Bill would allow moms to breast-feed publicly

TALLAHABBEE — Women could break-feed their babies in public without fear of being asked to cover up or forced to leave under legislation filed Wednesday by a Mismi lawmaker.

"Any genuine premotion of family values should encourage public acceptance of this most basic act of nurture between mother and haby," and Rep. Miguel De Grandy, a Republican.

The bill comes in response to recent news reports about women being asked to leave resistants, mails and movie theaters when they break-feed their infants.

"Many women in the state of Florida have been given a hard time over breast-feeding," said flissboth Baldwin, director of La Leche League's legal program, a group promoting breast-feeding.

Under De Grandy's legislation states unequivocally that a mother "may feed her baby in any location, public or private" and could not be charged under any obscently, mulity or levelness laws. It would not matter whether or not the breast was covered.

Ms. Baldwin said she has talked to 10 women across Florida who were saked to leave a public place or cover up while breast-feeding this year.

"People often give you dirty looks," said Lorraine Rivera, also of La Leche League, "I would hope this would make the public recognise the value of breast-feeding."

The bill, which lawmakers will consider when their session begins Feb. 2, notes that the U.S. surgeon general has recommended that all babies be breast-fed until they reach age 1.

In addition, national studies have indicated that babies who have been breast-fed have higher IQs and better digestion and immune systems.

Cops nab Sanford rainfall totals remain high over 12-month period high over 12-month period

SANFORD - Sanford was the wettest place in the 19-county St. Johns River basin after 12 inches of rain fell here in November.

Rainfall totals monitored by the St. Johns River Water Management District showed the city received 9.88 inches above the 2.12-inch normal November rainfall, almost a 600 percent increase. Virtually all of the 12-inch total fell on Nov. 24, leaving many neighborhoods under a foot or more of water.

Sanford has received about 18 inches of above-normal rain during the past 12 months, according to a district report.

The water district issues a monthly "hydrologic conditions report" listing rainfall, lake levels and underground water supply information for areas thorughout the 19county district. Although Sanford rainfall and Geneva and Longwood well levels are monitored, no Seminole County lakes are included in the monthly survey.

Groundwater levels in Geneva remain high, although slightly lower than October's record of 21.49 feet above mean sea level. In November, the district recorded 21.4 feet in the well, nine-tenths of a foot below the record-setting October level. In Longwood, the groundwater level continued to improve. The district recorded water reaching a level of 41.96 feet, more than a foot more than the level reached in October. District officials say there is not a month-to-month correlation between rainfall and groundwater levels.

Florida's tremendous growth has created a shortage of telephone numbers. By dialing the area code on every long distance call, numbers are freed up for new businesses and residential customers.

Problems with boulevard almost over

Road widening along Lake Mary Boulevard has been at a standstill since July and traffic hazards have plagued many. Progress came to a halt due to the bankruptcy of the original contractor, John Mahoney Construction.

A restart contract was approved by the Seminole County Commission yesterday afternoon. Hewitt Contracting Company will now begin moving large construction machines to Lake Mary within days.

Relief seems to be in sight. But before boulevard travel becomes better, it will get Even larger hazards than before are about to enter the picture.

During the next six months, more motoring caution than ever will be required on the boulevard between Country Club Road and Interstate 4. Motorists who have been dodging manhole covers, will now be circumnavigating buildozers and paving equipment.

Lanes presently open will be closed, while it may be necessary to reroute some traffic and temporarily close some roads connecting with

Merchants will find construction areas obstructing access driveways at times, or even higher dirt piles obscuring their signs.

During this new period of construction, we urge motorists who use the boulevard to exercise extreme caution. Hagards will appear unexpectedly, and lanes may be changed from day to day.

it may seem to take forever, but it is expected to last no longer than six months. Enough stipulations have been placed in the contract with Hewitt to indicate that all of the construction work will be completed as originally scheduled, by June 14.

The City of Lake Mary is also working toward a final completion by that time of the companion boulevard beautification project.

