Tuesday Floridians will march to the polls in great numbers - everyone hopes - to cast ballots for almost every office of any significance in the

There will be some difficult choices - which is a credit to both the individuals and the party's that nominated them — and some so obvious that the mere appearance of several of the people on the ballot should be a source of embarrassment to the Several of the races will also be watched across the nation as the political soothsayers comb the results for future trends and attempt — once again - to determine just what is uppermost in the mind of John Q. Citizen.

Certainly among those races will be that of the governorship between the incumbent Reubin Askew and his Republican opponent, Jerry Thomas. Gov. Askew professes — convincingly to have no interest in national office but should he win with anything close to the landslide margin many are predicting it is not outside the realm of possinility that his name will continue to pop up as the Democratic Party's king-makers search about for a suitable 1976 standard bearer. The party could look a lot further and a lot longer and do a lot worse. We enthusiastically supported the governor in the Primary and offer the same support in

Tuesday's General Election

As for the other candidates, our news columns, particularly today's edition, have placed before you a great deal of information as to their backgrounds, positions and records of public service. We think you have had ample time and opportunity to acquaint yourselves with those ladies and gentlemen who seek to serve you in public office and urge only that you cast your ballot with the sober seriousness that such a privilege demands of all of us.

We would also remind you of the special issues appearing on the ballot. Several are of great significance and should be read thoroughly before a decision is made. We would also caution you to avoid what has become a serious problem in recent years — the electorate's tendency to vote down all special issues on the theory that if they are on the ballot they are going to cost us more money. It ain't necessarily so, and thus the business of throwing the baby out with the bath water frequently seriously handicaps governmental

I'M SICK OF OUR COMMISSIONERS' ARROGANCE!

A big reason that prompted me to run for County Commissioner is that I'm tired of County Commission arrogance to the average taxpayer. Almost without exception those men who run our county government spouted "open door" rhetoric during their campaigns. . . after the election those doors slammed shut. It's a shame that the voters who elected these men to office cannot be heard after the election.

There now exists a clique of professional polit icians that are running our county. It's time to change priorities from special interest groups to the average taxpayer.

It's time the average man had a representative on the County Commission. A man that will listen to the problems and desires of the average citizen and treat them with dignity and respect. I will listen. . . . and I will act. . . . in your best interest!

A BETTER SEMINOLE COUNTY The very best way to get a better Seminole County government is for its citizens to participate in it. This means knowing the candidates and what they stand for and then to go to vote. This means everybody in our county. Men and women, black and white, professional and laborers, farmers and businessmen. After several hours of interviewing and questioning the candidates, their answers to questions will interest you. They were asked about holding the line on tax increases, about allowing the people to vote before new taxes are imposed, and about excessive fees for the county attorney and other such appointed offices, and about courtesy and respect to the public by county employees.

The candidates were scored on the number of "right" answers based on what the people of Seminole County would like from their commissioners. Listed below are the scores made

John Kimbrough, 14 pct.; Tom Binford, 84 pct.; Harry Kwaitkowski, 70 pct.; Bill King, 84

For a government more sensitive to the will of the people and responsive to the voter, vote for the following candidates:

DISTRICT FOUR VOTE FOR BILL KING

Whether the candidates were Democrat or Republican was not considered important The school board candidates were questioned about including the parents in the plan for the school year. They were asked if they would allow the parents a referendum before initiating a "year-round" school plan. They were asked about keeping the superintendent elected so the people of the county would have a voice in their school leader. They were asked about busing children in dangerous and unsafe areas and about smoking lounges in the junior and senior high schools. They were asked about the community using the school grounds after

The school board candidates were scored on the number of "right" answers based on what the parents and school children of Seminole County want from their schools and leaders. The teachers were also considered in these answers. Listed below are the scores made by each candidate. Jean Bryant, 42 pet.; E.C. Harper Jr., 70 pet.; Stuart Culpepper, 56 pet.; Pat Telson, 70 pet.

Deficit Spending Denounced

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - President Ford says ne expects the economy to cool off this winter, but he warns that deficit spending to meet a economic downturn could bring on a doubling of the inflation rate by 1976. As he prepared to swing into his final day of 1974 campaigning, Ford was described Friday night by White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen as "very tired, there's no doubt about it." The President moves on from Portland today to speech-making stops on behalf of Republican candidates in Utah, Colorado and Kansas en route back to Washington. Appearing earlier at an airport rally in Fresno, Calif., Ford said: "I have been asked many times why I have traveled extensively in the last few weeks .... It is very simple. I am here because the issues are far, far, too important. It (the election) is far, far too vital for me to sit on the sidelines."

