Lake Mary Color Guard defeats 130 of the world's best groups

LAKE MARY — Champions are forged by overcoming obstacles. Rifles, sabers and flags in hand, the Lake Mary High School Color Guard won the Winter Guard International championship this weekend at the University of Dayton, Ohio. The group of 19 students finished with a record 98.85 score for the school's first Color Guard world championship.

"It was a wonderful weekend," said

Color Guard director Michele Dersheimer. "We really clicked this year."

The group has been among the top 15 teams qualifying for the finals round of the Winter Guard championships every year since 1996. The highest that Lake Mary previously finished was sixth place in 1998.

This year, Lake Mary entered the competition ranked No. 1 in the nation. The group was competing against 130 teams from across the U.S., as well as Canada and Japan. The Color Guard had an undefeated season, including a 3-0 record in regional competitions held at Pensacola, Jacksonville and Miami to qualify for the championship competition in Dayton.

"This whole season has been like a Cinderella season," Dersheimer said. "It was a dream come true. The girls have been working very hard."

Winter Guard is a combination of dance and drill team maneuvers using flags, rifles and sabers for equipment. The girls practice together for more than

Fire destroys warehouse

Firefighters douse the smoldering remains of the warehouse at Vaughan's Nursery.

Crews able to save Vaughan's greenhouses

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Part of State Road 46 was closed during the Monday morning rush hours because of a fire that engulfed the office and warehouse of a greenhouse business.

The office and warehouse building belonging to Vaughan's Nursery, located at 6770 W. State Road 46 in Sanford, burned to the ground in a fire that began at about 4:30 a.m. When fire department crews arrived, about three-fourths of the 300-by-100-foot building was already lost.

The portion of State Road 46 from Markham Woods Road to Wayside Avenue was closed from 4:30 a.m. until the fire was extinguished at 9 a.m.

More than 30 units responded, and quickly took up a defensive posture to protect the greenhouse and nursery areas of the business, which were located behind the warehouse.

"The biggest thing was to protect the surrounding buildings," said Paula Ritchie, spokeswoman for the Seminole County Fire-Rescue Division. "Those buildings contained fertilizer and other chemicals related to growing plants."

No one was injured in the fire, and the warehouse was vacant when the fire started. The cause of the fire is unknown, and under investigation by the State Fire Marshall's Office. Initial reports do not indicate that foul play was involved.

Units from eight different fire departments responded to the scene, including Seminole, Orange and Lake counties, Sanford, Lake Mary, Altamonte Springs, Longwood, and Winter Springs.

The warehouse contained a large supply of Easter products used to make baskets for the holiday.

Vaughan's Nursery has been in business at the location for 12 years, having moved to Sanford from Casselberry.

Parents can help prevent violent acts in school

Editor's Note: This is the second of a three-part series. Today's article examines steps parents and schools can take to avoid violent incidents. Part three, appearing Wednesday, will focus on lessons that can be learned from the April 20, 1999 tragedy at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colo. Sunday's article focused on concerns about rage violence and rampage killings in schools nationwide, and the impact in Seminole County.

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

Two Seminole County middle school students in three weeks have been arrested for making threats to commit violence on school grounds.

A 13-year-old student at South Seminole Middle School was arrested Monday for telling other students that she was going to blow up the school. She said she had the means and ability to do so, and that she knew people who could help her build a device.

However, no bomb was found.

Previously, on April 7, a 15-year-old student at Greenwood Lakes Middle School was arrested for creating a hit list with the names of students, teachers and administrators who she would kill. Both students now face felony charges, and will also receive counseling. The arrests emphasize a danger as the April 20 anniversary of last year's tragedy at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colo. approaches, in which two students killed 13 people, wounded 23, then committed suicide.

Longwood terminates spring festival

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The Longwood City Commission ended the six-year-old Spring Founders' Day Arts and Crafts Festival on Monday, saying that the festival should be run by a private group instead of a public volunteer board.

The City Commission by a 3-2 vote eliminated the Founders' Day Sub-Committee of the Historic Preservation Board, a volunteer group responsible for organizing the festival held March 11-12 in the historic district.

There still could be a spring festival next year, but it would not be the same festival that has been held for six years in the historic district. During the last four years, the Historic Preservation Board has organized the festival.

"The goal is that some private group will spontaneously come forward with an idea," said Longwood Mayor Paul Lovstrand, who made the motion to eliminate the sub-committee. "We could still have it in the spring, something like Taste of Oviedo. I want us to have a festival."

Despite rainy weather, this year's spring festival drew an estimated 4,000 to 10,000 visitors, with a profit to the city of just under $1,000 after expenses. The action does not impact the city's 23-year-old fall festival, organized by the private non-profit Historic Preservation Society, held the weekend before Thanksgiving.

"This spring festival was doomed because it is competing with so many festivals in other cities," Lovstrand said. "It ran its course. It was good while it lasted."

Commissioners Butch Bundy and John Mangot voted against eliminating the Founders' Day Sub-committee, because a replacement for the festival is not yet in place. Bundy's wife, Donna, is the chairperson of the Historic Preservation Board.

