

German Christian Demos Lose Majority In Election

BONN (UPI) — The governing Christian Democratic Union lost its parliamentary majority today as the result of national elections that may force Konrad Adenauer out as chancellor of West Germany.

It appeared the 85-year-old Adenauer's 12-year rule had come to an end and that a new man—perhaps Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard—would be named to lead West Germany through the current crisis caused by mounting Soviet pressures.

Final official returns gave the Christian Democrats 270 seats in the new 499-seat Bundestag lower house of parliament—six less than necessary for a majority and a loss of 27 from 1957.

The Social Democrats, led by West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, won 190 seats, up 21; and the middle-road Free Democratic party won 66, up 25.

No other parties received the necessary 5 per cent of the total vote required to hold a seat in parliament. The new Bundestag will be two seats larger than the last one.

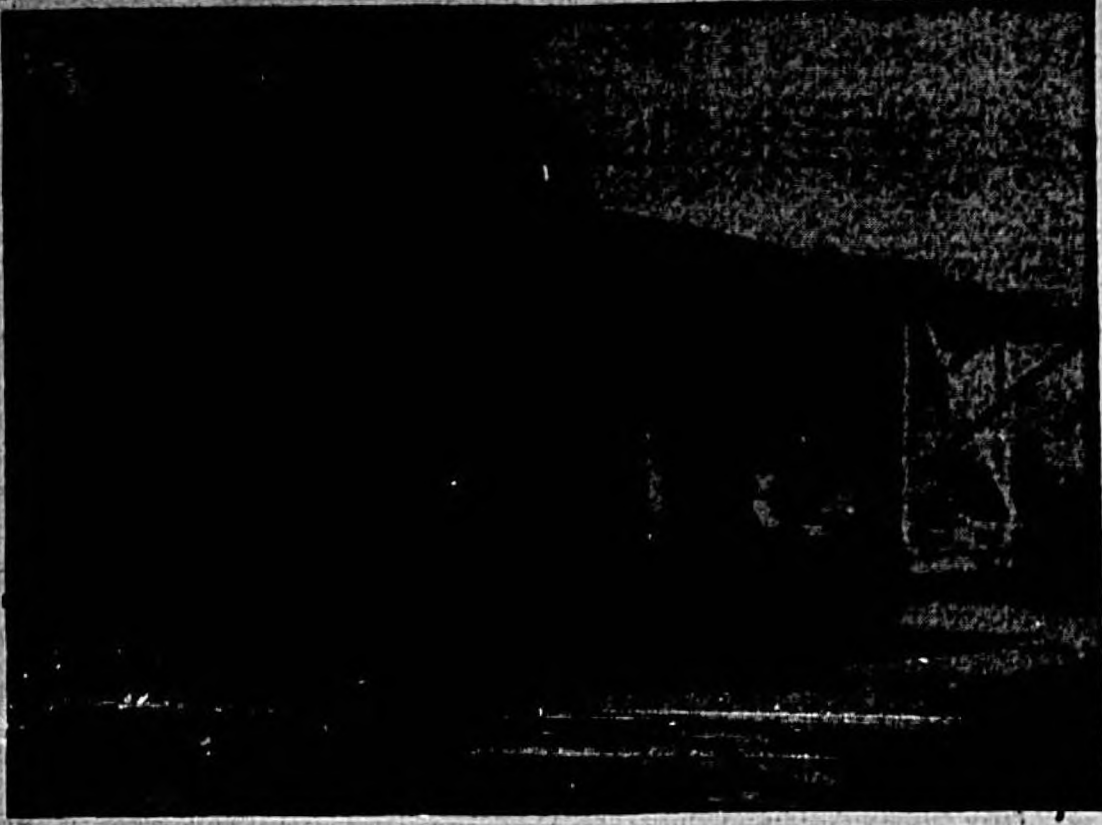

In the popular vote, the Christian Democrats received 14,239,964 or 45.3 per cent; off from 50.2 per cent in 1957; the Socialists received 11,406,253 or 34.3 per cent, up from 31.8 per cent; and the Free Democrats 4,009,988 or 12.7 per cent, up from 7.7 per cent.

The Socialists, who have not participated in a government in 30 years, promptly announced they were ready to join in a grand coalition with the Christian Democrats.

Brandt told a pre-dawn press conference he thought the "political result of this election is that the three parties should come together on a broad basis."

Most political experts doubted a coalition including the Socialists would come about.

School Dance Termed Big Success

The first after-the-game-dance of the year, which are sponsored all year by the Junior Class at Seminole High School, was held in the high school cafeteria and was termed a real success, Friday.

Bouyed up by a first-game victory, students crowded the cafeteria which had been cleverly decorated in a football and autumn theme. Red, yellow, and gold autumn leaves were strung from the chandeliers in the room and scattered on the floor as if they had been blown there by the autumn winds.

A giant figure of the famous Seminole Indian, with a hatchet in one hand, a football in the other galloped across one wall of the dining room. The figure was cleverly drawn by Lucy Moughton and painted by Louise Higginbotham.

The decoration committee of the Junior Class was in charge of taking down and setting up tables for the event and for the lovely decorations of the room. Refreshments were served throughout the evening. After the game dances begin at 10:30 and last until midnight.

Chaperones were Junior Class sponsors, Miss Ann Vissaris, Mr. and Mrs. Bohannon, Marion Martin and Mrs. Lois Higginbotham. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Smith and Capt. and Mrs. St. Johnson also attended as chaperones.

Disaster Committee Gets Underway In Chuluota

By CAROL JEPSON

The first in a series of Disaster Committee meetings was held Sept. 12 at the Community Building with 30 residents attending. Guest speakers for the evening were Lee Gary, Mayor of Oviedo and Civil Defense chairman for this area, and Doug Bartholow, Orlando contractor, who builds CD Fall-out Shelters.

Gary announced that he had appointed Harold McBride of Chuluota as his assistant, thereby qualifying him to organize his own training program under Seminole County Civil Defense. McBride stressed the immediate need for a centrally located community warning system and it was suggested that such a system might be obtained through CD.

