Old Hospital's Future Is Still Uncertain

Seminole County commissioners will hold a work session Monday to choose its next move in deciding the future of the old Seminole Memorial Hospital.

Commissioners received only one bid on the hospital last week in the second attempt to sell the building and that bid, from George M. Kline of Bethesda, Md., has not been accepted yet because it did not come with a 10 percent bid bond.

A first bidding drew no bids. The hospital is the keystone in commissioners' office space plans.

If the building is sold, the funds received will be used to construct an office building next to the courthouse.

If the building is not sold, commissioners plan to move some county offices into it.

But whether the move will be short-term or long-term has not yet been decided.

Public Services and Development Director John Percy said a list of people who expressed an interest in the hospital but did not submit a bid was compiled.

County Administrator Roger Neiswender said the county can negotiate with individuals to sell the building. A more detailed study of what the building is worth for various uses would make such a sale easier, he said.

Commissioner Barbara Christensen feels the high cost of renovating the facility is one reason few people have shown an interest in the building.

Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather said another reason for the lack of interest is that Seminole County already has enough nursing home beds to meet the projected needs of the county.

"So far as a certificate of need is concerned it's unlikely they'll be able to get more than 10 beds," Feather said.

Commissioners also hope to select a plan for construction of offices adjacent to the courthouse. Two plans are being developed by Walter H. Sobel & Associates of Chicago, the county's consultants.

One plan calls for a building to the east of the courthouse and a second plan calls for construction of buildings to the east and south of the courthouse.

Expansion of the Seminole County Health Department also will be considered.

Commissioners have been negotiating for a parcel near the county's Five Points complex and have recently been looking at a parcel near the Zayre Plaza in Sanford.

But the health department could be moved to the old hospital if commissioners elect not to sell the building.

Two floors of the building would meet the health department's needs through the year 2000, a Sobel report indicated.

Commissioners also have set a Nov. 22 moving date for the county's Manpower office to be moved into the first floor of Sanford City Hall.

The Manpower office is being moved from the Masonic Building on Park Avenue and First Street in Sanford to make room for expansion of the State Attorney's office and county probation office.

Ambulance Pact Still Unsettled

By MICHEAL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Another three-month extension of Herndon Ambulance Service's contract for emergency ambulance service in Seminole County has been recommended by county staff officials.

But a Herndon official said the company "would not agree to another 90-day extension at current rates."

Staff officials told county commissioners at a Monday work session the contract extension is the best way to study the costs of emergency service in the county and will allow specifications to be drawn up for bidding on a county franchise.

Herndon's contract already has been extended through the end of 1982 while county officials study the company's proposal for service in 1983 and a competing proposal from Aero Products, Inc., a Longwood firm which wants a franchise and the county subsidy for emergency service.

County officials said Monday they weren't ready to award the subsidy to either company. Aero's bid to provide four full-time emergency units in the county seeks a $237,340 subsidy. The proposal is unacceptable, according to Betty Smith, emergency medical services coordinator, because the company doesn't have one year of experience in emergency service and because the company's projections on revenues and expenditures are unvalidated.

Aero President Scott Barnes said the law is vague on the experience point. Barnes and several of his employees have worked in the emergency medical services field for years but the company itself has no ambulance transport experience.

Barnes said the law says the applicant must have one year experience in the area of emergency medical services. Aero has been in business in the area of emergency medical services for four years, selling equipment and serving as consultants for several firms, he said.

But Mrs. Smith recommended commissioners accept Aero's proposal and schedule a public hearing while the firm gathers the additional information necessary.

Herndon's proposal calls for three emergency units and a subsidy of $100,000. A fourth unit will cost another $105,350, the proposal says. Mrs. Smith said Herndon's proposal is acceptable but the financial picture is incomplete because the firm has not had an independent certified audit.

Budget Director Eleanor Anderson said the Herndon financial figures did not separate what the company's revenues and expenditures were for emergency and non-emergency service.

Barnes said his firm was handicapped in projecting expenditures and revenues because Herndon failed to provide the county with its figures.

"Herndon was required to submit a certified audit last year, but they didn't. Those figures don't exist," Barnes said.

Ms. Anderson said the missing Herndon figures are necessary for both Aero and the county to make projections.

Bob Chewning, president of Herndon, said the company has recently begun separating the costs and profits from the emergency and non-emergency services but no information is yet available.

He told commissioners the Herndon auditing firm was reputable. The firm has done the company's finances for years and knows Herndon's figures well, Chewning said.

Chewning said his firm would cooperate with the county in gathering data on the costs of emergency service but said an extension of the contract is unacceptable.

"We're going to be hurt very much if it goes the full 90 days in the first go-round," he said. "When Herndon Ambulance, Inc., agreed to a 90-day extension, we talked to the staff and were assured it wouldn't be the full 90 days but would be only a few weeks."

Both proposals contain rates of $70 per trip for emergency service and $50 for non-emergency service. Current rates are $60 and $40, respectively.

"Herndon Ambulance, honestly commissioners, has made the very best offer we can make and stay in the ambulance business," Chewning said.

Election Day Turnout Reported 'Good'

Despite dire predictions of a poor voter turnout in the general elections today, Seminole County voters formed a steady stream at the polling places.

Sandy Goard, office manager for Seminole Elections Supervisor Camilla Bruce, said the turnout is much better than Mrs. Bruce anticipated.

"One precinct as of 9 a.m. — just two hours after the polls opened — had already voted 200 persons where only 1,500 are registered," Mrs. Goard said.

She noted there has been some confusion among some of the voters who didn't turn their first punch card "A" ballot over to vote the other side despite all the notices posted telling them to.

Voters each get two punch card ballots. The first must be voted on both sides.

Mrs. Goard also said some voters have been confused because one constitutional amendment appears on the ballot which was ordered stricken by the Florida Supreme Court. That amendment would have allowed former legislators to become lobbyists immediately after retiring from

Statewide Turnout Strong

United Press International
Despite cloudy skies over much of Florida, the early-bird voter turnout was reported to be "brisk" today and elections supervisors were optimistic that the overall vote would be greater than the predicted 45 percent.

"It looks as though we're going to have a very good turnout," said Robin Krivanek, the Legislature as long as they filed a financial disclosure. The Florida high court ruled the wording on the ballot for that proposed amendment was misleading.

Seminole County's ballots were printed before the high court made its ruling a couple weeks ago. The county computer has been programmed to disregard the votes cast for that amendment.

Mrs. Goard said the election, in general, has run very smoothly.

Mrs. Bruce earlier urged voters to carry positive identification, such as their voter supervisor of elections in Hillsborough County. "One polling place that had less than 400 (voters) during the primaries has already had over 350 in two hours."

Election officials had predicted a statewide turnout of about 45 percent of Florida's 4.8 million registered voters, who include 3 million Democrats and 1.5 million Republicans.

registration cards or drivers' licenses, to the polls with them today. Poll workers were checking identification at the polls. However, those without identification, could sign affidavits and were allowed to vote.

The polls will remain open until 7 p.m. today. Those who have not turned in their absentee ballots may do so until 7 p.m. at Mrs. Bruce's courthouse annex office in Sanford.

Meanwhile, poll workers in Precinct 4 at Altamonte Springs city hall report that 150 persons had voted by 10 a.m. "There's been a steady stream," the poll worker said.

Precincts 18 and 37 at the Sanora Clubhouse polling place said the turnout has been "really tremendous." Twenty persons in Precinct 37 were in line when the polls opened at 7 a.m. and another six were waiting for Precinct 18 to open.

Precinct 33 at Longwood City Hall reported 190 had voted by 10:30 a.m., a steady stream.

Precinct 13 at the Winter Springs Fire Station and Police Station on North Moss Road where voters are not only selecting national, state and county officials, but also city councilmen and a new mayor had a steady line of expectant voters this morning.

The Seminole Democratic Party has planned a victory party at its headquarters at the Greater Mall in Casselberry to begin at 7 p.m. today when the polls close. Republicans plan their "grand finale" to the campaigns and celebration beginning at 9 p.m. at the Altamonte Springs Civic Center. — DONNA ESTES.

McClanahan Will Challenge Dave Farr

Sanford will have two contests for city commission seats in the Dec. 7 city election.

Former city commissioner A.A. "Mac" McClanahan filed qualifying papers before the noon deadline today to run against David Farr, who is completing his first four-year term in office.

McClanahan, 57, previously served on the City Commission from 1972-1979 when he was defeated in a bid for re-election. A real estate broker and building contractor, McClanahan is a native Floridian, born in Minnesota in Lake County. McClanahan has been a resident of the city for 29 years.

Farr, 39, is also a real estate broker and owns and operates his own business, Dave Farr's Real Estate Super Market in Sanford. Farr was born in Orlando. He and his family have lived in Sanford since 1980.

McClanahan, who retired from the U.S. Navy after 24 years, received his bachelor's degree in business administration and his master's degree in criminal justice, began his work at the University of Florida toward a law degree when he had to drop out because of illness.

Farr holds an undergraduate degree from Carson-Newman College, Jefferson City, Tenn. and began graduate work in city planning at Georgia Tech. He was Seminole County planner for 2½ years and was a consulting planner for the city of Sanford for 1½ years.

McClanahan and his wife, Candie, have three children — son, A.A. "Mick" McClanahan Jr., a lawyer, a son, John, who is an engineer with the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad and a daughter, Patti Hartwig, who is a homemaker. He also has three grandchildren, two girls and a boy.

Farr and his wife, Joyce, a realtor associate, have four children — Julie, 16, a student at Seminole High, Jackie, 14, a student at Crooms, and twins Debbie and David, 12, students at Sanford Middle School.

Farr won election to the City Commission in 1978 in his first bid for public office.

McClanahan said he is opposing Farr because of Farr's blanket approval of the city budget this year without commission review. "When a commissioner does not have time to review a multi-million dollar budget, it worries me," McClanahan said.

He also said Farr has not accomplished any of those things he promised the voters four years ago. McClanahan would not enumerate the broken promises.

Farr said today he is not surprised at having an opponent in the election. "I think it's good for the people of Sanford to have a choice," he said.

He said much has been accomplished by the city in the past four years. He said those accomplishments include the program to improve the downtown area; expansion of water and sewer lines throughout the city in conformance with the city's comprehensive plan; the reduction in the number of city employees without reducing services to any large degree; a reduction in the tax rate and cooperation and rapport with other cities in Seminole and the county government.

Farr said if he is fortunate enough to be re-elected, he will continue to maintain the same accessibility to the city's residents as he has in the past four years. "If someone in the city has a problem he can contact me easily and I'm always willing to drop whatever I'm doing at the time to help work out a solution. At the very least the people will get an airing of their problem from me," Farr said.

