Sanford woman killed

PLAISTOW, N.H. — A 68-year-old Florida woman died in a single-car accident that sent three others to the hospital, police said Sunday. Barbara Dzwiniak, of Sanford, died at 7:10 p.m. Saturday at Haverhill, Mass., Hospital. She was a passenger in a car that went out of control and hit a tree in Plaistow around 5:45 p.m., state police said.

The driver of the vehicle, 44-year-old Richard Oullette of East Hampstead, was charged with negligent homicide, police said.

The accident was under investigation. Three other passengers were hospitalized following the crash, but none of the injuries was considered life-threatening, officials said.

Minister takes no excuses

FARWELL, Mich. — Don't tell the Rev. Tim Snipes you can't make it to Sunday services. He's got an answer for your every excuse.

"People have been making excuses to God for a long time," Snipes said. "Adam said it wasn't his fault; it was Eve's. Eve blamed the serpent. Moses told God he couldn't handle the leadership because he wasn't a good talker."

For those who say they like to sleep late, the head of the Farwell Church of Christ counters with a promise to provide a cot for snoozing.

For those who say the church is too cold, Snipes has plenty of blankets. For those who complain the building is too hot, he reminds them he has fans.

Front seats are available for people who say they can't hear his sermon, and cotton balls are provided for those who say he talks too loudly.

Surrogate relatives will be available for others who beg off with the excuse of visiting relatives.

For those who say they'd rather worship out-of-doors, Snipes has some shrubbery and turf. Those who say they'd rather be fishing are given a fish bowl to gaze at.

Bowler misses record

MILWAUKEE — Jim Knoblauch suffered cuts, back spasms and blisters and, worse, still didn't manage to rack up the 36,922 bowling score to earn $10,000 and a notice in the Guinness Book of world records.

Knoblauch, 35, of Waukesha began bowling at 8 a.m. Friday, but stopped at 2:56 a.m. Saturday. He had played 149 games and compiled a score of 26,111, well below the necessary score for a 24-hour period listed by the current edition of Guinness.

"He was having muscle spasms, back pains and tore a thumb open," said Bill Pallaske, manager of the bowling alley. "He just couldn't go on anymore."

The radio station will select another challenger to vie for the $10,000.

Animal Control director search drags on as problems surface

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Because of nagging problems with the Seminole County Animal Control Division, county officials won't hire a new director for the Animal Control Division for at least three months.

Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser, who oversees the division, said long-standing mismanagement and other continuing problems in the division should be corrected before another animal control official is hired. "The problems are more extensive than we thought," Kaiser said. "Now would not be a fair time to bring a new person in while these things are up in the air."

Shelter supervisor Becky Lindsey, who weathered the controversial period when former animal control official Bob McIntosh was investigated for division mismanagement, will leave Aug.

17. Kaiser said she was offered a lower position because of poor performance, but instead chose to resign.

Kaiser said among the chief problems of the division are lack of management and procedures. Rebates due residents who had their

President tightens screws Bush rejects terms proposed by Saddam

By THOMAS FERRARO

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — Using military power to tighten economic screws as promised, President Bush had U.S. warships engaged in a de facto naval blockade today to enforce a U.N.-ordered trade embargo against Iraq.

Its revenue-producing flow of oil all but cut off, Bush ratcheted up a campaign of economic deprivation with orders Sunday for U.S. forces to back up sanctions intended to punish Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The administration also rejected a proposal by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, who said he would withdraw his forces from Kuwait if U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia were replaced by a U.N.-supervised Arab force. Israel left the occupied territories and an international trade embargo were lifted.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said "the United States categorically rejects" Saddam's suggested settlement.

"We join the rest of the U.N. Security Council in unanimously calling for the immediate, complete and unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi forces from

Desmond hails drug testing as county commission issue

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — The District 2 Seminole County commission race left out from relative tranquility this past week when candidate Bob Desmond launched an attack on incumbent Bob Sturm, accusing him and his advisors of avoiding a drug test.

Sturm in turn accused Desmond of spreading "heffer dust" and avoiding substantive issues.

District 2 candidate Dick Fess accused the other two of creating false issues to steer public attention away from the "real" issues: taxes, growth, etc.

Desmond continued the attack, saying Sturm had violated state election laws by accepting an unlawful amount of money from two contributors and failing to include a state-required disclosure on his campaign signs. Sturm responded by ordering the signs corrected and returning the $200 in excess contributions.

"I'm not interested in ruining a man's career or getting penny ante," Desmond said. "I believe in a drug-free environment. There are hundreds of millions of dollars at stake here and nothing should influence the decisions of the elected officials or the people that advise them."

District 2 includes most of Lake Mary and Winter Springs, and portions of Sanford, Longwood and Casselberry, as well as unincorporated areas near those communities. Although the District 2 commissioner is primarily responsible to residents in that district, the commissioner is elected by all the voters in Seminole County.

The drug-testing matter emerged Aug. 1 when during a candidate's forum before the Seminole County Young Republicans Club when Desmond challenged Sturm and the third Republican candidate Dick Fess along with their advisors to join him and to give urine samples at West Lake Hospital in Longwood.

Fess quickly responded, pledging to meet Desmond there the next morning. Sturm responded by waving a piece of paper saying he had already taken a drug test, showing he had no drugs in his system.

The next morning, Desmond and his campaign manager Geri

Deputies, police officers garner honors for service

By SUSAN LODEN

SANFORD — Two Seminole County sheriff's deputies, including one wounded in the line of duty, have been honored along with other outstanding area lawmen by the Kiwanis Club of Central Florida.

Among those chosen as outstanding in their departments is Sanford police investigator James "Pat" Smith, credited with solving several cases of robbery-beatings of elderly Sanford residents in their homes last year.

Deputy Thomas Johnson, 25, received the George Pfeil Award — considered the top award. The award is given in memory of Seminole County Sheriff's Deputy George Pfeil, who was killed in a 1977 showdown with robbers at a Longwood pharmacy.

Johnson survived two direct bullet hits to his chest, thanks to his bulletproof vest in a March 30 shootout with two bank robbery suspects on Wekiva Springs Road, rural Longwood. Johnson was wounded in the legs, but held one of the suspects in his gunshots, while the second robber continued to fire at him. The gunman was shot by deputy Paul Schuck, and then fired a fatal wound into his own head, ending the confrontation.

Johnson, who has been a road patrol deputy throughout his career, recently has been reassigned as an internal affairs investigator.

"It was an honor considering it

Sheriff's Smith Investigator Dan Prast, 29, was recognized as officer of the year for his department. Prast was honored for his precedent-setting investigations of two women, which led to the first arrests and prosecution in cases of women accused of delivery cocaine to their unborn babies in the womb.

Prast also last year played a key role in the arrest of a man in Volusia County who is accused of making hundreds of sexually harassing and threatening phone calls to women in Central

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

NFL may force festival integration

United Press International

TAMPA - National Football League officials have denied pressuring Tampa to integrate the Gasparilla festival by threatening to remove it from the national television spotlight that will surround Super Bowl XXV in Tampa.

However, the NFL is trying to ensure minorities a share of the $125 million in profits the Tampa Bay area is expected to rake in during Super Bowl week Jan. 30-27, said NFL planning director Don Weiss.

The St. Petersburg Times reported Saturday that the NFL was demanding concessions from Ye Mystic Krewes of Gasparilla, an all-white, all-male social organization that plans the festival, to avoid a scandal similar to the one dogging the Professional Golfers Association.

In remarks published Sunday by The Tampa Tribune, Weiss denied pressuring Tampa Super Bowl planners to integrate the festival or to change its schedule from the day before the Super Bowl.

"There's been no pressure applied," Weiss said. "We've talked with the (Super Bowl) Task Force and will continue talking with them to involve more minorities. It certainly doesn't focus on Gasparilla. It focuses on the Super Bowl as a whole."

Attorney says Vincent wants charge dropped

United Press International

TAMPA - An attorney for George Steinbrenner said the chief investigator for baseball commissioner Fay Vincent asked him to try to end prosecution of the man accused of extorting $40,000 from the New York Yankees boss.

According to a Monday report in the Tampa Tribune, attorney Robert E. Banker said chief investigator John Dowd asked him in an April meeting to try to get the charge against Howard Spira dismissed by federal prosecutors.

Banker told The Tribune that another Steinbrenner attorney, Bob Gold of New York, also attended the meeting in Dowd's office in Washington.

Banker said Dowd told them, "I and the commissioner want the case to go away."

However, Banker said Vincent himself has never made such a request. Neither Dowd nor Vincent could be reached Sunday.

A spokesman for the baseball commissioner's office, Rich Levin, said "We have no interest in it (the prosecution) one way or another."

Despite Spira's March extortion indictment, Vincent pressed an investigation of Steinbrenner's earlier payment of $40,000 to Spira. That led to Steinbrenner's downfall as boss of the Yankees.