Saddle Pads Suspected

WASHINGTON (AP) - Between 5,000 and 10,000 saddle pads sold nationwide since last January may be contaminated with potentially lethal anthrax spores, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission says. The pads, manufactured by the Perforated Pad Co.,

Woonsocket, R.I., were woven from imported goat and yak hair. Anthrax is an acute bacterial disease which can be fatal to humans and animals if untreated. The pads may bear a threeby-five-inch blue label on the quilted side with the manufacturer's name and one of six style numbers: 238, 238R, 500, 500R, 832 and 832R. The company has agreed to make refunds through retailers to individual purchasers, the commission said.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Officials say the city lost $476 because it took four days for a letter mailed at the downtown post office to be delivered across the street to City Hall. The letter was a $1,701.50 bid by Checker Cab Co. for the purchase of five used city-owned cars.

Because the letter had not arrived, a bid of $1,225.50 by the Vance Auto Salvage Co. was accepted. L.B. Smith, director of mail processing, said the letter should have arrived the day after it was postmarked. He speculated it was sent by a letter-sorting machine to the

Dove Hunters Shelve Weapons

But They Will Return Nov. 27

Dove hunters can put away their weapons for a few days as dove season closes November 3. The second phase of the dove season will begin November 16 and run through December 1.

With the inflated price of shotgun shells this year, perhaps the two weeks between phases will give hunters a chance to save up enough money to buy more ammunition!

Local sporting goods stores report a heavy run on shotgun shells as duck hunters prepare for the November 27 opening of their favorite sport. The daily bag limit will again be based on the point

Speckled perch fishing has suddenly become "red-hot" in Lake Monroe, and several limits have been taken. One catch of 150 by three anglers was noted by Fred Knight at the plaza sport shop.

Hiley's fish camp on Lake Jessup reports excellent catches of specks also. Glassie Jordan, Odessa Clarey, and Bessie Jackson landed a total of 66 on a Wednesday trip. Hiley landed 15 in two hours the same day.

Perch fishermen trying their luck on Lake Jessup or Lake Monroe should plan on a morning trip as the wind starts blowing faithfully everyday around noon.

Lake Jessup Hyacinths

Lake Jessup, the hyacinths have all piled up in the southwest corner around the mouth of Soldiers Creek, leaving the deep water free for drifting or trolling. The size of specks in Lake Jessup has been good, averaging about three-fourths pound each.

Specks and bream continue to make up most of the catches around Osteen Bridge. Some school bass activity has been noted in this area. Watt Elsea is back on the river after a bout with illness and is dragging that weighted blue plastic worm along the bottom again. In addition to assorted mussel shells and various types of weeds he is also pulling in some pretty good bass. One of his catches this week consisted of six bass up to four pounds; four were taken on the faithful worm and two were tempted with his deadly "Devil's Horse" lure.

There was no word received from the Lemon Bluff section of the river this week. However, with the water in the St. Johns dropping rapidly, those lunker bass should be coming out of their hiding places in the cow pastures.

Panfish continue to be the main item on the menu in the Wekiva river, according to Ottis Faulk at Camp Seminole. Bill Zinck boasts a one pound. seven ounce shellcracker, which is being mounted for proof.

Visitors to Wekiva River Haven have enjoyed plentiful catches of redbreast bream. Strings up to 25 per boat have been taken. Only a few small bass have been reported. SALT WATER SCENE- Tom "Hoppy" Hopkins and Jake Knight abandoned their fly-rods temporarily in favor of surf casting rigs and paid a visit to the East Coast. They were rewarded for their efforts with 15 blues and a 15 pound channel bass. We understand that Jake is the one that bass. We understand that Jake is the one that scored with the big redfish, and he hasn't let "Hoppy" forget it.

Main Street Pier in Daytona is providing some good fishing with Spanish mackerel, bluefish, drum in the eight to ten pound class, scattered trout, and plenty of sheephead. The mackerel are hitting on "Seahawk" plugs early morning and late afternoon. Bluefish have shown a preference for live fingerling mullet.

The "Fishin' Hole" in Daytona reported two king mackerel caught off the Sunglow Pier weighing in at 141/2 and 171/2 pounds, which is a lot of Jack Concannon when the Orleans, Miami takes on fish to be played and landed from a pier. These Packers host the Washington Atlanta, Cincinnati is at Baltikings were taken on a "Sea Hawk."

Drum Biting Well

Drum are biting well off the Daytona bridges Several snook were landed in the Tomoka Basin area. One angler claims he saw a snook which he swears would have gone thirty pounds. Of course, the big one has yet to be put on the scales.