He said he will make no campaign promises because a single commissioner can do nothing alone. "It takes the cooperation of the entire commission to accomplish anything," he said.

IN BRIEF

New Suspect Being Sought In Cyanide-Tylenol Case

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police searched nationwide today for an Illinois man who is wanted for questioning in the cyanide-Tylenol poisoning deaths of seven people and said "substances" taken from his apartment were being analyzed.

Mort Friedman, a spokesman for Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner, said the all-points bulletin was issued Monday for Kevin Masterson, 35, of Lombard, Ill., believed to be visiting a friend near Murray, Ky. — about 400 miles south of Chicago.

Friedman stressed Masterson is wanted only for questioning at this point, in the deaths of seven people who took capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol in the Chicago area between Sept. 29 and Oct. 1.

DeLorean Gives Up Assets

DETROIT (UPI) — Automaker John DeLorean, charged with trying to bankroll a $24 million cocaine deal, basked in the California sun while his attorneys agreed to turn over his sports-car company to another firm.

The settlement was submitted Monday to federal bankruptcy Judge George Woods, who will make a ruling on it Nov. 8 — the same day DeLorean is to be arraigned on the cocaine-dealing charge in Los Angeles.

The out-of-court settlement between the DeLorean Motor Co. and Consolidated International means DMC gave up its battle for the rights to 649 of the expensive, stainless-steel autos to which Consolidated holds title. Consolidated also will take over the distribution rights to the 1,094 autos in Northern Ireland, where the DMC plant is located, as well as DeLorean's parts inventory located in New Jersey and California.

Poison Found In Comtrex

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI) — Federal authorities say rat poison was found in two of 600 bottles of Comtrex cold capsules removed from drug-store shelves but they declined to call the tampering another "copycat" of the Chicago cyanide killings.

State and federal officials ordered samples of the capsules confiscated from every pharmacy in the city, and most were removed voluntarily Monday, after a 45-year-old woman became violently ill last week from taking four capsules that contained the rat poison Warfarin.

Authorities said Monday they had no suspects in the case. The FBI tested the contaminated bottles for fingerprints, but no usable prints were found.

Manson Escape Plot Foiled

YACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Prison officials suspect mass-murderer Charles Manson and three other convicts of plotting an escape by using a hot-air balloon to fly over the walls at the California Medical Facility.

Prison spokesman Don Custard said guards discovered a hacksaw blade, a piece of metal that appeared to be fashioned into a knife, 100 feet of nylon rope and a catalog for ordering a hot-air balloon. The hacksaw blade was found in Manson's cell along with what officials suspect were marijuana and LSD.

Manson, 48, was the notorious head of the "family" of young dropouts who killed actress Sharon Tate and six others in Southern California in 1969.

Supreme Court

Studies Issue Of Prayer In Statehouses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court's examination of prayer in public places moves this term from the classrooms into the legislative chambers.

In a case that could affect at least 21 states and possibly Congress, the high court Monday agreed to examine the Nebraska Legislature's long-term practice of paying a chaplain with tax money for opening its daily sessions with a prayer.

A federal appeals court overturned the state's 18-year use of the same chaplain to give its morning legislative invocation as an unconstitutional entanglement of government and religion.

The court found fault not only with paying a chaplain with public funds, but also with using only one minister for so long and giving the impression of official preference for one religion.

Until January 1981, the Rev. Robert Palmer, an ordained Presbyterian minister, served as the Nebraska Legislature's chaplain, opening each session with a prayer. He was paid $320 for each of the three or four months a year the legislature was in session.

Since the ruling, unpaid ministers or lawmakers have offered the invocation.

Of the states that pay legislative chaplains, not all use the same one for extended periods as Nebraska did. So it is uncertain what effect the Supreme Court's ruling, expected by July, will have nationwide.

Its effect on Congress also will depend on how broadly the justices rule on the constitutionality of state-paid chaplains.

Congress now is being sued by a group of atheists for its payment of $52,750 annual salaries to House and Senate chaplains. That case is pending in a federal appeals court in Washington.

Nebraska's practice was challenged in 1979 by state legislator Ernest Chambers.

The following year, Chief U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom found that praying before each legislative session was all right, but that paying for it with public funds was unconstitutional.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed, saying the prayer practice fell into the "quagmire" of state establishment of religion.

State Attorney General Paul Douglas argues the ruling amounted to a federal court meddling in "a matter of purely internal operations."

Representing Chambers, an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer replied, the lower court "did not question the right of the legislature to offer prayers. It merely held the manner in which the legislature was exercising this option crossed the constitutional barrier."

Other states with similar practices include California, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Vermont, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

Ruling May Slow Nuclear Development

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court has agreed to tackle a crucial question raised by the Three Mile Island nuclear accident — whether people's fears must be weighed before restarting an undamaged unit at the plant.

The justices next year will examine a ruling that for the first time would make the Nuclear Regulatory Commission consider the psychological stress on people — "fears of recurring catastrophe" — before permitting a nuclear plant to operate.

The high court's announcement coincided with release of a safety study for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that says a core meltdown at a nuclear power plant in a major population area could kill more than 100,000 people.

Nuclear power supporters and the government warn the ruling in the Three Mile Island case reaches far beyond the site of the nation's worst nuclear accident at the plant at Middletown, Pa., and could slow or halt the licensing of nuclear plants across the country.

The justices also agreed Monday to examine the last hired, first fired job policy used by most companies and cities during layoffs.

The question of who should be fired first in hard economic times is being raised by the Boston Firefighters Union, which is appealing a ruling allowing the fire department to keep black and Hispanic firemen while laying off whites with more seniority.

In other actions as the court opened the second month of its term, the justices: — Agreed to clarify the rights of suspected criminals during police interrogations.

— Promised to consider whether servicemen may sue their officers for money damages for alleged violations of constitutional rights.

— Accepted for argument a case over illegitimate children's rights to receive Social Security benefits.

Jailed Ex-Policeman May Lose State Certification

By TENI YARBOROUGH
 Herald Staff Writer

A former Lake Mary police lieutenant who pleaded guilty to gun theft in April and is currently serving six-months in the Seminole County jail may lose his certification as a police officer.

According to Seminole County Sheriff John Polk, the state Criminal Justice Standards and Training Commission has found "probable cause" to ask David E. Higginbotham, 35, of 206 Hays Drive, Sanford, to surrender his police credentials. The committee met in a three-day session in Ft. Lauderdale from Oct. 27-29 to consider similar actions concerning officers throughout the state, Polk said.

"We will notify Mr. Higginbotham of the commission's decision and he will then have three options open to him," Polk said. "He can voluntarily give up his certification, ask for an informal hearing before the commission or ask for a formal hearing before a hearing officer. In the latter options, he can present his arguments as to why he feels he should not have his certification as a police officer pulled."

Higginbotham pleaded guilty April 21 in Seminole Circuit Court to stealing a firearm from his police department's evidence locker while serving as evidence custodian. His plea came after prosecutors agreed to drop seven other charges against him, including grand theft, trafficking in stolen property and official misconduct. He was arrested Jan. 8 following a Seminole grand jury indictment on the criminal charges.

On July 1, Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor sentenced Higginbotham to six months in the county jail and five years probation. Higginbotham was also ordered by McGregor to make restitution to the Sanford auction where he reportedly sold the stolen gun; reimburse the city of Lake Mary for any cost which may have resulted from the theft; not to engage in any type of law enforcement work again; and to continue mental health treatments.

Voters To Grade Reagan's Work

United Press International

Ronald Reagan's plan to restore yesterday's prosperity to tomorrow's America is put to a national referendum today in the 1982 congressional elections. If the experts are right, the voters will give the president a low passing grade.

The entire 435-seat House, 33 of 100 Senate seats and 36 governorships are at stake. Most pre-election surveys forecast the Democrats will gain about 20 House seats, two or three in the Senate and at least five governorships.

An outcome of that sort would constitute neither a landslide nor a mandate for anyone. Reagan's Republicans would retain control of the Senate, now 54-46 in their favor, and the Democrats would pad their 243-192 House majority, a healthy margin on paper but subject to heavy defections in the pinch.

The predictions also would indicate more of the bitter battles and close votes that characterized the struggles of a divided Congress over Reagan's programs in the 97th Congress.

The prediction for voter turnout was unusually high for a non-presidential year, 38 percent. That could be a factor; heavy turnouts supposedly favor Democrats.

The weather forecast was for rain in the midsection of the country and the South, with relatively warm temperatures in the East and Far West and cool readings in the Midwest.

While congressional elections often are described as contests over local issues, the 1982 campaign was transformed into a national debate over Reagan's economic policies.

Reagan campaigning throughout the country, pointed to falling consumer prices and interest rates as signs of progress toward restoration of free-enterprise prosperity. And, he said, that same plan would soon provide a permanent solution to rising unemployment.

The Democrats, hitting hard on the highest jobless rates and bankruptcies since the end of the Great Depression, called the Reagan policies "trickle down" economics that favored the rich and only incidentally helped the poor.

There could be some notable firsts in the 1982 results. Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley was making a strong bid to become the nation's first elected black governor and the surveys indicated there was a chance blacks in the House and state legislatures could increase their numbers.

If Democrat Harriet Woods in Missouri and GOP Rep. Millicent Fenwick in New Jersey win, there would be four women in the Senate for the first time. Victories by Democrats Roxanne Conlin in Iowa and Madeline Kunin in Vermont would give the country two women governors for only the second time.

SANFORD MAN SENTENCED

A Sanford man has been sentenced to three years in federal prison after he admitted to forging his father-in-law's Social Security check in April 1980 in Orlando Friday.

David Burg, 404 Satsuma Drive, who pleaded guilty to uttering and forging the $314 check, also was ordered by U.S. District Judge Elizabeth Kovachevich to undergo alcohol and drug abuse counseling while in prison.

Prosecutors filed charges against Burg after he failed to make restitution payments to his father-in-law for the stolen check as agreed upon in a pretrial probation program.

TWO CHILLS—IN A HURT

An Altamonte Springs boy has been hospitalized and a Sanford girl treated for injuries and released after the two were involved in separate automobile accidents Monday.

Joel Morgan, 12, of 730 Maitland Ave., was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Winter Park Memorial Hospital today after he was struck by a car along Maitland Avenue at 8:30 a.m. while making his way to a school bus stop. Morgan is a student at Millweed Middle School in Longwood.

Altamonte Springs police identified the driver of the vehicle involved in the accident as Eva Stewart, 30, of that city, adding that no charges have been filed.

Meanwhile, a 6-year-old Sanford girl was treated for scratches and bruises at Central Florida Regional Hospital Monday after she reportedly ran into a vehicle along Elliott Avenue just south of 13th Street in Sanford at about 2:40 p.m., police said.

