Seminoles Go To Polls On Monday

OKALEE INDIAN VII. LAGE (AP)-The voters emerged from their palm-thatched chickee huts and gathered about The issues were streetlights better housing, irrigation and big business in the race for president of the Seminole Incumbent President Bill Osceloa watched silently as his four opponents made their pitches in the soft, flowing language of their ancestors. Only Seminoles who live on Florida's three reservations can vote in this odd Indian election where campaign promises are spoken in one language and printed in another. The speeches are all in the Miccosukee language, a smooth amalgam of the oriental-tinged Indian tongue and Spanish idioms. Most Seminoles still speak very little English. But as Miccosukee is only a spoken language, campaign posters must be in English.

At the polls Monday, the ballots will be in English. Illiterate voters will go into the booth with an election judge who helps mark the ballot and a teller who will watch the judge. "We try not to appoint candidates, cousins or kinfolk as judges," said tribal secretary Laura Mae Osceola, a common Seminole name. She said 380 of 986 Seminoles living on the reservation were registered to vote, including 18 young people at college and seven servicemen in Vietnamtwo of whom have mailed in absentee ballots.

"We're certain to get an Si per cent turnout," she said, "and maybe almost 100 per cent. Interest is highest ever. We've never had five running for president before." The favorite is President Bill Osceola, a distant descendant of the famous chief who led the Seminoles 180 years ago against U. S. Troops. Bill Osceola, 48, is an ordained Baptist minister who earned his daily bread driving a bulldozer before Indian politics became his main interest. He's had the $8,300-a-year presidency eight years. He assumed the chief's chores two years before that on a $10-a-meeting basis before the tribe adopted a constitution in 1957. Osceola is campaigning on the ground the tribe has become big business during his

Reapportion Drive Is Losing Steam—Dirksen

news conference a month ago Congress for a convention, predicted there would be petitions soon from two more. The Constitution says Congress shall call a convention of application from two-thirds the states - 34 of the 50. But since Dirksen's prediction, the only state whose legislature has taken any significant action is Alaska. Its Senate re jected April 8 a petition-resolu tion that had passed the House

A resolution which passed th

The convention question is not basically a partisan matter. But Dirksen has more influence with his party's members everywhere than he does with Dirksen long has tried to undo the 1964 Supreme Court ruling that both houses of state legislatures must be apportioned on the basis of population. He failed in 1965 and again in 1966 to get Senate approval for a proposed constitutional amendment to permit apportionment of one house of a state legislature along lines other than population.

Delaware, where a resolution recently was introduced, Pensylvania and Wisconsin are the likeliest prospects now in Dirksen's search for two more convention petitions. There are resolutions in Senate and House committees in Pennsylvania. Republican Gov. Raymond P. Shafer has given nominal support to the resolutions but there are doubts in Harrisburg that he will push hard. Democrats have a strong minority in the legislature and Shafer needs Democratic votes for key legislation in his state

In Wisconsin, there have been some committee hearings. Aides to Sen. William Proxmire, Wisconsin Democrat, say the State Senate might pass a resolution but call House aproval