Tampa task force targets Super Bowl price gouging

By VICTOR GALVAN
United Press International

TAMPA - Some innkeepers in the Tampa Bay area gearing up for Super Bowl XXV may find themselves on an unflattering list compiled by a task force determined to keep local hotels from gouging out-of-town visitors.

The list is not extensive, but it's expected to grow as the Super Bowl's silver anniversary game nears, said Alice Everett, housing coordinator for the city's Super Bowl task force.

The game is scheduled to be played Jan. 27 at Tampa Stadium.

Hotels that make the "gougers" list will be blackballed from a hotel referral list provided on request to football fans.

Everett said the referral list includes the names of hotels in Tampa, St. Petersburg, Clearwater and Orlando that have agreed to cooperate with the task force and not hike room rates by significant amounts during the Super Bowl.

Price gouging became a serious issue in January after the task force sent a delegation to the championship game in New Orleans amid allegations that some hotels there had boosted and, in some cases, tripled their nightly rates. If the problem is as prevalent in Tampa, task force officials fear the National Football League may balk at allowing the city to host a future game.

The "gougers" list - which is being prepared by a special "price gouging committee" of the task force - also may be made available to the public.

"We don't mess around. If someone were to call about a hotel, I would want to know who they were specifically," Everett said. "Obviously we are concerned that there might be price gouging going on."

The task force has not set specific guidelines for determining what constitutes price gouging. Instead, each case is evaluated individually.

Everett said not all hotels that increase their prices are guilty of gouging.

Some hotels are posting rates only marginally higher than normal winter rates, while others are offering amenities, such as free tickets to the Busch Gardens theme park or free meals, she said.

Despite that seeming flexibility, some hotel managers say the task force is not a fair judge of whether a hotel is fleecing its customers.

Mental health advocates criticize spending

TALLAHASSEE - Advocates for the mentally ill criticized state plans to spend $4.2 million in taxpayers' money for a new computer system to track mentally ill people.

The computers are intended to help social workers learn whether their patients have been treated previously at other centers, and if so, which medicines or treatments might help.

Computers meant for much the same purpose already sit in crisis centers and district welfare offices. They were bought with state money in 1985 but were never used as fully as intended because they are not connected with state Department of Health and Human Services databanks in Tallahassee, said Jayne Johnson, former chairwoman of the District 9 Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Planning Council, in West Palm Beach.

Meanwhile, families are pleading for help for mentally ill drug addicts who roam the street, the advocates said.

"It (the money) could have been used for one-time things like glasses and teeth and getting homeless people off the street, and they didn't. They chose to buy computers," said Maxine Kleier, second vice president of the Florida Alliance for the Mentally Ill.

Rescued manatee improves

MIAMI - A 2-week-old manatee rescued from a Plantation Key canal is improving health at Miami Seaquarium, where teams of three people feed her a special milk formula every hour.

"The good thing is that we got her on the bottle," said Dr. Gregory Boswart, a veterinarian at the facility.

The 3 1/2-foot, 80-pound manatee's chances for survival increased by 50 percent when she started drinking the same type of milk used to nurse calves, Boswart said.

Rescuers netted the babe manatee Friday and took her to the Seaquarium after making sure the mother was not coming back. They suspect the mother was killed by a boat, Boswart said. Newborn manatees usually stay with their mothers and nurse for a year to 18 months.

The orphaned manatee suffered from hypoglycemia and is partially blind in her left eye, but is expected to regain sight as her health improves.

Gambling suspect denied bond

PORT LAUDERDALE - A suspect arrested in a shootout during a gambling raid was denied bond on five charges of attempted murder of a law enforcement officer.

John E. White, 49, was arraigned on the charges Sunday and remained in the Broward County Jail Monday.

Five police officers were caught in a barrage of gunfire early Sunday when they tried to enter a second-floor apartment suspected as the headquarters for a high-stakes gambling ring. No one was injured.

Toxic dumping prompts concerns

TAMPA - Plants that converted coal into gas in Florida have left a legacy of toxic waste at 24 locations, and experts said the number could grow because other gas plant dump sites have yet to be uncovered.

"The seriousness of this problem could dwarf many of the currently designed Superfund sites in magnitude," New Jersey environmental consultant Robert Halvesen told The Tampa Tribune in a published report Monday. He has studied several gas plants in that state.

"The sites constitute serious health hazards to an unsuspecting population."

State Department of Environmental Regulation officials said the number of contaminated sites most likely will grow because some have not been discovered in such likely places as Sarasota or Lake City.

"I'd be willing to bet, if you dig hard enough, you're going to find some more," said Jim McCarthy, a DER geologist.

McCarthy and Joe McGarrity, also with DER, accidentally stumbled into Cascade Park in Tallahassee during a rainstorm and discovered it was drenched in a toxic soup of 17 chemicals, many carcinogenic, and at least five heavy metals, including lead and chromium. The park has been closed and fenced off since 1988.

"Little kids are what we worry about more than anything," said Eric Nuzie, a supervisor in DER's waste management division. "Little kids could have been digging out there in the ground and eating some of the dirt."

Coal converting plants, called coal gasification plants, were common in the United States before the construction of natural gas pipelines. From the turn of the century to 1959, virtually every community of any size in Florida had a coal gasification plant.

FBI investigates injury to dolphin protesters in Keys

By JANE SUTTON
United Press International

MIAMI - The FBI is investigating private Navy contractors whose boats allegedly ran over two dolphin protection activists trying to halt an explosive test off the Florida keys, and one protester called for attempted murder charges.

Ric O'Barry, who trained dolphins for the television series "Flipper," and Russ Rector, said they were run over by two boats Friday while swimming near the test area in an effort to halt the detonation of a 1,200-pound charge.

The Navy was using the underwater explosives to test new submarine parts near the Dry Tortugas, 85 miles west of Key West. The protesters said the test could endanger dolphins in the test area, a charge the Navy denied.

"I think the charge should be attempted murder on the high seas. It was very clearly deliberate and malicious," O'Barry said.

The FBI confirmed Sunday it was investigating Friday's incident, but would not disclose details.

"The FBI is in the process of conducting an investigation to determine if there were any violations of any federal criminal statutes," FBI spokesman Paul Miller said.

O'Barry suffered a concussion and several bruises. Rector, 42, of Orlando, suffered back and hip injuries and a dislocated shoulder. They were rescued by the Coast Guard and treated at Florida Keys Memorial Hospital.

The boats involved, a tugboat and a 16-foot Boston whaler, were run by civilians under contract with the Navy, O'Barry said.

"The ships actually chased after us and repeatedly tried to kill me," said O'Barry, who later learned that the explosives already had been detonated and the test was over.

"It was over and they were on their way home. All they had to do was leave. They were not hired as security officers. Why were they even chasing us?" he said.

O'Barry, who was back home in Miami Sunday, said he was questioned by an FBI agent from his hospital bed. He said he and Rector had volunteered to take lie detector tests.

The official in charge of the testing, Dan Probert, head of the Naval Air Development Center in Key West, could not be reached.

Head-rocking home buck brew rocks Union jailhouse

United Press International

RAIFORD - Union Correctional Institution might not be everyone's idea of a hot place to party, but it does enjoy a certain renown among connoisseurs of a mind-numbing home brew known as buck.

There are plenty of crannies on the grounds to hide the concoction of yeast, sugar, raisins, potato peels, fruit juices, tomato paste and whatever other ingredients might be handy while they distill into the head-rocking home brew, according to inmates and guards.

"Some of the finest buck makers in the state of Florida reside here," John Whitehead Jr., chief corrections officer at Union, said Sunday in the Florida Times-Union.

Buck fixings - a plastic milk bag, a 5-gallon bucket and an old bleach jug -

Some of the finest buck makers in the state of Florida reside here.

-John Whitehead Jr.,
corrections officer

were found at Union just last week, along with two jars of the finished product.

Inmates usually mix the contents early in the week, then bury or otherwise stash it away until the weekend, when they do not have to work, Whitehead said.

That's not to suggest prison officials don't take the buck-brewing seriously. Bucked-up inmates have been blamed for fighting with guards and instigating riots. Sometimes the stuff, with a bouquet that can resemble window cleaner, makes inmates sick enough to require hospital treatment.

Officials maintain strict control over their yeast supply to prevent it from falling into the hands of buck brewers. Containers are also carefully controlled, with plastic ones routinely being cut up after use.

Inmates caught with buck also face up to 60 days disciplinary confinement and stand to lose all the gain time they have saved up toward early release, though gain time reductions of 90 to 180 days are more common.

Still, "substance abuse and alcohol abuse is a major problem in our society. Consequently, it is a major problem in our institutions," said Kerry Flack, a Department of Corrections official in Tallahassee.

"You can dry it up and work on it," said Whitehead. "But I doubt you can ever, given the resources we have, completely get rid of it."

Stolen car rams deputies' cars

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man who allegedly drove a stolen car into two pursuing Seminole County sheriff's cars, was arrested at the scene of the collisions on Interstate 4 at State Road 434, Longwood.