Sherranese Smith of 2006 Summerlin Ave. was walking with her sister, Savorian, when the young girl ran out into the roadway and collided with the left front fender of a car driven by Stephen Illeges, 24, of Oviedo, Sanford patrolman George Atkinson said.

"The driver of the car, which was a 1973 Ford Pinto, braked the car and attempted to swerve and avoid the child, but she continued running and hit the car," Atkinson said.

Atkinson said that neither Illeges nor his passenger, Rena Rogers, 27, also of Oviedo, were injured in the incident. No charges were filed.

Officials Battling Measles Outbreak In Dade Schools

MIAMI (UPI) — Health and school officials have told the parents of 29,000 students they have until Monday to prove their children have been vaccinated for measles or they will be ordered to stay home.

Officials are battling to stop a three-week measles outbreak that has left 907 students at 20 Dade County schools ill.

Many of the 97 sick received vaccinations before they were 1 year old, said Dr. Richard A. Morgan, county health director. Researchers discovered recently inoculations given in the first year are not effective.

Baby Sitter's Trial Dec. 14

PERRY (UPI) — Lawyers for baby sitter Christine Falling, indicted on three first-degree murder charges after five children died in her care, were expected to take testimony from witnesses today in preparation for a Dec. 14 trial.

Miss Falling, 19, has pleaded innocent in Taylor County Circuit Court in the July 1981 strangulation or suffocation of infant Jennifer Daniels.

The plump seventh-grade dropout has also been indicted in the deaths of 24-month-old Travis DeWayne Coleman in July and 2-year-old Cassidy "Muffin" Johnson in February 1980.

No charges have been filed in the deaths of two other children kept by Miss Falling in Lakeland in February 1981.

Hey, Man, Vote For Me

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Michael Geison, a Gainesville yoga instructor and marijuana advocate, is not on today's ballot but says he is still running for governor as a write-in candidate.

Geison, who is running on a platform of legalizing marijuana, failed Friday to persuade U.S. District Judge Susan Black in Jacksonville to put his name on the ballot on the grounds that the state's petition process discriminates against independent candidates.

U.S. Marines In Lebanon Patrolling East Beirut

United Press International President Reagan broadened the mission of U.S. peace-keeping forces in Lebanon and authorized the Marines to begin patrolling Christian east Beirut today to back the Lebanese army in an attempt to disarm Phalange militias.

Israeli warplanes flew new reconnaissance missions over Beirut and sections of the tense Bekaa Valley in Eastern Lebanon, where some 70,000 Israelis are faced off against an estimated 40,000 Syrian and Palestinian troops.

In the Lebanese capital, U.S. and Lebanese officers investigated Monday's explosion of a car bomb just 30 yards from a Marine unit. Two Lebanese civilians were wounded, one critically, and a fragment grazed an American soldier.

Chances Are Slim, But Nuclear Accident Could Kill Thousands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 100,000 people could die in a "worst-case" accident involving a reactor core meltdown at a U.S. nuclear power plant, a new government study warns.

The report — done for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission by Sandia National Laboratories — concludes there is a 2 percent chance for such a catastrophe by the turn of the century.

The study also found that a worst-case accident could cause more than $300 billion in damage.

The projections are certain to spark a new round of congressional investigations into the troubled nuclear power industry, since the new estimates of the potential for a major reactor accident are considerably higher than previous research indicated.

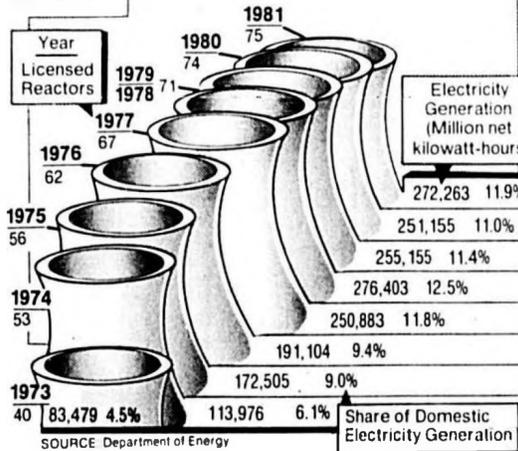

The NRC's most recent previous safety study, completed in 1975, said the worst accident under the worst possible conditions would instantly kill 3,300 people and cause $14 billion in property damage.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass, chairman of a House oversight subcommittee that released the report, said the study "makes it perfectly clear that a nuclear accident could have a devastating impact on our nation."

Markey, a frequent critic of the nuclear industry, charged the financial damage estimates "may actually be wildly understated because they fail to include a number of important factors, such as the cost of health care for the injured or the loss of jobs and loss of entire industries."

The Sandia report said researchers used a sophisticated computer model called CRAC2 to estimate the impact of

Commercial Power Plant Operations 1973-81

Although a significant factor in the national energy supply, nuclear power has not increased its share of the total in recent years. Operating reactors have increased slightly, but output has remained essentially stationary since 1978. Even so, the nuclear power issue has grown in public interest. A new government study warning of a nuclear catastrophe is bound to spark even more debate.

accidents in each of 80 areas surrounding nuclear plants in the United States.

They found that in the event of a core meltdown, the death toll would be highest at the Salem, N.J., nuclear power plant, where 102,000 people could die within a year of an accident.

The greatest physical damage from a worst-case accident would take place at the Indian Point No. 3 reactor, just 25 miles north of New York City in Buchanan, N.Y., the study found. A meltdown there could result in $314 billion in damage.

Rapist Facing Life Imprisonment After Pleading In Seminole

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer
A 23-year-old Orlando man convicted of rape and awaiting sentencing pleaded guilty to another rape in Seminole Circuit Court Monday.

Michael Richard Jensen pleaded guilty to sexual battery, armed robbery and burglary of a 24-year-old Altamonte Springs woman Monday before Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis, Jr.

According to prosecutor Donald Marblestone, Jensen broke into the woman's apartment May 10, sexually assaulted her at knifepoint and stole $50 before fleeing.

Two days prior to that offense, police said Jensen broke into the home of a 33-year-old woman living at the same apartment complex, and raped and robbed her at knifepoint. Both women named Jensen as their assailant after identifying him from a police photograph lineup.

"Jensen has four previous convictions including battery on a police officer, resisting arrest, and two drug-related charges," Marblestone said. "Both judges could sentence him to life for these crimes."

In other court action, two men and a woman are awaiting sentencing following their convictions Friday on charges of armed robbery.

Steven Gale Hallar, 28, of Orlando; Clinton C. Crawley, 29, of Altamonte Springs, and Melch Hudson, 25, of Longwood, were found guilty by a six-member jury which deliberated for about an hour.

Prosecutors said the trio attacked Joseph Cirone, 29, of Orlando, in the parking lot of the Night Train lounge, State Road 436, in Altamonte Springs on July 14.

Cirone testified Thursday that he walked Ms. Hudson to her vehicle and was subsequently attacked by two men, whom he identified as Hallar and Crawley, armed with a knife and baseball bat. Ms. Hudson was also armed with a knife, Cirone said.

The trio robbed Cirone of $8 cash and one of the men hit him in the head with the baseball bat, opening a wound which required five stitches to close.

Chippings At The Icebergs

The award of the Nobel prize in economics to Dr. George Stigler of the University of Chicago could not come at a better time. The prize brings international attention to an economist who has specialized in identifying the unintended ill effects of government regulation on economic activity.

Governments large and small are under pressure to do something about the worldwide recession. The theme of Stigler's work is that governments often do more harm than good by intruding into the marketplace with regulatory programs that presume to be in the public interest.

Over-regulation has been identified as a cause of slow economic growth and declines in productivity — part of the malaise afflicting the U.S. economy and others. It can be an impediment to the recovery which everyone hopes is about to begin.

Stigler's studies are timely because governments may be able to do the most to accelerate recovery by getting out of the way rather than assigning so many referees to the marketplace.

The Chicago professor provided some of the basic research which gave rise to deregulation as a popular political cause in the 1970s and made it an integral part of the Reagan administration's economic program. Although the tax and spending cuts of Reaganomics have received the most attention, the administration is also committed to pressing ahead with regulatory cutbacks that began to emerge as bipartisan goals during the Ford and Carter years.

To Stigler, programs regulating economic activity are like icebergs in the North Atlantic. We see only part of them — usually the part that promises a benefit to consumers, workers, investors or a vaguely defined public interest. What we do not see are some of the unwelcome social and economic effects that go with them.

The minimum wage, for instance, provides a floor for the income of workers — but raises unemployment for teen-agers. Rent controls are enacted for the sake of the poor and elderly — but lead to decline in the condition and supply of housing. Keeping utility rates at an artificially low level is welcomed by customers — but sets the stage for waste and energy shortages.

These cause-and-effect relationships are better understood today because of the work of economists like Stigler. He has stimulated a new dialogue about the true costs and benefits of regulatory programs.

Deregulation is a formidable political challenge for the administration and Congress, even if "getting the government off our backs" is a popular slogan. Regulatory reform often is opposed by special interest groups that refuse to acknowledge the kind of side-effects that Stigler has analyzed, or by industries which have found regulation to be a shield against competition.

The tip of the iceberg in Washington is the $6 billion or so that it costs to staff 57 federal regulatory agencies. That may not be considered a big item. What lurks under the surface is the estimated $100 billion spent by business and industry to comply with federal regulations, some of them superfluous at best and mischievous at the worst.

The economy appears to be poised for recovery, but the rate at which its engine revs up will be affected by how much progress Congress can make in giving the free, competitive marketplace a better chance to function. If the next Congress is not convinced that its action on regulatory reform is important to recovery, the newest Nobel economist can help explain why.

"C'mon, mister, gimme a break! I just ran for political office. Got any idea how much it COSTS to run for political office?"

By TENI YARBOROUGH

If his birthday presents are any indication of what little Scott Myer Leman will be when he grows up, it's doubtful the tot will follow in his dad's footsteps as a law enforcement officer.

Scott was born to Seminole County Sheriff's Capt. Jay Leman and wife, Sandra, at 12:45 a.m. Oct. 13, weighing in at an even seven pounds.

According to the proud papa, Scott was showered with all kinds of gifts and among those were two softball uniforms and a football suit.

"He didn't get a single deputy uniform so I guess he'll take after his mother — she loves softball," the 12-year sheriff's deputy veteran Leman said. "We're just hoping that if he does follow that career that he'll be left-handed. His 7-year-old sister, Tina Michele, is a lefty and if he's a southpaw, too, he can use her left-handed glove. Hand-me-downs don't cost as much as new equipment."

