... Agent

"I think the investigation died a natural death." he said. Chief Butler also confirmed today that one of the primary reasons for assigning the agent to sit in in on the ex-policemen's meetings was because of recent internal "morale" and "image" problems at the department, "brought about mostly by the highranking official named in the agent's report."

Chief Butler also said a recent reorganization of the department's personnel was designed to eliminate that problem and hinted it was almost directly aimed at the high-ranking officer. Asked if that high-ranking officer is Charles Fagan, the chief repeated his position on declining to name anyone listed in the agent's reports.

Butler did, however, confirm that information supplied by the agent touched on one incident in which the lone city commissioner named, allegedly indicated he (the commissioner) would attempt to go to the governor's office to ask the department be inestigated over alleged irregularities.

Keep 55 County Told

Tuesday, Jan. 23, 1979—3A

Herald Staff Writer

Regular job slots for 55 county employees, whose $710,000 in salaries are being paid by the federally funded Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), should be created in the county budget beginning Oct. 1, 1979.

County Administrator Roger Neiswender and Office of Management, Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE) Director Jeff Etchberger made this recommendation to the county commission in workshop Monday, calling all of the jobs either critical or essential to continued county government operation. The jobs are to be phased out of the federally funded program Oct. 1. Etchberger said the county government has a total of 143 employees under the CETA program. Most of the balance of the jobs, beyond what is considered critical and essential, would be continued under the CETA program. The jobs considered critical and essential, according to Etchberger, are, for the most part, in the health and safety area. The largest area of need, according to Neiswender, is in the public safety area - the fire department - where the payroll of CETA firemen recommended transferred to regular county payroll is $230,000. Neiswender added that the county also has a higher investment in terms of training costs in the firefighters. Commissioner Bob Sturm said he talked to nearly every CETA firefighter and found all but two have filed job applications with other governmental bodies in the area.

While the county administrator did not foresee any increase in regular property tax for the county to absorb the 55 jobs, he said it will probably be necessary to increase the taxes in the unincorporated area for fire protection from the current $1.90 per $1,000 assessed property valuation to $2. "The only alternative is to pass the cost on to those being served," Neiswender said. In addition Etchberger said the 10 cent increase would raise about $85,000 with the remainder of the cost for the firefighters' salaries coming from funds allocated for capital improvements this year, such as fire station construction, that won't be necessary next year.

"We have to maintain minimum manning levels." Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser said. A final workshop on the matter was set for Feb. 5 before a decision is made by commissioners. By that time, Commission Chairman Bob French said, the individual county commissioners can have interviewed various department heads to hear explanations of the designation of certain of the CETA employees as critical and or essential. Meanwhile, Sandy Goard, office manager for Seminole Elections Supervisor Camilla Bruce, said that, although Mrs. Bruce listed a CETA elections accounting clerk as critical to the operation of the office, it was listed in the Etchberger-Neiswender Mrs. Goard said Mrs. Bruce's office in 1969 with 29,000 registered voters had three assistants while this year with nearly 56,000 voters has only four assistants. She said in view of the increased responsibilities of the office, the elections accounting

Uncertainties In Iran

There is nothing certain about the future of the government of Iran except that it will no longer be headed by the shah — and even that is uncertain. Shah Mohammad Reza Pahiavi has left the country, probably never to return.

"The shah is gone forever!" the demonstrators The shah says he is just going on vacation because he is tired. But there were tears in his eyes when he left. The Pahlavi dynasty, established by his father in 1925, may be at an end. On the other hand, the shah fled the country briefly in 1953 and later returned to the Peacock Throne. He was installed on that throne in 1941 by British and Soviet troops, after his father was deposed because he was suspected of collaboration with the Nazis. The young shah got the throne back in 1953 with the help of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. It is apparent that there has been a great deal of outside interference in the internal affairs of Iran. That kind of interference should not be tolerated in the current crisis.

Both the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. should stay out and stand clear until the Iranians decide for themselves what form of government they will

There are three forces that will be contending for power - the army, the National Front of parliamentarians, and the Moslem religious movement led by the Avatollah Khomeini. The greatest uncertainty now surrounds the future of the government the shah left behind. Khomeini has pledged to return probably later this week to overthrow that government — headed by Shahpour Bakhtiar — and install his own. At the same time, the military has made a pledge of its own: not to conduct a coup d'etat. This latter is good news indeed and forestalls for now the greatest fear of world observers — of a civil war in Iran, in which a vacuum would be created allowing other forces and interests to become a part of the equation or worse. This country, with its heavy stake in Iranian oil, must hope for stability in Iran.

With our tradition of respect for human rights, we must also hope for an Iranian government that respects the rights of the people. But there is little we can do at this point to influence the course of events in Tehran. The shah did some good for his country in his 37 years of power. But, in the end, he lost touch with

And then the best thing he could do for them was to leave quietly.

VIEWPOINT

Wagging Animal

Trying to measure freedom on a world scale in a way is not unlike the task of the blind men asked to describe an elephant: It's not easy getting the picture of the whole animal from component elements that can be subject to such varying interpretations.

The complexity of the task, however, is not such as to daunt Freedom House, a private political research organization keeping vigilant watch on the state of liberty throughout the world since World Warr II. Since 1973, it has been issuing an annual "Comparative Survey of Freedom" rating the relative freedom of the world's nations.

