Reagan Says He Has 'Full Confidence' In Meese

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has full confidence in Attorney General Edwin Meese despite reports that his longtime aide played an active role in a $1 billion Iraq pipeline project under criminal investigation, a top White House aide said Sunday.

White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker said there has been no conversation about Meese resigning over reports that the attorney general knew about discussions of possible bribe offers in connection with the proposed pipeline.

The president "continues to have full confidence in his attorney general," Baker said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

"I see no reason on earth for the president to take any action unless and until it is made to appear that Mr. Meese has done something wrong," said Baker, adding the allegations against Meese would not go any further.

The White House confirmed Saturday night that special prosecutor James McKay met with Baker and White House legal counsel AB Cavanaugh Friday "as a courtesy" to brief them on the status of his investigation.

McKay, who is probing the scheme to build the Iraq pipeline and to bribe Israeli officials to protect it, began his investigation of Meese last May and is expected to wrap it up in a few more weeks.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater also said there was no discussion of a change in Meese's status.

The president has not had any discussions with anyone of that kind, White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater told reporters. They have been in discussions of that kind in the White House and nothing with the press.

The New York Times reported Sunday that McKay warned the White House on Feb. 1 that Meese played an important and sustained role in 1985 of promoting the Iraq pipeline project in which his longtime friend and former attorney, E. Robert Wallach, had a financial interest. The pipeline was never built.

The paper said Meese's role continued despite a 1985 memo in which Wallach discussed making payments to the Israeli Labor Party to obtain a promise from the Israelis not to interfere with the pipeline, proposed to run from Iraqi oil fields to the Jordanian port of Ajlun, passing close to Israeli territory.

The memo, found in Meese's files and handed over to McKay, was first reported in The Los Angeles Times. It was unclear who gave the memo to McKay.

The 1987 Foreign Corrupt Practices Act prohibits companies or individuals from making payments to foreign officials to secure their assistance in advancing business interests.

Meese would face legal problems if he either helped Wallach in violation of the Corrupt Practices Act or if he had knowledge of a bribery scheme and did not act to stop it.

Attorneys for Meese and Wallach have denied they were involved in any illegal activities, although they did not deny their existence was

Etchberger Expected To Be Hired

By Longwood

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

The Longwood City Commission is expected to hire government consultant J. Edgar Etchberger tonight to overhaul city government. The agreement will actually be with I&P Financial Inc., a firm that Etchberger sometimes works through in order to avoid nepotism issues.

Etchberger said that his sister, Jeanne, will still declare a conflict of interest and refrain from voting. He said because the city personnel policy has a rule against nepotism, he was asked by the city attorney to submit his proposal through a firm instead of an individual.

If the commission hires the consultant, it will cost the city $80,000 a year for the services, including salaries and benefits. Etchberger said he will be a full-time commission member, but will not have a full-time job with the city.

Etchberger is asking a base salary of $100,000 per year, plus a bonus of $10,000. He also is asking for a car allowance of $1,000 per month. The proposal also includes a health insurance plan and a pension plan. Etchberger said he will be a full-time commission member, but will not have a full-time job with the city.

Etchberger is a former city manager of Longwood and has worked for the city for 10 years. He has a degree in public administration from the University of Florida. He has worked for the city in various capacities, including as a city manager and as a city administrator. He has also worked for the city as a city manager and as a city administrator.

Ortega Seeks Backing

European Help Sought Against Contra Aid

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega said the $100 million military aid that President Reagan has proposed for the U.S. backed contra forces "is like a guillotine" against peace in Central America, calling for a "swing through Europe" to force European nations to tentatively agreed to a 100-million-dollar aid package.

He said the aid would be used to buy weapons and ammunition for the contra forces, which are fighting against the Sandinista government.

IN BRIEF

Shoplifting Suspect Arrested After Guard Applies 'Choke Hold'

An Osteen man was arrested Friday afternoon after he fought with security guards and employees of an Altamonte Springs Department store where he allegedly was caught shoplifting.

Sonny Daniel Anderson, 29, of P.O. Box 145, Enterprise Road, has been charged with strong arm robbery and possession of 1.4 grams of cocaine.

Police added the possession charge after a search revealed Anderson was carrying a small matchbox containing what they believed to be crack cocaine. The arrest report indicated subsequent lab results confirmed their suspicions.

Anderson was allegedly spotted at about 4:09 p.m. attempting to steal two jackets from the T.J. Maxx store in Altamonte Springs. The store security officer said he followed Anderson outside and asked him to return to the store and wait for the police to arrive.

The security officer claimed Anderson struck him on the chest in an attempt to get away from the scene. The officer and several employees of the store then forced Anderson back into the store, where he continued the struggle.

Police reports indicate the security officer put Anderson into a headlock in an attempt to "knock him out" and subdue him.

Anderson was arrested and transported to the Seminole County jail. His bond was set at $5,000.

Arrest Follows Hitting Paramedics

Authorities arrested a Chuluota man Friday night after he reportedly struck two Seminole County paramedics trying to find out if he needed assistance.

Joseph Gene Bishop, 19, of 371 First Street, has been charged with battery on a fire fighter and resisting arrest without violence.

The arrest report indicates the two paramedics were summoned to the intersection of Sixth Street and Avenue F in Chuluota at approximately 9 p.m. They were called about a man lying in the center of the road.

Upon arriving on the scene, the firefighters say they saw Bishop walking down the street. The claim he was obviously intoxicated when they approached him.

Bishop said that when the men asked him if he had been lying in the road he told them no, that he was just walking to his mother's house. "Then one of the men (paramedics) said, 'Yeah, he must be the one,' and tried to grab me," Bishop said.

The arrest report claims Bishop walked away from the two men, but then returned and started striking both of the firefighters on the chest area.

Bishop was arrested and taken to the Seminole County jail. He was released Saturday morning on $1,500 bond.

Women Arrested For Burglary

Two Seminole County women were arrested Friday after they were discovered allegedly trying to burglarize an occupied home on North Street.

Julie Angela Brodie, 19, of 660 Lake Drive in Altamonte Springs and Darlene Ann Holsopple, 19, of 105 Maid-of-Mist Drive, Fern Park, were charged with burglary of an occupied dwelling.

Three witnesses said that as an unidentified woman rang the doorbell of the home at 1650 North Street, Brodie and Holsopple entered the home through the back sliding glass door, apparently in an attempt to rob the residence. The witnesses told police the door had been forced open.

When the two women were discovered in the house they tried to flee from the area, but were caught by the witnesses and detained until police arrived on the scene. No other information has been obtained on the woman that rang the doorbell.

Brodie and Holsopple were arrested and transported to the Seminole County jail. Bond for both women was set at $5,000.

Two Weekend Rapes Investigated

Seminole County sheriff's deputies are investigating two weekend rapes, one in which the reported victim of a male rapist is a man.

In that case, the 27-year-old victim, who said he was attacked at about 11 p.m. Saturday outside Chase Labor Camp, Midway, was punched in the stomach five times by the assailant. That led to the rupturing of the victim's spleen. After he was found lying on the ground following the assault, he was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, where his spleen was removed. He was in satisfactory condition early Monday.

The victim told Seminole County sheriff's deputies he and the suspect, who is a farm laborer, were outside talking when the suspect allegedly hit the victim. The victim said he was knocked to the ground and the assailant raped him. After the attack the suspect fled and the victim was found by a friend at about 2 a.m. Sunday. He was lying on the ground where the attack occurred. The incident is under investigation.

So is the second rape, which occurred in the victim's rural Winter Park apartment at about 4:15 a.m. Saturday. Seminole County sheriff's deputies called to the scene said they entered the apartment through an unlocked door, which was open. The victim, who was standing in a hallway reportedly said she had been raped and before the rapist left.

she said, he locked her in a closet. There was no sign of forced entry to the apartment, deputies reported, although the 21-year-old woman said she had dead-bolted and chained the door before she went to bed.

The woman reportedly gave conflicting descriptions of the suspect. At one time she reportedly said he was white and then later said he was black. Sheriff's deputies report they have a suspect in the case. —Susan Loden

TAMPA (UPI) — Police arrested four people Saturday, including a husband and wife, as they tried to cash in winning Florida Lottery tickets from among 4,500 stolen earlier from a convenience store.

The clerk notified other stores and the police, leading to the arrest at a 7-Eleven store a half-mile away as three of the

A Summer Day In Seminole

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

Sunshine, temperatures in the 80s with lows tonight in the 60s. Chances of afternoon showers. Sound like a weather report for June? Yea, but you don't have to wait 5 months. That's today you're reading about. Right now citizens of Seminole are enveloped in a weather pattern which may make the area nationally famous.

Reason? Well, yesterday Naples (down in Collier County) had the nation's highest high - 82 degrees. We just might hit, or exceed, that temperature today and again tomorrow. Ain't it wonderful?

For you sadistic souls, the lowest low was at Williston, N.D., with a minus 30 degree reading. Other spots in the Dakotas also had readings about there and the Arctic blasts pushed the wind chill factor even lower. Bear in mind, those folks can't modify their wind chill factors with the comfort zone formula. Mainly because they aren't in the comfort zone. We are, but don't have minus degree readings.

A glance around Florida indicates that our fellow Sunshine Staters are all basking in the wondrous warmth of the moment. Tampa, that unplanned development on the West Coast had temperatures higher than the Miami moguls - 80 degrees compared to 78. Even the Panhandle is having it nice.

We are among the few fortunate folks in the nation today. At least as it pertains to weather. A blast of frigid Canadian air drove wind chills as low as 57 below as it swept across the northern Plains today toward the Great Lakes and New England, threatening to snuff out unseasonably warm weather in the East and Midwest.

Pre-dawn temperatures today were below freezing from the central high Plains to the Great Lakes in advance of the Canadian cold front. Early this morning the front had driven temperatures to 20 below zero in northern Montana and North Dakota.

Brisk northerly winds drove wind chill factors to 57 below at Minot, N.D., said National Weather Service forecaster Hugh Crowther.

But farther east five high temperature records fell before dawn today as a flow of warm air out of the Gulf of Mexico pushed the mercury to levels well above normal.

High temperature records for Feb. 1 were broken at Buffalo, N.Y., where it hit 53, and Burlington, Vt., where it was 30. Rochester, N.Y., recorded 56. Syracuse, N.Y., had 57, and Youngstown, Ohio, was at 51.

Two dozen high temperature records fell Sunday across the eastern half of the nation from Green Bay, Wis., where it was 41, to Atlantic City, N.J., which notched a 63.

The balmy weather was not expected to last. In fact, the word balmy, as used here, is meant as a comparative word. We would consider those readings cold, but then we're normal.

Widespread snow was forecast today from the central Rockies through the central Plains and into the upper Great Lakes. A band of freezing rain was expected to develop across parts of Kansas, with rain showers spreading from the lower Mississippi, Tennessee and Ohio valleys through the Middle Atlantic states into New England.

New York Mental Patients Escape Captured In Daytona Beach

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI) — A fugitive New York mental patient loitering outside a convenience store was arrested and led police to two co-escapees, one who killed his father with a claw hammer and the other who shot his sister, authorities say.

Marylou Schmitt was arrested at a Port Orange convenience store Sunday about 3 a.m., police said.

The two men, Stuart Rabbe, 45, and Vincent Paluch, 27, were arrested a short time later at the Days Inn motel in nearby Daytona Beach Shores. They were unarmed and surrendered peacefully.

All three were held without bail on escape warrants Sunday at the Volusia County Jail in Daytona Beach.

The trio walked away from the Gowanda Psychiatric Center in New York Friday. New York authorities said a 37-year-old man with a history of mental illness gave the three a ride after they fled the center.

Pro Boxer, Aides, Fight Police

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — A boxer, his manager and their sister were arrested after a dispute over an airline ticket escalated into a brawl with Howard County sheriff's deputies at Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport, deputies said.

Juneau Ruddock of Ontario, Canada, and her brothers Donovan "Razor" Ruddock, a professional boxer who is accused of punching a flight monitor, and Delroy Ruddock, his trainer and manager, were arrested after the scuffle Sunday, the sheriff's office said.

The incident began Sunday about 8:15 a.m. when an Eastern Airlines ticket agent told Juneau Ruddock, 20, "there would be an additional charge for her ticket since she had missed her first scheduled flight to Toronto," deputies said.

