SANFORD - Police say marital problems mixed with beer may have led a Sanford man to chain and imprison his wife while threatening to set fire to their motor home Thursday.

Shortly after midnight Thursday morning, police reported, Ralph Parker, 51, took a chain and wrapped half of it around his wife, Betty, also 51, and padlocked it shut. He then wrapped several feet around himself, leaving about four feet of slack chain between them. He also padlocked that end.

13 hours chained, they said, before allowing her to call her sister.

She was allowed to tell her sister that she was chained, that he (Ralph) had three gallons of gasoline and that he was ready to ignite the gas if things didn't go as planned," Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire of the Sanford Police Department said.

Foster mom gives up child

FORT LAUDERDALE - The woman who disappeared for nearly a month with her foster daughter rather than give up the child to birth relatives has been released from Jail.

Kathryn Reiter surrendered herself and the child last Sunday. She fled March 9 rather than obey a court order to surrender the 2 1/2-year-old to cousins of the girl's mother, a crack cocaine user.

Mrs. Reiter was originally held on $100,000 bond in Dade County on a charge of contempt of court. That was thrown out Wednesday when Mrs. Relter was transferred to Broward to face a charge of unlawful flight, a third-degree felony. She was released Thursday.

Broward County Circuit Judge June Johnson agreed Thursday to set Mrs. Reiter's bond at $5,000 if she wears an electronic monitoring device. She is not allowed to leave Dade. Broward and Palm Beach counties.

Honduras says no to Cuban rafters

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras - Honduras said it will not accept any more undocumented Cuban rafters.

About 130 of the undocumented refugees are expected to head for Honduras from Grand Cayman, where they arrived after leaving Cuba.

Migration Director Evangelina Ulloa told The Associated Press on Thursday that from now on, "the authorities have precise order to return all undocumented Cubans discovered in Honduran territory to where they came from.

At least 36 rafters have arrived in Honduras in the past eight months. The latest three, who arrived March 26, had exit permits from Grand Cayman.

Another 30 arrived in the past two weeks in Costa Rica from Grand Cayman but Costa Rican authorities refused them political asylum. Foreign Minister Ernesto Paz Aguilar said Central American governments soon will discuss the possibility of a joint agreement banning rafters. Public hearing set on discrimination

TAMPA - Hillsborough County commissioners have voted to hold a public hearing next month to repeal the county's 4-year-old law banning discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation.

If the commissioners' comments during a meeting Wednesday were any clue, the May 3 hearing will be heated but isn't likely to change anyone's mind.

The 4-3 vote to hold the hearing was a foregone conclusion since two more conservative board members were elected last for his extradition to Belgium, and ended a two monthsurveillance by the Marshal's Office and some local law enforcement agencies.

The commission and the Tampa City Council adopted similar sexual orientation amendments to their respective human rights ordinances in May 1991. The county amendment provides protection for homosexuals against discrimina-tion in housing, public accommodations and the awarding of county contracts.

Chabado had false documents and some uncut diamonds believed to be among those stolen from Antwerpen Diamond Circle in Antwerp in December 1994, the release said. The diamonds he allegedly stole have an estimated value of 180 million Belgian francs.

Health care party-line vote

Panel OKs compromise reform proposal

By JACKIE HALLIFAX Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A House panel voted 13-12 along party lines for a health care reform bill that would let countles and poor people get federal dollars for insurance.

The legislation (CS-HB 1965) approved Thursday by the Health Care Committee was drafted by Chairman Ben Graber as an alternative to a plan by Gov. Lawton Chiles to subsidize private insurance for working Floridians who can't afford premiums on their own.

Both plans use money allocated for Medicaid, a joint federal-state health care program for people on welfare. Fifty-five cents of every dollar spent on Medicaid in Florida comes from Washington.

The money that is shifted is saved by making welfare recipients go into health maintenance organizations and other kinds of managed care.

All the Republicans on the panel and one Democrat - Rep. Harry Goode of Melbourne - voted against the bill. The remaining Democrats voted for it, including Majority Leader Jim Davis of Tampa, whose position lets him vote even though he isn't a committee member. The bill goes next to Since leaders in the Republican-led Senate have been opposed to major health care reform this year, the outlook of the House bill is uncertain.

But Graber, D-Coral Springs, didn't seem deterred by that fact, which more than one Republican pointed out.

"We're not here to ... give them every-thing they want spoon-fed," he said. Republicans warned Graber a compromise proposal they've been working on would be threatened by the bill. "This bill runs the risk of crashing that whole thing," said Rep. George Albright, R-Ocala.

"This is the House; this is not the Senate," Graber replied. "And if you think (Senate President) Jim Scott runs the House, then why don't you go join the Senate.

Chiles wasn't as hostile to Graber's bill as the Republicans, but he was hardly enthusiastic. If GOP lawmakers defeat it "I don't know that they'd be killing much," the governor said.

"I guess it's a step toward moving on to the next level," he said.

Rep. Jim King, R-Jacksonville, offered an amendment to eliminate the portion of the bill that would let counties draw down federal dollars to pick up more than half of the tab of health care they provide for poor people through networks of Medicaid HMOs.

It was defeated 13-12. Permission to shift federal money out of Medicaid was granted to Florida last year after Chiles proposed a plan to subsidize private insurance for the working poor. The House passed a version of that plan but the Senate, split evenly between Republicans and Democrats, refused.

But with Congress working on a plan to cap Medicaid spending in the future, even more is riding on the issue. If lawmakers take advantage of the waiver. Florida may be able to dodge that cap.

Farm, golf course contamination a risk?

By Associated Press

GAINESVILLE - Officials are concerned about studies that show some Florida farms and golf courses require soil removal and cleanup because of pesticide contamination. State officials involved in assessing the problem said this week they don't know if the sites are a public health risk or how many of the state's 40,000 farms and 1,000 golf courses may be contaminated.

But a state study found that 40 percent of 16 farm pesticide mixing and loading sites inspected revealed contamination above state levels for requiring soil cleanup.

One-third of those sites required cleanup as federal hazardous waste sites.

