School Bus Drivers Want Pay For Extra Trips To Compound

By Gene Lindberg
Herald Staff Writer

School bus drivers would receive additional compensation for extra trips and extra time spent at the district's transportation compound while non-instructional personnel may no longer be fired at the whim of supervisors if their proposed union contracts are accepted by the school board.

Negotiations got under way Monday between bargaining agents for the Seminole County School Board and the two unions representing the school bus drivers and the non-instructional personnel (NIPSCO) of Seminole County.

Nancy Wheeler, chief spokesman for the unions said just-cause dismissal for NIPSCO members is one of several major union proposals. All NIPSCO members are hired on a year-to-year contract and told at the end of the year whether or not they have a job.

"A lot are let go on a whim of a particular cost-center supervisor," Wheeler said. NIPSCO wants a continuing contract. If the employee is not doing what he is supposed to be doing, then get rid of him, she said. The school system is the only place where this is happening, Wheeler said. "It's real important because good employees are often lost because the manager has a friend who he wants to do the job; that's a reality, it does happen," she said.

For the bus drivers, Wheeler said, the opening of the district's new transportation compound has produced a negative impact because drivers no longer park the buses at home, but have to drive back and forth to the compound, sometimes three times a day. Wheeler said the union is proposing that drivers receive compensation for their additional trips to and from the bus compound except for the first and last trip of the day.

Another proposal asks that drivers who choose to stay at the compound between runs be given duties and be compensated for them. A supplement for the mid-afternoon run that some drivers make is also being requested, Wheeler said, along with a safe-driver program in which drivers will know the consequences of being in accidents or being charged with moving violations.

Health Workers Monitor Infection At Day-Cares

Health department officials are seeking a common element between several central Florida day-care centers that have had an outbreak of a highly contagious dysentery-like disease called Shigellosis.

Three children and one day-care worker in Seminole County have been diagnosed as having the bacteria-caused disease. It is treated with antibiotics. Shigellosis is caused by Shigella bacteria, named after Kiyoshi Shiga, a Japanese bacteriologist. It causes a fever in its victims as well as headaches and diarrhea, said Bernice Duncan, supervisor of community health for the Seminole County Health Department. The disease can be fatal if left untreated, according to medical sources. If treated it usually clears up in a week to 10 days.

"We are still in the process of doing our investigation trying to find the common source," Duncan said. She said the outbreak in Seminole County and the ones at five Orange County day-care centers could also be isolated incidents. About 30 adults and children have contracted the disease so far. The problem arose about one week ago.

Primary means of transmission is poor hygiene, said Duncan. She said washing hands, particularly after bathroom use, is a simple and effective way to halt the disease's transmission. It is spread via contact with food, toys and other objects.

The cases in Seminole County were discovered at Kinder-Care Learning Centers Inc., 480 Fruitland St., Altamonte Springs. Duncan said Kinder-Care has been very cooperative with the health department in treating the problem.

Health workers are making daily visits to Kinder-Care to check children and adults for symptoms and to see that day-care workers and children are following preventive measures, essentially good hygienic practices, Duncan said. Other day-care centers have been or-

Project Moves Ahead A Year

Design Funds Set For Oviedo Bypass

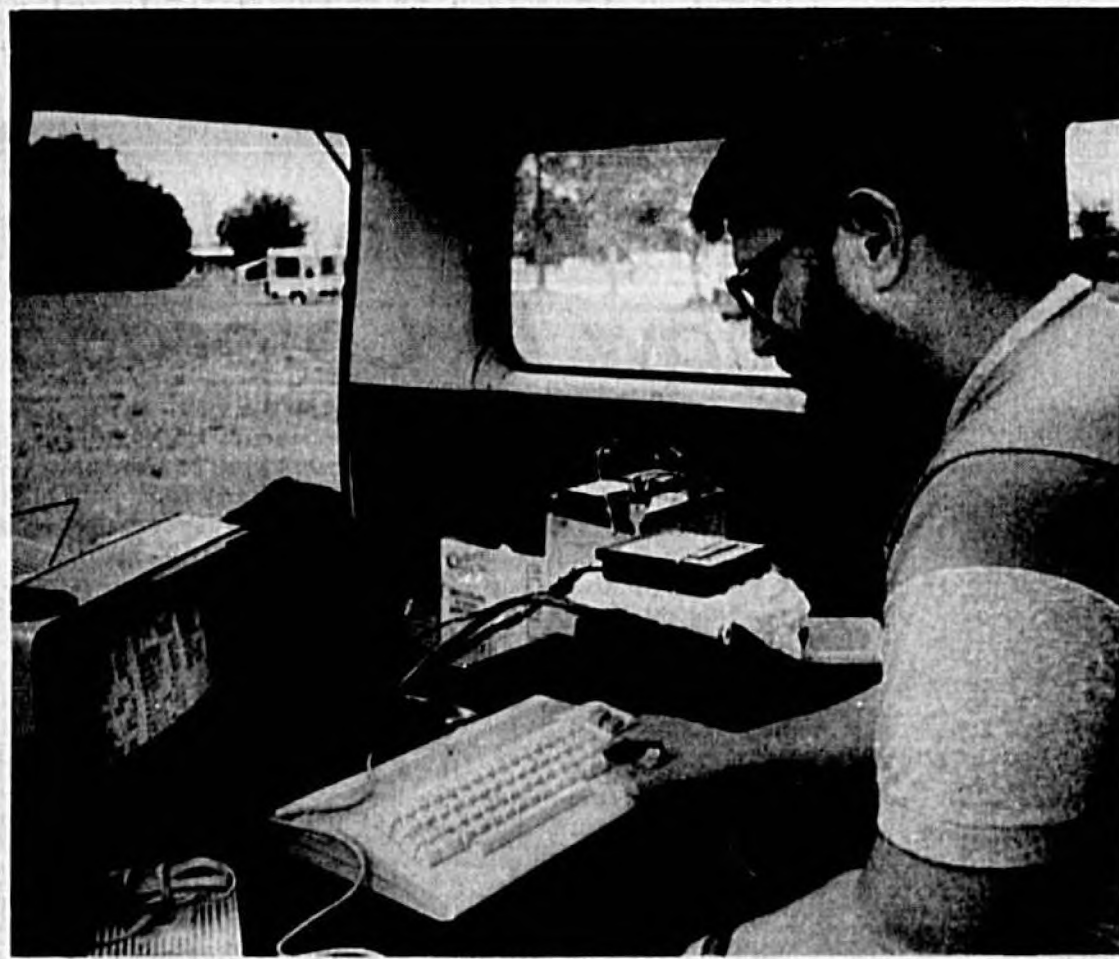

State Senate President John W. Vogt brought an 11.5-mile highway bypass for Oviedo a year closer to reality during the spring legislative session.

The Merritt Island Democrat and member of the Seminole County legislative delegation had $1.1 million included in this year's budget for design of the road.

Although a specific route has not been selected, a corridor study for the project calls for reducing the amount of traffic on state roads 434 and 419, according to the senator. He said the highway is envisioned along a westerly route from State Road 426 to Tusawilla Road before turning south toward Orange County.

The Department of Transportation's construction timetable calls for building the bypass in fiscal 1989-90, but advancement of the engineering work to this year could move up construction to fiscal 1988-89, said Vogt.

Without the bypass, he said, traffic woes will worsen in the growing See BYPASS, page 8A

Judge Sees No Cause To Hold Girl In Murder

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

The State Attorney's Office had until 1:30 p.m. today to show legal reason why a 15-year-old girl charged with delinquency in connection with the robbery and murder of a 39-year-old Longwood woman should not be released.

Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor at a 3 p.m. hearing in Sanford told the representative of the State Attorney's Office that he saw no probable cause in the arrest report to hold Suzanne M. Phillips, of 1532 Frances Drive, southwest Seminole County. McGregor said the paper work against Edwin Paul Bateman, 16, did show probable cause of delinquency and he ordered the boy held in connection with the same robbery and murder. They have been accused in connection with the June 23 shooting death of Diane Lynn McGinnis. She was shot in the base of her skull after a less-than-$100 robbery at a florist shop at the Hunt Club Corners shopping center on Hunt Club Boulevard.

If Bateman and Phillips are indicted by a grand jury, they would be tried as adults. If that's the case, they would not be charged with delinquency but murder and robbery in respect to Bateman, and principal to murder and robbery for Phillips. No date had been set as of early today to convene a grand jury to hear the charges.

McGregor, acting under state law, gave the state 24 hours to produce a probable cause to hold Phillips, who was accompanied by her parents, Thomas and Joanne Phillips, during the hearing. Bateman is also due in court at the same time today so the state can tell McGregor when it expects a grand jury to convene.

Bateman was accompanied by his aunt, Bonnie Sabia. Bateman's mother, recently divorced, could not attend the hearing and the reason Sabia gave for her absence was not audible in the courtroom. The whereabouts of Bateman's father is not known. Sabia told McGregor when the judge inquired about Bateman's ability to pay for an attorney, McGregor appointed a public defender for Bateman.

A spokesman for the Juvenile Detention Center asked McGregor to move Bateman from the center in Sanford to one in Orange County. She said the move would not only protect Bateman from other juvenile detainees who have heard of the case but prevent him from discussing the case with other juveniles.

McGregor said he could not order him moved unless his life was threatened. The spokesman said she could not say if Bateman's life had been threatened by other juveniles.

Fireworks, Parade Set For 4th Of July

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

A parade, fireworks displays, games and food are to highlight Fourth of July festivities in Seminole County Saturday. Pyrotechnics will light up the skies in Sanford and Oviedo to climax the day's activities, while in Geneva a 10:30 a.m. parade will salute the nation's 211th birthday.

In Sanford, family-oriented fun is planned in Fort Mellon Park under the co-sponsorship of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the City Parks and Recreation Department. Games and concessions are planned for from 4-6 p.m., followed by a celebrity softball game at 6 p.m. with players drafted from city departments playing against a team from the media.

A concert in the park will be presented by Sugar & Spice, a small combo, which will provide easy listening music and patriotic tunes, according to Chamber Executive Director Dave Farr. Those attending should bring chairs or blankets to sit on, he said, and can picnic on the grass while listening to the music.

There will be a break in the concert at 8 p.m. for a special announcement by State Rep. Art Grindle (R-Altamonte Springs) and remarks by Mayor Bettye Smith. From 8-9 p.m. there will be more music followed at dark by the shooting off of $4,000 worth of fireworks on the lakefront by veteran pyrotechnics expert Vic Vickers.

Dave Farr said the fireworks, paid for with donations from local merchants, groups and individuals, will be as good or better than last year's display.

A spectacular fireworks display is a Fourth of July tradition in Oviedo and this year's will be the best ever, according to Greater Oviedo Chamber of Commerce officials. The chamber is co-sponsoring the event with the Oviedo Jaycees and Oviedo Fire Department.

"We will, without a doubt, put on one of the biggest fireworks displays in Central Florida with the exception of Disney," chamber spokesman Dennis Paugh, said. He said the cost of the fireworks alone is expected to top $15,000 and the grand finale to the hour-long display will last at least five minutes.

The aerial display at the intersection of State Road 426 (Aloma Avenue) and State Road 434 (Alafaya Trail) will cap off the day-long festivities which will include live entertainment and a country barbecue featuring pork ribs or chicken complete with all the trimmings.

To help fund the display, the local groups held two barbecues within the community, obtained cash donations from local merchants and businesses, and are holding a drawing for a vacation in the Bahamas. The vacation includes airfare and $200 in cash. It is not necessary to be present to win, but if the winner is present the cash prize will be doubled. If the winner is holding a barbecue ticket, they will get an added bonus of $100, bringing the cash prize to a possible $500. Tickets area available from Oviedo merchants.

Tickets will be available the day of the barbecue with the drawing to be held between 2 and 5 p.m. Proceeds from the barbecue will go to the chamber's scholarship fund.

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Man Returns Stolen Car, Is Arrested As Accessory

An 18-year-old Apopka man who allegedly returned a car to the area it was stolen from in Longwood July Monday, was charged with being an accessory to grand theft auto after he reportedly refused to tell Longwood police the name of the thief.

Longwood police received a report of the car having been stolen from Tudor Court at Preston Road around midnight Sunday and were at the scene when the car was driven up and the driver ran, leaving a female passenger in the car. Shortly after that, the owner of the car told police that the driver had returned the keys of the car to her.

That suspect, when confronted by police, allegedly said he knew the car was stolen when he drove it back to the theft site and he refused to identify the thief.

Arrested was Daniel Lynn Mitchell, of 860 Wesley Circle, who was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Indecent Exposure Charged

An attendant at the eastbound rest area of Interstate 4, near Lake Mary, reported to a Seminole County sheriff's deputy at about 8 a.m. Saturday that a man had been walking around outside the restroom, nude from the waist down. He allegedly urinated on the ground.

A deputy located the suspect, asleep in a car. The deputy noted the man had on pants, but they were turned inside out. The deputy arrested the suspect on a charge of indecent exposure and disorderly intoxication, after awakening him and determining he was apparently intoxicated, a sheriff's report said.

Joseph Finley Douch, 31, of Orlando, was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Man Jailed After Disturbance

A man who allegedly created a disturbance and damaged equipment in an emergency room at South Seminole Community Hospital, Longwood, at about 3:20 a.m. Sunday, was arrested after allegedly cursing and fighting police.