And, speaking of the sheriff's department, Sheriff John Polk was in Ft. Lauderdale for a three-day session of decertification hearings concerning Florida law enforcement officers.

According to sheriff's department officials, no officers from Seminole County were being interviewed in this session, which began Wednesday and concluded Friday, concerning their possible decertification as officers.

If you stopped by the State Attorney's Office Thursday you might have seen secretaries and members of the prosecution persuasion munching on a birthday cake. Cindy Ray, who has been a secretary with the State Attorney's Office for eight years and who is the wife of Seminole-Brevard Chief Assistant State Attorney Chris Ray (currently and temporarily assigned to the Brevard office) celebrated her birthday Thursday.

Silent Mutual Interests

SHELBYVILLE, Ind. (NEA) — Republicans here in Indiana and Democrats in North Carolina have a common bond this year, but the politicians in both states would prefer not to talk — or even think — about their mutual interests.

When the population shifts documented by the 1980 census required Indiana to relinquish one of its 11 seats in the U.S. House of Representatives, Hoosier Republicans seized the opportunity to gerrymander the state in favor of the GOP.

Although Democrats currently hold a slim 6-5 advantage in the state's congressional delegation, Republicans enjoyed control of the governorship and majorities in both houses of the legislature when new congressional district boundaries were drawn last year.

The Republicans thought they had devised a reapportionment plan which would virtually guarantee that the state's new 10-member congressional delegation would be divided 7-3 in favor of the GOP in good political years and no worse than 6-4 in the bad throughout the 1980s.

But they may have to settle for a 5-5 split this year.

In North Carolina, the situation was reversed, with Tarheel Democrats in control of the governorship and holding majorities in both houses of the legislature. They also pursued redistricting with a vengeance to protect — if not enhance — the party's 7-4 advantage within the state's 11-member congressional delegation.

But at least three incumbent House Democrats there are in danger of losing their re-election campaigns. Republican chances for success were strong enough to include North Carolina on President Reagan's pre-election campaign itinerary.

Here in Indiana, only two of the state's six incumbent House Democrats emerged unscathed from the Republican redistricting operation. Two others were thrown into a primary against each other and a third lost so much of his constituency that he abandoned plans to seek re-election and decided instead to run for a Senate seat.

The last of the intended Democratic victims was Rep. Philip R. Sharp, 40, who lost slightly more than half of his old district and was forced to seek re-election to a fifth term in this sprawling 2nd Congressional District, shaped like a bow tie which gave Reagan 60 percent of its votes in 1980.

"The district wants to elect a Republican," says the campaign manager for Sharp's Republican opponent, former Shelbyville Mayor Ralph Van Natta, 52, whose bid for office is considered important enough to attract to the district former President Gerald R. Ford, Vice President George Bush and Republican National Committee Chairman Richard Richards.

The two candidates are waging a prototypical 1982 campaign in an east-central Indiana district stretching to the suburbs of Indianapolis on the west, the Ohio border on the east, Muncie on the north and Columbus on the south.

Sharp is believed to have a slight edge in the race and the Democrats have an outside chance to pick up another Indiana House seat they initially didn't expect to win, in the 8th district which encompasses Evansville and other communities in the state's southwest corner.

Meanwhile, back in North Carolina, Democratic Rep. Ike F. Andrews was facing a tough but winnable contest for re-election to a sixth term — until he was arrested on a charge of (you guessed it) drunk driving.

Offbeat Lobbies Are Everywhere

WASHINGTON — I have a suggestion for American voters today: On your way out the door to vote, take a look around your home.

For just about every item you see — the butter, beer, eggs and milk in your refrigerator, the bread and sugar in the cupboard, the living-room furniture, the fixtures in your kitchen and bathroom, the bikes and mowers on the lawn, the car that you'll drive to the polling place — there is a political action committee that has been trying to influence your vote.

They include the Amalgamated Sugar Co. PAC; Land O'Lakes Inc. PAC; Anheuser-Busch Co. PAC; Dairyman Inc. PAC; Wickes Corporation PAC; American Standard Inc. Good Government Fund; and the Toro Company Employees for Better Government Committee.

Even Hallmark greeting cards and Orkin exterminators have PACs that channel money to congressional candidates they hope will give them a break in the new Congress.

There are now 3,168 political action committees in the United States, and they have contributed more than $80 million to the congressional candidates you'll be assessing

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Morning After Tipsheet

NEW YORK (NEA) — Election day is here, and soon it will be time for the nation's headline writers, TV anchormen and miscellaneous pundits to sum it all up. To assist them in this important task, I have assembled all the necessary working materials and shall set them forth below: Basic concepts, proposed headlines, the works.

By choosing among these, it ought to be possible for the merest hack to make the returns, whatever they are, look like the biggest victory for liberalism since the re-election of Franklin Roosevelt in 1936.

Let us then proceed:

DEMOCRATIC LANDSLIDE — This is the basic headline for use on Wednesday morning, Nov. 3, whatever the actual results may be. Thanks to local complexities and the fall of the dice, the Republicans are bound to lose a slew of governorships; and the Senate probably won't change much, one way or the other. In the House of Representatives, the average loss for the party of an incumbent president in his first off-year elections is about 35 seats, but the Republican National Committee naturally isn't conceding it will lose more than 12 or 15, so anything over the latter figure is arguably describable as a "landslide."

REPUDIATION OF REAGAN — This is just one step, though admittedly a big one, from the basic concept that there has been a Democratic landslide. True, Reagan won't even be on the ballot, and the Republicans who lose congressional seats will, on analysis, turn out to have voted against Reagan on a number of key issues (e.g. the $99 billion tax increase) as well as for him. But nobody can squeeze much cosmic significance out of the downfall of Congressman Vanderschmeck of Missouri; it is big names that make national news, and today's returns will simply have to be interpreted as if they were an up-or-down referendum on Ronald Reagan himself. Since the Republicans will sustain a net loss, it must follow that Reagan was — or would be, if he were on the ballot — rejected. Q.E.D.

END OF CONSERVATIVE COALITION — The net loss of a certain number of Republican seats in the House will set up the contention that control of the House of Representatives has passed from Reagan to Tip O'Neill, ending the reign of the coalition of Republicans and conservative "Boll Weevil" Democrats that has "dominated" that chamber during the past two years. In point of fact, Reagan's influence over the House has fluctuated, depending on the question at issue, and it will continue to fluctuate. Many of the Democrats who replace Republicans in the new Congress will be well to the right of Tip O'Neill themselves — a few may even join the "Boll Weevils." But it will be safe to proclaim the "end of the conservative coalition" anyway. Only time can disprove it.

WILL REAGAN TURN TAIL? — The editorial writers and columnists ought to have a field day with this one. In the teeth of a "Democratic landslide" allegedly interpreted only as the "repudiation of Reagan" himself, will the man panic and turn against his own "failed nostrums"? I suspect we will be hearing a lot about anonymous White House aides who are supposed to be advising Reagan to do precisely that. I also suspect that he will do no such thing — because he doesn't believe his "nostrums" have "failed." He simply believes that real economic cures take time, and cannot be tailored to take full effect in time for the first off-year elections. But that will hardly stop the liberal pundits from speculating.

A ONE-TERM PRESIDENT? — Confronted by a "Democratic landslide" representing a "repudiation" of him personally, with his "coalition control" of the House of Representatives "ended" and his closest advisers begging him to "turn tail" on Reaganomics, isn't it inevitable that Reagan will be (and how the media love this phrase!) a "one-term president"? Fondly they will count over the recent examples: Ford, who was never elected at all, and Carter, who was ousted after a single term. Isn't it plain that poor Reagan will follow in their well-worn tracks?

Plain to liberal journalists perhaps, but don't let them kid you. Sure: the Republicans are going to sustain losses, possibly big ones — the nation is still suffering the after-effects of a major recession, and those who are hurting most will certainly vote Democrat to articulate their pain. But when the upturn is at last visible to everyone, and the American people in 1984 are offered Kennedy or Mondale or John Glenn as the Democrats' alternative to Ronald Reagan, the rush to Reagan will knock you over.

DON GRAFF

Thought And The Reality

It should be good news in a number of quarters, not least the Reagan administration, that corporate contributions to public causes are up sharply.

Last year the total was just short of $3 billion, despite a 4 percent decline in corporate profits.

Unfortunately, there's more to the news on this subject. And that is that corporate foundations, the source of a large part of the giving, expended more on health, education, the arts and other worthy recipients than they banked in grants from their donor companies. More than two-thirds of such foundations ended the year in the red and total reserves dropped by 36 percent.

The figures come from the Conference Board, the New York-based, business-funded economic research organization that surveyed more than 750 major corporate contributors. What they suggest is that while continuing to meet present commitments, this important source of private philanthropic funds may be jeopardizing its future capabilities.

The news could be even worse if the overall economy does not pick up shortly. Prolonged recession, in the words of a Conference Board executive, "could cause a further hemorrhaging in company foundations, which have never been noted for their extensive reserves."

The administration is mentioned above because of its reiterated expectation that private funding should and would cover an increasingly larger part of public social needs as government spending was cut back.

This isn't the first time the Conference Board, which strenuously lobbies its own business constituency to be more giving, has given the problem attention. In an earlier study, it concluded that while corporate contributions could and should be increased, there was no possibility of their compensating for even a major part of the human-services spending reductions projected in Washington.

Taking an even broader look at the problem, Worldwatch Institute, the socially conscious Washington research group, more than agrees, observing that the administration's expectations conflict with the realities of the last decade. If corporate philanthropy is unequal to the job, personal is even more so.

In 1980, 84 percent of a total $47.7 billion spent in philanthropic causes came from individual donors. Impressive as this may appear, it represents only a fraction of federal cutbacks.

Further, administration policies are making it more difficult for private charitable organizations to operate. Many are dependent to some extent on subsidies that are targeted for elimination — $27 billion during 1981-84. Tax cuts benefiting primarily the high end of the income scale give the wealthy less incentive to make tax-exempt donations. Meanwhile, costs, such as for mailings essential to most fund-raising efforts, have gone up sharply.

And on the strictly personal basis, the spirit of voluntarism often advanced by the White House as the heart-warming alternative to impersonal government responsibility for good works is not what it used to be. Polls indicate that only one in three Americans gives even minimal time to church, fraternal, hospital auxiliary and similar traditional activities. And of the minority that does volunteer, only one in 10 contributes seven or more hours a week.

In the business of giving, it may be the thought that counts most between individuals but in the public sector it clearly doesn't count enough.

Citizens, Americans for Good Government, and the Desert Caucus.

— The Armenian National Committee PAC has given $20,250 to five candidates this year, including $10,000 to Gov. Jerry Brown's campaign for the Senate in California.