And 49 of 130 sites at University of Florida Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences facilities around the state were contaminated. The state has spent $4.5 million since 1986 to begin cleaning up those sites. "It could be many hundred, it could be many thousand — either way it's a substantial number," said Mike Thomas, a Florida Department of Environmental Protection engineer.

Officials described the study findings as the beginning of a process to determine the number of contamination sites and amount of cleanup that is necessary to clean them

DEP, the state Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and the Florida Farm Bureau Federation were involved in the study.

Many of the pesticides found in soils are DDT or related compounds. DDT was phased out by the federal government in 1972 after it was found to harm wildlife, including birds. Dozens of mixing and loading sites at farms have been referred to DEP and the agriculture department in the past decade. In addition to soil contamination, about half also have groundwater contamination.

Most of the contamination sites are small and probably are not near people, therefore the health risk to humans is questionable, Thomas said. But there also could be problems in reselling the land because of liability.

DEP said it could not exempt farmers from possibly being found in violation of regulations.

Fair 83-61

Many sites would be subject to federal cleanup regulations that would require that soil be dug up and tracked out of state for disposal, said Pat Cockrell, Farm Bureau director of commodity activity. The cost of cleaning up the sites could range from $6 to $7 per square foot to $1,000 per square foot depending on the level of contamination. That means some sites could cost $100,000, Cockrell said. The state DEP is searching methods of preventing future spills and for alternatives to clean up the sites with the hope of presenting a plan to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for approval. DEP and Farm Bureau also are promoting the use of facilities with impervious surfaces to control soil and groundwater contamination during mixing.

Farm Bureau also encourages its members to mix pesticides in the fields where the possibility of concentrating spills is reduced and cleaning up might be easier, Cockrell

Stephen Humphrey of Gainesville, a member of the state Environmental Regulation Commission, said efforts now should focus on prevention.

Murder trial: 'Urban fear' defense

By DEB RIECHMANN Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE - Nathaniel Hurt says he got scared when he saw the crowd of youths on his property, so he stood on his fire escape, fired four warning shots from his .357 Magnum and ducked back inside his house.

"I had no idea that I had shot anyone until I went to the bail review," the 62-year-old retired janitor testified at his murder

"I thought they were going to get me. They had already threatened me. I thought this youths tossed debris at Hu was the time." Hurt said. "I wasn't trying to hit nobody."

But someone was hit: 13-year-old Veron Holmes Jr., who was shot in the back as he ran down an alley on Oct. 10. Defense attorney Stephen L.

Prosecutors acknowledge that youths tossed debris at Hurt's property and were breaking his car windows when he shot at them, but say that doesn't excuse his actions.

Judge Ellen M. Heller prohibited the defense from asking its next witness, a sociologist, about the "syndrome" because it has not gained widespread acceptance in the scientific community.

Instead, George Washington University professor William Chambliss was expected to testify today about studies indicating that elderly people have heightened fear of crime and that inner-city blacks like Hurt report increased fears of being victimized.

Study: Tiny springs that recycle energy make flies fly

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Scientists clastic biological material have long wondered how flies can keep up the frenzy of energy needed to fly. Now a University of Chicago biologist offers an answer: tiny elastic springs that turn their wings into energyrecycling motors.

Flight requires up to 100 times the energy consumption of an I wrote. animal at rest, as insects sometimes beat their wings 1,000 times a second. By comparison, athletes running the 100-yard dash use only 15 times the energy of a person at rest.

Michael Dickinson put tiny fruit flies inside a virtual reality flight simulator to figure out how they fly. They efficiently capture and reuse kinetic energy. Dickenson reported today in the Journal Science.

"They are high-performance machines capable of spectacular aerial maneuvers," he said. "Our findings suggest that insects in general must be using clastic storage as a means of minimizing energetic flight

Dickinson tracked the fruit flies' wingbeats and energy consumption as they navigated through a virtual-reality world that included fighting crosswinds and hovering. He found their muscles weren't super-efficient; they convert calories to power at about the same raje figmana je

But insect wing hinges contain the protein resilin, the most Because Kalser Cares... known, Dickinson reported. When a wing abruptly ends one stroke, it loses kinetic energy. But the elastic captures between 10 percent and 50 percent of that energy, recoils and uses that leftover energy as a burst that fuels the next stroke, he Dickinson's research indicates these wings are "effective, energy-saving springs," biologist R. McNeill Alexander of the University of Leeds in England agreed in an accompanying editorial.

Alcohol Free Weekend

Today is the beginning of Alcohol Free Weekend, sponsored by the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, Inc. We doubt if it will be observed with any great groundswell of popular support.

Members of MADD, Mothers Against Drunk Drivers, persons connected with the National Council and other organizations, may lend their support and urge people to refrain from drinking, but it's been proven time and time again that declaring a specific day, weekend, week or month to a particular drive, most often produces few results.

Let your imagination flow for a moment however. Just think of what would happen if everyone DID refrain from drinking alcoholic beverages, just from now through Sunday.

First of all, there would be no deaths, injuries or vehicular damages caused by persons driving under the influence of

We also suspect there may be very few cases of domestic violence as well. Many of these beatings are directly related to one or both persons having had "one too many."

Looking at the other end of the coin, there would be many bartenders and waitresses given the weekend off, probably without pay, and the lack of just one weekend's sales would cause beverage companies to lose some

Then, we have some people who are so addicted to alcohol that a full weekend without it could lead them to burst. They could have all kinds of mental and physical reactions and possibly cause a great deal of damage and injury to persons who may try to help.

We could recommend that persons who absolutely must have something, try the ever-increasing number of non-alcoholic beverages being manufactured, both beer and wine.

It would be uscless to ask every single person in the nation to observe Alcohol Free Weekend by refraining from having a nip. But perhaps we can use the occasion to call attention to the many deaths, injuries and problems the overconsumption has produced.

Let's cut back at least. Then, next week, let's see if the Sanford Herald has fewer DUI arrests and accidents, and less domestic violence. We can do it if we show a united concern over this problem and do what we can to help fight it.