Bartholow demonstrated a model fall-out shelter and explained its requirements and functions as he distributed literature and pictures of the shelter. He explained that Chuluota, being centrally located between two primary military targets, McCoy Air Force Base and Cape Canaveral, definitely should be prepared with fall-out protection. For those who cannot afford shelters, Bartholow explained, sandbags, properly stacked in hallways of homes, or outside in form of igloos could afford adequate protection for residents in this area. He also explained that a sprinkler system, installed on the roof of your home and requiring a water pump and gasoline-powered engine, could wash radioactive fall-out off and into the ground. However, he warned, with any system, it is imperative that everyone stay in prepared areas until assured that all danger is passed.

It was explained that radioactive rays attack only living cells (people or animals), therefore vegetation is not destroyed and effects of fall-out on it soon is negligible. Fruit may be picked from trees and consumed after being thoroughly washed. Water from wells and other enclosed areas will not be contaminated and may be consumed.

The next meeting of this group was set for 8 p. m., Oct. 10, at the Community Building.

UN Assembly Meets Today To Face New Problems

United Press International Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold's death plunged the opening day of the 16th General Assembly into shock, sorrow and confusion today.

the UN secretary general was the deciding factor that led Kennedy to plan a personal appearance before the UN General Assembly within a few days.

The Congo crisis worsened meanwhile, as a result of Hammarskjold's death. Katanga forces and United Nations troops battled sporadically for control of Elisabethville.

Boland said he would go ahead with the election of the assembly's new president, Mongi Slim, senior diplomat from Tunisia. He would take over Hammarskjold's duties. Slim was assured of election when Dr. Ali Sartono of Indonesia announced Monday he was withdrawing as a candidate.

Cleveland stressed repeatedly in the letter that it was "voluntary." Cleveland said he wanted to leave on "friendly terms." The board agreed to accept the resignation, inform the Seminole Bar Association and poll the lawyers in reference to the position.

In other business, the board agreed to obligate $50,000 out of secondary road funds from the 1962-63 road department budget to extend Bear Lake Rd from SR 436 to SR 46. Ted Williams opposed the move saying that the taxpayers money could be used better elsewhere.

The extension would include an eight mile stretch of road. The board also heard a complaint from a south Seminole County resident regarding the raising of building permit fees.

Another South Seminole resident, Hope Bennett, Casselberry councilwoman, questioned the legality of the board appropriating funds for the Chamber of Commerce in Sanford.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI)—Daniel C. Milligan, 19, faced arraignment today on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon—a 4-foot-long poisonous snake.

Officers said Milligan was arrested Monday for allegedly putting a Russell viper in the air conditioning system at the apartment of his former wife, Mrs. Bonnie Johnstone, 18, on Sept. 4.

Correction

The address of the residence where eight men were arrested for gambling Friday is 801 Palmetto Ave. instead of 410 Palmetto as was incorrectly listed in Monday's Herald.

From the looks of the turnout at the first football game of the season, there are a lot of sports-minded people in Sanford. If even a tenth of those at the game are interested in backing the Seminole High School athletic program with some concrete support, the auditorium at the school will be packed tonight as Jim Riser makes an effort to get the defunct Booster Club into active operation again. Hold your hats! This is unbelievable. Not a single resident in Longwood appeared to protest his city taxes when the council met as a board of equalization late last month. What's even more astounding is that a number of the taxpayers have been heard to say they'd be for higher taxes if they could get increased and improved services.

Donna's Victims Send Texans Aid

MIAMI (UPI)—Keys residents hard-hit by Hurricane Donna last September sent more than 400 boxes of clothing, shoes and other items Monday to the victims of Hurricane Carla in Texas.

Houston Gets Control Center

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The space agency today picked Houston, Tex., as the site of a $60 million laboratory which will serve as "command center" for manned flights to the moon in this decade and to the planets later.

By LARRY VERSEK Seminole County Schools are entitled to $250,000 in matching funds from the federal government but according to R. T. Milwee, the local schools will only match $41,000 of that sum. . . . Just not enough money on the local level for matching purposes.

Monday we mentioned the shortage of school books at Seminole High School and as soon as the paper came out . . . the phones started ringing. It seems there is a critical shortage throughout the entire county. One woman called to tell us that there weren't enough algebra books at Lyman.

Coin Catalog Scheme Exposed

Although coin collecting is to be encouraged as a worthwhile hobby and incentive to the study of history, art and economics, prospective coin collectors are warned against a scheme currently being used to exploit the public's gullibility.

According to John Krider, manager of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, numerous promoters are advertising that they will pay large sums for rare coins, as if to imply that they are coin dealers, when their primary purpose is to lure the uninformed into buying a catalog.

The National Better Business Bureau, with which the Chamber is affiliated through membership, has charged in a report just released that this advertising creates the impression that these rare coins, worth fabulous amounts, are in general circulation and are being used in making change only because the public doesn't know their numismatic value. "The facts are," Krider stated, "the rare coins cited are in the hands of collectors, and the possibility of finding any of them in circulation is non-existent."

One of the other hand, the Chamber manager noted, some of these catalog promoters quote prices for coins which are available through legitimate dealers, and which may be in limited circulation at prices substantially less than the market price. According to the American Numismatic Association, any coins purchased at such prices would be virtually "steals."

The Post Office Department has had occasion to examine into some of this promotional advertising and the following finding of fact, in one case in which a fraud order was issued, aptly summarizes the scheme:

"The evidence shows the pretenses, representations and promises of this promoter to the effect that his concern is a bona fide dealer in coins, that certain coins are wanted by it, and that its 'listings' will enable purchasers to procure the sale of various coins to it at substantial premiums are false and fraudulent, and the whole scheme is designed and intended to procure remittances through the mails for the so-called 'listings' under the guise of dealing in coins."

Krider recommended to those interested in coin collecting as a hobby that they read some of the many books available on the subject, and that they deal with established coin dealers.

40,000 Homes Damaged By Carla

In preliminary surveys by helicopter and automobile, the Red Cross has estimated that 40,000 homes were damaged or destroyed by Hurricane Carla, according to reports received this week by the Seminole County Chapter here.

By comparison, Carla damaged along the Louisiana coast was fairly light, survey teams have indicated, after damage checks in Cameron Parish. In the town of Cameron, population 5,000, which almost was wiped off the map back in 1877 by hurricane Audrey, no homes were destroyed by Carla. In the area of the Red Cross, another 204 homes were damaged, the reports revealed. On nearby Holly Beach, however, Carla destroyed 60 homes and left major damage to another 165. Tornadoes destroyed 20 homes at Hodges, in Jackson Parish, and 21 at Kaplan, in Vermilion Parish. Surveys continue in other parishes.

