Altamonte Expects New Hotel To Host 'Upper Crust'

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

An eight-story Hilton Hotel may be under construction in Altamonte Springs by the first of the year.

A Dallas-based development firm has received site-plan approval from the city, for the facility which will be located behind Interstate Mall.

Woody Coley, in charge of office space leasing in Altamonte Springs for the developer, Trammel Crow Co. of Dallas, said although a management group to operate the 325-room hotel has not been finally selected, the site plan application was submitted under the names of Northlake Hilton and Altamonte Hilton. It will be the tallest building in the city.

Wanda Jackson-Guest, an Altamonte Springs city planner said the plan was approved by the planning board subject to corrections in the engineering plans being made and resubmitted for approval by the city staff. She said because an eight-story hotel was included in the Trammel Crow's Planned Unit Development approved a couple of years ago by the city, it was only necessary to take the hotel plans before the planning board and they will not have to go before the city commission as well.

"It was locked along with the business complex and a restaurant (which has not yet been built.)"

Coley said it will take 12-14 months from start of construction to completion of the project which will be built on a 7.5 acre site that is part of 64-acre PUD owned and developed by Trammel Crow.

"We are excited," he said, "it will do a lot for Altamonte and for the economy in terms of the dollars spent, taxes generated, and the availability of jobs."

He said that the "upper-end" hotel will cater to businessmen and will have meeting space for up to 600 persons.

"More and more a mix of offices and hotels and retail operations and hotels are being used," Coley said.

Trammel Crow already has 11 service center and high-technology buildings on the property with a total of 250,000 square feet and will start construction on another 55,000-square-foot office service center next month, Coley said.

He said hotel is still in the design phase and the company is still involved in deciding how it will be packaged. "We don't intend to manage it ourselves, but we don't know yet whether it will be leased to a hotel management group or what."

This would be Hilton Hotels Corporation's fourth hotel in the Orlando area.

"We are excited that Hilton wants to come here," Mrs. Jackson-Guest said. "One of our directors stopped by a Hilton with a similar design that has just been completed in North Carolina, and he said it was first class, 100 percent extra nice. It will be a place for the many business executives coming to town to stay, there are a lot of big league firms coming to the city."

With so many major companies and major money firms wanting to come to Altamonte, she said there is a new surprise every week. "Hopefully we are getting quality development," she added. "We make it tough for them to get approval, but when they do we have quality ones."

McDougall Trial Begins

Testimony began at 8:30 this morning in St. Petersburg in the murder trial of Donald Glenn McDougall after a 12-member jury was selected yesterday.

The selection process was completed late Thursday night after defense attorneys and prosecutors agreed on a jury composed of six men and six women.

Seminole Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. moved the trial to Pinellas County after it appeared that it would be very difficult to pick an impartial jury in Seminole County because of extensive news media coverage of the crime.

McDougall, 27, is charged with first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse in the September 1982 death of Ursula Sunshine Assaid. The body, stuffed into a burlap sack and weighted down, was recovered from an Altamonte Springs pond in December.

Later, the child's mother, Susan Barrett Assaid, 30, pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the case and is expected to be the state's key witness in the case against McDougall.

The state charges that McDougall beat and tortured the child, sat her naked in a sink filled with ice, forced her to eat soap and made her constantly walk around a room.

$4 Million Sought For Road Work

County To Take Hat-In-Hand To Capital

By Michael Behn
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County officials will travel to Tallahassee Monday to ask the state Department of Commerce for $4 million to improve and expand Lake Mary Boulevard.

County Commissioners Robert Sturm and Sandra Glenn will join Public Works Director Jack Schuder in asking for state funds to widen a portion of the boulevard between Lake Emma and Rinehart roads and to extend the highway from its current intersection at U.S. Highway 17-92 to Sanford Avenue.

The Department of Commerce will award $10 million to counties and cities in the state for projects to improve highways which have been affected by industrial development.

Schuder said Seminole's proposal is unique because county officials want to expand the roads before extensive industrial development occurs.

"It's the first time anyone has done it. But we're encouraged by the interest shown by Department of Commerce officials."

The project links three areas in which major industrial development is expected to occur.

"We've put together a package that fits well into the Commerce Department's desire to encourage economic growth," Schuder said.

The proposal, which has the endorsement of Lake Mary and Sanford city commissions, calls for making Lake Mary Boulevard a four-lane road between Lake Emma Road and Rinehart Road. The 4,700-foot section would make for easier access between industrial areas on the two roads.

Lake Mary Boulevard would be extended about a mile, from its present terminus at U.S. 17-92 to Sanford Avenue, near Cardinal Industries.

"It would provide better access and encourage other firms to locate there. Rather than having to get on County Road 427 (Sanford Avenue) and jogging onto Airport Boulevard or 17-92, trucks would be able to get right on Lake Mary Boulevard."

Schuder said the county's proposal should draw additional support from a state Department of Transportation plan to improve the Interstate 4 interchange with Lake Mary Boulevard. The state plans to spend $10 million to build two additional lanes at the interchange.

"That shows the tremendous potential the DOT sees in this area and the need to make improvements," Schuder said.

The proposal also fits in with a study by a citizens' group study which recommends widening Lake Mary Boulevard to six lanes over the next 20 years. The road is projected as a major artery for residential and industrial development in the northern part of the county.

A total of 50 proposals have been made to the Commerce Department, Schuder said, although some of them may have been weeded out prior to the presentations.

Schuder said the county's presentation will include aerial and ground level videotapes of the areas which would be affected by the proposal. "We hope they'll be impressed."

A decision by the state is expected in about 30 days, he said.

State Moving Up Tax Bite Ladder

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida ranked 46th in the country last year in average state government taxes collected per resident, but it is rapidly moving up the ladder.

Only eight states collected more than the $5.6 billion received by Florida state government last year, although Floridians paid less tax per person than most of the rest of the nation, the Citizens Council for Budget Research reported Thursday.

Reagan Shuffles Chairs To Put Clark In Watt Seat

By Ira R. Allen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a dramatic and unexpected shuffling of top government staff, President Reagan is putting his jack-of-all-trades confidant, William Clark, into the Interior Department spot vacated by James Watt.

The suddenness of Reagan's decision and his immediate announcement of it at an unlikely forum late Thursday stunned official Washington. House Republican leader Robert Michel called it "incredible and baffling." One conservation leader called it "an insult to the environment."

But Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said, "I am confident he (Clark) will be confirmed."

The move of Clark from his White House rancum as national security adviser to the Interior Department raised questions about the importance of foreign policy and, for the third time, questions about the powerful Clark's qualifications for such a high position.

Clark, 51, is fourth-generation California rancher who became '...a God-fearing westerner, a fourth generation rancher and a person I trust.'

—Ronald Reagan

Reagan's trusted adviser during his days as governor, serving as a justice on the state Supreme Court, deputy secretary of state and national security adviser. He had no experience in any of the jobs before taking them.

But he always retained Reagan's confidence.

Clark, who is given to wearing cowboy boots and a Stetson, is called "Judge Clark" by his associates in deference to his previous judicial post.

Reagan said Clark is "a God-fearing westerner, fourth-generation rancher, and a person I trust. And I think he will be a great secretary of the interior."

William P. Clark

Clark, in a written statement, said he was "pleased and honored" by the nomination. "As an American who believes in our society, I pledge that if confirmed I will do all that I can to preserve and enhance our natural heritage," he said.

No matter who got the job, Watt's controversial land-management policies would not have changed, said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

Couple Get $90,000 In Arrest Suit

By Charles Cobb
Herald Staff Writer

An elderly Mailland couple were awarded $90,000 in damages by a Seminole County jury Thursday in a suit stemming from a shoplifting arrest at an Altamonte Springs department store.

The jury agreed that Russell Shriver, 83, and his wife, Emiline, 62, who developed a stutter and became a recluse after their arrest, were victims of false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, assault and battery and had suffered intentional inflictions of emotional distress.

On March 24, 1982, the Shrivvers were detained and accused of stealing two bottles of drain opener from the Jefferson Ward store in the Interstate Mall. The shoplifting charges were eventually dropped by the state attorney's office.

According to psychiatrists' testimony during the trial, Mrs. Shriver developed a stutter due to the psychological trauma, making her speech very difficult to understand.

Brian Hill, the couple's attorney, said Mrs. Shriver has also developed into a recluse and has left her house only once since the arrest.

"This has made her totally unfunctional," Hill said today.

Shriver testified that he suffers from an illness that can cut off the flow of oxygen to his brain and cause him to become dizzy and disoriented and that during one of his attacks a security guard treated him roughly and bruised him.

"We're really pleased with the outcome," Hill said today. "Mrs. Shriver is very ill and her whole countenance changed when I told her. It's really heart warming. She told me the amount of money (award) didn't really matter. She wanted the vindication."

Hill said he had offered to make a $50,000 pretrial settlement with Jefferson Ward but "the most Ward offered was $10,000."

In the suit Hill had sought $400,000 in damages.

In their testimony, the Shrivvers said:

They were shopping at the store and Mrs. Shriver put two bottles of drain opener, which cost $1.49 each, in a shopping bag they found in a cart and handed it to her husband.

She said she was being careful because some clothes had been ruined when she placed them in a bag with a leaky bottle of bleach during a shopping trip several days earlier.

A short time later, Mr. Shriver suffered an attack and Mrs. Shriver led him to a bench in the mall a few feet outside the entrance to the store.

Mrs. Shriver said she went back inside to pay for some other merchandise she was carrying.

While Mrs. Shriver was in the store, a man wearing jeans and a T-shirt tried to pull her husband into the store. Not realizing that the man was a security guard, Shriver at first thought he was being "mugged," Hill said.

Mrs. Shriver tried to explain to the guard that her husband was ill and asked for help. But the guard took Shriver into a security room in the store and held him against the wall and attempted to handcuff him, Mrs. Shriver said.

She said when she tried to help her husband, the guard pushed her away. She said she forgot about the drain opener when her husband suffered the attack.

The guard, William Alicea, denied that he pushed the woman or roughed up her husband. He said the interview was conducted in a friendly manner.

Jefferson Ward officials pressed shop lifting charges against the couple, claiming Mrs. Shriver had conspired with her husband to steal the cleaner because she had handed the bottles to him.

IN BRIEF

Street Gangs To Prey On Olympics Tourists

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Street gangs are planning a cease-fire between warring factions during the 1984 Olympics so they can roam rival territory to prey on tourists unfamiliar with the city, police and youth gang counselors say.

Sheriff's Lt. Chuck Bradley said the Olympics mean one thing to gang members — "money, and they're going to try to get what they can."

He said cooperating gangs would not show gang colors and signs, and would not challenge rivals in their territory during the Olympic period July 28 through Aug. 11.

Bradley said a heavy law enforcement presence in areas around Olympic sites and hotels will discourage an organized gang operation, particularly in the Coliseum area where opening and closing ceremonies, track events and swimming events will be held.

Helms Wants FBI Info

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the leading opponent of a national holiday to honor Martin Luther King Jr., is now armed with thousands of pages of FBI documents on the alleged communist leanings of the slain civil rights leader.

But despite the release Thursday of 65,000 pages of FBI information through a Freedom of Information Act request, an attorney for the Conservative Caucus said most of what the foes want is still being shielded by the government.

Attorney Larry Straw, who also represents Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was granted a Monday hearing in U.S. District Court on Helms' motion to remove a 1977 court order that keeps most of the FBI's files and tapes of five years of surveillance of King sealed in the National Archives until 2027.

Helms said he needs the secret files so he can cast "an informed vote" Wednesday when the Senate is scheduled to decide the issue. He plans to lead Senate debate against the holiday, beginning Tuesday.

College Showcase At SCC Wednesday

College Showcase '83 will be held at Seminole Community College Wednesday at 7 p.m. Representatives from 130 colleges and universities will be on hand to supply information about their institutions, and to meet with prospective students and their parents.

Showcase is open to the public and is an excellent opportunity to gain first-hand knowledge about many educational programs and opportunities.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Tornadoes slashed their way from Georgia to northern Virginia where the National Weather Service reported one twister caused $1 million in damage in a Washington, D.C. suburb. Snow fell in the Rockies and upper Midwest. A storm front that crackled northward across Virginia for five hours Thursday night swept the area with severe thunderstorms and occasional tornadoes. The National Weather Service said one tornado caused about $1 million damage to 70 homes in Falls Church, Va. and another caused minor damage in Fairfax, Va. Snow fell early today in the northern Rockies, where forecasters said up to 6 inches could accumulate in the higher passes. Several inches of new snow was forecast in the higher mountains of Utah. Forecasters said there was a chance of snow mixed with rain in the upper Great Lakes. Freeze warnings covered southeast Iowa. Some of the earliest snow in memory woke up parts of Iowa Thursday morning, but soon melted on warm ground. The 2 inches that fell at Estherville "is a bit surprising, it's the earliest snow I can remember," said sheriff's dispatcher Melissa Patrick. Light snow was scattered over Minnesota and Iowa Thursday afternoon, and mixed rain and snow fell in northern Minnesota.