Morse strives to keep control of BCC finances

By Russ White
Staff Writer

SANFORD — What's described as a fact-finding huddle on Wednesday at 4 p.m. may become the most significant meeting held by County's Charter Review Commission.

The topic: who's running or should be running the finances of the Board of County Commissioners.

There are three primary guests:

• Martha Haynie, Orange County Comptroller.

• Maryanne Morse, Seminole County Clerk of the Court and Clerk to the BCC.

• Carlton Henley, Chairman of the Board of Seminole County Commissioners.

Haynie will talk about what her duties are as Florida's only county comptroller. Several members of the Seminole Charter Review Commission have expressed interest in making Seminole the second Florida county with a comptroller.

Morse, Florida's lone constitutional officer to serve as clerk for the courts and the board of commissioners, will have the opportunity to tell the Charter Review members why Seminole's system works and why it would be foolish to change the way it works.

Henley will present proof that there are "systematic" problems that should have been addressed years ago — that a finance officer in the county manager's office ought to be dealing with BCC finances. Henley said Monday he was opposed to the county going to a comptroller system such as Orange County has.

"We needn't go that far," he said.

Having a heart for Dick Van Der Weide

David Letterman has had us laughing about his recent quintuple bypass heart surgery. He said he can't remember 12 years of his life — the 12 he spent at NBC.

No matter how proficient the heart surgeons, bypass surgery is hardly something to joke about even when you're getting paid for it.

Dick Van Der Weide, the county commissioner from Sweetwater, had a quadruple bypass on Saturday. He was walking on Monday, and may go home this weekend.

We've tried to tickle Mr. Van Der Weide from time to time — he does bear a strong resemblance to Boris Yeltsin. "He's a good guy," said Judy, his wife for 38 years.

Commissioner Grant Maloy calls Van Der Weide both good and "gracious." When young Maloy came on the commission four years ago, he took a pounding from just about everyone but Van Der Weide.

"He gave me respect," Maloy said Monday.

As a commissioner for 12 years, Van Der Weide more-or-less took Maloy under his wing. If Maloy would make a motion, Van Der Weide would second it at least for giving an opportunity for review. Maloy was seldom as successful with others on the board.

"We haven't always agreed," Maloy said Monday. "But the man has always been civil. He's never tried to embarrass me." Maloy said that Van Der Weide called last week to tell him bypass surgery was a possibility. That there may be a blockage.

At a recent county employees ceremony, Maloy recognized several who had served the county for 25 years. He recalled which movies and books were popular 25 years ago, and joked that it was in 1975 that Dick Van Der Weide began drawing Social Security.

Van Der Weide, 61, is old enough to be Maloy's father.

One of his sons — Seminole County Deputy Sheriff Scott Van Der Weide — is the same age as Maloy.

Papa Van Der Weide has a passion for Harleys and going to events such as Bike Week in Daytona. Dick and Judy Van Der Weide attended the recent Bike Week, in fact.

There will be no bikes nor politics for Van Der Weide for at least two or three months. Put on hold is his campaign for a third term as District 3 Commissioner, and county rules prohibit a commissioner from voting unless he is physically in the chambers.

Jokingly, Maloy said that with Van Der Weide not able to vote, he could no longer be called "1-4 Maloy." Maybe, "1-3 Maloy." Judy Van Der Weide said her husband will get nothing but tender loving care until he's ready to do any voting or campaigning. She expects he will read a lot and watch western movies.

A hearty "Hi-Ho Silver" to him.

Dick White's column appears daily in the Seminole Herald.

Bougainvillea, the paper flower, provides heavy blooms

Bougainvillea, also known as the paper flower, is a tropical, frost-sensitive vine native to South America. This genus contains some of the most showy and spectacular tropical vines grown in the southern half of Florida. In warm climates, this vine will produce a heavy bloom almost year-round. The Brazilian bougainvillea is the most showy of the cultivated species and can tolerate cooler temperatures.

THE PLANT: Bougainvillea's are evergreen, thorny, vigorous woody vines that can be grown on arbors, trellises on sides of buildings, or trained along wires or walls as a hedge, or some varieties may be severely pruned and grown as shrubs.

The leaves are alternate, heart-shaped, with a bright, glossy green. The true flowers are inconspicuous, small and yellow, enclosed in three large, showy colored bracts. Flowers are produced on new growth or tips, therefore pruning will reduce the number of flowers produced.

There are many varieties of Bougainvillea with colors in the purple, red, pink and white hues. New hybrid plants have added bright orange, yellow and blends to this colorful group.

Varieties with variegated foliage are also available in garden stores. This plant flowers nearly all year round in warm areas, however, its main blooming period is in late winter and early spring.

CULTURE: Bougainvillea's thrive in most well drained and not too fertile soil types. Plants must have plenty of sunlight for flower production. Plant in protected areas or against sun-exposed walls to benefit from reflected heat.