When completed, Lake Mary Boulevard will return to being one of the main arteries from Seminole Community College, Lake Mary and points east, to Interstate-4 and the Heathrow community.

It will have changed however.
It will be one of the most beautiful and efficient traffic-movers in the area.

We applied this magnificent accomplishment. This project shows how different governmental entities can work together for a common interest.

In the mean time, while dodging work crews and equipment, take cheer. The problems won't last too much longer.

Ban ruthless nets

The exploitation of Florida's precious marine resources has gone unchecked for too long. The organized commercial fishing lobby has successfully resisted each and every rule or regulation which curtails their unlimited monopoly. We all admire the proud heritage that allows an individual to make his living from the riches of the sea. Unfortunately, there is no longer enough to go around.

Technological advances which allow hundreds of yards of monofilament gill nets to be spread by high speed boats have surpassed the ability of the fish to reproduce. We must restrict the ways that the sea is harvested before our precious mullet, redfish and snook go the way of the carrier pigeon.

The Marine Patrol is either unable or unwilling to enforce the laws on the books. The only way to control the indiscriminate kill of by the ruthless nets is to ban them. Commerci. "hermen have long claimed that their nets do not ..urt turtles and lees but have now seen photographic eviporpoises but have a dence to the contrary.

We should all help to save our Florida scalife by signing a Save Our Sea Life petition now. This will put the proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot and allow the citizens of Florida to decide whether their marine resources are worth protecting from the nets.

When should we send in the troops?

clear how a problem could be solved, but the solution is impractical because the American people would never agree to it. In such cases, the only thing left to do is grin and bear the consequences.

One such case is the drug problem, which could almost certainly be solved by sufficiently draconian penalties — death for major suppliers, for one. But the American people probably for one. But the American people probably wouldn't tolerate such a solution, preferring instead to let the problem continue.

It begins to appear that the issue of America's role in the evolving world order is another such problem. In pure theory we would be well advised, and morally justified as well, to reserve applications of American military forces to applications of American military force to situations that truly threaten global order itself. (Baddam Hussein's 1990 seizure of Kuwait, and his designs on the rest of the Middle East's oil supplies, were a good example.)

As for distressing but not strategically threatening cases such as Somalia, we would as always be quick with food and other humanitarian supplies. In civil wars like the one now tormenting the former Yugoslavia, we could join in sanctions against Serbia, and sell weapons to the Croats and Bosnians if we so chose. But we would draw the line at putting the lives of American soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines at risk.

There would, of course, be borderline cases, and perhaps Somalia is one. If food shipments are hijacked before they can reach their destination, it might -- be acceptable to do what President Bush has done: namely, send in enough Marines to make sure that the food gets through.

But even that, as we now see, quickly leads to demands by U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros Ghali and others that the Marines stay in Somalia long enough to disarm the warring clans, so that a U.N.

In Bosnia, this country is already on the verge of agreeing to enforce with our fighter planes. under U.N. authority, a "no-fly zone" designed to hamper the Serbe. This, of course, is a first step toward involvement on the ground, which would almost certainly follow — if only because air attacks would risk Serbian reprisals against British and French ground forces already in Bosnia as a U.N. "peacekeeping" contingent. [The concept of a composite U.N. force actually capable of fighting in Bosnia or elsewhere, which

I raised in a recent column, apparently strikes the Pentagon as implausible and/or undestrable.) Finally, we are being prepared to regard any Serbian military intrusion into bordering Kosovo, where Muslims predominate, as a step that would drag Greece and Turkey into the fray on the sides of Serbia and Kosovo respectively thereby escalating the conflict to a level that would demand American intervention anyway.

So we will probably barge militarily into Bosnia - and also into every other future hot-spot where TV cameramen and bleedingheart columnists can manage to bring tears to American eyes.

When our presidents don't trust us

For 18 of our last 24 years, three of our presidents and a pride of their closest advisers maintained two forthright positions on the system of laws they were enforcing.

They were: (1) staunchly behind it; and (2) conveniently above it.

They taught us all about deep sixing and shredding evidence. They acted as though lying under oath to courts or Congress is but a natural extension of the unsworn lying of press conference fare.