"The woman became verbally abusive to the ticket clerk, 41-year-old Stella Hubbard, and her brother began using profanity and struck a television monitor used for flight information with his fist," deputies said.

Aronow Murder Stoll Murder

MIAMI (UPI) — A year after powerboat racing champion Don Aronow was gunned down on Miami's Gasoline Alley, police still have no motive and no suspects in the murder and a $100,000 reward offered by his widow is still unclaimed.

"It's a real stumper," said Metro-Dade Police Detective Mike Decora. "Basically we've no good, solid evidence to go on."

Last Feb. 3, Aronow was shot to death in his Mercedes-Benz. The driver of a dark blue Lincoln Town Car pulled alongside him then opened fire.

While Aronow, 59, lay bleeding to death on Gasoline Alley, the name boat-lovers gave to the street lined with powerboat companies Aronow founded, a thief took his gold Rolex watch.

A composite drawing of the suspected gunman has prompted dozens of tips, but the identity of the killer remains a mystery. The killer's car has never been found, and detectives are still contacting the owners of the 2,500 dark colored Town Cars sold in south Florida in recent years.

Small Utah Town Attempts to Return To Normal After Standoff, Shootout

MARION, Utah (UPI) — After two weeks of fear that began with a church bombing and ended with a bloody shootout between police and a volatile polygamist clan, a rural farming community was trying to return to normal.

The 13-day standoff at the tiny farm stronghold of a polygamist family ended Thursday with police assaulting the compound. One officer was shot to death and clan leader Adam Swapp, 27, was seriously wounded.

FBI agents who searched the 2½-acre farm of Swapp and his mother-in-law, Vickie Singer, 44, on Friday found enough stockpiled food and weapons to last a year.

"They had a siege mentality," FBI spokesman Cal Clegg said.

Lt. Fred House, 35, Orem, a state corrections officer, was killed in the firefight before police shot Swapp. There were no other injuries and 14 other members of the families, including six children, surrendered.

Agents found 13 rifles, several handguns, cases of ammunition, knives, boobytraps and about two dozen sticks of dynamite believed left over from the Jan. 16 bombing of a nearby Mormon chapel that triggered the 13-day standoff.

In addition to the arms and ammunition, there was enough stockpiled food for the family "to hold out for a year easy," Clegg said.

The end of the standoff allowed fear to subside in the predominantly Mormon farming community of Marion, 40 miles east of Salt Lake City, South School District Superintendent Val Edrington said life was returning to normal.

Because of the "trauma of the bomb at the church house and the fear that people had that the school was next," Edrington said, about half of the district's 950 students stayed home during the standoff.

The first school day following the bombing, "we had about 15 percent of our total students absent," Edrington said Friday.

But he said people are "pretty close to normal" now and the school has brought in a psychologist "in case there is any trauma we need to deal with" among the students.

Edrington's name was on the top of a list of 33 people Swapp said were responsible for killing clan patriarch John Singer on Jan. 18, 1979.

A threatening letter mailed Sept. 21, 1977, listed the 33 people Swapp said conspired to cause Singer's death. It also claimed Swapp had been told by "God that you men are past forgiveness and will be destroyed."

John Singer, a Nazi Youth member in World War II, took his children out of public schools six years before his death, saying they were being exposed to race mixing and corruption. When the state wanted to test their educational levels, he resisted.

Officers sent to arrest Singer for contempt of court surrounded him at his mailbox and, when he pointed a handgun at one officer, he was killed with a shotgun blast.

Swapp, married to two Singer daughters, and Vickie Singer, one of John Singer's two widows, have been charged with the chapel bombing, which came two days before the ninth anniversary of John Singer's death.

Timothy Singer, 21, Swapp's wife Charlotte and Heidi, ages 19 and 23, and his brother, Jonathan, face detention hearings Feb. 1 on accessory charges.

The six Swapp children and three other Singer children who also were holed up on the farm for nearly two weeks were released to the custody of Adam Swapp's parents, Ramon and Harriet Swapp of Fairview.

The children "could stay their for an indefinite period of time depending on how the investigation progresses," said Court Service Director Russell VanVleet.

Civil Rights Bill Faces Veto By Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite one-sided approval by the Senate, President Reagan will veto legislation — considered the major civil rights bill of the session — that would restore broad protections for minorities, women, the aged and handicapped, the White House said.

Presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater said the measure passed by the Senate 75-14 Thursday "infringes on states and local rights" and that Reagan would not sign the bill if it is also passed by the House.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said after the vote he did not have the "slightest doubt" that the Senate would override the veto. Support for the measure is considered even stronger in the House.

The bill is designed to reverse a 1984 Supreme Court decision, known as Grove City College, which said that only the Pennsylvania college's financial assistance department, which received federal funds, and not the entire institution was subject to federal sex discrimination regulations.

The narrow interpretation was applied to three similar statutes affecting discrimination based on race, age or handicap.

Supporters argue the bill would merely restore previous civil rights guarantees in force before the Grove City decision by stating discrimination is prohibited throughout an entire institution or organization, even if only one program or activity receives federal funds.

But opponents, which include Reagan, charge it will unnecessarily expand the reach of the federal government into churches, schools, hospitals, businesses and other groups that receive financial assistance.

Fitzwater complained that the "reporting on the administration's views had been a little unfair to us in suggesting we're not supportive of overturning the Grove City decision."

Although conservatives attempted to tailor the bill to meet administration objections with a series of amendments, they were repulsed every time during three days of voting except once.

The Senate adopted an amendment by Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., which would place strict curbs on abortion rights at educational institutions.

"While the Danforth amendment was a disappointing setback, there was an overwhelming bipartisan rejection of the Reagan administration's attempt to weaken the four major civil rights laws," said Ralph Neas, director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

The Senate also rejected 75-19 a Reagan-backed substitute for the entire bill that would broaden civil rights statutes only as they apply to schools, expand religious exemptions from anti-discrimination laws and strengthen anti-abortion language.

Breast Cancer Death Rates On The Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The death rate from breast cancer increased 5 percent in 1984 and 1985 for white women under age 50 after two decades of decline, federal officials reported today.

Among white men, lung cancer incidence reached its lowest point since 1977 and among blacks, the rate was the lowest seen since 1981, the National Cancer Institute said in its annual statistical report.

Even though the number of cases of breast cancer has increased, the mortality rates in this age group had been steadily declining from 1970 through 1983 at about 1.4 percent a year, the cancer institute said.

However, the death rate in 1984 was six per 100,000 white women under 50 and the rate in 1985, the latest year for which statistics are available, was 6.1.

"The rate in 1985 represents a 5 percent increase over the 1983 mortality rate of 5.8," the institute said in its report. "The reasons for this increase are not known, but it may be related to the increase in incidence which has been observed since the 1970s."

The mortality increase may also be the result of working with low numbers in statistics, the report said.

For black women, the death rate from breast cancer has been steadily increasing at less than 1 percent a year from 26.1 deaths per 100,000 black females in 1973 to 27.7 in 1985, the report said.

Blood Banks Will Refuse Blood From West Africans Because Of AIDS Fear

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's blood banks are being urged to refuse blood from most West African immigrants until tests can be developed to detect a new AIDS virus they may have been exposed to, health officials said Friday.

Frank Young, Food and Drug Administration commissioner, said a "voluntary exclusion" notice was sent Thursday to "the blood bank community" and the alert would apply mainly to West Africans who came to America after 1976 or 1978.

Young said it probably will take a week for the blood banks to implement the temporary policy. Currently, there is a similar exclusion for individuals from Central Africa, he said.

Young and AIDS Coordinator Peter Fischinger of the Public Health Service said the action was taken because a second AIDS virus prevalent in western Africa has been discovered in a patient at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey. They stressed the New Jersey HIV-2 infection probably is the nation's first and only case. Acquired immune deficiency syndrome destroys the body's ability to fight diseases.

The Department of Health and Human Services, the umbrella agency for the FDA and Public Health Service, has reported more than 51,000 cases of AIDS, more than 28,000 known deaths and an estimated 1 million to 1.5 million Americans now are infected with HIV-1, or human immunodeficiency virus, the one originally reported in this country.

A voluntary exclusion "is the approach that one uses while you're developing the final stages of a test," said Young, explaining that the 1976-78 dates coincide with an increase in AIDS in western Africa.

"Usually we go back to when the disease had begun to swing up," he said. "Most people (blood bank officials) will accept a voluntary exclusion without any problems and it's what we can do to add an extra layer of safety while we're trying to get the test."

Young stressed the second virus has not been found in initial screenings at blood banks or in high risk groups.

The Red Cross tests donated blood for the presence of antibodies to HIV-1, an indication of infection, but said it has no immediate plans to screen for HIV-2 because the virus is so rare. Terry Gautier, a spokeswoman, said also that a practical test kit is not yet available.

"If evidence appears indicating that HIV-2 infection poses a threat to the safety of blood transfusions, the American Red Cross will introduce appropriate laboratory testing procedures," Dr. Gerald Sandler, associate vice president for medical operations, said in a statement.

Bristol-Myers Co. is the only U.S. firm to submit an application to market a test kit for the second AIDS virus, said Young, estimating a test may be available within the "next few weeks to months."

"We anticipate that this is on a fast track," said Young. "We will get it out as rapidly as we can, but like the first test (for HIV-1) we have to be sure of false positivity."

False positives are test results that show a person is infected with the AIDS virus when he or she is not.

"HIV-2 is rare in the world," said Young in explaining the difficulty in developing an effective test.

Fischinger said it also has been difficult finding blood serum that has only the HIV-2 virus.

"We've already examined in excess of 48,000 (blood) samples in the United States, about 8,000 of which were from high-risk groups, and the only one proven to be positive was in New Jersey," said Young.

The AIDS virus is spread by intimate sexual contact and through blood, such as through re-use of needles for intravenous drugs or by transfusion of contaminated blood. Screening of the blood supply has reduced the risk of infection through transfusion to near-zero, officials have said.

Magazine: Toss Out Stalinists' Ashes

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet magazine printed an appeal for the Kremlin wall to be cleared of urns containing the cremated remains of three Stalinist officials, including the man who oversaw the most infamous show trials of the 1930s.

Andrei Vyshinsky was the chief prosecutor under Josef Stalin from 1935 to 1939 — the years of the Soviet dictator's Great Terror — and went on to participate in the Soviet overthrow of governments in Latvia and Romania.

"Upon his conscience lie hundreds of victims of Stalin's arbitrary rule," professor G.A. Kumaney wrote in a letter published Sunday in the outspoken magazine Ogoniok. He called Vyshinsky, who died in 1955 at age 72, the "sword-bearer" in Stalin's purges.

"I consider it blasphemous that one will find in the Kremlin wall — a place sacred for every Soviet person — the urns containing the dust of figures who by their deeds, as is especially clear today, do not deserve the high honor," the professor said.

Place of burial has traditionally symbolized the political standing of Soviet officials. The Lenin Mausoleum on Red Square is the most revered spot, while important figures in Soviet history below the level of leader, such as Vyshinsky, have their ashes placed in the Kremlin wall.

Kumaney also called for the removal of the ashes of two other Communist Party officials who served in Stalin's purges, M.F. Shkiryatov and L.Z. Mekhlis.

Shkiryatov "indulged in most coarse violations of party norms and socialist legality" as a party official from 1930, he said.

Kumaney termed Mekhlis "the Red Army inquisitor," and charged he had "actively assisted in the extermination of our military cadres." The Red Army officer corps were decimated by purges before Germany attacked in 1941.

B-1 Bomber Is Not For Birds

The B-1 bomber was diving to 600 feet on a simulated bombing run when it was hit. Two engines lost power. It began to roll to one side. The pilot and two officers ejected and parachuted to safety, but the ejection mechanism for the instructor sitting in the co-pilot's seat misfired, and two officers sitting behind him were trapped in the flaming plane as it rolled over and crashed.

The $220 million, 95-ton bomber was not brought down by a "Star Wars" laser beam, or a heat-seeking missile or anti-aircraft fire. It was brought down by a bird.

The high-flying, 15-20-pound white pelican flew into a gap between the engine covering and the wing, according to testimony by an Air Force general who examined the tragic Sept. 28 crash. Hydraulic lines were broken. Escaping hydraulic fluid ignited. Losing both power and control, the pilot was unable to prevent the crash.

