

Longwood Plant Attacked, Says Racing Commissioner

Sanford, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The Longwood plant, which has been the scene of a series of attacks, was again the target of a raid by a group of men who were believed to be connected with the racing industry, according to the racing commissioner.

The raid, which took place late last night, resulted in the seizure of a large quantity of equipment and supplies. The commissioner stated that the men who were involved in the raid were acting in a concerted effort to disrupt the operations of the plant.

The Longwood plant is one of the largest and most modern in the state, and its operations are of great importance to the racing industry. The commissioner expressed his confidence that the plant would be able to resume its normal operations in a short time.

War Preparedness Strongly Favored By Speaker Byrnes

Washington, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Congressional proposals for a strong air force and for fortifications to be asked Congress by Speaker Charles McNair Byrnes, he asserted today.

Byrnes, in a speech before the House, stressed the importance of maintaining a strong and modern military force in the face of the growing international tensions. He called for a significant increase in the size and capabilities of the United States Air Force.

Byrnes also advocated for the construction of a series of coastal fortifications to protect the nation's major ports and harbors. He stated that these fortifications would be essential for the nation's defense and for the protection of its maritime interests.

Lindberghs Pick For New Year's Eve

Sanford, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The Lindbergh family, including the famous aviator's wife and children, will spend the New Year's Eve in Sanford, Fla., according to reports.

The Lindberghs are expected to arrive in Sanford on Monday night and will remain in the city through the end of the year. They are believed to be staying at the Hotel Sanford, which is one of the city's most prominent hotels.

The Lindbergh family has been in the United States since their return from Europe, where they spent a significant portion of their lives. Their presence in Sanford is a source of pride and interest for the local community.

Brothers Wounded By Single Bullet Fired Mile Away

Sanford, Dec. 31.—(AP)—A single stray bullet wounded two brothers, Sam Gill, 14, and Don, 16, both of whom were believed to be in the city at the time.

The incident occurred on Monday afternoon when the boys were walking through a residential neighborhood. A bullet, which was believed to have been fired from a distance of about a mile, struck Don Gill in the leg and Sam Gill in the arm.

The boys were taken to the Sanford Hospital, where they are recovering from their injuries. The police are currently investigating the incident to determine the identity of the person who fired the bullet.

Pioneers Are To Be Honored In Lake Mary

Sanford, Dec. 31.—(AP)—A "Pioneer Night" festival in County Town will be held on New Year's Eve, according to reports.

The festival, which is being organized by the Lake Mary Historical Society, will feature a variety of activities, including a parade, a fireworks display, and a concert. The event is intended to honor the pioneers who first settled in the area and to celebrate the community's rich history.

The festival is expected to attract a large number of people from the surrounding areas. The Lake Mary Historical Society is a non-profit organization dedicated to preserving the area's history and promoting its tourism.

City's Growth Said To Need Tourist Trade

Sanford, Dec. 31.—(AP)—There is no reason why Sanford should be the "metropolis" of Central Florida, County Agent C. R. Dawson said today.

Dawson, in a speech before the Rotary Club, stated that the city's growth should be based on the development of a strong tourist trade. He argued that this would provide a more sustainable and diversified economy for the city.

Dawson also criticized the idea of Sanford becoming a "metropolis," which he believed would lead to a concentration of population and resources that would be detrimental to the region's overall development. He called for a balanced approach to growth that would benefit the entire community.

Crack Of Rifle To Usher In New Year On African Front

Lake Land, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The old year will go out in a crack of rifle fire in the Italian northern army in Ethiopia, according to reports.

The crack of rifle fire is expected to mark the beginning of the New Year on the African front, where the Italian army is engaged in a campaign against the Ethiopian forces. The fighting is believed to be intense and is expected to continue throughout the year.

The Italian army has made significant gains in the region, but the Ethiopian forces are also showing signs of resistance. The conflict is a complex one, involving a variety of political and military factors.

New Year Prospects

The year of 1936 which opens auspiciously promises to be as thrilling a twelve months spectacle as any we have witnessed since the momentous events of the last war. For those who feed on excitement, who like action, and who believe that anything is better than nothing, the coming year will be all they could desire; but for those who prefer peace and quiet, a comfortable chair by the fireside may provide their only opportunity.