A complete fertilizer such as a 6-6-6 may be used at the rate of 2 pounds per 100 square feet of ground area. One application of fertilizer in March and another in October is sufficient. Young plants can be fertilized more often to promote rapid growth. However, small amounts of fertilizer should be used in each of these applications.

Be certain to water the plant after applying fertilizer. Established plants are drought tolerant. Reduce watering late in the growing season for best blooming.

PRUNING: Bougainvillea's that are frozen back should be pruned in early March. Plants not damaged by frost should be pruned after the blooming period. Remove suckers and long branches during the growing season to shape the plant and reduce its volume.

PROPAGATION: Plants can be propagated by cuttings of shoots, half ripened wood or hardwood cuttings. Mature wood cuttings root well. Cuttings should be 4 to 12 inches long.

LANDSCAPE USES: Best effect is obtained when the vines are allowed to grow over arbors, walls, fences, and carports. They can be used as ground covers or patio covers, and can cover the sides of houses if given something to twine around. Some varieties can be grown in containers or hanging baskets.

PESTS: The most common pest of Bougainvillea is a caterpillar or leaf roller. This insect eats the foliage and can denude the entire plant in a very short time. Often they can be found in the curled portion of the leaves. They can be controlled with Sevin or Dipel.

Education helps autistic kids break out of isolation

DEAR ABBY: April is Autism Awareness Month. I'm hoping that with the number of people your column reaches, you will help us in the autism community spread the word about the need for research and education about this childhood disorder.

Autism is a neurological disorder that severely affects a child's ability to develop communication skills and social interactions. The child lives in a world of his or her own. Its rate of occurrence has increased to about one in 400 children. Autism shows up around 18 months of age or older. It mostly affects boys, at a ratio of 4-to-1. No one knows what causes autism, and as yet there is no cure.

I have a granddaughter who has this disorder. The need for research is great because, with proper education, these children can improve and lead much better lives than they did 20 years ago. My granddaughter has improved a great deal in the 18 months she has been going to school. There, she is trained by teachers with special education skills to help these kids along.

Please help our growing community of autistic children by letting people know that if they need any additional information, they can contact the Autism Society. Thank you, Abby.

ANDREA RUSSELL,
NEW CASTLE, DEL.

DEAR ANDREA: I am pleased to help spread the message. Since I received your letter, I have learned that through hard work and intensive education, people with autism can hold jobs, make friends and lead fuller lives. Autism is the third most common developmental disability, and more common than Down syndrome.

People who would like to learn more about autism should contact the Autism Society of America, 7910 Woodmont Ave., Suite 300, Bethesda, MD 20814. The toll-free number is (800) 328-8476, extension 150; the Web address is: www.autism-society.org.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Grateful Survivor," who felt she was in love with a man who had rescued her from drowning, instantly reminded me of an essay, "The Chemistry of Love" by Diane Ackerman, that I use in one of my writing classes at California State University.

The essay explains the chemical underpinnings of such human experiences as falling in love, giving birth, responding to danger, and finding security in long-term relationships. Ackerman points out that the human body economically reuses some chemicals for many purposes. Such is the case with PEA (phenylethylamine), which gives an amphetamine-like "high" to new lovers and also surges during dangerous or thrill-seeking behavior.

According to Ackerman, the body's use of PEA may help explain a fascinating phenomenon: People are more likely to fall in love when they're in danger. Danger makes one receptive to romance.

I'm no chemist, but it may relieve the happily married "Grateful" to know that what seemed like a puzzling and excessive response was caused by a chemical process over which she had no control.

JOAN SPANGLER, ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

DEAR JOAN: That's fascinating. I have always wondered why couples found it "romantic" to be married while skydiving, bungee jumping or diving 20,000 leagues under the sea. Ackerman's theory provides a clue.

Urinary catheters can lead to problems

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a woman who recently spent a few days in hospital for a surgical procedure. While there, I required a catheter to drain urine. Three days after leaving hospital, I began to wet the bed. I had lost bladder control, which kept up for several weeks. Although I seem to have returned to normal now, I still wear a pad at night. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER: Patients — both male and female — can encounter two common problems from urinary catheters.

The first is temporary incontinence. The rubber catheter stretches the opening of the bladder, which is controlled by a ring of muscle called a sphincter. Once the catheter is removed, there may be a time lag before the sphincter regains its normal function. Also, the bladder muscles themselves need to undergo "reconditioning" so that they contract properly. These two phenomena can mean several days of dribbling and wetting, because bladder control is lost until the necessary muscles tighten up and function properly.

The second, more serious complication of urinary catheters is infection. Ordinarily, the sphincter prevents outside bacteria from entering the bladder. However, a catheter provides a natural conduit for infection, not only because it is foreign to the body, but because germs can work their way around the catheter into the urinary tract. Usually such infection leads to painful urination, fever and a feeling of urgency.

I suspect that your temporary incontinence resulted from the mechanical stretching of your sphincter. And I'm sure that your problem has resolved itself naturally. Nonetheless, if symptoms persist — or return — you should check with your doctor and, perhaps, obtain a urine culture to rule out infection.