The B-1 bomber is being redesigned to make it less vulnerable to birds, at a cost of $38.5 million. The ejection seats also are being redesigned. The bomber, which is meant for low-level bombing, will not be allowed to fly training runs below 5,000 feet.

The lesson of this tragedy is not to junk the B-1 bomber, after the United States has spent billions on its development. It is a philosophical lesson, about the limits of technology to withstand natural or unexpected threats. High technology is highly vulnerable. By putting our hopes in gold-plated weapons, America is becoming trapped, like the officers in that ill-fated airplane, in a defense system that is increasingly beyond human control.

Only half the officers could bail out. How will Americans bail out if our high-tech defense self-destructs? Defense strategy should not be predicated on the ability of our bombers to prevail over pelicans. But if high-tech bombers aren't fail-safe against them, can they be expected to prevail over lasers, missiles and ack-ack guns—or Siberian snow geese?

Attempting to meet a high-level threat, we leave ourselves vulnerable to a low-level weapon. The B-1 bomber is not, indeed, for the birds.

Clark Stays Put

By all appearances, good White House aides are easy to come by. Administrations seem to acquire them by the dozens, shuffling them in and out of jobs of varying degrees of relevancy, importance and anonymity.

That is no proper fate for the likes of Joe Clark, the feisty, high-profile principal of Eastside High School in Paterson, N.J.

Clark had a run-in recently with the local school board over his expulsion policy. Not unexpectedly, he got the better of the encounter and in the process the outspoken backing of William Bennett, U.S. secretary of education, and assorted administration officials.

Clark was even offered a White House job helping education policy. And for a while he appeared tempted. Fortunately for his students, Clark turned it down, saying he was going to stay on as principal.

So for the rest of the school year Clark will be roaming the halls of Eastside, bullhorn and baseball bat at the ready, keeping the peace so that responsible students can get on with the business of learning.

Joe Clark clearly is not a paper pusher. He is a soldier with a rare talent for trench warfare. He's needed where he is.

Time To Dump The 'Dependency Theory'

It was nice to hear the next Mexican president, Carlos Salinas de Gortari, allow as how his party should "go further in recognizing voters' preferences"—which is to say permit a bit more real democracy in that supposedly democratic land.

Salinas had better be careful, though. Too much frank talk will undermine the widespread belief that the United States is the cause of most of what is wrong with Latin America. Before you know it, people might have to face the unpleasant truth about the origins of underdevelopment and repression throughout the Western Hemisphere.

They might even end up questioning the web of convenient rationale known as "dependency theory," to which so many intellectuals today subscribe. The theory argues that underdevelopment has been nurtured by multinational companies and their U.S. government sponsor, that foreign investments bleed those nations of their wealth and resources while compliant oligarchs keep the people in line.

From start to finish, this theory is hobbled by contradictory facts. For example, the United States also began as a resource-exporting, capital-importing country and continued as one during the 19th century. Yet it industrialized at an astonishing rate and never lapsed into dictatorship.

Nor is there any predictable link between foreign investment and poverty—unless it is that standards of living tend to be highest where investment is greatest. Latin nations most remote from U.S. influence are mired in poverty as profound as any in the hemisphere.

Ah, but the dependency theorists retort, what about U.S. military intervention?

Well, what about it? It certainly provides other nations with a just grievance, but as an overriding excuse for underdevelopment and repression it just won't fly. The United States has never directly intervened in most countries anyway. Moreover, intervention began long after Latin and Caribbean nations settled into familiar patterns of authoritarian rule and stagnation, which followed 300 years of similar conditions during colonial times.

Nor is it true the United States has always favored right-wing dictators or strived to prop them up. That has been the case too often, admittedly, but most interventions—for example, those in Nicaragua, Haiti and the Dominican Republic early in this century—were prompted more by security concerns and arrogant cultural evangelism than by a grubby desire to protect markets.

The dependency theory also ignores instances in which the United States helped prevent a Latin strongman from seizing power, such as in 1978 when Jimmy Carter sent a warning to itchy Dominican generals. Presidents Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt, Kennedy and Carter all disdained the dictators with whom they sometimes felt they had to work.

In the end, dependency theory patronizes Latin Americans, implying impotence on their part. Rather, for example, than simply blame the Brazilian colonels who seized power in 1964 for the repression that followed, we flay the United States with equal vigor for blessing the colonels in advance of the coup.

As Mexico's next president seems to realize, nations usually write their own history.

Who Won The TV Interview?

By Arnold Sawilak
UPI Bomber Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lives there a reporter with career so placid that he or she has never run into the kind of buzzsaw situation that developed when Dan Rather tried to interview Vice President George Bush last week?

As the CBS anchorman said the day after his run-in with Bush, episodes of this kind are not rare. But they usually take place with limited audiences, often involving only the reporter and the person being interviewed.

A typical scenario: Reporter: Mayor Jones, why did the city contract to fill potholes go to the company that retains your brother-in-law's law firm? Isn't that a conflict of interest?

Mayor: I've answered that question repeatedly and the answer is that there was nothing improper involved in that contract. Now, I agreed to this interview to discuss the school budget, so I'll answer questions about that.

Reporter: But, Mr. Mayor, yesterday your brother-in-law's former secretary said he telephoned you immediately after the pothole repair company president left his office. Wasn't that about the contract?

Mayor: The school budget this year reflects my administration's continuing effort to provide quality education to the children of...

Reporter: What about the potholes?

Mayor: Why don't you ask me about education? Or drunken driving... maybe about your publisher's last arrest for DWI?

Reporter: That isn't relevant to this...

Mayor: Neither is questions about potholes. Now, we're going to upgrade 21 elementary schools, four high schools...

And so it goes. The only real difference between the dialogue above and the Rather-Bush dustup was the celebrity of the participants and the size of the audience.

The only real result, depending upon your outlook, was (1) to expose the public official's refusal to answer questions about his conduct, or (2) to demonstrate the public official's refusal to be harassed by the media.

The winner? In terms of the public interest in better government and better people to run it, nobody. In terms of the individuals' image as strong practitioners of their trade, take your choice.

Soviets Want Role In Mideast Talks

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — While Mikhail Gorbachev and Ronald Reagan were signing an arms treaty in December, Gorbachev's people were in Washington threatening to scuttle peace negotiations in another part of the world.

The Soviets, desperate to be part of any global negotiations, seem perfectly willing to let chaos and bloodshed continue in the Middle East unless they are invited to be part of the peace talks there.

The hitherto-unreported story is that the Soviet's top expert on the Middle East spent his time during the summit talks trying to guarantee the Soviets a place at the table for Middle East negotiations. And he threatened that if Israel and Jordan make a separate peace without input from Moscow, the Soviets will create trouble.

High-Priced Votes

BUENA PARK, Calif. (NEA) — The special election last spring for a seat in California's state senate from the district straddling the Orange-Los Angeles County line should have been a routine contest.

There were no overwhelming issues in the largely middle-class suburban district and the candidates were conventional politicians.

When the campaign was over, however, the two principal candidates had spent a collective total of just under $3 million, making it the most expensive race ever conducted for a seat in a state legislature anywhere in the nation.

In an election in which only about 82,000 ballots were cast, Democrat Cecil Green and Republican Wayne Grisham jointly spent $2.99 million. The post they were running for pays an annual salary of $37,105.

Although that state legislative campaign was by far the most expensive in California's history, it is emblematic of the rapid upward spiral in political costs in the state. California sets no limits on the amount of money candidates for state office can receive or spend.

The state "is witnessing a new political gold rush," the California Commission on Campaign Financing reported in 1985. "Candidates... are throwing themselves with increasing abandon into a fund-raising arms race."

In a recent update, the commission reported that candidates for seats in the state legislature "again broke all state and national records" by spending more than $57 million in the 100 legislative contests in 1986.

Herbert E. Alexander, director of the Citizens' Research Foundation in Los Angeles and a leading authority on campaign finance, says that nationwide spending in contests for state offices totaled at least $313 million last year. (That includes campaigns for statewide offices as well as legislative seats.) California is among the few states cited by Alexander as having good disclosure laws that allow the public to know the source and disposition of the money. (The others are Hawaii, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, Oregon and Washington.)

But the commission notes that the complete absence of statutes governing the flow of political money in California makes the state among the worst in that regard. "By contrast, almost three-fourths of all other states restrict contributions or spending in some way," says the commission.

"By 1980, at its current explosive rate of growth, total legislative campaign spending will reach $100 million," the commission projects. "Legislative seats will then cost their candidates an average of $1 million each."

As recently as 1980, there had never been a million-dollar legislative campaign in California. In 1982 and 1984, however, there were five and four, respectively. There were 12 in 1986 and the figure almost certainly will increase again this year.

Even more scandalous than the amount of money being spent is its source. Fully 92 percent of all campaign contributions come from outside the politicians' districts. Moreover, 83 percent comes from organized interest groups while only 13 percent comes from individual donors.

"Votes on legislation are being bought, sold and rented on a wholesale basis," says one veteran journalist in Sacramento, the state capital. "The passage or defeat of a bill frequently is tied directly to a bidding war and little else."

Studying The Genes Of Plants

By Susan Krohn

ALBANY, Calif. (UPI) — Molecular geneticist David Ow explains his laboratory full of test tubes, laby-rinthine machines and rows of small clear plastic boxes, each holding a different sized tobacco plant, very simply.

"We're taking the body language of the firefly and putting it into the body language of the plant," Ow said, smiling from ear to ear, as he showed reporters around a section of the recently dedicated Plant Gene Expression Center at the U.S. Department of Agriculture western research center.

But Ow's research and that of other scientists at the center is actually extremely complicated.

The center, opened in 1984 as a joint project of the USDA, the University of California at Berkeley, and the California Agricultural Experiment Station, explores the genetic structure of agricultural plants in order to understand and improve the genetic makeup of subsequent generations of crops.

Researchers say they want to know how genes are expressed—turned on or turned off—in a plant, so they can know how instructions contained within the gene are executed by the plant.

By taking the mechanism that causes a firefly to emit light, known as the luciferase enzyme, and introducing it in a tobacco plant, Ow said he can observe how and when genetic changes occur in growing plants. Eventually this capability is expected to help researchers control the changes and rate of change.

When scientists are able to control genetic changes in agricultural plants such as corn, wheat and tomatoes they hope then to be able to improve nutritional value, control ripening and improve baking qualities.

For his research, Ow has isolated bits and pieces of tobacco plants in separate plastic boxes, where they regenerate into whole plants. Variations in the genes of the plant are observed with the luciferase enzyme.

"This gene works like a light bulb—an indicator light," Ow said. "Whenever the enzyme causes the light emitting reaction it indicates a chemical reaction," he said.

"It doesn't glow enough to see with naked eye, unless you go into dark room for 20 minutes so your eyes can adjust to the light. Then you can see the roots glowing," Ow said.

"But we can capture the light on film and the image tells us where genes are turned on," he said.

manner, through Romanian leader Nicolae Ceausescu, who has long been an intermediary between Israel, the Soviet Union and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Shultz thought as long as Gorbachev and Reagan were settling an arms treaty, they could settle the Middle East conflict as icing on the cake. He wanted a meeting between King Hussein and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir to occur in the presence of Reagan and Gorbachev.

Shamir reportedly was agreeable. So was King Hussein, initially, but he was troubled that it would be a meaningless road show on the Reagan-Gorbachev Express.

Hussein, according to our sources, said, "Yes, I will go if such a meeting will lead to the international conference we have been working for over the past two years." Shultz said he couldn't guarantee it. The emperor had no clothes and King Hussein knew it. The meeting never came off.

Mecham Testifies To Impeachment Panel After Rejecting Quitting

PHOENIX (UPI) — Gov. Evan Mecham, having rejected resignation as an option to facing a recall vote, tries to thwart another attempt to remove him from office when he goes before a House impeachment committee today.

Mecham told a supportive audience at a statewide Republican meeting Saturday that he's looking forward to defending himself against allegations of financial improprieties and obstructing an investigation.

Secretary of State Rose Mofford is to issue the official call for a recall election today, expected to be set for May 17, if Mecham survives the impeachment investigation and criminal prosecution on perjury and fraud charges stemming from the reporting of the campaign loan. His criminal trial is scheduled for March.