Ultimately, their coverups dwarfed their crimes. That's what toppled Richard Nixon in Watergate and tarnished Ronald Reagan in Today's sorry spectacle finds our 41st president, George Bush, veritably piling the furniture against the Oval Office door, seeming desperate to prevent the truth from getting out to us, in what looms as his special francontratempts.

Contratempts.

First, consider his pardon of ex-Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who along with Secretary of State George Shults, was a rare hero-on-the-inside, firmly opposing the arms-for-hostages deal, Weinberger made extensive notes — 1,700 pages of them — after meetings. Yet when prosecutors saided if he had any notes relevant to the meetings, he insisted he had none. Could you forget having written 1,700 pages of longhand notes? Of course not. It seems obvious: Weinberger, while willing to discuss his role, felt he should protect Reagan (who needed no protecting, but could have apologised, explained he meant well but goofed, and won our applause). Had Weinberger surrendered his notes at the outset, the Iran-Contra probes would have ended years ago.

Now consider Bush: In 1986-7, while Reagan ended years ago.

Now consider Bush: In 1988-7, while Reagan worried only about protecting his name for posterity. Bush felt he had to protect his political viability for 1988, his last chance to be president. In his 1987 autobiography, Bush maintained he didn't know it was an arms-for-hostages deal, or that Weinberger and Shultz ever objected to this illegal plan — and implied he too had some doubts. In 1987, Bush told The Washington Post's David Broder: "If I'd sat there and heard George Shultz and Cap express it (opposition) strongly, maybe I would have had a stronger view. But when you don't know something, it's hard to react.... We were not in the loop."

But Weinberger's notes show that Bush — the "VP" — was not only in the loop but in the Oval Office on Jan. 7, 1986, for a discussion of the plan to trade 4,000 TOW anti-tank missiles the plan to trade 4,000 TOW anti-tank missile for five U.S. hestages: "George Shults & opposed — Bill Casey, Ed Meess & VP favore — as did Poindexter."

Bush's Iran-Contra involvement broadened. He met in July 1986 with Israeli official Amiram Nir on the arms-for-hostages deal. And he met three times in 1985-6 with a Felix Rodriguez, ex-CIA operative working secretly to rearm the Contras. Both deny that's what they discussed — but what else did they have to talk about?

Now this: After years of saying he'd given prosecutors all evidence, we just learned Bush never provided (until the other day) transcripts of daily recollections he dictated in 1985.

Sadly, we are left to ponder why these presidents, whom the people entrusted with their highest office, were so unwilling to trust the people with the simple truth. EPILOGUE: Almost 20 years ago, while leaving the grounds of 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. — after Nixon had issued his latest Watergate statement blaming everything on young John Dean — I heard my name called. I turned to see the new Republican Party chairman, a decent, friendly fellow. He saked if I thought Nixon was telling the truth. As we walked through the park across the street, I listed the discrepancies in Nixon's version.

Then I added that — mainly — any thinking person knew Nixon and his top advisers never would have entrusted that secret operation to a bunch of low-level, Brylcreamed young sides.

"Plain common sense tells us the president is lying," I said. The GOP chairman nodded.

That GOP chairman of '74, George Bush, understood how plain common sense can lay bare the lies of a president. Surely, he understands why the same holds true today.

We have entered the 'Alibi Age'

In an effort to be the first columnist on the planet to define the '90s, I hereby anoint it the "Alibi Age." We've gone from the "Me Decade" to the "Not Me Decade."

OK, so Time magazine did a story on what a bunch of crybables we have become, but that's a news magazine with a staff of hundreds. I am the first one-person shop to spot this trend, and I intend to claim credit.

The evidence is everywhere. Sunbathers can't be held ecount for their burns: it's the hole in the atmosphere. Smokers aren't responsible for their habit; they are duped by tobacco ads. Drunks can't be blamed for their erratic driving: it's the fault of the bar that, sold them the booze.

