'Cop Killer' Penalty Nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Convicted "cop killers" cannot be condemned to death automatically by states trying to give police officers an extra layer of legal protection, the Supreme Court says. A sympathetic but firm court said in a 5-4 decision Monday that such mandatory death sentence laws are unconstitutionally "cruel and unusual punishment."

Singer Faces Pot Sentence

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - Chad Mitchell of the musical trio that carries his name has surrendered to federal officers and begun serving a five-year prison term for marijuana possession

The 38-year-old entertainer was arrested in 1973 by federal drug agents who said they found 400 pounds of marijuana in his pickup truck at a motel. He was charged with possession with intent to sell.

U.S. District Court Judge Adrian Spears, who had convicted Mitchell after a non-jury trial, sentenced him. Mitchell's attorneys are challenging the sentence, claiming the judge considered marijuana a narcotic. The attorneys say medical authorities no longer consider it a narcotic.

Both Sides Predict Victory In Gay Rights Referendum

MIAMI (AP) - With a bitter and increasingly bizarre campaign over, both sides predicted narrow victory in today's referendum on whether to keep the Dade County law that forbids discrimination against homosexuals in housing and jobs.

Both sides added that they would appeal an adverse decision to the U.S. Supreme Court and would continue to wage their partisan battles on a national front.

Gay rights supporters planned to celebrate tonight at the posh Dupont Plaza Hotel. The Save Our Children group, which opposes the law, will gather at the Miami Beach Holiday Inn - which overlooks a popular gay beach. Election officials predicted that 30 to 35 per cent of the county's 700,000 voters would turn out

Capitol Ruling A Year Away?

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - Florida's old Capitol could sit idle for a year or more while legislators decide whether to preserve part of it or smash the entire building to dust.

Officials said Monday there are no plans to use the building once Gov. Reubin Askew, Cabinet members and legislators move their offices into the $43 million new Capitol.

"I think it's unavoidable that the building's going to be vacant for about a year," said House Speaker Donald Tucker, D-Tallahassee.

He said there is no point in occupying the building temporarily because it would have to be vacated if and when renovation begins.

Three ERA Proposals Filed

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - A year before they even can be considered, three proposals supporting the proposed Equal Rights Amendment have been filed for the 1978 legislature.

Rep. Elaine Gordon, DMiami, said Monday that she prefiled the three proposals before the 1977 legislative session ended last Friday. She vowed to carry the women's rights fight to the Constitution Revision Commission this summer.

"I just wanted them filed first for next session," said Rep. Gordon, a prime supporter of the controversial amendment barring sex discrimination.

Special Session Length Hit

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - On the eve of the first special session since 1974, many lawmakers were openly predicting that the seven days given them by Gov. Reubin Askew to write up a budget would not be enough.

House Speaker Don Tucker and Senate Appropriations Chairman Phil Lewis both said Monday they could foresee no quick settlement of the dispute.

The best guess was at least two weeks, at a cost of $20,000 a day, for the House and Senate to finally get together on a state budget and the taxes to support it during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Cabinet Weighs Migrant Aid

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - Gov. Reubin Askew and the Cabinet were expected today to endorse Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington's bid for a $16.7-million federal grant to improve the education of migrant children.

Also pending at the weekly Cabinet meeting was a proposal for strict controls on discharges from phosphate industries in Central Florida. Final action on that proposal was not expected until late in the day. Turlington said the proposed migrant grant would help about 25,000 children in 30 schools districts.

The city manager said moving to improve city workers' pay this summer would "require too many adjustments to do it right now." The city commission has voted to authorize Knowles to use an increase of 6.4 per cent to develop a budget proposal on city employes' salaries to keep up with the cost-of-living in creases since last year.

"It would be nice to do it all at once, but I don't think you have the money to do it," said Knowles, who presented the commissioners with a report prepared by Knowles' assistant Allen Bush showing that San-ford's pay scale is lower than Flores In W. Springs that of other Central Florida cities.

The Right Of Redress

The right to petition the government for a redress of grievances is one of the cherished rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States of America.

This right includes the challenging of governmental votes and actions. But, unfortunately, it is rarely exercised. Too many of our neighbors, instead, adopt the attitude of "what the heck. . . you can't win. . . you can't fight city hall. . .'

Two groups in recent days in Seminole County, however, have helped dampen that theory. They have exercised their redress rights as provided in the First Amendment of the Constitution.