Property taxes

Recently the citizens of Florida voted to cap real estate taxes at three percent. The state is trying to ignore the wishes of the people. County property appraisers, elected to office, wish to follow the intent of the law. Ignoring and blocking the will of the people are a bunch of faceless bureaucrats in the Department of Revenue and others. It seems to me the key to this problem is to put the names and faces on those in the state Supreme Court and Department of Revenue who dare to manipulate and obstruct a law placed in the state Constitution by the voters. The property appraisers need our support to do the job we elected them into! We can better help them if we have the identity of those obstructionists. If they are political appointments, which politicians appointed them? If they are elected let the voter know "who" they are!

America contracting for change

The remarkable 100 days of politics set in motion by the Contract With America have ended - and formed a beginning. Things won't

There is a tendency in reporting about Congress, and politics, to set up a scorecard. And so we hear that the House did not approve term limits and so was able to pass just nine out of 10 bills in the Contract. The Senate fell one vote short on the House-passed Balanced Budget Amendment, thereby mooting that item, temporarily. The Senate will dilute some of the other House-passed bills. President Clinton will veto some, and his vetoes may or may not be upheld. What will the final batting average be?

Wrong question. Politics shouldn't be judged by batting averages. It's about ideas and directions.

In that sense, what has happened over the past six months has been astonishing, regardless of whether or not you agree with Newt Gingrich's agenda. The Republicans put forth the Contract. Its intellectual thrust was clear: a rollback of the excesses of the welfare state, at least. The Contract "nationalized" the congressional elec-tions, contradicting Tip O'Neill's dictum that "All politics is local." The Republicans then won the election, big time. It has now been shown that the ideas they ran on could pass through the into law, have a life of their own. America's will be a "reverse rollback." Democrats have lashed out about a "war on kids." "cutting school lunches" and "balancing the bud-get on the backs of the poor." It is said that things are looking up for Clinton and the Democrats and that in 1996 they may restore the old liberal precepts of government.

Do not count on that, Ideas in play, even when they are criticized and not immediately enacted ideological direction has changed.

The House-passed welfare bill has a provision in it that would cut off cash welfare for families made up of a teen-age mother with illegitimate offspring (Medicaid and food stamps continue). It is a way to send a message to the next generation that we will no longer subsidize illegitimate birth, and by not subsidizing it, stop buying it. That is a mainframe idea, here to stay, whether or not it survives in this year's legislation.

The most important part of the House-passed crime bills provides for more state prison cells linked to truth-in-sentencing. That establishes the primacy of "incapacitation," a big word that expresses a simple idea: A thug in jail cannot shoot your sister. The increase of imprisonment in recent decades has likely led to the current decrease in crime.

The Balanced Budget Amendment failed by one vote. It will be back. More important, serious spending cuts are coming. The scope of government will be reduced, at least somewhat.

Moreover: Congress must now abide by its own rules. Unfunded mandates are history. There will likely be a line-item veto of some sort. The explosion of hyper-litigation will be slowed. Executive branch regulations will be scrutinized by Congress.

Prescribed Culture takes a hike

WASHINGTON - Before we get to the 'Pulp" factor, I have to mention the gulp factor.

You'll understand if you have a friend like mine — one who stands your hair on end each time he gets behind the wheel.

We'll be tooling along the highway when the sign indicating our exit appears. My friend will ignore it, making zero effort to move toward the exit lane — until the exit is upon us. Suddenly galvanized, my friend will slap on the turn signal and heave his auto between two exiting vehicles. I want to smack him though not as much as the obscenity spouting drivers he's cut off. Ask my normally thoughtful pai why he chooses to morph into King Kamikaze at highway exits and he hasn't a clue. It's "just me," he says — his choice, his preference.

I think about "just him" — or her — often: When I see gorgeous stars in outfits sane folks wouldn't wear to scrape up dog do-do. When parents at the grocery smile indulgently when Junior tells them to "shut up!" When, over the weekend I made myself see

"Pulp Fiction" and briefly felt like everybody in America got it but me. Actually, not everybody. Those who raved the most were critics. Paying filmgoers I know found it everything from "funny" to "interesting" to "disturbing" to "Good Lord, they think that's great?!" Reactions to "Pulp" were so inconsistent I believed I could skip it. Then came the Oscar nomination. Today we know that American culture hasn't quite sunk to the point of honoring

"Pulp" as the year's best film. But its success still bears analysis - as indicated by an insightful piece in the March issue of GQ. "The Tyranny of Prescribed Culture." Prescribed Culture, says the article, is a 'pop-culture canon for smart people sharing ... the patronizing notion that you will become a better (or cooler) person by heeding its recommendations." So, it continued, "the arbiters of Prescribed Culture describe 'Pulp Fiction' as a 'must-see'; the albums of Liz Phair as 'required listen-

You get the picture. Dense, history-laden books such as "The Alienist" are prescribed culture; ultra-popular quick reads like "The Bridges of Madison County" are unprescribed culture. Music by obscure critical darlings like folk guitarist Richard Thompson are prescribed; sounds by the critically despised but crowd-pleasing Yanni and Whitney Houston couldn't be less so.

Just as not every critic is a prescribed culture-ite, not every movie rises to the status of the new PC.

Those that do:

A) Surprise critics. These poor souls see hundreds of movies a year, most of the cloying and predictable "Flintstones 3" mode. Hence, an entertaining flick like "The Crying Game" becomes a work of gentus - mostly because male reviewers were stunned to have spent 40 minutes lusting for a very cute boy.

B) Lack heart. Critics think sentimentality—as in "Pretty Woman," "The Shawshank Redemption" and, of course, "Forrest
Gump"—stinks.

C) Don't quite make sense. Offbalance viewers feel that if they were hipper or smarter, they'd see the point in all that weirdness and/or brutality. To admit they don't would suggest they're outre - the last thing any '90s adult wants to be. One more thing prescribed culture flicks shouldn't be too popular. In "Pulp's case, the film's surface cleverness, great score

"I would have told readers, 'If your're into violence and alickness, this movie is more entertaining than most. If you're not, you don't have to see it."

Culture can be prescribed, but never taste. I have no doubt some thoughtful critics and average Joes and Janes truly saw greatness in "Pulp Fiction." It was, as my friend would say. "just them."

Bickering over crime stats

WASHINGTON - At a time when crime rates hover near record levels and drug abuse is once again on the increase, politicians in Washington are having trouble deciding if the glass is half-full or half-empty.