Excuses are nothing new, of course. Humans We've gone have probably been blaming the full moon for their bad 'Not Me moods since lizards Decade'. the size of rhinos roamed the earth.

rumblesests, movies, television and rock music. Then there is the Super-Duper, Never Fail, All-Purpose Alibi of the past 20 years -The Media Did It.

Favorites of the 20th century include

But for creativity, none of these even approaches some of the artful alibis now in the development stage. To wit:

1. The Prozac. Some users have claimed that the anti-depressant drug Prozac causes suicidal and violent behavior, and the matter will be decided in due time. But does Prozac incite lust? Kathy Willets says it does.

Willets is the Fort Lauderdale, Pla., woman who was arrested on prostitution charges and whose attorney said she claims that Prozac gave her an insatiable libido. Responded a spokesman for the manufacturer, Eli Lilly & Co: "A lot of people have blamed Prozac for a lot of things, but this is the most bizarre yet."

How far can this be taken? Would you have to be an actual Prozac user to claim a similar defense? Could not Sen. Charles Robb, D-Va., accused of having a relationship with a former Miss Virginia, claim he was victimized by Prozac molecules hanging in the atmosphere around a pharmaceutical counter? Could not Donald Trump, who parted with Maria Maples after ogling the new Miss America in Atlantic City, N.J., argue that he got excited after someone opened a preacription bottle and let some Prozac particles escape into the air?

2. The Mary Hart. A neurologist reported in the New England Journal of Medicine last. summer that the voice of Mary Hart, host of the television show "Entertainment Tonight," stimulated seizures in a woman in a laboratory test. The victim, said Dr. Venkat Ramani, would hold her head and "look confused and far away ... like she was far away and out of it."

There is no recorded use of this alibi so far, but it will happen. It's the perfect excuse for the California Board of Equalization, for example, which has been trying to interpret the state's new snack tax and has determined, for example, that popped popcorn. granola bars and imitation pork rinds are taxable, while unpopped popcorn, granola cereal and real pork rinds are not. There is now a quick answer to complainers: "We watched too much 'Entertainment Tonight."

3. The Rye Bread. A University of Maryland

historian has postulated that history may have been influenced by what people atc. Hundreds of French peasants who went beneris and terrorised the countryside in 1789, for example, may have consumed too much rye bread. Weather conditions that year were perfect for the growth of a fungus known as ergot, which thrives on rye and contains hallucinogens.

Among the questions Clinton must answer: How quickly can he cut the burgeoning deficit without hindering the economic recovery? How much new spending should he inject into the sconomy to give it a short-term boost? Can he afford the middle-class tax cut he promised during the campaign? Should he boost the gasoline tax to help cut the budget shortfall?

Stephanopoulos said the latest budget and deficit picture "just reinforces our destre to attack the twin challenges of the budget deficit and the investment deficit, and that's what we're going to

Clinton long has stressed that along with cutting the budget deficit, the country needs to crase its "investment deficit" by spending more on things like roads, bridges and new technologies that will help create high-paying jobs and spur economic growth.

But even Clinton allies were among those pointing to the enormity of the task.

"Given the much larger deficit projections, the president-elect will have a very difficult if not impossible task of cutting the deficit in half," Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Sesecr, D-Tenn., said in Washington. The latest bad news was not wholly unexpected: Clinton has warned about underlying weakness in the economy and repeatedly has cautioned against reading too much into a recent spate of positive government economic reports.

It was only litting that Clinton - elected on a promise to restore the country's economic might - was studying that issue Wednesday when his election became official as Congress tallied the votes of the Electoral College.

"I was studying a paper about the economic challenges before me, actually. Trying to get ready to go to work and make sure that the people who worked for the Clinton-Gore ticket and the people that voted for us didn't exercise their vote in vain," he said.

Clinton later set aside his deliberations for a two-hour session with leaders of the auto industry, pledging a "fresh start" in cooperation among government, industry and labor.

Both sides said no specific commitments were sought or offered.