Meanwhile, registration centers are being set up in all principal

Bombing Derby For 1961 Set For Nov. 6-11

A 1961 "Bombing Derby" has been announced by Captain Joseph M. Tully Jr., Commander Heavy Attack Wing One at the U. S. Naval Air Station.

This year's Derby will commence on Nov. 6 and continue until the afternoon of Nov. 11 with four squadrons on hand for the annual competition. The squadrons will be representing their assigned aircraft carriers except for Hatron Three, the Heavy Attack Training Squadron which will represent the fictitious USS Sanford. Hatron Eleven, the defending champions, will represent the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt (CVA-42); Hatron Five the USS Forrestal (CVA-59); and Hatron Nine the USS Saratoga (CVA-60). Hatron One is deployed to the U. S. Sixth Fleet aboard the USS Independence (CVA-64) and will therefore not be entered in this year's Derby. Hatron Seven is in a transition period from the ASD to the AJ3 and also will not compete in this year's Derby.

The accent of the competition this year will be placed on high speed and low altitude. One of the events will send the ASD Skywarriors on a simulated attack mission that will take them from Sanford up through the southeastern United States and return low level. The purpose of such a low level attack would be to minimize detection by radar. A low flying aircraft is also less vulnerable to anti-aircraft missiles.

Saturday, Nov. 11 will be the big day for the public as Heavy Attack Wing One squadrons perform in precision flying, carrier airmanship and new attack techniques.

Fish, Seafood School Brings Club Information

By MRS. H. L. JOHNSON

Thirty-four Seminole County Home Demonstration Club members along with County Agent Cecil Tucker, Home Demonstration Agent Miss Myrtle Wilson and Miss Lucy Nowlin, home economist for Florida Power and Light Co., attended an all-day Fish and Seafood School last Friday at the Home Demonstration Center on 25th St.

Leaders for the school were Mrs. Bertha Fontaine, home economist, U. S. Dept. of Interior Fish and Wildlife Service of the Pascagoula Fishery Station and Roy C. Stevens of Jacksonville who is affiliated with the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries of the Dept. of the Interior.

Florida ranks fourth in the nation in the fish industry, Stevens said. He described different varieties which are considered best for smoking, baking and other means of preparation. Using a mullin, he showed the way to clean and cut a fish, explaining that since a fish is a member of the bird family, it has a gizzard.

After showing other steps of preparation, he turned the program over to Mrs. Fontaine who kept her audience spellbound with her talk and illustrations. She explained that there are 240 varieties of fish, all rating high in protein, minerals and vitamins. They excel in special diets, are easy to prepare and are thrifty.

and economical, she said. She advised that marketable fish must be US Grade A and is packed under continuous inspection by U. S. Dept. of Interior officials.

Included in the six dishes Mrs. Fontaine prepared during her demonstration were Sea Reef Salad, using pink salmon; Shrimp Ripe Olive Pizza; Baked Flounder Amandin; Broiled Scallops with peas; Tuna and Cheese Biscuit Roll and Baked Fish Portions in Creole Sauce, using grouper.

These dishes, with the mullet Stevens smoked in a stove made from a large lard can over a barbecue grill, were sampled by those attending and each clubwoman was given a special bulletin on "Outdoor Fish Cookery" containing the recipes used by Mrs. Fontaine.

WWI Delegates Attend Convention

Sanford delegates attending the national convention of World War One Veterans in Dallas, Tex., are Mr. and Mrs. Joel Field, Mrs. Beulah Thornton and William Farrell.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson was expected to open the convention Sunday with a welcome from the state of Texas and from the office of the President. On Saturday, the veterans were saluted with a program of World War One songs on the Lawrence Welk Show.

Other main events of the convention, which closes Wednesday, include a huge parade in Dallas with Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force participation and the setting up of doughnut huts by Salvation Army Doughnut Girls, flown in from several areas, to pass out the doughnuts and coffee just as they did in 1917 and 1918.

A slate of officers selected by the Nomination Committee include Byron L. Kimball for president; Ruth Hamilton, vice president; Elizabeth Kuhn, secretary-treasurer, and Neil Farmer, director.

Former Teacher Killed Sunday

Lee Compton, 28, who was employed here last year as music instructor at Sanford Junior High School, was killed Sunday in a car-train crash near Athens, Ga.

Highway patrolmen reported that the road was a straightaway and that Compton apparently failed to see the oncoming train, smashing into it head-on. Also killed was Miss Goldie McRae, 33, a passenger in the Compton car. Both were music teachers in Mt. Vernon, Ga.

Business School To Open Soon

Plans have been set for a new business school to open here soon, according to William Major, registrar of the school.

The Jefferson School of Business is opening its first establishment in Florida, which will be the latest among a chain of schools in eight states in the South and Midwest. The home office is in Richmond, with residence schools in Winchester and Fredericksburg, Va.; Vining, N. J., and Salisbury, Md.

The school, which offers two complete courses, is reputed to be the largest and oldest in its field. It provides free placement service and brush up courses for graduates.

One course, designed primarily for women is the stenographic course. The general business course for men covers accounting mainly.

Rotarians Hear About European Trip

Joe Guernsey, president of the Orlando Federal Savings, who has just returned from a three months tour of Europe, was the guest of the Sanford Rotarians Monday at their noon meeting.

At the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin, Guernsey said that the Communists stopped the tourists and gave them a 30 minute lecture on the delight and joys of Communism, which proved to be a lie very quickly when the group got into East Berlin.

There they saw that nothing had been done to restore the city, the people stood in lines for food and clothing and homes were shabby and worn.

"It was also painfully apparent that the Communist treatment of the Jews make the Nazi atrocities look mild," Guernsey said. "Do we realize how serious the Berlin situation is?" he asked.

Guernsey entertained the Rotarians with a travelogue of his trip through Europe, accompanied by his wife. They visited France, Italy, Switzerland, England, Scotland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Germany, Austria and many other places, during their summer tour.