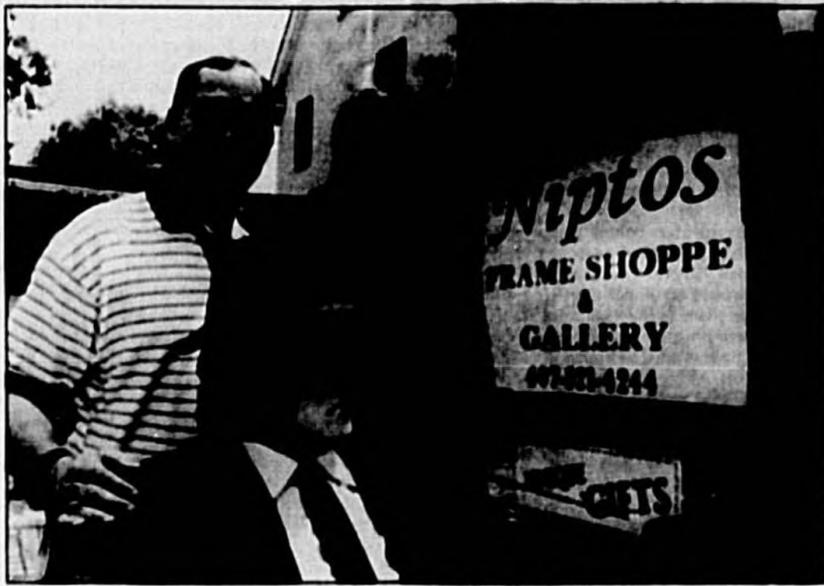

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Bladder and Urinary Tract Infections." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a cousin in Florida who wants to visit me in New Hampshire during the winter. She must be nuts, but my question doesn't concern her mental state. She has polymyalgia and takes prednisone. Is there anything I need to know about her condition in order to make her visit as comfortable as possible?

DEAR READER: Polymyalgia rheumatica is a relatively common disease of unknown cause, marked by muscle stiffness and pain, sore joints, fever, malaise, weight loss, anemia and — in some cases — inflammation of medium-sized arteries, leading to headache, visual problems and heart disease.

Polymyalgia is treated with cortisone drugs, such as prednisone. However, the affliction can be worsened by exposure to cold, wet climates — a fact that your cousin ought to take into account. Short of behaving like any concerned and considerate hostess, there is nothing that I know of for you to do to make her visit to the Granite State more enjoyable.

Three Sanford groups will perform in Tallahassee

From Staff Reports

TALLAHASSEE — Groups from Seminole County will perform in the Rotunda and Courtyard of the Florida Capitol Thursday, April 27 hosted by ACE, Arts for a Complete Education/Florida Alliance for Arts Education.

Premier performances by a number of groups will take place the preceding day, with special guest, Florida's First Lady, Columba Bush and a number of officials. None of the premier performance groups selected is from Central Florida, but Seminole High School Dazzlers and Expressions, under the direction of Maurion Maguire, and Seminole Middle School Music Makers, directed by Joey Miazga, will be in the Rotunda and Courtyard exhibitions along with 14 other groups from around the state.

This annual advocacy event is to exhibit student success in the arts and promotes communication with legislators about the importance of arts education for Florida students.

In addition, students from around the state have submitted works of art for the Senate President's Student Art Exhibit in the Senate Office Building.

The Florida Art Education Association is sponsoring an installation "Join the Flock" in the courtyard. At that time, 50 larger than life flamingos, adorned by students with designs inspired by artists throughout the ages, will land on the Capitol from several counties, including Seminole.

Columba Bush will recognize four students from each of six regions in the state in visual, music, dance and theatre, with $1,000 each to use toward higher education in the field of arts. Twenty four students and teachers will be selected to receive these awards from the State ACE organization.

"Through the arts, our young people learn basic values that will serve them throughout their entire lives," the First Lady said. "These values will keep them focused on discipline, creativity and self reliance, and prevent them from falling into the temptations that face so many of our youth today."

said during an interview conducted last week that media publicity surrounding the Columbine anniversary can send the wrong message to some students, particularly among middle school students.

"There is a danger in treating the Columbine anniversary almost like it's a celebration," Mossman said. "Especially for middle school students, who are so impressionable and more easily scared. We need to learn from Columbine, but we also need to be careful about how we discuss it."

While the nation has dealt with a series of killings on school campuses in recent years, Seminole County has avoided similar tragedies. However, each school in Seminole County holds emergency drills with law enforcement on a regular basis in case an act of violence is ever committed.

"We're one idiot away from anarchy," said Sam Mornary, principal at Lyman High School. "It never leaves our minds. No matter how many times we practice and drill for an emergency, we are on the edge everyday."

Teachers are constantly watching for signs that a student could be approaching the thin line that could lead to violence. Educators say that the key to preventing acts of violence on school grounds is communication between parents, students and school officials.

"It all starts with the parents," Mornary said. "Students learn their values primarily from home."

Warning signs that a student may commit violence include withdrawal from social contacts, excessive feelings of isolation, rejection, and persecution, as well as a declining interest in school.