As for business, the prospects are good. Practically every expression we have seen on the subject, whether from industrialist, financier, workingman or politician forecasts an increasingly upward trend for the next twelve months at least. As to what may happen after that, some of them are not so optimistic, but scarcely a one of those who are in a position to foretell the future with reasonable accuracy views the months immediately ahead with any but optimistic eyes.

In politics the lines are being drawn for one of the liveliest political battles in the lives of any of us too young to remember the free silver campaign of '98. The New Dealers seem confident of re-election, but their apparent confidence is not substantiated by the Literary Digest poll or their desire to prohibit such polls. It would seem that there might be some cause for them to worry, some room for other parties.

Democrats are by no means unanimous in the belief that the New Deal provides the only Democratic way to run the country. A split from the New Dealers by Jeffersonian Democrats is a growing possibility. The Republicans are scarcely any better united. There are two factions lining up behind Senator Borah and Governor Hoover. The prospects favor almost as bitter a fight between them as between the two major parties. And then there is the possibility of a third party, with Dr. Townsend for the ringmaster.

Not within a generation has the national political situation been split into so many parts. And yet, almost any moment these warring factions may be dissipated and the whole country solidly united behind a single policy. War in Europe would relegate to the ranks of trivial unimportance most of those issues which seem so great today. We venture the prediction that if war should come, there would be but one issue involved in the presidential campaign: whether to get into it, how to stay out of it.

And it is by no means certain that sometime within the next twelve months war will not break out in Europe. Mussolini seems to have maneuvered himself into a position where it would be better for him to fight than to back out, and the League of Nations with almost equal obstinacy has created a situation where it must fight, or dissolve. Meanwhile, with millions of soldiers under arms, with guns loaded and trigger fingers itching, the report of a popgun is all that is needed to begin the battle.

But with all our politics and the possibility of war, the outlook for business is good come what may. If we do not have a war, business will improve because of improving confidence. If we do have a war, business will be good because of a reduction in unemployment, a stimulation in war sales. The political situation should have somewhat the same reaction. The harder the Republicans fight to get in, the more money the Democrats will spend to keep them out.

Hollywood Preferences

According to a recent straw vote conducted in Hollywood (please don't bar this from the males), there are three absolutely unpardonable sins which man can commit, and at least five other sins which are almost as bad. But, according to this poll which was conducted among the female movie stars, it is worse for a man to use a toothpick in public than to chew tobacco.

- The questions asked the girls in the poll and their answers were as follows:
1. Could you be happy with a man who talked about his shady past? Answer: Yes, 0; No, 88.
 2. Who knew all about life? Yes, 7; No, 88.
 3. Who drank moderately? Yes, 44; No, 56.
 4. Who drank excessively? Yes, 0; No, 100.
 5. Who wore sleeve-bands? Yes, 6; No, 94.
 6. Who wore pink silk shirts? Yes, 3; No, 97.
 7. Who forgot to shave? Yes, 20; No, 80.
 8. Who chewed tobacco? Yes, 0; No, 100.
 9. Who used a toothpick in public? Yes, 0; No, 100.
 10. Who ogled girls on the street? Yes, 0; No, 100.
 11. Who exposed his chest? Yes, 21; No, 79.
 12. Who made puns? Yes, 0; No, 100.
 13. Who "handed out a fast line"? Yes, 0; No, 86.
 14. Who ate soup politely? Yes, 0; No, 84.
 15. Who ate raw hamburger? Yes, 40; No, 60.

In a space on the questionnaire, left for "remarks on particularly objectionable traits you have noted in men," one girl wrote: "I stopped being engaged to a man the day I found out he didn't mind taking a pomeranian dog for a walk."

THE COMPASS

Automobile Casualties
 Prevention
 By ARTHUR DUNN

GALVESTON, Texas, Dec. 21.—At least the American public is becoming conscious of automobile murder and murder-mist of it. Certainly 80 percent of all such accidents are preventable, and whether the killing is of design or carelessness, the victim is just as dead.

