Housing Group Freezes New-Home Prices

Herald Staff Writer

As interest rates soar through the roof, and inflation forces purchasing power to take up permanent residence in the basement, many people are sadly concluding that owning a home of their own is no longer a viable part of the American

Hoping to keep the dream from becoming a nightmare, the Mid-Florida Homebuilders Association (MFHA) today announced a 60-day price freeze on all new homes, those currently on the market as well as those under construction. In addition, during the next two months the association plans to hold seminars in the Seminole, Orange, and Osceola counties area to help potential homebuyers get the most for their housing dollar.

The freeze, which will run Feb. 14-April 5, will not cover every new house in tri-county area, but only those of The MFHA is composed of 980 local firms including builders

Weir Named Coach

Sam Weir was named the chief assistant football coach at the University of Central Florida today in a morning press conference at the Orlando Chamber of Commerce. Weir, who guided Lake Howell High School to a district championship last year, will assume a co-coaching position with head coach Don Jonas. Complete details, page 6A.

MFHA President Michael Ashington-Pickett said the freeze will be a good time to buy a house." But a lot of people haven't been buying which is why the MFHA came up with the freeze idea. "There's a terrific number of potential homebuyers who, because of prices and interest rates and what inflation is doing to their incomes, were holding back," Ashington-Pickett said,

"and I don't blame them." "But, unfortunately, things aren't going to get much better. If you don't stake your claim now, you may never be in a position to do so," he said. "That's sort of what we mean by our campaign motto: 'You're losing more than time.' "

WORLD IN BRIEF

Leak Imperils Balloon

On Around World Flight

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) - The "Jules Verne" balloon piloted by two Americans seeking to circumnavigate the globe sprang a leak early today and limped over the deserts of Saudi Arabia in a possible prelude to aborting the daring mission.

"The flight may have to be aborted within the next six to 48 hours," said the press officer of the private tracking firm in Bedford, Mass., monitoring the flight. The tiny leak was noted 18 hours after the silver helium balloon was launched in Luxor, Egypt, by Maxie Anderson, 46, and Donald Ida, 47 - a flight inspired by Jules Verne's novel, "Around the World in 80 Days" for whom the craft was named. "The balloon is in no immediate danger, and can fly for a number of hours" or another "1,000 miles to 1,500 miles" if the leak is as slow as it appears, Jim Mitchell, the tracking officer, said.

"It is even possible the leak may be very low in the balloon, and would have minimal impact."

Solidarity Warns Of Strikes

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) - The Solidarity labor union, unsure how to proceed, warned of strikes if there are reprisals against organizers of a farmers union but said it would not strike to force government recognition of the organization.

"Any reprisal against organizers of a peasants union movement will be reacted to by our union as a body with strike action," the union said in a statement issued after an emergency meeting ended late Thursday. "Solidarity will recognize any attack against the farmers unions as an attack aimed against itself." But, the union leadership said, "We don't want to raise social tension by proclaiming the Rural Solidarity issue a strike struggle." The statement said Solidarity "will support the activity of peasant unions organization with all admittable means and will represent the interests of independent farmers before the authorities."

Zimbabwe City Attacked

NATIONAL REPORT: The deadliest storm of the winter sent water flooding over riverbanks from New England to West Virginia, sweeping away automobiles and forcing residents to flee. There was no end in sight of the storm today, which was blamed for at least 57 deaths. Sub-zero temperatures, strong winds and lingering snow squalls put the final devastating touches on the storm-ravaged Northeast. Chunks of ice 15 feet high blocked some New Hampshire roadways. Gale warnings were issued today for Lake Erie and from Maine to Massachusetts. Small-craft advisories extended along the central Atlantic Coast and from the northwestern Florida coast to Texas. Record cold Thursday stretched from Michigan to Jacksonville, Fla., where the mercury fell to 26 degrees, breaking a record set in 1899. Schools across Michigan closed to protect students from the cold.