During his time abroad, Guernsey said that he attended 14 or 15 Rotary meetings, in every country in Europe and two on board ship. He described the differences in the way the clubs were run, and commented that the Europeans, especially the French, have a much more social atmosphere at their club meetings than is condoned in the U.S. Wally Phillips was program chairman for the day.

Dinner Party Honors Student

Johnny Higginbotham, University of Florida freshman, was guest of honor at a farewell dinner party prior to his leaving for school on Saturday to begin his pre-med studies.

Reapportionment

With action put off indefinitely on enlarging the U. S. House membership, new pressure seems bound to build in those states that are lagging in their reapportionment efforts.

The door to action on membership bills in 1962 is still open a crack, but little is really expected. Federal law requires that after every census, congressional seats be reapportioned among the states to reflect properly their relative population status. This time the approved formula compels changes in 28 states, with nine gainers and 19 losers.

The losing states naturally are the noisiest battlegrounds. To this moment, seven of the 16 have redrawn district lines to eliminate one congressional seat each. Another three—New York, Kentucky and Mississippi—promise action early in 1962.

The trouble spotlight is on the remaining six. Arkansas and Alabama have taken action only to see later challenges arise. But in Illinois, Minnesota, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, absolute deadlock appears to prevail.

It should surprise no one that partisan, city-country and personal rivalries lie at the heart of these deadlocks. A state's ruling party usually tries to reshape districts to promote its own advantage. Where power is split, as in Illinois, a standoff can occur.

In Massachusetts, as in Arkansas, the difficulty centers on the enforced rivalry of sitting congressmen whose districts must be consolidated. Two top House committee leaders, Wilbur Mills of Ways and Means and Owen Harris of Interstate Commerce, may have to clash unless Arkansas finds a new approach.

Pennsylvania lawmakers understandably are the unhappiest of all, since that state's quota must drop from the present 20 to 27 next year.

Yet in all the deadlocked states reports have it that compromise may still emerge in time for compliance with 1962 election procedures.

Where reapportionment is not accomplished in time in states which lose seats, the federal law requires that all congressional candidates must run statewide. Both parties make brave noises about being willing to face that test here and there, but neither can really view the prospect with pleasure.

To run at large is often to be thrust, little known, on a big, baffling campaign stage. Few professionals doubt that many incumbents would go down in such confused competition.

Painful as it is to them, reapportionment may seem the lesser evil to many politicians caught in this inescapable dilemma.

Dr. Crane's

Worry Clinic

CASE K-402: Alberta Hutton, of Freeport, Pennsylvania, is a talented school teacher who goes beyond the call of duty.

"Two years ago," she says, "I had 24 pupils in the 6th grade. I started the Compliment Club in my room and 8 pupils finished the 30-day experiment."

"Last year there were 13 who completed it. And this past term 17 pupils in my room merited their diplomas for having successfully concluded the full 30-day project."

"Needless to say, I have a grand group of pupils this year. Your Compliment Club brings happiness to many people."

This Compliment Club simply puts the Golden Rule into effective daily action. It diverts your attention from your own aches and pains or selfish, introverted thinking.

For you must analyze your companions as you look for virtues on which to pay them sincere compliments.

To merit the signed diploma, you just pay a compliment to each of three people every day for 30 consecutive days.

Shy, timid folks who get tongue-tied, soon become more at ease and can start conversations easily after trying the Compliment Club for a few weeks.

So it not only helps you buoy up the morale of deserving folks around you, but improves your own personality. This double action is of the right sort.

Not only is this experiment an ideal project for schools, but it is also excellent for church organizations, Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

Mrs. H. S. Hollar, of Anderson, Indiana, has long been a sponsor of Girl Scouts.

"Our Girl Scout Troop No. 230," she informed me recently, "would like to join your Compliment Club."

"We have 9 girls, aged 11 years, and 8 of them have already completed the 30-day project."

"They were very enthusiastic. Each girl has gained a rich inner experience from it. We are coordinating the Compliment Club experiment with their Hospitality Badge."

"Dr. Crane, you may remember that several years ago I used the Compliment Club with my older daughter's troop."

"And she still speaks of it as one of the most helpful experiences that scouting gave her."

Many grown men and women are still such victims of stage fright that they can't speak in public and are poor conversationalists, even on a date.

Letters

To The Editor

Dear Editor:

First of all, let me congratulate you on your promotion. I recognize that you are a very good newspaper man, and I believe I know what you are trying to do. You are evidently working hard for reader interest. You know only too well that if a dog bites a man the news is not worth writing. But if a MAN bites a DOG—you have headlines. Your job is to sell papers. You mention that you are picking on the County Commissioners because they leave themselves wide open! There's only one way to stay out of trouble! Say nothing... Do Nothing... Be Nothing! Please, don't wash all the starch out of our Commissioners.

Take one instance: I have heard more comments about the Bang-Bang! There was no mention of a need for a gun to kill snakes in the heavy grasses the Commissioners are tramping through at danger to their own lives in order to look over the land that is being considered for drainage control. The comments I have heard all around town have been so derogatory to the Commissioners involved that it makes me shudder. These men have families. They are businessmen and have other incomes.

They thought they were needed in the community and felt they could fill the need. I wonder how their kids feel when they see their fathers smeared in their community rather than praised for trying to do their job as they see it. How do their wives feel when they meet their neighbors in the grocery stores and at their club meetings? Proud — or ashamed! When I read the item, I, too, thought only that some one was out gunning for these men, and that we were really living the frontier days over again.

I have heard our city laughed at and ridiculed. I don't believe that is what you intended at all. I think you were having some fun and creating reader interest, but it backfired.

Not long ago some folks I had known previously came into my office to talk to me, mostly against the Commissioners. I realized then that this newspaper talk is not really funny at all. Their thinking is so warped that it was to me alarming.

If they are expressing the views of any kind of a majority in this county, heaven help us in the next election. No self-respecting man will consider running for office. You must admit that the men on this Commission could be a lot worse, and we are lucky to have them. If we disagree, we have many ways to let them know how we feel. There is no better way than to appear before a Commission meeting either individually or as a representative of a reputable group of citizens who want and are willing to work for a better community.

Recently we had in our office a visit from northern clients. They had stopped enroute to Sanford at a motel in Jacksonville. There they read in the local paper about our Commissioners having a fight and about one Commissioner who had a "stroke" after the fight during the Commission meeting. The paper went into detail to say that he was laying on the floor and had to be revived.