I speak feelingly because four years ago this very day I was almost killed by an automobile. The publisher of the New Orleans Item-Tribune suggested recently that I write my own experience, to help in the national campaign just being launched against reckless driving.

During the past ten years the automobile dead number about a quarter of a million—as though half of all residents of New Orleans had perished. The maimed and injured for the same period approximate the total population of New York City. In less than fifty years a number equal to one-half the present population of the United States will have been killed or injured by automobiles. So your own chances, reader, are fifty-fifty.

The responsibility must be shared by drivers and politicians. I omit pedestrians for, just as it is a law of the sea that the larger ship must avoid the smaller, so should motor drivers look out for pedestrians. Any other rule means continued slaughter of innocents. A change in the law placing the presumption of negligence on the driver would eliminate most accidents to pedestrians. Then make negligence a prison offense, so that public liability insurance would nullify the restraining influence of this presumption. It would save the lives, also, of thousands of children too young to be chargeable with negligence.

My own accident illustrates the two causes—reckless driving and bad politics. It happened on a foggy night—snow had fallen and melted—the pavement was black and slippery. Before crossing the street to enter the Boston and Westchester station in New Rochelle, N. Y., I stopped to peer in both directions. Seeing no on-coming lights, I stepped into the street.

That is all I remember. I came to in an automobile in a policeman's arms, on route to the hospital. I had been hurled 30 feet, striking the concrete with the back of my head. The skull was fractured behind the brain—concussion—busted shoulder, etc. Hardly one in a thousand survives such injuries. Hanging between life and death for a couple of days, I struggled back from zero.

I was a busy New York lawyer with a large family and heavy expenses. After 10 months I returned to my office only to discover I no longer had the strength to stand continuous work in doors at a desk. Compelled to retire from a profession I had practiced for 24 years, and having much leisure, I wrote a book with the same title as my case.