A recent report by the Administrative Office of U.S. Courts has touched off another round of partisan statistical warfare on Capitol Hill. Both sides in the debate — House Republicans and the Clinton administration now say they have the numbers to prove that they're tougher on crime and drugs. But this is one case where numbers do little to clarify the argument.

House Republicans believe their figures show that the Clinton White House has been far less aggressive in fighting the Bush administration. They point to newly released numbers indicating that the total number of criminal cases filed in federal court declined last year for the second straight year. The decline follows nearly a decade of continuous growth during the Reagan and Bush administrations. According to the report, the decline was fueled by a nationwide drop in federal drug cases, which decreased 7 percent last year after a decade of steady increases. The report found even greater disparities in the number of federal drug defendants. Since 1992, the number of marijuana defendants has fallen by 15 percent, while federal heroin and cocaine charges dropped 26 percent.

Republicans smell blood in the wake of the report. Several lawmakers are already using the numbers to drown out Clinton's anticrime message and to question the president's commitment to the war on drugs. Witness the exchange at a hearing last week of the House subcommittee on crime, where the declining case numbers were at the top of the agenda.

"In these statistics, I see things like the number of seizures going down over the last two years," said Rep. Ed Bryant, R-Tenn. "I see... fewer drug cases being prosecuted in the federal courts... We talk about a drug policy, but to me, right now, it appears that over the last couple of years, efforts to fight drugs have been reduced."

Nonsense, say administration officials, who claim the numbers are not a true measure of their anti-crime efforts and are merely being used for political gain. They've trotted out their own statistics to defend Clinton's record on crime. "I don't want to sound partisan. but to judge our aggressiveness by comparing a few statistics is a cheap shot." Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern said.

Thomas A. Constantine, head of the Drug Enforcement Administration, says drug prosecutions are down because the government is targeting major drug kingpins rather than simply rounding up small-time users and dealers. These cases often take longer and are more intricate than the agency's past caseload. "There are a whole lot of different reasons for those numbers." Constantine said recently. "You may get fewer federal cases. but they're major drug figures."

While the Justice Department professes a distaste for numbers, that didn't stop Attorney General Janet Reno from pulling out a few figures of her own last fall to deflect an earlier round of GOP attacks. In a November letter to Senate Republicans, Reno cited statistics showing that 3,000 more criminals went to prison in 1993 than the year before. "More impressively still, we increased by more than 800 the number of serious criminals receiving long prison terms over five years." Reno wrote.

Morris also sent Couch a letter on Feb. 17, thanking him for sending a copy of the proposed Geneva Lens Bill. Based on what Morris considered imposing a large number of mandates on the county, and the matter having a cost of $1 million in capital expenditures plus $1.5 million annually in operating costs, Morris told Couch the county opposed the legislation.

On April 4, letters were sent to Couch as well as the entire legislative delegation. Again, Morris reiterated the same reasons for a continuation of county disapproval of the bill.

In his written response, Couch reminded Morris that Seminole County was given five out of the total 13 positions on the Geneva Lens Task Force which met over a period of several months in town meetings and pres-

"After the completion of the Task Force," he wrote, "52 recommendations were voted on and nearly all were voted unanimously, including votes from the county's five representatives."

"It is these same recommendations that my bill seeks to enact in order to protect the sole residents of the Geneva area," the letter continues. "I am curious as to why your representatives thought the ideas were important then, but your board has since chosen to throw out the months of hard work and

During the past few years. residents of the Geneva area have, time after time, turned out at commission meetings, held gatherings and started drives to oppose a number of planned borrow pits in that area because of the risk that residents say they pose to their drinking water supply, the "Geneva Bubble."

In May, 1991, the county commission approved a borrow pit permit for 116 acres near Geneva. In October, despite appeals from nine residents, commissioners, on a split vote, approved another borrow pit, on

"I am reminded by what many residents in this same area considered an "unfunded mandate" from Seminole County placed upon them in the atter of mandatory garbage collection." he wrote to Morris. He continued, "I am confused as to why you feel willing to charge the residents for better garbage service, but you balk at spending county resources at protecting these same tax payer's sole source of drinking water. Again, I respect home rule, even when it doesn't make much sense."

Couch's letter concluded. 'Chairman Morris, I feel this bill is important to the residents of Geneva. Unlike the garbage issue, the clear majority have asked me for this bill, and I believe that we must take action now to protect this fragile water supply before it is too late.'

'I'm sorry that Seminole County has chosen to try to block legislation that I feel they planed an important part in writing." he said. "No matter, I plan to continue doing what my constituents have asked me to

Fetal alcohol syndrome increases sixfold

ATLANTA — Despite growing awareness that liquor can lead to fetal alcohol syndrome, about one fifth of women continued to drink after learning they were pregnant, the government said.

The information is part of a study showing that the rate of babies born with health problems caused by fetal alcohol syndrome increased sixfold from 1979 through 1993.

The rate has jumped from one per 10,000 births in 1979 — when the government began tracking cases — to 6.7 per 10,000 births in 1993, The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported Thursday. A total of 2,032 cases were reported among the 9.4-million births over the 15-year period.

A federal study released last fall found no significant change in pregnant women's drinking habits since 1988, said Louise Floyd, chief of the CDC's Fetal Alcohol Syndrome prevention section.

"Clearly, too many babies are still being harmed by too much drinking during pregnancy," Floyd said.

Symptoms of fetal alcohol syndrome include mental retardation, abnormal facial features, central nervous system problems, behavioral difficulties and growth deficiencies.

Both parties declare victory

WASHINGTON — Leaders of both parties are declaring victory after Senate approval of $16 billion in cuts in social programs. But their week-long struggle highlights how difficult it will be for Republicans to deliver on their promise to balance the budget.

After days of Democratic delays, Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., struck a deal Thursday night, joined by President Clinton. Shortly afterward, the Senate vote 99-0 in favor of cuts in education, housing, jobs and scores of other programs, and joined the House in Easter recess.

"It's an agreement we all can support," Daschle said prior to the vote. Only Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., did not vote.

The bipartisan pact shielded national service, housing modernization and other programs from $835 million in cuts Republicans wanted, while slicing more than $1.6 billion from airport improvements and other programs.