Early Morning Blasts Rip Through Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - A pre-dawn series of underground explosions possibly caused by an unknown substance dumped into city sewers knocked some people out of bed today, ripped gaping holes in the street and tossed manhole covers in the air. At least four people were injured, none seriously. All the injuries involved drivers or passengers in cars damaged in accidents as the explosions sent the sewer covers and debris flying.

Fire Chief Larry M. Bonnafon said the explosions may have been caused by something dumped into city sewer lines. "We feel there is a possibility of some foreign material entering the system," said Bonnafon, who added that city sewage engineers were checking a twomile stretch of sewer lines in the city's historic Old Lousiville area, a neighborhood of restored homes.

Busboy Admits Setting Fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. UPI - A busboy charged in the Las Vegas Hilton fire confessed he accidentally started the deadly blaze with a marijuana cigarette during a homosexual encounter with a man he knew only as "Joe". Eight persons died in the fire. The suspect, Philip B. Cline, 23, signed a confession

after failing a lie detector test, chief of the homicide bureau Lt. John Conner said Thursday. Cline, a high school dropout who had drifted from job to job in Vegas, had worked at two other resort hotels where fires broke out - the MGM Grand and the El Cortez. Police said they planned to investigate any fires at places where Cline worked, but had as yet made no connection.

Food Stamps Fraud Probed

WASHINGTON UPI - Senate investigators say that while food stamps contribute significantly to needy Americans, one person in five may be obtaining the aid

Investigators for the Senate Appropriations Committee said food stamp workers told them they often suspect applicants are not telling the truth, but do not challenge the information for fear their interpretations will be held against them by their superiors.

"Some of the persons we interviewed estimated it could be as high as 20 percent annually or about $1.8 billion of the program's $9.2 billion total cost in fiscal 1980," they said in a report.

Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, began hedging Thursday, saying it probably will take until 1984 to even the books. Emerging from a dinner with Vice President and Mrs. George Bush Thursday night, Reagan was asked by reporters for his views on budget balancing. "We're taking a shot at 1983 - we hope," he replied.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Higher Interest Rates, Inflation, Says Expert

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - One of the country's leading economists says inflation and interest rates will soar this year and President Reagan can't do anything about it. The prime interest rate will be well over 20 percent and inflation as measured by the consumer price index may be as high as 15 percent, Dr. Henry Kaufman said in a speech Thursday to the Florida Economics Club.

Kaufman was more optimistic on one point. He doesn't expect a recession this year, although many other economists are predicting one. It would be the second in two years.

Kaufman is general partner and a member of the executive committee of Salomon Brothers of New York City, an investment firm. He is considered one of the most respected observers of the country's economy. President Reagan's "policy solutions are likely to be imperfect and inadequate to meet the challenges," Kaufman said.

Florida Vies For Fed Money

KINGSLAND, Ga. (UPI) - Georgia and Florida have begun to jockey for position in the competition for millions of dollars in federal impact funds expected to accompany the Navy's Trident submarine base at Kings Bay, Ga. The battle for who gets how much is focused in the Kings Bay Steering Committee, the local intity officially recognized by the Navy to help the government allocate the community support assistance. But Florida's Nassau and Duval Jacksonville counties, also expecting a population surge from the 23,000 people the Trident base will bring in by 1990, feel that the committee, top-heavy with Georgians, is stacked against them.

Communications Merge A representative of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department is scheduled to be present at the Longwood City Commission meeting 7:30 p.m. Monday to discuss the police department's proposed participation in a police communications consolidation program with the county. Longwood Police Chief Greg Manning proposed at last week's commission meeting that the city turn over its police dispatching operation to the Seminole County Sheriff's Communication Center at Sanford Airport. Manning said the city could save $40,000 or more under the plan as it would not have to purchase new equipment and could reduce the number of dispatchers needed. A proposed letter to be mailed to residents informing them of upcoming meetings on the problem of drug abuse will also be up for discussion. A meeting of parents and other interested persons is scheduled for Feb. 24 at Lyman High School and

Turmoil Sweeps Central America

One of the chief foreign policy priorities of the new Reagan administration must be the development of an effective response to the revolutionary turmoil engulfing successive countries in Central America.

