Problem with glass threatens U.S. historical documents

WASHINGTON — Three of America's most precious documents may be at risk from the deterioration of their protective glass cases.

Experts have determined that panes holding the Declaration of Independence, the Constitu-tion and the Bill of Rights are cracking and producing an alkali that could damage the parchments. But there is no evidence that the documents have been sullied or that they will be soon, said Dr. Norbert S. Baer, a New York University professor of conservation and head of a National Archives advisory panel.

Still, the committee will recommend changes in the preservation of the documents.

men nabbed on firearms charges

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Three Sanford men arrested on firearms charges Saturday night may be suspects in the March 25 armed robbery of the Lake Mary Krystal Restaurant. James Ward, 23, 2724 Ridgewood Ave., Michael Sims, 17, 31 Lake Monroe Terrace and Bruce McCray. 17. 120 Bethune Circle were arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies for carrying a concealed firearm and possession of a short-barreled shotgun. The trio was arrested in the parking lot of a gas station at 4730 West State Road 46 near Sanford, sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said Monday, in response to a 'be on the lookout' (BOLO) call from Sanford police earlier that evening for a brown station wagon occupied by three men who were armed. McDonough gave this account of the arrest: Deputy Sheriff Matt Hardesty was patrolling SR 46 near Sanford about 11:15 p.m. this past Saturday, April 1st when he noticed a brown station wagon occupied by three black males. The men were acting suspiciously.

The station wagon matched the description of the vehicle that had been broadcast earlier in the evening by the Sanford Police Department. The BOLO claimed the three men in the station wagon were armed and were going to commit armed robberies.

Deputy sheriff Hardesty stopped the station wagon in the parking lot of a gas station at 4730 W. SR 46. As he and deputy sheriff Al Green approached the vehicle. they noticed a rifle butt near the front seat. Both deputies drew their firearms and ordered all three men out of the vehicle.

All of the suspects were handcuffed. Inside the vehicle, the deputies found a sawed-off shotgun and a .380 caliber handgun as well as a black ski cap and gloves. The weapons matched the description of the weapons used in the Krystal robbery on March 25 and the vehicle description was also similar.

All three suspects were arrested for carrying a concealed firearm, which is a third degree felony and possession of a short-harreled shotgun which is a second degree felony.

Toxins concern Dade officials

MIAMI — Dade County officials aren't as concerned about the crowded skies over the Miami International Airport as they are with the stinky and toxic chemicals in the ground under the square miles of concrete and buildings.

The toxins include paint removers that oozed from improperly stored drums to jet engine cleaning chemicals leaked into the ground from rusty pipes or broken valves. It adds up to a half-century of environmental neglect by airlines. rental-car agencies and airport officials.

The cost of cleaning up the chemical cesspool underneath the airport could cost up to $383.6 million over 20 years.

Airport officials say it's hard to arrive at an actual price tag since the extent of the toxic mess isn't known. So far, Dade County officials have identified 29 zones where chemicals pose

Police: Serial killer may be trucker

KINGSPORT, Tenn. - Police here think a trucker nicknamed Stargaser may be a serial killer responsible for the murder of up to 21 women over the past decade in several states, including Florida.

Ohioan Alice Rebecca Hanes, 36, was suffocated last month, and her body was found under a bridge near interstate 81.
Police Chief Jim Keesling said Monday that the investigation has focused on the theory of a serial killer, though other ideas aren't being ruled out.

"We now believe from the preliminary autopsy, physical evidence and other information (the) murder is probably related to other victims who have been killed in a similar manner." Keesling said.

At least two victims found in 1991 in Virginia — Brenda Kay Hagy, 45, and Margaret Sue Goins. 26 — were probably killed by the same person who murdered Hanes, police said.

Keesling hopes to meet with police in other states to exchange information. Victims have been found in Florida. Virginia, Ohio, Tennessee, Georgia, Indiana and Virginia in similar circumstances - sufficated or strangled with tire tracks from a truck visible at the scene.

Police haven't disclosed the evidence that led them to believe the killer might go by the nickname Stargaser.

Reality time for GOP

Partisan bickering begins over budget

By ADAM YEOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Senate Republicans are prepared to defend their $38.7 billion state spending proposal from Democratic charges that it cuts too deep on social services and higher education. Sen. Ken Jenne, who leads the chamber's Democrats, said the budget proposal produced by the GOP-led Senate limits student access to universities and cuts health care for welfare recipients but doesn't go very far in actually reducing government spending.

"It's reality-check time for the Republicans," said Jenne of Fort Lauderdale. You said that there was waste in government. You said you were going to do something about it."

Jenne's objections sounded like the start of a partisan fight over the budget, although he said he agreed with other spending recommendations such as prisons and public safety.

Senate Ways and Means Chairman Mario Diaz-Balart downplayed the politics as the budget heads to the floors of both chambers on what he'd like to do, we welcome them. ... I don't expect this to be a partisan battle, said Diaz-Balart, R-Miami.

in the past two months, Diaz-Balart orchestrated a 25 percent budget-cutting exercise for government agencies to prioritize their spending. But the agency facing the biggest percentage cut in the Senate's budget is the office of Democratic Gov. Lawton Chiles.

The Senate has proposed cutting the governor's spending by 13.5 percent next year, primarily by eliminating or reducing spending on commissions for Hispanics. blacks, Native Americans, quality management and other areas.

Jenne said much of the $1.2 billion in cuts touted by GOP leaders consisted of shifting money from different government accounts. He said the Senate's spending cuts amount to about 1.3 percent.

