

Buddy Lake To Hurl For Feds Here Sunday

Popular Local Youth May Be Added To Boston Brave Baseball Team Next Season

BY PETER SCHAAL

Buddy Lake, popular Sanford athlete who is another "home town boy who has made good in the big city," will pitch for the Sanford Cleverly entry in the Central Florida Baseball League here next Sunday afternoon.

He will face the strong Leesburg Islanders who now are making a determined bid for the second half pennant, and the right to meet the Deland Kew in a post-season series.

He may be opposed on the mound by Emil Yde, Leesburg manager and former National League and American Association star.

No matter whom he faces, Central Florida fans may expect to see a jam-up ball game in which a hustling Sanford team will be fighting from the first to put a trip in the Islander pennant aspirations.

Lake, just returned from his third season with the Harrisburg team in the N. Y. Penn. League, is in perfect physical condition. Strong and sturdy, the popular and clean-cut young pitcher now is a 170 pound man whose career to date finds him being considered seriously for an appearance in the National League next season.

Lake may be with the Boston Braves next year, it was learned today. A protege of Sid Rive of Sanford, Lake was called to the attention of Boston officials at the end of the 1932 season in Sanford. He worked out with the Braves in the spring of 1933, later being sent to Harrisburg where he has been seasoning since.

Before leaving for Sanford last week, he was advised that he was the choice of Boston officials as the player they would select from the Harrisburg side this year. Although he has not been advised officially of this offer from Boston, he is awaiting an announcement at any time.

The youngster has just concluded an active and successful season in which he appeared in about 65 games as a pitcher, outfielder or pinch batter. He pitched in probably 15 games, and he started and finished 11 games, nine of which he won.

Up until 10 days ago his season's record was 14 wins and eight defeats with a tall end ball club. Because officials of the club sold and traded players and had to use semi-pro players in their stead during the last 10 days of the season, the club finally was "shot" and as a result, Lake, called on to pitch in seven of the last 10 days, dropped five straight to give him a season's average of 14 wins and 12 defeats.

Except for these games, he has three year record with Harrisburg would have been 25 victories and 35 defeats. In his first year he won only four and lost 13 games. Last year he won seven and lost four. His three year average is 25 wins and 30 defeats.

Lake had been used up until the second half of this year mainly in relief roles. However, Manager Art Shires decided that the youngster was too good to be used only in the latter stages of games, so he gave him plenty of opportunity to start and finish.

His record of nine victories in 41 starts is ample proof of his ability, for his opponents were, in the majority, dangerous hitters, most of them seasoned veterans.

Buddy has the distinction of being one of the pitchers who pitched Wilkesbarre out of the championship series this year. Wilkesbarre was leading the league by two games when the team came to Harrisburg, near the end of the first half of the year. Buddy whipped them 1 to 0 in the first game of a three game series which was won by Harrisburg and, as a result, Wilkesbarre was in the lead and lost the first half pennant.

Again, just a few weeks ago, Wilkesbarre came to Harrisburg favored to take the second half pennant. Buddy whipped the league leaders 10 to 0 with five hits in the opening game and came back the next day in a relief role to beat them again. Wilkesbarre then was knocked out of the series a second time.

Buddy claims that Manager Art Shires, the "bad boy" of the big league, is a few seasons ago, a "right guy" and one of the best men he has ever played under. Rough and ready, Shires is described as being a most capable manager and leader of men. Right baseball is a success at far as Buddy is concerned. He finds that it does not affect the average batter's ability nor does it hurt the pitcher, physically or otherwise. "Night baseball is more agreeable," he said. "You don't get so warm and you aren't as uncomfortable as under a bright sun."

Buddy will accompany the Feds to Leesburg tomorrow afternoon to watch them perform in a play-off of a game postponed Tuesday week.