— Filipino physicians practicing in this country have a PAC that donated a total of $750 to Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., and Rep. Romano Mazzoli, D-Ky.

— PAC for 2, based in Los Banos, Calif., advocates limiting members of Congress to two terms. Strangely, it has been inactive this year, according to the federal election records.

THE ECLECTIC AIRPLANE: The war in Lebanon proved the effectiveness of the Israeli Kfir jet, a hodgepodge of aircraft design the Israelis have been working on since about 1970.

The Kfir, which was supposed to be ready for the 1973 war but never made it into action, is based on a French Mirage airframe and powered by a General Electric J-79 engine, the same one that's used in the F-4 Phantom.

According to a CIA report, "the Kfir can fly at more than twice the speed of sound and can be used either as an interceptor or a ground-attack aircraft." The plane's development was set back for a couple of years while the Israelis reworked it to overcome the damage caused by an East German spy who had infiltrated the Israeli aircraft industry.

In their annoying way, the Israelis didn't tell the United States about their great new warplane. The CIA only learned about the Kfir when an internal Israeli message was intercepted.

One problem with the hot Israeli plane is its hotshot Israeli pilots. According to the CIA, the Israelis have a tendency to fly their planes beyond normal stress limits.

In fact, the month after the Kfir was publicly unveiled in 1975, one of the planes was lost over the Mediterranean when it "reportedly disintegrated while accelerating at high speed." A couple of months later, the air intake of a Kfir was evidently damaged badly by an explosion while the plane was on a high-speed test flight.

The Kfir's components are made and assembled in Israel under U.S. license. It is now a hot export item for Israel.

Favorite Lyman Hosts District Volleyball Play

KARREN NEWMAN
... Greyhounds favored

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

Coach Karren Newman's Lyman Greyhounds assume the favorite's role Wednesday when the District 4A-9 Volleyball actions opens at Lyman High School.

Newman, a Seminole High graduate in her second year as Greyhounds' coach, has turned her program into a powerhouse in a very short time. Lyman was 18-1 for the year with the lone loss being to Oviedo. The 'Hounds were a perfect 16-0 while winning the Five Star Conference and 14-0 discounting 3A Seabreeze.

Prep Volleyball

"We're really looking forward to the district since Seminole beat us last year and that one really hurt," said Newman. The Tribe went on to a fifth-place state finish. Lyman will meet conference doormat Mainland (1-13) Wednesday at 4 p.m. Lake Brantley (6-8) battles DeLand (8-6) at 5:15 p.m. Lake Howell (10-4) tangles with Apopka (4-10) at 6:30 p.m. and Seminole (8-6) takes on Spruce Creek at 7:45 p.m.

The semifinals will be Thursday at 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. while the championship game will be Friday at 7 p.m. The Greyhounds should have an easy path to the final game. They handled Mainland easily during the regular season and also didn't have much trouble with either Lake Brantley or DeLand.

The bottom bracket should turn into a dogfight between Seminole and Lake Howell. The two schools split during the regular season, each winning away from home.

The Tribe also split with Spruce Creek, its first-round opponent, although Seminole coach Beth Corso is quick to point out it wasn't one of her team's better efforts.

"We killed them in the first set," she remembers about the first time the two teams met. "It was so easy all the girls started giggling in the second set. We just lost our composure and ended up losing the game."

In the rematch, Seminole thrashed the Hawks 15-5, 15-10. Seminole will get a boost from senior Trichel Taack who is finally recovered from a broken ankle she suffered earlier this year.

"Trichel is a real good server," said Corso. "Although she's not 100 percent, she will help our serving at certain points in the game."

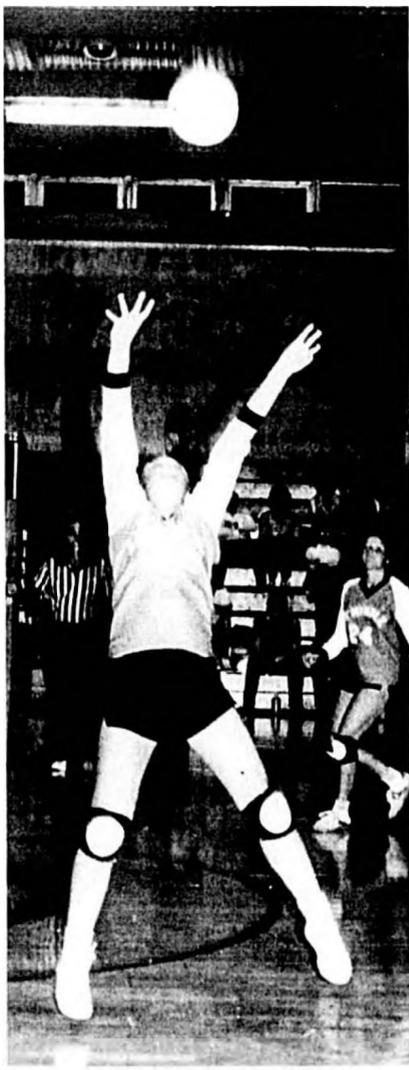

Lake Howell, meanwhile, whipped Apopka twice during the regular season, but Corso said Apopka picked up two big players since then "who might give Howell trouble."

The Silver Hawks are led by Christy Scott's net play along with the setting and serving of Dawn Crawford, Eileen Thiebaut and Beth and Cathy Saunders.

"Lake Howell and us are the only teams which have given Lyman a run for its money," continued Corso. "If someone can upset them, it'll have to be one of us."

Seminole starts Teri Hardy, Lisa Nelson, Arlene Jones, Gene Stallworth, Sara Von Herbulis and Lisa Morse. Tracey Gregory is Seminole's "Super Sub."

Lyman has a great all-around performer in Lynn Lugerling. She is assisted by Pam Stambaugh, Wynne Wycott, Amy Babcock, Carol Rogers and Rhonda Tempesta. Last year's junior varsity most valuable player, Jamie McNamee, and two basketball players — Vikki McMurrer and Kim Lemon — joined the team later in the year to give Lyman excellent depth.

Raines' Home Run Clinches Crown For Cook's Corner

Men's Softball

Cook's Corner clinched the Sanford Men's Softball League championship Monday night by knocking off second place Cardinal Industries, 5-3 at Pinehurst Field. It was the 14th straight win against no losses for Cook's while Cardinal fell three games back at 12-3.

Cardinal jumped to a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning as Kip Grant and John Westbrook both reached on singles. Grant scored on Randy "Bulldog" Merthie's single and Westbrook scored on a Cook's error.

Cardinal increased its lead to 3-0 when Grant reached on an error in the third inning and came around to score on a fielder's choice.

Cook's got on the board and cut Cardinal's lead to 3-2 in the fourth inning on Don Causseaux's two-run homer. Levi Raines' three-run shot in the fifth inning gave Cook's a 5-3 lead and they held on for the victory.

In other games Monday night, the Barn grabbed a share of second place by downing the Pookie Bears, 10-5. The Barn and Cardinal are tied for second with 12-3 records.

Keith Gover's RBI triple, a Pookie Bears error and Tom Szabo's run-scoring single enabled The Barn to take an early 3-0 lead after one half inning of play.

Gary Snell's two-run triple and Bill Marino's RBI groundout tied the score for the Bears at 3-3 in the bottom of the first.

The Barn scored single runs in the second and third and fourth and rallied for three runs in the fifth to take a 9-4 lead.

Gover also ripped a solo homer to up his season total to five.

Express rallied for eight runs in the fourth inning and went on to rout S&H Fabricating 10-1. Express out hit S&H, 11-3.

A solo homer by Alton Jenkins started the Express' rally while Sonny Eubanks, Jamie McClure, Donnie McCoy and Larry Cross also had hits in the inning.

McClure led Express with three hits in three trips to the plate.

11th-Hour Compromise Can't Save Kuhn

Baseball

CHICAGO (UPI) — Neither 11th-hour electioneering by his supporters nor a last-minute compromise plan could save Bowie Kuhn from becoming a lame duck baseball commissioner.

As a result, major-league owners today are in the market for a new commissioner to replace Kuhn when his term expires Aug. 12, 1983. But the owners have made it clear that whoever replaces Kuhn will be serving in a commissioner's job vastly different from the one Kuhn has held the past 14 years.

Kuhn failed to win re-election for a seven-year term Monday when five National League owners — one more than required — voted against him. While the American League went 11-3 in favor of the commissioner, the 7-5 vote by the NL doomed the commissioner.

He agreed to finish his term despite the vote, keeping his promise he would not resign regardless of the owners' action.

"I don't believe in bitterness," Kuhn said after the vote. "I would have to say I was disappointed, but I'm not surprised."

Pro-Kuhn forces, who succeeded in delaying a vote on Kuhn's fate at the August meetings in San Diego, could not hold off a determined group of NL owners.

St. Louis' Gussie Busch, New York Mets' Nelson Doubleday, Houston's John McMullen, Atlanta's Ted Turner and

Cincinnati's William and James Williams resisted last-minute efforts to change their minds.

Not even a compromise — suggested by Chicago Cubs' Board Chairman Andrew McKenna that would have had a financial officer installed to report to Kuhn — could save his job.

Kuhn dismissed any notion he would have been willing to serve in a "watered-down" commissioner's post.

"I would have been relegated to serve in a dual commissionership," Kuhn said. "After 14 years of doing what I thought was right, I could not be a part of anything that would water down the office."

An eight-member executive council will begin the process of selecting a new commissioner. No timetable was set.

California's Buzze Bavasi predicted the owners will have a difficult job selecting a replacement.

"Anyone with self respect wouldn't take this job," Bavasi said. "After what Bowie has done for baseball, I don't know if anyone would want this job."

Texas' Eddie Chiles, who voted against Kuhn, said he had nothing personal against the commissioner but was voting to ensure a change in the structure of the office.

"I've argued that the commissioner's system has outlived its purpose and I want to see a new system out of all this," said Chiles, who was reportedly joined by Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and Seattle's George Argyros in voting against Kuhn in the AL.

Steinbrenner, reached in New York, said of the vote: "These things are always unpleasant and difficult and hurt a little."

Several pro-Kuhn owners were outraged a small group could force out Kuhn.

"It is totally ludicrous," said Chicago White Sox' Eddie Einhorn. "Until we get this system where you don't vote as a whole changed, we won't make any progress at all... and until we do change it, we will be in deep trouble."

Critics of Kuhn had complained he lacked the business acumen for the job. Others charged his views on revenue-sharing for teams and the future of cable television led to his downfall.

But Kuhn defended his record, pointing to his achievements, including a doubling of baseball attendance during his tenure.

"The game hasn't been beer and skittles all the time," Kuhn said. "I would hope the differences would be set aside in light of the record which is commendable and credible."