When the proposed plan comes before the full Senate on Thursday, Democrats will offer a series of proposals to restore cuts to state universities and Medicaid, Jenne said. He will find it a tough sell with Republicans controlling 22 of the chamber's

"If he has any specific recommendations 40 seats, the first time the GOP has held a majority in more than a century.

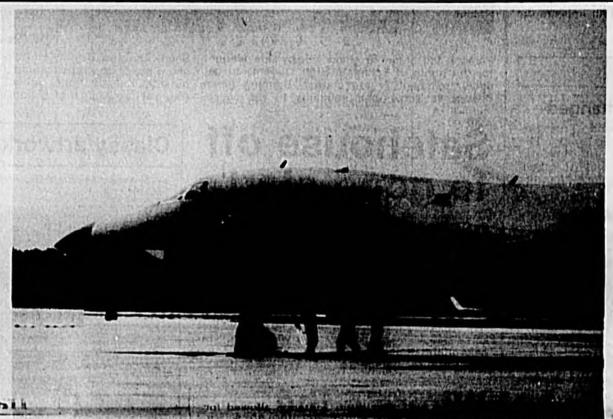

"There's a lot of things in this budget we're going to question on the floor," Jenne said. "I don't know if we're going to win this

The House has proposed a $38.9 billion budget, while the governor asked for $39.9

Jenne said he would seek to restore some of the $25.3 million that Senate leaders want to cut from the State University System for financial aid, campus security and health centers.

Democrats also will seek to maintain the inpatient hospital cap for Medicaid patients at 45 days. The Senate budget wants to reduce it to 34 days to cut $63 million, he

After enduring the budget-cutting exercise, the governor's office is piqued about the Senate's proposal to cut Chiles' budget from $26.1 million this year to $23.4 million in 1995-96. The House would reduce the governor's budget 4.5 percent to $25.7

The super-streamlined B-1 bomber, one of the aircraft on display during this past weekend's Airshow Orlando at the Sanford airport, was still on hand as of this morning. Flight crews have cordoned off the aircraft and have been working on the problem. There was no immediate word on when the bomber will be able to leave.

Foster mom vows fight over adoption

By WILL LESTER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - The university administrator who disappeared for more than three weeks with her 21/2-year-old foster daughter wept in jail Monday as the state's welfare agency worked to have the girl adopted by relatives. Kathryn Reiter, who surrendered and returned the child known as Baby J over the weekend, was distraught Monday, crying and "fearful of what may happen in the future." said her attorney Elio Vasquez.

But he said she was optimistic after "I explained the law to her and how we intend to go forward. ... She is going to fight tooth and nail to the end regarding both the charges against her and getting the child

Mrs. Reiter, 37, returned the child Sunday to the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. The agency then turned the child over to cousins of the biological mother, a crack cocaine addict.

"We will now move ahead with the termination of (the biological mother's) parental rights and free her up for adoption by her family," said Anita Bock, district director for the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services. "She knows her family and therefore there was no trauma involved in the (Sunday) transition for her."

Mrs. Reiter, who worked at Nova Southeastern University, fled with the child March 9 after a judge awarded custody of the child to the cousins.

Jailed in Dade County on $100,000 bond. she must first deal with her own legal troubles. Her attorneys hope to have her moved to Broward County jail by the end of the week and in front of a Broward judge by next week.

She is charged by Hollywood police with concealing a child in violation of a court order and also faces a civil court contempt charge in Dade County.

Mrs. Reiter and her 74-year husband. Sidney, have said that giving the child away after spending two years with them is Inhumane.

HRS contends the Reiters were fully aware they were not adopting Baby J and signed documents to that effect. Mrs. Reiter sent her 7-year-old adopted son Tommy to stay with a family friend

Sunday before turning herself in. Anthony Carbone, the attorney for Baby J's cousins, said the couple was thrilled to have the toddler in their home. They have two teen-age children. "They took her, fed her, got her some more clothes and moved her in to her room, which has been waiting for her," Carbone said. "They made her a first bowl of Spanish soup. The family has wanted the child to be familiar with her Hispanic heritage." The Reiters have raised Baby J since she was 6 months old. They wanted to adopt her - as they adopted Tommy four years ago.

The Reiters say an HRB caseworker told them they could adopt the child if they would first give her a foster home.

ife receives maximum sentence for death

Associated Press Writer

MOORE HAVEN, Fla. - Before sentencing Cheryl Mickler, a circuit judge recounted trial testimony about the grisly condition of her husband just before his death. Scott Mickler was found by emergency personnel lying on a bed covered with rotting flesh and human waste in a room with an overpowering stench. A doctor testified he suffered form "unbelievable gangrene" that left bones visible and was causing toes and heels to fall off.

"The quadriplegic victim was alert and asking for help," said Circuit Judge Thomas Reese, who noted that Cheryl Mickler was her husband's "sole Reese sentenced her Monday to 15 years in prison, the maximum sentence allowed for her conviction for abuse of neglect of a disabled adult. Recase exceeded sentencing guidelines that recommended 5.5 years on the charge.

"The defendant's conduct was both extraordinary and egregious,".... said Judge Thomas Reese, who also cited the great amount of abuse, neglect and psychological trauma suffered by Scott Mickler before his 1990 death.

Granting a prosecution re-quest and departing from state sentencing guidelines that re-commended 3½ years for Cheryl Mickler, convicted Feb. 6 of abuse or neglect of a disabled adult, Reese recounted trial testimony about the ghastly condition medical personnel found her late husband in.

Reese also ordered Mrs. Mickler to pay $68,119, including Glades County investigative and court costs, as well as more than $11,000 for the state crime victim's compensation fund.

Scott Mickler's mother, Mary, testified at the sentencing hearing on behalf of his survivors, including his father and brother. Mary Mickler said her daughter-in-law chose death for her son and should be held accountable for her actions.