A House Select Committee has heard testimony during the past two weeks in support of a special counsel's report which concluded that Mecham committed impeachable offenses.

Investigator William French alleged the governor concealed a $350,000 campaign loan, lending $80,000 from his protocol fund to his car dealership and ordering the state Department of Public Safety director not to cooperate in the probe of an alleged death threat by a Mecham aide.

Mecham is the last witness scheduled to testify before the committee, which is trying to decide whether he should be impeached and stand trial in the Senate.

Officials Meet Amtrak Operator

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The switching operator who abandoned his post moments after Amtrak's Night Owl derailed agreed to meet today with investigators for the first time, four days after the crash that injured 24 people.

National Transportation Safety Board officials said Amtrak could not find Tom Connor for questioning and federally required drug and alcohol tests since the crash Friday.

But NTSB spokesman Ted Lopatkiewicz said Connor's lawyer contacted Amtrak Saturday to say the man would be "available for questioning" today.

So far, eight Amtrak employees, including the train's engineer and conductor, have been given the routine drug and alcohol tests, Amtrak spokesman Clifford Black said.

Moments after the Amtrak Night Owl from Washington to Boston slammed into a maintenance vehicle on a track closed for repairs, co-workers said Connor muttered "My God!" then gathered his belongings and disappeared.

Two Amtrak employees who were with Connor in the Marcus Hook switching tower the night of the crash told investigators Connor realized too late that he had failed to switch the oncoming passenger train to a clear track.

Carlucci Testifies On Treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci, called to testify on the INF treaty before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today, believes the pact is a "remarkable achievement" and a testament to President Reagan's toughness on arms control.

IN BRIEF

2 Palestinians Killed, 3 Wounded As Violence Flares On West Bank

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Two Palestinians were shot and killed and three others wounded today in a West Bank village after protesters barricaded a main road and stoned an Israeli car. The two deaths were the first fatalities from anti-Israel protests in more than two weeks.

Violent demonstrations were reported in towns and U.N. run refugee camps throughout the occupied West Bank. It was the third day of renewed violence after two weeks of relative calm. The Gaza Strip was reported quiet.

The Arab-run Palestine Press Service said Muvayyid Al Shaar, 21, and Murad Hamdallah, 17, were killed during a violent clash with soldiers in the West Bank village of Anabta, 40 miles north of Jerusalem.

A military spokesman said the nearby Tulkarm hospital reported two people had died and three were injured, but the army had no further details.

The deaths brought to at least 40 the number of Arabs killed by Israeli gunfire since the unrest began Dec. 9. Israel has been internationally condemned for the use of live ammunition to quell violent protests.

Gadhafi Urges Divided U.S.

LONDON (UPI) — Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi said American Indians, blacks and whites should have separate U.S. states, calling for "a long and tenacious fight" if the states cannot be created peacefully, Libyan television said.

Gadhafi, in a speech to what was described as "the first international conference of red Indians," called for Indians to recover their ancestral lands in line with U.N. principles of self-determination, said the television, which was monitored and translated Sunday by the British Broadcasting Corp.

"The struggle should start from now on to set up a state for the red Indians in Northern America... in California, Chicago, Texas and Mexico," Gadhafi said in a televised speech over the weekend. "If this is not achieved peacefully, it will have to be achieved by force and by a long and tenacious fight."

He called for the United States to be divided into three states — one for Indians, another for blacks and a third for whites, "who should have returned to Europe and left the American continent to its original inhabitants."

Release Of French Girls Sought

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Two French girls — abducted along with their mother and accused of working for Israeli intelligence — were the subject of talks between a French troubleshooter trying to gain their freedom and the Palestinian extremist group that is holding them hostage.

Lucien Bitterlin, president of the Franco-Arab friendship association, arrived in Beirut Sunday and quickly went to the Palestinian refugee camp of Mar Elias in southern Beirut to meet with leaders of the Fatah Revolutionary Council. It was his second visit to the camp in less than a month.

The girls — Marie-Laure Bettle, 6, and her sister, Virginie, 6 — along with the children's mother, Jacqueline, and five Belgians were abducted Nov. 8 while they were traveling by boat off the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip.

The Council has been held responsible for some 100 terrorist operations worldwide, including the December 1985 attack at Vienna and Rome airports in which more than a dozen people were killed.

Helms Vs. INF: A Lonesome Battle

By Elliot Bronner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tuesday morning, the second day of hearings on the INF treaty, Senate Democrats Alan Cranston, Joseph Biden and Paul Sarbanes got together and decided they had to do something about Jesse Helms.

Sen. Jesse Helms Doggedly anti-treaty

Helms was doggedly attacking the accord to eliminate medium-range missiles — and his charges were hanging unanswered for hours at a time.

So the three decided one would always be at the Foreign Relations Committee hearings to keep an eye on the conservative North Carolina Republican and be ready to counterattack.

From that point on, every time Helms ducked into the hearing room to level another charge, before he could leave one of the three was on the scene, and they quickly began picking up help from Republicans on the panel.

Helms is virtually isolated on the 19-member committee in his opposition — only Larry Pressler, R-S.D., has openly suggested treaty modifications, ones dismissed as unworkable by negotiators testifying about it.

The work by Cranston, D-Calif., Biden, D-Del., and Sarbanes, D-Md., aided at times by Richard Lugar, R-Ind., a former chairman of the committee, and Daniel Evans, R-Wash., has quickly rebutted Helms's arguments, taking some of the news focus off Helms.

But the wily North Carolina veteran still has been able to partly shape the flow of the debate.

On Wednesday, when Helms began a recitation of his complaints, Cranston shot down Helms's criticisms and welcomed him into the fold of environmentalists for adopting the tactic of "recycling" arguments day after day.

"We didn't like to have charges designed to undermine the treaty floating around for a while without any response to it," Cranston said in an interview. "Not only for the media, but for the people watching television... and to show that we can knock down every argument he makes."

"It's also useful to demonstrate that he is the leader of the opposition and that he's not speaking at all for mainstream conservatives. He's way off. And when he brings up things that are so easy to knock down, it's hard to resist," said Cranston, who at one point went to the nearby Intelligence Committee to research a point and rush back in to argue with Helms.

Helms, said Cranston, has not been scoring points against the treaty, and may well be the only committee member to vote against the pact.

With approval of the INF treaty virtually certain, said Cranston, foes appear to have "shifted their ground and are starting to try to lay the groundwork and make approval" of a pact on long-range strategic missiles more difficult. To that extent, Helms's effort has had an effect because "we have to shift with them and do our best to prevent them from doing anything to cripple" the next treaty.

Lugar, who lost a fight with Helms last year to be the senior Republican on the committee said of Helms's work: "It's a solo effort, backed up by staff... a total washout. He rushed in with premature publicity that left you breathless about whether to come to work."

The first week of hearings covered enough witnesses to answer all the major questions about the treaty, said Lugar, but the sessions — with Helms continuing to raise his points — will continue for weeks because "everyone in Christendom wanted to testify."

As for Helms's questions, said Lugar, "Maybe he'll have new points next week."

Helms does plan to go after other issues. In an interview, he said in the coming weeks he will explore a treaty provision dealing with superpower pledges not to do anything with allies to circumvent the treaty.

"A lot of these questions (by treaty backers to administration witnesses) are being orchestrated by the State Department. We know that. They are worried about the questions we are asking. I will say to the State Department that we're not through yet," said Helms, who said the organized Helms watch by supporters "proves we're bothering them."

"I have three pages of questions and I think I may be on page 1 1/2," he said. "I'm going to do what I can to make sure that this treaty protects the American people, doesn't give away the store."

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"
According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public
If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept W246, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. ## Deposed Soviet Leader Dies

Stalin's Confidant Lasted 1 Month As Successor

By United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI) — Georgi Malenkov, hatchet man for the late Soviet leader Josef Stalin who lost out in a power struggle and became one of history's forgotten men, died at age 86, Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerastimov said today.

Gerastimov said only "Malenkov has died" and gave no cause of death, but noted his age.

Malenkov, who was born Georgi Maximilianovich Malenkov on Jan. 8, 1902, was the last of the old Bolshevik power clique that included Stalin, Vyacheslav Molotov, Kliment Voroshilov and Nikita Khrushchev.

Molotov was the only other survivor of the Bolshevik clique until his death at age 96 on Nov. 8, 1986. When Molotov died, it was not even publicly known if Malenkov was still alive. Unlike Malenkov, Molotov — Stalin's foreign minister — was readmitted to the Communist Party in his final years.

Malenkov succeeded Stalin as Communist Party General Secretary when the dictator died March 5, 1953. By the middle of March he had given up the party post to Nikita Khrushchev, becoming prime minister in the government — a post that led him into oblivion.

In all, Malenkov ruled as Stalin's successor for 10 days and as prime minister for a year. After his final ouster from the ruling circle in 1957, he was sent to the Chinese frontier to manage a hydroelectric power station until he retired in 1968.

Broken and surviving on a $480 a month pension,

Malenkov returned to Moscow after his retirement and was living alone when he died. In 1984, the Croatian service of Vatican Radio reported he had been baptized into the Russian Orthodox Church. The report was never officially confirmed.

Malenkov's death leaves only one man from Stalin's close inner circle alive, Lazar Kaganovich.

Malenkov served as Stalin's private secretary, after ego, hatchet man, drinking partner and servant. But because he missed his moment, the heir to Stalin's fearsome authority passed his old age in a state of disgrace as a Soviet un-person.

Malenkov's nemesis was a wily political fighter with a more aggressive temperament — Nikita S. Khrushchev. Khrushchev pushed Malenkov out of the party secretaryship, and within four years elbowed him into disgrace and obscurity.

Khrushchev accused Malenkov of being a leader of an "anti-party group," stripped him of all public offices, and shipped him to Ust-Kamenogorsk on the Chinese border to be director of a hydroelectric plant.

Malenkov was a pudgy man with soft features. A delicate cowlick curled over his brow, accentuating the voluptuous cheeks. People noticed his hands fat, fingers like sausages, yet graceful. He stuck the little finger out when he held a champagne glass.

Western diplomats who met him considered him the most articulate and cultured of the Soviet leaders. His dimpled smile charmed foreigners, his conversation sparkled and his eyes radiated intelligence. He was a well-read man with a commanding knowledge of Latin.

Dark hints of ruthlessness, however, lurked beneath the gentle facade, possibly because he was a close friend of Nicolai Yezhov, Stalin's psychopathic executioner during the bloody purges of the 1930s. Another crony was Lavrenti Beria, the dictator's last secret police boss. Malenkov joined impassively with his colleagues in having Beria shot.

Malenkov assisted, guided and advised Stalin during two decades of bloodletting, and was in charge of espionage during the immediate postwar period.

Malenkov was born in the city of Orenburg, since renamed Ckhalov, in the Ural Mountains. Like Lenin and other leaders of the worker-peasant state, he was the son of a well-to-do middle class family.

He rejected his background and joined the Bolshevik revolution, becoming a political commissar at the age of 18. His obvious abilities led to his political training in Moscow, where he became Stalin's private secretary. His loyalty won him a place in Stalin's intimate circle.

Malenkov held top jobs in the Moscow party apparatus until 1934, when he moved over to the apparatus of the national party.

State, Red Cross Schedule Disaster Manager Seminars

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Disaster Preparedness Division and Red Cross, both designated to coordinate disaster preparedness and relief, have a problem. Although there are 42 emergency shelters in the county, with a total capacity of 108,000, there is a severe shortage of trained disaster shelter managers.

Harry Pinkman, county coordinator of disaster preparedness, says in an effort to correct this situation a two-day workshop to train people to be shelter managers has been scheduled for Feb. 18 and 19. The workshop will be offered at no cost by the State Division of Emergency Management and the American Red Cross through the University of Florida.

The workshop will be conducted from 8:15 a.m. to 5 p.m. on both days at the Eastmonte Recreation Complex, 830 Magnolia Drive, Altamonte Springs. People who complete the course will be awarded American Red Cross Shelter Manager certification as well as 1.4 continuing education credits from the University of Florida.

Pinkman said in the event of a disaster such as a hurricane, flooding, wild-fire, or a hazardous materials spill, many residents of the county might have to be moved to emergency shelters and each shelter needs a trained manager.