In Sanford, we have a group of residents opposed to plans for a landfill at SR-46A and Oregon Avenue near the Mayfair Country Club. These residents decided to do more than talk of their opposition. They organized themselves into the 46-A Environmental Protection Association. Their purpose: to let their voices be heard and, ultimately and hopefully, to defeat the landfill proposal.

Last week the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission voted to recommend the city not rezone the 23 acres earmarked for the landfill. Just how much the efforts and input of the 46-A Environment Protection Association contributed to and encouraged that action is difficult to measure. But the group obviously had some effect.

The landfill foes, however, suffered a setback Monday night when one city commissioner atter...pted in vain to block the city from buying the acreage for a landfill. His proposal was defeated by a 3 to 2 vote.

What remains now is for the city commission on June 27 to approve officially rezoning the proposed site from multi-family residential to agricultural to allow the landfill.

Public hearings will follow. Whatever finally happens, those residents should be commended for exercising their democratic option and fighting for their cause.

Then there is the example of constitutional redress as practiced in Casselberry. A group of residents was unhappy about a resolution passed by city council, upgrading Mayor Gerald Christensen to a full-time status with matching salary

A petition drive was begun for a referendum, the referendum was scheduled, and the vote taken only last Friday. Result: the majority of voters opted to repeal the controversial resolution.

Sometimes politicians wonder why the general public has such a low opinion of them. In view of the actions of the Florida House and Senate last week in sending to Gov. Reubin Askew a bill allowing city and county commissions to meet in secret with lawyers to discuss pending lawsuits, the opinion seems well justified.

The governor is against the provision, which was tacked onto a bill providing payment of legal fees for citizens who successfully sue public officials for violating the open meetings provision of the state's 1967 Government-in-the-Sunshine law.

It is frequently the case that cities and counties find themselves in lawsuits over significant local issues. The loophole approved by the legislature would provide a convenient excuse for local governing bodies to discuss important issues behind closed doors.

And issues involving lawsuits usually involve hefty amounts of money. If the governor doesn't veto the Sunshine loophole law, it will mean citizens will have no way of knowing how their local councilmen or commissioners intend to deal with matters of crucial financial importance. The loophole makes no sense from the standpoint of open government, which is supposed to istinguish the American form of government from the totalitarian systems practiced by the Chinese and Russians.

Sen. Robert Graham, D-Miami, lost 21 to 14 when he tried to get the Senate to remove the secrecy provision from the bill, only to hear fellow Democrat Dempsey Barron of Panama City charge Graham with ulterior motives. Graham has announced he would run for governor.

"Sen. Graham liked the bill until the press called him about it. He is running for governor," Barron

Last Thursday, the House reversed itself and voted to kill the secrecy amendment, but on Friday the House reversed itself again. The bill is now in Askew's hands, complete with a meaningless provision that requires tape recor-

ANGLE-WALTERS Ford Folks Doing Well, Thank You

WASHINGTON - Anyone brooding about the fate of all those dispossed Ford Administration folks can put away the old crying towel. The vast majority are going very well, thank you.

Few of the erstwhile movers and shakers, it is true, can begin to match the standard for gracious living set by Gerald R. Ford himself, whose two years as president stand to bring him a cool $3 million or so over the next few years, primarily from broadcasting and publishing

But Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Treasury Secretary William Simon are likely to come reasonably close as a result of their own highly profitable deals in banking, broadcasting and publishing ventures.

And most of the lesser lights from the outgoing administration should have little trouble keeping the wolf from the door, judging from what we have found in surveying the current job status of more than 300 former big shots and small fry who held political appointments in the Ford administration.

Upper and middle echelon officials appear to be cashing in at a brisk clip on the reputations, eveloped while in public service.

President Carter, with his new ethics code hopes to halt the "revolving door" traffic between the government and private industry that it deals with, but the Ford people faced no such obstacle. A few have shown little squeamishness about taking advantage of their public service in the private sector.

A notable case in point is Malcolm R. Currie, former director of defense research for the Pentagon, who is now a vice president of Hughes Aircraft Co. in charge of the missile programs he used to monitor for the government.

There are numerous less obvious instancces of officials parlaying public service into potentially profitable private jobs. William F. Gorog, former executive director of the Council on International Economic Policy, has formed his own company, the Arbor Group, specializing international financial empire with terrorist in international investment management services. Edwin H. Yeo III, former undersecretary of Treasury, is now executive vice president of First National Bank of Chicago. And Mary T. Brooks, former director of the Mint, is a parttime consultant on international numismatic (coins) and philatelic (stamps) affairs for Paramount International Coin Corp.