Republicans celebrate end of sprint

WASHINGTON — Weary but elated, House Republicans are celebrating the end of their 100-day sprint — it was 93 days, actually — while promising to return next month to take care of unfinished business.

With Washington's cherry trees in bloom, Republicans returned to the west steps of the Capitol, where they launched their "Contract With America" last fall, to underscore that they had kept their promise. It was a message that House Speaker Newt Gingrich planned to bring home in a nationally televised address tonight.

The fraying, laminated card in Gingrich's pocket now has 10 holes punched in it — one next to each of the "contract" proposals Republicans promised to vote on within 100 days of taking over the House.

But Democrats managed to punch some holes of their own in the "contract." Only two of its provisions — congressional accountability and unfunded mandates — have been signed into law. Two others — the balanced budget amendment and congressional term limits — were defeated. And a "Star Wars" missile defense measure was knocked out of a national security bill.

Dropped juror's allegations trigger probe

LOS ANGELES — Allegations by a pro-defense juror dropped from the O.J. Simpson trial have triggered an investigation by the judge, defense accusations of a conspiracy and questions about the integrity of the rest of the jury.

As testimony was replaced by dueling news conferences Thursday, the defense also claimed that prosecutors are harassing and spying on defense witnesses, particularly science experts. The defense sought a hearing next week on prosecutorial misconduct.

District Attorney Gil Garcetti didn't specifically deny the harassment allegations. "We are seeking the truth," he said, "and we're doing it in an ethical, professional and honorable way."

Court was canceled Thursday and today because three jurors came down with the flu. CBS News reported that two of them were not sick, but were protesting the dismissal of juror Jeanette Harris. Since Monday had already been scheduled as a day off, testimony is to resume Tuesday.

Tabasco attack is hot topic

LEBANON, N.H. — Waitress Linda Burroughs rolls her eyes when she hears the customer's joke: "I'll have eggs. Hold the Tabasco, please."

She's heard it before — at least 25 times Thursday morning alone.

The reason: A former cook at the Denny's where Burroughs works has been charged with spiking the eggs of two Vermont state troopers with the hot pepper sauce.

Michael Towne, 20, is to be tried June 6 on two simple assault charges. If convicted, he could get a maximum two years in jail and $2,000 fine.

Most of the customers trickling into Denny's on Thursday thought the police department's response to an apparent prank was, well, a little hot-headed.

"They thought it was pushing it a little too far." Burroughs said.

WORLD BRIEFS

Government shaken

GLASGOW, Scotland — Stunning defeats for Britain's Conservative Party in Scottish local elections have shaken the government and threaten to loosen the nearly three-century union of England and Scotland.

Labor, which has huge leads over the Conservatives in national opinion polls, now is in charge of most of Scotland's local authorities.

Labor and the centrist Liberal Democrats promise a Scottish parliament to create a degree of devolved government, while the nationalists want to break from the United Kingdom of England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Lottery fever rises, rumors quelled on syndicate buyouts

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — There are 81 million reasons why Lotto fever is hot and getting hotter. The lure of an $81 million jackpot, which may go even higher before Saturday's drawing, has lottery officials trying to quell rumors an international syndicate could buy all 13.9 million number combinations and be guaranteed a winning ticket.

"We have a rule in place that we believe would prevent a syndicate buy-out through a block ticket purchase," Lottery Secretary Marcia Mann said Thursday

Ex-'Noie Sawyer charged TALLAHASSEE - Cincinnati Bengala cornerback Corey Sawyer has been charged with perjury by Leon County authorities who say he lied about taking money from a prospective agent while playing at Florida State. Sawyer turned himself in at the Leon County Jail and was released after posting $5,000 bond. Perjury, a third-degree felony, carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison. In the summer of 1994, Sawyer said he received $1,800 in cash during the 1993 season from a friend, Creighton Miller. Investigators said Miller was in Key West on the dates of the Western Union transfers and has never been in New York where the payments originated.

Leon County investigators said Sawyer lied to protect agent Joel Segal of New York. Greensville rallies by Suns

JACKSONVILLE - Damon Hollins scored the winning run to give Greenville a 2-1 victory over Jacksonville in the opening game of the Southern League season Thursday night.

Jacksonville took an early lead. But Greenville came back to tie, 1-1, in the fifth inning on a Robert Smith homer.

Flyers hold off Lightning

PHILADELPHIA - John LeClair continued his good fortune against Tampa Bay, scoring early in the third period to help the Philadelphia Flyers defeat the Lightning 5-4 Thursday night. LeClair has six goals in his three games against Tampa Bay this season.

Roman Hamriik's 11th goal of the season, off a perfect feed from Petr Klima, brought the Lightning to 5-4 with 1:20 left.

Blackhawks reacquire Savard

CHICAGO — Desperate for an offensive center to replace injured Jeremy Roenick, the Chicago Blackhawks reacquired Denis Savard from Tampa Bay on Thursday.

The Blackhawks sent a sixth-round choice in the 1996 draft to the Lightning for Savard, 34, who played for Chicago from 1960-90.

During his decade with the Blackhawks, the 4 1,013 Famers San Bilitia and Bobby Hull had mare points while wearing a Chicago uniform.

Severd had 10 goals and 28 assists for the Lightning last season. He has six goals and 11 assists this season.

Raiders split with FCC-J

SANFORD - The Seminole Community College softball team nearly got what it needed Thursday

Jean Spanarelli hit home runs in both games as the Raiders fell just short of sweeping the Florida Com-munity College at Jacksonville Stars, losing a 5-4 squeeker in the opener and then getting a two-hit 4-0 shutout from Heather Hutchinson in the second game of a Mid-Florida Conference doubleheader at Raider Field.

Spanarelli, from Jacksonville, nearly dealt FCC-J a big blow in a game that the Raiders probably had no business winning as she ripped a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning of the first game to cut the lead 5-4 after SCC had fallen behind 4-0 and 5-1.

But that was as close as the Raiders would get as they suffered their third straight loss.

The Btars outhit the SCC 14-7 and had 20 baserunners to only 13 for the Raiders.

In the nightcap, Spanarelli gave SCC the lead in the third inning with another two-run shot. The Raiders added the other two runs in the fourth inning.