Arts world mourns masters: Nureyev and Gillespie

By POLLY ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

They pursued their art with intensity, grace and showmanship — Rudolf Nureyev and Dizzy Gillespie, the master of ballet and the master of jazz who died Wednesday. Nureyev, who had been suffering from AIDS, died at age 54 in a Paris hospital of what his doctor described as a "cardiac complication following a cruel illness."

Gillespie died in his sleep at Englewood (N.J.) Hospital, where he was being treated for pancreatic cancer. He was 75.

The Soviet-born Nureyev was already the Kirov Ballet's leading dancer in 1961 when, at age 23, he made a sudden run for freedom at the Paris airport during a tour.

Within a short time, his skill, innovation and charisma on stage - and his eloquence and offbeat style off stage - made him a celebrity. By the mid-60s his fame rivaled that of the

"For me, purity of movement wasn't cnough," he told an interviewer in 1963. "I needed expression, more intensity, more mind."

On his defection, he once said "a country is just a place to dance. Your roots are your work. Work is sacred."

He made his first appearance with Margot Fonteyn, 19 years his senior, at the Royal Ballet in London in late 1961. One newspaper called his performance "probably the finest piece of male dancing seen on the Covent Garden stage in this generation." Their partnership became legendary.

Ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov, who himself defected from the Soviet Union 13 years after Nureyev, said, "He had the charisma and simplicity of a man of the earth and the untouchable arrogance of the gods. I will never forget him."

Kevin McKenzie, artistic director of the American Ballet Theatre, said Nureyev was responsible for "not only bringing ballet to the awareness of the trumpet and goatee became general public but for trademarks. singlehandedly creating legions of dance fans."

Interest generated by his celebrity inspired choreographers to create more works for men dancers, and programmers to put dance on television.

Nureyev performed on stages around the world until he was in his late 40s, old for a male

His super-high leaps that had so amazed his audiences gradually faded, but his artistry remained. He eventually turned to choreography. He directed the Paris Opera Ballet from 1983-89, retiring to take the lead role in a traveling version of the Broadway musical "The King Hastings said the latest Seminole County offense came after Guy checked into an Altamonte Springs hotel room, paid in cash and requested no maid service. However, when a maintenance employee went in to check on a malfunction, he saw that Guy had "set up a crack kitchen." Hastings said.

The employee called the police who obtained a search warrant and confiscated the drug utensils and equipment.

Ironically, Guy had already been arrested several hours before by Winter Park police on drug charges, Hastings sald.

"He was a true leader," said jazz drummer Elvin Jones. "I've always felt butterflies in my stomach whenever I was around him because I knew I was around a great person."

Gillespie turned jazz in new directions as a founding father of the style known as bebop and again when he collaborated with Cuban musicians to give African-American music a Latin beat. Out of that came such albums as "Afro-Cuban Jazz Moods," 1975.

He wrote or co-wrote many songs that became jazz stan-dards, including "A Night in Tunisia," "Groovin' High."
"Manteca," "Salt Peanuts." "Con Alma" and "Woody 'n

The critic Leonard Feather called him "one of the most creative musicians of the 20th century."

Gillespie, born John Birks Gillespie in Cheraw, S.C., came of age during the Big Band era. His early style descended from Louis Armstrong and Roy

Rabun said he and the members of the commission were pleased that the new agreement was reached at a cost that did not exceed the original amount, and would still have the same completion date of June 14,

The commission voted on the matter during a special meeting yesterday afternoon.
"We had hoped the work might be able to get underway within 24 hours of signing a contract." Rabun said yesterday afternoon, "but to be practical, it may be late this week or early next week before the heavy equipment will be moving in to Lake Mary and the actual physical work is underway again."

"It won't be long however," he added. "The contractor and the bonding agency are fully aware of the completion date, and time is of the essence in this situation.

so I would suspect they won't waste any time in getting the work moving."

Hewitt submitted the low bid for the remainder of the road widening project, at $2,580,928.41. The contract agreement calls for the project to be completed on time, or a charge of $1,000 per day against Hewell for every day beyond that time if the work cannot be fully completed.