There is scarcely a member of the Ford cabinet who is not now gracing the board of directors of some major corporation with his or her presence. Former Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr., for instance, has been nominated to the board of American Can Co., while former Housing and Urban Development Secretary Carla Hills was claimed by IBM. Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld is both president and chief executive officer of G. D.

DON OAKLEY Kent State Matter Revisited

A new confrontation is building up between students and administration at Kent State University, one which flows directly from the tragedy that took place on that campus on May 4,

The site where four students were killed by Ohio National Guardsmen following riots in protest of the U.S. invasion of Cambodia has become hallowed ground to succeeding classes of students at Kent. On each anniversary, allnight vigils and commemorative exercises have been held, during which guest speakers customarily extoll the virtues of socialism and

That alone would be enough to keep alive the spirit of "revolution." Now, however, the university intends to build a new gymnasium near the site. It says the facility will intrude on minimally on the area where the four young people were martyred. The students believe it will obliterate and descrate the site and have vowed to put their bodies on the line to prevent it.

A student group called the May Coalition had scheduled a national rally on the campus on June 4, to be attended by such well-known people as anti-Vietnam war activist William Kunstler and black activists Dick Gregory and Stokely Carmichael, who offered words of encouragement. All three spoke at this year's May 4 exercises, which culminated in an eight-hour stude takeover of one of the university's buildings and later the erection of a tent city on the proposed building site.

The Casselberry City Council Monday night voted unanimously to permit a colleague to correct the record on a possible violation of state law.

Councilman Carl Robertson Jr., in office less than five months, abstained from voting on the proposed refinancing of a $9 million bond issue 12 days ago. Last night he asked fellow councilmen for the opportunity to reconsider his action and voted "yes" on the

At a special meeting of the board May 25, Robertson, given paper work on the proposed bond issue just minutes before the meeting began, abstained from voting, saying he had not had sufficient time to study the paper work on the complex issue and didn't fully understand it.

He said last night that he had conferred with City Atty. Kenneth McIntosh and was following the attorney's advice in seeking to reconsider.

Councilman Frank Schutte said he "sympathized" with Robertson's position, adding that paper work prepared by the combined firms of H.I. Henann and Southeastern Municipal Bonding Corp. and Finance Director Milton Kast had not been delivered in a timely fashion as promised.

Florida State Statute 286.012 requires public officials to vote on every issue unless a conflict of interest is involved. No penalty is provided in the law, however. Robertson had stated he had no conflict of interest.

Further action on the bond issue is being held in abeyance awaiting a ruling on whether the city will be permitted to float an additional $6 million special obligation bond issue. Under that method, the city would use the proceeds from the special issue to buy government securities. The profits realized from the difference in interest rates would go to assist in paying the utility

Financial experts had told city officials it was anticipated that an Internal Revenue Service (IRS) ban on the practice was expected June 1, thus requiring speedy action by the city to initiate the issue.

The city's intent to proceed was approved on May 25 and the IRS ruling was handed down the next day, six days before expected.

The city must yet get a ruling on whether its intent as expressed in a resolution will be adequate to permit continuation even though the rules have been changed, bond experts said. If a favorable ruling is not received from IRS, the city council may reconsider its decision to refinance the old $9 million issue, they explained.

In other business at Monday night's meeting, the city council designated a board composed of Mayor Gerald Christensen, McIntosh, Ass't City Atty. Ned Julian Jr., Kast and a civil service board representative, the chairman Howard Knox, if possible, compose the city's negotiating team with the Carpenter's Union. The Carpenter's Union represents all utility, public works and administrative employes of the city. The members of the police department recently selected the Police Benevolent Association (PBA) as its bargaining agent with the city on working conditions and salary. With 23 police officers ligible, 21 cast ballots on unionizing all in favor of the PBA as its bargaining agent.

George Smith, production development engineer of the state Department of Transportation (DOT) 5th district office, told commissioners that four-laning SR-434 between SR-15600 and SR-419 would cost $2 million but that only $1.6 million is available

He said the additional county money was needed because since responsibilities of a city council, to the Florida Christensen, in response to separate owners where the the project was approved in 1974, increased costs of petroleum questions from the council, said course of drainage had been products and general inflation left the state with insufficient

> Smith said the four-laning could begin in July if the additional city affairs in the same fashion said he will have to research county money is pledged and that the county could save at least as when the resolution was in tax records to determine $75,000 to $100,000 on the project because a contractor now whether or not the property working on another stretch of SR-434 wouldn't have to move much new equipment to the site.

