Red Cross Chapter Needs Volunteers

The Seminole County Chapter of the American Red Cross held its monthly meeting Thursday at Red Cross Headquarters on First Street with Mrs. J. I. Woodruff presiding. Mrs. J. I. Woodruff, Red Cross Com. representative, was present and explained the relation of the Red Cross to the Red Cross chapter and the Red Cross chapter.

Reports on sewing and home service were given by Mrs. Roy Pills and Mrs. H. R. Lewis, respectively. Mrs. James C. Wilson gave the report of Red Cross activities for Orlando and Mrs. J. A. Redpath, Mrs. R. L. Waters and Mrs. J. H. Henderson reported on sewing and surgical dressings for Ocala.

Another appeal for volunteers to help with the surgical dressings in Sanford was made. The rooms where the work is done are open from 10:00 until 5:00 P. M. Mrs. H. B. Pope is chairman.

Seminole County has just received her quota for the War Fund Drive which is to be held through the month of March with Mr. L. F. Boyle as chairman. The quota is $4500.

The chapter thanked each person who has helped with the Red Cross kit bags and announced that 140 kit bags have been filled and forwarded to proper destinations.

Commenting upon probable reasons for recent recall by EPA of all fuel oil coupons for homes other than private dwellings, and of forms 1101 from out-going boards in order that processing of these may take place, Mr. Peterson stated that it was recently reported on one day New York City had only enough fuel oil on hand to last one day.

In regard to tire recalls, Mr. Peterson stated that the board is making every effort to approve these for owners of cars, but also stated that they were limited in this by a quota set by the government.

Referring to the coming point system of food rationing, Mr. Peterson stated that this method will assure fair distribution so that everyone may have their share. By this method coupons of different point value may be used to designate each group of foods. Straight rationing of each item, such as bean flakes, for example, would be impractical for not everyone cares for bean flakes, and for this reason to allot an equal portion of these to everyone would not work out. However, by the grouping plan, a person can select the food or cereal he likes, and the points on the coupons will take care of different price ranges.

At the time of registration for the new books, it will be necessary for applicants to bring their War Ration Book Number and (sugar coupons) and present them before they can get the new book.

Texas U. Player Seeks Letters In Four Major Sports

AP Features
AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 19. — Tall Frank Guess, a blond 180-pounder, is going to be a busy young man for the next four or five months as he seeks letters in three major sports at the University of Texas.

He probably would have made it four but freshmen didn't become eligible for the varsity in the Southwest Conference until after the regular football season. Guess did get to play in the Cotton Bowl game, and if what he did was a fair sample, there's little doubt that he would have made his numeral on the gridiron.

The Army may prevent the university from having its first four-letterman in history.

The 18-year-old Guess, a physical education major, is in the Army Enlisted Reserve and will probably be called to the service this Spring. He may go before completing basketball, baseball and track.

Frank is considered by Freshman Coach Clyde Littlefield as the best football prospect at Texas since the days of Harrison Stafford. For those who may not have heard of Stafford, well, this fellow was the greatest blocker ever to bounce a would-be tackle in the Southwest Conference. Guess already is a mighty punter and in addition can pass well, and is a shifty runner. His cut-back is something to see.

Littlefield, who has been watching athletes come and go at Texas for 23 years, compares Guess to some of the best men he ever coached, including Frank's hometown hero, Stafford. Both of them are products of Wharton, Tex.

"He's a fine boy to coach," Littlefield declared. "He reminds you of Bohn Hilliard (Texas' great halfback of the early thirties) the way he listens to what you have to tell him."

Guess already is out for the varsity basketball team and has been impressive with his ball-handling. He plays guards.

The next big question after basketball will be whether he'll be allowed to participate in both track and baseball, as he wishes.

These sports overlap and it takes a hard worker to stand up under both training programs.

If he does try for baseball, it will be as an outfielder. He was a snail-pot player at Wharton and attended the St. Louis Cardinal school at Houston when 14. He hits either from right or left, admits his left-handed hitting is more consistent but that he cuts harder from the right.

As a track man he is a jumper, and also throws the javelin and discus in high school, he reached 4 feet 1 1/2 inches in the high jump.

On The Spot

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. — Some of our baseball players are going to be exposed to higher learning this Spring. At one time this would have been cause for fretting, but no longer. Most of them have already caught education to a more or less degree.

Besides, they're just "passing through" these colleges. The Boston Red Sox are hooked at Tufts College, the Phila at Swarthmore, and the Yankees at Asbury Park, N. J., high school. Cincinnati and Indianapolis are considering Indiana University, and Brooklyn hopes to use the Yale cage.