Feeny's Look Typifies Baseball

CHICAGO (UPI) — A newsman, eager to find out how far along the owners had gotten in their blood-letting of Bowie Kuhn, buttonholed Chub Feeny, the Nation 1 League president, as he was hurrying back into one of the meeting rooms.

Feeny stopped for a moment. His eyes rolled up in their sockets like someone in the process of expiring and a small, low gurgle came from his throat.

Consciously or not, he had presented a perfect portrayal of the sad and diminished state baseball finds itself in today.

Instead of a commissioner it can look to for any direction, it has a lame duck who can only be looked upon as a token figure for nine more months at best. Instead of any real harmony, the 28 owners are now divided in resentment over which of them fought to have Kuhn re-elected and those who sought to dismiss him.

Monday's action in showing Kuhn the door may have the effect of retarding a restructuring of the game.

"All right, now those who wanted him out have had their way," said Ballard Smith, president of the San Diego Padres and a member of baseball's executive council. "There were eight of them in all who voted against him, but not one of them has been able to suggest anybody to take his place. Not one."

Gene Autry, the California Angels' owner, said he had no idea who the next

Milton Richman
UPI Sports Editor

commissioner would be.

"I don't think this was such a smart thing to do," he said.

Buzze Bavasi, the Angels' general manager, listened and agreed with his boss.

"No self-respecting candidate would take the job after all the abuse Bowie took," Bavasi said.

Smith, one of those who worked so hard for Kuhn's reelection, made no effort to conceal how badly he felt. Five National League owners cast their closed ballots against Kuhn and that was enough to keep his contract from being renewed even though the seven others in the league supported him.

In the 14-club American League Kuhn made a good showing. The vote was 11-3 in his favor, but that was academic because the four votes against him in the National League finished him.

After the votes were counted and it was obvious Kuhn was out, Peter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Dan Galbreath of the Pittsburgh Pirates went up to his suite in the Hyatt Regency

O'Hare to give him the news.

He knew it already and also knew who voted against him in the National League. The five were Gussie Busch of St. Louis, Nelson Doubleday of the New York Mets, John McMullen of Houston, Ted Turner of Atlanta and James Williams of Cincinnati.

"It was predictable," Kuhn told O'Malley and Galbreath, who along with Bud Selig asked him to finish his seven-year term which expires Aug. 12. He said he would.

"I'll tell you one thing — he's got guts," offered Gabe Paul of Cleveland. Eddie Chiles, the Texas Rangers' owner, identified himself as one of the three American Leaguers who was against Kuhn's re-election.

"I didn't vote against the man, I voted against the system," he explained. "I think the commissioner's system has outlived its usefulness."

Denying he was bitter about the decision, Kuhn said: "I'm not given to those things. If I told you I was happy, though, I would be misleading you. I can take some pride that after 14 years I received 70 percent of the vote. That's a landslide. It wasn't enough here."

One question put to him by a newsman provoked considerable thought.

"Do you think you've been dealt with fairly?" he was asked.

"That's a hard question," he said. "I'm not sure."

NFL-Strike Tone Turns Pessimistic

NEW YORK (UPI) — The NFL strike entered its 43rd day today with both sides trying to recover from a Monday bargaining session in which nearly nothing went right.

The tone of the talks turned pessimistic Monday after management's latest offer failed to impress the union. The disappointing day ended with the players calling for Commissioner Pete Rozelle and league owners to attend bargaining sessions, the Management Council complaining of the players' disregard of the news blackout imposed by mediator Sam Kagel, and the union's awaited arrival of cable-television entrepreneur Ted Turner, who apparently is interested in resuming a renegade players' league.

The rift between the sides virtually guaranteed the cancellation of a seventh weekend of NFL games and an NFL spokesman said the league is making plans for an 11-game season.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

F.C. United Tornados Sweep To Fifth Straight Victory

F.C. United 160 Tornados (of the under 11 age division) has swept through five straight victories, destroying every opponent in its path. The Tornados have scored 48 goals and given up just two this season. Saturday's game against Southeast Orlando 280 was F.C. United 160's stiffest test of the season as both teams went into the game undefeated. Sean Cagan scored two goals and the Tornado defense played another outstanding game as F.C. United pulled out a 2-1 victory. Corky Orr and Sammy Florito had assists while Donovan Tucker made a few outstanding saves as goalie.

In other action, Brian Bolli scored two goals, the first goals of the season for F.C. United 840 (under 8 age division), as 840 held on for a 2-1 victory over College Park 801.

F.C. United 080 (under 10 age division) got a fine offensive day en route to a 5-1 victory over East Orlando 001.

Joe Casalese scored two goals to lead F.C. United 080, other goals were added by Alex Livesay, Todd Langston and Ignacio Martorell.

Mitchell Karpp, David Garmon, Shannon Wise and Jason Noll were the defensive leaders for F.C. 080.

Holmes Faces 'Tex' Cobb

HOUSTON (UPI) — Unbeaten Larry Holmes will fight fifth-ranked Randy "Tex" Cobb in the Astro dome this month to give the 27-year-old contender an opportunity to win the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion said he did not get as a young boxer.

"I'll be 33 Wednesday. My boxing career is almost at an end and I want to give Cobb an opportunity I didn't have until late in my career," Holmes said Monday, following the bout's announcement.

Promoter Don King, who is calling the fight the "Dual in the Dome," said he chose the Houston site "to bring boxing back to the people and out of the casino atmosphere of Las Vegas."

The fight, which will be televised live by ABC, will be either Nov. 22 or Nov. 28, pending the status of the NFL players' strike at the time. The Houston Oilers have a Monday-night game scheduled the 22nd, but if the strike has not been settled the fight will be held then.

Flames Burn Devils, 6-3

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Calgary Coach Bob Johnson believes his team needs more practice time, but the New Jersey Devils may dispute that claim.

"One thing about this league is you don't get enough preparation time," Johnson said Monday night, after the Flames used a hat trick by Lanny McDonald to down the Devils, 6-3. "We are getting better defensively and keeping their (opponent's) shots down."

Kevin LaVelle added two goals to help Calgary send New Jersey to its sixth straight loss.

"We've lost our confidence," said Devils' forward Bob MacMillan. "We've wanted to play well, but we had some bad passes and things went from bad to worse."

LaVelle scored his first goal at 7:31 of the first period, beating New Jersey goalie Chico Resch from 30 feet. McDonald scored 73 seconds later on a 20-footer.

"If I don't score goals, I won't be on this team too long," said LaVelle. "We knew if we played hard, we would beat them."

Don Lever made it 2-1 with a 30-foot power-play shot, beating goalie Don Edwards at 10:03. Steve Tambellini tied it at 12:34 when he pushed in Garry Howatt's rebound. Mike Kitchen put the Devils ahead, 3-2, at 14:38, placing the puck between Edwards' legs.

McDonald scored again at 8:14 of the second period, tipping in a shot to tie it. But LaVelle scored at 12:06 to put the Flames ahead, rushing the length of the ice. Doug Riseborough put the Flames up 5-3 at 18:31 of the third period after taking a pass from Kent Nilsson. McDonald added his third goal at 13:09 on a 18-footer.

"My goals were the result of a good all-around effort by everyone," McDonald said.

A's Want Boros As Manager

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Oakland A's have received permission from the Montreal Expos to talk with Steve Boros about becoming their manager, UPI learned Monday.

Boros, currently managing the Arcibo club in the Puerto Rican League, has been the Expos' first base coach the past two seasons. The 46-year-old former major-league infielder left his Puerto Rican league team to meet with Oakland officials at an unspecified site.

"We think the world of Steve," said a Montreal spokesman. "He's done some magnificent work for us managing in our system and working with our Montreal club. We certainly are not anxious to lose him, but if he has an opportunity to manage in the big leagues we certainly are not going to try to cheat him out of that kind of opportunity."

Another candidate to replace Billy Martin as A's manager is Jim Fregol, who previously managed California.

SAD KNIGHT

Billy Giovanetti, University of Central Florida linebacker, tries to find some solace in his towel during the Knights' eighth straight setback Saturday night at the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando against West Georgia. Giovanetti, a Seminole County standout at Lyman High during his prep days, had his first off night of the season with just two solo tackles. UCF goes after its first victory Saturday against Carson-Newman at 1:30 p.m. at the Tangerine Bowl.

Young Leads 'Blindbackers' Past Miami

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida State Seminoles linebacker Tommy Young put it simply. He'd rather bust an opposing player than be hit himself.

Twice during Florida State's 24-7 win over Miami Saturday, Coach Bobby Bowden called upon his linebackers to hurl themselves blindly over the line to stop the Hurricanes on crucial fourth and less-than-one situations. Both times it worked.

Young's role in the two plays and his helping ignite a previously unproven Seminole defense won him designation Monday as UPI's Southeast Defense Player of the Week.

Young, a 6-foot, 220-pound senior from Lake City, Fla., was credited with 14 unassisted tackles and seven assists and hauled down one interception, his third of the season.

It was the high-flying theatrics of Young and fellow linebacker Ken Roe, however, that took the fight out of Miami and thrilled a regional television audience.

The Hurricanes were trailing Florida State 10-0 late in the second quarter, but only inches away from FSU's goal line. They called upon tailback Mark Rush to vault into the end zone as he has repeatedly done in his four years at Miami.

Everyone in the Orange Bowl knew it was coming, including Young and Roe. Starting six yards back from the line, they timed their own leaps perfectly. Young and Rush met in a booming crash at the top of the human pyramid and the Hurricanes were held.

Young and Roe took to the air again in the fourth quarter with the Hurricanes driving and facing a fourth and one at the Florida State 48. This time Miami's 250-pound Speedy Neal flung himself into the air only to meet the broadside of Young with Roe also getting in the way. Again, the Hurricanes were held.

Recognizing Miami's historic success inside the 10, Bowden forgot the risk of injuries and had his number one offense and number one defense square off in goal line stands throughout the practice week. Young, for one, proved the worth of that strategy.

A onetime running back plagued by injuries, Young accepted an invitation to try out for linebacker last year thinking it offered his best shot for starting.

In his first game at that position, against Ohio State last season, Young was credited with 18 tackles in Florida State's 37-28 upset win. He's been at home at linebacker since.

"It's more natural," says Young. "to hit somebody than to be hit."

Pittsburgh Back On Top

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Pittsburgh regained the No. 1 ranking in college football today following voting by UPI's Board of Coaches.

The Panthers, 7-0, reclaimed by a wide margin the position they held the first three weeks of the season.

They took over the top spot from Washington, which lost its first game of the year, 43-31, to Stanford Saturday. The Huskies, 7-1, held the No. 1 ranking the past four weeks before tumbling to No. 9 in this week's Top 20.