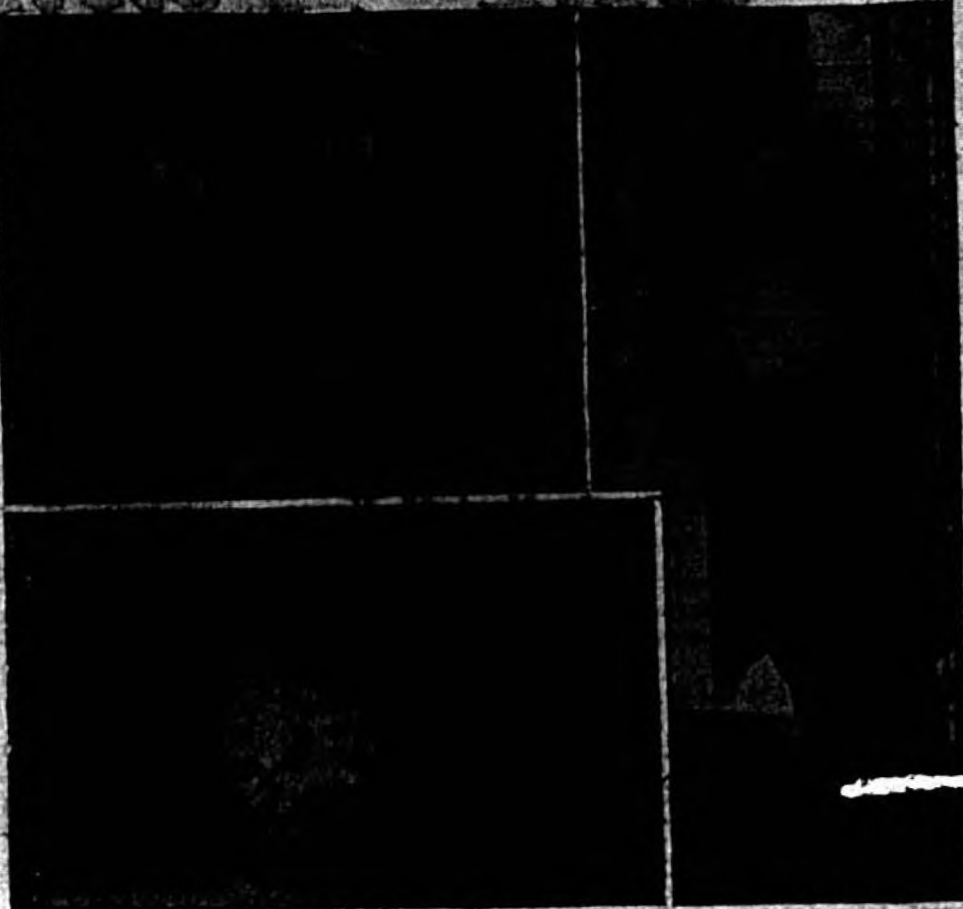

Its reception gave me an idea that I might regain my health by touring the United States—seeing the New Deal in action and writing. It has also given me an experience on automobile wanderings which restored my health and I find the new work most fascinating. It has also given me an excellent knowledge of the hazards of the highway.

The driver who hit me had no headlights, nor did he sound his horn. He carried minimum insurance, collected a little, and my accident expenses cost me $20,000.

The same night I was injured a couple were struck down at the same spot. The crawling was so dangerous that a traffic cop was on duty during the day, and such a few months before, there had been a traffic light at night. Both had headlights and sufficient political influence to have it discontinued.

So you see, I have been here and there on the road. I have been a witness to many of the same things that you see on the highway. I have seen many of the same things that you see on the highway. I have seen many of the same things that you see on the highway.

CONGRESS PREPARES FOR A BUSY 1936 SESSION

These are busy days on Capitol Hill. As workers refurbish legislative halls and leaders confer on programs for opening of congress. TWINS OF FAMOUS OBERAMMERGAU FAMILY

Anne Marie Monks (left) and Elizabeth Matilda, twin daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Anton Lang, Jr., were thrilled over the holiday festivities at their home in Washington, D. C., even though they are only seven months old. Their grandfather is the famous Anton Lang, or, "The Christ" of the Oberammergau Passion Play, and their mother played the role of Mary Magdalene in the 1934 production of the Biblical drama. Continued Swing Upward Of Business Pendulum In 1936 Forecast By Business Heads

By The Associated Press

Business leaders, viewing 1936 in the light of generally improved conditions in 1935, express belief that trade has started an upward swing which will continue through the new year.

Statements given The Associated Press by leaders in trade and industry follow:

Carl E. Gray, president, Union Pacific System: "Western rail traffic has shown a material increase in volume in 1935 over 1934. This is particularly true with respect to manufactured commodities and merchandises. Increased expenses are higher but margins and in price of materials. For the last half of 1935 has indicated the ability of the railroads to receive a greater percentage of the increased gross tonnage and this will be especially true in the volume of grain harvest."

and the lack of any revival in the durable goods industries.

"Perhaps the most significant phase of the progress of the iron and steel industry in 1935 was the improvement which took place in operations after the steel code was ended by the Supreme Court. Production of steel in the last half of the year, contrary to usual seasonal trend, exceeded that for the first half by a good margin."

F. W. Litchfield, president, The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.: "Outstanding in 1935 were the substantial upswing in American business and the beginning, through court decisions, of a trend back to traditional balances in government."

"The new year, 1936, affords essential elements necessary for additional and substantial business recovery. There is a definite need for greater production along almost all lines. Also there is an accumulation of reserves of hand for the purchase of this increased production. Under more normal conditions these obvious elements would justify a high degree of optimism in forecasting increasing volume of business. Two factors of uncertainty are the government's financial policy and the possibility of a change in administration."

in retail trade, and all present conditions indicate that during the year 1936 activity in these lines will continue and even to a somewhat greater volume.

"During the year there have also been moderate increases in heavier industrial production, but not of sufficient volume to appreciably assist in increasing employment in these industries."

"In my judgment, a major factor in bringing about greater business activity in these lines would be to remove as far as possible any uncertainties surrounding the rates under which business is to operate."

"Furthermore, business heads believe that the increasing cost and expenditure of government, which will result in a greater demand for goods, will be a positive factor in bringing about a more active business."

there is still plenty of trouble, with some progress being made toward solutions.

"While earnings of the oil business have been far from as adequate return for service rendered, they have increased enough to give cause for better feeling."