With the lead in hand, Hutchinson (21-9), a freshman from Boone, shut the door on FCC-J (18-6 in the conference), allowing no hits after the third inning and no base runners over the final three innings. Hutchinson struck out two, walked two and hit one Star batter in her neven innings of work.

SCC (27-13 overall, 14-9 M-FC) will now get away from conference □See Split, Page 23

Hilliman, Seminoles skin Pine Ridge

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - The Seminole High School baseball team moved uptown Thursday afternoon and came away with its third victory in four starts.

Forced to move its game to Sanford Memorial Stadium because of wet conditions at Alumni Field, the Fighting Seminoles scored in each of the first four innings and Andy Hilliman scattered five hits as Seminole whipped the Pine Ridge Panthers from Deltona 7-1.

The win improved the Tribe's record to 7-9 and gives the local squad some momentum heading into next week's Big Blue Invitational Tournament at Lake Brantley High School.

Seminole will open with Jacksonville-Sandalwood at 10 a.m. Monday. Sandalwood was 11-1 and ranked No.

7 in the state in the Class 6A poll that was released

McGrow, Ossieso (2) and Leges. Hilliman and Wilcox. Tittle (4). WP — Hilliman (3-1). LP — McGrow. Save — rene. 28 — PR, Dunn; SHS. Raines 28 — none. HR — rene. Record — Pine Ridge 2-10; Seminals 7-0. Monday.

Freshman leftfielder Tim Raines Jr. paced the Tribe offense by going two for-three, including a double, scored one run and drove in another.

In the first, Bradley Locke walked and Drew Beatty singled for Dodgers. Both eventually scored on wild pitches.

In the third, Andy Rodriguez walked and scored on two errors. Mike Doney had the other Dodgers hit, a single in the third.

Friends make it easy for buddy to drink

DEAR MARY: A friend of mine whom I'il call Joe is about the nicest guy around. The only problem is he drinks too much. We've worked together for 10 years, and the rest of us have lied about his absences to the boss and tried to help him out when he's under the weather. It seems like he's getting worse, though. Sometimes he just gets real confused and at other times he'll get real mean and belligerent for no reason.

I'm worried about him because one of these days he's going to blow up at the wrong person or we won't be able to cover up for him, then who knows what will happen. It's a no-winner; if we stop helping him out he's sure to get nailed by the boss sooner or later, but if we keep covering for him, I'm afraid several of us are going to get in trouble because of him. I've tried talking to him but he just gets mad and tells me to mind my own business. Any ideas or how we should handle this mess?

At the very least, you need to stop your enabling immediately. Let him know that you will no longer cover up for his mistakes, late arrivals or excessively long breaks. Try to talk to him in a non-threatening, non-judgmental way about seeking help.

The more of his friends and/or family there are involved in this conversation, the more effective it is likely to be. Don't be surprised if he denies any problem exists and instead blames you and feels you're trying to persecute him. If your organization has an Employee Assistance Program, perhaps you could encourage him to talk to someone there or find out what options are available. Sometimes things have to get worse before they can get better. This is a situation where that very likely will be true.

Traditional spring foods How to safely handle today's foods

Did you know the bright eggs youngsters lunge for so eagerly at egghunts represent an ancient promise? That ham for Easter became a tradition because the first hams were ready in early spring on our grandparents' farms? That the contents of Ukrainian eggs with their exquisitely painted shells were originally blown out to "ward off" evil spirits?

The history of spring feeds. "From ancient times," said Smithsonian sociologist Shirley Cherically, "the egg, which carries new life, has been a symbol of hope and renewal." Decorating eggs for spring then echoes the new life nature is presenting.

"Easter and Passover are marked by the cating of foods rich in tradition and symbolism," said Cherkasky.

The ceremonial foods in the Jewish Seder or Passover celebration mark milestones in the Hebrew escape from Egypt over 3,000 years ago.

Based on herd-raising patterns, spring lamb was the traditional centerpiece of Easter meals for people in the Mediterranean, as it still is for many Americans of Mediterranean descent today.

The lack of refrigeration probably determined that ham for Easter became traditional for many of us. When most Americans lived on farms, hogs were butchered in the fall so the meat could be safely cured over the cold winter months. The first hams, ready by early spring, were a logical choice for Easter

CONSUMER

BARBARA HUGHES/ GREGG

That's a very quick history of some of our more common spring foods. It's the sensory aspects of spring foods — the colored Easter eggs, the smell of brisket roasting in the oven, the smoky flavor of ham — that we like to savor. But what we need to remember is that these special foods also need proper handling.

Peed safety for spring feeds. Since perishable foods like meat, poultry and eggs can be the source of bacteria that cause foodborne illness, they must be carefully handled. Follow these time for safe handling.

handled. Follow these tips for safe handling.

Buying ham and lamb. There are a variety of hams on the market today, so it is important to read the label to know how to handle and cook whatever you buy. For example, some canned hams are shelf-stable meaning they do not need to be refrigerated, but some canned hams do need to be refrigerated. Most lamb purchased for Easter is labeled "spring lamb" or "genuine spring lamb." The term "spring" does not necessarily refer to the season the lamb was born, but to its age (less than a year old) at the time it is sent to market.

When purchased, lamb is covered with a papery whitish membrane called the fell, which should be removed before cooking as it tends to make the flavor of the meat atrong.

Cooking ham, lamb and bricket. All and poultry should be cooked in an oven set at not lower than 325 degrees F. Lower temperatures may not kill bacteria present in the food.

Another important factor in keeping food safe is thorough cooking. All perishable foods must reach an internal temperature high enough to kill bacteria.

Berving the Passavar soder. This holiday presents some food safety challenges as the entire meal — the brisket, hard-boiled eggs, gefilte fish, matzo ball soup — must be prepared ahead so that everyone can participate in the Seder ceremony.

Solutions? Cold foods can be arranged on platters ahead of time and served directly from the refrigerator.

The brisket can be fully cooked ahead of time in either an oven or crock pot. Slice it and refrigerate in a shallow pan. Thoroughly reheat to serve.

Mandling leftsvers. All perishable foods should be refrigerated as soon as your meal is over, but no longer than two hours after removal from the refrigerator or oven.

