'Pirates' crown White's hit gives Bucs Babe Ruth National title

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Comeback complete. The Moose Lodge Pirates finished off a come-from-behind victory over the Elks Lodge #1241 Cubs Monday evening at Sanford Memorial Stadium that was started back on May fourth.

Antonio 'Head' White lined a one-out, two-run single to center field in the bottom of the ninth inning as the Pirates edged the Cubs 5-4 in the winner-take-all contest to claim the National Division title of the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League.

Back on May fourth, the Cubs had taken a 3-0 lead with a run in the first inning and two runs in the fourth, before the Pirates battled back with a run in the bottom of the fourth and two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning.

But the game had to be suspended on account of darkness with the score tied at 3-3 after eight innings.

It was a fitting conclusion to a highly competitive regular season as the league now gets ready for the city playoffs that start Wednesday.

The victory gives the Pirates (9-4) National Division crown and eliminates the Cubs (8-4) from the semifinal playoffs.

The Cubs and the Knights of Columbus Cardinals, the three-time defending City Champions, ended the season tied with 8-5 records and the two teams had split their two meetings during the season. But the Cardinals earned the second spot in the playoffs because of better National Division record. The Cardinals were 6-2 against division foes, while the Cubs were 5-3.

The Pirates and Cardinals will join the American Division representatives, the Nobles Construction White Sox (13-0) and the Rotary

Survival gives Kump first VCS win

By BILL SIEBERT
Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — Sometimes it is better to be lucky than good.

A four-wide dash out of turn four on the start of Friday night's Late Model feature at Volusia County Speedway's dirt track turned into a tangle and left the two cars on the front row nose to nose and sent Joe Kump of Hollywood to the front.

Kump never gave up the point for the rest of the 30-lap finale.

"We've been struggling for the past year," Kump said from the Sportsolution Winner's Circle after taking the checkered flag. "This is our first win. It's great to race here."

Kump took the pole on the restart after Scott Nelson and Gary Flynn locked horns and came to rest just in front of the flag tower after Nelson, Flynn, Kump and Bill Kopka came out of turn four doorhandle-to-doorhandle for a sprint down the straightaway. Flynn and Nelson both returned to race, but it was Mitch Kilpatrick, Bobby Layman, Wayne Shugart and Kopka rounding out the top five behind Kump.

In other division results from Friday night, Stacy Mathen won the 20-lap Pro Stock feature. Ronnie Ponce was victorious in the Mini Stocks and Mike Schild claimed the checkered flag in the 21-car Hobby Stock finale.

Daniel Miller's pole position start was good for the lead spot through seven laps in the Pro Stock feature, but on lap eight Mathen charged into the lead, outlasting a late challenge from Richard Adams to lead the rest of the way.

Mathen and Adams were followed by Brian Bales, David Higgs and Steve Wortman to finish out the top five.

"I was pretty upset on the invert," Mathen of Bunnell said after winning his heat race, but drawing the number six pill to invert the top six for the feature. "I drew the six, but the car is really hooked up."

Doing the damage for Sanford Paint & Body on May 6th were, with two hits — Brian Burgett, Mike Bernosky, Rocky Jernigan, Louis Davis; one hit — John Bernosky (triple), Shawn Tillis (double), Dave Hadley, Johnny Eastham, Allen Dorn, Dave Wallace, Keith Kempke, Terry Bellefleur, Wes Childers.

Gilbert, competing for the Florida State Regional Team, captured the All-Around title in the 15-16 year old age group with a composite score of 36.70.

Gilbert parlayed two individual event championships in vault (9.20) and balance beam (9.25) with a second place finish in floor exercise (9.20) and a third place finish in uneven bars (9.05) to claim the top spot.

Brender captured the All-Around regional crown in the 9-11 year old age group with a total score of 35.60.

Brender won the individual event championships in vault (8.85) and uneven bars (9.025). She added a fourth place on the balance beam (8.875) and a sixth on floor exercise (8.850).

Weather forecasts may add ultraviolet rating

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Americans worried about tanning their hides when they go outdoors may be getting a new forecast — the ultraviolet outlook.

National Weather Service researchers are developing a new ultraviolet rating system, which could be added to regular weather forecasts to help people avoid potentially dangerous exposure to the sun's rays.

"It's a serious issue and one which, from a very personal standpoint, I'm concerned about what we can do to help," Weather Service Director Albert W. Friday said in a recent interview.

He said experimental ultraviolet — UV — forecasting could begin in June or July if researchers can work out the final technical problems.

The Environmental Protection Agency is joining in the project, and plans an education program to warn about the dangers of ultraviolet exposure — the prime cause of skin cancer — when the forecasts are set to begin.

More new cases of skin cancer are diagnosed every year than all other types of cancer combined, says a new report in the Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology.

The traditional weather forecasts predict whether it will be dry or wet, hot or cold, windy or calm. In summer, the pollen count and an air quality index are often thrown in.

And, depending on the time of year, the wind-chill factor or some type of humidity index can be added — telling people why things feel worse than they are.

Now the ultraviolet forecast could tell people that things may be worse than they feel.

UV rays give people that bronze skin color once thought to be a healthy look. But the urge to tan has faded in recent years as the danger of skin cancer loomed larger.

Canada issues UV forecasts on a 1-to-10 scale, the higher the number the more the danger.

Because the United States is more southerly — meaning it has more direct sun exposure — the scale here would have to be 1 to 15, Friday said.