Longwood police reported that a policeman was kicked during the fight, Glenn Cox Ut, 19, of 219 Continental Blvd., Longwood, has been charged with battery on a policeman, resisting arrest with violence and disorderly conduct. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

2 Charged In Alleged Shoplifting

Two of three suspects who allegedly made several trips from Burdines in the Altamonte Mall, Altamonte Springs, to their van in the parking lot with about $2,250 in stolen clothing, were arrested at the mall at about 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Although security guards and police had been watching the three, one man eluded them when the arrests came at about 1:45 p.m. Saturday.

Charged with grand theft and being held in lieu of $1,000 bond each were: Michael Bennett, 33, Longwood, and Loretta Annette Hunter, 24, Jacksonville.

Driving Under Influence Arrests

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

— Jeffrey Lee Riggan, 19, 917-B, Spring Lake Hills Apartment, Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 12:27 a.m. Sunday on State Road 436, Altamonte Springs. He was also charged with driving with a suspended license.

— Arthur Steven Raptoullis, 38, of 138 Wisteria Drive, Longwood, at 11:10 p.m. Saturday after his car was in an accident on Lake Mary Boulevard.

— Robert Clair Poor, 26, of 810 Lindenwild Lane, Altamonte Springs, at 12:20 a.m. Sunday after he ignored a Lake Mary police order not to enter Interstate 4, which was closed at the Lake Mary exit. Police pursued and stopped his car. He was also charged with failure to obey police.

Three video recorders, a television, a stereo, a phone, a sky diving ring and a computer with a combined value of almost $11,000 were stolen from the home of Al. A. Migliorato, 37, of 1518 Sugarwood Circle, Winter Park, between June 26 and Monday, a sheriff's report said.

Irene E. Swan, 57, of 901 E. Wildmere Road lot 34, Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies that a .22-caliber gun valued at $50 and $60 were stolen from her home Sunday.

Sales Tax Registration Said Slow

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Fewer than half of the 120,000 newspapers, law firms, construction companies and other businesses required to register for the new sales tax on services have done so despite Wednesday's deadline, officials say.

Department of Revenue spokesman Jim Evers said Monday that only about 45,000 businesses had registered as of Friday afternoon. He said businesses that fail to register by Wednesday will be liable for any sales tax money they do not collect and will be temporarily ineligible for many exemptions to the tax.

Larry Wood, Department of Revenue enforcement chief, said his agency will send about 180 enforcement agents to check on compliance starting in late August.

Wood said businesses that register for sales tax collection but then foul up their payments will likely suffer less than businesses that ignore the tax altogether.

"Historically, we've been more lenient with the people who are trying," Wood said.

The law gives businesses that miss sales tax payments a three-month "grace period" before officials apply penalties. After Sept. 30, those delinquent businesses could owe a 5-percent monthly penalty plus 1 percent per month in interest charges.

But state officials can waive the penalty charges, and Wood said his staff would likely do that for businesses that register for the tax and try to pay it properly.

To encourage businesses to register, state officials have an automatic dialing system that calls companies to remind them about the requirements. Wood said the system had reached 25,000 firms as of Monday.

Wood said he expects a total of 100,000 registrations by Aug. 20, when businesses will have to make their first tax submission.

Evers and Wood said confusion about the grace period and anticipation of a possible court order blocking the collection of the tax are keeping some businesses from registering.

Injunction To Be Filed

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A Tallahassee lawyer trying to block collection of the new sales tax on legal fees plans to take his case to a federal court in Atlanta to escape the "political hysteria" he says clouds the issue in Florida.

Douglas Abruzzo said Monday he will appeal to the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta later this week as soon as his lawyer, James Mahorner, completes the paperwork.

Last week a U.S. district judge in Tallahassee rejected an attempt by Abruzzo and Gary Mosler, who also filed the lawsuit, to prohibit state officials from requiring lawyers to begin collecting the tax Wednesday. In a four-page opinion, the judge said state courts still have jurisdiction over the matter.

Abruzzo currently has a challenge to the new tax pending in state circuit court.

Suit Filed In Booby Trap Case

The mother of a boy who was injured by shotgun pellets when he and a companion set off a booby trap has filed suit against the man convicted of setting the trap.

Alene Kilgore of Oviedo filed suit against Mark Crowell of Altamonte Springs. Crowell was found guilty late Friday of two counts of aggravated battery in setting the trap. Her son, Anthony, was hit by about 60 pellets when the trap went off, records show.

The suit, which also names Crowell's mother who records show owned the land, is seeking damages in excess of $5,000.

Anthony and two pals were playing in the woods near their homes when they saw a shed. One of the boys pulled a can near the shed which set off a makeshift booby trap of string, a rat trap and a 12 gauge shotgun shell. The contraption was concealed under an inverted Styrofoam cooler. Anthony and a second boy, Hans Beck, were injured when the shell exploded. A third boy was not injured.

A six-member jury found him guilty. Sentencing is set for Aug. 6. No hearing date has been set in the civil suit.

Men Jailed After Fight With Officers

A 35-year-old Sanford man who allegedly fought police and denied he had been shot was arrested and treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital Saturday before being jailed at about 1:55 p.m.

The shooting, by an unknown person, and fight occurred at 11 Higgins Terrace, Sanford, at about 11:25 a.m. Saturday. When officers arrived, said Police Chief Steve Harriott, Ford Freeny tried to deny he had been shot. He refused medical treatment and allegedly, with his open hand, hit a policeman trying to question him.

During the confrontation with Freeny, a second man allegedly hit a second policeman, knocking him over Freeny, who was on the ground.

Fred Lee Smith, 59, of 11 Higgins Terrace, was arrested along with Freeny on charges of battery to a policeman.

Both Freeny and Smith were being held in lieu of $1,000 bond each. —Susan Loden

Church Bus Brakes Failed, Federal Investigator Reports

BLAIRSVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — Overheated and poorly adjusted brakes caused a church bus crash that killed one teenage camper and seriously injured several others on a north Georgia mountain road, a federal investigator said.

Jimmy Sutton of the National Transportation Safety Board Monday officially blamed brake failure for causing the church bus to plunge down a mountainside Friday on the steep and windy Richard B. Russell scenic highway in Union County.

The bus, carrying 28 youths and two adult chaperones from the First Baptist Church of Winter Haven, Fla., careened out of control for nearly 2 miles on the road before crashing 75 feet down an embankment and landing on top of a tree.

Angela Jones, 13, of Winter Haven was killed in the wreck. State authorities said she suffocated when she was pinned to a seat. All of the passengers were injured, some seriously, and were taken to hospitals as far away as Atlanta by ambulances and helicopters.

Reagan Vows Campaign Efforts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, rejecting the lame duck label and trying to ignore the Iran-Contra scandal, promises to campaign hard again in 1988 in support of Republican candidates from the White House to the statehouse.

"Let me just say I don't plan to sit on the sidelines," Reagan told a group of GOP loyalists in a pep talk delivered at the Old Executive Office Building adjacent to the White House Monday.

Making no mention of the scandal that has sent his public approval ratings tumbling, the president instead emphasized a need to preserve hard-won gains of the last six years. He vowed to stump across the country for the party's presidential candidate as well as for Republicans running for Congress, for governor and for seats in state legislatures.

Justice Escalates PTL Probe

TEGA CAY, S.C. (UPI) — While friends of Jim and Tammy Bakker believe they are coming back to their million-dollar lakeside "parsonage" in South Carolina, the Justice Department has reportedly escalated its investigation into the PTL to focus on tax fraud during the reign of its exiled founders.

Sources told the Washington Post today the Justice Department investigation centering on tax allegations represents a major escalation of federal inquiries into the embattled charismatic ministry.

The investigation, targeting allegations of tax fraud and other wrongdoings by the Bakkers, will be conducted by the department's tax division in concert with Vinton D. Lide, U.S. attorney in Columbia, S.C., sources told the Post.

Judges To Get More Leeway Under Guidelines Changes

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Circuit judges will wield more powerful gavels starting Wednesday when changes in Florida's sentencing guidelines take effect.

Among the changes is one that will make it easier for judges to increase or decrease sentences. Since October 1983, when the guidelines went into effect, judges have had to produce significant reasons if they gave a sentence other than the one recommended by the guidelines.

The guidelines were instituted by the legislature to make sentencing uniform throughout the state and to ease the prison population by removing prison terms for certain crimes.

Other changes that will take effect July 1 without Gov. Bob

Martinez' signature are expanding the type of misdemeanors that can be included in a person's record when a person's sentence is being determined, and broadening the consideration of the victim's physical injury to increase a given sentence, said Leonard Holton, director of the Sentencing Guideline Commission in Tallahassee.

A spokesman for Martinez did not know if the governor was planning any action on the changes.

Under guideline sentencing procedures, elements of a person's criminal history are given numerical value and totaled. That total, expressed in points, determines the minimum and maximum time that person can be sentenced for the latest crime they've committed.

For example: If a person were convicted of robbery, threatening the victim with a knife, and had a petty theft conviction, those infractions, usually, would add up to 79 points. The robbery amounts to 70 points, the threat with the knife, 7 points, the prior petty theft conviction, 2 points. The total, 79 points, falls into a 66 to 81 point "cell." That would put the person in the sentencing range of 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 years. Several prior misdemeanors could have pushed the total into the next higher cell, 82 to 101 points. That cell calls for a 3 1/2- to 4 1/2-year sentence. The nearest lower cell, 54 to 65 points, calls for in-house arrest to 2 1/2 years prison time. There are several cells for all serious crimes.

Judges have little choice but to sentence the person within the time frame of a given cell dictated by the point total. If judges depart from the recommended sentence, up or down, they have to give clear and convincing reasons and there must be a preponderance of evidence beyond a reasonable doubt for the departure, said Holton.

That will be changed July 1 to a "reasonable justification" that leaves a "firm impression" in the judge's mind, thus, an easing of the standard to depart from the recommendation, said Holton. He also said one good reason for departure from the guidelines is all that will be needed to change a sentence; until now an opposing reason can legally prevent a judge from making a sentencing departure even though several may favor a departure.

Holton said the guidelines will probably still take up a lot of time on the appellate level (one estimate said 20 percent of the cases Florida appeal courts were handling were guideline cases).

But, he said, most likely the appeal courts will not be overruling judges because standard will have changed.

The second change that will go into effect July 1 is the type of misdemeanor that can legally be considered when computing a sentence.

Holton said the law does not include misdemeanors in which the person was brought to court by being issued a citation rather than by a charge being filed by the State Attorney's Office. Most people charged with criminal offenses are brought to court through information filed with the clerk of court by the State Attorney's Office.

For example: Police conduct a decoy prostitution sting. Some men are arrested and charged with trying to solicit a prostitute. Others men are given a citation to appear in court on the same charge. Holton said such a misdemeanor conviction that got to court via a citation cannot now be included as part of the criminal history of a person. After July 1 they can be included.

The other change regards broadening the uses of physical injury to the victim when adding up the points to determine a sentence, Holton said.

For example: A person is charged with aggravated battery. If convicted, the physical assault would be included in the sentence computation, that is, possibly increasing it. But if the jury convicted the person of the lesser included crime of assault then the injury to the victim cannot be included in the sentence computation even though the victim was clearly injured.

The guideline change would allow the physical injury to be included in the sentencing computation even if physical injury is not normally an aspect of the convicted crime, Holton said.

Attempted Murder Charged In AIDS-Infected Blood Sale

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A man believed to be the first person criminally charged for knowingly selling his AIDS-infected blood told police he also sold sex after learning he had the deadly disease because he needed the money so badly he "didn't give a damn," authorities said.

Bailiffs wearing gloves led former male prostitute Joseph Markowski on Monday into Municipal Court, where he pleaded innocent to attempted murder and other charges. Bail was set at $1 million, and the preliminary hearing was scheduled July 10.

District Attorney Ira Reiner said Markowski told investigators he sold his infected blood to plasma banks as many as 23 times because he was desperate for money.

Reiner also said Markowski provided police with the names of five customers he continued having sex with after learning six months ago that he had AIDS.

"I know AIDS can kill. But I was so hard up for money, that I didn't give a damn," Markowski, a transient, told police after his arrest, Reiner said.

"I'm aware the (AIDS screening) tests don't always catch the AIDS virus," Markowski allegedly said, "but when you have to survive, you'll do anything."

Markowski was charged with four counts of attempted murder — two involving blood sales and two involving sex acts — four counts of assault with the intent to commit great bodily injury and two counts of trying to poison a pharmaceutical product.

Reiner said it would be "a hell of a difficult case to prove."

"This is not a cut and dried case," he said. "This is a case of first impression. There is no law in California that directly addresses this particular problem."

"But what he has done in spreading this repulsive and horrible disease is frightening as well as repulsive. In examining the statutes here in California, it is my belief that the one law that most closely describes his behavior is the crime of attempted murder."

Billy Carter Slates Speech

Former President Jimmy Carter's brother, Billy, is scheduled to be the featured speaker at a public open house ceremony Wednesday in Lake Mary at the new CareUnit of Orlando chemical dependency treatment center.

Carter's talk is expected to focus on recovery from his alcohol problem eight years ago following his widely reported drinking spree during the early days of the Carter administration.