Later, outside the courtroom, she said the family saw the aentencing as "the closing of this chapter of life. We will focus on the future to go on ... We will go

Assistant State Attorney John Pietrofesa had urged the maximum sentence for a case he called "absolutely horrible in every sense of the word."

Cheryl Mickler declined to speak before sentencing and showed no reaction to the sentence. Her attorney, Douglas Duncan of West Palm Beach, said she had expected the judge to exceed the sentencing guidelines. The judge also denied her request for retrial.

Duncan filed a notice of appeal for both her conviction and sentencing.

Cheryl Mickler was turned over to state prison officials after the hearing.

Promises, promises

Without mentioning names, when candidates seek election or re-election, they seem to have a tendency to call for improved cooperation. "By working together," they may say, "we can really move forward."

Once elected however, the cooperation is often difficult to obtain. One of the reasons is laws and restrictions. People may want to accomplish miracles, but are unable to do so because some entity has regulations which, if not followed to the tee, prevents progress.

Another of the problems is what appears to be an ever-growing "me" attitude. Rather than government entities working together toward resolving a problem or making improvements, they appear to be constantly fighting.

While some commissions, councils and boards work well together on matters regarding their own jurisdictions, even some of these are fraught with difficulties. For some, split votes are common rather than an exception.

Cities thus want what they see as belonging to them. Counties do likewise, and the state is no exception.

Then the boards often have jurisdictions over similar situations, and again, each wants what is theirs rather than show concern over what others may require.

A citizen just seeking to build or establish one structure, may have to go through a half dozen or more boards, commissions, associations and departments. In each, they will be obliged to adhere to many restrictions and codesabaiaq

Certainly, restrictions and codes are supposed to have been enacted to protect the environment, wildlife, forest land, and other is it any wonder people who may help make progress look elsewhere to establish themselves. Protection of life and property is important. But causing endless expense and wasting months, even years of time, is unfair to the people.

We would like to see government entities working together for the benefit of everyone rather than constantly fighting with each

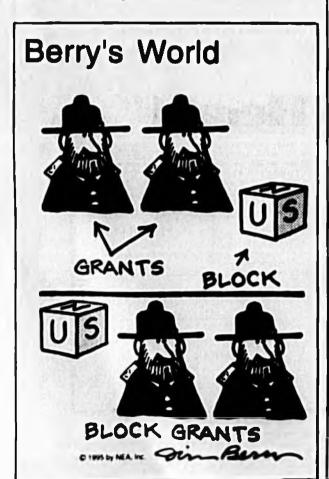

We would like to see codes and restrictions streamlined to help the people rather than destroy growth.

Yes, we'd also like to see a cure for polio or AIDS.

It sounds like an unreachable goal, but nothing will ever be accomplished unless we take the first step. Working together can accomplish great things. Working only with a "me" attitude won't accomplish anything.

Social insecurity is No. 1 problem

What do you think is the most important reading for foreign affairs had dropped to 14 problem facing this country today? Here are your choices: 1) economic issues, 2) social issues, 3)

That is the question and those are the choices offered by the Washington Post/ABC News Poll on 36 separate occasions since 1981. The historical series, just published, paints a picture of recent American political and social history ...

and potential trouble for President Clinton.
In the first part of the '80s (1981-1986), the economic issues were way ahead: An average of 56 percent of the public said that's what was troubling them most. After all, there had been a sharp recession in 1981 and it took several years to recoup and get back on an ascendant track. The Cold War was still going on and the issue of foreign affairs was in second place, with an average response of 16 percent. In dead last place, with an 8 percent average, were the 'social issues." In the early '80s, just before the crack epidemic hit, crime rates were going down

Later (1986-1991) the economy improved, and consequently diminished as a "problem." reported by only 23 percent of respondents. The Cold War had ended. Even with a ripple of concern about Kuwait in 1991, the average percent. Crime started going up, and the social issues moved into first place, with 43 percent.

Consider next a fascinating moment. the run-up to the 1992 election that made Bill Clinton president. What turned out to be a rather modest recession was slowly beginning to head north. But that's not what was headlined. The neon pronouncements said that the three biggest issues were "jobs, jobs, jobs," and that America's No. 1 problem was "the economy, stupid."

Well, maybe. And maybe not. There were four "takings" of the question from late 1991 to late 1992. Two of these showed economic issues in first place. Two of them showed social issues in first place. The average for economic was 40 percent. The average for social was 40 percent. Such results are often called a tic.

Alas, poor George Bush. He may well have believed that it was all about "jobs, jobs, jobs." He barely raised the social issues in his general election campaign. So frightened was he by the nasty way the media spun the conservative Houston Republican convention, he hardly mentioned crime, welfare or race preference, let alone gays in the military. Bush ran on "trust."
He said Clinton was a "bozo" who waffled so much he ate at "the waffle house." Bush lost.

Comes now. There have been six takings of the survey since November of 1993. The foreign affairs issue has sunk without a trace - an average score of only 3 percent. Sic transit gloria

The economy is doing rather well. This situation, depending on whom you're talking to, is referred to as either "the Clinton Recovery." 'the Bush Recovery" or "what usually happens after a recession." And so the economy gets a mere 18 percent average.

The social issues are king of the hill, with a rating of 61 percent.

Another black hero has faded

WASHINGTON - What do the crocuses springing to life in gray gardens have in common with late basketball player Reggie Lewis, who died young in 1993 of a heart attack?