"We want to put out a product that is solid, scientifically based, that doesn't cause excessive alarm but does raise a sensitivity in the public as to what risk they are taking," he said.

Ozone, a special type of oxygen, forms a thin layer in Earth's upper atmosphere and blocks the most dangerous UV rays from reaching humans. But that layer sometimes thins, at least in some areas, and physicians are concerned about the potential for more cancer.

The problem isn't the "ozone hole," which occurs only over Antarctica, Friday said. In other areas, ozone in the stratosphere thins seasonally and varies from day to day, and that has an impact on the UV reaching Earth.

The Federal Climate Analysis Center worked out a method to use satellite measurements of the ozone to estimate how much UV radiation gets through on a particular day.

That estimate would be combined with information on how much dust or other haze is in the air to block the rays, and the time of day and year, which determines whether the sunlight strikes directly or at an angle.

Researchers at the National Meteorological Center are working on ways to factor in cloudiness.

Thick heavy clouds block most of the UV, Friday said, but people can be fooled by high, thin clouds. The thin cirrus clouds may make it seem less sunny, but still may let through dangerous amounts of UV light.

People often get the worst sunburns on slightly overcast days, mistakenly thinking it's safe to stay outdoors.

Different skin colors and types react differently to UV radiation, but weather forecasters say as the rating gets higher it is a clear sign to limit exposure to the sun.

Diet helps lower cholesterol levels

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'd like some information on cholesterol. My reading is 275, yet my husband's is 189. We both eat the same foods so I am at a loss to explain the difference.

DEAR READER: Cholesterol is one of two major fats in the blood. It is necessary for metabolism but, in excess (above 220 milligrams per deciliter), may contribute to heart attacks.

The level of cholesterol appears to be genetically determined. Therefore, even though you and your husband have identical diets, your cholesterol is higher than his.

You may be interested to know that a cholesterol of 275 mg/dL would cause for alarm in a woman in her 20s and 30s, the basis for concern in a person in her 40s and 50s, of no particular consequence in a female in her 60s and 70s, and probably normal for an adult over 70. Thus, age plays an important role in terms of defining an abnormal cholesterol level. The reasons why the elderly, in most instances, seem to be protected against the ill effects of cholesterol are not known.

Despite your genetic predisposition to a high cholesterol, you can probably lower the level by dietary means: Reduce your intake of cheese and butter, change to skimmed milk, avoid luncheon meats/bacon/sausage, limit your eggs to no more than one a week, trim your meat before cooking it. Also, eat more fiber, especially psyllium. And, finally, consider using prescription drugs, such as Mevacor; ask your doctor about this.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Understanding Cholesterol" and "Eating Right for a Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like copies should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to

P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

DEAR DR. GOTT: I think I have impetigo on one hand. What can I do to get rid of it?

DEAR READER: Impetigo is a highly contagious, crusted skin infection caused by a mixture of bacteria. It almost always is curable using antibiotic pills or creams. Ask your family physcian to confirm your diagnosis and prescribe treatment.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

The second major pair event held last January was the Macellan. It used to be the Sunday Times-Macellan, but this year the London-based newspaper dropped its sponsorship and the Scotch whisky company assumed full responsibility.

The winners were Cezary Balicki and Adam Zmudzinski from Poland. Second were the defending champions from the United States, Bobby Levin and Gaylor Kasle. Today's deal from the final round proved decisive.

There were eight tables in play. Three times North-South reached the lucky six spades, which made because the trumps broke 2-2. Four pairs, including Levin and Kasle, stopped in the spade game. The eighth auction is given.

North-South were the new Dutch world champions, Wubbo de Boer and Bauke Muller. Norths four clubs was a splinter bid, showing game-forcing values with diamond support -- usually at least four cards in length -- and a singleton (or void) in hearts. This locked the pair into diamonds and out of spades. Four hearts and four spades were cue-bids.

Zmudzinski led the club king. Judging correctly that they weren't going to win any major-suit tricks, Zmudzinski continued with the club ace at trick two. Dummy was forced to ruff, and now East had to win a trick with the diamond nine to defeat the slam.

If six diamonds had made, the Americans would have become the only pair to win this event twice. But once the slam went down, the Poles were the champions. Even reaching six spades wouldn't have helped Levin and Kasle.

Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even though a joint endeavor may have certain advantages today, its negative features might still outweigh its positive ones. Keep this in mind before you commit yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Guard against inclinations today to jump to conclusions. Wait until you have all the facts before making a judgment or a decision.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you're apt to be very industrious today, you still might not accomplish all you intended. Poor planning could be the culprit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually you're pretty easy to get along with, but today persons whose behavior you generally accept might rub you the wrong way. You'll forgive and forget, but, unfortunately, they may not.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be too proud to make changes today if your mate's ideas are better than yours. The important thing is the end result and not who authored it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be extra careful today if you're working with unfamiliar equipment, tools or materials. Instead of operating in the dark, wait until you have an experienced helper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This should be a reasonably pleasant day for you with friends, provided neither you nor they let money become an issue. A misunderstanding could arise over something rather foolish.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today if you want to play a leadership role, you must be prepared to lead by example. If you expect your followers to do things you won't do, you're sadly mistaken.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone who recently told you something in confidence will be very disappointed if he/she later learns you violated the trust and talked about it to others.

FISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Persons with whom you'll be involved today won't measure your worth by what you have, they'll measure your worth by what you are. Don't be unduly influenced by materialistic things.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A lack of discipline could cause you problems today and put your success in jeopardy. Think your moves through. Be neither impulsive nor erratic.