Carter is scheduled to speak immediately following a free luncheon on the grounds of the new $8.5 million treatment facility. He and a number of other special guests, including defensive end Ron Holmes of the Tampa Bay Bucs, will be on hand to meet with visitors following the luncheon.

The open house will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with lunch at noon. "Everyone's welcome at the luncheon and open house," said CareUnit of Orlando Administrator Valerie Costantino. "We want the public to see our facility and become familiar with it as a community resource for drug and alcohol information and treatment."

The 100-bed center, which officially opened May 18, is located at 1098 Sand Pond Road in Lake Mary on a 5.5-acre site off Interstate 4. More detailed directions may be obtained by calling 1-800-433-3691.

Watergate Veteran Investigators: North Wins In Iran-Contra Deal

By Lori Santos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lt. Col. Oliver North is the winner, while Congress and the independent prosecutor stand to lose in the deal cut to get the Marine's account of the Iran-Contra scandal, former Watergate investigators say.

In separate interviews, veterans of the presidential scandal of the last decade predicted North will be able to call some of the shots when he testifies on Capitol Hill, carrying with him the element of surprise and possibly limiting the ability of investigators to discern the truth.

In addition, the Watergate lawyers said Monday, the deal by which the key figure in the scandal will testify under limited immunity from prosecution has put more pressure on the criminal probe of independent counsel Lawrence Walsh.

"You just don't buy a pig in a poke. You don't give him immunity before you know what he has," complained Sam Dash, who was chief counsel of the Senate committee that investigated the Watergate political burglary and cover-up.

"Having never talked to him, they take a tremendous risk of putting a witness up there whose credibility has never been tested," Dash said. "It is possible for him to get up there and tell a cock-and-bull story about who's involved and who did what, and Congress will have no way to contest it."

Philip Lacovara, a member of the Watergate special prosecutor's office, said North was the clear winner in the agreement under which he will testify in private Wednesday and at the public Iran-Contra hearings starting July 7.

The deal brings North to the stand sooner than previously planned — before his boss, former national security adviser John Poindexter — and allows the Senate and House committees to question him only on one issue under oath during the private session: President Reagan's knowledge of secret U.S. arms sales to Iran and the diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

North's lawyer, Brendan Sullivan, fought hard to keep Congress from gaining an upper hand through advance private questions, and the committees indicated they agreed perhaps not to recall North for a second round of interrogation.

"Brendan Sullivan is an excellent poker player," Lacovara said. "He basically stared them down and they blinked."

A further result, Lacovara said, was to pressure Walsh to act against the National Security Council aide fired Nov. 25 for his role in the scandal.

Sanford Zip Codes Change

By Genie Lindberg
Herald Staff Writer

Although some Sanford zip codes change Wednesday, mail carriers plan to zip around as usual, Sanford postmaster, Fred Rader, said.

The code changes will affect the 32771 area of Sanford. The area south of State Road 46 will convert to 32773 and anything north of S.R. 46 will remain 32771. Post office boxes will be 32772, Rader said.

Customers received a notification letter in June that their zip codes would be changed on July 1. They also received a change of address kit to notify their correspondents of the new zip code, Rader said. Usually the utility companies, banks and the Social Security administration are pretty good at changing the zip codes as soon as they are notified by a customer, Rader said.

"There are some people who don't get the word (of the change) or have a hard time with correspondents changing the zip code," he said, but extra kits are available to customers who may still need them.

Rader said it should be "business as usual" on Wednesday. However, mail carriers in the new 32773 zone will eventually become part of a "talked about" post office that may be built in the area South of State Road 46 in the future. If that happens, Rader said, there would be a lot more room in the Sanford post office.

Due to Sanford's part in Florida's rapid and extensive growth, the Orlando section postmaster notified the Sanford customers of their zip code change. To accommodate growth projections, the postal service established eight additional zip codes and redefined boundaries of eight existing zip code areas including the Sanford one.

U.N. Resolution Needs Teeth

The ridiculous war between Iran and Iraq is a threat to peace and order far beyond the Persian Gulf. The rest of the world has tolerated it too long. The United Nations should move the issue higher on its agenda, as the United States and other participants in the seven-nation Venice summit recommended. If Iran won't agree to hold peace talks, it should be slapped with an international arms embargo and other appropriate sanctions.

Standing up for a principle is lonely business, particularly when it involves an element of danger. President Reagan didn't receive the strong endorsement he sought for the U.S. policy of escorting Kuwaiti oil tankers in the Persian Gulf. All he got was a mild assertion from the allies that the flow of oil through the Strait of Hormuz "must continue unimpeded."

How that "must" happen, however, was not specified. Surely Uncle Sam will see to it. The main thing this part of the statement from Venice accomplished was to sustain the prediction of the president of Iran, who had said before the meeting that the allies would refuse Reagan's request for meaningful support. Approval of this plan was far from the proudest accomplishment of the Venice meeting.

On another point affecting Iran and Iraq, however, the joint statement had more substance. It urged the adoption of a U.S.-sponsored resolution in the U.N. Security Council calling for an arms embargo against Iran unless it agreed to peace talks. The last time the United Nations attempted to intervene, Iran rejected a call for a cease-fire. Now, with the United States and the Soviet Union becoming more involved in the gulf, is an appropriate time to try again.

Keeping the sea lanes open, necessary as that is, won't end the war. Iran and Iraq have been slugging senselessly away at each other for almost seven years with horrible loss of life and property, and no end in sight.

The continuing refusal of Iran to negotiate makes an international diplomatic effort more necessary with each passing month. The recommendation that the United Nations take a greater role deserves support from China and the Soviet Union as well as the industrial nations of the West.

Only Being Fair

The other day, President Reagan wisely vetoed legislation that would have made the Fairness Doctrine the law of the land. Actually, there is nothing "fair" about this misguided measure and we hope Reagan's veto leads ultimately to the doctrine's repeal by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Fairness Doctrine dates back to 1949, when there was a small number of radio and television stations in the country. FCC officials were concerned that this situation could severely limit public debate and hence, decreed that the proponents and opponents of a controversial issue receive equal air time.

However well-meaning the policy then, it has become obsolete today. The scarcity-of-outlet argument is now moot: No less than 10,000 radio stations, 1,300 television stations and 7,300 cable-television stations operate today. A vigorous and healthy public debate is carried forth on this vast communications network.

Moreover, the doctrine is particularly odious to democracy because it represents an unwarranted government intrusion into news operations. Ultimately, it leads to bland, timid reporting because it second-guesses editorial judgment. In fact, FCC officials consider the doctrine an infringement on free speech and believe it is constitutionally suspect.

Mind you, our opinion of the Fairness Doctrine is affected by our profession. But we speak from experience in asserting that the doctrine actually detracts from the public debate of issues.

It's only fair to the American people that Congress resist a veto override of this antiquated measure, setting the stage for an FCC deathblow to a doctrine that truly is constitutionally suspect.

'Privatization': More Than A Four-Letter Word

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Don't change a hair for me. Stay as sweet as you are, but answer this question:

"Had any privatization opportunities lately?" Actually, an answer may be forthcoming this fall at a national conference of that name sponsored by the Privatization Council. And for only a $495 registration fee. But even at those prices, some of us can't afford to wait.

As the council points out, privatization is "the use of private sector resources to serve public sector goals." It also notes that the concept has "received increasing attention in recent years as a technique for funding public services and facilities at state, county and municipal levels at a time of diminishing resources."

The sponsors assure us the conference "will feature workshops on privatization opportunities in transportation, water and wastewater treatment, prisons, health care and social services, and many other areas where privatization holds promise."

I assume the "other areas" include the federal level. I have long wanted to own a train, a dam, but, frankly, there aren't too many opportunities available at the state, county or municipal level.

To say nothing of post offices, military units and embassies. Any number of local governments may have their own foreign policies, but you could count on one hand those maintaining embassies overseas.

I have had an eye on the embassy in Moscow, for instance. Soviet girls, for all accounts, run all over the place. And what about national parks?

One council official said the conference "will provide practical assistance to those involved in implementing privatization projects, at all levels of government and areas of interest."

After seeing that, I felt better. The council, however, failed to address my other concern, which is a suspicion that public lands belong to all citizens equally. If equal opportunities came from a national lottery, as opposed to, say, a national conference on the subject, you would hear no squawk from me.

But not for nothing did folks used to sing a folk song containing the lines: "This land is your land, this land is my land...."

Some folks, believe it or not, may not have $495. And if you've got to own a chain saw in order to bid for timber rights in a national forest, I'm against privatization.

Since, at today's rate of exchange, it is difficult to figure out how much the federal government paid for the land, we should all have an equal shot at owning it.

I have had my eyes on a section of the George Washington National Forest, for instance. But I don't want to invest my considerable fortune in privatizing it.

If I am expected to provide "public services and facilities" along all of the Appalachian Mountains, forget it. Let the government do it.

PTL Gets Kid-Glove Handling

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In May 1982, when Rev. Sun Myung Moon of the Unification Church was tried and found guilty of tax evasion, IRS auditors were also beginning an investigation of Rev. Jim Bakker and his PTL ministry.

Over the next four years Bakker received what amounted to kid-glove treatment by the IRS and Justice Department — in sharp contrast to the treatment given Moon.

The question some in Congress are asking is "Why?"

For more than two years, IRS auditors pored through PTL's books. Finally, in November 1985, the auditors recommended to their superiors that the group's tax-exempt status be stripped because of financial irregularities. The confidential report, which was also given to the PTL, was recently made public by the group's new board of directors.

According to sources close to the IRS investigation, in another recommendation — not made public — the auditors also recommended that evidence should be gathered with an eye towards a civil or criminal prosecution of Bakker and his wife Tammy Faye.

According to the now-public IRS report, auditors found that from 1980 to 1983, $1.3 million in ministry funds were spent directly for the personal benefit of the Bakkers and that none of these funds had been reported by the Bakkers as income.

Moreover, according to the auditors, in 1983 Jim Bakker received salary and bonuses totaling $638,112. This amount, they concluded, was more than six times what a tax-exempt organization of the size of PTL should pay its chief executive.

Had these recommendations by the IRS auditors been followed, they would have effectively put the ministry out of business.

What happened next is the subject of some controversy, but one thing is clear: The auditors' recommendation went nowhere.

Some IRS sources say that Justice Department officials discouraged them from pursuing a case against PTL and the Bakkers. Justice, though, says it never received any official recommendation from the IRS that a formal case be started.

More than a few in Congress want to know why the Bakkers have been treated as they have. In the coming months, look for several House and Senate committees to begin investigations of the Reagan administration's handling of Bakker and PTL.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Sex And Politics

By Arnold Sawlsak
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The question is heard, "Why did the press suddenly decide to start reporting about the sex lives of politicians?"

That inquiry often is followed by another question, "How come you singled out Gary Hart and never wrote about the extramarital affairs of John Kennedy, Dwight Eisenhower or Franklin D. Roosevelt?"

The answer to the first question is simple: The press did not suddenly decide to start reporting on the sex lives of politicians.

In fact, the American press has been doing this kind of reporting for more than 150 years, going back to Thomas Jefferson if not George Washington, although there does seem to be some kind of cycle for popularity of such stories.

To the personal knowledge of the writer, there were contemporary rumors and gossip about both JFK and Ike during their presidencies, but nothing specific was published about their activities until after they left the White House or died. Why? Because most of the information was unsubstantiated or because editors did not want to print or broadcast such stories at the time.

As for FDR, it has been said there were press people who were aware of the paraplegic president's continuing relationship with his wife's former secretary, but again there is no record of stories.

But considering the kind of off-color stories that were openly circulated about the Roosevelt family during FDR's four terms, it would be amazing if there was no gossip about the president's sex life.

If the press ignored politicians' hanky-panky in the relatively recent past, that does not mean it was always so. Jefferson's claimed long-term relationship with slave Sally Hemmings; Andrew Jackson's bigamous marriage; Grover Cleveland's illegitimate child; Warren Harding's extramarital affairs — all were grist for the press of the time.

Furthermore, the cycle of these stories hardly could be said to have begun with Hart. The bedroom antics of a long list of politicians, ranging from Adam Clayton Powell to Wayne Hays, Wilbur Mills, Dan Crane and John Jenrette, has been in the news at various times in the last 25 years.

In any case, the press did not single out Hart. Hart singled out Hart. Many of the politicians mentioned above have been indiscreet about their affairs, showing up in places where they were likely to be well known with their ladies.

But no one in living Washington memory has (1) publicly denied sexual misconduct, (2) challenged the press to check it out by following him around, and (3) showed up in public within weeks with a young woman not his wife.

None of the foregoing is intended to make the argument that reporting on the bedroom capers of politicians is the highest expression of the First Amendment's guarantee of a free press.

That argument could better be made for the performance of the press in pursuing the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal, in monitoring Congress's struggles with the budget deficit or in bird-dogging the painfully long process of U.S.-Soviet arms control negotiations.

The press also covers those relatively unsensational stories, and generally they are in your daily paper. If you want to test the effectiveness of that work, ask your neighbor how the Gramm-Rudman process is progressing in Washington or the START talks are doing in Geneva.

Did you get a blank look? Try, "Who is Donna Rice?"

Search For Ice, Life On Mars

By Thom Marshall
FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Colorado State University researchers are filling a seven-foot-tall steel vacuum cylinder with trays of sand, silt and ice in an effort to learn whether Mars is habitable.