For ham and lamb, carve the remaining meat off the bone and store it in small, shallow containers in the refrigerator or freeze for later use.

'A Dog Named Sex' cheers up nursing home patients

DEAR ABBY: I do volunteer work at nursing homes where there are many senior citizens. These men and women love company, but unfortunately some of them do not have many visitors, so I do what I can to cheer them up.

You had a piece in your column about 10 years ago that always made a big hit with these seniors. It was titled "A Dog Named Sex."

I read it to my bridge club, and one of the women said, "Please let me borrow it to show my husband. I'll get it back to you tomorrow." Well, you guessed it — she lost it.

Please run it again, Abby, it was a favorite of many.

BRATTLE VOLUNTEER: Here it is. It's also one of my favorites:

When I went to City Hall to renew my dog's license, I told the clerk I wanted a license for Sex. He said, "I'd like one, too!"

Then I said, "But this is a dog."

He said he didn't care what she looked like. Then I said, "You don't understand, I've had Sex since I was 9 years old." He winked at me and said, "You must have been quite a kid."

must have been quite a kid."

When I got married and went on my honeymoon. I took my dog with me. I told the hotel clerk I wanted a room for my wife and me, and a special room for Sex. He said, "You don't need a special room for Sex. As long as you pay your bill, we don't care what you do."

I said, "Look, you don't seem to understand. Sex keeps me awake at night."

The clerk said, "Funny, I have the same problem." Well, one day, I entered Sex in a contest, but before the competition began, the dog got loose and ran away. Another contestant asked me why I was just standing there, looking disappointed. I told him I had planned to have See in the property.

to have Sex in the contest. He said, "Wonderful! If you sell tickets, you'll clean up!"
"But you don't understand," I said. "I want to have Sex on TV." He said, "they already have that on cable. It's no big deal anymore."

Well, my wife and I decided to separate so we went to court to fight for custody of the dog.

I said to the judge, "Your honor. I had Sex before I was married." The judge said, "The court is not a confessional. Please stick to the facts." Then I told him that after I was married. Sex left me. He said, "Me, too."

Well, last night Sex ran away again, and I spent hours looking all over town for him. A cop came over to me and asked, "What are you doing in this alley at 4 o'clock in the morning?" I said, "I'm looking for Sex."

My case comes up on Friday.

DEAR ABBY: I have quit inviting people (married or single) to my home for parties, dinner or the holidays. The reason I quit is because people will happily accept and then not show, leaving me stuck with a iot of leftover food. Or, they will not respond to an invitation, and when I try to get a response, it's "Let me get back to you tomorrow." Unfortunately, "tomormy" never comes.

row" never comes.

The last party I tried to have, I invited 30 people. Five attended, 14 were no-shows, and the rest never responded either way. When I saked the no-shows later why they didn't attend, I was told they "forgot" or "got busy and couldn't make it, but I'll be there next time."

I tried again and invited five 4-year-olds to my daughter's 4th birthday party One child's parent RSVP's and only one child attended the party but she had to leave after 30 minutes because she had another party to go to. From now on, my children will get a special trip to the zoo or amusement park for their birthdays instead of a party.

Abby, don't people realize that it takes a lot of work to have a party or to have people over for dinner? I enjoy making nice meals and having company, but it's just not worth the effort when people don't care enough to answer invitations, or show up.

PED UP IN CALIFORNIA
DEAR PED UP: How did you manage to collect such illmannered friends? Cross those rude clods off your guest list and find new friends with manners and sensitivity. It shouldn't be too difficult!

On Death and Dandelions...

On one bright and sunny day, I passed a field of dandelions on my way. Nodding their golden heads at me, They suckled a hunary honeybee. And reflected the light of the heavens.

A short time passed, then came a day, When in walking along that very same way, I saw petals no longer perky and golden, Stems becoming limp and old, and It seemed their lives were at an end.

Their golden heads were cottony white. It appeared to be a saddening sight. Until I stood and thought some more, Understanding what I had not before: Even in nature, God has a plan.

Those fragile seedlings floating from withered old stems

Would again transform into golden gems In another place, in another spring; And as God's children we shall, too, take

To that golden field where death shall be no more.

This Easter, visit God's house. Discover the Creator's plan for the resurrection of your spirit and the immortality of your soul.

Former addict warns others

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - When Patricia Black Bigham spoke of her past she expressed doing so with a weary heart yet a transparent soul. She emphasized that she relied on God as her source of strength and people as the in-struments in helping her overcome her drug addiction. She wrote a prayer that has become near and dear to her heart and identified that without God and his forgiveness she couldn't have made it.

Bigham began by recounting her years of addiction. She proceeded from social drinking to marijuana, cocaine, leaving home, living on the streets, losing her husband and children and spending time in jail. After her served time was completed behind bars she received assistance from inpatient rehabilitation and then outpatient help. "I'll remain the rest of my life living moment to moment and one day at a time," she said.
"It's a difficult battle to win, I've maintained my sobriety now for three years. I also regained custody of my children. I learned that before you can be happy, love and be true to anyone else, you must first be happy, love and be true to yourself. With the exception of Jesus, I am my best friend."

Life in addiction is a tough road, as Bigham pointed out. "I found that friends would lie to me, on me and cheat and steal from me," she said. "I found that I told so many lies to my family and friends to get money. I sold my possesions, became a thief, sold my body, didn't bathe for weeks and became paranoid of everyone and everything. I looked in the mirror and saw a stranger. I saw myself wasting away. What I'm describing is the life of someone with an addiction. I urge you or anyone you know that has a problem, please seek help. There are so many facilities that will help."

Her main objective was to help people realize that each person can make a difference. "You can make a difference in the world and it need not be on a large scale," she said. "Family and friends are a good place to start. The world is at your fingertips."

Bigham also added her ABC's of what she felt will help attain your dreams.

A · Avoid negative sources, people, places, things and habits B · Believe in yourself.