"Progress in science, engineering and sales techniques in the oil industry has increased our knowledge of oil improved operating methods, made better products and services available."

"The fundamental business conditions of the year 1935, however, are a cloud in the forecast of 1936. If the revival of business continues, it should be a very good business year."

DRAMATIC EVENTS OF 1935 PASS IN REVIEW

The most important news story of 1935, based on newspaper sales (not only of The Sanford Herald but also of Metropolitan papers) was the tragic death of Will Rogers and Wiley Post in the wilds of Alaska. Next in interest, as based on newspaper sales, was the conviction of Bruno Hauptmann for the kidnap-murder of Col. Charles G. ...

The assassination of Sen. Huey Long of Louisiana ranked third in importance among the news events of the year just closing. The disastrous dust storms in the Middle West last summer took up columns of newspaper space for weeks. Another big event was the burning at sea of the Morris Castle and the ...

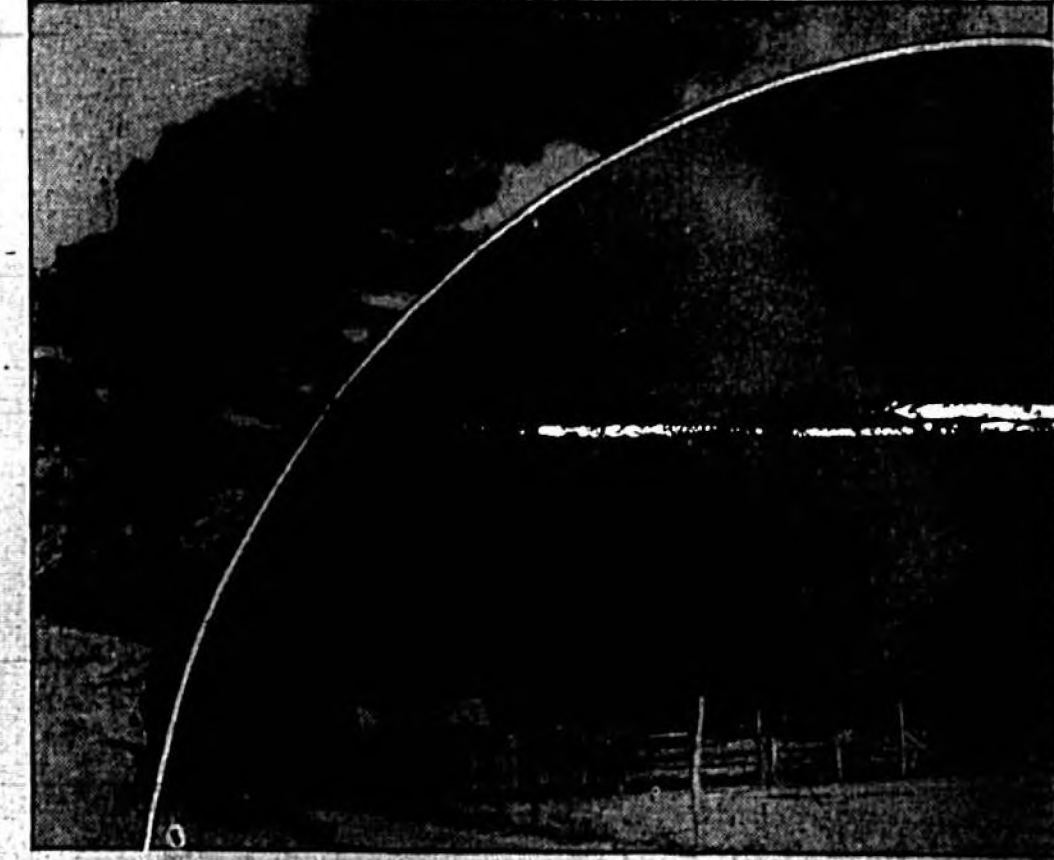

Interest. Two of the big events of the year were the successful flight of the China Clipper across the Pacific Ocean from the California coast to the Philippines and the decapitation of the Blue Eagle by the Supreme Court. The last big news event of 1935 was the embarking of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh for foreign shores.