The Feds were at Municipal Park this afternoon meeting a Deland team which is riddled with injuries. Jo Duvernack is out for the season with a twisted knee. Bill Lutz was spiked and badly wounded at Cooca Tuesday. Win Moseley has a "Charley horse" which finds him in painful condition.

Manager Bill Page today appealed to Leesburg and Cooca officials to give him permission to secure another shortstop and to use Al Lutz in the post-season series.

Cooca officials announced that they will honor Jake Baker next Sunday in Cooca where the big fellow will be handed a purse as a mark of appreciation for his season's work.

Deck Harden also is to be honored here Sunday when friends will present him with a gift in appreciation of his work with the tall-end Feds.

"This order is for workers from Hillsborough county only, and no one from any other place will be eligible or considered. They are advised not to go in the expense of coming here to apply from any other county."

Other workers have been enrolled from counties through which the canal will traverse and other orders are being issued for workers from other counties. At least one man from Hillsborough and elsewhere will not be eligible.

sent out by Capt. Marvin H. Lewis of the re-employment service, who yesterday made arrangements to move from Gainesville here.

Diverse activities of building Camp Franklin D. Roosevelt into a little city went rapidly ahead. Close to a thousand men were on the job. But, because of a short age of material and the spreading of the work, no work was done at the camp last night. Temporarily the four-day shifts will be discontinued.

At the employment office, there was a call for carpenters and masons. Bricklayers and masonry bricklayers. Capt. Lewis said that a few electricians would be needed today.

Col. Somersell knew all the answers to the questions put by the Tampa reporter.

"Would there be enough fresh water to fill the canal up to sea level?" he was asked, the question alluding that the canal would be filled with salt water which would spread over the state. This would, replied the Colonel.

Asked about the alleged possibility of "serious damage" to underground waters of the state, the engineer said, "I am reasonably convinced we are rich when we say there will be no such damage. However, we will continue to watch that we and everybody else will be absolutely assured the water supply will be carried on steadily as usual work progresses."

Expert geologists, Sidney Page and Malcolm Plimic, are coming here in a few days to begin work, he continued. Mr. Page, who "knows more about the waters of Florida than any other man," and who was on the President's special board of review that studied the canal question, has had extensive experience in Alaska, South America, Asia and Europe.

Supreme Court To Study Reircuiting Act Now Protested

TALLAHASSEE, Sept. 12.—(AP)—The 1935 judicial re-circuiting act was laid before the Supreme Court Wednesday for determination whether it passed the legislature in a constitutional manner and whether it is now a valid law.

On one side stood the state, through Attorney General Landis, contending the act met every constitutional requirement, and should be upheld.

On the other side stood U. O. Thompson of Miami and Paul C. Albritton of Sarasota, whose offices as circuit judges were abolished by the act. Albritton is answering the state's demand that they show authority for their efforts to continue in office. One was by Albritton that members of the Legislature had forfeited their offices by accepting lucrative offices or appointments under the state or federal government.

Albritton did not present any list of legislators who had accepted such employment.

The court took the case under consideration.

OMNIPOTENT CARE: — The

 and thy coming in from this time

 Psalm 121:8.

 axe to grind generally has a dull axe.

The controversy between Mr.
 Ladd and Mr. Hopkins seems to be whether we shall have work relief, or relief work.

We have a feeling that whatever all concessions there may be in Ethiopia they will sooner or later be demanded to the Mussolini Oil

If these pragmatists keep on in their wild-eyed assertions, they will have fired down a locomotive before they get through with it.

Some business men take the position they don't want to catch their breath if they are going to have to get back in the ring again with FIVE when they do.

The Republicans are trying to the cabinet he would have selected had he lived and been elected presi-have been appointed secretary of named director of the budget.

They Ladd's assertion, if new an unusually brilliant eye, eye and

 and who was admitted and fitted by specialists to have been solely his

 he cannot help but admire a man

The Only Chance

When Sir Samuel Hoare notified the world, and particularly the Italian nation, that Britain stands unequivocally for collective maintenance of the covenant of the League of Nations and especially for "steady, collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression," he puts Mussolini on notice that this Ethiopian adventure will involve Italy in a war against the rest of the League nations, or else England will withdraw from the League.