Good News For Consumers: Wholesale Inflation Still Weak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices climbed a scant 0.2 percent in September with declining new car and gasoline costs canceling most of a sharp increase in food prices, the Labor Department said today.

The slight increase, half August's rise, was just enough to move 1983's wholesale inflation rate to the plus side for the first time, making the yearly rate for January through September only 0.2 percent.

Last year wholesale prices moved up 3.7 percent. Discounts given auto dealers at the end of the model year took auto prices 2.1 percent lower. Truck prices were down 5.6 percent.

Gasoline edged down 0.1 percent after going up the previous two months.

Food prices jumped 0.7 percent, the most since April, despite a sharp 4.6 percent drop in pork costs.

Wholesale prices are those businesses charge each other and have a big influence on consumer costs at retail in the weeks and months ahead.

A big influence on the wholesale cost of foods was a 21 percent jump in the price of shortening and cooking oils in September, the department said.

Private analysts say the damage from the summer drought raised the price of the soybeans and other ingredients of cooking oils.

The same weather benefitted meat buyers by forcing heat-threatened hogs and cattle to slaughter early. But that move virtually guarantees higher prices later on.

Beef and veal prices were down 3.9 percent in September.

Factory, construction and other capital equipment dropped 0.3 percent in price after going up 0.7 percent in August.

Accounting for 22.5 percent of the Producer Price index, capital equipment prices are a primary influence on the cost of doing business in the long run and a decline is good news for companies trying to expand to keep pace with the economic recovery.

Raw materials prices went up 0.5 percent, far less than August's 2.1 percent climb. Among the raw materials prices was good news for chocolate lovers, a 17.6 percent decline in the cost of cocoa beans.

Until the September report price changes at the wholesale level canceled each other so that through August there was no business inflation. The government's wholesale index in August was no higher than it was at the start of the year.

The September index for all energy products moved up a mild 0.3 percent despite the decline in gasoline prices. Home heating oil was up 2.5 percent at the start of the home heating season in some parts of the country and prices for natural gas were up after two months of declines.

Economist Donald Ratajczak, a Georgia State University researcher who directs one of the most elaborate non-governmental efforts to track wholesale prices, and most other private analysts had expected a larger increase in September.

They maintain that auto companies did not offer all of their traditional auto dealer discounts this year to move leftover 1983 cars because demand has been heavy without them.

With the nation's wholesale inflation rate just beginning to reappear with only three months left in the year, 1983 seems sure to end with a rate less than last year, many analysts say. But continued repercussions of the summer heat could send food prices up sharply.

"Inflation has not been licked but it has been tamed," Ratajczak said.

Marine Killed, 1 Wounded In Lebanese Fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A U.S. Marine was shot and killed and another wounded today by snipers firing at the Marines around their south Beirut headquarters, officials said. Gunmen exchanged small arms fire with the American troops.

A Marine spokesman, Maj. Robert Jordan, said the first incident broke out at 10:05 a.m. when a jeep driver riding around the northeast quarter of the airport was shot by a sniper in both legs.

"He was transported to USS Iwo Jima for treatment," said Jordan of the ship off the Lebanese coast. "His condition is guarded and the prognosis is good."

The second incident took place 37 minutes later, in the same area.

"A Marine was killed when his jeep overturned. He was hit in the chest," said Jordan.

Neither man was identified pending notification of relatives.

There were no further details on the violence that engaged the Marines, members of a 1,200-strong Marine contingent in the multinational peacekeeping force in Beirut.

In downtown west Beirut Thursday, an American Marine guarding the U.S. embassy was hurt when an unidentified assailant hurled a grenade from a passing car at his position — and Jordan said it was part of "an emerging pattern" of harassment of the U.S. Marines.

The Marine shootings came as Druze Moslem gunners in the Shouf mountains bombarded Lebanese army units with rockets and mortars today, threatening the shaky 18-day cease-fire anew despite progress toward opening peace talks.

The new shelling followed a split that developed in the committee monitoring the cease-fire, with two Moslem groups suspending participation.

The Druze rebels, who have been fighting the Christian-dominated government of President Amin Gemayel, fired today from the Shouf mountains southeast of Beirut at the strategic village of Souk El Gharb, which overlooks the capital.

A Lebanese army spokesman said the dawn barrage was brief.

"The gunners opened a mortar and rocket barrage against our positions in Souk El Gharb," the spokesman said. "The army did not return fire and no casualties were taken."

State-run Beirut radio said that in the northern port of Tripoli, "very high tension remained after the bloody battles that left scores of people killed and wounded" Wednesday and Thursday, as pro- and anti-Syrian factions fought.

Security reports said an "estimate" was that 87 people were killed in the two days.

Shamir Disowns Controversial Economic Plan

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir publicly disowned a controversial treasury plan aimed at boosting Israel's embattled economy by linking it to the U.S. dollar.

Shamir's finance minister, Yoram Aridor, resigned Thursday in the aftermath of a furor caused by a leak of the proposal to the mass circulation Yedioth Ahronoth newspaper.

The opposition Labor Party announced it would attempt to topple Shamir's four-day government and call early elections both over the plan and Aridor's resignation.

Shamir said it was calling for a no-confidence vote in the Knesset, or parliament, Monday.

"The time has come to change the system," Labor Party leader Shimon Peres said in a television interview.

Less than two hours after Aridor resigned during an emergency cabinet meeting, Shamir said he was told of the plan but never regarded it as more than "foolish for thought and possible research."

Interviewed on television, Shamir assured Israel's government had no plans to bill saving accounts or seize dollar holdings.

The report said that in the process of replacing Aridor, Shamir also could reshuffle his cabinet, possibly naming a successor to take his own place as foreign minister. Shamir has retained the foreign affairs ministry post he had held under outgoing Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Aridor said his "Dollarization Plan," designed to cure some of Israel's economic woes, took six months to develop and was part of a three-phase plan to put the economy back on track by helping to reduce the country's 125 percent inflation.