These people were on their way to locate in Sanford upon retirement and to build a beautiful riverfront home. They would be an asset to the community. But they wanted to know: "What goes on here?"

The truth of the matter is that one Commissioner, who suffers a heart condition, was affected by the excitement—which he started—and that the other commissioner, who was a part of the argument, actually never rose from his chair. It was just TALK. Maybe a Commissioner does leave himself "wide open" when he accuses another of being a liar. Would you rather be put on his velvet gloves and said: "Dear Honorable Commissioner: What you have just said is an untruth. Sir, I demand that you retract this careless statement—or choose your weapon."

The weapon chosen might be an "invisible dagger," a lethal weapon if there ever was one. I know—we have some in our own backs. If I had a choice and could choose my weapons, I would prefer to be called a liar in public. At least then I could defend myself.

It is a good thing the Commissioners aren't newspaper men out after the Sanford Herald. They could have a ball too.

Come On—let's have some fun—but let's be constructive. It seems to me that we have real exciting things ahead, and you and your paper can be an important factor—if not really the most important one—in bringing about contentment and prosperity to the community. You can't do it alone, that I know. I am sure you realize that an industry, before it considers a move, looks very thoroughly into ALL elements in an area. They can sense deceit and chicanery. Likewise, it won't take them long to observe a healthy community, if it is healthy.

Their representatives will sit on the drug store stools, in the bars, and they will read local newspapers for six months back. If you were a worthwhile industry investing a great deal of money, wouldn't you do this?

I want my local paper to be a dynamic force for GOOD. You can either help us build or help tear us down. But in the process you will either go down with us—or prosper as we prosper.

Florence Harris.

Sincerely,
 John Krider
 Manager

Political Notebook

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Whether Brazil can pull itself together and establish some semblance of stability is the No. 1 question in Latin America today.

Brazil has completely changed its government with a short, bloodless revolution on the heels of Janio Quadros' resignation as president. It retains all the forms of a constitutional democracy with president, congress, prime minister and cabinet.

But in the opinion of qualified American experts on Brazil, there is no assurance whatever that the coalition government will stay stuck together.

The new president, Jose Goulart, is a wealthy rancher who is also head of Brazil's Labor party, considerable of a leftist, politically unscrupulous in the best or worst Latin-American traditions, anti-American and an opportunist.

He is considered anxious to get back the executive powers he surrendered on the insistence of Brazil's military leaders.

The government will be run by the prime minister, Dr. Tanerido Neves, who is considered a conservative. Brazil had a prime minister before it became a republic, so a return to this form of government is not as unnatural as it seemed at first. But a government so easily created by a congress can also be thrown out by a congress. That is the danger.

As a matter of fact, during Brazil's presidential elections of 1960, the military leaders threatened to impose a prime minister on Janio Quadros because they did not like the kind of campaign he was conducting. But Quadros' opponent for the presidency, Marshal Henrique Loti, denounced the plan and it was dropped.

Inside reports on just what caused Quadros to resign the presidency indicate this was in character. He walked out on his political backers once before, when he was running for the presidency. He did not support his own party's candidate for the vice presidency, Milton Campos. Instead, Quadros supported General Loti's running mate, Jose Goulart, who was running for re-election as vice president.

When objections were raised by the conservatives to this and other Quadros campaign tactics, he resigned and went to a seaside resort. A delegation persuaded him to renounce his resignation and resume the campaign. He went on to win, and Goulart won with him.

There is mounting evidence that Janio Quadros expected to be called back after resigning the presidency.

As president, he had taken bold and necessary action to get Brazil's financial affairs on an even keel.

But he was criticized by conservatives and military leaders for currying favor with the Communists and ultranationalists at home. In international affairs he had visited Cuba, coddled up to Castro and tried to pursue a policy of neutralism in a belief he could reconcile Cuba and the United States.

But direct and indirect affronts to the United States were many. That was unpopular with congressmen and the military.

Quadros, it is now believed, decided that he could establish his supremacy over the military by arousing a popular manifestation of support. So he resigned, expecting to be called back. Instead, all he did was pull the rug out from under his own feet.

Several explanations are given. The military leaders thought they could get rid of Quadros and bar Goulart at the same time. Congress accepted the resignation so it could install a prime minister and cabinet responsive and responsible to their will. Also, they wanted a constitutional, not a military government.

The intelligent Brazilian people, taking more and more pride in the belief that their country is the embryo of a great power, reacted to oppose a quitter who was something of a demagogue with a mes-salmaniac, or even a messiah, complex.

One other physical factor is now given some credence. Quadros has one bad eye, the result of a boyhood accident. An operation in England was not completely successful. Fear of going blind may have put him in the frame of mind to throw up the whole business.

After creating his artificial crisis, however, there was no undoing the damage. He is reported to have sobbed openly as he boarded the boat to leave Brazil.

In this fast-moving world, people of modest means as well as the wealthy are using trusts to help them safeguard and manage their property as well as for settling estates.

Even if your total worth is no more than a few thousand dollars, you should be aware of the different types of trusts and how you might decide whether a trust would benefit you.

A trust is a legal instrument and must be drawn by an attorney. It provides for the care and management of property by another. You can designate anyone as trustee, but usually the trust service is performed by a bank.

Most commercial banks are geared to perform trust services and the decisions made are usually made by a team of experts, experts in real estate, securities and taxes.

As for all services, there are charges for creating and operating trusts. Usually these fees are set by state laws.

Before setting up a trust you should seek careful advice from your lawyer, a banker, even an accountant.

You should know your exact net worth and include here any pension fund money for which you may be eligible, proceeds from insurance policies should you die.

You should look at your current tax bracket and appraise how your estate might be taxed. One of the chief reasons for setting up a trust today is to reduce the tax load both on current income and on estates.

You should appraise whether your assets are working for you at their peak and know exactly how you want your money distributed upon your death.

For you to consider, the four main types of trusts are:

- The living trust, one which you can create in your lifetime. You might wish to make this trust revocable, meaning that at the end of a set period, the property in trust will be returned to you. In some circumstances a tax advantage can be gained. An irrevocable trust means you surrender the right to end the trust. In this case you could still enjoy the income of your property during your lifetime.

