Architect Displays First Sketches

City Hall To Face Lake Monroe

Sanford's new city hall will make the most of the Lake Monroe view. The outline in the background is the county courthouse.

The south end of the 6-acre site. "You'd have to forget about Lake Monroe and the view," he said.

A proposal to close Park Avenue from Semole Boulevard to Fulton Avenue to create a pedestrian mall probably won't be considered until the first floor is completed, when additional parking will be needed.

A delegation of women from SISTER attended the meeting and President Myrtle Gradick suggested that the chandeliers in city hall's upstairs auditorium be used in the building.

The commissioners also officially finalized the purchase of 2.6 acres from Flamingo Bank of Sanford to complete the site for the new city hall. The land will cost the city $100,000.

In other action at Monday night's meeting, commissioners:

- Delayed a vote on a resolution commending State Rep. Bob Hattaway for his attempt to amend Florida's Government in the Sunshine Law after Mayor Lee Moore objected that a resolution already passed by the Council of Mayors of West Broward County contained "unnecessary pot shots at the media."
- Appointed John Colbert, director of personnel and auxiliary services for the county school system, to the Sanford Housing Authority board of commissioners. He replaces former Chairman Richard Evans, who resigned June 14.
- Approved a request for a liquor license for a new supper club to be built in the old Seaboard Coast Line freight warehouse at 212 W. 1st St. Developer Jack St. Denis told the commissioners he planned a 1000 Mississippi riverboat atmosphere with big band-style entertainment.

Architect Wayne Heasley explains his plan to finish the second floor of the new city hall first, and expand the first floor as future needs arise.

Club Juana Operator, Ten Dancers Face Charges

Jury Selection Under Way In Nude Dancing Case

By BOB LLOYD Herald Staff Writer

Efforts were still under way early this afternoon to select a six-member county jury in the trial of Club Juana operator Mike Pinter and 10 dancers on charges of indecent exposure in nude dancing at the Casseberry night club.

The defense attorney, Edward Hanlon Jr., hinted that Johnson last week dismissed companion obscenity charges against Pinter and the dancers. That charge alleged the defendants knowingly promoted, conducted, performed or participated in an obscene, lewd, lascivious or indecent show or performance by live persons before an audience.

During more than two hours of questioning of prospective jurors this morning, Hanlon carefully questioned each person called to the jury box about their church affiliations, opinions on the nude body as an art form and the rights of citizens to pay money to see shows without offending others.

There were indications that the trial may last more than one day.

Approximately 15 law enforcement officers, including sheriff's vice squad agents, Casseberry police, state beverage agents and state attorney's investigators, arrested the dancers and Pinter on May 12 at the Club Juana, where Pinter had been overturning nude dancing.

Three female undercover sheriff's deputies and a group of policemen watched the performances by the dancers and secretly radioed details to other officers outside the nightclub.

One of the state's witnesses is Casseberry Police Officer George Proctor. In pre-trial testimony, he said he saw all 10 dancers perform, and in his opinion, the dancers' conduct was "less lascivious, more decent or vulgar." Other officers' pre-trial testimony indicated they felt the dancers were obscene in a vulgar or indecent manner.

Sanford Visitor Found Murdered

Orange County Sheriff's investigators and Sanford Police today clamped a lid of secrecy on their investigation in the murder of an 18-year-old Toledo, Ohio, woman who had been staying with relatives in Sanford.

The nude body of Michelle Tanasy was found Sunday in Kellar Park, six miles north of Apopka in Orange County. An autopsy report showed she died from multiple stab wounds, officials said.

Sanford police said a cousin, Ken Tanasy, 18, reported Saturday night that Miss Tanasy was missing from 2507 Yale Ave. and that she was last seen about 2 p.m.

Investigators said the Sanford family, who they declined to identify, called police after a description was broadcast on television Sunday night of a woman found slain at the Orange County park.

Orange County Sheriff's spokesman Richard King said a friend of the family identified the murder victim as Miss Tanasy.

Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler today confirmed that his department is actively participating in the murder probe with Orange County authorities but declined further comment on any possible local aspects of the probe.

Miss Tanasy reportedly came to Sanford about three weeks ago and was staying with relatives while job hunting in the Central Florida area.

King said today that medical examiners said further tests will be necessary before it can be determined if the murder victim was sexually molested.