CSU scientist Stanley Schumm said the purpose of the project is to help confirm a theory that water once ran over the dune fields and lava flows of the now arid planet.

An Arizona State University geologist, Ronald Greeley, reported last week that he believes enough water was released by volcanism on Mars to form a 150-foot deep layer over the planet. He believes most of that water is now locked in subsurface ice.

Knowing whether water is present on the planet is important for potential exploration and locating any inhabited station there in the future.

Schumm said, however, it will be a long time before the results of his project can be field-tested for accuracy.

"It's pretty clear there's not going to be any manned missions for some time," he said. NASA's earliest possible date for flight of people to Mars is the year 2000.

Schumm, one of four American recipients of the National Academy of Sciences geology award, said it is believed many topographic features on Mars were formed by melting ice beneath the ground.

The vacuum chamber used in the research will simulate the martian atmosphere, which is only about 1 percent as thick as Earth's atmosphere, Schumm said. He said it is ironic that the university obtained the big cylinder a few years ago when NASA declared it surplus and now NASA is funding the research project centered on the chamber.

In it, researchers will put trays layered with sand, silt and ice to simulate the martian environment and underground ice that still may be there. Then the soil temperature will be raised to melt ice in selected areas and trays will be put at an angle so scientists can see if runoff causes channels in the soil.

"We then will see if the ice melting beneath the soil generates collapsed features and channels similar to those on Mars," Schumm said. "This is still a theory, but many features on Mars almost have to be the result of melting subsurface ice."

Schumm said the huge landslides in 20,000-foot deep martian valleys "could have formed as ice beneath those steep cliffs melted."

He said obvious geological features that indicate water once flowed on Mars include long, meandering channels that look like riverbeds.

Regulation Leaves Reservist Up In Air

By Jack Anderson
And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — For reservists in the Army's Special Forces, the discipline can be demanding, the officers insufferable and the active-duty assignments downright dangerous. It goes with the territory.

But it was the paper-pushing, penny-pinching paymasters who got Leslie Smith down. They refused to approve "incapacitation pay" to compensate for lost wages after a low-level night parachute drop over West Germany injured his left knee and rendered him unable to work.

The Army's reasoning was as sharp as a company clerk's pencil point: Smith's civilian job is coal mining, but the mine where he worked was closed down temporarily at the time of his accident. This meant he was unemployed when he hit the silk and hurt his knee last April.

So? So a new Army regulation based on the Defense Reauthorization Act of 1987 states that an injured reservist will be paid either his military wage or the equivalent of his civilian wage — whichever is less. Since Smith was unemployed at the time of his injury, the Army ruled he was entitled to the lesser amount: his civilian pay of zero.

Smith, 26, of Morgantown, W.Va., has been in the reserve for eight years, and refused to comment on his predicament for fear of retaliation by the brass. But his buddies in B Company, 11th Special Forces, and members of his family confirmed the facts of his case. His family provided our associate Stewart Harris with medical records describing the injury and the surgery that left him temporarily disabled.

"I never would have let him go on that mission if I knew before what I know now," Smith's wife, Arlene, told us. She said the doctors told them he won't be able to work until October.

The new regulation was proposed by the Army and approved by Congress last November in an effort to eliminate inequities and double-dipping under the old system. Congress didn't consider the change's effect on seasonal workers and the unemployed.

But a staff aide of the House Armed Services Committee said there is enough latitude in the new law to allow incapacitation pay for unemployed reservists whose injuries keep them from finding work. The Army's interpretation of the new law might be too narrow, the committee aide said.

However, Douglas Lamude, an Army compensation specialist who worked with Congress on the law, said the Army, at least, was well aware that unemployed reservists would be ineligible for incapacitation pay under the new regulation. He said the Army's reasoning was: "How can we pay them back for something they did not lose?"

Lamude did say his office at Army headquarters is working on a bend in the rules that would permit paying seasonal workers, like migrant farmhands and perhaps even coal miners, incapacitation pay based on their average annual income, regardless of their employment status at the time of their injury.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., has taken an interest in his Morgantown constituent's plight. This high-powered intervention may help change the Army's tone when it comes to incapacitation pay.

According to Smith's family, his former employer has written a letter to the Army stating that, even though the mine is still closed, Smith would be put back to work as a maintenance man — if he weren't injured. In other words, he would no longer be unemployed. Whether this will be enough to cause the Army to pass the bucks to its sidelined reservist remains to be seen.

NCAA: Trouble Prevails

DALLAS (UPI) — College officials easily reached one consensus Monday at the NCAA special convention. Major college athletics is in trouble.

There was little common ground to be found, however, concerning what should be done about it.

"Big-time sports has become commercialized," argued California-Berkeley chancellor Michael Heyman. "Somehow we have committed ourselves to staging huge television extravaganzas. We can no longer just compete against each other. We have to put on a show for the nation."

Moments later, however, University of Minnesota president Kenneth Keller declared:

"The fact is that the issue of having big-time athletics is not an issue. It is a fact. It is something that is asked of us by the public. It's one of the ways they relate to the university."

"They expect exciting, competitive athletics. They expect entertainment. We really don't have the choice to turn our backs on that."

Heyman and Keller joined a series of speakers Monday in opening an 18-month "national forum," designed to discuss problems facing college athletics and to create legislation to deal with them.

"The reason we are here is because big-time athletics is in trouble," Notre Dame athletic director Gene Corrigan said. "And the thing we need to do is face up to that and get to it."

The solutions, it appears, will be slow in coming.

Some cost-cutting solutions will be voted upon today, chief among them proposals to reduce scholarship limits and to trim the size of football coaching staffs. Indications were, however, that those proposals would be rejected.

"For openers," Heyman said, "we can acknowledge that our task will not be easy. We are working against powerful cultural and market forces. But with a solid base of information, we can confidently take steps to reform intercollegiate athletics."

Heyman suggested consideration be given to scholarships based on need, declaring freshman ineligible and a revenue sharing program.

"And we could do the unthinkable," he said. "We could abolish bowl games and post-season basketball tournaments."

After his formal presentation, Heyman admitted he was attempting to be as provocative as possible in opening the debate.

"But I generally believe in what I say," Heyman said.

An opposing view was presented in a passionate manner by Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler, the only active coach to take part in Monday's debate.

In a rising voice, Schembechler said his goal was to graduate every football player he coached.

"I have not been able to do that," Schembechler said. "I'm not satisfied that I haven't, but my graduation percentage far exceeds that of the regular student body. And I want that checked if you want."

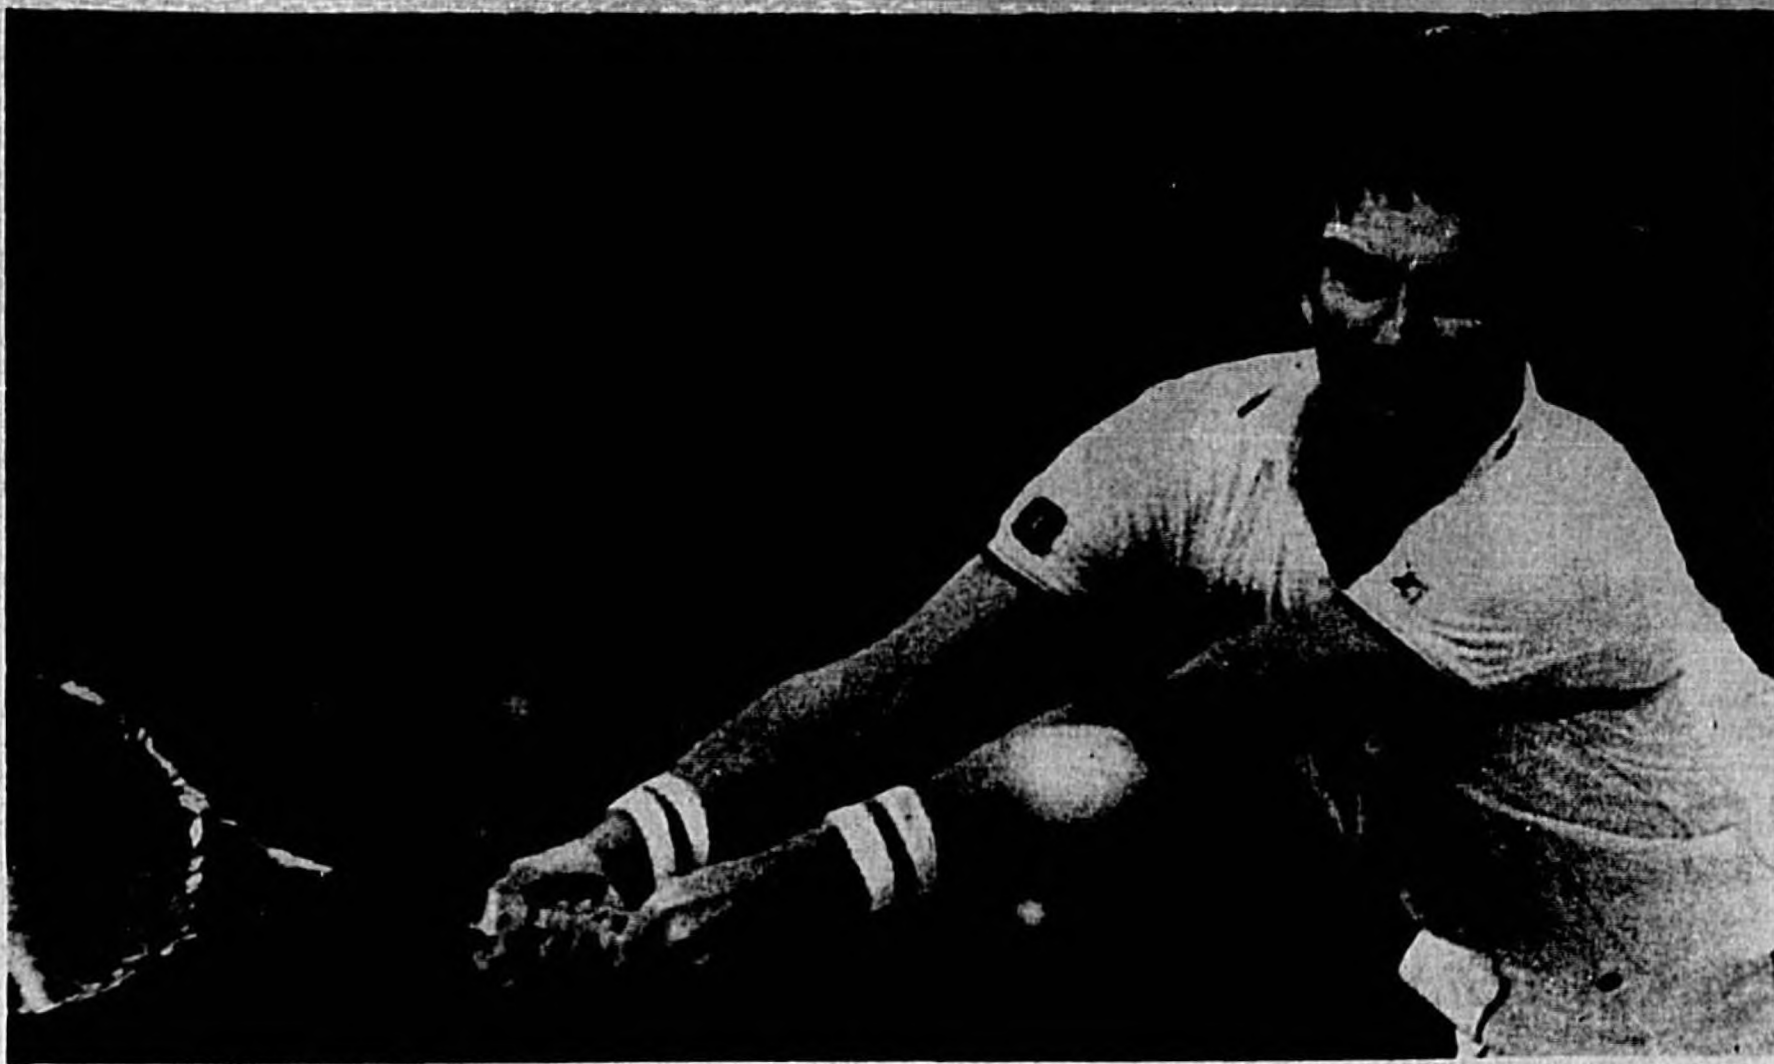

BOWL DIRECTOR: NO WAY

DALLAS (UPI) — The executive director of the Cotton Bowl said Monday a proposal by California-Berkeley Chancellor Michael Heyman to eliminate bowl games was simply a reaction to current athletic problems and would cut off one of the major revenue sources for college sports.

Heyman suggested bowl games and postseason basketball tournaments could be abolished in an attempt to bring college athletics into proper proportion with the rest of academic life.

"Chancellor Heyman's suggestion to eliminate the bowl games — with other events — represents an overall reaction to whatever problems exist in intercollegiate athletics," said Cotton Bowl executive director Jim Brock, the immediate past chairman of the NCAA bowls committee.

"In a meeting designed to examine cost-control and putting college sports in a solid financial footing, it seems strange there would be discussions of doing away with an institution — the bowl games — that has served the colleges and universities well."