James Kevin Cuddy, 30, 2707 Park Ave., Sanford, was arrested at about 10 p.m. Sunday. A state trooper charged him with driving under the influence, resisting arrest without violence, reckless driving and fleeing to elude.

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy also charged Cuddy with grand theft auto and two counts of aggravated battery on a police officer. Cuddy is accused of stealing a car with keys in the ignition from the Handy Way at State Road 46 and State Road 415, east of Sanford. Deputies pursued him from that scene to the crash site.

Vehicular damage was estimated at $3,500, an arrest report said.

Cocaine smuggled into jail

SANFORD — A man arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies after allegedly attacking a group of people in a van in rural Altamonte Springs Saturday night allegedly had eight pieces of crack cocaine hidden in his underwear when he was booked into the county jail at 3:40 a.m. Sunday.

Bernard Few, at the jail, was charged with possession of cocaine with intent to distribute and attempting to destroy evidence by allegedly trying to swallow the cocaine found at the jail.

Few, 25, of Apopka, was first arrested on charges of aggravated battery and throwing a bottle as a deadly missile into an occupied vehicle.

Larry Darnell Stanley, 33, of Ft. Stewart, Ga., was injured by the bottle when he was aiding a woman in escaping from Few after a confrontation with the woman outside the Disco Food Store, County Road 427, rural Altamonte Springs, deputies said.

That incident occurred at 5:30 p.m. Saturday and Few was captured in connection with that incident at about 3:25 a.m. Sunday.

Tip brings arrest

SANFORD — City police acting on a tip that a man who was standing in the doorway of Tony's Bar, on West 13th Street, Sanford, at about 10 p.m. Saturday had a bottle of crack cocaine, report arresting a suspect.

Police said Curtis Eugene Campbell, 40, 1414 W. 11th Street, Sanford, was charged with possession of cocaine, possession of cocaine with intent to distribute and resisting arrest without violence, after police approached him at the bar.

Man accused of punching woman

CASSELBERRY — A man who allegedly punched Brenda Collins, 28, 750 Crestview Drive, Casselberry, with his fists and knocked her down, was arrested at their house by Casselberry police.

William David Malovios, 33, was charged with battery at 4:16 a.m. Sunday.

Man charged in broom attack

MIDWAY — David Calvin Cleveland, 58, 2154 Beardall Ave., Midway, was charged with battery, after allegedly beating a woman with a broomstick during an argument at his residence, which is also the location of Eudell's Grocery.

The victim, Gloria Harrison, told Seminole County sheriff's deputies she was in a dispute over an alleged theft by a third party when Cleveland allegedly hit her with the broom. The arrest was made at about 1 a.m. Sunday.

Man accused in theft of battery

SANFORD — A woman reported seeing a man carrying something across her back yard at 2051 Brisson Ave., Sanford, at about midnight Sunday. She checked her car and found the battery had been stolen.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies were called to the scene, and based on witness statements, report capturing and arresting Jeffrey Redden, 24, 2020 Henry Ave., Sanford, in connection with the theft. Redden was charged with burglary and theft.

Commission to consider state grant

By STEVE FORAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Even though the city has been offered a $43,375 Florida Highway Beautification Grant by the Department of Transportation, the grant may not be accepted. The decision may come this evening follow discussion of the matter during a city commission work session at 5 p.m., and a formal hearing during the regular commission meeting at 7 p.m.

The grant, which would be used to plant native trees and wild flowers in the median of West First Street, from Avocado Avenue to the railroad overpass, would require an additional $42,376 matching contribution from local sources. Last week, Mayor Bettye Smith said she didn't think the measure stood a very good chance of approval because of the city's present budget crunch.

"But that's up to the commission to decide," Smith said.

If the city elects to accept the grant, agreements would have to be signed and returned to DOT within 60 days.

In other matters this evening, the earlier work session's agenda also includes discussion on the possibility of expanding and developing Hovnanian Park, located on property immediately to the south of the city cemetery on 25th Street. The area could be developed into an active park.

The purchase of street lights for Park on Park will also be brought up during the work session. Six antique-style light poles, each containing five globes, would be purchased with funds from community donations, specifically from money donated by the Sanford Women's Club.

Other topics expected at the work session include solid waste recycling options and employee/retiree group health insurance.

In addition to the vote on the West First Street Beautification Grant, the agenda for the regular meeting includes several rezoning and condemnation matters and some board appointments and reappointments.

The regular meeting will be held in the City Commission Chambers at City Hall, 300 N. Park Ave.

Central Park construction

Construction continues on the park area outside Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road at Lake Mary Boulevard. By October an outdoor amphitheatre for local plays and a small lake should be completed, with lighting and a fountain to be installed after the widening of Lake Mary Boulevard. Construction of Central Park began about two months ago.

Habitat to build in Georgia

United Press International

SAVANNAH, Ga. — Habitat for Humanity wants to build about 50 houses in one of Chatham County's oldest and most neglected communities during the next four years.

Habitat spokeswoman Rosanne Kieley said the first phase of the project calls for construction of 24 homes for low-income families in the next two years in the Burroughs Community near Georgetown.

Kieley says Habitat for Humanity hopes to eventually build a total 52 homes.

The project is partially funded by a combined grant from Habitat and Chatham County.

Kieley said a number of fundraising events are planned to help finance the project.

Disney acquires control of 2,000 acres along I-4

United Press International

KISSIMMEE — Walt Disney Co. has quietly acquired control of 2,045 acres along Interstate 4 in Osceola County, letting the company determine what type of development will be allowed near its theme park and other holdings.

The tract of dead citrus and scrub could prove vital to Disney's long range growth plans, which hinge on the eventual alignment and completion of several road projects, including the planned extension of the Orlando Beltway.

Disney officials said they do not plan to expand their own borders. But they will work with neighboring landholders to ensure the right kind of development occurs in the area, something Disney has not done before.

The deal could help Disney control its own destiny and that of its neighbors. The Sentinel reported. It is believed the company is trying to avoid the sort of congested development that happened outside Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif.

The series of land deals was completed in April, three weeks after Disney announced plans to build a $2.5 billion, high tech, "dream city" in Osceola County.

Fifteen neighboring landholders deeded 276 acres to Herman J. Heidrich & Sons, and Orlando citrus firm with 1,769 acres along Disney's southwest border. The Sentinel reported.

The parcels were consolidated under a $17 million single mortgage guaranteed by Disney. Heidrich has given Disney an option to buy the entire package. Disney has lent $2.5 million and agreed to lend up to $10 million more in exchange for a second mortgage.

Records show there is no expiration date on Disney's option.

Public officials and private real estate interests familiar with Disney's activities in the area said the most obvious advantage of the deal is that it gives Disney control of a large chunk of the access and frontage along key feeder roads and I-4 to the Polk County line.

Two interchanges for I-4 are planned in the area.

The deal includes one 117-acre parcel sold by the Heller Bros. Packing Co., two months before Disney announced its Osceola development, to a Miami law firm that paid $4.3 million, six times the appraised value.

"I was kind of suspicious it was Mickey Mouse," said Heller Bros. vice president Glenn Jackson. "But I really didn't ask. At that price, I didn't need to."

The deal was handled by H. William Walker Jr., representing Osceola Land Holdings Inc. Disney says it has no connection to Osceola Land Holdings.

However, Walker and two colleagues at the Miami law firm of White and Case are corporate officers for Osceola Land Holdings. State records list Walker as the registered agent for 21 corporations in Florida and Delaware, each listing as its president Frank Wells, who is also president and chief operating officer of Walt Disney Co.

Disney officials denied they planned any expansions.

"The Heidrichs have been coming to Disney for almost 10 years or more, asking us to buy their property," said Tom Lewis, vice president of Disney Development Co.

"Then, this year, they had another freeze and they were back to us again. That's when we put together this consulting deal," he said.

"Our corporate philosophy remains the same. Acquiring more land has never been our goal."

Biotech break

Before this decade is out, medical researchers may develop effective new treatments for AIDS, Parkinson's Disease, diabetes, and maybe even for certain strains of cancer. The prospect of such breakthroughs occurring in California laboratories was greatly enhanced by a recent state Supreme Court ruling that patients do not have proprietary rights over discarded body tissue used by researchers to develop new drugs or other treatments.

A contrary ruling in Moore vs. the Regents of the University of California would have had a chilling effect on the entire biotechnology industry. Had the court decided that patients owned their discarded tissue and thus were entitled to be remunerated for scientific usage, it would have slowed if not halted vital research on potentially life-saving drugs.

Even with the Moore decision, the biotech industry as a whole is not entirely free and clear. A state court elsewhere might look differently upon a similar case and researchers would be back to square one. Ultimately, the matter of whether patients or researchers hold property rights over discarded tissue may end up in the lap of the U.S. Supreme Court.

To Jerry Caulder, president of Mycogen Inc., and also chairman of the Washington based Industrial Biotechnology Association, and other pioneers in the biotech industry, the matter should be settled. "What claim does the person who sold the paint to Michelangelo have to the work on the ceiling of the Sistine chapel?" he asks, appropriately. "If you have raw tissue, a gene with no value, and a researcher comes along and adds value to it, who should own the (property) rights?"