We finally have word of trout being caught in the area from Three Sisters Islands on down to Mosquito Lagoon. Hubert Madrin found 36 trout 12 to 18 inches long using the reliable "Mirro-lure"

Ocean fishing is again "red-hot." The "Snowwhite 2" ran Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, with the best catch coming in Thursday. Passengers aboard the bottom fishing boat hauled in a total of 200 red snapper averaging 11/2 to 2 pounds. Grouper were also in a hungry mood with many in the 2 to 3 pound class being landed.

Basketball Pro Chart

UTAH STARS ABA — Western Division

1973-74 finish: W 51, L 33 - 1st place The Stars have been one of pro basketball's enigmas: each year they have a winning record and each year their attendance declines. Last season was their fourth in a row with 50 or more victories (the only ABA team ever to achieve such consistent success). And they won their third consecutive Western Division title. In fact, they went to the final round of the playoffs before bowing to the New York Nets. Nevertheless, attendance

This season, the Stars should find continued success on the court, and for a change, success at the box office. The latter was assured by the sale of 7,000 season tickets before new owner James Collier would agree to buy the team from Bill Daniels for an estimated $3 million. Shortly after acquiring the club, Collier sank nearly another $3 million into it by signing high school sensation Moses Malone.

FORWARDS: Willie Wise, the leader in the voting for the ABA's All-Defensive team last season and a 22.3 scorer, is one of the best two-way forwards in the game. His only problem is that he gets little acclaim, doing his job quietly, efficiently and without flair. Gerald Govan's big glasses indicate that he has trouble seeing, and that is reflected in his shooting, which is poor, but he is a workmanlike rebounder and capable defender, using his long arms to advantage. Bruce Seals, a second-year pro, still has a lot to learn. Rating: B.

CENTERS: Malone, a dazzling high school player, probably will require some time making the giant leap over college into the pros, but once he becomes acclimated and hardened, he will give the Stars a first-rate center. Unquestionably, he has all the equipment, including speed, agility, an outstanding shooting touch and leaping ability. His immediate drawbacks are youth (he's only 19) and inexperience. Meanwhile, the Stars have two capable albeit slow and heavy-footed veterans in Jim Eakins, an All-Star last season with Virginia, and Randy Denton, acquired from Memphis. Rating: B.

GUARDS: It would be difficult to find a better and more durable backcourt combination in the ABA than the Stars' All-Star guards, Jimmy Jones and Ron Boone. Jones is among the league's all-time leaders in nearly every shooting category. Boone, a former "sixth man," but a starter since the middle of the 1972-73 season, hasn't missed a game in six years. Both finished among the leaders in scoring, assists, steals, field goal percentage and free throw accuracy last season. When Jones or Boone needs a rest, their replacements will be Al Smith, who led the league in assists last year at Denver, and Larry Miller, whose shooting has declined recently. Rating: A.

PREDICTION: New Coach Bucky Buckwalter promises that down tactics employed last season under Joe Mullaney. That should suit the Stars fine - and the fans, too. First in West.

Home Industry Economic Key

There's a lot of belt tightening going on these days. We're in what some economists say is a recession. Some - prophets of doom or not - say we're heading for a duplication of the

I don't think there's any doubt about the recession. I'm not sure, however, we're headed for a depression. But we could be if the largest general industry in this country isn't turned around and headed in the right direction fast.

We're talking about the home building industry. In this section of the country very few new home starts are being recorded. Unfortunately, too, the same situation can be

Commercial construction has slowed considerably but, thank goodness, it hasn't stopped. But, there's not enough commercial construction going on to keep all the tradesmen busy.

First of all you don't have to be an economist to travel back to 1952 when General Eisenhower moved into the White House. The war had been over seven years. America's peacetime industry was almost back to normal. Home construction starts were setting records from Florida to California and from Maine to Washington state. Suddenly, there were more homes than buyers. The nation encountered its initial post-war recession. It was slight, however, and when the number of home buyers caught up with the supply the construction industry went into full swing and the recession ended

We went through the same thing in 1957. And, it has happened several times since than — nationwide. It has happened perhaps more often on a regional basis. However, the country remained on a pretty even keel when the supply of homes was not greater than

Reasons For Slowdown

The first inkling of a severe recession - and we call it that for lack of a better word - came in late 1970 when a slowdown occurred in the construction industry. However, it was for a dif-In fact, it was because of several different reasons. Let's talk about them for a moment. First, states like Florida began demanding that tax assessors re-evaluate property assessments. In many cases assessed evaluations went up with very little, if any millage reductions. This caused tax increases. Secondly, as assessed evaluation went up alert insurance salesmen sold homeowners, and rightly so, more coverage on their properties. So, along with taxes, insurance costs started Thirdly because of the demand for greater returns on their money, investors - seeing the demand for mortgage money -- increased their interest rates. Fourthly, because of the increases in taxes, insurance and struction went up on their prices in order to increase income to pay higher salaries for their employes.