Not nearly enough, it seems. Each March, I look for the crocuses; for the rush provided by the bright purple flowers that are spring's first heralds. Too quickly, they fade, replaced by showier blooms - until the next year. Boston Celtics team Captain Lewis was a bright herald, too - of the kind of humble athlete we see all too rarely. Known for his philanthropy and immaculate reputation, Lewis too has been replaced by younger.

brighter talents. But Reggle can't come back. He can't remind us of who he was or how much he meant.

Which is tragic, considering the recent Wall Street Journal article that suggests Lewis' death may have resulted from cocaine use and not from an adenovirus, which supposedly attacked the hoopster's heart.

Maybe it's odd, comparing a man who played such a demanding game to a flower. But little about Lewis' life or death ever fit our everyday sense of things:

The poor-boy-turned-millionaire who gave endlessly to the needy; the powerful Celtic felled by a microbe that causes the common cold: the black hero whose funeral was Boston's most attended.

But the comparison makes more sense than the Journal printing its speculation now — some two years after Lewis' death, and weeks before his jersey is to be retired.

The problem isn't just that Lewis was a rare black hero in a city that is among the nation's most racially polarized, or that even celebrities deserve to rest in peace.

What rankles is that the Journal couldn't prove that cocaine killed Lewis, and still speculated about it in print. What's intolerable is that the reputation of a man who can't defend himself, and the feelings of his widow and children, were hurt in the name of "the public's right to know." Or the public's right to suspect.

The article stated that family members. lawyers, Celtics officials and some doctors sidestepped the possibility that cocaine use was responsible for Lewis' heart problems.

Lewis, then 27, first collapsed during a playoff game and was examined by a team of doctors who warned him that his career might be over. Lewis then switched hospitals and got another opinion: that his problem was a relatively benign fainting condition. Less than two months after his release. Lewis was dead.

Some member of Lewis's first team of doctors suspected cocaine might have caused ther heart muscle scarring they discovered. reported the Jorunal. Lewis' refusal to submit to drug tests, the paper said, increased their suspicions.

When Lewis died, no mention of drug use was made by either group of doctors - though several heart specialists quoted in the Journal agree that adenovirus 2 was an unlikely cause of death. The Journal reported that medical examiners were threatened with a lawsuit by a Lewis family lawyer

"if anything came out about drugs" an allegation that a family lawyer denies.

In Boston, reaction to the Journal article was swift: Celtics Chairman Paul Gaston announced he would sue the newspaper for libel; Lewis's widow. Donna Harris-Lewis. insisted through a face full of tears that "Reggie did not use investigations of his death were pending.

"When a black athlete dies," said Celtics Chairman Gaston, who is white, "people do not believe it's not because of guns or drugs."

They didn't this time at the Journal. Because the paper only cited medical speculation that Lewis used drugs - and failed to mention other causes of heart-muscle scarring, or whether Lewis' family had any history of heart disease - readers were left with this: He was a poor, black inner-city Baltimore youth whose mother abused cocaine.

But many poor, urban kids hate and reject drugs - just as rich suburbanites may be users. Addictions run in some families; often they do not. Ironically, a Lewis friend quoted in the piece said the athlete didn't submit to drug tests because he felt the request wouldn't have been made of a similarly squeaky-clean white

Yet here we are. Just as I need crocuses to remind me of the beauty to come, we need heroes - especially black ones. Crushing one for speculation's sake seems foolish and mean. But as predictably as winter blooms into spring, an investigation has been launched into the Journal's allegations. As quickly as crocuses come and go, another black hero will have faded.

GOP serves up same old sushi on shingle

House Speaker Newt Gingrich and his newt army have worked extremely hard to meet the terms of their ballyhooed "Contract With America," including the bad parts that run up the deficit.

They have passed most of the measures they promised in one form or another and sent them on to the Senate, where, no fault of Newt's, decidedly cooler heads have prevailed on many items.

Two of the 10 articles in the contract -- limitations on the imposition of federal mandates on the states and a measure forcing Congress to abide by some of the major rules it forces upon the rest of us --- have been signed into law.

So, give them their due, the new chefs on the Hill have come up with some exotic creations and deserve commendation.

All in all, knows what I am referring to. I speak of the creamed crud they used to serve us on toast. Stuff on a shingle, we called it, or words to that effect. Same old stuff, the more cultured among us called it.

Actually, that's a tired metaphor which I've used a few times before, isn't it? OK, how about something equally malodorous and unappetizing? How about sushi on a shingle?

Take term limits. The Republicans made a big deal out of this one. They were so doggone noble, they said, they would fix what's wrong with America and then force themselves to quit.

Right. No one I know who is familiar with the issue believes Newt Gingrich's heart was ever in the fight. He does not like the notion of term limits, perhaps because he is into his eighth term. And so, Newt and his most trusted Newtoids came up with some imaginary ways to defeat term-limit proposals.

Why do you think the House voted on a constitutional amendment, as opposed to a simple statute? Because it required a virtually unobtainable two-thirds majority - 290 votes - that's why. Why do you think the House voted on four different versions? It was a deliberate tactic that split the term-limit vote in such a fashion that no one bill could win, that's why. It allowed the members to vote for one hopeless proposal or another. thus giving them wiggle room with the folks Smells like the same old Szechuan Bull to me, buddy. Take all those spending cuts. The Republicans have sliced public broadcasting and hacked away at housing for the poor and slashed the school lunch program, but they haven't touched the slabs of fatback that buy them constituent loyalty.

Check out the $243 billion defense budget. There you'll find an $11 million item for military purchases of executive jets built by a Kansas corporation. Say, isn't that where Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole lives? You'll also find $1.5 million dedicated to the round-up of wild horses on the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico. Doublecheck me here, but ian't that where Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici is from?

Tastes like the same old shredded pork to me, friend.