C - Consider things from every angle. D . Don't give up and don't

Local attorney shares view of Jesus' trial

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Local attorney. past 30 years to share his message from an attorney's viewpoint concerning the trial of Christ. His talk entitled,"The Trial of Jesus from a Legal View," encompasses a thorough evaluation of the arrest, trial and conviction of the King of the McIntosh will speak numerous times in the month of April on this subject. Plans are to address Deltona Lakes Baptist Church this Sunday at the 11 a.m. service, Sunday, April 23 at the 11 a.m. service at New Bethel Church and the Church of God of Prophecy at a later evening date this month.

He told that he was encouraged to develop this specific message by former Circuit Judge Volie A. Williams, Jr. "He was an ardent student of the facts, circunstances and the evidence surrounding the trial of Jesus. He was the one who encouraged me to study and develop the message that I have done over the years. In 1986 I traveled to Israel and through those travels developed a new interest in the trial of Jesus. This was a direct result of further indepth study of the Hebrew law and the Roman law under which Jesus was accused and tried."

As he continued he said."There are matters that are important as the trial develops. One is suffering and sacrifice and the other one is forgiveness and pardon. That is what my of the intricate details of the trial of Jesus before the ecclesiastical tribunal known as the Sanhèdrin. I bring to the attenion of the participants the Roman tribunals, which were guided by Pontus Pilate and by Herod, all the intricacies with reference to who he appeared before, what he was charged with and the various errors that were committed in each of these trial environments."

Jesus was not tried by a jury but by the Sanhedrin. Mcintosh pointed out,"All of that was orchestrated by the chief priests of the Sanhedrin at the time that Jesus had appeared before them.

McIntosh also emphasized that all the witnesses that testified shared only "hear-say" information and were not actual eye-witnesses. "The only witness that you and I would categorize as credible was the testimony of Judas lacariot. It is interesting to note that Judas. after Jesus was found guilty of blasphemy by the Sanhedrin, recanted his testimony and indicated that his original testimony was a lie. The Sanhedrin turned their back on his recanted testimony and proceeded with seeking an order from the Roman government to crucify Jesus.

Last Supper reinacted by Presbyterians

Members of the church will portray Jesus and the disciples at the live Last Supper. Communion will be served at the close of the program.

Pastor speaks about Jesus, deliverance

SANFORD — Bruce Scott, pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Sanford, talked about his opinion of Jesus, his death on the cross and how he delivers people from addictions, ain and re-

With the Easter season drawing near people tend to center their thinking on Jesus and the sacrifice he made on the cross for our sins. He suffered, bled and died that we all might have forgiveness of our ains and live with him eternally.

RELIGION SUSAN WENNER

"The wonderful thing is that Jesus deals with reality," said Scott. "We can identify with just a relic of the past.

Him because he had to go through the suffering as we do." He continued by saying,"The wonderful thing about the Last Supper and Easter is that he continues to live and he helps us through our problems. He gives us the courage and the ability to be able to overcome whatever our problems might be whether it be drug addiction or whatever. He walks with us and he's there to save us. He's alive and that's what Easter is all about. It's not

He concluded with,"He's able to change people's lives. He's able to make a difference in their

Prognosis varies in diagnosis of lupus

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please provide information on lupus.

DEAR READER: Lupus, an inflammatory disorder of unknown cause, affects many organs, including the heart, lungs, kidneys, and skin. Most patients initially experience fever, malaise and joint pains. A rash may be present and the lymph giands are often enlarged. As the disease progresses, it can cause the blood to clot too rapidly (causing stroke and other manifestations of thrombosis); in addition, the lung inflammation may lead to pleurisy (painful breathing). Heart irritation and serious renal malfunction can also result.

Lupus is diagnosed by blood tests and biopsy. Some medications, notably proceinamide and beta blockers (used for hypertension and heart disorders), may cause a lupus-like syndrome that disappears when the drugs are discontinued.

Lupus is usually treated with anti-inflammatory drugs (such as aspirin), anti-malariai medicine (such as chloroquine) and cortisone. Associated infection requires antibiotics; anticongulants (such as Coumadin) may be necessary to prevent damage from blood clots.

The prognosis varies. Most cases are relatively mild and rarely worsen when treated; other types of lupus may be relenticasly progressive and cause severe health problems, even death.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 48 and have hemorrhoids. I underwent a rubber band treatment three times and feel that I'm constantly bleeding. How can I overcome the condition once and for all?

DEAR READER: Bleeding hemorrhoids usually require surgery. The "rubber-band" treatment that you had is stan-dard therapy for hemorrhoids near the anal opening. Under local anesthesia, the surgeon applies small rubber ligatures to your hemorrholds. Over time. the hemorrhoids (deprived of their blood supply) wither and drop off.

Because you continue to have problems. I suggest that you consider more traditional operations for your hemorrholds, such as surgical removal or laser therapy which uses lasers to cut away the inflamed hemorrhoids. Ask your doctor about this option.

Finley Peter Dunne, the American journalist and humorist, said, "Trust everybody, but cut the cards." Maybe he didn't realize that once the cards are shuffled, cutting can only alter who will get which hand. It won't alter the four hands. So if the deck has been rigged, cutting gives you just a 50-50 chance to get the good hands.

Should you trust your opponents at the bridge table? Often, ves. It is rare for a defender to falsecard early in the play. Knowing so little about the deal, each defender wants to help his partner to construct an accurate picture of the distribution.

However, there are times when a defender should be treated with suspicion. Today's deal highlights one such altua-

Defending against six hearts, West led the unbid suit. East won the first trick with the club king and switched to a spede. How should South have continued?

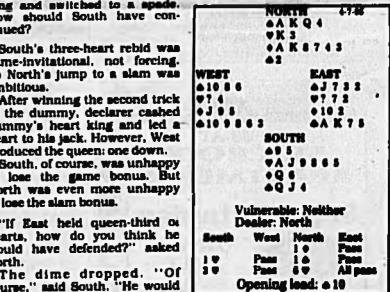

South's three-heart rebid was same-invitational, not forcing. So North's jump to a slam was ambitious. After winning the second trick dummy's heart king and led a heart to his jack. However, West produced the queen: one down. South, of course, was unhappy to lose the game bonus. But North was even more unhappy to lose the slam bonus. "If East held queen-third or hearts, how do you think he would have defended?" asked North. The dime dropped. "Of course," said South. "He would have led the club ace at trick two, forcing dummy to ruff. How stily of me not to think of it."