Such a happenstance isn't as serious as it would have been in the days of Cap Anson or John McGraw. In fact, it wouldn't have happened then. The universities would have balked, but quick. For in its early days, baseball was a rosy sport played largely by rowdies. Players were not permitted in the better hotels and respectable citizens probably lost caste if they were seen gabbling with performers. Colleges were definitely out of bounds for ball players.

The picture has changed in the last decade or so. Perhaps 50 percent of today's major leaguers are college men. And baseball is big business. Today's players are in baseball because they can earn a better living there than in any other occupation. Big money attracts them more than their love of the game. Some use baseball as a means to accumulate funds to stake them to a start in a profession.

Probably the best educated players baseball ever boasted was Moe Berg, the Red Sox catcher. Moe had degrees from several universities, including a foreign institution, was a lawyer and could speak seven languages, including Sanskrit. Monte Weaver, who pitched for Washington some years ago, was a university professor. Lou Gehrig had a degree from Columbia. Joe Gordon, last year's most valuable player in the American league, studied at the University of Oregon.

While the ball clubs won't require a helping hand from the professor of Greek or economics, they might well borrow the services of the coaches at the various colleges. Here are some suggestions:

1. The track coaches could be used to teach slowfoots to get off to a racing start, toward first base, or to employ a vim in their trots around the field while conditioning their legs. (Brooklyn hired Percy Beard, the crack sprinter and hurdler, one Spring to add speed to its base runners.)
2. The physical education director could supervise gymnasiums or setting up exercises (as the late Artie McGovern did for the Dodgers two years ago).
3. Football coaches might teach players the body block or the stiff arm to make them more efficient in bringing in second base and breaking up attempted double play peps.
4. Basketball coaches might demonstrate tricky pivots to enable players to elude their pursuers on run downs between bases.
5. Elocution tutors could improve the players' delivery of language and give them more poise in their discussions with arbiters.

Of course, I will readily take bets that none of the major league managers will avail themselves of these suggestions. However, there's no harm done. This advice didn't cost them anything.

Kentucky Derby Will Be Run As Usual This Year

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 19. (AP)—The Sixty-ninth Kentucky Derby will be run here May 1 and the winner will get a major part of the usual $75,000 purse, a gold cup and the traditional wreath of roses but the crowd likely will be made up of street-car riding residents of this area.

Col. Matt J. Winn, the Derby impresario at Churchill Downs, said yesterday "unless the government bans horse racing, which is quite unlikely, the Derby will be run on the scheduled date, even if only two horses go to the post and even if the crowd does not exceed a half dozen persons."

The crowd undoubtedly will be affected by such war-time restrictions as gasoline rationing, curtailment of civilian travel on trains and planes and the ban against use of taxis and extra buses to transport fans to sports events. However, Louisville and its neighboring communities in Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio have a population well in excess of 500,000 and most everybody in this section usually sees the Derby if he can make it.

Japanese Reported To Be Facing Bad Shortage Of Ships

Allied Vessels Destroyed At Least 445 Enemy Naval Merchant Ships

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. (AP)—Aside from the hard going in New Guinea, in Guadalcanal and in Burma, Japan is reported facing serious shortage of ships.

Slashing steadily away at Japan's vital and long-extended supply lines, Allied submarines and warships and planes have destroyed at least 445 Japanese naval and merchant ships, and reports from Axis sources indicate the Japanese are facing a serious shipping shortage.

On another side, an official spokesman here and in London Tuesday emphasized the gravity of Allied ship losses to Axis raiders which have sunk at least 627 United Nations and neutral merchantmen in western Atlantic waters since America entered the war.

A United States Navy Department spokesman and British deputy prime minister, Clement E. Attlee, both said the submarine menace is far from licked and that complex anti-submarine defenses are increasingly necessary.

An unofficial United Press compilation of western Atlantic sinkings reached 827 with Navy disclosure that two more British ships were blasted to bottom last month in the South Atlantic—the favorite Axis hunting ground in recent months.

The Navy spokesman said anything possible is being done to cut losses but as things stand "we're not winning the battle of transportation" and Axis raiders are "going to town" off the South American coast.

He said the convoy system employed along the Atlantic seaboard and in the Gulf and Caribbean has forced the merchant fleet to move southward but that such operations "take more ships than we can muster."

Ship-shipping lanes are long and many, he said, "while our ships are not enough."

Even convoys are vulnerable, he said, and many cargo ships still are "knocked out" and the guns of protecting escort vessels.