Dr. Alexandra Sumerlin of the Cat Hospital of Orlando in Altamonte Springs said she doesn't believe that the term "AIDS" is the best one to describe the affliction because it tends to cause people to panie. "People hear AIDS and it conjures up the image of HIV-infected humans," she said. She said that FIV is more akin to Feline Leukemia than it is to human AIDS.

Sumerlin said that an accurate test to diagnose the disease has just recently been developed. The disease has been around for much longer, she said, but often the cat was labled "sickly."

Cats, like Sassy, with FIV are more vulnerable to colds and other diseases, but they can be expected to live nearly their full lives if they are kept indoors and away from other cats.

"Sassy will probably live another five or six years." Bevan said. "Since he os already eight years old, that is pretty much is normal life expectancy.

She said that he will, however, ultimately get an infection that will do him in.

Bevan is trying to find a home for Sassy because she said she can not care for him the way that he should be cared for.

Sumerlin said that cats afflicted with FIV are not any more difficult to care for than other indoor cats, but that some people who are used to letting their cat outdoors might find the restriction a difficult adjustment.

"I think some people need to adjust to the terminology as she said. "This is not AIDS, there is not an epidemic and people will not be infected by their animals. This is a feline SANFORD — Despite playing with four new faces in the starting lineup, the undefeated Lyman Greyhounds rolled to a 4-0 win over the Seminole Fighting Seminoles Wednesday night at Seminole's Thomas E. Whigham Stadium.

The victory improves Lyman's record to 13-0-2 overall, 4-0-1 in Seminole Athletic Conference play. Seminole drops to 3-10, 0-5 in the SAC.

"We did have four new starters in the lineup, some guys who haven't had a lot of playing time. But they performed well. They did a good job.

Jeff Smith gave Lyman a 1-0 when he headed home a throw-in from Dan McAvoy in the 17th minute. Mike Sells made it 2-0 when he hammered home a rebound of a McAvoy shot five minutes before halftime. In the second half, John Bernard converted a penalty kick in the 55th minute and Sells added an unassisted goal in the 60th minute. Lyman outshot Seminole 22-3 and had a 9-1 advantage in corner kicks. Greyhound goalie Chris Lewis had to make one save to notch his seventh DeBruin, who also scored a goal, collected the 28th assist of his career, breaking the record set by 1992 graduate Justin Walker (now a student at the University of South Florida).

Chris Campbell, Brandon Mahana, and Scott Feldman each scored a goal. Mahana, Stuart Anderson, and Mike Deaver each were credited with an assist.

Stars add to mastery of Raiders

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE - It doesn't matter who the coach is. Seminole Community College can't seem to win in Jacksonville.

The winless streak reached 12 years and 13 games Wednesday night as Florida Community College humbled the Raiders 107-75 in the men's Mid-Florida Conference opener for both teams.

"I will win in this gym before I'm finished." vowed first-year SCC coach Bernard Merthle after the game. "We got off to a good start tonight, but with only 10 players dressed, we ran out of gas.

"I just hope the guys don't get discouraged. They need to remember that FCC-J is one of the top teams in the conference. This was no rummy outfit we played."

The local squad was hurt by the absence of Mike Burch (knee), Evon Hammond (ankle) and Sanford's J.J. Wiggins (back). Burch and Hammond are two of the team's better rebounders.

The Raiders jumped out to a 6-0 lead on a pair of layups by Troy Bruening and a jumper by Dean Poshard and then went ahead 8-2 on a dunk by Sanford's Jeff Hall.

But the Stars began to slowly peck away at the lead behind the play of Mike Washington (12 first half points). SCC stayed close until the final five minutes when FCC-J took advantage of Raider turnovers and used superior offensive rebounding to build the lead to 17. 45-28, at intermission.

The Raiders kept the Stars in sight for most of the second half. but FCC-J made a late run and hit 16 of 19 free throws in the second half to post the big win.

Washington paced FCC-J (11-5. 1-0 in the M-FC) with 21 points.

Sophomore point guard Phillip Williams led SCC (5-11, 0-1) with a game-high 25 points. Poshard and Bruening chipped in with 10 points each, while Hall, Anthony Phillips and Lyman's Aaron Merrell added eight points each.