Tuesday's 23 percent devaluation of the shekel was the first phase, cutting government spending, the second.

Local Hams Will Drill In Simulated Crisis

If you listen to your Citizen's band radio Saturday you may hear of a chemical-carrying ship burning off Florida's central east coast and spreading toxic fumes to coastal areas. But there's no cause for alarm.

The situation is only being simulated as part of a national emergency preparedness drill designed to test the ability of Amateur (ham) Radio operators to provide communications during emergencies.

On October 15, members of the Seminole County Amateur Radio Emergency Service (ARES), the Seminole County Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service (RACES) and, for the first time, Metropolitan REACT will participate in the 37th annual Simulated Emergency Test, an exercise sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, a membership organization representing the over 400,000 radio amateurs in the U.S. and Canada.

The Seminole County ARES in cooperation with the local Red Cross, the Office of Disaster Preparedness and the Sheriff's Office, through RACES will volunteer equipment and personnel in testing the effectiveness of the disaster communications system in Seminole County.

Directing this year's effort is Gordon Fella, WD4NIX, ARRL Emergency Coordinator for Seminole County. When the imaginary disaster strikes, local amateurs will activate their stations, many without commercial power to pass simulated emergency messages to various officials who would, in an actual emergency, supply the necessary relief. These test messages will simulate the opening of shelters, their populations and their needs for caring for the imaginary evacuees from the dangerous coastal areas. Interstate messages will be handled by ARRL's National Traffic System, a country-wide network for sending long-range radio messages.

If you have a programmable scanner you will be able to hear the most of the activity by entering the frequencies of 145.52, 145.29, 147.285 and 147.45 mhz.

Shotgun-Toting Sanford Man Jailed For Holding Families

A 42-year-old Sanford man was being held in the Seminole County jail today accused of holding five persons at the point of a shotgun against their will.

James Delozier Hemphill was jailed Thursday on a charge of false imprisonment and is being held under $8,000 bond.

The incident began on Oct. 7 when Hemphill's 13-year-old daughter, invited two youths to the Hemphill residence at 401 Pine Drive, according to a Seminole County sheriff's report.

Hemphill arrived at the residence at about 8:45 p.m. and "made numerous threats to shoot the boys for being in his home unlawfully," the report said.

The youths were identified as Roy May, 16, of 504 Tangelo Drive, Sanford, and Vincent Ball, 14, of Paola, the report said. Hemphill allegedly struck May on the neck and back with the barrel of the shotgun, the report said.

Hemphill made the youths telephone their parents and tell them to come to the Hemphill residence, the report said.

Ball's mother, Betty Pearce, and May's father and mother, Fred May and Lois May, came to the residence later and Hemphill held all five at shotgun point for 45 minutes to an hour, the report said.

Sheriff's investigator B.R. Lee Jr. declined to reveal why Hemphill was upset at the boys being in his home.

ARBON
 A fire that destroyed a Sanford man's 1979 Mercury Monarch Wednesday was set by an arsonist, according to Ray Pippin, chief investigator for the Seminole County fire department.

The car was parked on the shoulder of Cameron Avenue south of Celery Avenue when some people in the area noticed that it was engulfed in flames at about 2:19 p.m. Wednesday, Pippin said.

The car's owner is Keith Benton, 23, of 215 Terry Lane. Pippin said no charges have been filed in the case and the investigation is continuing. He declined to comment further on the case.

CAR STOLEN
 Someone took a Sanford man's 1977 Lincoln Town Car, valued at $4,500, between 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Richard L. Hathaway, 42, of 3510 S. Park Ave., said his car was stolen when he left it parked near the office where he works at 400 Airport Blvd.

Hathaway said he left the keys in the car, went inside the office and when he came out about 45 minutes later the car was gone.

GAS TAKEN
 Someone removed gasoline caps from several vehicles parked at Truck World, 317 W. First St., Sanford, between 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and 4:30 a.m. Wednesday and stole an unknown quantity of gas from each vehicle.

Bob McGee, 49, of 403 Terrace Court, Sanford, reported the loss to police.

BULLET THROWN
 Someone apparently threw a .38-caliber bullet through a Sanford woman's window at about 10:30 p.m. Monday.

Evelyn White, 22, of 801 E. Seventh St., told police the bullet tore the screen in her bedroom window, broke the window and landed between the drapes and the wall, causing $40 damage.

CASH REMOVED
 Someone cut the screen on the second floor porch of a Sanford woman's residence, jimmied a door with a screwdriver and stole $100 in cash from the home between 7 a.m. and 10:30 p.m. Monday.

Sally Carol Peeples, 26, of 509 W. Eleventh St., was the victim.

STATUE STOLEN
 A decorative lion statue was stolen from the front porch of an Altamonte Springs man's home between 3 p.m. Monday and 1:05 p.m. Wednesday.

Protesters Demonstrate At U.S. Air Force Base

KAISERSLAUTERN, West Germany (UPI) — Anti-nuclear campaigners, trying to halt deployment of cruise and Pershing-2 missiles in Western Europe, extended their protests today to the European headquarters of the U.S. Air Force.

They blockaded the sprawling Ramstein air base near Kaiserslautern, in the southwest, but the city's police chief — calling them "rowdies" — warned they risked up to two days in jail if they persisted in lying in the roads.

Another blockade outside the U.S. army's sea lift command in Bremerhaven entered its second day. Riot police carried away about 1,000 people blocking roads Thursday, briefly detained 250 demonstrators and used water cannons to clear a path for a truck convoy.

The blockading of key U.S. bases marked the start of a 10-day, country-wide campaign against the missiles — scheduled to be deployed from December unless there is an agreement at the U.S.-Soviet arms talks in Geneva.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Flight Attendants Urged To Reject Eastern Contract

MIAMI (UPI) — One day after reaching a last-ditch contract agreement that averted a labor crisis, union leaders for Eastern Airlines' flight attendants brought back the threat of a strike by urging members to reject the proposal.

In a surprise move Thursday, the union's 11-member executive board recommended that the rank and file reject the tentative contract reached Wednesday after a 22-hour bargaining session.

If Eastern's 5,800 flight attendants follow that recommendation, a new strike deadline would be set and contract negotiations would be reopened.

Members will vote on the contract next week, with results expected in three weeks, said Patricia Fink, head of the Eastern branch of the Transport Workers Union and chief union negotiator.