He said if the Allies are able to "stymie" the raiders in the South Atlantic as effectively as we have from Canada to Trinidad, then we'll start winning the battle of transportation. As it stands now, we are not.

Attlee, in a House of Commons speech, described the U-boat menace as of the first magnitude and said there unfortunately is "no short, simple way of defeating it."

Selective Service To Keep Men On Farms

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—The Selective Service Bureau of the War Relocation Commission last night announced a far-reaching liberalization of agricultural deferment requirements to keep workers on the farms.

Henceforth local draft boards will be guided by "new criteria" which include liberalized application of the "war unit" production standard and adds to the list of essential crops for which farm workers may be deferred.

A "unit," for example, is one acre, or 30 head of cattle, or an acre of hops, or 20 acres of wheat—products deemed essential in the war food program.

Glendale near farmers—to win deferment—have been required to produce 18 units. Under the new plan, a few as little as five are required.

Fruit Packing Plants Essential Fuel Users

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—Fruit packing plants are being processed industries have been ruled essential users of petroleum products by the Petroleum Administration, Representative Dies said today.

The representative said he had learned that additional allocations of kerosene "oil" had all already been used by the Government in Florida, following a recent protest by essential industries that their supplies had been cut too heavily.

Kiwians Meet To Celebrate Club's Founding

"Whistling Willie" Is Presented Deeds To Home By Spencer

Commemoration of the founding of Kiwanis observed today by Kiwanians at their luncheon at the Hotel Mayfair was featured by three outstanding talks. An outline of present social and economic problems confronting this section by Mayor Edward Higgins, a talk on spiritual idealism of Kiwanis by Capt. F. W. Lawson, and a presentation talk by C. W. Spenser, before handing to "Whistling Willie" Williams negro entrepreneur, tax receipts, cancelled checks and clear title to his home, made possible by gifts of Mayor Ed Higgins and personnel of the Florida Exhibit, and donations of Sanford citizens in response to a campaign initiated by Mr. Spenser, and sponsored by the Herald.

Introducing Mayor Higgins, Charles E. reported the assistance of Mayor Higgins, Ed Higgins, the Sanford Naval Air Station that Sanford was the friendliest town in Florida.

"I think the friendliness of Sanford is not unappreciated," said Mayor Higgins, "and with the coming of the Navy here, we have had a great opportunity to demonstrate our friendliness en masse."

With this coming and going at the rate of 200 or more a month, we must remember that the impression that we leave with those men going to be a most lasting one and it is an advantage to our town that we are doing this. In their own way, they carry in their own way a reputation of Sanford," he added.

Spencer said that the society men represent a cross section of humanity, as characteristic as that represented by the law, which have in a 12 block area in the town of Sanford, he said that he was grateful that in connection with the Navy men there had been no trouble from the moral point of view. He said that he was advised by business men to buy substitutes for their goods and that he had that in mind for the present edition of The Herald will be distributed free to men of the Air Station and that for those who were going to school in the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce.

Capt. F. W. Lawson in his talk emphasized the spiritual idealism of Kiwanis, and reviewing the role of the organization since its founding, stressed the value of moral development of the individual members in adhering to these principles. He told of the spiritual value of the individual giving, stating that when people are obedient to him in trouble, "A Kiwanian never passes by on the other side of the street."

Mr. Lawson drew attention to the results of Kiwanian donations, citing cases of club feet straightening, and of impaired eyesight of persons aided by Kiwanis sponsored treatment, and told of the joy brought to many by club donations at Christmas time.

Spenser, in his talk on handling the deeds and papers to "Whistling Willie" giving him clear title to his home, stated that he had here had forsaken the City Commission to agree to lower Willie's tax debt to $100. Earl Brown agreed to cancel a mortgage he had on his home also raise $50 for taxes if we in Sanford could raise a like amount, and Roland Lee agreed to help, and give the movement publicity in The Herald, I am happy to state that Sanford came through nobly. City and County taxes on Willie's home are now paid, and it is free from all encumbrances.

"I thank you," he comes first," said Spenser as he beamingly received papers from Mr. Spenser. "I want to thank you Mr. Spenser, also Mr. Dean here. Willie will receive with emotion tonight, when I finished 'I can't tell you how much I thank everybody. I followed a cyano-whistling bird call and a dog bit me. I followed a cat and dog fight."

A letter from Fred G. McAllister, president of Kiwanis International, telling of the founding of Kiwanis was read by Spenser.

John L. Ingram, former Sanford optometrist now from Panama City, Fla., presented to the club a pair of glasses from Panama City.