- A trust under your will is the opposite of a living trust. Instead, you set up the machinery during your lifetime, specifying to whom you wish both principal and income to go.

- You can also stipulate how you wish this property to be handled so far as the sale of real estate, securities and such are concerned and the objectives of investment such as whether your assets should be invested to produce income or capital growth or both where possible. In such cases it is best not to be too rigid in your desires since changed economic conditions over the years may dissipate your original desires.

- A trust can be created to administer life insurance proceeds.

The right way to invest in stocks & bonds

Lots of people these days are planning to become investors for the first time. If you are one of them we'd like to recommend four steps to follow.

STEP ONE: Choose your broker with care. Many an unwary investor has regretted buying worthless stock from a stranger who delivered a high-pressure sales talk on the telephone. You'll be wise to visit a nearby Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. Every Registered Representative there has met the Exchange's qualifications for knowledge of investing. He's not infallible—no one is. But he can help you choose sensibly from a wide variety of good securities.

STEP TWO: Follow these wise rules for investing. Use only money you don't need for living expenses or emergencies. And invest on the basis of facts—never on tips or rumors. You'll be wise to consider bonds, too, for their price and income are normally more stable and may fit your situation. You can expect the price of both stocks and bonds to go down as well as up. And a company may run into trouble and stop paying a dividend or interest. You'll want to consider those with good records and those that appear to have the best prospects.

STEP THREE: Ask yourself this question: Which is most important to me—future growth, present income or safety of principal? Some companies may pay relatively high dividends. Others may pour back more of their profits in expansion, leaving less (perhaps nothing) available for dividends. Bonds usually provide a more stable income and greater safety of principal.

STEP FOUR: Send the coupon below for "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS." This free booklet is packed with valuable information. You'll find the records of some 470 stocks that have paid a cash dividend every year for 25 years or more. And a description of the Monthly Investment Plan through which you can acquire stock in famous companies by investing with as little as $40 every three months or as much as $1,000 a month. Send the coupon before you forget.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a crossword puzzle nut. That's the first thing she goes for in the newspaper, and heaven help anyone who bothers her while she is working a crossword puzzle.

DEAR DOPE: Only a big square would surrender to a lot of little squares. The 5-letter word that should give a woman a feeling of complete achievement, satisfaction and pleasure, is HUBBY — not HOBBY.

DEAR ABBY: I have a son six months old, and I want to take him for a hair-cut, but every time I mention it to a friend or relative they tell me not to because they say it will keep him from talking at an early age. Is this true? Also, how old do you think a baby boy should be before he gets his first hair-cut? CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: There is NO truth in the story that a hair-cut will deter a baby from talking at an early age. A baby boy should have his first hair-cut when he starts to look like a girl wearing boys' clothes.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married, I was a widow with two children, and he was a widower with three. We have been married four years now and I have adopted his children and he has adopted mine. We all have the same surname and are a very happy family. My only problem is inquisitive friends who constantly ask, "Which children are yours and which are your husband's?" I am sometimes asked this in the presence of the children, and this puzzles them because they know they all belong to both of us. How should I handle this? TONGUE-TIED

DEAR TONGUE-TIED: When faced with this rude question reply, "They are all OUR children." If the curious persist, call a halt to it by adding, "Why don't we skip it? It's not very important."

CONFIDENTIAL TO GRANDMA OF TWELVE: If all the sins of your own lifetime were contained in one big stone, could you lift it high enough to throw at an unwed mother?

"Are things rough?" Let Abby help you solve your problem. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and send to Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

We The Women:

By Ruth Millet

Florists want to know "who buys flowers and why" and so they are about to launch a motivational study to get the answer. Looks as though they would know who buys flowers, doesn't it? Boys buy them (by the corsage) up to college age—and then they quit for a spell. Married men after they get married—sometimes for sentimental reasons, sometimes because a man can't think of anything else to give his wife. (Just as she can always buy him a necktie or sports shirt.)

Women buy corsages for other women—luncheon speakers, madame presidents and honored guests. These usually are orchids, the bigger the better. Housewives buy flowers for special occasions. These are usually "arrangements"—to center tea or buffet tables. Here the main object is to persuade the florist to make an arrangement from a dozen posies and lots of fern that will somehow manage to look impressive. Organizations buy flowers for banquets. The person giving these orders always explains: "We don't have much money to spend." And, of course, somebody has to buy the bunches of flowers little girls are always presenting to visiting dignitaries. (Here the interesting question is what the dignity does with the flowers once the cameras have clicked, recording the presentation.) That it would seem, aside from weddings and funerals, about takes care of the who and why of flower buying. And the florists are welcome to the data—with no charge for motivational research, either.

Jacoby On Bridge

By Oswald Jacoby

The bidding in the box is that at one table in a team of four game. South won East's queen of clubs with the ace and led a heart toward dummy. West ducked and dummy's king held the trick. South returned a trump and played a low heart on East's ten spot. This is a fine example of the obligatory finesse. He had nothing to gain by playing the queen. When he played low, West had to win with the ace. Later on, South lost a club and a diamond, but made his game. At the other table North chose to respond one spade. South raised to three and North continued to four spades. East opened the king of clubs and North was in dummy with the ace. North played a couple of rounds of trumps, stopping in his hand and then led a heart toward South's queen. East played the ten and this declarer had to lose two heart tricks and go down one. While team of four competition is the most skillful form of bridge this hand clearly shows that there is a tremendous luck factor. Each declarer reached a slightly ambitious game contract. One made a lucky decision in hearts; the other an unlucky one.

Abandons Frivolity For Terror Role

BY ERSKINE JOHNSON SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) —

"Mr. Blank"—Rosa Martin—had just resigned from A.A. (acting anonymously), and he looked like a fellow handed a pardon at the gas chamber door. His smile was wider than the Golden Gate and reminiscent of his carefree days as "Andamo" on "Mr. Lucky" before the bit series, went down the TV drain. "It was frustrating," Martin said about a month of disguising his voice and being introduced from behind a mask as "Mr. Blank." When an actor lands a big movie role with no mention of his name anywhere, you might say it is the ultimate in frustration. It happened to Martin when producer-director Blake Edwards had this hush-hush idea for the role of a psychopathic killer in "Experiment in Terror." The film, costarring Glenn Ford and Lee Remick, is on location here. For a while the hush-hush bit worked out better than a U-2 operation. Everyone was sworn to secrecy and the Columbia publicity department rushed the masked Mr. Martin through "Who is he?" newspaper interviews. In San Francisco, however, things got out of hand when the film company moved into Candlestick Baseball Park for a sequence. We found no evidence of "Mr. Blank's" off-camera mask or on-camera disguise being blown across the bay by Candlestick's famed wind gusts, but it wasn't long before 1,500 extras got wind of his identity.