Sir Samuel meant very clearly that England will not go to war alone in order to prevent Italy from carrying out her intentions in Africa; England must have the support of the other nations. Subsequent events have proved that all three of the Scandinavian countries, Belgium, and Russia will support England. France has not spoken clearly yet, but there can be little doubt what she will do. Little Entente, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, and Rumania, will go with their ally, France.

In other words, it appears likely that the principal nations of the world will support the position that England has taken. That position, it seems to us, is the only one which, by any stretch of the imagination, can be relied upon to prevent future wars. It is the position which Woodrow Wilson took in presenting his "fourteen points." It is the ideal upon which the League of Nations was founded and it was the only thing of value which the United States got out of the World War. . . . to end wars.

In effect it was simply this: that all nations agree to come to the rescue of any nation which might be attacked by another nation. It was simply the application of a principle, which has long governed our domestic lives, to international relationships. If a bully on a street corner jumps on a little fellow, the law, which is simply all the rest of the people acting collectively, comes to the aid of the little fellow and puts the bully in jail.

That is what the League of Nations is trying to do. The leading statesmen of the world had come to the conclusion after the last war that there never would be a time when some government would not turn bully, when some group of people in an effort to further their own selfish interests would not resort to the methods of highwaymen in order to increase their national wealth, plundering and pillaging weaker nations. It was agreed that whenever such a thing occurred again, the law-abiding nations would unite to prevent it.

Friends of the Italian attitude make much capital that England did the same thing to the Boers in South Africa that Italy now proposes to do to the Ethiopians. They point out that the people of the United States pushed the Indians back and conquered America, and that France seized Morocco and Algeria. Such charges, of course, are true. England did conquer the Boers and seize South Africa, but that was when this method of expansion was looked upon as perfectly legitimate, that was before any agreement ever existed between nations not to wage war of aggression, that was before wars were outlawed as instruments of international policy. At the Versailles conference the nations of the world, Italy included, agreed that warfare was wrong and that conflicting interests of the world's peoples should be settled by peaceful means.

If civilized nations ever make any progress toward solving the world's problems, it is by recognizing that some form of collective action is necessary against those who have no respect for law and order. It was when people roamed that world and every man did a little unto himself, stealing, killing, taking whatever he wanted for himself without regard for the rights of others. That time fortunately has, to a large extent, passed, and people are governed in their relationships with each other by laws which they fear and obey.

It remains to be seen whether civilization has yet reached that stage when large groups of people, nations can be similarly controlled and made to respect the laws of nations and the rights of others.

Be Careful

With automobile country roads reopening Monday, caution days come to an end for hundreds of youngsters who will look forward cheerfully to another eight or nine months of renewed opportunities to develop "muscles" mentally and physically. No longer do boys and girls regard this season of the year as they did when James Whitcomb Riley told how they "struggled their weary way to school." Nowdays they are glad enough to see and they ride in buses.

And this brings us to the point which we hope to make clear to every one. Thousands upon thousands of children will be carried by buses thousands upon thousands of miles in this state during the next few months. Millions of children throughout the whole country will be daily transferred back and forth from their homes to their schools. The lives of these children are entrusted utterly and completely to the care of bus drivers.

It is not necessary for us to recall the dreadful tragedies which occurred last year, and the year before as one bus driver or another failed to stop at a railroad crossing and was hit by a train, or as he drove too fast on a slippery road, and turned over rounding a bend. The mental picture of those dead and mutilated children, the cries of anguished parents are still too vivid in the minds of most of us. Two of these ghastly accidents occurred much too close to Sanford for the comfort and peace of mind of the parents of school children in this locality.