Take congressional pay and pensions. I know, the Republicans haven't said a damn word about pay and pensions, and that's the point. They don't seem to mind pocketing the big pay raise, complete with a cost-of-living provision, that the Democrats pushed through for them a few years ago.

Road weight limits, restricted usage top commission agenda

By SAMORA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - Ordinances revising weight limits on city streets and restricting usage to "local traffic only" on some roads along with a measure revamping code enforcement board rules will be presented for first readings later this month after commissioners gave the proposals the green light Monday night.

Three members of the Longwood City Commission made quick work of the evening's agenda, completing their work before the 10 p.m. deadline.

In recent months, lengthly agendas and discussions have required extending the meetings beyond the designated time called for in the city charter. Votes on some agenda items were deferred until all com-mission members could be present. Commissioners Bill Winston and Annamarie Vacca were unable to attend the meeting.

The commissioners will also take up the question of board appointments from designated districts at the next meeting. Earlier, the commission agreed board appointments should be made from within the commissioners' respective districts to promote equal representation and avoid more than two appointees from the same district on a board.

By voice vote Monday, the panel approved a five-year extension of the Medicare Select program, now authorized for just 15 states.

The House Ways and Means Committee last month voted to expand Medicare Select to all 50 states permanently. Leaders of the two committees are expected to seek a compromise so the House can vote on the program before lawmakers head home Friday on their spring break.

About 450,000 seniors are enrolled in Medicare Select policies in the 15 demonstration states.

They typically save 10 percent to 37 percent on Medicare premiums and deductibles by agreeing to go to physicians and facilities in their plan's network. They pay more if they choose to go outside the network. The plans also can raise members' premiums as they age.

The 15 demonstration states are Alabama, Arizona, California, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, Ohio, Texas, Washington and Wisconsin.

After seven days of deliberations, a jury Monday convicted Aramony of 25 counts of fraud, conspiracy and money laundering. Two other former United Way executives, Thomas Merlo and Stephen Paulachak, also were convicted.

Aramony, whose lawyer argued that brain atrophy made him impulsive and less able to reason, was silent as the verdicts were read, and had no comment as he left the courthouse.

This verdict sends the message that society won't tolerate individuals who are charged with protecting the precious assets of charity diverting those assets for their own personal use," Assistant U.S. Attorney Randy Bellows said.

Aramony and Merlo, who was convicted of 17 counts, could get about five years in prison. Paulachak, convicted of eight counts, could get about two years. A judge will also rule on the amount each faces in fines.

The three are free on bond pending a June 14 sentencing hearing. All plan to appeal.

Controversy at 'Sunset Boulevard'

NEW YORK - A "furious and insulted" Glenn Close says she is ready for her last curtain call of "Sunset Boulevard."

Close sent a scathing letter to composer Andrew Lloyd Webber upon learning that ticket sales were inflated by $150,000 a week to make understudy Karen Mason look good. Daily Variety reported Monday.

O'Connor first woman to preside

WASHINGTON - A woman has presided over a Supreme Court session for the first time in history.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor sat in the middle chair usually occupied by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist for 20 minutes Monday because both he and Justice John Paul Stevens, the senior associate justice, were absent. O'Connor, who became the first woman on the Supreme Court when she joined in 1981 is now third in seniority among the court's nine members.

Only five of the court's nine justices were on hand for the historic, if abbreviated, session to handle mostly routine administrative matters, such as administering the oath to 140 lawyers signing onto the Supreme Court Bar to they can practice before the court.

Danger of wider war in Bosnia

WASHINGTON - Renewed fighting in Bosnia is relatively minor now but could break out into wider conflict, increasing pressure on Western allies to find a peace settlement, British Prime Minister John Major says.

Continuing top-level meetings in Washington today, including a working lunch with President Clinton, Major is focusing on the Balkan conflict as an area in which U.S.-British cooperation is essential.

On Monday, he underscored Britain's agreement with the United States on continuing the arms embargo over Bosnia and pressed congressional leaders not to force a change in administration policy.

Major said the United States and Britain will continue their efforts to gain a peace settlement in Bosnia and he played down the severity of the most recent military clashes between Bosnian government and Serb forces.

WASHINGTON - The $500-per-child tax credit for families may be getting most of the attention, but the House's GOP's "Contract With America" taxreduction package also gives businesses much of the relief they wanted.

One major tax cut and one of the most criticized - elimination of the corporate minimum tax - wasn't even in the original GOP proposal.

Business groups, from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce to manufacturers, real estate agents, restau int owners and bankers, all are strongly backing the package of $189 billion in tax cuts over five years. They hope an accord reached between s will give Republicans the margin they need to pass the

The accord, a watered-down version of the Republican moderates' proposed amendment to the bill, would prevent the tax cuts from becoming effective unless Congress later this year adopts a budget that projects a balanced budget by 2002.

"We have taken what was a tax-cut bill and made it a balanced-budget bill with a tax--cut component. We have changed the fundamentals of what we're dealing with," said Rep. Michael Castle, R-Del., a leader of the moderates.

However, Rep. Glen Browder, D-Ala., dismissed the deal as "a fig leaf alternative" that lacked the threat in the moderates' original amendment of permanently revoking the tax cuts if any of a series of specific annual deficit targets for fiscal 1996 to 2002 was missed.

Browder and other conservative Democrata had joined with Castle, Rep. Fred Upton, R-Mich., and other moderate Republicans in pushing the tougher version.

Despite the agreement with GOP moderates, the Republican leadership was not yet certain of having enough votes to pass the bill. It can spare only 12 Re-publican defections without having to count on Democratic However, House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., predicted the votes would be in place by Wednesday, the scheduled start of the debate.