While the film's dejected public relations man went off to burn Mr. Blank's mask over a double order of flaming brandy (on cherries jubilee) we talked to Martin. His role in "Experiment in Terror" should win all 1961 movie awards in the Mr. Menace league. Martin's flair for light comedy with a Spanish dialect brought him TV fame in "Mr. Lucky." He couldn't be happier, however, about playing the killer who turns Lee Remick into a nervous basket case before he's tracked down and killed by FBI man Glenn Ford. "After Mr. Lucky went off the air a year ago," he said, "all I could get were Spanish dialect roles and the part of an Indian in 'Geronimo.' I was worried about becoming a latter-day Leo Carrillo until Edwards gave me this role." With face unshaven and even name billing delayed until the film's climax, Martin's campaign of terror in the story is staged with disguises and a breathless, asthmatic voice. The labored breathing from the shadowy figure who haunts heroine Lee Remick is the only clue to his identity—and the script makes the most of this. Before starting the film, Martin went to a Los Angeles clinic in hopes of researching various asthmatic types. He was turned down—"professional ethics, you know," he was told. But with help from a doctor friend he has perfected what he hopes will be the most distinctively sinister voice ever in a movie. "Experiment in Terror" is based on "Operation Terror," a mystery novel by former Hollywood press agent Gordon Gordon and wife. Title and background (Los Angeles) in the novel have been changed. Edwards decided San Francisco was a more colorful background. No one knows exactly why "Operation Terror" was discarded as a title, but one wit says: "I guess someone decided 'Operation Terror' sounded like a story about a surgeon with a case of palsy."

ACTRESS ELIZABETH Taylor strolls the streets of Capri, while vacationing before filming of the much-delayed "Cleopatra," in Italy and Egypt.

Seminole Sports Slants

The 1961 Seminoles in their initial display of talent looked real good to the 3,000 fans that swarmed into Memorial Stadium last Friday night. With the 40-0 score Seminole stalwarts "ginger" got a boost for the weeks ahead.

In the last-hurter second half Coach Jim Pigott probably wished he had the JV's suit out to have a look-see at the up-coming hopefuls under fire. Some of the JV's with no shortage of confidence opined that they could have knocked off the Terriers from Titusville, too. That's the spirit — if not the discipline.

As it was, the Varsity coaches had a chance to run players back and forth from bench to gridiron and take a gander at some combinations that might be helpful in games to come.

Indicative of the spirit of both coaching staff and squad was the his of drama seen at the south end of the field. Butch Riser had done some nifty sprinting and yard making to see the final stripe in sight and only to be pulled down on the one yard line. Denied that thrill that comes with making a TD. So, in came the next play from the mentors. You guessed it. It was Riser over the left side — and his teammates, anxious to help the spirited junior rack up the six points he'd just missed, really cleared the way. Fine tribute to coaches, team play and willing worker! This is the spirit that will win more games this year. And what a bang for the southpaw junior to make a TD in his first varsity game!

An unusual feature of any ball club's season is to have a lineman make a touchdown. Rarely does it happen. But first pop in the '61 series for the Warriors, Gene Williams racked up six points from a tackle position. He earned the privilege by crashing through to block a punt.

By the way, what do we call this high school team? Warriors? Seminoles? Indians? Seminole Indian Warriors? No, that last one won't go into a headline very well. Might call them Reds, except for the fact that the namer is in bad repute — and surely doesn't fit our boys in its usual usage.

Speaking of JV's, as we were a few spaces up the line, they go into battle Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. They'd like to see heap big crowd on hand for war council and to watch them scalp Seabreeze JV's.

Edgewater, the Seminoles' foe in Orlando Friday, took a 19-6 shellacking from Melbourne Friday. But those Bulldogs, always tough, alighted up on the Eagles to jerk their tail feathers. So, the Orlando eleven will not be a push-over for Pigott's pigskin proteges. There will be many a carload of Sanford citizens deserting the Friday night downtown specials, come this weekend, ah betcha.

Champ Ignores NBA Edict

BOSTON (UPI)—Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Tom McNeely apparently ignored a recent National Boxing Association edict in the contract for their proposed title fight Nov. 13.

Under the terms of the pact announced Monday, McNeely has guaranteed Patterson a return bout in 120 days if he wins the world title.

Dixie Football Prospects Shaping Up Strong

United Press International Word that Maryland is loaded, that Duke again will be one of the nation's strongest and the bright star of Roman Gabriel at North Carolina State feature the South's 1961 football prospects. First games this weekend likely will do a lot toward telling how well the Atlantic Coast Conference stacks up against other football powers.

For example, Maryland plays Southern Methodist at Dallas, Tex., North Carolina State faces Skyline co-champion Wyoming at Laramie and Clemson faces Florida of the Southeastern Conference.

It's Now Or Never For Maris

United Press International It's now or never for Roger Maris, the brash young man who seeks to dethrone Babe Ruth as baseball's home run king.

Needing two homers to tie and three to break Ruth's 34-year-old all-time record of 60 homers in a season, the 27-year-old Maris faces his "moment of truth" tonight in the New York Yankees' two-night doubleheader with the Baltimore Orioles. He must hit at least one homer tonight to have any practical chance to break the mark in a single game Wednesday night, which brings him to the end of the 154-game limit prescribed by Commissioner Ford Frick.

Wins Scholarship

NEW YORK (UPI)—The pro football Quarterbacks Club of New York Monday presented Ann Eshmont, a daughter of the late Len Eshmont, former New York and San Francisco pro football star, with the Timothy J. Mara scholarship award. The award honors the memory of the founder of the Giants.

Oakland Fires Eddie Erdelatz

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—The Oakland Raiders sold Eddie Erdelatz down the river—but they'll be open for business at the same old stand on Sunday when they tangle with the Dallas Texans at Candlestick Park.