Topics covered at the training session will include introduction to shelter management, introduction to Red Cross training, leadership and communication skills for shelter managers, and simulation exercises.

Persons interested in registering for the course should contact the county Disaster Preparedness Division at 322-4795 for registration materials.

'Star Wars' Flight On Tap

By William Harwood
UPI Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — An unmanned Delta rocket is being readied for blastoff in a $200 million mission that represents the most complex space test ever attempted for "Star Wars" missile defense technology.

The Delta 181, a NASA rocket, originally was scheduled for launch in January, according to a space agency flight manifest issued in October. But payload preparation apparently ran behind schedule and it is believed the mission was rescheduled for late this week. The exact date and time are classified.

Army Maj. Andrew J. Green, manager of the Strategic Defense Initiative Delta program, told Aviation Week & Technology magazine the flight will be the most complex unmanned Earth orbit space mission ever attempted.

Fifteen small satellites will be ejected during the first four orbits of the Delta second stage, including four rockets that will be fired in space so new sensors can study exhaust plumes similar to those that would be produced by Soviet missiles.

Lyle Holloway, a top manager with McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Co., which builds the Delta rocket, told the Cape Canaveral Press Club last year the subatellites "will be going through a ballet in space."

The instrument-packed payload is mounted atop the Delta second stage and includes a variety of infrared sensors, laser radars and other exotic detectors.

Some 250 ground-based radars around the world will be used to monitor the 12-hour mission while the Delta second stage will be commanded to make more than 200 maneuvers to track the ejected satellites.

President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, commonly known as "Star Wars," envisions a layered space-based missile defense system that would have to destroy Soviet warheads during all three phases of flight: launch, orbital coasting and re-entry.

A major problem for such a defense system is Identifying enemy warheads fast enough to bring weapons to bear.

As such, tracking systems are crucial because any future battle stations ultimately deployed in orbit would have to detect, track and fire on thousands of targets in the event of a nuclear war.

Aviation Week said the small subatellites that will be ejected by the Delta "Star Wars" payload will mimic the flight characteristics of Soviet missiles during various phases of flight.

Instruments mounted on the Delta second stage will study the infrared and ultraviolet "signatures" of the exhaust plumes produced by the four small solid-fuel rockets that will be ejected. The information gathered will be used to improve detection and surveillance techniques.

Other sensors will study the characteristics of the natural background — space or Earth — that enemy missiles would be silhouetted against during their deadly flights.

The control computer in the Delta second-stage payload will use optical and radar data to acquire and track the multiple test satellites in a complex demonstration of fire control.

The mission marks the second in a series of "Star Wars" space flights using NASA's Delta rockets.

On Sept. 5, 1986, a Delta blasted off from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station in a spectacular demonstration of space tracking and control.

The Delta second stage and a smaller third stage tracked each other in an orbital dogfight that ended when one intercepted the other and crashed into it.

Super Blowout: Williams, 'Skins Bomb Broncos

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Doug Williams, who wearied of being proclaimed a role model for young black quarterbacks, became a model for all quarterbacks Sunday afternoon.

He destroyed the Denver Broncos more quickly than they believed possible and lifted the Redskins out of disarray so fast one of his teammates likened the experience to sheer fantasy.

"It was like dreamland," said Redskins guard R. C. Thieleman. "Everything that Doug threw and everything that we blocked went for big yardage. It's unlike Redskin football to score that fast. We're used to seven, eight minute drives — not going 80 yards in a minute."

Williams threw four touchdown passes in a shocking 35-point second quarter to lead the Redskins to a 42-10 victory over the Broncos and their second Super Bowl title in five years.

The 32-year-old Williams, whose role as the first black quarterback to start a Super Bowl placed him under intense scrutiny all week, needed only 18 plays to fashion five touchdown drives and lift the Redskins from a 10-0 deficit.

"I didn't come here to be remembered as the first black quarterback in the Super Bowl," said Williams, whose star-crossed pro football career appeared all but over only a few months ago. "I came here as the quarterback of the Washington Redskins. The most important thing for me to do was to play up to my capability."

Williams connected on 18 of 29 passes for 340 yards, four TDs and an interception. He broke Joe Montana's three-year-old Super Bowl passing mark by nine yards and outplayed Denver Pro Bowler John Elway as thoroughly as many expected Elway to outclass Williams.

Throughout the week, Elway was touted as the paragon of NFL quarterbacks, but Williams took away the MVP award. Elway had one of his worst professional games, completing 14 of 38 passes for 257 yards, one touchdown. He was intercepted three times.

"Did it surprise me the way I played?" Williams asked in response to a post-game question. "Did it surprise you? That's a heck of a question to ask me, did it surprise me?"

"All week long the importance of being a black quarterback was thrown around, but before I got here I knew one thing — I wasn't the quarterback of the Washington Redskins because I was black."

Williams' offensive support came primarily from running back Timmy Smith and wide receiver Ricky Sanders who set records for rushing and receiving yards respectively.

After the game, the Redskins savored their gritty comeback while the Broncos regretted how quickly they wasted a strong start to lose a lopsided Super Bowl for the second straight year. The New York Giants routed Denver 39-20 in Super Bowl XXI.

"That's the only one like that we played all year," Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs said. "We made such an awful start. I didn't know what was going to happen."

Gibbs has coached Washington in three Super Bowls and won two in his seven-year tenure. His team appeared headed for defeat early Sunday, trailing 10-0 late in the first quarter when Williams was helped to the sidelines with a knee injury.

"I was petrified almost to the point of immobility," Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke said. "I thought, what has happened to our Washington Redskins who have prepared so beautifully this week."

Then Williams came back to the field and hit Sanders on an 80-yard touchdown pass with 14:17 left in the half.

"In the first quarter we weren't making any plays and all of a sudden it started happening," Thieleman said. "Doug hit the long touchdown pass which was supposed to be a possession play. Sanders broke it for 80 yards and that seemed to get us going."

On their next four possessions, the Redskins scored on Williams' 27-yard pass to Gary Clark, Smith's 58-yard run, Williams' 50-yard pass to Sanders and Williams' 8-yard pass to Clint Didier.

At halftime, the Broncos trailed 35-10 and were a broken team.

The five scoring drives took a total of 18 plays, averaging 19.8 yards per play. Due mostly to that quarter, the Redskins set or tied 14 Super Bowl offensive records.

"The five straight possessions where they scored was really the story of the game," Broncos Coach Dan Reeves said. "They got so far ahead. It made it very hard to catch up."

Smith, a rookie named the starter over George Rogers minutes before the game, gained 204 yards and two touchdowns on 22 carries. He broke the record Marcus Allen set when he gained 191 yards for the Raiders against the Redskins four years ago. Sanders caught nine passes for 193 yards and two TDs.

Rams Take 5th Crown In Row

LAKE MARY — Bishop Moore and Lake Mary High School's each walked away with a conference win before the Orange Belt Conference dominated the Seminole Athletic Conference, 42-18, in the showdown round of the Central Florida Tournament of Champions held before 1,301 fans at Lake Mary High School.

Lake Mary captured its fifth straight conference title, dating back to when the school was still with the Five Star Conference, with a team score of 166-5.

Lyman was second overall with 132 points. Lake Brantley finished third with 120, Seminole fourth with 118, Oviedo fifth with 103, Lake Howell sixth with 67 and DeLand bringing up the rear with 57.

Bishop Moore dominated the OBC winning with a total score of 179 points. Osceola was the only team near finishing with 154 points.

"I feel the tournament was a great success," Lake Mary coach Doug Peters said. "I think the fans enjoyed the show and most of the wrestlers performed to their best."

Peters was thrilled with the tourney, an idea he came up with, along with his teams performance.

"I think with me running the tournament it hurt my team because I wasn't able to be with them all the time," Peters said.

WRESTLING

"We didn't have the intensity we'll need when we go into the post season."

Lake Mary and Lyman each sent four wrestlers to the finals to represent the SAC with brilliantly in their final performances of the tournament.

Opening the finals was Aaron Jordan of Oviedo. Jordan took a 5-0 decision over Lake Howell's John White to reach the finals, and the freshman came through with a tough victory over Marvin Haven of Osceola at the 103 pound weight class.

"I've wrestled him (Haven) once before and lost by a point," Jordan said. "That made the win a little sweeter for me."

Jordan, 14-3 this season, had cut down on eating all week to compete at the 103 division for the first time this season. The cutting paid off as Jordan was able to dominate through the SAC and control his final match.

"I wanted to wrestle him (Haven) all week," Jordan said. "I knew where I would have to meet him, so I worked really hard to win the conference."

Scott Flores of Lake Mary then gave the SAC its only pin of the night taking Jeff Mellott to the mat at the 2-26 mark. Flores was unable to wrestle all week as he made a short trip to Chicago.

"I wasn't able to wrestle all week and wasn't sure if I was in shape to wrestle," Flores said.

Lake Mary's Rob Richards gets his hand raised by official Dana Turgeon after defeating Oviedo's Sean Walters in first round action in the SAC Tournament.

"I'm in good running shape and worked out as soon as I got home, coach Peters also helped a lot with me getting back into wrestling mentally."

Flores is listed as a state contender in his weight class and beat a tough opponent in Mellott, who has made a name for himself throughout Central Florida.

"I read about him and his comeback in the paper," Flores said. "It seemed like he didn't want to wrestle me though."

Osceola's Tim Marvin, last year's class 3A state runner-up, then handed Lake Mary's Wayne Clayton his first loss of the season with a 9-4 decision. Haven led 2-0 after one with Clayton cutting it to 3-2 after two. A take down and near pin gave Marvin the win as Clayton came up with a late reversal.

Lake Mary's Enrique Carbia then decided Gateway's Jim Poppel in the 125 pound division. Carbia opened a 4-0 lead after a period and led 6-2 going into the final period.

Poppel could not come up with any attack late as Carbia held on to win. Carbia has been the Rams catalyst all season and has aided more than himself to wins this season.

"I went into the match thinking that I would win," Carbia said. "If you have the confidence to win, you will win."

Carbia was a little disappointed with the SAC's 130 pound weight class and felt he needed a win in the overall finals to make up for it.

"We only had four guys at 130, and I felt that was kind of sorry," Carbia said. "Winning against the OBC champion made it worth it though."

The next two matches went to the OBC, but were, without a doubt the most competitive bouts of the night.

Raiders Outlast Santa Fe

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

A strong effort in the stretch run kept Seminole Community College undefeated in Mid-Florida Conference action on the road as it whipped Santa Fe Community College, 81-75, Saturday night at SFCC in Gainesville.

The Raiders improved to 17-6 overall and 6-2 in MFC play. The Saints fell to 12-13 and 3-5 in the conference.

"We won the game by playing well in the final minutes of the game," Seminole assistant coach Dean Smith said. "We were down by 10 points with 9:18 to play and used a strong effort to get back in, and eventually win the game."

The Raiders had a strong first half effort by freshman Mark Hadden who scored all of his 14 points to give help give them a 39-33 lead at the intermission.

Terrell Barnes and Holly Keller then came alive in the second half, especially during Seminole's crucial run, to bring it back from the 10 point deficit.

"We had led all the way, then Santa Fe woke up and we were down by 10," Smith said. "We then woke up and outscored them, 19-3, over the next six minutes to re-take control of the game."

Seminole head coach Bill Payne was forced to call timeout

Class Of '88 Builds Brantley A State Contender

By Chris Fiater
Herald Sports Editor

There are some who subscribe to the "Big Bang Theory," or the belief that the universe started with one giant cosmic explosion. Then, some of us say it was the result of one huge, screeching molecular tornado (well, maybe one).

When the future soccer teams of Lake Brantley High School want to know how the dynasty got started, they need remember only one thing — the Class of 1988.

It is this tremendous group of athletes who have built the program from its infant stages into a state powerhouse. And, starting Tuesday night, the eight Lady Patriots' seniors of '88 will begin their quest toward their ultimate goal — a State Championship.

The Brantley seniors include Shannon Anderson, Debbie Bray, Karen Brown, Reenie Deaver, Julie DeRusso, Colleen Lievertz, Cara Marlen and Kristin Thole.

"This is really a great nucleus to build a program on," second-year Lake Brantley coach Wolfgang Halbig said. "It is a group of tremendously skilled players with a combination of speed, power and defense."