It got to be a vicious cycle and home prices became inflated. Now, lets examine this fourth phase. Possibly the average citizen doesn't realize it, but there are more than 5,000 different materials used in the construction of an such as the carburetor on your oil-fired central heating system and literally thousands of others. Inagine the hundreds of items you don't even know are there.

Materials Demand Drops

Let's take, for example, the proverbial kitchen sink. Usually there are somewhere around 1.5 million to 2 million new homes constructed every year in this country.

When home construction stops there's little need for the raw materials needed to manufacture those sinks. There's little need for the men and equipment to transport those raw materials to the factories. There's little need for the men and machinery to make the sinks. There's little need for the men and and materials to package the sinks for shipment. There's little need for the job-

There's little need for the warehouses and the men to handle the sinks when placed in temporary storage. There's little need men and equipment to shop the sinks to the plumbing contractors. There's little need for men, trucks and tools to transport and install the sinks in homes that aren't being built.

Multiply that sink by 5,000 other items which go into the construction of a home and you immediately begin to understand what this so called "recession-depression" is all about. It is our opinion, from the past and the present, that recessions and slumps in the home construction industry have gone hand in hand.

Now, let's return to the 1970s. What's happening now could easily have happened in 1970 had it not been for one thing - the FHA 235 program.

Government Help

You'll recall that the construction industry was grinding to a halt when the government established the subsidy program. Under 235 — in a nutshell — the government said to the family entering homeownership primarily for the first time, if you'll buy this house the government will help you with your monthly payments. For example, you put up a $200 down payment on a jects affected include furniture, often merely opening a window particular house. The monthly payments of principal, interest, pictures, parts of the building, now and then is sufficient. taxes and insurance will amount to - let's say - $160 per month. The government said it would pay - based on your income - let's In each case, there is one When there is too little water say, $70 per month and you pay the other $90.

Sure, it was abused by some. But, for the most part it worked When a house holds too much differ is the best way of adding and it kept the home construction industry going, avoided a recession, and tradesmen kept their jobs.

Then HUD (Department of Housing and Urban Development) came along. It stopped the 235 program. Again the construction industry - because of excessive interest rates, high down payments, and insurmountable monthly house payments started grinding to a halt. This time the government has not acted - at least not until recently. And, what the government has done — in most everybody's opinion — will have little or no effect on the home construction industry. In our humble opinion, there'll be no let-up in this present economic crunch until the government does take some action to make homes available for the newlyweds, the young families, and other families who now want to enter the homeowners market.

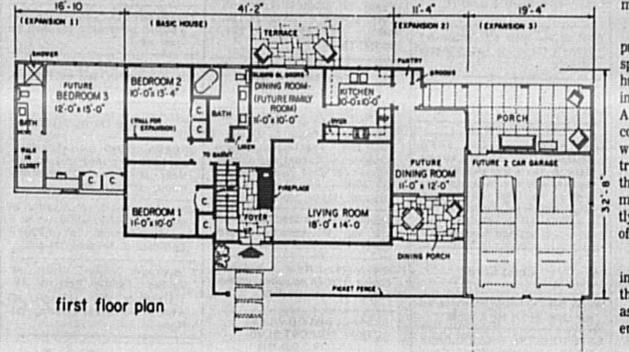

Sure, some say let's never have another FHA 235 program. But, since Uncle Sam gives our money to everybody else in this world why not use a little portion of it - and a little is all it would take to subsidize homes for a short while for families who can't afford

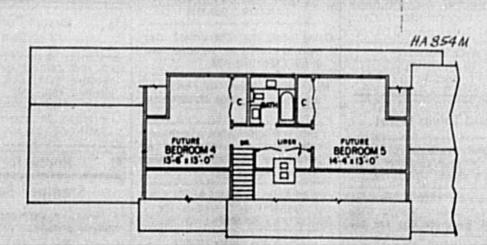

You can talk about the advertising industry, the insurance industry and all the other giant industries. But remember one thing. More people are involved in the construction of homes than any other industry in this nation. Put them back to work and you might return old man recession to his dark hoje