Other signs include uncontrolled anger, expressions of violence, patterns of intimidation, past discipline problems, and intolerance of differences.

In addition, 50 percent of students who committed violence on school grounds in the last 20 years have faced previous legal trouble in the juvenile justice system and 90 percent have brought weapons to school, according to the National School Safety Center.

Any time parents or students see warning signs that a child may be on the verge of committing an act of violence, they are encouraged to approach a school official.

Schools throughout the county have a wide array of violence prevention programs, such as peer mediation. In peer mediation, students receive training in techniques to provide mediation to groups that are involved in a conflict. Rallies are also held to discuss the peaceful resolution of conflicts.

At the heart of Seminole County's violence prevention efforts is the Keys To Your Character program. Students are taught tolerance from day one in kindergarten through high school graduation. Teachers stress certain values each month such as generosity, responsibility and compassion.

In the program, an 8-year-old child might learn about values such as respect, then create a drawing to illustrate the phrase "respect people for who they are, not their color."

Activities used to promote respect include planting a tree in respect for someone, discussing examples of disrespectful actions, having a respect bulletin board, participating in conflict resolution programs, and inviting law enforcement officers as guest speakers.

Violence prevention programs at Seminole County schools also include the Save a Friend hotline in which students can anonymously report about threats of violence and other concerns.

Some educators believe there needs to be a national program to prevent violence in schools, which would accompany programs in place at the local level.

"Where programs have been put in place related to violence in schools, we've had punitive results," said Stetson University professor Patrick Coggins. "Part of the trouble is that we have no national policy for violence prevention among young people."

Coggins is a co-founder of the violence prevention program called Project Harmony in Volusia County, along with the Volusia County school district, Florida Sheriff's Youth Ranches and Volusia County Sheriff's Office.

Although Seminole County has avoided acts of violence on school grounds that have plagued other schools, four students have been arrested in the year following the April 20 Columbine High School shootings for making threats to harm others.

The arrests each represent bad news and good news, say school officials. In each case, students approached school officials with concerns, and action was quickly taken in cooperation with law enforcement.

"It's just tragic that we find ourselves in this situation now," said Ron Pinnell, director of secondary education for the school district. "But, we're not going to stick our heads in the sand."

Seven days after the Columbine shootings, a seventh-grade student at Rock Lake Middle School was arrested when a Seminole County deputy sheriff found a map in the student's locker that included drawings of the school hallways and a note that read "hide bomb in science (building)."

Then, two days later, a Sanford Middle School eighth-grade student was arrested after police said he made a note with a hit list of teachers and students he wished to kill. A fellow eighth-grader informed a school official of the note, and the student was pulled out of class.

No bombs or weapons were found during investigations into the incidents.

six hours each week and also attend a dance repertoire class each day.

This weekend in Dayton, the group performed routines to the soundtrack of the Broadway musical "The Civil War." The title of the program was "The America Civil War — The Flight of Women Back Home."

The road to the school's first Color Guard world championship involved unusual obstacles. Members of the Color Guard earlier this school-year protested the denial of their out-of-state field trip request to go to Dayton.

During the 1998-1999 school-year, then Principal Gaines approved a field trip request by the Color Guard, on the condition that they not make an out-of-state field trip this school-year.

Gaines said he was concerned about the amount of class time the students were missing. New Lake Mary High School Principal Boyd Karna this year upheld the decision following the appointment of Gaines as Director of Secondary Education for high schools. Under the ruling, the Color Guard will make out-of-state field trips once every two years.

This year's team included six seniors, seven juniors and six sophomores. Despite the loss of senior captains Naomi Mairgot and Erin Wright, the returning members will likely be able to contend for a championship again next year, Dershimier said. That is, if their field trip request is approved.

"We have a very talented group of sophomores and juniors who are returning," Dershimier said.

Karna and the School Board will review the field trip request next year. Dershimier said the request will only be made if the group qualifies for the championship competition, which will be held next year in Milwaukee, Wis.

"I absolutely would love to take them next year," Dershimier said. "I'm hoping this will be a pre-approved field trip. If we didn't go this year, the girls would have missed out on what happened."

election in 2000, has ruffled more than a few feathers in the past 12 years. In addition to her well-publicized tug of war with County Commissioner Dick Van Der Weide over travel and meal expenses for an overseas junket, Morse has had other finance-related scraps with the BCC.

It irritates a number of department heads that Morse has an independent computer system, causing delays and inconveniences to them.

"This is not a problem anyone has with Maryanne Morse," Henley insists. "There's a systematic problem that existed before Maryanne Morse came to the county. And it's more than a computer problem. The Charter Review Commission wants to know if there is a better way for the county to operate. I've been asked to share my thoughts."

Morse said she is prepared to supply the facts for the fact-finding mission. "Changing what we're doing isn't something to do on a whim," she said. "The system is working."

Festival

Last month, the Historic Preservation Board by a 4-0 vote requested that the City Commission evaluate the worthiness of the festival, and until the evaluation is complete, remove the Founders' Day Subcommittee from under the Historic Preservation Board and let them do as they see fit.