The Raiders will finish a long road stand (the last home game was back on Dec. 8) with an M-FC game at St. John's River Community College in Palatka Saturday night, before re-turning home for a conference game with Valencia Community College next Wednesday. Both games will have 7:30 p.m. starts.

Microwave a quick meat loaf

Meat loaf, always a family favorite, can be cooked quickly in the microwave oven. The results are moist, perfectly browned, and delicious and you have saved considerably on household energy. If you're new to cooking with microwave energy, follow these simple directions. Become familiar with the operation of the equipment (read all the directions, use tested recipes, undercook if in doubt (time can be, added, allow standing time to complete cooking process.)

All recipes that appear in this column have been tested in a 600-700 watt microwave oven. Lower wattage ovens may need some adjustment in timing.

This recipe makes a large meat loaf, but leftovers make great sandwiches.

Does therapy cure ovarian cancer?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'd like to know more about ovarian cancer. Eight months ago my sister was operated on because of a large tumor on both ovaries. After chemotherapy she looks and feels fine, yet keeps telling me she will be lucky if she has three years left to live. What is

DEAR READER: I don't mean to sound negative, but ovarian cancer is a serious problem from which the outcome is seldom

To begin with, it's difficult to diagnose because it is painless in its early stages. Therefore, ovarian carcinoma often grows quite large and spreads to other abdominal organs before it is detected.

Second, there are no tests for this specific cancer, as there are for, say, prostate cancer. The tumor is usually discovered by accident during a routine pelvic heir examination, when the 34 Figure skater gynecologist feels the tumor.

Third, as you know, the larger the tumor (and the more extensively it has spread), the harder it is to treat. Thus, therapy for ovarian cancer (surgery, radiation and drugs) is rarely effective: At the time of diagnosis, the cancer is usually too far advanced.

Finally, even if the initial treatment appears successful. small nests of cancer cells almost always evade therapy and continue to grow, necessitating a cycle of treatments that are invariably debilitating.

I am glad your sister re-sponded satisfactorily to chemotherapy. Perhaps she will be one of the few fortunate patients who can be considered "cured." In any case, I admire her attitude of cautious realism. She seems to be addressing the problem head-on, with great trump. West must score two

By Phillip Alder

There is a small band of enthusiasts who like to pore over double-dummy problems. These are problems in which you can see all 52 cards. You must work out how to make (or, oc-casionally, how to defeat) the contract.

Most double-dummy problems are complicated, but today's isn't too tough - and it has a slight twist. Given the opening lead of the heart ace, you have to ork out the result with best play by both sides.

The deal is taken from "The Best of Robert Gray, Book Two" ($5.50, The Bridge World, 39 West 94th Street, New York, NY 10025-7124).

The bidding is contrived to make South the declarer. because six diamonds by North cannot be defeated.

If the opening lead is ruffed low in dummy. East overruffs and leads back his second more tricks for two down. Therefore, declarer must ruff with dummy's diamond king. What does East play?

If East discards, declarer cashes dummy's diamond ace and leads the club ace. If it holds, declarer exits dummy with the diamond three. East must win the trick and play a spade, allowing South to discard dummy's club losers on his A-K

But East has a defense. When the heart ace is ruffed high in dummy. East underruffs with the diamond queen.

Declarer cashes the club ace before leading the diamond three, but West wins with the five and plays another top heart: two down.

When did you last see everyone follow and a defender's trump five win the first round of the suit?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be careful today that you don't make things harder for yourself than they actually are. You need space to operate in, and if you reduce your wiggle room, you'll ilso reduce your effectiveness.

PSCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

There's a possibility you might get involved in a development today where there is dissension between two friends. The worst thing you could do is to side with one against the other.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to be too hasty or impulsive today in handling matters that pertain to your career, if you take off without your propeller, it's likely you'll have to abort the flight.

not accelerate your intensity today if you see that what you have to offer or promote is being rejected by others. A soft sell might work, but a hard sell