She said the board's recommendation was based on opposition to Eastern's use of non-union, Latin American flight attend on South American routes. Eastern acquired the lucrative routes last year from bankrupt Braniff and claims it is bound by Braniff agreements to use Latins on those flights.

Scandal

Adulterous Affair Leads To British Trade Chief's Resignation

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) — Trade and Industry Secretary Cecil Parkinson, a close aide to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, resigned today after the disclosure of his adulterous affair with a former secretary created a major political scandal.

The announcement came as the ruling Conservative Party concluded its annual convention, which has been overshadowed by fallout from the controversy over the affair in which Parkinson made the former secretary pregnant.

"The Right Honorable Cecil Parkinson MP, has tendered his resignation as Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and the Prime Minister has accepted it with regret," Mrs. Thatcher's office announced.

Parkinson, who admitted the affair last week, said at the time he planned to stay with his family and remain in office.

Mrs. Thatcher said there was no question of him resigning. Parkinson was Mrs. Thatcher's campaign chief in the June 9 general elections that gave a landslide to the Conservatives and is widely credited with the magnitude of the victory.

The convention Thursday gave Parkinson a warm welcome — as his wife, Ann, sat with him on the platform — and he repeated he had no intention of stepping down.

But pressure built up all week at the gathering at the northwest coastal resort.

The scandal had touched off angry debate in Britain with critics contrasting Mrs. Thatcher's calls for morality and higher regard for family life with her defense of Parkinson.

The announcement came shortly after the former secretary, Sara Keays, who is expecting his baby in January, disclosed in an interview with The Times that he twice proposed marriage and twice jilted her, the second time after she was pregnant.

"My baby was conceived in a long-standing loving relationship which I had allowed to continue because I believed in our eventual marriage," said Miss Keays.

Parkinson had come under sharp pressure in the press and on Thursday, from a ranking Anglican bishop who said Parkinson's affair made him unsuitable for public office.

In the church's first public comment on the scandal, Bishop John Bickersteth of Bath and Wells said Mrs. Thatcher should have accepted Parkinson's offer to resign when he confessed the affair had gone on for the last eight years.

Bickersteth is head of Queen Elizabeth's ecclesiastical household, in effect her chief personal religious officer.

Union Calls For Higher Teacher Pay, Tougher Job Requirements

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A union official has proposed a plan to provide $15,000 bonuses for veteran teachers, but also stiffen the job requirements to include, among other things, a master's degree.

Florida Education Associated-United president Pat Tornillo unveiled the $1.3 billion plan Thursday as an alternative to the merit pay plan approved in concept by the Legislature earlier this year and being implemented by a council headed by Melbourne consultant B. Frank Brown.

The plan will be presented to FEA-United delegates during a convention in Miami Beach this weekend and if accepted, it will be forwarded to Brown's Florida Quality Instruction Incentives Council.

It is far more expensive than the Legislature's merit pay plan, which would provide only $5,000 a year bonuses to the top class of teacher.

The union's plan would require major tax increases. One possibility would be a penny sales tax increase, which would generate about $1 billion.

The Legislature's conceptual plan would provide for $2,500 a year bonuses for teachers identified as associate master after meeting certain requirements, including, possibly, a written exam; and $5,000 bonuses for those meeting tougher requirements and becoming master teachers.

Tornillo is proposing a four-tier system, beginning with apprentice teacher at the bottom and ending with master teacher at the top.

A freshmen teacher would be an apprentice, having a bachelor's degree and passing the teacher licensing test. He or she would complete a one-year internship, teaching half and spending the rest of the time observing other classes and getting special training. The salary would be whatever is the school's district starting teacher pay.

After the first year, the apprentice instructor would teach full-time.

After three years, the apprentice teacher would be able to move up to senior teacher by earning a master's degree in the field of instruction and being approved by a panel of evaluators.

After five years, an apprentice would have to move up to senior teacher or would be kicked out of the profession. The senior teacher would get a $5,000 a year bonus directly from the state in addition to his or her regular salary from the school board.

The third level would be associate master. Requirements would include three years work as a senior teacher, post-master's degree work and testing to show that the work was completed successfully and approval by an evaluation panel.

The associate master would get a $10,000 salary supplement from the state and be given an 11-month contract.

The highest class of teacher would be master. The requirements would be two or more years as an associate master, still more university training and testing, and approval by an evaluation committee.

The Progress Of The Arms Talks

We have supported and continue to support talks with the Soviet Union aimed at nuclear arms control. But realism compels us to say that it is unlikely that these talks will produce any meaningful result.

Recently President Reagan has presented new proposals showing flexibility in the negotiations.

In September, he told the United Nations of new concessions the United States would be willing to make to break the deadlock on medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

Just recently, he announced a new package of proposals for the new round of long-range (strategic) nuclear arms negotiations with the Soviet Union. Several of these proposals respond to Soviet objections to Mr. Reagan's earlier bargaining position.

All of this appears to be forthcoming on the president's part, but many people believe his purpose is to appear flexible, not really to reach an agreement. The appearance of reasonableness would be helpful in persuading the Europeans not to change their minds about approving new American missile bases in their countries. It would also be helpful in persuading American voters to reelect President Reagan next year.

The only way to convince everyone that Mr. Reagan really wants an agreement is for him to make one. Whether he can depends, however, not only on his own willingness but also on the willingness of the Soviet leaders to be reasonable. They are pursuing their own propaganda track and call everything Mr. Reagan suggests unfair to them.

Moreover, any agreement that is made and that is ratified by the U.S. Senate will have to be tested in practice to see if it really makes any difference in the nuclear arms race.

The test ban treaty of 1963 has made a real difference. It has forced both the Soviet Union and the United States to conduct their nuclear tests underground. That hasn't slowed the arms race at all, but it has cut down on radioactive fallout in the atmosphere.

The hot line agreement of 1963 has symbolic value, giving official recognition to the nuclear peril and the need for direct communication between heads of government of the two superpowers in times of crisis.

But then there were the SALT I agreement and the anti-ballistic missile treaty, signed with fanfare in Moscow on May 26, 1972, by President Nixon and General Secretary Brezhnev.

The way in which the final negotiations were conducted by Henry Kissinger and Nixon is described in devastating terms by investigative reporter Seymour Hersh in his new book on Kissinger. If Hersh is to be believed, the U.S. negotiators were sidelined while Kissinger and Nixon carpentered up a series of agreements with the Soviets which were mainly intended to strengthen Nixon's image as a peacemaker in his re-election campaign.