But it does no good for a bus driver to decide to be careful after he has crashed into a train. And it does no good for us to issue a warning after an accident has occurred. The time to be put on our guard, and the time to take cognizance of such dangers as exist on the highways is before it is too late to save scores of lives of innocent little children. And so we say, "Be careful."

There literally is no excuse for a bus driver to have an accident. He simply should make absolutely certain that upon occurs. He should not drive upon a railroad track until he knows beyond all question of doubt that the track is clear. He should not take his bus out in the morning until he is positive that it is in good mechanical condition, that its tires are safe, and that its steering gear and axles will stand any strain to which they may be put.

In short, he should be prepared to shoulder the entire responsibility in case an accident does occur.

FLORIDA SHIP CANAL

While the steamship Doria, hurricane-driven upon the Florida Keys, was being battered by wind and waves last Tuesday, President Roosevelt allotted $5,000,000 to the Army Engineer Corps for preliminary construction work on the Florida ship canal. That project has been under consideration a long time. Ardently advocated and strongly opposed even by Florida themselves and the subject of disagreement between federal boards, the outcome of the debate over it remained more or less uncertain until Mr. Roosevelt announced the preliminary work on the country was thrilled by news of the hurricane sweeping over the keys and of the Doria's perilous entrapment. Whether that the Atlantic to Panama, then the Chesapeake and Whiteoceans to the Gulf—will be tied into a continuous channel deep enough and wide enough to serve the largest ocean-going vessel plying in the Gulf. Estimates of the canal's total cost vary so widely that their "approximate" exceeds $100,000,000. Unofficial reports from Washington indicate that the project was anxiously studied by

WASHINGTON, D. C.

"If the President will consent to the consideration of his name for re-nomination, he will have the delegation from Florida with-out-talking," said Governor Park Trammell, of Florida, at the Italigh. "The President is very strong among the people of Florida, and he has made the party strong all over the country. There is no difference of opinion among the people as to the President's policy as it relates to the European nations."

Jacksville will be strictly in the hands of the newspaper men October 13, 14 and 15 when a joint meeting of the Florida East Coast Press Association, the Lake Region Press Association, and the South Florida Press Association, and the recently organized West Florida Press Association, will be held here. Brownsville, Texas.—One American trooper was killed and two were wounded, probably fatally, when Mexican bandits, estimated to number forty, attacked a small military patrol guarding a pumping station several miles up the Rio Grande just before daylight this morning. The Mexicans are believed to have retreated to Mexico when they made their camp. Other casualties were reported and rushed to the state hospital arrived too late to be of assistance.

Mrs. R. J. Holly and children have arrived home from Daytona Beach where they spent several weeks at the Daytona Beach Hotel, one of the best resorts in the state. The Daytona Beach Hotel can be recommended to anyone contemplating a stay at the beach as being all that could be desired in the way of a hotel.

Mrs. D. L. Thresher and daughter, Mary, have returned from an extended visit to New York, Philadelphia and other points in the northeast.

the President, who felt that this should be a "self-liquidating" project.

Of equal or perhaps even more vital importance was the contention, passed by numerous Florida committees, that the digging of a sea-level canal across the state, by permitting the infiltration of salt into the subterranean fresh-water courses, might seriously affect their water supply. Assurances are given that this possibility, about which two federal boards have differed will be given immediate and thorough study by the engineers.

Satisfactory solution of these major problems should satisfy the nation in support of what is said to be "the largest single water-way project ever undertaken on the United States mainland." Such a canal would shorten the ocean journey from New Orleans to New York, for example, by from one to two and a half days, with corresponding savings in transportation costs. Its contribution to the safety of shipping and lives is incalculable, but its lowest estimate should be great enough to be reckoned a major argument for the undertaking. Under direction of the army engineers, construction costs should be held to the lowest practicable level. President Roosevelt's reported desire to make this great enterprise a "self-liquidating project" is shared by his countrymen and will, it is hoped, be made one of the prime objectives of the engineers assigned to its charge.