The body was found Sunday afternoon in a remote corner of the park by three Orlando teenagers who were snake hunting.

Orange County authorities said today that investigators have no firm suspects in the slaying.

Gasoline Prices Expected To Rise

The good news is: you've got the car all packed, the dog stabled with a neighbor, the mail and newspaper service temporarily stopped, Grandma lined up to watch the house and a big fat wad of traveler's checks in your pocket. You're all set for those two glorious weeks of vacation you've been looking forward to for about 10 months.

Now for the bad news: there's likely to be another fuel shortage this summer. And at best, gasoline prices will be going up from two to five cents a gallon at pumps all across the United States.

"The supply is short, but we're not going to be in any real crisis like we had before," says William D. Tucker, executive director of the Allied Gasoline Retailers Association (AGRA), office in Orlando.

"I think we're going to see some stations running out of gas at the end of the month for several days, and fuel prices are probably going to be going up. But there won't be any lines, or anything like that," Tucker said.

Service station owners and attendants in Sanford have mixed views on the subject.

"It's too close to the Fourth of July for a fuel shortage," said one French Avenue service station owner. "It'd be too damned apparent. They (the fuel companies) are stupid, but I don't think they're that stupid."

Most of the service station personnel who were questioned admitted that they had heard rumors of gasoline price hikes during the summer, the peak travel period for a majority of motorists. But few would confirm the possibility of an actual shortage, saying that there usually are no advance indicators of such a situation.

"I know my (district) boss said they cut our allocation, I think for the whole summer," one station attendant said. "They're trying to create another shortage, but you and I both know there's nothing to it."

That observation, while no doubt largely correct, is not entirely accurate, according to Tucker. As an official of Florida's affiliate to AGRA, a nationwide organization, Tucker said his information reveals this picture:

During the bulk of 1975 there was a fuel surplus in this country at the wholesale level, which resulted in pump price reductions from August 1975 to March 1976. During this period, major fuel companies were authorized to implement wholesale price increases on several occasions — due to hikes in the cost of crude oil — but since the market was in a downward trend, they held off.

These increases were not lost, however, they were merely "banked" until a future time. And in order to turn the situation around, the oil firms simultaneously lowered production levels at various major refineries until eventually the gasoline surplus was exhausted.

With the surplus gone, it has once again become a seller's market and the time is ripe for introduction of the gas price increases the big oil companies have been saving.

So the explanation is there, if you're interested, but it still boils down to the consumer ending up on the short end of the stick — again.

County Commission OKs $50,000 Grant

By ED PRICKETT Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County commissioners today approved a grant proposal for $50,000 to fund an emergency medical service (EMS) system which will provide communications between hospitals and the Herndon Ambulance service in the county.

If approved by the state, the grant will be used to match a $340,000 EMS grant already in hand. The money is available in the governor's highway safety funds.

County Commissioner John Kimbrough said the major system the communications system would provide is to alert hospital officials about the nature of injuries or illness of persons being rushed for treatment to emergency centers.

Kimbrough said the "communications capability is a big improvement. The system would provide a system of communications between Florida Hospital North, Seminole Memorial Hospital between Herndon Ambulance service in the county.

The project was pushed last year by County Commissioner Sid Vihlen Jr.

The commission has a July 1 deadline to apply for the state funds.

Courts Wary In Using Mechanical Reporters

By KRIS NASH Herald Staff Writer (Last of a Three-Part Series)

The introduction of electronic recorders—transcribing directly into American courtrooms in place of human court reporters—is going to be a lot less expensive or has the potential of being less expensive," says Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Leffler, a jurist of Florida's 18th judicial circuit which is based in Seminole County.

Installed in the courtroom, the four-track system involves fixed microphones for each counsel table, the bench and the witness stand. The eight-track hook-up also a microphone above the jury box, at the trial clerk's table and on the podium from which the lawyers make their presentations, with the eighth track usually held in reserve in case of a breakdown.

"We really haven't had the experience here that some of the other counties have had," Leffler sums up. "For example, I understand that over in the sixth circuit, in Pinellas County, they've used it with great success."

If cost comparisons between electronic and human court reporters suggest that economy is almost completely on the side of the machine, the only remaining question is the quality of the transcripts that are being produced.

Equipping courtrooms with mobile machines, on the other hand, is not fully reliable, that is what happens if you have to go back and check a portion of a tape — for example, on an appeal.