Pittsburgh, off a 63-14 rout of Louisville, collected 33 first-place votes and 612 points from the 42 coaches on the Board to easily outdistance No. 2 Georgia, 8-0. The Bulldogs moved up one position after receiving one first-place vote and 563 points.

Southern Methodist, 8-0, after walloping Texas A&M, 47-9, moved to No. 3 with five first-place votes and 537 points, followed by No. 4 Arkansas (two first-place votes), 7-0, and No. 5 Nebraska (one first-place vote), 7-1. Arkansas topped Rice, 24-6, and Nebraska routed Kansas, 52-0.

Penn State, 7-1, after crushing Boston College, 52-17, improved one spot to No. 6 while Alabama, 7-1, moved up two notches to No. 7.

Georgia, Florida Gear Up For Big 1

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — The Georgia and Florida football teams are gearing up this week for what both consider their toughest game of the year. The fans are preparing for their biggest party.

The Saturday afternoon contest will be the first major college football game played in Jacksonville's newly renovated Gator Bowl stadium. All 80,000 seats are sold out, and the game is expected to be seen on television over about half the nation.

The Gator Bowl seated only 68,000 before the $13 million expansion project boosted its capacity.

Hotels in downtown Jacksonville and nearby beaches report most rooms booked by fans from the two schools who gather for a weekend of festivities highlighted by the game, billed as the "world's largest cocktail party."

Gator Coach Charley Pell said he expects some unpleasant surprises from the Bulldogs when the Southeastern Conference rivals meet for the 61st time. "Georgia hasn't shown everything it can do yet," Pell said. "This year's team is better than the other two we've faced since I've been at Florida."

"They play wide receivers at tight end, which gives them unbelievable speed at that position," he said. "I think the offensive line is the best they've had dating back to 1976."

Pell said he expects the Bulldogs to pass to their tight ends more on "crossing patterns" and throw to tailback Herschel Walker as well as hand off to him 45 times.

Bulldog Coach Vince Dooley said the game will be Georgia's "supreme test." "There are a lot of questions about our team and certainly most of those questions will be answered in Jacksonville," Dooley said. "Florida has the best personnel of any team in the Southeastern Conference. Certainly, they have the best quarterback in Wayne Peace and the best fullback in James Jones."

Georgia has won the last four meetings between the schools — the last two years by the same score: 26-21. In those two games, Walker rushed for 238 and 183 yards.

Trinity Prep's Adrienne Politowicz pulled into a tie with Lake Brantley's Kathryn Hayward by running a 12:05 two mile Saturday in the Saints invitational.

Politowicz, just a freshman, was second last week on the Seminole County Honor roll with a time of 12:12.

Lake Brantley, with a strong showing in the Five Star Conference Championships last Friday, reclaimed the number one team ranking from Lyman.

The District 4A 9 Tournament will be Saturday morning at DeLand's Airport Course. The first race is at 11 a.m.

Texas Tabs 'Mentally Tough' Rader

ARLINGTON, Texas (UPI) — Doug Rader took one of the least secure jobs in major league baseball Monday, following in the footsteps of some high profile individuals who found the Texas Rangers impossible to turn around.

Rader, bringing with him a reputation for mental toughness and discipline, became the 12th manager in the Rangers' 11-year history. But even if he lasts no longer than some of his predecessors, his tenure should be interesting.

"I think we found a guy who will be our manager for a long time," said Texas General Manager Joe Klein, who has been on the job for only a month. "He (Rader) knows how to get along with people and how to extract the best from them. He is young and thoroughly dedicated."

Baseball

If the 36-year-old Rader does stay around the Rangers for a long time, he will be the first manager to do so. Only one former Texas manager — Pat Corrales — has managed the club for as long as two full seasons. Such notables as Billy Martin and Whitey Herzog did not last that long.

Rader, who could work as a stand-up comic and whose pranks became legend during his playing days with the Houston Astros, admitted the track record of past Rangers managers gives him pause.

Senior Center Sets Open House

The Senior Citizen Multipurpose Center at Secret Lake Park, Casselberry, will hold an open house on Nov. 13, from 2-4 p.m. Everyone interested in the center is invited to help celebrate its first full year of operation.

Edith Nielsen and all the RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program) volunteers and friends of the center are preparing for the affair. Donations of food and money for coffee are being accepted. A list has been posted on the bulletin board for those wishing to help. Pete Klein will bring his music for the festivities.

The center is proud that Leo R. Ware, nominated by Dorothy Posey, center volunteer, was one of two Seminole recipients of the Luella Dirksen Award sponsored by Sea World and Eastern Airlines. Leo was honored by Gov. Bob Graham for his exceptional service, dedication and active participation and his relentless efforts to promote the welfare of senior citizens.

The Federation of Senior Citizens of Seminole County has announced the sixth meal site Wednesday (Nov. 3) at the Lake Mary Fire House. They will be open and serving five days a week, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Any Seminole County resident aged 60 or over will be eligible. For reservations call 831-1631. Donations are accepted. Ray Wesley has been appointed site manager and is looking forward to a very successful operation, he says.

Seminole Community College is accepting registrations for a new term of leisure classes. Among them is a Slim 'N Trim program involving all types of exercise.

For information call Faye Brake at the college, 323-1450 ext. 302.

Both of the Piedrahit women have begun new ventures. Beatriz is studying at Florida Hospital to become an LPN. Being a nurse has always been a life long dream, but raising three children and working full time made the realization of the dream impossible. Beatriz was employed many years at General Electric and when the facility closed, she made the big decision to enroll.

Patricia, her daughter, always wanted to be a lawyer. She graduated from college last year, has applied to several law schools and while awaiting acceptance is spending a year in South America working with her uncle who is an attorney there. Beatriz makes her home in Casselberry.

The American Association of University Women will meet Thursday at 7 p.m. in Burdines' Community Room. Yolanda Emery will introduce Rear Admiral Hartington, commander of Orlando Naval Training Center.

Members Joy Adams and Laurie Linsley are sporting snazzy new tote bags with the AAUW logo. They were given to them when they attended the convention recently in St. Petersburg.

Dede Large of Altamonte Springs and Kathie Snook of Orange City have just joined the chapter.

The Seminole County Public Library system has planned a very interesting evening Nov. 10 at the branch library in the Seminole Plaza at 7:30 p.m.

James Loble, a vice president of the Barnett Bank, will make a presentation on "Estate Planning, Wills and Trusts." After his presentation he will open the floor to questions from the floor. The public is invited.

The American Legion Auxiliary Old Glory Unit 183 is looking forward to their best year yet. They have just installed their officers. They include: Mollie Stuedie, president; Maxine McGrath, vice president; Louise Buffalo, treasurer; Ida Cox, secretary; Linda Buffalo, sergeant-at-arms; Pat Ryan, chaplain; and Nance Russell, historian.

Chiropractic Care Can Help Relieve Tension

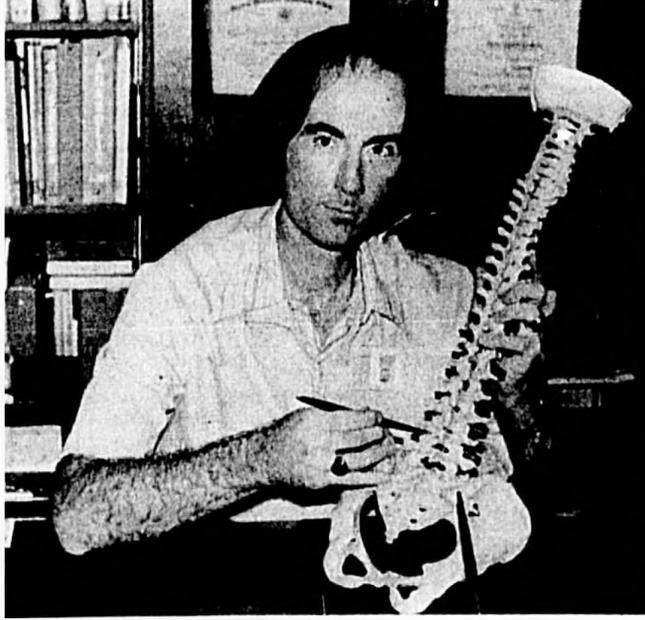

Anxiety, it has been said, is a disease that attacks modern society like a plague. And indeed, as one stops a moment to think about the hustle and bustle of American life, and the almost fever-pitched dash to make appointments, meet deadlines and provide for pressured families in a depressed economy, it is no wonder many Americans suffer from stress.

More than $500 million worth of tranquilizers are sold each year to Americans who seek relief for their jostled nerves. Annual sales of other pharmaceutical preparations, acting on the central nervous system and sense organs, total $1,500,000.

Sound alarming? It should — especially since you and other members of your family may be victims of nervous tension. Watch for these signs:

- Extra loud speaking voice
- high-pitched, fast talking
- Washboard forehead

(Occasional frowning is a normal reaction to a displeasing situation, but it can be a sign of mounting tension)

Dr. Thomas F. Yandell points out spot on back prone to injuries.

- Gaining no satisfaction from life's small joys

- Being chronically tired, with no great physical exertion to account for it

- Insomnia

- Poor posture (when you lie down, check your neck and shoulders for tightness. Does the small of your back relax into the comfort of your bed — or does it stay tense and rigid?)

- A feeling of carrying a heavy load

- A feeling of not having enough time in the day

If these symptoms sound all too familiar, you may be a victim of our pressured society. What should you and your family do if you believe you are suffering from nervous tension?

Tranquilizers often produce adverse side effects such as drowsiness, which can slow reactions and make it dangerous to operate a car or other machinery. Even worse, they are habit-forming.

Likewise, the link between cigarette smoking and cancer, heart disease, emphysema and a host of other serious illnesses has been researched for several years. Clearly, these makeshift remedies for nervous tension create new problems all their own.

For this reason, many conscientious medical doctors are becoming more concerned about the use of drugs and medications.

Concerned patients are turning to natural health care methods. For example, chiropractic, the second largest healing profession in the world, has gained wide acceptance for its conservative non-drug, non-surgical approach to health care.

Chiropractic utilizes a procedure which seeks to restore and/or maintain balanced neuro-musculo-skeletal relationships so that the body can cope with stress more effectively, explains Dr. Thomas F. Yandell. Even a slight misalignment in the vertebrae of the spine makes the body more vulnerable to the development of nervous tension.

Dr. Yandell practice chiropractic family health care at Sanford Pain Control Clinic, at 2017 S. French Ave., Sanford.

For example, said Dr. Yandell, when your neck, back, shoulder, abdominal, pelvic or thigh muscles are taut, they may pull your spine out of normal alignment. The doctor of chiropractic is professionally trained in the removal of a blocking of the spinal dynamics which may trigger psychic stresses, as well as physical and chemical stresses. Such conditions inevitably lead to misalignments of vertebrae compounding nerve tissue insults and consequent aches, pains and functional disturbances.