Such a response requires both an overall conceptual frame-work and the deft use of specific policy options adjusted to varying circumstances in each of the Central American

The framework of U.S. policy in the region must, of course, be fashioned in accordance with the paramount interests of both Central America and the United States. Broadly speaking, those interests are. a.) preventing the conquest of Central America by Cuban and Soviet proxies, and, b.) the implementation of social, political, and economic reforms that are both desirable in themselves and probably essential to a successful defense against the Marxist left.

The Reagan administration has arrived on the scene at something approaching the 11th hour. Nicaragua is today governed by Sandinista leaders openly supportive of Cuba and the Soviet Union. In El Salvador, a centrist junta supported by the United States clings precariously to power amidst unprecedented levels of political violence from both the extreme left and the extreme right.

Honduras and Guatemala, while less immediately threatened, remain acutely vulnerable to social and political unrest and to subversion instigated by Cuba. Mr. Reagan's first task is to stave off a Marxist victory in El Salavador and, in the process, help the junta to buy sufficient time for its land reform program to build support for the government.

This will surely require continuation and perhaps expansion of the economic and military assistance programs currently funded at about $70 million per year.

Sustaining El Salvador will also require Mr. Reagan to exert all available pressure on Rep. Francis G. Newland, D-Nev., was even Nicaragua's Sandinistas to halt their clandestine support of Salvadoran guerrillas. The Carter administration suspended economic aid to Nicaragua in early January after obtaining compeling evidence of Sandinista involvement in the delivery of Cuban arms to Marxist guerrillas in El Salvador.

The aid ban should remain in effect, although Reagan policymakers will want to hold open their lines of communication to non-Marxist elements within the Nicaraguan government.

While accomplishing all this, the administration must also look to Honduras and Guatemala, where U.S. policy options are more numerous because the threats of unrest, insurgency, and outside subversion are less advanced.

The Carter policy of punishing the Guatemalan government for its alleged human rights abuses by withholding all military aid and most forms of economic assistance as well hasn't worked and should probably be scrapped.

A more cooperative U.S.-Guatemalan relationship in which a modest amount of aid plus diplomatic persuasion are used in tandem to promote human rights and land reform ought to be attempted.

The relatively enlightened Honduran government merits and needs additional aid, both economic and military

However apparent the need to press for reforms in El Salvador, Honduras, and Guatemala, care must also be taken lest these governments be further destabilized. The Carter administration paid too little heed to the latter danger, a mistake Reagan policymakers must avoid.

But finally, President Reagan must confront the one problem Mr. Carter preferred to ignore almost entirely - namely, the crucial role of Cuba in fomenting subversion throughout the Caribbean and Central America.

They say the wheels of justice grind slowly but inexorably onward. Probably so. But in Seminole County, in addition to rolling slowly, the wheels of justice may also be out of alignment and the tires low on air.

That, mechanically speaking, is the way the consulting firm of Arthur D. Little Inc. of Washington, D.C. diagnosed Seminole's sputtering juvenile-family court vehicle following a study last summer.

The study, funded by a U.S. Justice Department grant, didn't draw much attention at the time which was a mistake. Juvenile and family courts may be the most important courts in the judicial system, likely to touch the lives of more people with longer lasting effects than any other. That, obviously, because the courts' jurisdiction is one of the more fragile and yet more important areas of society - the family. That very importance underscores the Little

Chance To Aid Families

WASHINGTON (NEA) - President Reagan has a rare opportunity to implement the rhetoric of his inaugural address, which praised as "heroes" the farmers who "produce food enough to feed all of us and much of the world beyond."