Jimmy Connors stretches to hit a forehand. Connors faces round today. Pernfors, an All-America at Seminole Community College, outlasted Tim Mayotte in five sets Monday.

Former SCC Standout To Face Connors In Quarterfinals

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, who Monday advanced to the fourth round of Wimbledon, can relax in knowing he's already won the famed tournament. Ivan Lendl still lives with the pressure of never having captured it.

"I don't need to win Wimbledon, but I'd like to win it. I'm here to give it a try," Connors, 34, said after his 6-1, 6-2, 6-7, 6-3 victory over New Zealander Kelly Evernden.

Connors, who faces Sweden's unseeded Mikael Pernfors for a place in the quarterfinals, reflected on the pressure of playing at Wimbledon.

"You're intimidated even before you arrive," Connors, who won the title in 1974 and 1982, said. "You see the place and it's even worse. The good thing was to get it out of the way. If you can win it when you're young — and I was fortunate to do that — it relieves all the pressure."

Lendl, a 27-year-old Czechoslovakian who lives in the United States, has not been so fortunate. Lendl lost to West German teenager Boris Becker in last year's final. With Becker, the two-time champion, ousted from this year's event, Lendl, the world's No. 1 player, assumes the favorite's role.

"If I can win Wimbledon and lose every match in the year, I will take it," Lendl said.

Lendl has struggled through his first three matches, one of five sets and two going to four. He faces South African-born American Johan Kriek, who has shown his grasscourt prowess with two Australian Open titles.

Connors will meet Swede and former Seminole Community College standout Pernfors today, who eliminated 10th seed Tim Mayotte, who, succumbing to a sudden heat wave, blew a two-set lead in falling 2-6,

All-Staters: Robinson, Brandenburg

Kim Robinson and Tracy Brandenburg, two major reasons Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots finished second in the state softball tournament, were named to the Florida Sports Writers Association Class 4A All-State First Team Monday.

Robinson, a pitcher who exhibited excellent control and composure during Brantley's championship march, is a junior. Brandenburg, a shortstop who delivered several game-winning hits during the drive, is a sophomore.

Robinson compiled a 12-4 mark during the regular season. In 16 games, she walked just 19 batters and struck out 16.

Brandenburg, who was a second-team selection last year as a freshman, was fourth in the county with a .500 average.

Lake Mary's Marnie Frey, a junior, was a Third Team Utility selection, and Lake Howell's Tammy Lewis, a junior, was a Third Team infield choice.

Frey batted .453, seventh in the county. Lewis was the county's top hitter with a .522 average.

Tennis

4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 7-5.

Mayotte, falling for the first time in seven Wimbledon appearances to reach the round of 16, twice was up a break in the fifth set. But on three occasions he double faulted to set up match point for Pernfors, and his third flirtation with danger proved disastrous in the final game.

Following a week of mostly foul weather, the temperature soared near 90 degrees and Mayotte said following the 3 hour and 25 minute contest, "I felt I was definitely outplaying him, and if I had the gas I would have put him away."

"There's no way you can train for that kind of humidity when it's not around every day," Mayotte said. "I'd have to fly to Florida every day."

Chris Evert matched Connors, her former fiance, with her 15th appearance in the round of 16, advancing along with top seed Martina Navratilova.

Connors overcame a loss of concentration in the third set to defeat Evernden, putting in a superb 81 percent of his first serves.

Navratilova, continuing her quest for what would be a record sixth successive crown, and eighth overall, breezed past Peanut Louie Harper, 6-2, 6-2, and has conceded only eight games in reaching the fourth round for the 13th successive year.

Evert, for the second match in a row, struggled through the opening set before emerging with a 7-5, 6-0 victory over Kumiko Okamoto of Japan. The score was identical to her second-round victory over Laura Golarsa.

Kim Robinson follows through as third baseman Mandy Mathlesson watches the ball. Robinson was the First-Team Class 4A All-State pitcher for Lake Brantley's runner-up Lady Patriots.

"I think I've always been a slow starter, but this isn't the type of tournament where you want to start out slowly, and I have in my last two matches," Evert said. "I'm not where I'd like to be yet."

In another exciting five-setter, Australian Peter Doohan, Becker's conqueror, overcame American qualifier Lef Shiras, 6-7 (6-8), 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 12-10, in 4 hours and 24 minutes.

Doohan next meets Slobodan Zivojinovic. The powerful Yugoslav delivered 26 aces Monday in wiping out Jeremy Bates in straight sets.

Two other seeded players were eliminated along with Mayotte, bringing the total for three rounds to eight men and six women. Fifth seed Miloslav Mecl fell to Anders Jarryd, a semifinalist here in 1985, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, and No. 9 Bettina Bunge lost to Ros Fairbank, 7-6 (8-6), 6-4.

Third seed Mats Wilander, claiming he's playing a far more aggressive game than ever before on grass, crushed fellow Swede Jonas B. Svensson, 7-6 (7-0), 6-1, 6-3, and has yet to drop a set. He next meets 14th seed Emilio Sanchez, a 7-5, 6-4, 7-6 (7-4) victor over Christo Van Rensburg.

Australian Pat Cash, the No. 11 seed and a semifinalist here in 1984, also continued to impress with a 7-6 (7-4), 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 victory over Michiel Schapers. Cash next meets Forget.

Third-round winners among the women included fifth seed Pam Shriver, No. 8 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch and No. 11 Catarina Lindqvist. Shriver crushed Beth Herr, 6-2, 6-2, and has yielded only 11 games in three matches; Kohde-Kilsch beat Elizabeth Smylie, 6-2, 6-1; and Lindqvist defeated American Elise Burgin, 6-4, 6-1.

Hagler Charged With Wife Abuse

BOSTON (UPI) — Former middleweight boxing champion Marvyn Hagler has been charged with abusing his wife, who has asked for court protection from her husband and custody of their children. The Boston Globe said today.

Bertha Hagler appeared in Hingham District Court Friday but the hearing on charges she filed against her husband was continued until Wednesday.

Hanover Police Chief Paul Lingley said today his department has "papers to serve on Marvyn but we have not been able to find him."

According to court documents, Hagler's wife contends her husband abused her at their Hanover home Friday, leading her to take the action.

Hagler has been in seclusion since losing his middleweight title to Sugar Ray Leonard on a split decision in their April 6 fight in Las Vegas.

His lawyer, Morris M. Goldings of Boston, said he would meet with Hagler today to discuss the charges.

"This is a domestic relations matter and it's a matter of privacy in the family," Goldings said. "I really don't have any comment on it. We have not yet seen the papers as yet and I will be conferring with Mr. Hagler today."

Martinez, Noce Bop Expos, 9-5

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs, who play their home games under the most natural conditions — in daylight and on the grass of Wrigley Field — are undefeated this season under the most synthetic conditions in baseball.

Paul Noce and Dave Martinez highlighted Chicago's 20-hit attack with four hits apiece Monday night, backing Les Lancaster's first major-league victory and giving the Cubs a 9-5 triumph over the Montreal Expos.

Chicago is 7-0 this season at Montreal and Houston, the NL's two domed stadiums.

Noce and Martinez both went 4 for 5 and Jerry Mumphy collected three hits and three RBI. Lancaster, 1-0, was making only his second start in the majors. He gave up seven hits in 5 2-3 innings. Ed Lynch pitched 2-3 innings for his fourth save.

"All those hits are good for our confidence," Chicago Manager Gene Michael said. "The three youngest guys on our team — (Mike) Brumley, Noce and Martinez — got 11 hits. There's no lack of power on our team."

"We've never lost under the roof. I hope it means something."

After a delay of 37 minutes because of a power failure, the Cubs raced to a 4-0 first-inning lead off starter Lary Sorensen, 3-4. Martinez led off with a double and scored when Mumphy singled. Leon Durham hit his 15th home run of the year. Keith Moreland then hit his 13th, making the score 4-0.

"That delay probably cost me another two innings," Lancaster said, "but I got my first win in the majors and it will be something to remember even if I have to go back to the minors."

Third-inning doubles by Jody Davis and Mike Brumley improved Chicago's lead to 5-0, chasing Sorensen. Reliever Jeff Fischer allowed doubles to Martinez and Mumphy, making the score 7-0. The Cubs padded their lead to 8-0 in the fourth on a run-scoring single by Noce.

"I had plenty of time to warm up before and after the delay," Sorensen said. "I just didn't have it tonight and I stunk up the place."

Martinez doubled in the fifth and scored on Mumphy's single, making the score 9-0.

Montreal scored three runs off Lancaster in the sixth. Andres Galarraga doubled home a run, Herm Wingham had a run-scoring single and pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson hit a bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

The Expos added two runs in the seventh. Dickie Noles hit Galarraga with a bases-loaded pitch and Wingham made it 9-5 with a bases-loaded fielder's choice.

Tim Raines doubled and scored twice in four at-bats for Montreal. Raines' average fell to .371. 12 points behind Tony Gwynn who had two hits in four trips for the Padres.

Sanford To Play Leesburg-SAY Survivor Wednesday

Sanford's American League All-Stars will play the winners' bracket final of the Florida Little League Sub-District 2 Baseball Tournament Wednesday at noon if a survivor can be decided today in the losers' bracket.

The losers' bracket final between Leesburg American and Orlando SAY was rained out Saturday and Monday.

Mark Litwhiler, tournament director, said the game must be played today.

"We're running out of time," Litwhiler said early today. "We have to get this tournament over because the district starts next week."

Sanford's Americans, who have already beaten Leesburg and SAY, need just one victory to clinch a spot in next week's district. A setback Wednesday would necessitate another game Wednesday night for the championship.

Manager Otis Raines' Sanfordites slipped past Leesburg, 6-5, and walloped SAY, 19-4. Raines said he expects to play Leesburg since it gave the locals a tougher go-around the first time.

Raines said Adaryl Jones, an imposing left-hander, would probably pitch Wednesday.

'Danger Zone' Smith's Single Drains Mets' Confidence

United Press International The New York Mets, a team full of self confidence last season, fear the "danger zone." Ozzie Smith singled home Vince Coleman in the 11th inning Monday night, helping the National League East-leading St. Louis Cardinals open a three-game series with a comeback 8-7 victory over the Mets at Shea Stadium.

Coleman opened the 11th by drawing a four-pitch walk from Jesse Orosco, 1-6, and moved to second with his 50th stolen base. Smith singled to right, giving the Cardinals their sixth victory in seven games against New York this year.

Todd Worrell, 3-3, the fourth of six Cardinal pitchers, went two innings of one-hit relief for the victory. Ken Dayley, who relieved Pat Perry with two on and two out in the 11th, loaded the bases before striking out Gary Carter on three pitches for his first save.

"We need to win the next two 'til that simple," Mets outfielder Darryl Strawberry said. New York snapped a 3-3 tie with a four-run fifth, capitalizing on sloppy St. Louis defense. A rare error by shortstop Smith on Wally Backman's ground ball started the inning and Gary Carter's catchable pop fly fell for a single. Strawberry's RBI single scored Backman and an errant throw by third baseman Terry Pendleton allowed another run to score with Strawberry going to third on the two-base error. Pitcher John Mitchell then singled to left for his second major-league hit and first RBI as the Mets took a 7-3 lead.

What makes me feel good is that we played so poorly but managed to win," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said. ST. PHILLIES 6-11 Pirates 5-3 At Philadelphia, Mike Schmidt and Darren Daulton each doubled in two first-inning runs helping the Phillies complete a sweep. Doug Bair, 2-0, earned the victory and Wally Ritchie notched his first save while Mike Dunne fell to 3-3. In the first game, Steve Bedrosian set a major-league record by earning a save in his 12th straight appearance. Mike Jackson, 2-6, pitched 1-3 innings of relief for the victory. Yanks Out-Slam Blue Jays, 15-14

United Press International The intensity level accompanying Monday's meeting between the New York Yankees and the Toronto Blue Jays reached heights usually saved until September. "It was scary," the Yankees Dave Winfield said after his eighth-inning grand slam lifted the Yankees to a 15-14 victory over the Blue Jays in the first of a three-game series between the American League East front-runners. "Everyone was scoring; everyone was hitting. You couldn't play the whole season with that kind of intensity — someone would be dead."

The two teams combined for eight home runs in Exhibition Stadium, as Winfield drove in six runs with a pair of homers, and Don Mattingly added a grand slam to power the Yankees, who took over first place by one game. "When you come to Toronto, you know it's a hitters' ballpark," Mattingly, who drove in five runs, said. "You come off the airplane swinging."