Seven of the eight seniors have been with the team for four years and most came up together through the Seminole Soccer Club. DeRusso transferred in her sophomore year from New Mexico.

For two years, the Lady Patriots always had an excellent side, but were always overshadowed by Lyman

Constructing A Champion

High. Lyman dominated the county the first two years and went to the state championship game both years.

The Lady Patriots broke through in 1986-87, though, as they won the Seminole Athletic Conference championship. Brantley then was upset by Melbourne in the district. Melbourne went on to win the state championship.

While '86-87 was the year of breakthroughs, '87-88 is the year of conquests for Lake Brantley. For the first time, Lake Brantley defeated the Lyman squad and now owns two victories over the Lady Greyhounds. The Lady Patriots have also tied Melbourne twice and routed them in the Burger King Tournament. Lake Brantley also claimed its first Burger King Tournament title and went on to post a 12-0 record in taking the SAC for the second year in a row.

"The teams of the future will have to recognize these eight girls," Halbig said. "They have paid their dues to get where they are. And this will be their best shot to win it all and they have the capability to do it."

Among the dues the Brantley seniors have paid includes four coaches in the last four years. They were under the tutelage of Debbie Shave the first season, then came Larry Kaskey and Halbig took over in 1986-87.

And all of the players, at one time or another, has missed a few games or, in some cases, an entire season, due to injury. Through all the changes and pain, the Lady Patriots' seniors have stuck together.

"They really love the game and always want to improve," Halbig said. "They never say they're too good and don't need to improve. And they have always stuck together as a team."

Deaver, an all-state sweeperback the past two years, is recognized as one of the premier defenders the state has ever seen. With Deaver anchoring the defense, Lake Brantley has allowed just 10 goals in 23 games this season.

"She's a great team leader," Halbig said of Deaver. "She takes charge and keeps us out of trouble."

DeRusso has been the team's leading scorer since she suited up as a sophomore. This season, she has 29 goals and 28 assists. The only thing that has kept DeRusso from breaking county scoring records has been injuries, which she has had an assortment of throughout her career. DeRusso has played the last few weeks with an injured jaw.

"She's got excellent speed and a very strong left foot," Halbig said of DeRusso. "She's probably one of the best left wingers, if not the best, in the state. She is an excellent college prospect."

While Deaver's defense and DeRusso's offense are easily recognized, Marlen is a player who always stands out with her outstanding speed and relentless style of play.

"She is the most aggressive player we have on the team," Halbig said of Marlen. "She is constantly hustling and totally committed to making the program successful. She has excellent skills and does whatever needs to be done to win."

Marlen, who has 12 goals and 13 assists in 15 games, has missed the past two weeks with a knee injury and will find out today if she will be able to play in the postseason.

"We sure hope to have her for the district," Halbig said. "But we want to make sure she gets the okay from the doctor."

Big Week For Lady Seminole

By Chris Pieter

Seminole High, seeking its first Seminole Athletic Conference championship, has a big week ahead of it as it hosts Winter Park tonight and entertains DeLand on Tuesday night.

The Lady Tribe stands at 7-1 in the conference and 12-5 overall while DeLand is second in the SAC at 7-2. DeLand is the only SAC team to defeat SHS this season.

"The girls are looking forward to playing DeLand at home," Seminole coach Charles Steele said. "A win would be very important and would bring us closer to winning the conference."

The Lady 'Noles will also get a look at two of the state's top seniors the next two nights. Winter Park's Mimi Jones was a dominant figure in the Lady Wildcats' state championship drive a year ago and she is the leader on what is a very young team this season.

"We can't let Mimi (Jones) get in the open court," Steele said. "It's the same with DeLand's (C.C.) Hayden and (Renée) Bellamy. They love to run and do it well."

Hayden led the victory over Seminole earlier in the year with 28 points, including 26 in the second half. The Lady Bulldogs also have an up and coming young player in sophomore Bellamy.

"We have to find a way to contain Hayden and Bellamy," Steele said. "We know they are going to score some, but we'd like to hold them under their averages."

Seminole's Arián Hillsman drives to the hoop against Oviedo's Jodie Switzer. Seminole has two big games this week as it hosts Winter Park tonight and DeLand Tuesday.

Seminole tuned up for this week's action with a 58-44 victory over Pinellas Park on Saturday. In that game, Sherri Reddicks poured in 18 points and grabbed eight rebounds while Christina Gilchrist also had a big game inside with 12 points and seven rebounds.

Adrian Hillsman added eight points and five assists while Aretha Riggins contributed six points, six steals and four assists. LaShon Cash added six points and Liz Long grabbed 10 rebounds. "Pinellas Park reminds me of us two years ago," Steele said. "They have one senior one sophomore and three freshmen starting. They looked good in spots and are going to be tough in the future."

In the only other girls game tonight, Lake Brantley plays at Lake Highland Prep in SAC action on Tuesday. Lake Howell is at Lake Brantley and Lake Mary hosts Lyman.

Creek Survives Seminole, 4-3

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer
Seminole High's boys soccer team came up with a valiant effort but could not manage to send the ball in the net when it needed a goal the most as Spruce Creek survived, 4-3, in prep soccer action at Seminole High School Saturday afternoon.

Seminole fell to 4-12-1 overall and will return to action this Tuesday at DeLand and will host Lyman Thursday. Creek improved to 19-1-1 overall.

"We're happy with the performance, though disappointed with the loss," Seminole coach Carlos Merlino said. "We had a tough week and looked tired when we took the field Saturday."

With the wind playing a major factor, Merlino and the Tribe elected to go with the wind in the opening half in hopes of gaining a lead and hanging on in the second half.

"We wanted to be with the wind and put some goals on the board," Merlino said. "And wouldn't you know it, Spruce Creek outscored us 2-1 in the opening half and we have to play catch up against the wind."

With everything against Seminole is where it came alive to nearly tie the score, and possibly winning the game. Creek scored two goals to take a 4-1 lead before the Tribe woke up and played some of their best soccer.

Sean Sundvall gave the Tribe their lone goal in the first half to keep them in the game. And after falling behind unsurmountable odds the rest of the Seminole team decided to wake up.

Darren Forde gave Seminole its second goal with 16:07 to play in the second half. Ted Richards scored with 13:12 remaining to give the Tribe a shot in the arm.

Seminole's efforts were to little to late but the effort pleased Merlino who feels the week's first two games took some speed out of his squad.

"Last week was the most exciting weeks Seminole has had in a long, long time," Merlino said. "We lost to two tough teams, Lake Howell and lost 3-2 and Lake Brantley 3-2, and we were real sluggish and slow on Saturday."

RAMS TIE B. MOORE
Lake Mary outshot Bishop Moore, 19-6, but could not put one in the cage and the game wound up a 0-0 tie at Lake Mary High.

Lake Mary's best chances came when Eric Ravndal hit a header off the post on a corner kick in the second half. Bishop Moore had few good opportunities as Lake Mary's defense did the job, led by James Nobile who held all-American Tim Gertz to only one shot on goal.

"Bishop Moore played a very inspired game," Lake Mary coach Larry McCorkle said. "They seemed to have 2 or 3 people around the ball all the time."

"The highlight for us was the play of Nobile on Gertz," added McCorkle. He played Gertz the whole game, pretty much by himself."

Lake Mary has a big conference game Tuesday at home against Lyman and the game will be played at 5:30 p.m. due to the girls district tournament. Tuesday's junior varsity game will begin at 3:45.

LIONS TAME EDGEWATER
Kenyon Ross scored a pair of second-half goals as Oviedo's Lions downed Edgewater's Eagles, 3-1, Saturday at Orlando.

Duncan Jones' penalty kick was the only score of the first half while Ross scored on assists from Rob Seltzer and Eric Dullmeyer in the second. Goalkeeper Jeff Hoffman recorded the shutout with nine saves.

Oviedo improved to 12-5-2 for the season and tied the school record for victories in a season that was set last year.

Richardson dominated the entire match with a 4-0 lead after one and an 11-0 lead after two periods. Richardson then worked Mellott for the pin but was unable to get the proper position settling for the TF.

Bishop Moore's Shawn Willis then decided Lyman's Dan Chiodo at the 145 pound class. Both wrestlers were exhausted after the match as each could not breathe easily for quite sometime.

Salazar took the mat in the 130 pound weight class with Salazar earning a 14-8. Salazar, an established wrestler at Bishop Moore, was expected to go right through the tournament and did so until he met Vela.

Vela fell behind, 4-0, after the opening period. Vela then came alive and took Salazar down and picking up a near pin call. Salazar added a reversal and an escape late to take a 9-7 lead entering the final period. Salazar this year and done a great job," Halbig said of Anderson. "She always seems to be in the right place at the right time."

Bray, the stopperback, may be one of the most underrated players in the conference but Halbig and her teammates certainly know how valuable she is. "She has a tremendous responsibility in that she has to be all over the field," Halbig said of Bray. "She is usually given the task of marking the other team's best forward and also pushing up on the attack. And she has handled the responsibility greatly."

District Opens Tonight

The toughest girls soccer district in the state opens tonight with four preliminary round games in the District 3 Tournament. There will be four games at four locations with the winners advancing to play the top seeds on Tuesday night.

Seminole High will host Orlando Dr. Phillips while Lyman entertains Leesburg. Oviedo is at Bishop Moore; DeLand at Orlando Evans and West Orange at Winter Park. All games begin at 7 p.m.

On Tuesday, the Seminole-Phillips winner plays the Leesburg-Lyman winner; Lake Brantley hosts the DeLand-Fvans winner; Lake Howell hosts the Oviedo-Bishop Moore winner and Lake Mary entertains the West Orange-Winter Park winner.

The highest surviving seeds will have the home field for the semifinal games on Thursday night. The championship game is Friday night.

SBS RIPS W. ORANGE
Seminole High closed out its regular season play Saturday with a 6-0 rout of West Orange at Seminole Stadium. The Lady 'Noles concluded the regular season at 11-13-1.

Shannon Sundvall and Melissa Shuckman scored two goals each for the Lady 'Noles while Heather Brown and Jennifer Lindamood each scored one. Seminole goalkeeper Kim Walsh made five saves in recording the shutout.

LYMAN TIES O. PARK
Lyman's Lady Greyhounds traveled to Orange Park Saturday and came away with a 0-0 tie in their season finale. Lyman finished the regular season at 11-9-1.

"It was a pretty evenly matched game," Lyman coach Laura Rountree said. "We were a little sluggish in the first half but came around and played much better the second."

Lyman goalkeeper Becky Carr had an impressive game as she recorded the shutout with eight saves. Kerry Musante, Tammy Fulsang and Bonni Steeves also had good games for Lyman.

Lyman actually scored a goal in the second half but had it called back. The score came off a corner kick when the player knocked the ball in with her shoulder but a hand ball was called.

Barnes scored eight consecutive points on drives to the basket as the Raiders began to force the ball to the middle for points. SFCC then called a timeout with 8:03 to play, leading 63-41.

"We turned things around right there," Smith said. "We got back in the game and our bench was up and cheering on the players on the floor."

Keller then came up with a clutch steal and a layup to knot the score with 7:30 to play. Seminole was able to prevent

Brantley Wins JV Tournament

Outscoring their opponents, 12-0, Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots rolled to the inaugural Lake Brantley Junior Varsity Tournament title this past weekend.

The JV Lady Patriots concluded the season with a 17-0 record and stand at 24-0-1 in the past two seasons. This year, Lake Brantley scored 74 goals and gave up only one.

Brantley opened the tourney Friday night with a 4-0 victory over Gainesville. Tina Pantuso led the way with three goals. Stacy Feldman scored one and goalkeeper Lisa Bae came through with her first of three shutouts.

Also on Friday, Lake Howell blanked Orange Park, 4-0, and Lyman edged DeLand, 1-0.

On Saturday, Lake Brantley defeated Orange Park, 4-0, behind one goal apiece by Pantuso, Lisa Rock, Ingrid Fonseca and Feldman. Also in round robin play on Saturday, Lake Howell downed DeLand, 6-1, and Gainesville edged Lyman, 1-0.

In the championship, Lake Brantley upended Lake Howell, 4-0. Feldman pumped in three goals and Hardin added one.