By vigorously enforcing new federal regulations promulgated in the closing days of President Carter's administration, Reagan can provide family farmers with access to thousands of acres of the nation's most fertile

The land, much of it located in the Central Valley of California, rightfully belongs to small farmers under terms of a 1902 federal statute specifically designed to encourage the settlement of family farmers in the West. When he signed the law 78 years ago President Theodore Roosevelt explained that it was intended "to build up the little man of "The very purpose of this bill is to guard against land monopoly and to hold this land in small tracts for the people of the entire country, to give each man only the amount of land that will be necessary for the support of a

But decades of nonenforcement by federal officials have allowed speculators, banks, railroads and oil companies to gain control of the land through complex partnership agreements, leasing arrangements and real-estate syndicates. "The family farmer' whom the law was designed to benefit sometimes can be found in the corporate boardrooms of Los Angeles or New York, in Caribbean tax havens or 'farming' out of the 40th floor of an office building," says former Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus.

Among the major owners of land in the Central Valley are the Southern Pacific Railroad, with more than 106,000 acres: Standard Oil of California, with more than 10,000 acres; J.G. Boswell Co., 90,000 acres; Salyer Land Co., 50,000 acres; and Producers Cotton Co., 27,000 acres.

Those figures stand in sharp contrast with the provisions of the 1902 law that specifically limit each member of a farm family to ownership of a maximum of 160 acres in areas irrigated with water provided through federal reclamation projects financed with public

The government has spent $11.5 billion on the reclamation program, whose 150 water projects irrigate 11 million acres of semi-arid private land in 17 western states. In most states except California, farmers have generally complied with the 160-acre limitation. But the law has been circumvented, evaded and violated with impunity by those served by California's Central Valley Project, a massive irrigation system that has received $2.1 million.

Sweet Adelines: 'You Are My Sunshine'

We were blessed Sunday with a beautiful, much needed rain. Downtown Sanford was further blessed during the evening hours with the "Sound of Sunshine."

Sweet Adelines, Inc. is a world wide, non-profit organization for women with headquarters in Tulsa, Okla. Each member belongs to a chapter (Sound of Sunshine Chapter is in the Central Florida area), which sings four-part harmony barbershop style. It requires four voice parts: lead, tenor, baritone and bass. It is sung accapella (without instrumental accompaniment) in a quartet or full chorus.

Renee Craig, a telented musical director of the 1979 International Chorus Champions, Ramapo Valley Chapter, accepted an invitation to coach the Sound of Sunshine group before the upcoming competition.

Renee is from Ramsey, N.J. and rarely accepts coaching jobs, since this is an avocation instead of a vocation, as it is with all the Sweet Adelines.

Housewives, secretaries, business and professional women who love to sing join the group which adds that special creative endeavor to their lives, even if it means hours and hours of practice and work, getting costumes together and traveling long distances to practice and to sing.

They all love it they say. Having friends in Delray Beach, Renee agreed to take a 10day swing through Florida, stopping in Sanford to rehearse the Sound of Sunshine for two days, then down to Delray where she could stay with friends while working and visiting the Sweet Adelines Chapters in West Palm Beach and Mlami areas. The singers worked very hard perfecting their harmony. Renee moved a few of the singers to new positions on the threetiered riser that improved the quality of the over-all harmony, Autism is a rare disorder. Striking at birth or in early infancy, autism is characterized by severe problems in communication, behavior and learning, according to Mrs. Smith. If not diagnosed and treated early, it can result in severe mental changes, requiring lifetime institutionalization.

Since the cause of autism has not yet been discovered, there is no specific cure; however, these children do benefit, often quite dramatically, from special classes and programs designed to meet their needs.

FPL files rate request.

FPL formally filed on January 16 with the Florida Public Service Commission the $476 million rate increase request that was previously announced through the news media. Under Florida law, the Commission has eight months to hold public hearings and evaluate FPL's request.

Interim rate increase.

Inflation and rising costs have prevented FPL from achieving the 9.08% rate of return established by the Commission as a fair and reasonable minimum four years ago. On February 9 FPL filed with the Commission an interim rate increase request which would permit the company to earn the previously authorized minimum rate of return while the full rate increase request is pending. Increased revenues granted in response to the interim request would be collected subject to refund, pending the final decision on the full rate increase request.