According to the latest edition, 1978 ended up as one of the better recent years. Freedom lost ground in a few countries — eight with a combined population of 144 million. But it gained in more — 24 with some 563 million people. It was the second consecutive year for which the Freedom House scale registered a net gain; The year's final balance for the world's estimated 4.23 billion inhabitants of 158 nations and 59 related territories was 35.1 percent

"free," 24.7 percent "partly free" and 40.2

percent "not free."

To arrive at this finding, the survey evaluated each country according to some two dozen; criteria reflecting political and civil liberties, enjoyed or denied. These for the most part derive from the traditional European and American pear that lands of widely differing cultures and traditions were being rated according to air arbitrary and possibly alien standard. Something like all parts of the elephant being

'I felt if we gave Terry the time he needed, he would do the things he wanted," said Davis, the oldest player on the Steelers roster at 34 and the one who has been with them longest, 12 Most of the other Steelers were hoping the agile 255-pound Davis

Webster called the game with the Cowboys "very physical"

Sometimes, the action did get a little rough, particularly in the fourth quarter when both teams scored two touchdowns and a few of the Cowboy players felt Steeler safety Mike Wagner was going a little too far carrying wide receiver Drew Pearson backward. This was after Pearson had hauled in one of Roger Staubach's passes and the whistle had blown. The Cowboys charged Wagner, obviously remembering how Mike Barber had accused the Steelers' safety of injuring him unnecessarily with a diving block in the AFC finale two weeks ago against Houston. For awhile, there was a threat of a free-for-all between the Cowboys and Steelers.

"I heard Drew had his ribs hurt on that play and I'm sorry about that," Wagner said. "We're coached to drive into the receiver and try to get the ball loose and that's what I was trying to do. It's just how the game is played. A couple of their players got upset about it and said 'that's not football,' but I felt I did the

A missing greyhound was the talk of the track last weekend at the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club. While fans were trying to pick quinielas, perfectas and trifectas, Ralph Ryan was left scratching his head in wonderment over what happened to his prize bitch, R's Fame.

I'I don't want to say she was stolen, because that might discourage anyone who has her from bringing her back," said Ryan Monday. "But there is a $500 reward for her return, no questions asked. Speculation is that the greyhound was either set loose or taken from the truck in the parking lot at the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club.

"We don't bother to lock the trucks," said Ryan. 'It happened in broad daylight. If someone did take her, and it takes a lot of guts to walk up to a man's truck and do that, I just hope they treat her well." Ryan, of Lake Mary, says he has never lost a greyhound before. The reason he believes the dog didn't merely escape her cage in the truck is that she would have tried to get back on the track, where the mechanical lure and people were. Also a security guard, who saw nothing.

Plans for R's Fame was to become a brood bitch once her racing days are over. She's four, and greyhounds don't race past five years of age. The breeding line on R's Fame is excellent. Her THE BUTTON? mother's sister whelped B. Ginger, one of the most successful greyhounds at SOKC in recent years. "I had several inquiries about breeding her," said

Ryan. "These people are above suspicion." If someone grabbed R's Fame for a pet, they have If they planned to breed her, they would have to falsify papers before the pups could race. Two dognapping cases in recent memory included a Ben Jacques greyhound which showed up in a St. Petersburg lady's yard, chained to a tree; and an Arizona racing star who was never found.

Bids On

Bill Allen of H&W Refuse Service thought his initiative in submitting an unsolicited bid for taking over the trash collection n Longwood had been rewarded when the city commission voted Monday night to have a contract drawn up.

But his joy was shortlived — the commissioners immediately thought better of their action and passed another motion to seek H&W Refuse Service was one of several companies submitting bids for the garbage-trash franchise in the city earlier, but the firm was the only one to also submit a bid for trash alone. His bid of $25,000 a year was a tempting one to the commissioners as it is costing the city $35,000 a year for its own crew playing a role in last December's municipal election. An effort to end the trash service on Dec. 31 failed when the commission bowed to public pressure to extend the deadline for two weeks to allow time to seek an alternative. The commission last week voted 3-2 to extend the collection indefinitely over objections of Commissioners Larry Goldberg and Ray Leibensperger, who walked out of the meeting.

Many residents in the newer subdivisions have signed petitions asking that the city drop the tax-supported trash service as they are already paying for trash pick up by their garbage company. Allen proposed to pick up trash at the curb once a week per house with a fixed price for the two-year duration of the contract ("Provided the dumps don't raise their fees").

"It's funny to me," commented Commissioner J.R. Grant, "that he's the only fellow, who bid. All the garbage companies should be able to bid at the same time and bids opened at the same time to give everybody an equal chance."

Leibensperger's motion to have a contract with H&W drawn up was seconded by Goldberg. It passed 3-2 with Grant and Stephen

Barton then made the motion to go out for bids and Grant sconded it. This motion passed 4-1 with only Goldberg voting

Midge War Goal: Added $175,000

Herald Staff Writer A budget of $175,000 will be necessary to continue after June 30 the research program into the blind mosquito, the pest which has plagued the Sanford lakefront for nearly 10

This was the estimate given to the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce task force on the insect by Rep. Bobby Hattaway and University of Florida (UF) officials at a luncheon meeting Tuesday.

Dr. Arshad Ali, who has headed the research effort since it began in September, and Dr. John Darby, who heads the food and agricultural research program at the UF lanford center, said an insect pathologis