The members of the 1987-88 Lake Brantley junior varsity team include: Christy Shanahan, Stacy Feldman, Lisa Bae, Traci Finley, Melissa Price, Lisa Rock, Jimmy Lee, Debbie Perlman, Shannon Henry, Tina Pantuso, Becky Brand, Shannon Seaver, Carrie Larson, Ingrid Fonseca, Janice Feldman, Tara Harding.

Santa Fe from scoring on its next four possessions to open a 73-65 lead with 2:35 remaining. Barnes finished with a game-high 22 points. Hadden added 14. Barry Dunning tallied 11 and grabbed a team-high six rebounds. Keller and Malcolm Houston netted 10 each.

David Woods led SFCC with 20 points. Zeddie Locke and Herbie Cooper each had 17 as Darryl Robinson contributed 14.

Seminole will now travel to Valencia CC in hopes of averting a loss earlier in the season. VCC will be more than ready for this game as it always plays its best against the Raiders.

"Valencia's biggest rival is us and they play their hearts out when we meet," Payne said earlier this year. "They're really not our biggest rival so we'll have to get mentally prepared to face them in the future."

and sophomore but she missed her entire junior season due to a broken leg. To spectators, she was the girl on the bench with the crutches. To the team, she was an irreplaceable motivator. This year, she has returned to the field and been a big contributor.

"She's a very good utility player," Halbig said of Thole. "She's a key person because, when we had all our injuries, she could replace anyone on the field. She's also like an extra coach on the sidelines. She really helps motivate the kids. It's very important to have that type of player."

The Lake Brantley program figures to thrive even when the Class of '88 is gone. The Lady Patriots have a number of outstanding young players on this year's varsity team, and they have a junior varsity that has not lost in the last two seasons.

But, even if dynasty is Brantley's destiny, the seniors of '87-88 have left an indelible mark on the Lady Patriot program. They will be missed - and they should be remembered.

MVP Williams Destroys Myth, Broncos

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — It took Doug Williams less than 15 minutes to destroy a myth that took decades to evolve.

The first black quarterback to start a Super Bowl directed Washington on five consecutive touchdown drives in the second period Sunday in leading the Redskins to a 42-10 Super Bowl rout of the Denver Broncos. Williams completed 18 of 29 passes for 340 yards and four touchdowns in earning Most Valuable Player honors.

Williams, who helped Tampa Bay reach the NFL title game nine years ago before leaving for the USFL, was under immense pressure for the two weeks preceding the Super Bowl. He was repeatedly asked for his thoughts about breaking the Super Bowl racial barrier, including one questioner who began with the phrase, "You've been a black quarterback all of your life, Doug."

Exciting in the clutch at the game's most demanding position, Williams rebounded from a 9 for 26 performance in the NFC title game triumph against Minnesota. Coach Joe Gibbs named Williams his starting quarterback after a series of dismal performances by Jay Schroeder, a 1986 Pro Bowl selection.

"I look at myself and say I'm blessed to get a chance to play in a Super Bowl," said Williams, who signed with the Redskins on Aug. 11, 1986 after three seasons in the USFL. "I didn't come to the Redskins as a black quarterback — I just came here as a quarterback. I never judge myself, I let others do the judging."

Saturday, Williams was forced to visit a dentist for root canal treatment. Things didn't improve quickly for him or the Redskins. Denver took a 10-0 lead six minutes into the opening quarter as Williams completed just one of his first four passes.

Williams twisted his left knee late in the period when he slipped on the grass and was sacked by Rulon Jones. Schroeder came in for two plays before Williams returned on Washington's next possession.

On first down from the 20, Ricky Sanders broke free past Mark Haynes and took Williams' pass for an 80-yard score, tying Kenny King of the Raiders for the longest reception in Super Bowl history.

Williams faced third-and-1 from the Denver 27 on the next drive before finding Gary Clark in the end zone for a 14-10 lead.

After Timmy Smith's 58-yard TD dash with 6:27 remaining, Williams spotted Sanders for a 50-yard TD and a 28-10 advantage. When the Redskins got the ball on their 21 with 2:14 left in the half, Williams exploited Denver again.

A 43-yard burst by Smith to the Denver 35 and a 21-yard catch by Sanders set up an 8-yard scoring pass to Clint Didier. In the decisive second quarter, Williams completed 9 of 11 passes for 228 yards and four TDs.

"This was a tribute not only to a black quarterback, but to a great quarterback," said Washington owner Jack Kent Cooke, who signed Williams as a backup quarterback for $475,000. "If Joe Gibbs would have told me it would cost $875,000 to get Williams, I would have told Joe to get him, but I would have said it a little softer."

Just months after Williams left the Buccaneers in 1983 because of a contract dispute, his wife died from cancer. He was almost dealt to the Raiders this season, but Schroeder's erratic play gave Williams a chance.

"Once Doug got in the groove in the second quarter, he was great," Gibbs said. "He's experienced so many downs in his life, he's one of the great success stories."

BRONCOS GO DOWN AGAIN
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Consecutive Super Bowl defeats have entwined the Denver Broncos with the Minnesota Vikings.

The Vikings are 0-4 in NFL championship games. Now, following the ignominy of Sunday's 42-10 loss to the Washington Redskins, the Broncos dropped their third in as many tries. The Broncos and Vikings are the only teams to lose consecutive Super Bowls.

Amid the rubble at Jack Murphy Stadium was John Elway, who was not the juggernaut many tagged him, and the Denver defense, scorched for the fourth biggest quarter in league history.

"We got beat today and it feels the same as it felt last year," said Elway, who was 14 of 38 for 257 yards and three interceptions. "I just think we've gotta figure a way to win this one. We know how to get here."

The New York Giants downed the Broncos 39-20 in Super Bowl XXI, but at first, the Broncos played as if last year was last year.

Elway hit Ricky Nattiel with a 56-yard scoring toss on Denver's first play from scrimmage. Three minutes later, Rich Karlis kicked a 24-yard field goal to make it 10-0.

Then, about the only thing the Broncos could stop was the parties going on in Denver. They punted on their next two possessions and stood in bewilderment as Washington scored 35 second-quarter points. Defensive backs were caught out of position. Lineman gave Washington quarterback Doug Williams too much time to throw.

"You've got to be able to stop people to have a chance in games like this," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said. "Anytime you play football, you've got to take advantage of the opportunity. You have a tough time when you allow so many yards and so many points."

"It hurts. I don't know if devastating is the word. We've got a good football team. We'll try to bounce back next year."

Elway said the Redskins gave him little time to

"They're a pressure defense and when they got up by 25 points, they pinned their ears back and came," he said. "In the second quarter they scored on big plays and we never answered the bell to make a comeback. We felt good about what we did. It came down to execution."

Elway said he was impressed by Williams' performance.

"He had a great day," Elway said. "I'm happy for him. He's a class guy."

Right end Rulon Jones said he would like to play in at least one Super Bowl when the opposing quarterback is not having an outstanding day. Phil Simms outclassed the Broncos in the previous Super Bowl.

Rowdy Celebrating In D.C.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One man was shot in the leg and at least 20 people were arrested during a celebration of the Washington Redskins' Super Bowl triumph that drew approximately 100,000 rejoicing fans into the streets of the nation's capital.

Redskins supporters swung from 30-foot light poles, stopped traffic and danced victory jigs Sunday night after quarterback Doug Williams threw four touchdown passes in a dizzying second-quarter outburst that powered Washington to a 42-10 rout of the Denver Broncos.

One celebrant was shot in the leg at about 1 a.m. EST today amid the Georgetown business district mob. Police also reported busted windows, an overturned taxi and two arrests for assaulting a police officer.

Police had no motive or suspect in the shooting. The victim was hospitalized this morning in stable condition.

Dozens of off-key renditions of "Hail to the Redskins" echoed through Washington subway stations and trains were full of celebrating fans, many of them shouting at the top of their lungs.

Anti-vandalism posters featuring Williams were ripped from subway cars as a prized souvenir, with one fan using the picture of the quarterback as a makeshift mask to the cheers of other riders.

On the streets downtown, car horns blared and passengers were hanging out the windows waving Redskins pennants, pompons and burgundy and gold caps, towels and T-shirts. Fans jumped from cars and danced as traffic stopped for red lights.

Redskins' fans packed bars and restaurants in the chic

Smith, who broke runs of 58, 43 and 32 yards, finished the scoring with a 4-yard run 1:51 into the fourth quarter.

His big gains came on the "counter gap" play the Redskins made famous in Super Bowl XVII with John Riggins. "Our offensive line was giving me a chance to run all day long," Smith said. "I saw a tight squeeze that made me go inside then cut back out. And their defensive backs had their hands full with our wide receivers to make it easier to run after I got through the line."

The Broncos, who led 10-9 at halftime against the Giants last year, set a record for the quickest score in Super Bowl history. Elway's 80-yard scoring strike to Ricky Nattiel on their first play came 1:57 into the game.

Denver drove to the Washington 6 on its next series set for Rick Karlis' 24-yard field goal and a 10-0 lead. "We just got beat today and it was the same as it felt last year," Elway said. "We've got to figure a way to win this one. We know how to get here."

Trading Active, Prices Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, extending gains won in the previous two sessions.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 28.18 Friday, was up 9.62 to 1987.84 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 671-237 among the 1,289 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 28,351,000 shares.

The prospects for lower interest rates provided the stock market with a much needed boost last week as prices staged a broad advance despite evidence of continued uncertainty and low investor confidence.

The Dow Jones Industrial average rose 28.18 Friday to close the week at 1988.22. For the week, the index gained 54.71, or 2.9 percent.

"The market held up reasonably well for the entire week," said Ricky Harrington, an analyst with Interstate Securities Corp. in Charlotte, N.C.

Analysts said the market's advance Thursday and Friday reflected a strong belief the Federal Reserve Board will launch a more accommodative monetary policy leading to lower interest rates.

Dollar Up In Light Trading, Gold Retreats, Silver Same

By United Press International

The dollar rose today in light trading on all major world money markets. Gold retreated.

In New York currency traders said the dollar gained on investor enthusiasm over the U.S. Treasury's planned $27 billion refunding auctions later this week.

Traders noted the auction factor should continue to boost the dollar during the day.

In early New York trading, the dollar was higher against key foreign currencies in thin trading.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar climbed against the Japanese yen, closing at 129.00 yen, up 1.82 from Friday's close of 127.18 yen.

Currency traders in Japan said speculative buying led many investors to buy dollars in early trading, but a wave of selling spearheaded by export-oriented companies later blocked the dollar from moving much higher.

December Construction Spending Dips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pace of building nationwide slowed in late 1987 as new construction spending fell 0.4 percent from November to December, the Commerce Department said Monday.

New construction put in place in December was estimated at an annual rate of $409.7 billion, down from the revised rate of $411.3 billion in November, when construction spending increased 1.9 percent, according to the department's Census Bureau.

All figures were adjusted for seasonal variations but not for inflation.

The value of new construction in 1987 rose to $399.5 billion, 3 percent higher than in 1986. Spending on new single-family residences in December was at an annual rate of $117.5 billion, 9 percent higher than the same period of 1986, the department said.

Nonresidential construction in December was at a rate of $99.8 billion compared with $98.7 billion in December 1986.

Private construction last year totaled $324.1 billion, 2 percent higher than in 1986. New residential building construction from 1986 to 1987 jumped 6 percent to $198.1 billion.

in school in Paris.

Legendre and her publisher Charles Wyrick arrived at 11 a.m. at the Sanford airport and were met by Mayor Betty Smith, Preservation Society president Myra Sizemore, and Diane Petryk, welcoming committee chairman of the society, who was responsible for bringing Legendre to the Sanford.

Legendre was shown the site of Bel-Air citrus groves; Holy Cross Episcopal church, which the Sanford family had been instrumental in founding and building; the site of Sanford House, now occupied by Nash Garage; and other sites important to Sanford family history. Speaking of the city, Legendre later said, "I love it. I think the city is so attractive."

"She commented that she felt Sanford is a very well-planned and very well-sited city."

During the private reception, Legendre, a petite, sprightly 85-year-old, was thoroughly absorbed as Clarke and Mildred Caskey, part-time curator at the museum until last summer when Clarke took the position full time, showed her the family portraits and memorabilia, as well as the furniture, books and photographs of the family history. "It's a tremendous amount of books," she commented. (Sanford's library is housed in one room of the museum and contains books in five languages.)