"And there are no plans or proposals to shift the franchise elsewhere" said a Raider spokesman.

"We'll have a new stadium to go into in Oakland in a couple of years and we think things will pick up then."

Erdelatz was fired Monday by the four-man tribunal operating the club and Marty Feldman was named in his place. The owners probably were smarting more than Eddie was from the 55-0 pasting his team took from the Houston Oilers in the season's opener and the follow-up 44-0 licking last Sunday from the San Diego Chargers.

Houston and San Diego were the most powerful clubs in the league last year and look stronger than ever this year. And Dallas is right in the same class.

So new coach Feldman, who was Erdelatz's assistant, steps right into the hot water.

The Raiders have announced an advance sale of 5,000 tickets. And they expect about 10,000 for the battle — if the weather is good.

"This club has adequate material to compete in this league," said Feldman after he was handed the task of trying to build a winner. "It's too late to make any major changes. So we'll try to jell the Raiders into a representative club."

Olympic Jitters Break Out In Japan

TOKYO (UPI)—Hotel managers in the world's largest city are already breaking out with "Olympic jitters."

The Japan Times reported today that Tokyo hotels are being "swamped" with applications from groups who want reservations for the 1964 Olympic Games here.

Eighty per cent of the reservations are coming from the United States.

The Japan Hotel Association said many small groups have made application for reservations. So far, according to the association's latest check, 3,500 persons have reserved rooms.

A total of 850,000 persons are expected to visit Japan during 1964, the Transportation Ministry said.

BELGIAN CIVILIANS carry Katanga soldier, wounded during battle with UN in Elisabethville, the Congo.

Katanga Gives UN Ultimatum

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (UPI)—Katanga President Moise Tshombe gave the United Nations an ultimatum today to come up with new proposals by nightfall to end the fighting in his rebel province of the Congo.

Even as he spoke here after paying tribute at the bier of the late UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, a broadcast by "Radio Free Katanga" said Central Congolese government troops had moved into Katanga to help UN forces overthrow Tshombe.

Slim Gets UN Post

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—The United Nations General Assembly today unanimously elected Mongi Slim of Tunisia as president of its 16th regular session, succeeding Frederick H. Boland of Ireland.

Slim, backed by Boland and strong Western support that included the United States and Britain, also was a prominent contender to become interim administrator of the United Nations in place of Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, who died in an African air crash Sunday night.

Heavy politicking as the delegates of 99 nations gathered for the assembly's second day delayed the start of this morning's meeting 45 minutes.

Russia's insistence that the United Nations adopt its "troika" plan of three secretaries general and opposition to Slim's appointment on constitutional grounds that it would confuse the legislative and executive branches of the world organization made indefinite the likelihood of the selection of Hammarskjold's successor.

School Books Ordered To Ease Shortage

A supplemental order of textbooks to relieve the shortage in the Seminole County school system was placed Monday, Oct. 18, Superintendent of Schools R. T. Milwee said today. He said that this order should be received in about two weeks.

He said that some of the school boards are asking parents who can afford it to buy books for their children. He added that he would ask the school board to give him permission to ask parents in Seminole County who can afford it to help in alleviating the shortage by buying books.

Later on, he said, these parents can sell these books and get back some of the money spent on them.

Milwee said that county schools still are using some books which are now "out of adoption." These books are ones which have been taken off the approved list. This situation came about, he explained because of the fact that textbook allocations have not kept up with the schools' needs.

In a survey of some of the schools in the county the following question was asked: "Do you have a shortage of textbooks in your school?" Their answers follow: Andrew J. Bracken, principal of Seminole High: "Yes we have a shortage due to the fact that we underestimated our enrollment.

We have placed an order for more books, but it's going over our allotment." H. L. Douglas, Principal of Crooks Academy: "Yes, in some areas, but there is not too much of a shortage. We have new books ordered, but we don't know whether we will have enough books until we see how many we get."

New England Braces For Esther

NAGS HEAD, N. C. (UPI)—Hurricane Esther barely brushed North Carolina's protective Outer Banks island chain today and swept north with its 130 miles an hour winds. Residents of the Atlantic Coast from New Jersey to New England braced for the worst.

Hurricane warnings were lowered south of Hatteras, N. C., and the weather bureau said they may be lowered as far north as the Virginia Capes in a matter of hours although weathermen warned residents not to let down their guard. At 9 a. m. EST hurricane warnings still were displayed from Hatteras to the Virginia Capes and a hurricane watch went up from the Capes to Massachusetts.

The Washington Weather Bureau said in its 9 a. m. EST advisory that Esther was expected to continue in a northerly direction about 14 miles an hour for the next 12 to 18 hours at the same size and intensity—big and mean.

At 9 a. m. the storm's eye was located about 140 miles east-northeast of Cape Hatteras, at latitude 35.8 north, longitude 73.1 west.

Heavy rain was expected to extend about 60 miles inland and about 200 to 300 miles to the north as Esther churned up the coast. High tides swept in on many low lying areas and from Whalebone Junction to Kitty Hawk, N. C., waves swept across sand dunes and threatened to isolate motels, stores and cottages.

It's fall already? There's a nip in the air the last few nights and folks are pulling up the bedspreeds. Some of the colder-natured ones are even getting out a light blanket.

Thursday is the first day of fall and smart shoppers would be wise to seriously consider their winter wardrobe, household and sport needs while stores have complete stocks and a large and varied selection in all items.

If your storage space is limited, lay your needed items away, until that frosty morn sends you scurrying to town to get them "out of hock." (Better get that oil tank filled, too.)

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United States and Russia have agreed to begin their fateful Berlin crisis talks Thursday.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will start the discussions at a private lunch in Rusk's Waldorf Towers suite.

The U. S. secretary bears a firm mandate from President Kennedy and the chief Western Allies to warn Gromyko in grim terms against any further squeeze plays or unilateral acts against the West in Berlin. He also will urge an end to Soviet rocket-rattling in the tense situation.

The purpose of the Rusk-Gromyko talks from the Western viewpoint, is to determine whether there is any honorable basis for full-scale East-West negotiations with Russia on Germany and Berlin. Rusk hopes to get some clear idea of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's real intentions in Europe.