Winfield smashed his grand slam, his 18th homer of the season, off Tom Henke, 0-3, the fifth Toronto pitcher, to rally the Yankees from a 14-11 deficit. Progress Placates Jackson

ROSEMONT, Ill. (UPI) — Civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, satisfied with efforts by baseball owners to increase minority hirings, says he will urge colleges to follow suit and bring more minorities into athletic departments across the country. Jackson, who was in the northwest Chicago suburb Monday to address the annual Operation PUSH convention, also said he has called off a threatened July 4 boycott of major-league games. He said colleges are using black athletes but failing to provide basic education. Jackson said PUSH and other groups aim to increase minority representation in athletic departments. "We will go university by university to bring about this change," said Jackson, a likely Democratic presidential candidate. Jackson, who founded the civil rights organization, led a nationwide effort to increase minority participation in baseball front offices after former Los Angeles Dodgers vice president Al Campanis said in April blacks lacked the "necessities" to become managers. "We've seen signs of progress that represent change is taking place," Jackson told reporters. Jackson said his goal is to have baseball owners consider blacks for management positions. "It's not about having a black (on a team) but about considering them," he said. "We're challenging sports to open up and be fair at every level." Ed Durso, an executive vice president of major-league baseball, said the baseball commissioner's office was in contact with several minority groups and team owners to assure increased minority representation. "We've made some progress already, perhaps more progress in the last four months than in the last four years," Durso said. In the most prominent move, Commissioner Peter Ueberroth appointed as his assistant Dr. Harry Edwards, a black activist and sociology professor at the University of California. Jackson said because of actions by the commissioner and club owners, there would be no July 4 boycott of major-league games as previously threatened by PUSH. Monday was the deadline for such a move. However, Jackson criticized some teams for failing to dismiss managers to avoid hiring minorities.

Savages To Face Stiff Plantation Challenge

By Chris Fister

Herald Sports Writer

The "Savage" truth says if there is a challenge to be found, the Seminole Softball Club 15 and under all-star team must be... somewhere in the vicinity.

Okay, so it doesn't rhyme, but the fact of the matter is, the Seminole Savages rise to the occasion when the heat is on.

This past weekend, at the Conway Invitational, the Savages were sent to the losers' bracket early but put on a tremendous rally and defeated all comers in the bracket to wind up second in the tournament. Along the way, the Savages knocked off two teams that had eliminated them from previous tournaments and also avenged their first loss of the Conway tournament.

"It was an excellent test of the team's character and the girls really came through," Savages' manager Joe Davis said. "They looked forward to playing the teams that had beaten them before."

The Savages have a big week ahead of them as they head to Plantation this Friday for the three-day Plantation Fourth of July Tournament. The following week will be the Metro Tournament at Lake Fairview in Orlando which is the qualifying tournament for the ASA Southern Regional.

"We'll get a chance to play some of the best teams in the country," Davis said. "Davie, the Miami Waves and Pembroke Pines Cardinals are all in our bracket and they are three of the top five teams in the state."

The Savages opened the Conway Tournament Saturday with a 9-3 victory over Kissimmee. Diane Lowe, Michelle Davis and Tonya Higgins had two hits each to lead the offense.

Seminole then ran into South Florida power Hollywood Hills and dropped a 4-3 decision in which Hollywood scored three of its runs on six Seminole errors.

The Savages regrouped and came back in game three to thrash Manatee County, 15-1. Lisa Boatwright's three hits led the offense while Mishelle Karr, Lecann Trimble, Tara Calvin, Dena Morasch and Jennifer Daniels all had two hits. Michelle Panion and Lowe combined on the mound to hold Manatee in check.

Lowe's pitching and solid defense paved the way as the Savages eliminated West Orlando, 5-1. Marie Peters was 2 for 3 with a solo home run while Karr and Panion added two hits each.

Softball

Seminole came back Sunday morning to face three tough opponents in the Orlando Express, West Orange Gremlins and Hollywood Hills. The Express and Gremlins each knocked the Savages out of previous tournaments while Hollywood dealt Seminole its early loss Saturday.

The Savages busted loose at the plate in an 11-2 rout of the Express. Trimble was 4 for 4 while Boatwright and Karr added three hits each to back the superb pitching of Lowe who went the distance.

Seminole continued the offensive fireworks in the early going of a 7-4 victory against the Gremlins. Seminole scored all seven of its runs in the first two innings. Peters crunched a two-run homer in the second frame while Trimble was 3 for 3 with three RBIs for the game.

The most exciting game of the tournament then took place as the Savages and Hollywood Hills met for the second time. Hollywood Hills took a 1-0 lead into the bottom of the third when Kim Rendon walked on four pitches, Lowe singled to left and Peters unloaded a three-run homer over the fence in left center.

The Savages held their 3-1 lead into the seventh inning and Lowe retired the first two Hollywood hitters. Lowe then issued a walk and the next hitter singled to put runners at first and second. The next Hollywood hitter belted a shot to the gap in left center. One run scored to cut the deficit to 3-2 and another rounded third and headed for home. Outfielder Peters ran down the ball, fired to shortstop Davis who relayed to catcher Sherry Adams to nail the potential tying run at the plate for the final out of the game.

"We've been working on that relay play for two weeks," Davis said. "It was rewarding that it paid off with the game on the line."

After playing three games in the grueling heat, the Savages then had to go up against the unbeaten Melbourne Sharks in the championship game. Melbourne took a 7-3 lead into the bottom of the seventh when the Savages loaded the bases with two outs brining up cleanup hitter Boatwright. Boatwright launched a shot to deep left field that sent the left fielder to the fence before she made the catch to end the game.

Elements May Cause Tunnelvision

Over the years the United States Coast Guard has spent considerable time and effort in attempts to understand the why and whereof of boating accidents.

Boat collisions in the middle of a lake or other body of water on a beautiful sunny day with unlimited visibility are much more difficult to understand — especially when neither operator had been drinking any alcoholic beverage and both insisted they "never saw the other boat."

Although these accidents are not among the most common, they occur with alarming frequency and cause deaths, injuries and property damage.

Coast Guard studies determined that boat factors such as construction, windshields, colors, and other engineering factors did not explain why the operators failed to see the other boat. Studies did determine, however, that various elements in the boating environment did affect the operators.

After being exposed to elements such as noise, wind, vibration, sun, and glare for about four hours, operators seemed to develop something like tunnelvision and highway hypnosis. This fatigue reduces reaction time and the consumption of alcoholic beverages further aggravates the fatigue factor.

A few hours of sun, wind, glare, noise and vibration can tire boat operators enough to miss important things around them and cause an accident. Operators need to be aware of this and make a special effort to be alert, to avoid other boats, snags, and other visible floating debris after a day on the water.

Carl Carlson

HERALD BOATING WRITER

Most of all, responsible boat operators will save their drinks until they get home.

Speed many times will lull the operator into a false feeling about speed. Many times on the St. Johns River as you speed along you don't realize how fast you are going until you look at the RPM meter or speedometer. If you have one of the newer high speed outboards equipped with hydraulic trim accessories you may be aware of the fact that you are limited in your ability to turn sharply at high speeds without losing control.

The American Boat and Yacht Council (ABYC) has published a voluntary standard covering safe maneuvering speeds. The standard recommends posting a warning label stating a maximum safe maneuvering speed on boats that go faster than 35 mph. 40 mph if over 20 feet in length, that cannot go through a prescribed test course or make a sudden 180-degree turn of the steering wheel at full throttle. The test is performed on calm water.

The label required as a provision of the ABYC standard must be clearly visible to the boat operator and contain the following information:

WARNING — Maneuverability above — MPH is limited. Sudden turns may cause loss of control. Read owner's manual.

BOATER'S TIP — The Coast Guard recommends that the owner's manual contain additional information to the effect that safe operation of the boat under conditions of calm water requires a lesser speed than that posted on the label. Companies that do not provide owner's manuals with their boats, can obtain a generic owner's manual called "You and Your Boat", from Department OM, National Marine Manufacturers Assoc., 401 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, IL 60611

Market Moderate, Mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower Tuesday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 10.05 Monday, was down 5.91 to 2441.00 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 618-416 among the 1,524 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 16,547,000 shares.

Stock prices finished mixed Monday with blue-chip issues posting modest gains in moderate trading. The Dow Jones industrial average drew most of its strength from oil issues — Exxon, Texaco and Chevron — which are heavily weighted components of the index.

"The market really did nothing," said Ernie Rudnet, manager of block trading at Mabon Nugent & Co.

Analysts expect lethargic trading in advance of the Independence Day holiday, for which the stock market will shut Friday.

"It should be very, very slow this week," said Rudnet. "I expect volume to decrease each day, subject to there being no dramatic news. I wouldn't be surprised if Thursday turns out to be the slowest day of the year."

Dollar Slightly Higher, Gold, Silver Edge Down

By United Press International

The dollar moved slightly higher in light trading at the opening of major world money markets Tuesday. Gold edged lower.

In early New York activity, the dollar was firmer against key foreign currencies in light trading following the Commerce Department's announcement the nation's leading indicators rose 0.7 percent in May.

The May increase follows newly revised estimates that the index rose 0.2 percent in April and 0.9 percent in March. Economists previously had predicted the indicators would rise about 0.5 percent to 0.6 percent in May.

In early trading in the Far East, the dollar rose to 146.75 yen — its highest level in almost three months — up 0.17 from Monday's close of 146.52 yen.

Traders in Japan noted institutional investors sold the dollar in some late profit-taking.

In European trading, the dollar opened stronger in Frankfurt at 1.83 German marks, up from Monday's close of 1.828.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.52 Swiss francs, up from 1.5195, in Paris at 6.1055 French francs, up from 6.10, in Amsterdam at 2.06 Dutch guilders, up from 2.0595, and in Milan at 1,326.50 lire, up from Monday's 1,325.55.

In Brussels, the dollar opened lower at 36.095 Belgian francs, down fractionally from Monday's close of 38.10.

In London, the British pound opened slightly higher at $1.604, up from Monday's close of 1.602.

Bullion prices opened slightly lower on what New York traders said was a failure to break out of recent narrow trading ranges Monday on firmer oil prices and inflation fears.

In Zurich, gold opened 50 cents an ounce lower at $448 an ounce, and it fell $1.50 an ounce in London to $447.75 an ounce.

The London morning gold fixing was $447.10, off $2.15 from Monday's close.

Silver opened 15 cents an ounce higher in Zurich at $7.20 an ounce and gained 8.5 cents in London to $7.17 an ounce.

In early trading in the Far East, gold closed at $447.75 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, up $1.50 from Monday's close.

Leading Indicators May Index Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A surge in the average workweek pushed the Index of Leading Indicators up 0.7 percent in May, the Commerce Department said today.

The May increase follows newly revised estimates that the index rose 0.2 percent in April and 0.9 percent in March. The government previously had said the index fell 0.6 percent in April and rose 0.8 percent in March.

The index — a compilation of 11 different factors in the economy — is considered a bellwether for the nation's economic health over the next few months. It has fallen just three times in the past 17 months.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige noted that the index has risen since December at an annual rate of 7.4 percent. He said that it is "consistent with near term growth of 3 percent to 4 percent in the economy."

Both Bateman and Phillips appeared unemotional during their separate but consecutive hearings.

Phillips is a petite blonde with short hair and wears large-lens glasses. Bateman is slim with well-trimmed dark hair. His calm appearance was in sharp contrast to that of his aunt, who shook and spoke in a faltering voice during the hearing.

employee should know the consequences; it is their right to know," Wheeler said.

NIPSCO is also proposing salary credit for outside work experience, military service and education for its members, many of whom are skilled tradesmen. Wheeler said a ratio on the salary schedule for pay purposes would be determined. Also, a proposal that credit be given to employees based on the type of degree they had or for a certificate from a competency based program.

Employees who hold a state license such as in pest control, air conditioning and so on would be compensated on a technician's pay grade rather than on a mechanic's pay-grade as in effect in another proposed change in the contract, Wheeler said.

Another proposal concerns a change in the pay-out for unused sick leave at the time of retirement. Under the proposal, more than 10 years service would receive 100 percent of the daily rate for a total out of unused sick leave at the time of retirement, Wheeler said.

Another major proposal relates to the employee evaluation procedure. Employees are evaluated once a year and not until the end of the year. NIPSCO wants a growth process evaluation twice a year and recommendations of how the employee can improve. "A chance to improve before dismissing him," Wheeler said.

Chief School Board negotiator Ernest Cowley offered proposals which included language concerning the criteria to be used when school bus routes become available to drivers and field trip requirements for drivers.

When a vacant route is available to drivers, a driver's attendance record, experience in several areas including driving experience and discipline, and whether a driver's bus is stored at the transportation compound would be taken into account, according to the board proposal.

Drivers volunteering to drive students to field trips should not cancel at the last minute or they will be removed from field trip consideration for the remainder of the year. Also, the proposal asks that bus drivers not be allowed to reassign their driving duty to another driver at the last minute.

Cowley will present the unions' proposals to board members during an executive session on July 8. Further negotiations, including salary proposals, will resume by mid-July.

Lake Mary Commission Qualifying Begins

By Genie Lindberg Herald Staff Writer

Qualifying for three city commission seats in Lake Mary begins today and at least one of those three commissioners is seeking reelection.

Commissioner Charlie Webster, who is serving his first term as a city commissioner, said, "I'm going to qualify to replace myself; I feel the experience I've had over the past two years has qualified me to become a more effective city commissioner," he said. "The office of city commissioner has become much more complicated in recent years because of involvement with new rules and regulations and growth plans and so forth." Webster said the city needs experienced commissioners. "I have a deep and abiding concern for Lake Mary and especially the older citizens who I feel need representation on the city commission. As a pretty well known, I would like to have a senior citizens center in Lake Mary so those people have some place to spend their time."

Qualifying for city commission seats 1, 3 and 5 will begin at noon and run until noon on July 24, City Clerk Carol Edwards said.

Seat 1 is held by Webster and seat 5 is held by Commissioner Ken King. Arthur "Buzz" Petoos who held seat 5 has been suspended by Gov. Bob Martinez because of a burglary charge against Petoos whose trial is pending. He has entered a plea of "not guilty."