The commissioners instructed Public Works Director Jack Schuder to work with county budget chief Pat Glisson to see if the money is available.

Wagners Stress Roof Cleaning This Month

ADVERTISING

Is your roof at home or that of your office building in need of cleaning. . . especially with all the leaves that have fallen in the past few weeks?

Wagner Pressure Cleaning Service has added that type of cleaning to the jet spray pressure cleaning service. The Wagners - Dale and his dad, Edward - have found that their chemical and water treatment has been, highly successful. Such a cleaning process saves the roofing whether tiles, slate or other roofing material, the Wagners say, as opposed to sweeping.

In addition to the roof cleaning, the Wagners use their large, high pressure machine to clean the exterior walls of home or business and commercial buildings. The jet spray cleaning has been proven of following this past winter's were removed. plants died or were cut back, their cleaning service, also cleaning to be done. were called to clean many home exteriors is another several years and they have visit the job before giving an undertaken.

'It's Really Lust And Sinfulness'

MIAMI BEACH (AP) - Anita Bryant's year. She was a successful pop singer and smile faded as a leader of the Miami homosexual community appeared on the television screen and claimed a moral victory in coming "out of the closet." "I don't care if you come out of the closet," she snapped at the figure on the screen Tuesday night. "Just don't come into mine."

It was a clear warning to communities across the country: efforts to promote laws banning discrimination against homosexuals will be met by Miss Bryant and her organzation, Save Our Children, Inc.

Miss Bryant helped lead the group to its first victory Tuesday as Dade County residents voted by a 70 per cent margin to repeal an ordinance shielding homosexuals from discrimination in employment and housing.

Similar laws exist in about 40 other communities around the nation, and Miss Bryant said they could become targets of campaigns for repeal. She said an initial effort might be mounted in such cities as San Antonio, Tex.; Minneapolis; a number of communities in California, and in Congress, where similar federal legislation is pending.

Miss Bryant, 37, was Miss Oklahoma of 1959 and second runner-up Miss America that more recently identified through commercials for Florida citrus products. Her entry into the Dade County campaign helped push the issue to national prominence. She discussed her plans in a victory appearance at a Miami Beach Hotel. Supporters whistled and cheered as she embraced her four children and kissed her husband, Bob Green.

Green and Miss Bryant are born-again Christians whose deep belief sometimes gave the Florida campaign the air of an oldtime religious revival. But, Miss Bryant said people misconstrued her motivation.

"I did not hear an audible voice from God saving 'You are the Joan of Arc.' I stood personally to stop a Dade County ordinance that would affect my personal life," she said. She said repeal of the Dade County ordinance indicates a change of mood in the "Americans have just about had it up to here," she said. "Permissiveness, pornography, abortion, alcohol, drugs - all these things are tearing at the very hearts, minds and lives of our children. I think it's all tied in. It's called freedom and love, but it's really lust and sinfulness.

> 'They Don't Know How To Love' us for our virtues, not our vices," Leonard Matlovich told 300 homosexual-right supporters Tuesday night. "It's going to take a lot of love to turn this around because they don't know how to love." "They" were the 202,319 people who voted Tuesday to repeal an ordinance banning housing and job discrimination against homosexuals. The crowd had gathered at the Fontainebleau Hotel to celebrate a victory for homosexual rights. Instead, they held a wake, singing civil rights songs and listening to speeches urging them to keep fighting. They had danced to a rock band and helped themselves to a free buffet while watching election results on three large video projectors.

But the mood sobered as the first precincts reported in.

"When you walk out of here tonight I want you to go with your head held high and your shoulders back," said Matlovich, who gained national prominence when he fought discharge from the Air Force for being a homosexual.

"Be proud you're a gay and don't let anyone put you down because of it," he said as the brought national attention to the issue," said Campbell, who mentioned a court challenge as the group's next possible step. But others at the Fontainbleau said they feared a backlash against homosexuals as a result of the vote.

"I wouldn't be surprised to see some attempts at reprisals," said the Rev. Joseph Gilbert, pastor of the Metropolitan Community Church of Miami. "But liberation takes place in your head so that sort of thing can't hurt us." Gilbert, who identified himself as a