It would be hard to say that either SALT I or the ABM treaty made much difference in the way the two superpowers conducted their arms race. The SALT I limits on land-based and sea-based long-range missile launchers were so broad that neither side had to make any major changes in its plans for deployment and modernization. The ABM treaty became meaningless when the United States decided any ABM system was technically infeasible and abandoned the one system it built before the system ever became operational.

President Carter came into office proclaiming that he would negotiate a complete ban on nuclear weapons, but failed even to obtain U.S. Senate ratification for the terms of the SALT II agreement.

A framework for SALT II had been negotiated at Vladivostok by President Ford and Brezhnev in 1974. That framework was retained and some other constraints were negotiated before the agreement was signed by Carter and Brezhnev in Vienna in 1979.

In the never-never world of the arms talks, both sides have agreed to abide by the terms of SALT II, even though it was never ratified. Mr. Reagan has continued to observe the treaty terms, even though he opposed the treaty and criticized it as a presidential candidate.

SALT II may have made a real difference, but the impact has not been obvious to the general public. The nuclear arms race has continued and accelerated.

Talking is better than fighting. It is better to keep talking with the Soviets about nuclear arms control than to give up the effort. Treaties have some value, even if they are only window dressing, because negotiating them keeps open the channels of communication. It is possible that at some future date a significant agreement will be achieved. But not if we give up the effort to negotiate.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Aren't you carrying this intuition with Brooke Shields a bit far?"

By Charles Cobb

The problem of false job credentials and "doctored" resumes is growing, according to a recent survey published by Thorndike Deland Associates.

When they apply for positions in today's very tight job market, more out-of-work executives are claiming they have held positions in the past that they never held, are claiming they were paid more than they were and are listing degrees from colleges they never attended.

More than 80 percent of personnel officers polled indicated that reference checking has become more difficult. Increased competition has made it harder to select the best talent for management positions. The survey indicates companies are most concerned with such key factors as past job performance and employment history, with personality traits and interpersonal skills cited third.

The most difficult aspects to check are the job performance and personality traits followed by compensation history. It was found that job candidates were most likely to conceal or falsify their job performance first of all followed next by compensation history and then personality traits.

Some think reference checking is simply a matter of confirming facts. But it's a much more sophisticated, qualitative process, involving a range of job-related issues such as the individual's ability to manage people.

SCIENCE WORLD 3 Types Of Flu To Face?

By Charles S. Taylor

ATLANTA (UPI) — Americans face another influenza season this winter with a new virus on the scene capable of causing widespread illness.

Flu activity is unpredictable but specialists say there also is a possibility, based on observations of flu activity in other countries this summer, that three strains of influenza may circulate when the cold weather hits, an event one physician at the national Centers for Disease Control called "a rarity."

But there is good news too. A vaccine formulated to give protection against all three viruses is available, said Dr. Karl Kappus of the CDC's influenza surveillance branch.

"Our experience has been that virtually every year is going to be an active flu year. We don't have any evidence of how active," Kappus said.

The CDC keeps tabs on the disease through an extensive network of "sentinel" physicians and reports from hospitals. So far this fall the flu situation has been quiet.

The new virus that poses the possibility of causing much illness this winter is called A-Philippines, a name designating the place where it was first identified. A-Philippines is an offshoot of another flu virus, A-Bangkok, which caused much illness across the world for the past four years.

The virus also is scientifically identified as the H3N2 strain, the same flu agent responsible for the 1957-58 Asian flu epidemic and 1967-68 Hong Kong outbreak, both of which took thousands of lives.

The other two flu viruses circulating overseas this summer were the H1N1 A-Brazil and B-Singapore flu viruses.

Kappus said these two viruses, along with subtypes of the H3N2 agent, caused "moderate" flu outbreaks in the United States last winter, with the Midwest having the most flu, the Southeast and West Coast reporting little, and the Northeast moderate activity.

"It was an unusual year," said Kappus. "Instead of having one type of flu we had three types. That's a rarity. It was the first time we've had appreciable activity of three different subtypes of influenza."

Last winter's flu season also was marked by a longer-than-usual period when influenza and pneumonia deaths, which usually begin to decline when the incidence of the disease drops off, remained higher than expected into the beginning of summer.

Kappus said the reason for the extended mortality period, which involved elderly people, is still under investigation.

Because the flu virus changes its makeup every few years, vaccines to protect against it must be adapted to the new viruses.

This year, the CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, taking note of the new virus and the continuing circulation of the other two agents, recommended that the vaccine for the 1983-84 influenza season be a trivalent injection designed to give protection against all three viruses.

Influenza is a respiratory ailment marked by headache, cough, muscle aches, high fever and upset stomach. In health, people normally runs its course in a week to 10 days. But in oldersters and those with chronic diseases it can be a serious illness.

Kappus urged people at high risk of having a serious bout with influenza to get immunized. "That includes people 65 or over and people who have chronic, severe health problems."

Missing Precious Metals Mystery

WASHINGTON — Mystery of the Week: Military and civilian employees are stealing millions of dollars' worth of precious metals from the government each year. This is acknowledged in official documents; insiders discuss it in whispers. Yet the Pentagon — which oversees the precious metals recycling centers that have become the thieves' happy hunting grounds — refuses to acknowledge a problem.

The recycling program reclaims gold, silver and platinum from used film, X-rays, medical equipment, batteries and other items. Sources on the inside say the program is losing as much as $10 million a year, maybe more, from thefts.

The mystery is not only who is stealing the precious metals but why the Defense Department doesn't think anything serious is going on. Here are some examples of the deprivations the Pentagon claims aren't happening:

— The biggest losses at a single

WILLIAM RUSHER

Answering Br'er Wicker

NEW YORK (NEA) — In a recent column published in The New York Times and elsewhere around the country, Tom Wicker fell to worrying about Soviet-American relations, which he described as being "at the lowest point since the Cuban missile crisis of 1962."

Wicker attributes this alleged decline to "the rising tensions, suspicions and mudslinging between Washington and Moscow (culminating in the two most powerful leaders in the world spitting epithets at each other)." He fears that this phase will be followed by "a new and chilling round of nuclear escalation," which he felicitously describes as a "game of lethal leapfrog."