A human's emotional and physical being are inseparable and interrelated. It has long been recognized that emotional upsets can manifest themselves in physical ways — such as a bad case of jitters causing one to break out in hives, or sublimated anger producing an ulcer. Besides the fact that nervous tension can cause a tightness in muscles which produces a structural imbalance, chiropractic clinical observations verify that the reverse is also true. Structural faults may lead to a low stress threshold resulting in a variety of emotional illnesses.

1) Do all that you can to regulate your environment so that stress factors are more predictable and controllable. If, for example, you drive to work or school every day in traffic that is frequently heavy and slow, you may experiment by changing your route and/or departure time until you find the fastest, most stress-free way to go.

2) Make an attempt to arrange situations so that you have some measure of control over how long you will be exposed to the stress factor.

3) Set priorities. If you constantly feel as though you have too many demands on your time and not enough hours in the day to accomplish all your tasks, re-evaluate what is and isn't really important to you.

4) Talk over your problems. Studies have shown that it may be detrimental to live alone, basically because people who live alone don't have as many opportunities to talk out their problems with someone else. Verbalizing your problems not only gives you an escape valve for pent-up emotions, but helps you clarify the situation so that you can find a solution more easily.

5) Exercise. A regular program of physical fitness-producing activities not only helps you to release tension, but also improves your condition so that your body can best handle stress.

6) Eat properly and regularly. Since stress can lower your resistance to colds, flu and other ailments, make sure to provide your body with the nutritious foods it needs to ward off disease.

7) Allow some time for yourself. You deserve some quiet moments alone, to relax and think things over.

Following these few common sense suggestions are just a few of the practical ways you and members of your family can remain calm, cool and collected in the midst of what can often become a very heated game of life. Also helpful are regular visits to a doctor of chiropractic. Chiropractic procedure is tension-relieving and chiropractic has had remarkable success with problems which involve nervous disorders.

For an appointment or information about acupuncture, weight control, pain control or nutritional counseling call Dr. Yandell at 322-5783.

Man On The Street Beats Expert

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Millions of dollars are spent each year on scientific forecasts of the American economy, but a State University professor says the man on the street often does a better job.

Economics professor Dr. Kaja Lahiri has been studying prominent economists' track records in predicting matters such as the inflation rate. He found — as any might guess — they are not doing so well.

On the other hand, he found that ordinary people have been much closer to the mark in forecasting economic trends.

"We are quite startled by this finding," said Lahiri, who is cooperating on the study with Raymond Fische of Florida State University. The two received a $220,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Lahiri used two long-term surveys of professional economists: a twice-a-year survey conducted since 1947 by Joseph Livingston of the Philadelphia Inquirer, and a quarterly study made since 1964 by the American Statistical Association and National Bureau of Economic Research.

Those surveys — involving about 60 economists each — showed that, on the average, the economists consistently predicted inflation rates 1 to 2 percent below what actually occurred, Lahiri said.

Projections by firms such as Wharton Econometrics and Data Resources Inc. are commissioned by federal, state and local governments to aid in making policy decisions. The study did not consider the accuracy of individual predictions, only how the group did on the average.

Lahiri said miscalculations of 1 to 2 percent in the inflation rate might appear to be a near miss, but actually could be an error of as much as 25 percent.

The low predictions may be affected by "wishful thinking that everything may be all right," Lahiri said.

The professor compared those figures with a random survey of ordinary households conducted every quarter since 1948 by the University of Michigan.

Holiday Open House Set By Flowers By Gaynelle

You are cordially invited by Gaynelle Hendrick to attend the annual holiday open house Nov. 20-25 at Flowers by Gaynelle, 818 S. Sanford Ave., Sanford.

There will be free prizes and refreshments and each lady attending will receive a free carnation. Hours for the open house will be Sunday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Monday through Wednesday, 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Gaynelle and her helpers, Terry Montsinger and Sharon Hunt are busy creating Christmas decorations and arrangements that are guaranteed to get you in the mood for holiday decorating. In addition to the traditional red and green they will have colors to match any decor perfectly.

Plan now to come by and wander through their Christmas wonderland.

Something new has been added at Flowers by Gaynelle. Now in addition to fresh and silk floral arrangements for all occasions all year long, Gaynelle has the popular helium-filled mylar balloons. They bear messages for birthdays, anniversaries, new arrivals ("It's a boy!" or "It's a girl!"), or to tell someone you love them which can be delivered to a home or office.

With Thanksgiving just around the corner, now's the time to order your floral arrangement to give your holidaytable a festive note.

For those with family and friends away from here remember them at Thanksgiving, Christmas or other special occasions by wiring a potted plant, a flower arrangement or planter. Gaynelle's is affiliated with five wire services. This is an easy way to send a gift and let them know you are thinking of them across town or across the country.

If you are planning a wedding, Gaynelle will be glad to help you plan the bouquets, corsages, and flower arrangements for the ceremony and the reception in either fresh or silk flowers. She also has the traditional extras you may need such as candelabra, arches, kneelers, garters and wine glasses.

Gaynelle also specializes in decorations for home and office including green plants, and funeral floral arrangements.

She accepts Master Charge and Visa.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Wednesday, November 3, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY
November 3, 1982
This coming year you could do rather well where joint ventures are concerned, especially if you team up with persons whose objectives are in harmony with yours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
You're very capable today at managing situations which might be a trifle too difficult for others to handle. Your skills may be called for. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
A situation may develop today with someone who has been supportive of you, but who may now need your backup. You won't let this person down.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
In dealing with persons today who are important to your work or career, try to be more friendly than business like. Warm ways will win them over.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Try to think of what you have to do today as being more of a game than a boring challenge. When seriousness exits it lets success enter.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
You might be a trifle slow getting out of the starting blocks today, but you're a good stretch runner. Don't let early obstacles deter you from victory.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Don't be hesitant about complimenting the deserving today if they merit it. Your comments will be greatly appreciated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You're likely to be more fortunate in partnership arrangements today than you will be functioning on your own. This could be especially true in business.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You can get others to do your bidding today by first setting the proper examples. You have what it takes to be a leader, so use it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
There's a chance you might meet someone today who you will find very appealing. If you want the situation to develop, give him or her the right signals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Success is likely today in situations where your motivation is unselfish.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Your charm and wit are two of your greatest assets today in helping you deal with others, and for achieving objectives you establish for yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Conditions could be similar today regarding a commercial situations which you handled successfully in the past.

Ignore The Scales, Consider The Fat

DEAR DR. LAMB— Maybe you can tell me what is wrong. I try to keep my weight at a certain level. I'm taking water pills to keep it down. I don't eat any breakfast or dinner, just salad with creamy bacon dressing. If I eat any amount of food, not much at all for supper, I'll gain two pounds every time. Why?

Then the next day I'll only eat the salad and I'll drop two pounds. So one day I eat only supper and the next day I eat only salad. This has been going on for a few years. What causes me to gain two pounds every time I eat only a little supper?

DEAR READER— Your diet must be a real disaster. And I don't approve of taking diuretics (water pills) to lose weight unless you have a fluid retention problem from some cause other than obesity that your doctor is treating.

You gain those two pounds so quickly because your body is short on water (dehydrated). Those pills and your diet wash out the salt from your body and the normal water content. That will not help you lose an ounce of fat. It just makes you unhealthy — like a wilted plant that needs water.

You need to become more conscious of the fat under your skin and less fixed on the pounds you read on your scales. The whole purpose of a weight-losing diet is to lose fat, not to wash out water and needed minerals.

I wonder how many calories are in the "creamy bacon dressing" you are using. Salads are low-calorie foods only if you don't add a lot of high-calorie salad dressings to them.

Skipping breakfast and a light lunch usually results in eating far too many calories in the evening from excess hunger. You need a plan to follow with a reasonable amount of calories three times a day.

I'm sending you The Health

Letter 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, which you can follow. But throw away the water pills unless you are taking them for a medical reason. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is Reiter's syndrome produced by infectious activity in the body? I would like to know what causes this particular disease, or where it comes from. Is there one cause or many?

DEAR READER — This is a poorly understood disease that causes inflammation of the urethra (urethritis), the eyes (conjunctivitis) and arthritis.

We now believe that it is caused by a susceptible person's reaction to an infectious organism. The susceptibility seems to be on a genetic basis.

Many cases are caused by a reaction to Shigella, a bacterial infection of the intestinal tract, in the food poisoning group.

Some cases are from sexually transmitted disease involving infections with organisms known as Chlamydia and Mycoplasma.

Once the arthritis occurs it may recur spontaneously, apparently without any new infection. The arthritis is treated with the assorted anti-arthritis medicines.

We think Reiter's syndrome occurs much more often in males than females, but that may be simply because it is easier to diagnose urethritis in males.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

There is more than one lesson to be derived from today's deal. At rubber bridge North-South would plan a prudent contract of six clubs, impregnable against any defense. But 100 honors do not count at duplicate tournament bridge, so South cannot be faulted for electing to play the more rewarding, though somewhat dangerous, six-spade contract.

Note also the cue bid of the singleton heart by North, which enabled South to bid the small slam. Once again, at rubber bridge, North would have simply bid six clubs at this point.

When the bidding returned to East he doubled. This was a special lead-directing slam double invented many years ago by the late expert Theodore Lightner. The Lightner double calls for the lead of the first suit bid by dummy or some other unusual lead.

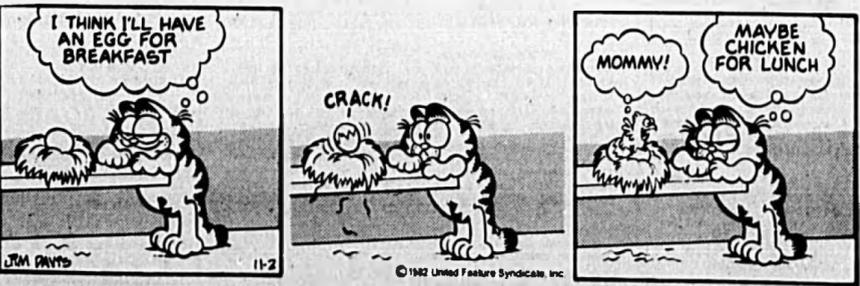

Unfortunately, it is as much abused as used and such was the case here. West knew that after the double he was supposed to lead something other than his partner's suit. Unhappily for his side, he led a diamond.

Peculiarly enough, if West were to make an unusual lead of the queen of hearts, which would hold the trick, he would have no trouble shifting to a club and setting the doubled contract.