These and other fundamental questions pertaining to biotechnology should have been resolved by the federal government at least a decade ago, when the biotech industry was in its infancy. Instead, Congress and the federal agencies with purview over biotech did virtually nothing, leaving these questions to be decided belatedly by the courts.

This is a terrible way to nurture an important and potentially lucrative new industry, one in which the United States happens to have a lead (at the moment at least) over the rest of the world. The Bush administration must work in concert with Congress to develop a comprehensive regulatory policy for the biotech industry that will stand up to potential court challenges — one that will help ensure the industry reaches maturity in this decade.

British censors goof

For all the debate in this country about the efficacy of the rating system employed by the Motion Picture Association of America, never has the MPAA shown itself to be as unenlightened as the British Board of Film Classification. Recently, the board banned a film based on the controversy surrounding best-selling author Salman Rushdie.

The Pakistani-made film, entitled "International Guerrillas," portrays a character, modeled after Rushdie, as a drunken pro-Israeli Lothario with a predilection for torture and murder of Moslems. At the end of the film, the character receives his comeuppance in the form of a lightning bolt from Allah.

The film is, of course, an answer to Mr. Rushdie's 1989 novel, "The Satanic Verses," which many Moslems considered blasphemous of their religion. The British government sensibly resisted diplomatic pressure from Moslem nations to remove the Rushdie tome from the country's bookshelves, on grounds that such action would amount to censorship. Given this posture, it is difficult to square the decision of the film board — which operates under auspices of the British government — to ban the film.

The irony of all this was not lost on Mr. Rushdie, who remains in hiding from Moslem extremists after nearly 18 months.

Although he found the caricature of himself somewhat unflattering (and undoubtedly found the ending unsettling), he nonetheless was among the first to voice strenuous objection to the government's prior restraint of the film. He argued, correctly, that the film should be in the public domain so that any libel or offense might be dealt with according to due process.

It is insulting to the intelligence of British viewers that a government board would make decisions in their name as to what films or other "creative" works they should be able to experience.

Fortunately for Americans, film censorship is rare in this country, probably because the MPAA is governed by the film industry rather than the government. Even a release as obnoxious as "International Guerrillas" can get screen time in movie houses here.

Nixon archive has rewritten history

YORBA LINDA, Calif. — There may not be any sex on display at the new Richard Nixon Presidential Library, but there are plenty of lies and videotape. Admittedly, presidential libraries traditionally put their subjects in the best light possible, but none has tried to rewrite history to this extent.

Watergate, and Nixon's downfall, is where most of the heavy editing has taken place. Watergate is not seen as a scandal, but rather as "an epic and bloody political battle," pitting an embattled president and his White House staff against a Democratic juggernaut intent on overturning "the mandate of the 1972 election" by forcing Nixon from office.

Some initial visitors were surprised that Watergate was covered at all in the library, but it has a long dark room dedicated to it, with a wall covered in text and photographs.

The complicated display makes the best case possible for Nixon, usually in the former president's own words. The written text concedes that "Nixon himself has said he made inexcusable misjudgments during Watergate," but it goes on to accuse most of those involved in the investigation of personal bias — especially the late Sen. Sam Ervin, chairman of the Senate investigation committee, and special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

One of the most misleading exhibits in the room pertains to Washington Post reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein. Not only are the two accused of bias, but of "offering bribes, illegally gaining access to telephone numbers and talking to members of the grand jury."

The accusation appears in the display in quotes. The quote, in turn, is attributed to a "scholar." Pressed for details, a library spokesman identified the scholar as University of Wisconsin Professor Stanley Kutler. Through a university spokesman, Kutler said that the quote did in fact come from one of his books, but it was not a charge he was making. Rather he was repeating a charge often made by Nixon loyalists, which he so credited.

A central focus of the Watergate room is a set of earphones where a visitor can hear a narrated version of one of the Watergate tapes (the library says a total of three tapes will be available by September). It is not just any tape that is played; it is the famed "smoking gun" tape of the June 23, 1972 Oval Office meeting between Nixon and Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman during which the payment of hush money was discussed as well as using the CIA to persuade the FBI to drop the Watergate investigation on national security grounds.

What library visitors hear is Haldeman recommending that CIA Deputy Director Vernon Walters call FBI Director L. Patrick Gray to suggest that national security will be compromised if the FBI's investigation goes forward. What the visitors do not hear is Nixon enthusiastically agreeing, and then asking, what to do if Gray says no. Nor do they hear Haldeman giving a complete briefing of the investigation to date, how it ties into the White House, and how Ken Dahlberg — the financial official of the Committee to Re-elect the President — supplied the burglars' expense money and how he could probably be used to buy the silence of the burglars.

Perhaps the most interesting displays deal with Nixon's very early life, his early campaigns, his private and family life, and a stunning room called "World Leaders."

A long dark room is dedicated to Watergate.

"It only took Saddam Hussein a few hours to take over Kuwait... no leveraged buyout... no legal fees... J.B. is green with envy."

GEORGE F. WILL

More nuisance than menace

WASHINGTON — Saddam Hussein has crowded his 53 years with action, as Hitler crowded his 58. Hussein at this point is more a disturbance and cost than a menace to the United States. But, he forces us to face facts hitherto sedulously avoided.

The wrong question, with which diplomats are comfortable, is: Which nations in the Middle East are friendly? A more pressing question is: Which nations are really nations?

A retired Egyptian diplomat once said, "Egypt is the only nation-state in the Middle East. The rest are tribes with flags." He exaggerated. But when Hussein said, "There are no borders between Arab countries," he used the idiom of political myth (pan-Arabism) to express a political truth about the thin pedigrees and shallow roots of many Arab states.

Consider Kuwait, a tiny kingdom run by cousins (probably; these things are hard to sort out from a nomadic past) of the thousands of cousins who run neighboring Saudi Arabia. Sixty percent of the 2.1 million residents of Kuwait are not Kuwaitis. This curious sort of nation, not yet quite three decades into independence, has a regime that derives its legitimacy from pre-modern, semi-tribal mores.

In obliterating that regime Saddam Hussein has enjoyed the support of the least kingly king, Jordan's Hussein. He is, we will be assured, the "moderate" component of the pro-Iraq coalition that includes Libya and the PLO.

King Hussein's spokesman likened Saddam Hussein to Bismarck, the "blood and iron" chancellor who created a united Germany from a loose confederation of states. The comparison is to the wrong German.

Saddam Hussein's resemblance is to another "naasty man with a moustache" (the Financial Times' words) who exploited intoxicating pan-Germanism the way Arab demagogues exploit pan-Arabism. The German Bismarck created became dangerous because of something Bismarck neither shared nor encouraged, a longing for more than mere nationhood, a supranational myth of "das Volk," a cultural-racial existence prior to and superior to any mere nation-state.

The parallel between this pan-Germanism and the dynamism of pan-Arabism is not exact but its disquieting. So is Saddam Hussein's emphasis not on the primacy of Iraqi nationalism but rather of the Baath party — an exportable entity as carrier of pan-Arabism.

Hitler, remember, had an odd relationship to the German state. He was not a German citizen until shortly before he became Germany's chancellor. He loathed the nation's elites — legal, cultural, religious, administrative, even military. He supplanted national symbols and anthems with party symbols and anthems (the swastika; the Horst Wessel song). Oaths were taken not to the state but to the party leader (Hitler). By 1944 even the military salute was replaced by the Hitler salute.

Saddam Hussein is not Hitler, but the dynamism of his regime is Hitlerian. That suggests he will not be stopped other than by superlative force.

A Jordanian of ficial refers contemptuously to Kuwait and other Gulf states as "oil wells with flags." But Jordan's Hashemite regime can hardly condescend to others concerning their attenuated nationhood.

Jordan is a jerky-built state, a product first of British diplomacy and then of military conquest (during the Israeli war of independence). Jordan's nationhood has been watery gruel since 1974. Then King Hussein passively acquiesced in the decision of the Arab summit at Rabat to designate the PLO as the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people — the representative, that is, of a majority of the people in Jordan.

King Hussein, whose strong suit is survival, not legitimacy, is a natural pilot fish for the Iraqi shark, Saddam Hussein. A Jordanian official says, "The colonial powers vivisectioned the Arab world to make us weak. If Saddam Hussein can put the Arab map together again, who will regret what he did in Kuwait?" That depends — or does it? — on how many more people are killed "to put the Arab map together again," whatever that means.

When was that map together? Under the Ottoman Empire? Before the tribes acquired flags?

That Jordanian diplomat expresses a political culture that has passed from tribalism to decadence without a moment of national flourishing. That diplomat speaks the language of decadence. The plaintive whine of the professional victim, passing out the blame for his condition.

King Hussein's treachery during the 1967 Six Day War cost him half his territory. By the time Saddam Hussein has been shoved back into his cage, King Hussein will have lost a lot more than half his stature. As Israel's tutor on the rights of nations he will be a spent force.