Frankly, I think one of the incentives we have is that if we don't pass this we're not going home. And I think we'll get the last three votes on that threat alone," Gingrich said Monday.

Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, chairman of the House Budget Committee, said the deal with the Castle-Upton contingent would give outside groups presauring Congress for the tax cuts a reason to hang together and lobby for deficit reduction.

At the top of the business wish list is a sharp reduction in the corporate tax on profits from the sale of securities, real estate and other assets, from 35 percent to 25 percent, retroactive to Jan. 1. The top personal rate on capital gains would drop in half, to 19.8 percent, also retroactively, and gains would be adjusted to exclude the effects of inflation.

Regarding the quilting challenge. Meredith L. Schroeder, president of the socicty commented. "There is an exceptional field of quilts in a wide variety of patterns, colors, designs and styles included in CASSELBERRY — The battery of pitchers Mike Johnson and Matt Huston and catcher Peter Gill were the stars Monday night as the Lake Howell Silver Hawks edged the Lake Mary Rams 3-2 in a Seminole Athletic Conference baseball contest at the Lake Howell Baseball Complex.

The Rams took the early advantage, scoring a run in the top of the third inning, but Gill erased that deficit, doubling in a pair of runs in the . bottom of the third inning to put Lake Howell ahead for good.

The Silver Hawks improved to 12-4 overall and 4-1 in the SAC, while Lake Mary fell to 9-8 and 1-4. The Rams will look to get back in the win column today as they travel to Seminole for a 4 p.m. SAC game. Lake Howell will wait until Wednesday to play, hitting the road to play

Harrick said. "He couldn't han-die the ball, dribble the ball. I have enough experience to know we'd be better off without him." Edney tried to play, but lasted less than three minutes. Cameron Dollar, a sophomore who had been under Edney's tutelage and had chased him in practice for two years, subbed for him with Arkaness leading 12-5.

"It really hurt a lot to just sit there," Edney said. "It was the worst thing I could imagine." John Wooden, the 84-year-old Wizard of Westwood, set in the stands and figured, along with almost everyone else, that the Bruins were headed for defeat without Edney.

But the Bruins, performing some wizardry of their own under the sharp eye of Harrick. had other ideas. Dollar and freshman guard Toby Bailey played inspired ball, Dollar guiding the team deftly on offence with eight assists and shutting down the Hogs' guards on defense. Balley scored 26 points on 12-for-20 shooting and had nine rebounds, and O'Beanon scored a routinely brillient 30 points while also leading both teams with 17 rebounds.

"Tyus taught me to get in the paint and use your speed and quickness," Bailey said. "If you watch Tyus' game, he doesn't go at just one goer. He knows how to turn it on and he knows how to score. Playing and practicing against him, I've learned to be able to do that.

"He got us here. He's the man. Everybody knows that, and he couldn't play today. That's hard to swallow. But at the same time, he led us just by us looking at his fice and the fire that was in his eyes. That makes you want to do it makes you want to do it. want to do it even more for the ball the first time he touched it, they played with confidence and passion in the second half after going into the locker room with a 40-30 lead.

In one telling sequence, O'Bannon tore a defensive rebound out of the hands of two Arkanasa players and threw a pass like a quarterback to Bailey. who charged in for a backward, hanging dunk that gave UCLA a 55-45 lead.

A few moments later, Bailey took off on another break. stopped and pumped in a short jumper. Then he stole the ball again, drove a little too hard on a banker, but grabbed his own offensive rebound and put it back in for a 65-53 lead.

Volunteer of the Week

She's organizing race to benefit Boys Town

By SUBAN WERNER Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - Boys Town, founded in 1917, has local facilities in Oviedo and Sanford. Originally referred to as Father Flanagan's Boy's Home, as of 1993, the facility has helped more than 20,000 abused, abandoned, neglected or otherwise troubled children across the United States. Through its hotline and indirect methods, over 500,000 children and parents have been assisted through its training programs.

Help available includes longterm residential care for boys and girls, treatment foster family services, common sense parenting, and emergency shelter services.

Kim Culp, site director, spoke highly of volunteer Sandy Hults. Hults came to the area in 1981. She is currently employed as a manager in the finance organization of Martin Marietta supervising a staff of 22 people.

Although Hults has an intense work schedule she enjoys ballet, opera, symphony, theatre, golf, tennis, snow skiing, racquetball and competitive race walking. She recently competed in the Disney Marathon.

She was involved for two years with the Orlando Shakespeare Guild, American Red Cross, and the Salling Club.

Her extra-curricular interests include membership in Florida Executive Women, Central Florida Walkers, Martin Marietta Management Club, Outdoors & Active, New Directions and most importantly a board member for Boya Town of Central Florida.

She is currently organizing and conducting a 5K race to benefit Boys Town. The event is scheduled for Saturday, April 6 at 7:30 a.m. beginning at Constitution Park, between South and Summerlin Streets (just east of Channel 9 television station). The entry fee will be $12 through Friday, April 7 or $15 on race day. "Everything we make will benefit Boys Town," said Hults. "Trophies and door prizes will be awarded. Everyone will receive a T-shirt for their participation, Refreshments will be also be available. They can register at the Track Shack,

She also discussed various sponsors of the run. "Some of the aponaors are the Central Florida Phonebook, ABC Fine Wines & Spirits, the Martin Marietta Management Club, Fine Hosts, and the William C. Demetree Foundation. I'm hoping for somewhere between 500 to 1000 people. That's my desire."