Rates available for inspection.

FPL has filed with the Florida Public Service Commission rate schedules based on the above rate increase request and interim increase request. Also, in connection with our Energy Conservation Goals Program, FPL recently filed with the Commission a new street and outdoor lighting rate schedule. These filings and schedules, as well as the recently approved Time Of Use rate schedules, are available for inspection at your local FPL office.

The hand was played in the final session. Phil Feldesman of New York, playing with Ira Rubin, knew that he was in contention and that he needed a top score. He got one by making four odd. He won the heart lead in his hand and played his jack of West took his ace and led the nine of diamonds. At this point Phil decided that East's diamond bid had shown five to the king and no other high cards. Phil also wanted a top score so he went right up with dummy's ace. Since the 10nine of spades were kind enough to drop under dummy's king-queen, Phil had time to knock out the heart and club aces and take 10 tricks for a top score. It is rare indeed that playing one notrump and making four will be worth a top, but this time it was. No one bid game. Those who played in spades made only three as did other notrump declarers because they finessed dummy's queen of diamonds in all instances. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

When it comes to tackling items that need repairing around the home, like many people Ingrid Boneta may not know a ratchet from a hatchet but Seminole Community College offers a class that will help solve your fix-it-yourself problems.

Don't Know Ratchet From A Hatchet?

By TOM NETSEL Herald Staff Writer

It's not that Jay Gordon has anything against repairmen, for many jobs they are indispensable. But when it comes to many repairs that have to be done around the house, Gordon feels a little information is all it takes for the average homeowner to successfully do the job areas of concern, Gordon will help you un-

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: Please tell me where I can get a copy of Leslie Halliwell's books, "Filmgoer's Companion" and "Film Guide," and Tim Brooks' and Earl Marsh's "The Complete Directory To Prime Time Network TV Shows." D. Wayne Rowland (Retired Journalism Dean, Silliman University), Cassville, Mo.

You shouldn't have trouble finding these excellent reference books, as they are all current. Halliwell's books are published by Scribner's, the Brooks-Marsh book by Ballantine. Your local book store should have them, or certainly can order them for you.

DEAR DICK: I am a big fan of Susan Sullivan of the ABC show, "It's a Living." Didn't she appear as Bill Bixby's companion in the premiere episode of "The Incredible Hulk"? Can you tell me more about her? GLENN HINCEMAN, Fort Mill, S.C.

I admire your taste, but you have the wrong woman. Mariette Hartley was the actress on the first "Hulk" episode. Susan is a New Yorker and went to Hofstra College (also Francis Ford Coppola's alma mater) and then the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. She put in several years with regional theater before starting her TV

Borgnine A-OK A Cowboy Scene Tu

NEW YORK - Ernest Borgnine's now A-OK after taking a tumble and banging a few bones while filming a rootin', tootin', shootin', cowboy scene. "They put copper wire instead of a steel rod between the horses and the carriage and it snapped," his wife, Tove, told me... I visited pal Bess Myerson in the hospital and asked what she was doing there. "I'm pulling splinters out of my Jewish seat," replied Bess adding, "We have capital punishment in 50 states and it's called 'a primary.' "

Nipsey Russell's up for a TV series... Joey Heatherton's up for a movie... Hermione Gingold's down

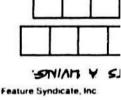

Cheryl Ladd's around town with the guy she's supposed to marry, Brian Russell ... Ann Baxter's around town with David Brooks of "Can Can"... Ed Asner's diet trick is to hit a deli at lunch, order a sandwich on very thin bread, then eat only half. The rest he takes along for dinner. Forget about the calories. This way he saves money, too... Mary Tyler Moore, who has left the Big Orange for the Big Apple told me, "I feel very comfortable with the city." And she's here in New York to stay ... Britt Ekland left off vacationing in our town just to fly home for her daughter's birthday.