Kuwait is a curious sort of nation.

Congress backing firesafe cigarettes

WASHINGTON — The tobacco industry could develop a "firesafe" cigarette, but it won't. Now, in a rare defeat for the tobacco lobby in Congress, the industry will be forced to come up with a cigarette that is less likely to start a fire when it is dropped.

The impetus for the new cigarette came from a member of congress who has refused to take campaign money from the tobacco lobby, and is finally in a position to call in favors from those who do. Rep. Joseph Moakley, D-Mass., has tried since 1979 to get Congress to mandate firesafe cigarettes. In 1979, a fire caused by a cigarette killed an entire family in Moakley's district. He figured those deaths, and the 1,500 deaths and 7,000 injuries caused every year by cigarette fires in the United States, could be avoided, along with the $400 million in annual property damage.

The notion of a firesafe cigarette was debated for several years, but Moakley didn't have the clout in Congress to get past the interests of the Tobacco Institute, a lobbying organization that, in the last congressional election, handed out $194,557 in campaign contributions.

Finally in 1984, Congress agreed to at least study the idea of a cigarette that was less likely to ignite bedding, furniture and rugs. It is possible through changes in the paper, packing and dimensions of cigarettes to make them safer. A Technical Study Group created by Congress took three years to conclude that, yes indeed, such a cigarette was technically possible. But the committee couldn't decide whether the idea was commercially feasible.

The Tobacco Institute, which represents most of the major American tobacco producers, still had an out. As long as the government had not declared the product to be commercially feasible, the industry had a powerful excuse not to tinker with its product.

But the Tobacco Institute hadn't counted on Moakley, who has picked up some power of his own since he began his crusade in 1979. Moakley is now chairman of the House Rules Committee, and last month he used that position to call in favors from fellow members of Congress who need his cooperation on other matters.

Moakley pulled some strings and rushed through Congress a new law on firesafe cigarettes that will make them necessary without making them mandatory. Moakley's bill orders the Consumer Product Safety Commission to set federal testing procedures for firesafe cigarettes.

Tobacco companies wouldn't be required to put their cigarettes to the test. But sources in the industry and in Congress told our associate Tim Warner that the effect will be the same as a mandatory standard. Once Congress sets up a testing mechanism, even a voluntary one, tobacco companies are at greater risk in lawsuits resulting from fires if it can be proved that they didn't do everything possible to make the cigarette safer. And Congress will be more inclined in the future to require firesafe cigarettes once the test is available. Moakley had tried a tougher bill — a federal standard for firesafe cigarettes within one year and mandatory compliance after that. But Moakley was only using that to scare the tobacco industry into a compromise — development of tests within three years and a determination by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, not the tobacco industry, of whether the firesafe cigarette is commercially feasible.

Moakley's success at convincing his fellow members of Congress indicates that the tobacco industry may be losing some of its bought-and-paid-for clout on Capitol Hill.

Fire caused by a cigarette killed an entire family.

Cats or dogs spayed or neutered are behind by six to eight months, Kaiser said. Many of the veterinarians who are billed for $25 by the county for each neutered animal for the rebate program have not been billed in months.

"At least count, we have about $10,000 in back billing to one vet," said Frank Kirk, county emergency medical services manager and acting animal control official. "The total amount outstanding could run to $20,000."

"We literally have boxes of bills that have to be sent out," Kaiser said. "One vet owes us 125 or 126 rebates."

Kirk said vets have not been billed since last September, although they are supposed to be billed monthly. People who sought rebates in December are now being processed, he said. Kirk said he and Kaiser are considering charging vets license fees "up front" to avoid delays in rebates.

Kirk said he also found division record-keeping "a mess."

"There were no files," Kirk said. "Records were stuffed in boxes. Some of them were stacked vertically in file cabinets, not in file folders at all."

Kirk was appointed acting official by Kaiser in May after previous animal control official Ronald Lefebvre resigned amid criticism from Kaiser he failed to organize and effectively manage the division.

Kaiser said a total of six employees will have left the division by the end of this month in time since he took responsibility for the division in December 1979.

The problems outlined by Kaiser and Kirk are not new to the Seminole County Animal Control Division. During an investigation of McIntosh and the division in 1988, the rebate program was several months behind. Checks from vets were found in drawers unprocessed and records were found in disarray.

McIntosh resigned in September 1988 facing possible firing by former County Manager Ken Hooper.

"It doesn't change," said Diane Albers, chairman of the county Animal Control Board. "Things haven't progressed at all in the last year. Kirk, I agree, is truly trying to put something together there and he is making some changes. But he is a layman who doesn't know anything about running an animal control operation."

Kaiser said improvements have been made to the service provided to the public. He said animal control officers (ACOs) now respond to every complaint made every day, he said under Lefebvre, as many as 15 calls from one day would not receive a response until the following day.

Kaiser said previously, ACOs would complete up to two hours of paperwork each morning before leaving the office. All ACOs would take their lunch at noon and were required to return to the shelter with their animals before breaking for the hour lunchtime. As a result, ACOs might be on the road for a maximum of four hours each day.

By streamlining paperwork and reporting, and shifting lunch schedules, all calls can receive a response each day, Kirk said. Kirk said more calls are receiving responses as a result, but a better atmosphere has contributed to the amount of work everyone is accomplishing.

"We had one day where we responded to 78 calls," Kirk said. "I told everybody 'Great, we did 78 calls. Good job' and put it up on the chalk board. I didn't think much about it, but everybody around there felt real good about it. Little things like that are making a difference."

Albers said she was concerned ACOs were not receiving proper training and some animals may not be receiving immediate vet care. Kirk said he has begun weekly hour-long training for all employees.

Kirk said most injured animals are taken to the nearest vet for care and then are either left at the vet's office or taken back to the shelter for recuperation. He said two dogs, one injured by a car and another one bitten by a snake, were not taken immediately to a vet since he became acting official in May.

In the case of an injured dog, Kirk said no vet was available locally, so the animal was given fluids intravenously until a vet saw it the next day. The dog later recovered and was adopted.

In the case of the snake-bitten dog, Kirk said he conferred with a vet over the telephone and was told to monitor the animal's progress. After three days at the shelter, the dog recovered, Kirk said.

"No animals have been treated inhumanely since we've been in there," Kaiser said.

now attributes the drug-testing issue as a contributing factor to his loss to Fess.

Morris returned Desmond's volley this last week with a proposition: "I'll take the test if Fess's consultant Eoghan Kelley and Tom Binford also take drug tests."

When asked if there were any Desmond advisors he would seek to take the test, Morris responded, "I don't acknowledge Desmond."

Fess denies Kelley, former husband to county commissioner Jennifer Kelley, and political activist Tom Binford are campaign advisors.

"I went to both of them before I announced and told them I was thinking about running," Fess said. "They told I shouldn't and they said 'We'll see.' They don't have anything to do with my campaign."

Wright said the Fess campaign bought a campaign list from Kelley.

Kelley, primarily a behind the scenes activist as is Binford, was fined $3,000 in March for illegal campaign work for his ex-wife.

Remembering the Lake Mary mayor's race, Morris said, "Where is it going to stop? First the candidates take drug tests and now their advisors. (Lake Mary commissioner) Tom Mahoney predicted this two years ago and said then that voters would be required to give samples before the voting booth."

Hagle was more conciliatory. "I didn't think it was that important," Hagle said. "I'll be happy to, but I think Grant McEwan ought to take the test as long as everyone else is."

McEwan is a partner in a Desmond enterprise and is Geri McEwan's husband.

Bealdea, Morris said, he had already taken a complete blood test for his insurance company two months before, a screening that included a search for more than 100 illegal drugs — and he came up clean. Morris's rebuttal was never publicized and he been jailed in connection with the beating-robberies, and charges. Harriett said, are pending in the Carver murder. "In our opinion the case is solved." No other similar incidents have occurred since Smith's investigation led to an arrest in October 1989, Harriett said.

Altamonte Springs patrol officer Chris Scott, 29, who has been on the force eight years, was recognized for pulling a knife from the abdomen of a suicidal man. Scott, the first officer to arrive at the man's house in February saw the man plunge a knife into himself. Scott disarmed him and called for rescue workers. The man was saved. Police spokesman Jeff Hawkins said Scott was also given his department's medal of valor for his actions.

Longwood police honored investigator Steven Falk for his work in crime prevention. Casselberry police officer William F. McNeil was recognized for his body of work, as was Sgt. Charles Fagan III, a Winter Springs police officer. Other local police agencies had no nominees this year.

The officers were honored during a ceremony in Maitland last week.

Oil shocks at bad time for Florida

From staff and wire reports

ORLANDO — Higher energy prices caused by tensions in the Middle East could amount to an additional brake on an already slowing Florida economy, according to economists and industry figures.

The construction industry was already lagging because of a credit squeeze, state and local taxes have been increasing and now higher gasoline prices may force cancellations of Florida vacations, the experts said.