1322 Mills Ave. or call 898-

Huits' intitial involvment began because of a friend. "A friend of mine, Sarah Gurtis, who was with Sun Bank and also Florida Executive Women, asked me to serve on the board for Boys Town in March of 1903," she said. "The race was an idea that I had to increase the awareness of Boys Town in Central Florida. Since Boys Town relies on private and foundation donations and fees from governmental agencies, the average citizen needs to know we're here and what we do so they'll respond to a request for a contribution. We also thought we might reach people who needed the sevices of Boys Town or knew someone who did."

Because of her previous employment as a business manager for a psychiatric nursery school. Hults said she learned that "you need to work with children at an early age to try and give them a fighting chance in today's world. Children are basically good. They just need love, guidance and help at an early age to develop into a responsible adult.

She concluded by emphasizing,"Boys Town works at helping children prepare for the future. It's a great work."

DEAR MR. PSYCHIC: You're either a real person or a computer. The diversity of your information and range of knowledge is, to put it frankly, quite amazing, so I thought that I would put you to the test by just suggesting some subjects that interest me and maybe some of your other readers as well. What can you tell me about Wyatt Earp, Sioux Indians, scalping (not tickets), "Ben-Hur." Billy The Kid, and Mt. Rushmore. You see, I already have the answers and I want to see just how good vou are. LAKE MARY WASH-E-TEH PO-HOSH-KA PARA SAPA MIKE: In the language of the Lakota, the language of the Sioux, this means Welcome, white man, to the Black Hills. The Black Hills, the sacred lands of the Lakota which they will never sell for any price even though they have been

Sorry, but the Old West and Indian lore are some of my. favorite things. You see, I used to live for awhile on the Pine Ridge and one of my best friends years ago was a man named Joe American Horse, once a major track star in his day.

Wyatt Earp was born in 1843 and wasn't nearly the man everyone paints nim to be; moreover, he was a self pro-moter. You know the Old West only happened between 1877 and 1914. Mr. Earp was even a consultant on early western films and when he died in 1929.

it wasn't with his boots on but rather in his palatial estate in Beverly Hills, Calif.!

"Ben-Hur" was a fictional story written by the then governor of New Mexico, Lew Wallace, who just happened to be the governor at the time too of Billy the Kid and Pat Garrett. William H. Bonney was from Brooklyn. N.Y., a punk of a kid, just another juvenile delinquent but one who rode a horse! And did you know that Gutson Borglum. the sculptor of Mt. Rushmore, was a member of the Ku Klux Klan? As for scalping, the Indians didn't invent that: it was brought to this country by the Dutch settlers. Fact!

Although the Black Hills are now somewhat smaller than DiancyWorld in Orlando, you can't compare one to another. The majesty of the Black Hills. its history, its lore, and its elements such as gold, has the only gold producing mine in the United States today.

There is one attraction I would like to expose and that is the one known as The Crasy Horse Monument allegedly being constructed just outside Custer, 8.D. Well, over 40 years ago, a man named Kraior Zalkowski who also worked on Mt. Rushmore, began a project to create a monument to Chief Crazy Horse. Yet today it is unfinished as years ago Krajor had found out from the South Dakota School of Mines that he was actually on a mountain of

"shale" and any real attempt (to mine) would only blow the place into tiny pieces.

The monument would have been a real attraction. For instance, Crasy Horse was supposed to be riding on his horse with an arm outstretched. An example of the dimensions is that reportedly a single nostril would have been large enough to contain a six-bedroom house.

Turning down federal grants to help him years ago, he merely made up postcarde that had an image of the completed project superimposed over the mountain and a tourist shop to boot for one to buy souvenirs. How do I know? I used to sell him and his wife their merchandise and spent a lot of time there. Today, you can still buy the postcards and occasionally hear a dynamite blast (that's for the tourists to think they're really working on it).

Limerick is form of humorous verse

DEAR ABST: I am having a difference of opinion with a person who is never wrong - if you get my drift. Exactly what is a limerick?

And when was it introduced into the English language?

ENJOYS LIMERICES

IN BOSTON DEAR ENJOYS: A limerick is a form of humorous verse. It takes its name from the city of Limerick in Ireland, where it originated. A limerick consists of five lines. The first and second lines rhyme with the fifth line. The third and fourth lines rhyme with each other. The first line often begins with, "There once was a ..." etc., and ends with the name of a person or place. The last line is what we would call the punch line. It is usually humorous and occasionally naughty. in 1846. Edward Lear (no relation to Norman) came out with a book titled "A Book of Nonsense," which was a collection of limericks. Here's one:

"There once was a lady from "Who walked up to Scotland on stilts:

"When they said it was shocking "To show so much stocking, "She answered, "Then what about kilts?"

DEAR ABBIf: Either there are two Jack Dempseys, or the lady from Monroe, Mich., is confused. Jack Dempsey was not in the U.S. Navy - he was in the U.S. Coast Guard. I took my training from him at Manhattan Beach,

Jack Dempsey came to visit me during my nine-month stay at the Veterana Hospital here n

Abby, please set the record straight.

VIRGIL E. HANSON. ST. LOUIS PARE, MINN. DEAR VIRGIL B.MANSON: Thank you. Please consider the record set straight.

DEAR ABBIT: I have long been an admirer of yours and would like to share something I learned the hard way

People are often told to "get a second opinion" when their doctor prescribes treatment (or surgery) that seems drastic. They should be aware of the "side effect" from taking such advice.

From personal experience, I know that anything from a cold reception to refusal to continue as your attending physician can

I asked for a second opinion recently, and had to have my attorney get my medical records. Needless to say, I changed physicians.