Conceding that responsibility for this state of affairs "can't be charged entirely to Ronald Reagan," Wicker insists that "it can't be laid completely at the doors of the Kremlin either — not even when the destruction of Korean Air Lines Flight 7 is taken into account." He then proceeds to ask four questions, which he apparently thinks conservatives, and Reagan supporters generally, will find difficult to answer. Let me disabuse him:

Wicker Question No. 1: "Is this (i.e. the present state of Soviet-American relations) really what hawks and conservatives wanted, when they charged every president from John Kennedy to Jimmy Carter with being 'soft' on communism and the Soviet Union?"

Answer: Putting words in your opponents' mouths is an old trick. What "hawks and conservatives" have wanted, since the Kennedy administration and even earlier, is a clear-eyed national recognition of the menace to freedom posed by the Soviet Union, a firm determination to resist its direct and indirect aggressions, and a level of military strength capable of such resistance. What the "doves and liberals" have given us instead is an off-again, on-again patchwork of twaddle about "peaceful coexistence" and "detente," and a defense capability that has skidded relentlessly from superiority to equality, from equality to "sufficiency," and from sufficiency to something alarmingly like insufficiency.

Wicker Question No. 2: "Has Ronald Reagan's management of foreign affairs, compared with that of his predecessors, reduced or heightened Soviet-American animosities? If the latter, for what purpose? Are we more secure, for example, for his having personally labeled Moscow's an 'evil empire'?"

Answer: Mr. Reagan's management of foreign affairs has very deliberately included candid and outspoken analyses of the Soviet Union. This has undoubtedly angered the Kremlin, but it has also served to remind many Americans of truths about the communists that they are likely to forget amid the soporific vapors of The New York Times. The president's purpose has been to alert the American people to serious dangers, thereby rendering us better able to cope with them. In calling the Soviet Union an "evil empire," he was making an important point with positively surgical precision.

Wicker Question No. 3: "Indefensible as the Flight 7 disaster was, has it been wise to proclaim it so repeatedly to the world as the inevitable product of an inhuman system? Was that likely to make Moscow more or less willing to deal with others more openly, with less hostility?"

Answer: Moscow would undoubtedly have reacted with much less hostility if Mr. Reagan had treated the tragedy as simply a forgivable mistake of which the less said the better. It would have reacted with still less hostility if he had hailed it as a splendid example of the sturdy defense of the Soviet Union's sacred borders, and accepted full U.S. responsibility for the loss of 269 lives.

Wicker Question No. 4: "Even if the Reagan administration's characterization of the Soviet Union were taken at face value, is there no more effective way to deal with it than confrontation and armed force? If Mr. Reagan has given the U.S. more raw military strength, has he given us more security, or made it less likely that that strength will have to be used?"

Answer: "If you wish peace, prepare for war" is a maxim so ancient that it was first formulated in Latin. Mr. Reagan is not deceived by Soviet assurances that every step the free world takes toward unilateral disarmament, and every Soviet increase it fails to counter, is a step toward peace. On the contrary, he understands that every step we take to increase our strength makes it less likely that that strength will ever have to be used.

JEFFREY HART

Yuri Votes Early

"Even if someone had illusions as to the possible evolution for the better in the policy of the present American administration," said Yuri Andropov, "the latest developments have dispelled them."

By latest developments he meant President Reagan's condemnation of the Soviet shooting down of KAL 007, and President Reagan's latest offer on arms control.

But what Andropov was really signalling is that he prefers the Democratic nominee, whoever he is, to Reagan in 1984. Even as the Mondale candidacy received the endorsement of the AFL-CIO and the National Education Association, it also received the unwanted endorsement of Andropov. The Soviet premier was saying, as usual rather brutally, that he cannot do business with Reagan. And further, in a world worried about nuclear warfare, he was really rattling his rockets for the benefit of the Democratic Party.

For all of its obviousness and brutality, the Soviet style of nuclear bargaining has not been all that unsuccessful. It merely answers every Reagan proposal with a firm "no," whereupon the Reagan administration goes back into conference and returns with a proposal that moves in substance toward the Soviet position. The Soviets themselves have put forward no proposals at all as regards the intermediate range missiles.

The new proposals put forward by Reagan in his speech before the U.N. General Assembly are in fact the fourth formula the United States has put forward regarding the intermediate-range missiles in Europe.

The first proposal became known as the zero-option plan. It would have eliminated all intermediate-range weapons in Europe, and would have effected the largest reduction in nuclear weapons in history. It should have wowed the "peace" movement, but didn't.

The Soviets rejected the zero-option, as they have cursorily rejected each subsequent proposal, and with each rejection the United States has returned to deep-think, and come back with new ideas that move toward the Soviet position.

A dismal harbinger of the next proposal was Vice President Bush's remark that "something" would have to be done in the negotiations about the British and French missiles, which the Soviets insist on counting as "theater" weapon, but which are not.

The British and French missiles are mostly submarine-launched, and lack the accuracy of the Soviet SS-20 or the American Pershing II. They are strategic weapons, which can hit Moscow but are not effective against a tank attack, and cannot pin-point command posts or communications targets. But Bush thinks that "something" has to be done about them in the Geneva negotiations about entirely different weapons.

Reagan is in the position of a man dickering with a used car dealer who names his price and says no to every counter offer, the buyer meanwhile moving closer to the set price with each offer, while his wife stands at his elbow urging him to negotiate, and warning him that the used car dealer may be "paranoid."

In 1960, as he revealed in his memoirs, Nikita Khrushchev also voted early. He wanted Kennedy to win rather than Nixon, and to that end he refused to release the captured U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers until after the election.

facility appear to have been at the metals recovery center at Colts Neck, N.J., where an estimated $750,000 in precious metals was lost in 1981-82. To hush up the scandal, the center's civilian overseers who might blow the whistle were transferred to other bases. Sources told my reporter Bill Bartman that the problems have not been corrected and the stealing continues.

The former commanding officer at Colts Neck, Air Force Lt. Col. Larry J. Goar, wrote an article in an Air Force journal lamenting the loss of "millions of dollars annually" through poor contracting procedures. This merely angered the program administrators who considered launching an investigation of Goar in retaliation. They dropped the idea, sources said, because they realized such an inquiry could cause even more unfavorable publicity.

— In the Washington, D.C., area, some $200,000 in precious metals allegedly disappears every year. At Fort Belvoir, Va., for example, about $37,000 worth of silver and gold disappeared between July 1981 and February 1982, according to internal Pentagon documents. In 1980-81, $30,000 to $40,000 in precious metals could not be accounted for at Belvoir, which receives more metal "flake" than any other depository.