"Whether or not we have a recession is hard to say, but there is no reason to panic," said Martin Kessler, president of Econometrics Corp. in Winter Park, a private economics firm.

Still, he said, "the timing of this is unfortunate. Builders are going bankrupt."

As of this morning, gasoline prices at selected stations in the Sanford-Lake Mary area had stabilized at between $1.09-$1.12 per gallon for self-serve, unleaded gas. Last week, prices had increased an average 8.6 cents a gallon following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, according to the American Automobile Association of Florida.

A 15-cents per gallon hike would represent about $900 million in added fuel costs to motorists in Florida, who buy about 6 billion gallons of gas per year.

The Legislature recently increased fuel taxes an average 5 cents per gallon statewide, but at least that money stays in Florida. Higher fuel prices send money overseas, experts said.

The tourism industry, Florida's largest, has already been crimped by an economic slowdown in the Northeast and Midwest. Higher gas prices might add only as much as $60 to a family vacation, yet paired with deeper recession fears, might persuade some vacationers to stay at home.

"You don't have to take that trip to Florida, but you've got to pay a mortgage and you've got to clothe your family," said David Scott, marketing director for the 800-room Delta Orlando Resort.

Hoteliers said it will take several weeks to gauge the effects of the current oil crisis, but Disney World spokesman Dave Herbst notes attendance at the Magic Kingdom was hurt by the oil crunch in the mid-1970s.

"If this is just a temporary peak in prices, and then it drops back, we're fine," said Abe Frisman, director of the Dick Pope Sr. Institute of Tourism Studies at the University of Central Florida. "But if it's a long-term problem then we are in serious trouble."

Analysts said motels might offer reduced rates this fall, beyond the usual end-of-summer discounts, to spur business. But that might cause problems for pricier hotels, such as the new Walt Disney World Dolphin, conceded Bob Mervine, a spokesman for that hotel.

Scott said worker layoffs might be necessary eventually.

Retailers are also cringing. "If you have to pay a substantial increase for gasoline and for heating oil, it is like a tax that pulls money right out of your pocket that you would have otherwise been free to spend (on merchandise)," said Kurt Barnard, a New York analyst.

Meanwhile, higher fuel prices have arrived just as farmers were stockpiling gasoline and diesel fuel for next season's harvest, said Pat Cockrell of the Florida Farm Bureau.

Additional increases are possible for petroleum-based agriculture chemicals and for shipping the $5-billion crop to markets.

"Even though the farmer will receive more for his product, he's not going to be any better off, and possibly will be worse off, than under stable energy costs," said Cockrell.

"All we see is a lose-lose situation."

Taylor said Sunday he watched as the exhausted troops piled onto trucks at the airport and were driven into the wasteland, where, he was told, they would be housed in bunkers built as shelter from the scaring sun.

"They loaded onto trucks and they just disappeared in the horizon," Taylor said in a telephone interview from his home outside Washington, D.C. "They went off into the desert."

"They were stressing they were afraid of the chemicals," Taylor said of the soldiers.

Abdul Amir al-Anbari, the Iraqi ambassador to the United Nations, said on the ABC News program "This Week with David Brinkley" that all foreigners were being detained for "quite understandable" reasons with his country on a war footing.

"We are in a state of emergency," he said, "and we have to make sure that everyone is not only safe, but to know what was he doing there. But eventually they will be all released."

That was only the latest in a series of ambiguous signals from the Iraqi government

Kuwait's legitimate government," Fitzwater said.

Careful to avoid the provocative term "blockade," the White House also announced that the United States, acting on a request from Kuwait's exiled leader, "will do whatever is necessary" to intercept shipments of oil and other vital goods in and out of Iraq.

Speaking to reporters in Maine, where he is overseeing the Persian Gulf conflict during a long-scheduled vacation, Bush asserted that the U.N. Charter "gives us broad authority, working in conjunction with others, to do whatever is necessary to see that no oil gets out."

The expanded mission for U.S. forces in the region came as the White House anxiously awaited further word on the fate of Americans trapped in Kuwait and Iraq.

Bush telephoned Syrian President Hafez Assad to thank him for supporting the international condemnation of Iraq's aggression as the lead elements of a multinational Arab force joined U.S. and other troops in Saudi Arabia to deter a possible Iraqi attack.

Seeking Iraq's total economic isolation, Bush seized on the Kuwaiti request, invoking Article 51 of the U.N. Charter, to claim what Secretary of State James Baker described as "a legal basis for stopping the export of oil and that sort of thing."

"We're going to take measures that are necessary and proportionate in order to enforce the U.N. sanctions now that we have a request," Baker said, hopeful that other countries would commit forces of their own to the operation.

In Baghdad, Saddam exhorted Iraqis to prepare for economic hardship and the prospect of war.

The U.S. move to quarantine Iraq was no surprise. For days, Bush and his advisors have been laying the groundwork Florida over the last several years. The calls had escalated to the point of the suspect ordering meetings with some victims, photographing them and robbing or extorting money from them.

Praet's award-winning work also includes making a swift arrest of a man accused in July of raping a 5-year-old girl and photographing the ordeal. Praet has been an investigator for more than five of his seven years with the department. Seven of the eight homicides he has investigated have been cleared by arrest. Praet has also investigated 161 cases of child sexual abuse and cleared 152 of those cases with arrests.

"It's very flattering," Praet said of his recognition.

Sanford's 37-year-old Officer James "Pat" Smith, is a five-year veteran of the force. Police Chief Steven Harriett said, in solving the robbery-beating cases with Smith as lead investigator, police believe they have identified a suspect in the murder of Mildred Carver, an elderly Sanford city worker killed in her Lakeview Avenue house last summer. Carver was slain under circumstances similar to the beating-robbery cases. A man has been jailed in connection with the beating-robberies, and charges. Harriett said, are pending in the Carver murder. "In our opinion the case is solved." No other similar incidents have occurred since Smith's investigation led to an arrest in October 1989, Harriett said.

Altamonte Springs patrol officer Chris Scott, 29, who has been on the force eight years, was recognized for pulling a knife from the abdomen of a suicidal man. Scott, the first officer to arrive at the man's house in February saw the man plunge a knife into himself. Scott disarmed him and called for rescue workers. The man was saved. Police spokesman Jeff Hawkins said Scott was also given his department's medal of valor for his actions.

Longwood police honored investigator Steven Falk for his work in crime prevention. Casselberry police officer William F. McNeil was recognized for his body of work, as was Sgt. Charles Fagan III, a Winter Springs police officer. Other local police agencies had no nominees this year.

The officers were honored during a ceremony in Maitland last week.

IN BRIEF

'AAG' entry deadline today

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department will conduct the second Sanford Almost Anything Goes competition this Saturday, Aug. 18, at Fort Mellon Park.

The event is based on the old television show of the same name and will consist of teams competing in fun Olympic-style events.

The first of the 10 scheduled events is set to start at 9 a.m. Each team will have eight members — four male, four female — with one member designated as the team captain.

It is recommended that all members of each team be dressed alike to identify their teams. Company teams are encouraged to enter.

Trophies will be awarded to the individuals of the first, second and third-place teams. Certificates of participation will be presented to all others.

Entry fee is $25 per team. All entries must be postmarked or delivered to the Recreation Office on the first floor of City Hall by today. Due to a ceiling on the number of teams that can be accommodated, those entries postmarked or received earliest will be considered first.

For more information, contact Jim Adams at 330-5697 during normal working hours.

Miami investors after franchise

MIAMI — A group of entrepreneurs led by investment banker J. Morton Davis announced Sunday they are preparing an application to bring a National League expansion baseball franchise to south Florida.

Davis, 61, is principal owner and chairman of the board of D.H. Blair & Co., a Wall Street investment firm.

Davis and his group join at least two others who have expressed interest in bringing baseball to Miami.

A group led by Wayne Hutzenga, owner of Blockbuster Videos and part owner of the Miami Dolphins have formed a campaign for an expansion ball club and another group of south Floridians has offered $135 million to buy the Montreal Expos with the hope of relocating the franchise to a baseball stadium in west Dade County.

Game called after delay of 7:23

CHICAGO — The game between the Chicago White Sox and Texas Rangers Sunday was postponed after a 7 hour and 23 minute wait, the longest rain delay in baseball history and the most aggravating.

The two teams will play a doubleheader Friday in Texas, despite the White Sox objections.

"It seems kind of stupid, waiting all that time," said Chicago reliever Bobby Thigpen, a graduate of Seminole Community College.

And what did he do during the delay? "Go crazy," Thigpen said.

Invitational uninviting

LBHS's Berzovich county's top placer

From staff reports

HOWEY-IN-THE-HILLS — It was not the best of tournaments for Seminole County golfers.

In the Florida Junior Invitational at Mission Inn Country Club, tight fairways, tough greens and even tougher competition took its toll on the seven participants from Seminole Athletic Conference schools.

Leading the Seminole County contingency was Lake Brantley High School sophomore Mike Berzovich, who shot 81-78-80 — 237 to place 23rd in the 80-man field.