A Steve Martin burp: "If I weren't funny all the time I wouldn't have any friends.' ... A pair of top, hotshot comedians preferred to hide and cower in their homes inauguration night rather than go to parties or satellite balls; they didn't want people to know Sinatra hadn't invited them to Washington. This way they told friends, "We were working that night."

For the New York Inaugural ball at the Waldorf Astoria's Grand Ballroom, Cardinal Cooke made a prayer for peace, Donald O'Connor and his conductor dashed over from rehearsals for "Bring Back Birdie," Anna Moffo flew in from Europe to do "The Star Spangled Banner," and Sammy Cahn shuttled in from the Washington inaugural to repeat his "Thumbs Up America" song. Julie Budd sang "I Love New York" to Mayor Koch, Eartha Kitt came in from California to stay with her daughter, Kitt, a New Yorker, and do a few

The balloon passed over a corner of southern Iran Friday, but there were no incidents, despite the Islamic regime's refusal to grant overflight clearance.

The balloon also maintained a steady altitude of 22,000 feet throughout the day as it rode into Pakistani airspace, easing fears it had sprung a leak, said Rice.

The balloon began to sink Thursday a few hours after it lifted off from Luxor, Egypt, falling to 18,000 feet, but Anderson told Rice in a 10-minute radio conversation he believes the descent was caused by the cooling of the helium gas in the balloon after

Air temperature outside the balloon, named after the author of "Around the World in 80 Days," was minus 22 degrees. The silver balloon, with a red, white and blue gondola was moving at about 70 mph, Rice said. The reported speeds were far less than the 150 mph the two men had hoped to achieve in their bid to go around the world in eight to 10 days, shaving at least 70 days off the fictional record set by the unflappable Phileas Fogg, the hero of Verne's novel. The private Weather Services Corp. of Bedford, which was tracking the course of the balloon by radar and radio, said the Jules Verne passed into Pakistan airspace about 4 p.m. EST Friday after crossing the Gulf of Oman.

Pfc. Garwood 'Dishonorable,' But Goes Free

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI) - Pfc. Robert R. Garwood, who spent 14 years collaborating with the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese and another two waiting for the Marines to court-martial him for it, is a free man today.

Garwood, who could have been sentenced to life in prison on his conviction of collaboration with the enemy, instead was merely sentenced to a dishonorable discharge Friday.

The five-man jury of Vietnam veterans who convicted him, decided in just an hour's deliberation the only American turncoat of the Vietnam War should not be sent to prison at all. "Bobby Garwood is quite relieved the sentence did not include confinement," said chief defense attorney John C.

Lowe, who said he will still pursue his efforts to get the conviction overturned. Garwood's lawyers readily admitted he collaborated with the Viet Cong and made no attack on witnesses who saw

Garwood in jungle prison camps. But they claimed Viet Cong torture drove him insane, and they produced psychiatrists to testify he needs years of treatment to return to normal. Garwood's sentenced stipulated he will be demoted to private before his dishonorable discharge - the date of which has not yet been decided. The issue of his $147,000 in back pay is in the hands of the U.S. Military Claims Court in Washington. His attorneys said Garwood will not talk to reporters until the disposition of civilian charges against him in Jacksonville, Garwood is charged with attempting to commit sexual abuse by force and with committing and attempting to commit a "lewd and lascivious act." The charges stem from an alleged incident Aug. 7 involving a 7-year-old Jacksonville girl. "We have not decided yet on what we're going to do,"

District Attorney William H. Andrews said Friday night. Garwood received his sentence with no emotion Friday and dashed out of the courtroom, smiling and accepting a handshake from another Marine. Clinging to him was 10-year-old Daniel Long, the son of MIA-POW activist Donna Long. Mrs. Long, whose husband was killed in a motorcycle accident shortly after Garwood came to live with them, testified she loves Garwood and wants to help him make a new life. Before they retired to deliberate the sentence. Lowe told the jury they should view Garwood's sentence in light of "all those turkeys" who fled to Canada and Sweden rather than go to war in Vietnam.

"They didn't spend 14 years in hell," He said.