Club Looks Saved

A group wanting to save "The Club at the Crossings" near Lake Mary has apparently won its crusade and plans to open the club again July 3.

Committee members last night decided the 200 memberships they have secured are enough to keep the club afloat while additional memberships are sought once the club is back in operation. Committee member Mike Kendig said memberships may be purchased by anyone within driving distance of Lake Mary and are not limited to residents of The Crossings' half dozen residential communities.

Kendig said, "We hashed out the pluses and minuses of opening the club and decided to give it a shot."

The club, just off Lake Boulevard, was a favorite of Crossings' residents but it was sold and the tennis courts and pool were closed in February. Since that time residents have worked to re-open the club. Members have formed a non-profit corporation and are advertising for a manager to run the facilities which include the clubhouse, showers, changing rooms and lockers, Kendig said.

Yearly memberships are being offered at $350 for a family, $200 for a single person and $150 for an individual to use the tennis courts only, he said.

Petoos could not be reached for comment today but recently told a Herald reporter that he planned "to be sitting in his commission seat again" in the future. He was serving his first term as city commissioner.

King said today that he did not know yet if he would be qualifying himself. "I don't know yet," he said. "I have a lot of time to qualify and I'm still thinking about it." King has served another term as commissioner but did not serve the term immediately preceding the one he is now serving, Edwards said.

Newly-elected commissioners will take office on Oct. 5, Edwards said.

In order to qualify as a candidate, a person must be a registered voter and qualified elector of the city. Each candidate will need to open a campaign account, appoint a treasurer and pay a qualifying fee of $25 which must be paid out of the campaign account, Edwards said. Also, each candidate will have to fill out a loyalty oath and a disclosure statement reflecting financial interests for the preceding tax year, she said.

Mayor Dick Fess will remain in his official seat which expires in 1988, Edwards said.

Two of the three children who came down with the disease are also school children but there appears to be no connection between the outbreak and public schools in Seminole County. Vogt promised Monday to lead a push for funding the construction in next year's state budget, possibly through the $500 million infrastructure fund created this year through sales tax levies on services.

"If the DOT proceeds with the planning work this year as rapidly as I hope, then I will make a concerted effort to include the necessary construction dollars in next year's budget," Vogt said. "I would anticipate that this project would be an excellent candidate for inclusion in the $500 million state infrastructure trust fund."

Another likelihood is funding through the DOT construction trust fund, he said.

Longwood To Discuss Attorney, Overdue Audit

Longwood City Commissioners will hold a work session at 5 p.m. today to schedule interviews with top candidates for the job of city attorney and to discuss the status of a city audit being prepared by Kane & Associates accounting firm.

Three finalists chosen from among the 13 applicants were recommended to the commission by a committee of three lawyers including Interim City Attorney Ann Colby, who resigned from the position of city attorney effective June 15, and attorney Paul Gougelman III and his wife Maureen Sikora, chairman of the city's Code Enforcement Board.

The audit was due before March 31, but has been delayed because the auditor has had difficulty in obtaining necessary information from the city's financial department. A representative of Kane & Associates is scheduled to be present at today's session to discuss a preliminary report which the firm has just submitted.

Iran Attacks Kuwaiti Vessel, Missile Damages Engine Room

By United Press International

An Iranian gunboat fired a missile into a Kuwaiti cargo carrier in the Persian Gulf, setting its engine room on fire, in the third such attack in four days, shipping insurers Lloyds of London and gulf shipping sources said today.

"Engine room on fire — request immediate assistance," said the call received by Lloyds in Bahrain today from the 32,534-ton Al Mirqab, which was hit by the missile 20 miles off the Saudi Arabian coast.

Shipping sources said the crew of the container ship swiftly put out the fire and there were no reports of casualties. The ship was hit during the night but it was unclear if it was before or after midnight.

The sources said the Al Mirqab was heading from Kuwait to Bahrain when it was hit some 40 miles west of the Iranian island of Farshyah.

Soviets Adopt Limited Reforms

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Supreme Soviet today adopted a law allowing limited public discussion of proposed political, economic and social policies, and a sweeping enterprise reform package aimed at making industries self-financing.

The 1,500-member nominal parliament, meeting for a second day in the Kremlin, made into law Mikhail Gorbachev's reform on freeing enterprises from total state control.

"The document introduces fundamental changes to the established practices of the functioning of the Soviet industrial plants, factories, and the entire economic system, the official Tass news agency said.

The state enterprise law, which comes into effect Jan. 1, 1988, makes firms self-financing, allowing them to contract for goods and to sell their products both on the market and to the state.

Korea To Accept Demands

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — President Chun Doo Hwan will announce acceptance of a ruling party proposal for sweeping democratic reforms aimed at ending South Korea's three-week-old political crisis in a national address, a senior government source said today.

The source said that Chun was scheduled to go on the air at 10 a.m. Wednesday and will agree to recommendations made by Roh Tae-woo, chairman of the Democratic Justice Party, to meet opposition demands for direct presidential elections and other changes.

"The president is expected to accept the proposal in his special radio-television speech to the nation Wednesday," said the source, who requested anonymity.

Corny Story Has Kernel Of Truth

DEAR ABBY: I see that you're taking a survey to find out how many couples cheat on each other. I'm reminded of this story I've known for years:

A young farmer took a bride. He made one request: "Never look in the trunk of my car." She said, "OK."

On their 40th wedding anniversary, the wife's curiosity got the better of her and she opened the trunk of her husband's car. There she found three ears of corn and $10,000 in cash! She quickly closed the trunk and went to her husband and asked him what three ears of corn and $10,000 were doing in the trunk of his car.

He then confessed that every time he was unfaithful to her, he would put an ear of corn in the trunk of his car. Her immediate anger was somewhat tempered when she realized that in 40 years, he had placed only three ears of corn in the trunk. Then she asked, "What is the $10,000 for?" He replied, "Every time I got a bushel of corn, I sold it."

Love, FRED

DEAR FRED: I always have ears for a corny story — especially one with a kernel of truth in it.

DEAR ABBY: I have just received your booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." I ordered it to give to my 12-year-old niece. How I wish I had read this booklet 35 years ago. I am 44, experienced sex at 13, married at 16, had a child shortly after, and was divorced before I was 20.

I am now married to a very fine man, which was lucky for me considering the way I started out. Abby, it would be ideal if all preteens, teens, and even 20- and 30-year-olds would keep this very precious loving act for marriage, but those who don't need to know how to keep teen-age sex from ruining their lives.

Please keep telling young people what they ought to know. You are doing a wonderful job. Please advertise this booklet. It's the best $2.50 I ever spent.

LUCKY IN MEDFORD, ORE.

DEAR LUCKY: Thanks for your kind words. The booklet can be obtained by sending a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to "Denver Dilemma" was somewhat shortsighted and narrow. I agree, to marry because you want to be a mother is a poor reason for marriage, but marriage is not required to become a mother — as many foolish teens have discovered to their chagrin.

You offer to "Denver" the options of single adoptive parenthood or finding a marriageable man, but why be so restrictive?

I am a 32-year-old professional woman who is also aware that my biological clock is running out, and I have a dear male friend who has agreed to be a sperm donor for me. If, by age 35, I haven't met someone I want to marry, if "Denver" can be a single adoptive parent, she can just as well be a single natural parent, without going through the adoption process, or "scrounging around" for a marriageable man.

Having a partner to raise children with is ideal — but it's not the only way.

BIDDING MY TIME

DEAR BIDDING: Having a dear male friend who has agreed to donate his sperm should you "need" it is not without its problems. The child he has fathered biologically will be a lifelong bond between you — and could conceivably (no pun intended) cause problems both legal and social later on. Think about it.

DEAR ABBY: I married a very wealthy man, and whenever he is angry with me, he says I married him only for his money. This isn't true and it hurts my feelings. Why does he do this, and how can I stop him?

N.T.

DEAR N.T.: You can't. He says you married him only for his money because he probably thinks that's all he has going for him.

Double Ring Rites Unite Debra Foster, D.R. Edge

Debra Rene Foster and Dan R. Edge, both of Sanford, were married June 6, at 3 p.m., at Central Baptist Church, Sanford. The Rev. Freddie Smith, church pastor, was the officiating clergyman for the traditional double ring ceremony.

Janet Ripp, DeBary, and Barbara Redmon, Sanford, sisters of the bride, sang "A Time For Us," and "The Wedding Song," accompanied by pianist Barbara Lee Jenkins of Geneva.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. (Patricia) Foster, Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ann Crebs, Sanford, and the late Mr. Troy Lee Edge Jr. Annette Willis of Osteen, sister of the bridegroom, represented the family at the wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride's gown was a flourish of lace and ruffles. Simulated pearls and sparkling sequins embellished the fitted bodice with schiffli embroidery detailing the lace stand-up collar and illusion net front yoke. Tiers of lace-trimmed ruffles formed the full skirt that extended into a trailing heart-shaped train. Her headpiece was an exquisite Victorian bridal hat with a turned-up side brim that was accented with coin-dotted English net, satin ribbon, Venise lace medallions and dainty roses. The high pouf terminated in a cloud of fingertip illusion. She carried a cascade of white silk sweetheart roses, rosebuds, carnations, azaleas and dianthus centered with a cascade of aqua azaleas and bell flowers.

Hollis Hunsinger of Sanford, attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a strapless aqua lace over satin gown with a matching bow over one shoulder. The fitted bodice extended to a full skirt. She carried a boutique arrangement of aqua silk carnations and azaleas and sweetheart roses in a background of white mini roses and azaleas of mixed spring colors. She wore a comb arranged with matching flowers in her hair.

Bridesmaids were Kathy O'Brien, Osteen; and Debra Campbell, Sanford. Junior bridesmaid was Terri Lee Edge, Geneva, daughter of the bridegroom. Their gowns were identical to the honor attendant's, and their flowers and headpieces were similar.

Dennis Lambert of Sanford served the bridegroom as best man. Usher was David Sauls of Sanford. Groomsmen were Rodney Bishop, New Smyrna Beach; John W. Foster, Orlando, brother of the bride; and William P. Foster, Sanford, brother of the bride.

Flower girl was LaDonna Lynn Edge, Geneva, daughter of the bridegroom. She wore a teal-length aqua dress and carried assorted spring flowers in a lace basket.

Jeffrey DeVaughn, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

The reception was held at Sanora Clubhouse.

Among the out-of-town-guests was Clara Foster Senter, paternal grandmother of the bride from North Carolina.

Following a wedding trip to St. Augustine, the newlyweds are making their home in Sanford.

Seminar Covers Addiction And Psychiatric Disorders

Understanding Dual Diagnosis: Addiction and Psychiatric Disorders" is the topic of a free community seminar from 7-9 p.m. July 15 at West Lake Hospital.

Dual diagnosis patients have a chemical dependency and a psychiatric disorder, and both must be addressed in treatment. The first step in treating the problem is to make the correct diagnosis. "It's important not to miss the second diagnosis in the addicted person," states William F. Eckbert, M.D., West Lake Psychiatric and seminar panelist. "An accurate diagnosis is essential in developing a comprehensive treatment plan."

Questions often arise, however, as to which illness to treat first, whether the problems can be treated simultaneously, or whether one problem should be ignored for the sake of healing the other.

Issues such as these will be addressed by the panel, to include Dr. Eckbert, Walter Hawkins, M.S., senior clinician on the hospital's adolescent psychiatric unit, and Ann Norman, L.C.S.W., clinician with Florida Psychiatric Consultants.

Two continuing education units will be offered to seminar participants. Attendance is free but reservations are requested by calling West Lake Hospital's Marketing Department at 260-1900, ext. 102.

Headliners Is The Home Of Prize-Winning Stylists

The staff of Headliners would like to thank their customers for their patronage. Headliners is located at 2303 French Ave. (Highway 17-92) right next to MPO Meats and across the street from Badcock Furniture in Sanford.

The stylists at Headliners are celebrating the fifth anniversary of the salon being in business. The award-winning salon has doubled in size since the opening and its stylists have won many major awards for their expertise. Some of their achievements include winning first place in:

- Model over 40 (state).
- Ladies Artistic Day and Petite Gala (state).
- Fantasy (state).
- Commercial — Day (state).
- Total Fashion (state).
- Hair Styles from the Past (state).
- National Artistic Day Style.
- National Artistic Petite Gala.
- National Blow Dry Style.

And last but not least The American Cup — the highest award you can win in this country in hair design.

The stylists at Headliners have studied under some of the greatest educators this country and foreign countries have to offer including Ann and Gary Bray and attending the Vidal Sassoon Academy in London, England.

If you are new to the area or you just haven't been in the salon, please take a few minutes one day and stop in and look the salon over. The stylists will take the time to discuss any problems you're having with your hair and offer some suggestions on creating a new look just for you. The stylists of the Headliner Salon think it is of utmost importance to have a listening ear. They want to do exactly what you have in mind and want to suggest some new ideas to keep you looking great.

The customers that come to their salon are the most important people in the world to them because without them they do not have a business.

Along with the stylists they have an electrologist, Audrey Corso, and a nail technician, June Riebe. June is an excellent nail artist. She is busy doing nails everyday except Mondays. June's work has been featured on the cover of the Leisure section of The Herald.