John Toth of Lyman tied Berzovich for 23rd and was the runner-up in the second flight after a final round 77. Berzovich and Toth finished second and fourth, respectively, earlier in the week at the Junior Golf Association of Central Florida two-day championships.

"I have never seen such tough greens in my life," said Toth, who has won five Junior tournaments this summer. "You could spin the ball on them but it was tough to tell how much your putt was going to break."

Chris Couch of North Lauderdale took the three-day tournament, posting 71-72-75 — 218, to win by five shots over Jason Downing of Pembroke Pines. Couch, 18, played in the PGA's Honda Classic last year and might have broken the tournament record of two-under-par 214 if not for a triple bogey on the 82nd hole.

Lake Howell High School's Sean Ashby looked to challenge Couch after an opening round 73 but slipped to an 85 in the second round and finished 25th with a 240. In the process, he finished third in the second flight.

Also finishing at 240 was Brian Opal of Lake Brantley, who suffered through an 83 in the final round after a 77-80 start.

Oviedo High School graduate Robbie Stock rallied for a last round 79 and a 242 total to finish third in the third flight and 27th overall. He missed six putts from within four feet in the second round, when he shot an 81.

Stock's former high school teammate, Tommy Minton, won the fourth flight with a final round of 81 and a 247 total, five ahead of his nearest competitor, Miami's Tony Cesarano.

Brian Leach of Sanford blazed his way to a second round 76 and finished at 249 while Jason Opal, the tournament's youngest competitor, posted rounds of 89-83-89 for a 276 total. Leach turned 14 Saturday.

Grady takes PGA trophy down under

United Press International

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — The PGA trophy headed Down Under Sunday in the hands of a likeable fellow who serves as yet another symbol of the worldwide assault on what were once American golfing strongholds.

In a tense duel between two men trying to elevate their golfing careers to a new level, Australian Wayne Grady withstood the pressures brought on by the harrowing hazards of Shoal Creek.

Fred Couples did not. "This was a day," said Couples, "when I really felt I let myself down."

Four straight bogeys by Couples beginning at the par-3 13th handed the championship to Grady, who had played around the world in relative obscurity for a decade before he emerged as the near winner of last year's British Open.

"If I don't seem too excited, believe me I am," said Grady, who won by three shots thanks to the basic ability of avoiding the thick rough which drew waves of protests from this week's participants.

"This is the longest day of my life — absolutely. I lost the lead early on the back nine to Freddie and I started having bad thoughts."

"I told myself to keep playing safe because this course can jump up and grab you. And then Freddie helped me out."

In winning the PGA, Grady made 1990 the worst year in the history of the four major championship tournaments for American golfers.

Since the inception of the Masters in 1934, except during World War II when the major championships were not held, American players

Lake Howell High School graduate Dave Martinez, now an outfielder with the Montreal Expos, drove in five runs with two home runs and a single Sunday to help lead the Expos past the Philadelphia Phillies.

Martinez has five RBI in Expo victory

United Press International

MONTREAL — Dave Martinez should be five times as happy.

Martinez, a graduate of Lake Howell High School, drove in five runs with a pair of two-run homers and a single Sunday afternoon, leading the Montreal Expos to a 6-3 win over the Philadelphia Phillies and a three-game sweep of the weekend series.

"That was my best game in the majors," Martinez said. "I am happy on any day when I can knock in just one run."

Rookie Chris Nabholz, who was called up from Triple-A Indianapolis before the game, got his first major league decision, sending the Phillies to their fifth straight defeat.

Jose DeJesus, 3-4 was greeted roughly by the Expos in the first inning after he gave Delino DeShields a lead off walk. Martinez followed by slamming his 10th home run over the right field fence to make the score 2-0.

"I am starting to hit with more power and I give the credit to Hal McRae (the Expos' batting instructor)," said Martinez. "He has worked very hard with me."

In the third, DeJesus walked DeShields again and Martinez hit his second home run and 11th of the season in almost the same spot where he had homered in the first. It was the third two-home run game of his career.

"I am happy to see Dave Martinez get that big game," said Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers.

For 13-year-olds, Oviedo Juniors were impressive

Do you remember when you were 13?

For many of us, that's an age so far gone, it's painful to try to remember it. Not only has it been 13 years or more since we've been 13, 20-20 hindsight brings into focus some of the deeds done at the age that, at the time, seemed like pretty good ideas.

On Thursday night, a group of 13-year-old boys from Oviedo came that close to the Junior League World Series being played this week in Taylor, Mich. It was their second bid to participate in a once-in-a-lifetime event.

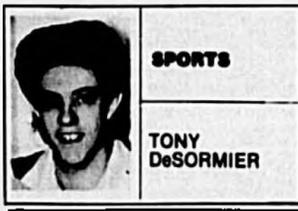

Of course, they may get a third and a fourth shot at the once-in-a-lifetime experience.

This is a group of boys — Todd Bellhorn, Mike Bergman, Aaron Church, Byron Coffie, Richte DiTore, Mike Duncan, Jason Fore, Brian King, Nelson Lecour, Brian McMahon, Mark Metcalf, Phillip Moss, Scott Root and Marvin Wilson — of which greatness is expected. Not hoped, expected.

And with good reason. Last year, as 12-year-olds, most of this group was on the Oviedo Little League All-Star team that advanced to the state tournament. While it was hoped that team would get to the World Series, they were unceremoniously dumped in two games.

This year, they whipped through the state tournament in three straight games. Except for being taken to extra innings by Vero Beach in the second game, Oviedo was unchallenged the rest of the way.

Then, after winning their first game in the Southern Region, the Oviedo Juniors played their two worst games of the All-Star season on the same night.

SPORTS

TONY DeSORMIER

For the family, friends and fans who braved lousy weather and horrendous rush hour traffic to watch the Oviedo All-Stars play at Dr. Phillips/Windermere Little League last week, the ending was painfully anticlimactic.

During the first month of the All-Star season, they had been nearly unbeatable. The only blemish was a loss to the Altamonte Springs Americans during the District 14 tournament in a game where Oviedo pitcher DiTore threw a one-hitter.

But against two teams that everyone pretty much agreed wasn't as strong as the Altamonte Americans or Vero Beach, for that matter, Oviedo couldn't get a hit when it needed one, couldn't make a play when it had to or couldn't get a pitch across the plate when it was important.

Why? Because they're only 13.

Next year, when they're 14, most of these boys will join with this year's 14-year-olds from the Oviedo Senior League (14 and 15) All-Stars, who fell just short of advancing to their state tournament. In two years, when they're 15, there's a very good chance that this group will form the core of the Senior All-Stars.

Mike Duncan, who hit two home runs during the All-Star season, and the rest of the Oviedo Juniors should continue their diamond success next year as 14-year-olds with the Oviedo Senior League All-Stars.

And if they continue the progression they started last year (advancing to the state tournament when they're 12, going to the Southern Region as 13's), then a World Series title is a legitimate possibility.

Luckily, the Senior League All-Star World Series is played at Osceola Stadium in Kissimmee.

Fire ants major problem in Florida

Mound of aggressive stingers must be treated to kill queen

Fire ants are a real problem in Central Florida. Their sting is painful and can result in pustules that may take days to heal. Some people have an allergic reaction to the sting that can be quite severe.

The fire ant is a small aggressive ant that builds a rounded nest or mound that can be as large as 2 or 3 feet across. Fire ant colonies are made up of a queen ant, winged males and females (virgin females), workers, and brood eggs, larvae and pupae.

In the late spring and summer, although swarming may occur at any time of year, the ants mate during the flight and the females land to begin a new colony. Most females fly or are blown less than a mile from the nest, but some travel as far as 12 miles or more from the nest. The nests are normally prevalent in open, sunny areas. Fire ants mound in yards, playgrounds and recreation areas and can be a real hazard to children and pets.

Fire ant control can be achieved by individual mound treatment. You need to kill the queen or you will not get control. If the queen isn't controlled, she will start a colony somewhere else. This is why it seems that the methods you try didn't work. In reality what happened is that you didn't kill the queen. Now, colonies are being found with multiple queens which makes control even more difficult.

There are several methods to control fire ants in an individual mound. First, you can drench the individual mounds with an insecticide like Dursban or Diazinon. Dilute the insecticide concentrates in water in a sprinkling can or bucket according to label directions and pour one gallon of liquid on the mound. Be sure to thoroughly wet the mound and the surrounding area. Best results are achieved if the weather is cool or after a rainfall. Check the mound in seven days and repeat if necessary.

You can also pour boiling water in the mound if you are not interested in using an insecticide. Heat one gallon of water to the boiling point and apply the hot water directly to the mound and surrounding areas. This method also works better in cool days after 10:00 a.m. when the sun is shining. Boiling water can be dangerous since it can burn if spilled on the skin so extreme caution should be used to prevent burns during application.

Since neither of the above methods guarantees queen ant kill, probably the best method is to use Amdro bait where the insecticide is inside a food. Amdro is simple to use as you apply five tablespoons of it per mound. Distribute the bait uniformly a few feet around the mound. Remember that the bait contains an insecticide so do not contaminate kitchen utensils during application or storage.