She was apparently impressed by her grandfather's library and the evidences of his work in Central Florida. "Wonderful, very interesting," she exclaimed several times.

During her private tour of the museum, in a moment away from the crowd, Legendre and her publisher showed Clarke a letter Sanford had written to his daughters while he was in Sanford. He was in his apartment overlooking his groves at the time he wrote the letter. His daughters were in school in Paris at the time.

Legendre says she thinks she may be able to find more correspondence which may be of interest to museum officials.

She is also donating a copy of her book, "The Sands Cease to Run," to the museum. Published in 1947, the book is her story of being captured by the Germans while she was in Paris with the Office of Strategic Services during World War II.

Bill Kirchhoff, Seminole County Commissioner gave a short history of the city at one point during the reception. He told Legendre, "It means an awful lot, what General Sanford did here."

Mayor Smith presented Legendre with the key to the city, and told her that "When one accepts the key to the city, they also accept the invitation to come back."

Later, Smith noted that "you can tell by the turnout that a lot of people care about her presence. (About 70 attended the private reception and luncheon. A few more attended the public autograph session.)"

Legendre thanked everyone for the reception and told the group she feels that Sanford is a "warm, wonderful" place.

"I feel very happy that my grandfather, Henry Shelton Sanford, will never be forgotten. He will live here in this museum forever," she said. She noted that she is the last of the Sanford line.

Prior to the autograph session, Legendre told the Herald that she is impressed with the museum's growth. She was here for the facility's dedication in 1957, but since then, two wings have been added.

Wyrick noted that Legendre's book, "The Time of My Life," came out on the market in December last year. It is the story of her first 50 years. About 3,000 copies were printed and are being distributed out of Wyrick and Company headquarters in Charleston, S.C. He said sales are going well, especially in Washington, D.C. It will be marketed through chain bookstores such as Waldenbooks and Doubleday's, as well as through small independent stores, he added.

major valves and arteries.

Jail psychologist Gil Kaufman had given orders for jail officials to upgrade the suicide watch Maynard was under by one level, according to Sheriff's Chief Deputy Duane Harrell.

He said that, with the level of suicide watch Maynard was under when he was first brought to the jail, he wasn't allowed to have any clothes, just a blanket. Harrell said that after Kaufman ordered Maynard's watch upgraded one level, the prisoner was allowed to have his clothes and a few other objects. He said he didn't know what those other objects included.

Harrell said he couldn't discuss the reason why the psychologist upgraded the watch by one level because that information is part of Maynard's medical history, which is not public record.

The surgeon noted that the pen still worked, although "It took a few scratches to make it write" after the surgery.

Jail officials do not know how long the pen was in Maynard's heart because he hid the wound with his shirt, said Capt. Jay Leman, jail administrator.

Guards noticed at breakfast Saturday that Maynard was inactive and entered his isolation cell. He refused to speak to them except to ask for a nurse.

Maynard showed the nurse the pen and said, "Unfortunately, I missed the heart," according to a sheriff's report. The nurse realized Maynard had not missed because the pen bobbed with each heartbeat.

Maynard, who already took medicine for an irregular heartbeat, is expected to remain hospitalized at least 10 days. He should suffer no long-term problems unless the wound becomes infected, Scott said.

Scott was particularly concerned with infection because of the bacteria that could be introduced into Maynard's system from the pen.

Kersmarkie said it's believed the pen could have been in Maynard's heart for up to an hour and a half before the suicide attempt was discovered. "There's no telling what kind of germs could have been on that pen," she said.

Kersmarkie said Maynard is expected to be transferred from the coronary intensive care unit to a regular room sometime late today. She added that he has a guard watching him around the clock in his room.

Maynard was awaiting arraignment Monday on a first-degree murder charge in the Jan. 12 shooting of lawyer Murray Lee Gay Jr.

Maynard had told several people that he wanted to kill himself and was placed under a suicide watch upon his arrival at the Seminole County jail. Guards checked on him every 15 minutes and he was not permitted to have sharp objects, but Leman said pens were not considered dangerous.

"The next step will be for Central American foreign ministers to decide the specific structure of verification" for the peace accord.

The plan, signed Aug. 7 in Guatemala, calls for a cease-fire in regional insurgencies, an end to outside funding of rebels and democratic reforms.

"Without verification and with more money to the Contras the peace process could halt," said Ortega, who was scheduled to return to Managua today.

Ortega met with Spanish and Italian leaders and got a chilly reception by Pope John Paul II before flying to Stockholm.

He made a brief stopover early Sunday in Oslo to meet with Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland before arriving in Sweden.

Brundtland said she told Ortega during their hour-long meeting that Norway only would join a verification commission if all five Central American presidents agreed to having one.

It was not immediately clear how the four other regional presidents viewed such a commission.

"Norway believes it is important to support the peace process to ensure that it does not stop," Brundtland told a news conference.

Forgiveness Week Offers Chance To Kiss, Make Up

DEAR READERS: Are you holding a grudge? Don't feel guilty. Many of us are. But we need not hold it forever. Did you know that there is an International Forgiveness Week? Well, neither did I until last year, when Alice Payntel of Fresno, Calif., wrote to tell me about it.

It's from Feb. 1 through Feb. 6. Robert Muller, former assistant secretary-general of the United Nations, wrote this piece for International Forgiveness Week:

DECIDE TO FORGIVE
Decide to forgive
For resentment is negative
Resentment is poisonous Resentment diminishes and devours the self.

Be the first to forgive.
To smile and to take the first step.

And you will see happiness
bloom
On the face of your human brother or sister.

Be always the first
Do not wait for others to forgive.
For by forgiving
You become the master of fate
The fashioner of life
The doer of miracles.

To forgive is the highest
Most beautiful form of love.
In return you will receive
Untold peace and happiness.

Here is the program for achieving a truly forgiving heart:
Sunday: Forgive yourself.
Monday: Forgive your family.
Tuesday: Forgive your friends and associates.

Wednesday: Forgive across economic lines within your own nation.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office as a secretary. I enjoy dressing in the latest styles. I am 40, and my clothes are in good taste and appropriate for a woman my age. I also wear makeup—but it's subtle and never conspicuous. I keep my hair attractively styled, too. I take pride in always looking well-dressed and well-groomed. I think people who always look their best feel better about themselves.

My problem: My husband, who is 44, feels differently. He thinks a woman dresses stylishly because she wants to attract attention, hoping that men will look at her and ask her out! Abby, he is wrong in my case. I want to look my best for myself. I am not trying to entice men to notice me and ask me out. I want people to think I look nice, but I do not want men to lust after me.

Abby, I work from 8 to 5 and never go anywhere else without him, except for marketing and to shop for clothes. He even gets angry if I wear a little perfume. What do you make of this situation, and why does he act this way?

CONFUSED IN MISSISSIPPI

DEAR CONFUSED: Your husband is pathetically insecure and his accusations are insulting. He would prefer that you were so plain you blended into the woodwork. He feels that he might lose you because he himself is nothing special. The problem is his—not yours.

Thursday: Forgive across cultural lines within your own nation.

Friday: Forgive across political lines within your own nation.

Saturday: Forgive other nations.

Only the brave know how to forgive. A coward never forgives. It is not in his nature.

DEAR ABBY: We are a group of married couples. On Saturday evenings a group of 10 or 12 goes out to dinner and dancing.

One couple in our group was divorced last year, but the woman continues to attend our Saturday evening affairs. We women do not like this. We're not jealous, but our husbands feel that they have to dance with her so she won't be sitting alone at the table. So while our husbands are dancing with her, one of the wives has to sit alone.

We resent this. We are not mean or selfish, but we feel that a single woman doesn't belong in our group any more than a single man would.

Is there a solution, Abby?

THE WIVES

DEAR WIVES: The solution is obvious. Ask the single woman to bring an escort, and tell her why.

Respirator-Dependence Can Pose Problems

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT: How long can a person live on a respirator? Can a patient get infections from one? Why would a person on a respirator swell up? What would fluctuating blood pressure mean?

DEAR READER: Respirators are machines that provide mechanical ventilation for patients who cannot breathe on their own. With proper care, a person can be hooked to a respirator indefinitely.

Because respirators are not as efficient as normal respiration, infection can be a problem. Patients on assisted ventilation cannot clear out ordinary mucous secretions (because they can't cough); therefore, such patients usually have to be suctioned mechanically to remove phlegm, which provides a fertile ground on which bacteria will grow.

Edema, swelling of the face and upper body, is a technical complication of the setting on the respirator and the position of the endotracheal tube. Edema of the lower body usually indicates fluid overload, a consequence of intravenous therapy.

Fluctuating blood pressure is normal in everyone. In mechanically ventilated people, it can reflect a metabolic imbalance or improper monitoring of the respirator.

Respiratory assistance is a demanding and tricky medical situation that must be constantly supervised by qualified medical personnel.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband has been a heavy drinker for 30 years. Aside from worrying about his physical health, I worry about his mental health. When he drinks, he repeats himself, asks the same question repeatedly, forgets things he tells people and things people tell him. Will these lapses of memory continue when he is sober?

DEAR READER — Alcohol poisons the brain. The mental changes in alcoholics are well-documented in medical studies and consist, in large part, of changes we ordinarily associate with senility. Thus, forgetfulness, emotional instability and "crazy thinking" (such as delusions and paranoia) are part of chronic alcoholism.

As a general rule, once an alcoholic has been detoxified (removed from alcohol under medical supervision) many of these mental changes disappear. However, years of heavy drinking will take its toll; the defects in cognitive brain function can persist. Nonetheless, the degree of disability will certainly be less if an alcoholic stops drinking. Most doctors are familiar with the spectacular mental improvements in alcoholics who kick the habit and remain sober. Of course, non-drinkers may also show signs of senility as they age. Therefore, stopping drinking is not a cure-all; it just makes things better.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

The modern bridge world is full of gadgets — special conventions that help partnerships gain excellent results, for the most part. Conventions also have their drawbacks if opponents know how to use the information to their own advantage. In today's deal we see the splinter bid in action. North's jump to four clubs described a hand with good spade support, 9-11 high-card points and a singleton club. With a minimum hand and the knowledge that the queen of clubs was a worthless card, South subsided in four spades, but the damage had already been done. East had doubled four clubs to show strength in the suit, and that enabled the defense to function with absolute precision.

West led the king of clubs, expecting to hold the lead and wanting to be able to judge how the defense should proceed. It now became the responsibility of East to suggest a line of attack. There could be no advantage to a club continuation, so the card played by East would be construed as suit-preference. When the two of clubs dropped gently on the table, West shifted to the queen of diamonds and the defenders quickly took two, diamonds and a diamond ruff to set the contract. Is it likely that this would have happened if North had simply responded with a bid of four spades?

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY FEBRUARY 2, 1988

In the year ahead you will form an important new alliance. It will have potential for both parties, but it will have to be managed skillfully. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be sure you're in total agreement with your mate today regarding an important issue. If one or the other is unhappy with the decision, it will end up being a problem for both of you. Major changes are ahead for Aquarians in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Stay abreast of your responsibilities today, because if you fall behind, it will throw your whole schedule off and you won't be able to catch up. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't try to get friends involved in your business interests today. By the same token, don't let them drag you into theirs. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are not likely to be too tolerant of people who are autocratic or domineering, especially if these individuals are in-laws or relatives. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually you enjoy stimulating, lighthearted debates. However, you must be careful today not to take on someone who views issues far more seriously than you do. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extremely selective today from whom you request favors. Your desire might be granted by one who would put you under a long-term obligation. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Partnership arrangements could be very tenuous today. This will hold true for your social alliances as well as for your commercial ones. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Certain responsibilities that you have at this time should be taken seriously, but don't let your imagination start making them more difficult than they actually are. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Continue to be cautious in the management of your financial affairs. Do nothing today that could put additional strains on your purse. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't let your ambitions exceed your reach today. You are capable of attaining your goals, provided these objectives are realistic. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a possibility today that instead of profiting from a past mistake, you may follow the same pattern that previously caused you complications. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't enter into complicated, commercial negotiations today if you are tired or unprepared. Wait until you are fresh or have all the facts in front of you.