"I'll probably be in trouble at home," Butch Bundy said. "I don't think we need to do away with it without putting something in its place."

Mairgot also said he is concerned about whether a replacement for the Founders' Day Festival can be found in time to hold a festival next spring.

"We need to keep it alive and not just walk away from it," Mairgot said.

Meanwhile, Jim Daly, vice-chair of the Founders' Day Subcommittee, said that the action comes as no surprise. He said that a spring festival will likely be kept alive, possibly under the direction of the Historic Preservation Society.

"It was a foregone conclusion that it was going to happen," Daly said. "It was 100 percent political. This was not a surprise to me or anyone else on the board."

The festival has drawn repeated scrutiny from the City Commission. Prior to this year's event, the commission by a 5-0 vote passed a resolution that the Founders' Day Subcommittee will seek approval from the City Administrator for any deviations from its expense budget.

The sub-committee operated within its overall expense budget of $4,500. However, it deviated from the budget by purchasing $1,100 on T-shirts, according to City Administrator John Drago.

Mayor Lovestrand and Commissioner Butch Bundy at the time said they were concerned about the amount being spent on T-shirts.

Drago said that the spending for those items does exceed what was initially approved, but that overall expenses are within the approved amount.

Other volunteer city boards must also receive approval from the City Administrator for budget changes.

All income from the festival went into city funds for renovating the historic district. There were more than 100 arts and crafts exhibitors, and a food court.

Manatees dying at record pace in 2000

TALLAHASSEE - The first three months of 2000 have been deadly for manatees, officials at the Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) report.

One hundred manatees died in Florida during the first quarter of this year. That compares with 60 during the same time period in 1999. The leading known cause of death was collisions with watercraft, which accounted for 32 of the deaths. Cause of death could not be determined in 31 of the cases. Also, red tide returned to southwest Florida this year, and scientists believe some manatees have died as a result of exposure to the tide's toxins.

Shupe Outdoors

Officials are particularly disturbed with increasing numbers of manatees killed by boats. The Federal Manatee Recovery Plan identifies the reduction of watercraft-caused manatee deaths as a critical component to recovering this endangered species.

In 1999, the number of watercraft-caused deaths statewide was 82 compared to 66 the previous year.

While 1999 was a record year, the first three months of 2000 have been even worse. The 32 deaths attributed to watercraft this year is a 41-percent increase over the same time period in 1999.

"There is no question that the manatee population can not sustain this continued increase in the number of human-caused deaths," stated Kipp Frohlich, biological administrator for the FWC's Bureau of Protected Species Management.

As a result of the continued high number of manatee deaths, the executive director of the FWC, Dr. Allan Egbert, brought together a team of high-level managers last week to discuss possible actions to address the problem. The most immediate course of action will be to step up law enforcement in key manatee areas.

Independent studies of boater compliance with manatee protection speed zones show that compliance varies significant from zone to zone, but in many areas only 50-60 percent of the boaters are obeying the posted regulations. Law enforcement officers will focus their attention in those counties

SCC baseball team knocks off pair of M-FC heavyweights

By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

SANFORD - The Seminole Community College baseball team continued to revel in its roll as Mid Florida Conference spoiler this past weekend, edging Santa Fe Community College, 14-13, in Gainesville Thursday and topping Lake-Sumter Community College from Leesburg, 6-3, at Raider Field on Saturday.

Juan Charon and Adam Shorts had four hits each and the Raiders scored seven runs in the third inning to build a 10-0 lead before holding on for the victory over the Saints (17-21 overall, 15-9 in the conference).

On Saturday, SCC scored five runs in the bottom of the first inning and Todd Babaj made it stand up as the Raiders doubled the score on the Lakers in the first game of a doubleheader on Saturday.

The late game went to Lake-Sumter (23-28 overall, 11-14 in the MFC) officially, by a 7-1 score, but the game was stopped in the bottom of the sixth inning by rain with the Lakers leading 4-4 with two out and Cristian Vera at bat. The game of topographical error on the schedule. Saturday's doubleheader was not the last home game for the Raiders and veteran coach Jack Pantelias.

The actual game that will mark the final home game, and final game period, in a 28 year career for Pantelias will be Thursday against Central Florida College from Ocala.

That game will begin at 3 p.m. at Raider Field.

SCC (15-35 overall, 8-18 in the conference) also has one road game left on the schedule heading to Jacksonville today for a 3 p.m. MFC contest with Florida Community College at Jacksonville.