The bait is picked up by the worker ants and fed directly to the queen thus killing her.

Amdro is slow acting though and requires 2 to 4 weeks to kill the queen. Live worker ants may be found in the mounds for 4 to 6 months, even though the queen is dead. Repeat the treatment in four months if the ants are still a nuisance.

Amdro bait however must be used correctly. Never pour more than the 5 recommended tablespoons and always scatter it instead of dumping it all in one spot. Bait treatments should be made when soil surface temperatures are above 60 degrees F or after a rainfall. Avoid applications during the heat of the day when soil temperatures are above 80 degrees F.

Amdro has been tested by the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services with results of 85% to 90% of mounds controlled. Thus, they have set up a program where Amdro is sold throughout Florida for reduced prices. The sale in Seminole County will be Tuesday, August 21, from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. in the Agricultural Center parking lot. The Agriculture Center is located at 250 W. County Home Road across from Flea World off 17-92. THIS IS A ONE DAY SALE ONLY!! One pound of Amdro will cost $5.25 pounds will cost $100 and 25 pounds of Logic will cost $130.

For more information about fire ants, call me for a free publication. Use of brand names of insecticides is for educational purposes only and not meant as endorsement of any product.

All Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service programs are open to all regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

Tips for mothers-in-law help keep peace

DEAR READERS: I recently published 10 tips on how to get along with your husband's mother — submitted by a very wise mother-in-law. Then in the interest of evenhandedness, I asked for letters from daughters-in-law offering suggestions to their mothers-in-law on how to get along with your son's wife.

- Did I get letters? Today's column will be a compilation of the best tips on how to get along with your daughter-in-law.
1. When you call to talk with your son and your daughter-in-law answers the phone, don't say, "Is John there?" Spend a few minutes asking how she is and what's new. And if they live out of town, when you write a letter, always address it to both your son and his wife.
 2. If your son has been previously married, don't bring up his past marriage. If he's had girlfriends in his past, don't mention them either. If your daughter-in-law has been previously married and has children by that marriage, accept these grandchildren as your own. Don't play favorites.
 3. Never offer advice unless it's asked for. And never criticize your daughter-in-law's housekeeping, cooking, children, friends or new hairdo. And don't try to rearrange her furniture.

ADVICE

4. Ask for — and display — pictures that include her and her children. Every time she looks at them, she will feel wonderful.

5. Never say, "John looks thin, or pale, or tired." His wife will take it as a personal insult.

6. If your daughter-in-law has given you a gift, show your appreciation by wearing it — or displaying it — proudly.

7. Never repeat family gossip. And try not to listen to any.

8. Don't allow your son or his wife — in the heat of anger — to tell you something unkind about the other. They will eventually kiss and make up, and you will be left holding their dirty laundry.

9. Don't drop hints about how much you would like to have grandchildren. Some couples aren't ready, some couples may have been trying for a long time without success, and some couples have decided that they don't want any — which is strictly their business.

10. And one cardinal rule should always be observed. Regardless of how close you live to each other, never drop in unexpectedly. A telephone call from the corner drugstore is all it takes.

11. If perchance she has hurt your feelings, take it up with her. Do not let it fester, and don't complain to your son.

12. Also — don't monopolize holidays. Remember that your daughter-in-law has parents, siblings and friends that she might like to spend time with on holidays. Some couples may even like to spend an occasional holiday by themselves.

13. Let your son go. Recognize and respect him for the adult he is. Stop calling him Skippy, Sonny, Junior or any other juvenile nickname that he has long outgrown.

14. Also, if you have other daughters-in-law — or daughters of your own — treat them all equally. And that goes for their children, too.

DEAR ABBY: Let me tell you about my mother-in-law. There is never a time when she would stop by and not be welcome. My house could be a mess, my son dirty, my hair in rollers and my fridge empty. My mother-in-law (whose house is always immaculate) could come in, have a cup of instant coffee and visit, and never make me feel the least bit guilty. I know she loves me because she knows that her son is very happily married, and that's the most important thing in the world to her. And she never lets me forget it.

A LOVING DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW: I know the joy of having a wonderful mother-in-law. I've had one for 51 years. (God bless you, Rosie!)

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my mother-in-law. She is a widow and visits us at least twice a year. We usually visit her once during the summer. She lives four or five states away. Every time she comes to visit, she stays a month and a half to two months.

I think this is too long. My limit is about three weeks for any company — including my own parents. I have tried to let her know she is welcome to come for two to three weeks, but each time she comes, she keeps extending her visit and changing her plane ticket. She is very sensitive but domineering, and my husband won't say anything to her, although he feels the same as I do about the length of her visits.

How can I tell her without hurting her feelings? We have a new baby, and it's very disruptive to have company that long. Am I being unreasonable?

TIRED OF COMPANY

DEAR TIRED: Not in my book, but you will need the cooperation of your husband to resolve this problem. Together, you must tell his mother exactly what you have told me. Don't delay. The longer you put it off, the more difficult it will be.

Avoid high fiber for diverticulosis

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have diverticular disease. I constantly suffer from gas pains and have frequent eliminations with small stools. Is there any remedy or encouragement you can provide?

decubiti) are areas of tissue breakdown that occur in patients who are confined to bed. The constant pressure caused by lying on a part of the body — usually the lower back and buttocks — eventually may cause the skin and underlying tissues to ulcerate. This leads to

DEAR READER: Diverticulosis, small saccular outpouchings in the wall of the bowel, is common in people over the age of 50. Ordinarily, diverticula do not cause serious symptoms unless they bleed or become inflamed. Nonetheless, some patients with extensive diverticulosis experience recurring abdominal discomfort, bloating, gas and bowel difficulties, which, although harmless, may be very annoying.

In such cases, a change in diet may help relieve symptoms. Chew your food thoroughly. Avoid a high-fiber diet (especially gas-producing vegetables in the cabbage family) and try Metamucil, a stool-bulking agent that may improve evacuation by stimulating normal intestinal contractions.

If these simple suggestions are ineffective, see a gastroenterologist. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Diverticular Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A friend will always be bedridden, and she cannot get any relief from her doctor for bedsores. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: In my experience, you'll get better advice from nurses than from doctors about bedsores, because nurses are more likely to be involved with the day-to-day care of this affliction.

chronic sores that become infected. (C)1990 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Declarer based his play for six no-trump on his ability to win a psychological battle with East. Too bad. Simple arithmetic would have served him better. When the king of diamonds was led, declarer ducked. West continued with a second diamond. East discarding a low club. Declarer won and played dummy's A-Q of spades, on which East played the seven and the three-spot. When declarer played a third spade from dummy and East followed with the nine, the problem was whether to play East for an original holding of four to the jack. Finally declarer decided that East was trying to give the impression of holding four cards in the suit when in fact West held the jack. So South went up with the king of spades. When West showed out, declarer had only 11 tricks and had to concede the last trick to East's spade jack. Declarer flunked an elementary test of declarer play. When you have all the tricks but one, play out all the side-suits before making your decision in the key suit. Today's South would then have certain knowledge of what to do. Four rounds of hearts would tell declarer that West held four hearts to begin with. Three rounds of clubs would show that West held only two. And West was already known to have had five diamonds originally. That leaves room for only two spades. So declarer could play dummy's A-Q of spades and, on the third round, finesse against East's jack with absolute certainty.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
August 14, 1990
There is a possibility you might develop some type of enterprise in the year ahead that could provide added income. It will be something you'll be able to do in conjunction with your present mode of earning.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be a bit of spendthrift today and it won't be due to spending large amounts of monies, but it might be due to squandering funds on lots of little insignificant purchases. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your greatest personal gratification today will come from situations where you use your mental prowess and resourcefulness to circumvent obstacles.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your curiosity could be rather intense today and this might make companions feel uncomfortable, especially if you question them about issue they don't want to discuss.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You should be rather comfortable in commercial situations today, because if you utilize your attributes properly it will take an exceptionally sharp adversary to better you in a deal.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Independent efforts should produce satisfactory results for you today, but you will be even more effective in partnership arrangements. If you have to make a choice, choose the latter.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Occasionally we need some form of material motivation to get us moving, but today the motor force that will drive you will be fueled by pride in your work.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you could be well organized and methodical, but only up to a certain point. After that you might leave things you should be taking care of up to chance.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be rather popular with friends and relatives today and some may even gravitate to your place uninvited. Make the drop-ins feel welcomed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There isn't much that's likely to escape your attention today, because you'll be both curious and extremely observant. When you learn something it will be difficult to keep to yourself.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your best sources for personal gains today are likely to be channels with which you are already familiar. Focus on these areas instead of looking for a harvest in fields you haven't sown.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The busier you are today, the better you are likely to function. Don't be afraid to take on several assignments simultaneously, even if they're unrelated to one another.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are harboring some secret ambitions today, it's best to continue to keep them to yourself. Taking could tip off your competition regarding your intentions.