ONE WHO ENOWS IN I E O N A

DEAR ONE WHO ENOWS: would be a bit leery of a physician who would resent my requesting a second opinion. Top-notch physicians welcome second opinions — If only to confirm their diagnosis. DEAR 'ABS'Y: I sympathise with all the people who wrote about their unfortunate wedding experiences. Here's mine:

My flance and I decided to get married in San Antonio. At the time, I lived in Boston, as did most of my family. We planned to fly down a few days earlier, but due to a snowstorm, we herely made it the day before the wedding. However, our luggage - including my wedding gown and those of my bridesmaids did not!

The hotel where we had reservations burned down the day before, and all of the hotels were overbooked, so we slept at my fiance's house, already filled with relatives — six and seven in a room. Some alept on the floor!

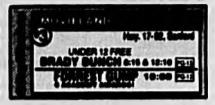

My cousin, who slept in the same room with me, awakened thirsty in the middle of the night. Not wanting to distrub the rest of us, she drank a nearby glass of water instead of getting up to get her own. Well -" that glass of water contained my contact lenses!

The next day, I was married in a white skirt, yellow sweater, ugly thick glasses and a veil! My bridesmaids wore jeans, as did many of the guests from my side of the family. Meanwhile, the groom's family was dressed

We had to postpone our honeymoon because the temperature dropped from 70 to 30. The wings on the plane teed up and the airport had no de-icing equipment, because "it never gets that cold in San Antonio."

FAMU hopes grapes will profit Florida farmers

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Florida A&M University hopes muscadine grape juice, jelly, and wine will be grocery store hits and profit-makers for Florida farmers and the university.

The school's Center for Viticulture Sciences grapes — has been working in laboratories and its 3-acre field on varieties of the large, thick-akinned grapes indigenous to the Southeast.

"I've never had anybody taste muscadine juice who didn't like it," said Olusola Lamikanra, center director who heads the effort to turn the grape into a coveted fruit.

Inspired by the University of Florida, which developed the Gatorade sports drink named after its mascot, FAMU President Frederick Humphries favors naming the grape creations Rattlers' Juice. after FAMU's rattlesnake symbol.

Since its inception in 1973. Gatorade has brought in more than $33 million for the University of Florida.

FAMU's plans got a boost last month when state officials approved the $565,000 purchase of the Lafayette Vineyards and Winery just east of Tallahassee. The winery, which went bankrupt in 1991, is owned by Seavin Inc.

Lamikanra said FAMU has developed a marketing and processing cooperative to pool the efforts of 350 muscadine grape-growers, has recruited 65 more small-scale growers, and now will ask lawmakers for $900,000 to get the old Lafayette Vineyards and Winery back into production.

Lamikanra envisions a market close at hand for grape products. Florida is the nation's thirdlargest consumer of grapes and grape products, after California and New York, and most of those products are now imported.

"I think that potentially it could be a thriving industry in Florida, because the muscadine grape is a native plant," said George Demetree, development representative for the state Department of Agriculture. "It requires very little pesticides. It grows disease-free all through the Mississippi State University attempted to start a muscadine grape industry in that state in the 1970s involving wineries, juice and syrup operations, but management problems and a bad winter ended most of the projects.

"It's still a good idea. But everything just didn't come together, said Robert Mullenax, director of Mississippi State's plant and soil sciences department.

FAMU's viticulture department has developed three juice flavors by mixing muscadine with raspberry, strawberry, and pear and lime. In the works is a muscadine, lemon and custard-apple combination.

The Department of Agriculture has submitted the juice to taste tests by elementary school children. "The kids loved it." said Demetree.

FAMU researchers have also produced dozens of types of wine, though Lamikanra said they might be a harder sell than juices.

'People come in expecting to taste chardonnays or cabernets, they find that the taste is different." he said. Muscaberry and Rattlerberry are some of the names under consideration. Lamikanra was less enthusiastic about the Rattlers' Juice idea.

'Some people felt that maybe it may not be ... very good for marketing purposes." he said.

GARAGE SALE GUIDELINES

Children's clothing, dishes, collect-bles, tools, books and antiques are the most popular items.

2. Make it senvenient to shop at your garage sale! Be sure there is adequate parking space. Post signs with directions to parking arrans. Make arrangements with neighbors.

arrangements with neighbors.

It Make it easy to pay! Have plenty of change and a system for hand-rig. More sure one person is on duly at all times at a cantralized location proternity with a calculator or adding machine.

4. Previde prices. Do not make every person ask, "How much is this? Prices make for quick, effective sales or a good place for customers to start bergaining.

5. Get an early start. Set up displays the evening before, the country before.

If possible.

Diet and exercise lower blood pressure me your ideas on using herbs to in my experience - improvereduce blood pressure and cholesterol levels. I understand blueberry leaves are good for hypertension and summer savory will lower cholesterol levels from 30 to 50 points.

DEAR READER: There are no herbs or "natural remedies" that have been proven to affect high blood pressure and serum cholesterol. To control these health problems, you should follow your doctor's advice with respect to diet, exercise and medication.

For example, reducing salt intake will lower blood pressure; a low-fat diet will reduce cholesterol. Regular exercise is good therapy for both conditions.

if simple changes in lifestyle fail to bring the blood pressure down (to 150/90 or less) or to lower cholesterol (below about 220 milligrams per deciliter), appropriate prescription medication, such as Lopid, may be necessary.

To give you more information. I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Understanding Cholesterol" and "Hypertension." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

Either way, South would lose only one club trick to go with the spade and diamond already conceded.

That was nicely done by South, but East should have foreseen the advantage of retaining communication with his partner. If he had left the spade ace up his sleeve at trick one, the contract could have been defeated. Upon being given a trick with the diamond king, East could lead a low spade to his partner for the fatal club switch through dummy's king.