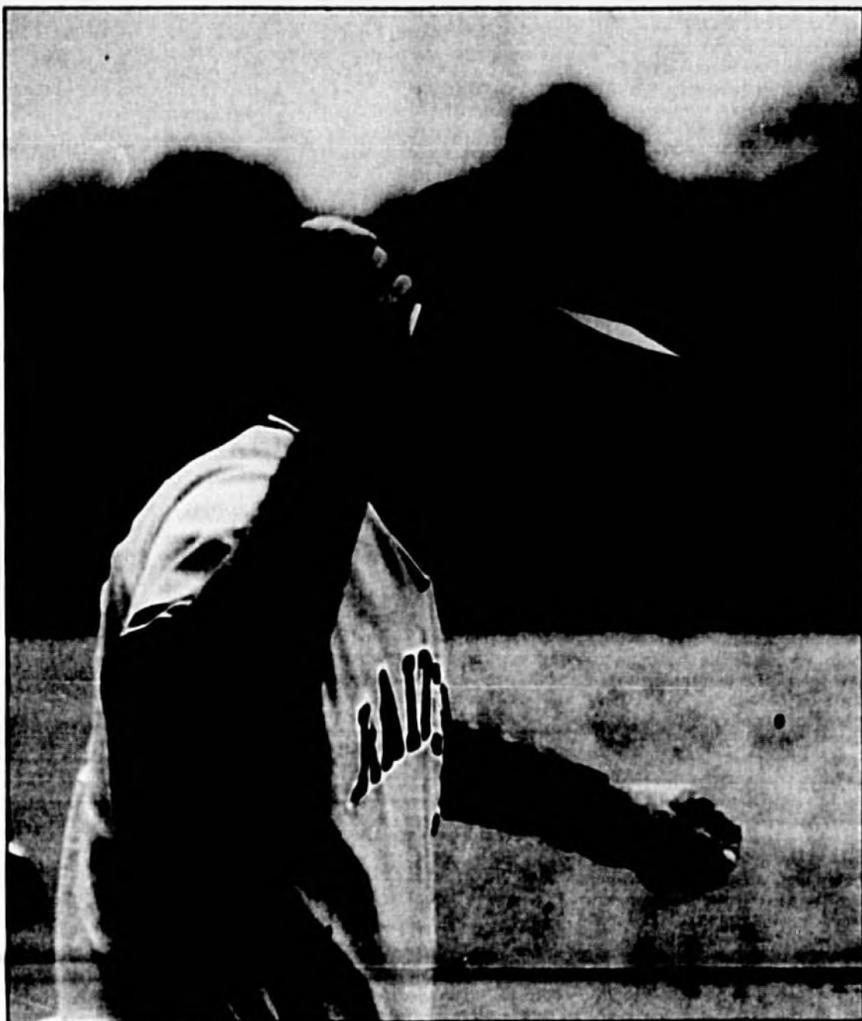

The Raiders took a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning against Santa Fe last Thursday as Charon opened the game with a double and moved to third on a bunt single by Shorts before scoring on a wild pitch off throw. Ben Johanning then launched a two run home run to give SCC the quick lead.

Charon's lead off triple in the third inning jump-started the seven run outburst that also featured a two run home run by Christian Corcos and two run-scoring singles by Shorts.

The Saints started to chip away at the lead, cutting the Raiders' lead to 11-4 and 12-6 before the Raiders plated two runs on a wild pitch and an infield single by Eugene Ribley in the top of the eighth inning that proved to be the winning runs on Santa Fe's mound.

Back to back walks and an error opened the flood gates for the Saints in the bottom of the eighth inning and Pantelias went for reliever Jared Kildisen in favor of winning pitcher Jason

Bucks end postseason chances of the Magic

By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

ORLANDO - As Chucky Atkins' attempt at a game winning three-pointer bounded off the rim at the TD Waterhouse Centre Monday night, a season of surprises and an unexpected playoff run came to a crushing and sudden end.

Atkins, who came off the bench to carry the Magic back from a 24-5 deficit late in the first quarter, got a good look at the "3", but the shot bounced off the back of the rim and the ball rolled to the other end of the court as time expired with the Milwaukee Bucks claiming the final Eastern Conference playoff spot with an 85-83 victory.

Everything seemed to conspire against the Magic over the weekend - the schedule, the goblins and even the officials.

It was going to be tough enough on Sunday having to play the Atlantic Division champion Miami Heat in Miami, but then a scheduled 12:30 p.m. tip-off at the American Airlines Arena was delayed over three hours by a power failure caused when a crane knocked out a transformer.

That gave an already anxious Orlando bunch that much more time to worry about playing a game that would be huge if they could win it.

And it showed early as the Heat turned the ball over several times in the first half, but the Magic could capitalize, missing shot after shot when they could have grabbed an early advantage.

Former Orlando Evans star Chucky Atkins (right) and Pat Garrity (above) had big games off the bench, scoring 18 and 15 points, respectively, to lead the Orlando Magic all the way back from a 24-5 first quarter deficit, but it was not enough as the Magic were eliminated from the playoff race, 85-83, by the Milwaukee Bucks at the TD Waterhouse Centre on Monday.

where watercraft caused deaths are historically high, such as Brevard, Collier and Lee.

The agency will also be distributing information to boaters at boat ramps and on the water and asking for their cooperation in helping to protect the manatee.

While additional enforcement will help, voluntarily compliance with the posted regulations is the key to success. By slowing down and following the posted regulations, boaters will be doing their part to help the manatee survive in Florida.