If you're traveling several miles to have your nails done, you don't have to do that anymore. Headliners has an artist that can satisfy your needs completely. She also does manicures and pedicures.

Oil Could Help Vietnam's Economy

By Paul Wedel
 HANOI (UPI) — More than a decade after American companies discovered oil off Vietnam's coast, that country's Communist government and its Soviet partners are just beginning reap the benefits.

But Vietnamese officials are keeping the door open for U.S. oil companies to rejoin the business, despite America's trade embargo against their country.

"We are ready to deal with anyone — even Americans. If American companies offer one dime more than the others, then we deal with them," said Gen. Nguyen Hoa, director general of the department for oil and gas in a rare interview.

Hoa said oil production, pegged at about 280,000 barrels last year, would jump to between 1.05 million and 1.75 million barrels in 1987. He predicted production would increase even more in the 1990s, possibly up to 3 million tons per year.

The amounts are not great, even by the standards of other Southeast Asian countries, but with petroleum prices rising they are a godsend to a Vietnamese economy suffering from low production, runaway inflation and lack of foreign exchange.

Vietnam made its first sales of crude oil in March through a Japanese trading company to Japanese refineries, Hoa said such sales will continue until Vietnam can build its own refinery. He said the government has already given permission to build a refinery that could absorb all crude oil production.

He said the refinery, with a planned capacity of 21 million barrels per year for its first line, is to be built by Vietnam with equipment and technical advice from the Soviet Union.

Such capacity would provide for most of Vietnam's oil consumption and end the expensive imports that have burdened the country's stagnant economy.

Hoa said that Vietnam would still need to import special lubricating oil and refinery chemicals. "Here is another area where we could buy from American companies except that the stick of the American government is too long," he said.

He said Vietnam would also like to buy oilfield equipment from France and the United States and oil rigs from South Korea.

"American companies have some good products, but they don't seem to be free of the control of their government the way that the Japanese and other (nations') companies are," he said.

All of Vietnam's current production comes from the Bach Ho (White Tiger) field off South Vietnam, which was discovered in 1974 during the Vietnam war by the Mobil Corp. and Shell Oil Co. of the United States.

After the Communist victory over the south in 1975, Vietnam engaged German, Canadian and Italian companies to continue exploration, but little of commercial value was found.

In 1981, Vietnam signed an exploration agreement with the Soviet Union, setting up a joint venture called Vietxopetro. Three years later, it began drilling in the area Mobil had paid $16.5 million to explore.

The Vietnamese Communists earlier described the contracts of four foreign oil companies with South Vietnam's government as "illegal, traitorous and anti-popular."

The oil companies countered that their exploration rights had been expropriated without payment.

Let Volkshop Specialists Get Your Car Ready For Trip

Planning a trip? Before you head for the road, head for Volkshop. Their experienced technicians can have your car running smoothly and safely to ensure a happier vacation.

Volkshop specializes in repairs, maintenance and parts for Volkswagens, Toyotas, Datsuns, Nissans, Hondas and Mazdas. Located at 214 Palmetto Ave. in Historic Downtown Sanford, they specialize in engine and trans-axle rebuilding. They also do oil and lube jobs, and repairs on brakes, front ends, transmissions and exhaust systems.

Marvin Wright, owner of Volkshop, is grateful for his loyal customers, some of whom patronized his father, Barto Wright's repair shop before him. Together they have operated independent repair shops here for 50 years.

"To some dealers, it's just another car," said Marvin, "but at Volkshop, we take each one individually. We treat our customers right, that's why we have so much repeat business."

Call Marvin at 321-0120 for an appointment to have your car worked on or for a free estimate on your particular make and model. They will check your car for defects without charge.

Marvin and his team of experienced technicians — John, Ray, Bill, Harry and Glen — are dedicated to keeping your vintage VW Bug looking and running its best. If your VW is showing its age, the folks at Volkshop can completely recondition and refurbish it from the ground up for a fraction of what a new car would cost. This includes tires, paint job, new engine and brakes.

If you are one of those car owners who prefer to do their own repairs, Volkshop has the quality parts you need for the job.

They stock Treuhaff and Bosch parts, Continental belts and hoses and Castrol motor oils for VWs, Toyotas and Datsuns.

Volkshop is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

MPO Meats Open Every Day In New Sanford Location

MPO (Meat Producers Outlet) Meats, formerly located at the Village Flea Market, opened for business in its new building at 2397 S. French Ave., Sanford, six months ago.

MPO Meats is now open seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. with a meat cutter on duty to prepare special cuts for your individual needs and top quality U.S.D.A. choice meats. They have a complete line of fresh or frozen seafood including shrimp, fish, lobster and shellfish.

Owner Java "Red" Jones still offers the best of everything in seafood, meat and poultry at low prices with something for everyone — from mullet to caviar.

MPO has pork, chitlins, sausage, boxed beef steaks or patties, smoked meats, milk, eggs, cheese and fruit drinks.

At MPO you don't have to search for a parking place, hike from the other side of a hot parking lot or wander around a huge super market to find what you want. Park outside the door under roof and come in to the cool, clean and compact market where the quality products are displayed in the best modern equipment to be found.

Self-employed most of his adult life, Mr. Jones was a successful produce dealer in his home state of North Carolina before realizing his dream of moving to Sanford in 1958.

He and his wife left family and friends to come here and start over. Described by his daughter Glenda Mangum, MPO manager, as a "classic workaholic," Mr. Jones had a small fleet of semi-trucks when he came down so he bought the Village Truck Stop. A few years later, he acquired the adjacent property where he started the Village Flea Market, which eventually became very successful enterprise. He then built the MPO meat market at the back of the Flea Market next to Jan's Produce.

In 1986, Mr. Jones sold the property that now is the new Winn-Dixie shopping center.

Being the type of man that can not retire, he decided to build the beautiful new MPO Meat Market.

But this wasn't enough for this man to do so he opened Java W. Jones Used Cars. Seventy years young, Mr. Jones still works an average of 16 hours a day his daughter said.

"Even when times were the roughest, this man never turned his back on a fellow human being in need," she said. "We would like to thank this truly amazing man for the example he has been to all who have known him."

Husband Is Victim Of His Own Doctor

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband, 48, has been epileptic since a head injury at age 18. He takes Celontin, Dilantin, Mysoline and Peganone. Lately he's been having severe headaches and sleeps all the time. He staggers and can't carry on a conversation. We've been to many doctors, but none will discuss these symptoms.

DEAR READER — Celontin is an anti-convulsant that can cause drowsiness, lack of coordination, headache and dizziness. Dilantin is an anti-convulsant that can cause confusion, slurred speech, twitching and trouble walking. Mysoline is an anti-convulsant that can cause double vision, difficulty walking, dizziness and drowsiness. Peganone is an anti-convulsant that can cause double vision, trouble walking, headache and fatigue.

I think that your husband is overmedicated. What is the matter with his doctors? Even if they can't figure out his problem, they could at least discuss his symptoms with you. Don't bother to ask them for a referral. Get your husband to a neurology clinic at a university or teaching hospital closest to you.

I am also sending you a free copy of my Health Report, EPILEPSY: THE 'FALLING SICKNESS.' Other readers who are interested in the report should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — We got some barn cats. They got sick and died, but we doctored them and caught some kind of parasite that is now in our scalps, under the skin. It's driving us crazy, but the doctors around here can't seem to help. How can we get rid of these bugs?

DEAR READER — Cats can carry many kinds of parasites, including scabies and head lice. Before being treated, you should have the cause of your itch identified. Go to the laboratory at your community hospital and ask the technician to check your head for parasites.

A second, less traumatic approach would be to ask your doctor to refer you to a de-rmatologist. A final suggestion that is a first for me: If your doctors can't help, ask a local veterinarian for advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I take Synthroid. After my regular game of racketball, I get excessive cramping all over my body. Is this related to the medication or to my thyroid condition?

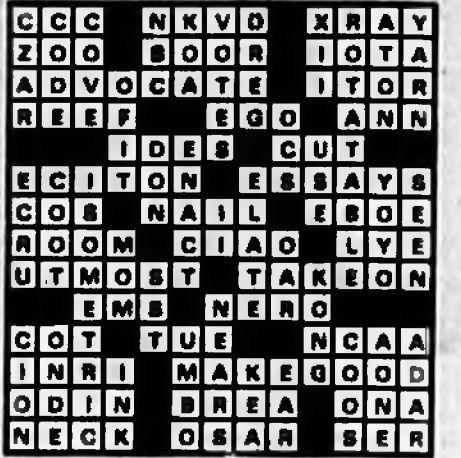

DEAR READER — Muscle

cramping after exercise is not caused either by the thyroid medicine you are taking or by the thyroid gland itself. More likely, you are sweating profusely and losing fluid (and salt) from your body. Try drinking more water during your workouts and use a salt tablet before you play racketball.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Strange things happen in the rarefied atmosphere of tournament bridge. West led the jack of hearts against the slam. Now any sensible person sitting East would assume that partner had nothing more than the heart jack. He would take the position that any further trick coming to the defense would be late in the hand. He would also consider it a bad idea to duck this first trick, since he might not like being on lead later. Then another thought crossed the mind of poor East. What if West were making a deceptive lead with, say, the Q-J doubleton of hearts? Shouldn't that be more likely than the jack from a singleton or a doubleton — a lead abhorred by many experts? So the beat went on.

Eventually East played low. Declarer won the queen, played A-K of diamonds, on which he threw a spade, and ruffed a diamond. He next played to the club king and played another diamond. East discarded a club as South ruffed. Now South cashed the ace of clubs, ruffed a club and played a trump. East had to win the heart ace. When he played a spade, declarer took the percentage view that the spade honors were split in the defenders' hands, and so made the slam.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

JULY 1, 1987
An active, exciting year ahead is in the offing. There will be important surprises in rather rapid succession that will improve things for you in areas where disappointment had prevailed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An ability to think on your feet is your greatest asset today. You'll make advantageous moves while others are still pondering the facts. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to restore the relationship. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Material conditions look favorable for you today. However, the development of profitable possibilities will be engineered by others. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Chance could play a larger role than usual in matters of personal importance today. Take positive action and keep hoping for the best.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't waste your time on mundane objectives today. You're likely to be far more fortunate if you strive for a goal of true significance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't let your faith waver today; there are strong indications that things could work out even better than you dared to hope. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A condition that affects your earning capacity will begin changing for the better today. It will be in ways of which you may be unaware.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Harmony can now be restored in a relationship that has been a trifle uneasy lately. It will be up to you to offer the olive branch.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something secret is stirring where your work is concerned. When revealed, it might not please your associates but it should make you happy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Weigh decisions tenderly today. Base your judgment on how something affects others and not on what money you may gain.

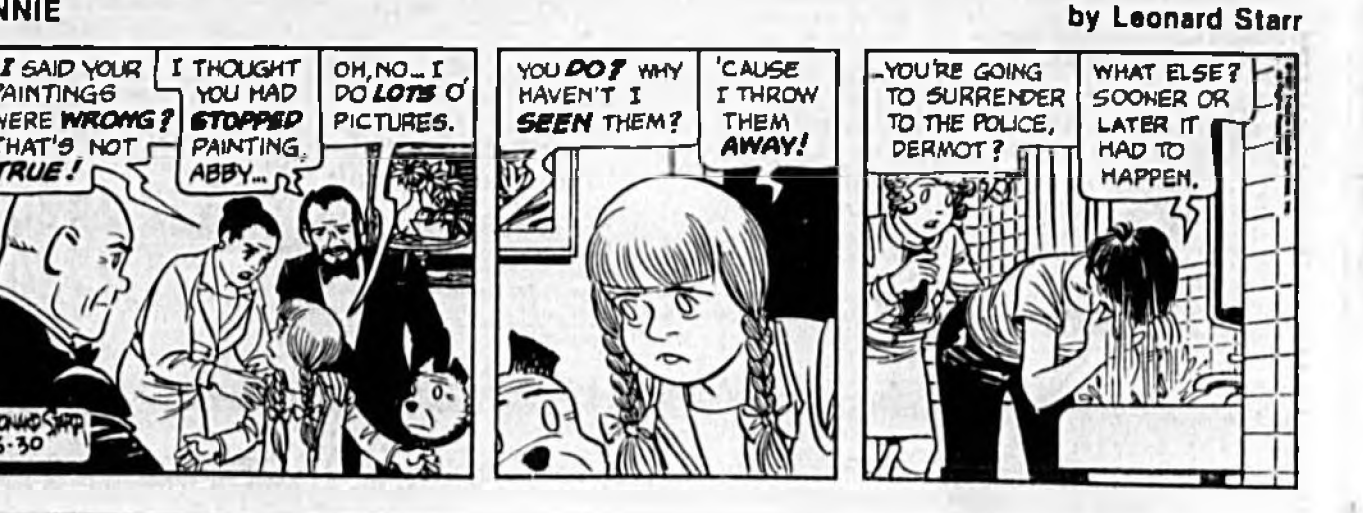

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can get a lot of work that you've previously brushed aside finished today if you're determined to do so. Tomorrow you might not feel as industrious.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your popularity is at a high point and your pleasing demeanor will attract admirers. It's not likely that anyone can outstage you today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you have the time and inclination, this is a good day to do a bit of bargain hunting, especially if you're looking for household items.