SHUPE'S SCOOP
 Manatees are indeed gentle giants, and spend the majority of their time feeding in the shallows on vegetation. I have observed very few manatees that have no propeller marks on their backs.

FISHING FORECAST

Sebastian Inlet is getting better by the day, and snook season is just around the corner. Snook, redfish, trout, and a few flounder are hitting large live shrimp or finger mullet. Most veteran anglers fish large live shrimp with a bare leadhead jig and work the rig slowly around the rocks.

River action is great. Bass are red hot from Puzzle Lake south to Lake Winder because of low water levels.

Fish deep bends, sand bars, creek and slough mouths for the best action. Bream and catfish are hitting mussels and worms in the deep bends.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that offshore action has been limited due to high seas. Inside the Port, expect the usual flounder and sheepshead to keep anglers busy. Trout and redfish are rated as fair in the Banana and Indian rivers.

Sheepshead, drum, redfish, small bluefish, jack crevalle, and a few flounder are present in good numbers at Ponce Inlet. Live or dead shrimp is the top bait. Trout and redfish are rated as good in Mosquito Lagoon.

Magic

Orlando still played well enough to be in the game until late in the third quarter when Miami took control and rolled to a 95-84 triumph.

Whether it was the pressure to win or lethargy from returning from a four game road trip and having played a tough game late Sunday afternoon, the Magic again got off to a horrible start on Monday, falling behind by the aforementioned, 24-5.

Orlando did score the final four points of the quarter to trail 24-9 and fought back to within 37-36 before the Bucks scored the final six points of the second quarter to take a 43-36 lead at intermission.

It appeared in the third quarter as if the officials were also on Milwaukee's side as every close call seemed to go toward the Bucks as they scored a majority of their 25 points from the free throw line to hold onto the lead, 68-64, after three quarters.

The Magic finally tied the game at 73-73 with 7:29 remaining and took their first lead of the game at 79-77 with 3:16 left on a shot by Marty Williams.

Both teams scored twice. Milwaukee's second coming on a

Tim Thomas jumper, with Orlando taking its final lead at 83-81 with 1:18 showing on the clock on an offensive rebound and layup by Pat Garrity.

The Magic got the ball back with under a minute to play, but Bo Outlaws' short hook shot came off the rim and Thomas again made a 15-foot jumper that bounced high off the rim and then fell through, with 0:39 left to tie the game at 83-83.

Armstrong got a good drive to the baseline, but was then double teamed and tried to pass the ball back to Atkins at mid court.

But the pass was too soft and former Florida State star Sam Cassell picked off the pass and passed forward to a wide open Glen Robinson for a dunk that proved to be the winning goal with 0:14.9 left on the clock.

Orlando worked the ball around until it found Atkins (who scored a team high 18 points) on the top of the key to the right of the basket.

His shot hit the back of the rim and the long rebound was knocked to the other end by Darwin Ham and the game ended with Atkins diving on the loose ball under the Bucks' two feet.

Milwaukee improved to 41-10, while the Magic fell to 40-41.

Both teams play at home on Wednesday, the Magic at home against the Toronto Raptors and Daytona Beach's Vince Carter (7:30 p.m.) and the Bucks against the Washington Wizards, but even if Orlando wins and Milwaukee loses, the Bucks still get the nod because they beat the Magic all four times they played this year.

HOROSCOPES

for two reasons: one, your neglected chores may catch up with you, and two, dependent persons may dump on you.

CANCER (June 21-July 23) Be especially careful of what kind of business favors you ask for today from those you know socially. You could compromise your friendship by being too far out of line.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) In order to be an achiever today, you're going to have to earn what you want. Attempting to take the lines of least resistance or depending on others won't cut it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Jumping to conclusions or acting before thinking could get you into a lot of hot water today, but what's worse is that your mistakes may produce long term consequences. Don't jump the gun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It could prove very unwise to loan a prized possession to a friend today or leave valuables in places where they could get stolen. Be more protective of your belongings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 23) Be more selective about your companions today. If

Your Birthday
Wednesday, April 19, 2000
 It'll be from your own creative efforts and not from things being handed to you on a platter that will foster greater personal gratification and material benefits for you in the year ahead.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Any extravagant financial determination you make today will have long legs attached to it. No matter how badly you want something, don't succumb to unwhettable behavior. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph prediction for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, PO Box 1756, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your Zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It might be quite difficult for you to make any sound judgments today because you could be so wedged in with a one-sided notion that you won't be able to see the other side of an issue.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) More responsibilities than you can comfortably manage could be in the offing today due you get involved with someone who always opposes your way of doing things, she or he could stymie your efforts once again.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Second helpings or extra cocktails could be too much of a costly thing today. Overindulgence will make you pay a hefty price tag for some time to come.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid all types of speculative activities today, from playing the commodities market to games of chance. The probabilities are that the dice may be rolling only another eye for you at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The best the fickle lady may be offering you today is second place, so if you're banking on Lady Luck to pull things off for you and propel you into first place, guess again.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a great chance you might be your own worst enemy today by rejecting what you know to be good advice merely because it comes from someone at whom you're presently peeved.