— Civilian and military personnel have allegedly taken 30 to 40 pounds of flake at a time. At the Navy base in Norfolk, Va., security sources report that employees were lugging off silver-bearing submarine batteries at a cost of $40,000 last year.

— In 1981, an Army metals depository in Molesworth, England, was simply shut down, after military investigators — and even Scotland Yard — failed to solve the disappearance of up to $60,000 worth of silver, vehicles and other property.

Defense Department administrators of the metals recycling program blame the losses on bookkeeping problems and possible stealing by employees of the private contractors that reclaim the precious metals.

Col. Alvin Hamblin, deputy commander at program headquarters, admitted that "the potential exists for stealing," but said employees can't get more than a handful or so of flake. Such small quantities wouldn't be worth the risk, he said.

A former Colts Neck administrator, who demanded anonymity, said workers there were warned not to talk to a congressional investigator who showed up two years ago. Once a dummy shipment was arranged to trap would-be thieves. But the warehouse section was tipped off in advance, other sources said.

The Pentagon turned its criminal investigators and the FBI loose at Fort Belvoir. But no one was arrested, and the investigation cost about $100,000 — more than the precious metals losses.

Physicians Given Wider Powers In Dealing With Terminal Cases

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An appeals court has dismissed murder charges against two physicians accused of withholding food and water from a comatose patient, increasing the powers of doctors to stop prolonging life in hopeless cases.

In the first case in the United States in which doctors were prosecuted for withholding nourishment from a patient, the state Court of Appeal ruled Wednesday that intravenous supplies of food and water are no different than mechanical respirators or medication.

All are part of a life support system, the court said, that may be disconnected if relatives and doctors believe they no longer help the patient — despite the "emotional symbolism" of "starving" a patient to death.

"We conclude that the cessation of 'heroic' life support measures is not an affirmative act but rather a withdrawal or omission of further treatment," the court ruled.

The court said withdrawal of such treatment was not a criminal act under California law because it was "not being used to directly cure or even address the (illness)" but was merely buying time.

The three-judge panel also ordered the Superior Court to vacate a previous ruling that had reinstated murder charges against Drs. Robert Nejdil and Neil Barber, who practice at Kaiser Permanente's Harbor City Hospital.

Prosecutors claimed the doctors let Clarence Herbert die in 1981 to cover up malpractice. Herbert, 55, had a heart attack less than an hour after undergoing elective surgery and lapsed into a coma.

He died six days after being removed from a life support system, including intravenous food and water. The family had given a written request to the hospital stating that "all machines (be) taken off that are sustaining life."

Murder charges were filed in August 1982 after a nurse complained about Herbert's case, but were dismissed following a preliminary hearing by a judge who ruled there was not enough evidence to try the doctors.

The district attorney's office appealed and Superior Court Judge Robert Wenke last May overturned the lower court's ruling and ordered the doctors to stand trial. Defense attorneys appealed.

Both doctors said they were elated by the decision.

"We knew in our hearts we were innocent, but there were times when we thought we were in a really dangerous situation," Nejdil said, adding he and Barber had received death threats.

"The decision will reassure physicians that if they act with the request of the family, they won't be subject to this kind of criminal prosecution."

The district attorney has 15 days to ask the appeals court to reconsider its ruling and 40 days to take the case to the state Supreme Court. A spokesman said no decision would be made until officials had a chance to review the ruling.

Third Brake Light Could Save $434 Million

TAMPA (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole says a federal regulation requiring a brake signal light at eye level on the rear of new cars will prevent as many as 40,000 injuries a year.

Mrs. Dole announced the regulation, which goes into effect Sept. 1, 1985, in a speech Thursday, saying it would cost as little as $-1 to install the third brake light and that it could save $434 million annually.

Mrs. Dole said studies have shown that a center high-mounted light could reduce rear-end accidents by more than 50 percent because the trailing driver could not only see the car immediately ahead but also the car in front of that one.

She said even when accidents still occur, the added light should result in slower closing speeds, which would lessen property damage and severity of injuries. "We expect to cut the number of rear-end collisions significantly and eliminate 40,000 injuries as well as save an estimated $434 million in property damages annually," Mrs. Dole said.

She said the cost of the additional light would be moderate, estimating it at $4 per car if installed during production or $7 if retrofitted.

She said the regulation will apply only to passenger cars.

"We will have the cooperation of the industry," she said. "I can't say there won't be some disagreement with this."

"There seems to be an understanding throughout, with consumer groups, with industry and with others who have been interested in this for some time," Mrs. Dole said. "There really is an opportunity to save a lot of property damage and a lot of injuries at very little cost."

The light must have 4½ inches of illuminated surface and can be inside or outside the rear window. She said it would be up to the manufacturer to determine what style to use, noting it could be a long, thin bar-like strip under the window if so desired.

Mrs. Dole said the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration estimates there were 3.5 million accidents in 1980 in which passenger cars were struck from behind, and 2.3 million of the cars had brake lights on when struck. It estimated there were more than 600,000 injuries in those accidents.

The NHTSA estimates 900,000 rear-end collisions will be avoided by the use of the top-mounted brake light, Mrs. Dole said.

Rams Entertain Hawks Tonight

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

For Lake Mary and Lake Howell's football teams, tonight's game at Lake Mary High could be the most important one of the year. Both teams have two losses in the Five Star Conference and one more conference loss would probably take them out of contention. Although the winner of tonight's game still has an outside chance in the conference, it is a very slight outside chance.

Prep Football

"I think the Apopka-Lake Brantley game (next week) will decide who wins the conference," Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson said. "But, if Lyman, Lake Brantley and Apopka start bumping each other off, you never know."

The Rams and Silver Hawks will take center stage tonight at 8 as the two teams meet for the first time in the "only game in town." Seminole and Lyman are both idle while Oviedo plays in Orlando tonight and Lake Brantley plays in Daytona Beach Saturday afternoon.

"Lake Howell has a great quarterback and fullback and a good defense," Harry Nelson said. "We're going to have to play our bleeps off to beat them."

Lake Mary, 2-2 and 1-2 in the conference, is coming off a 29-3 out of Bishop Moore in which the offense amassed over 400 total yards. Junior wide out Donald Grayson had one of the top receiving games of the season as he grabbed four passes for 125 yards and two touchdowns. Grayson is second in the county in receiving with 11 catches for 233 yards (a 21.1 per catch average).

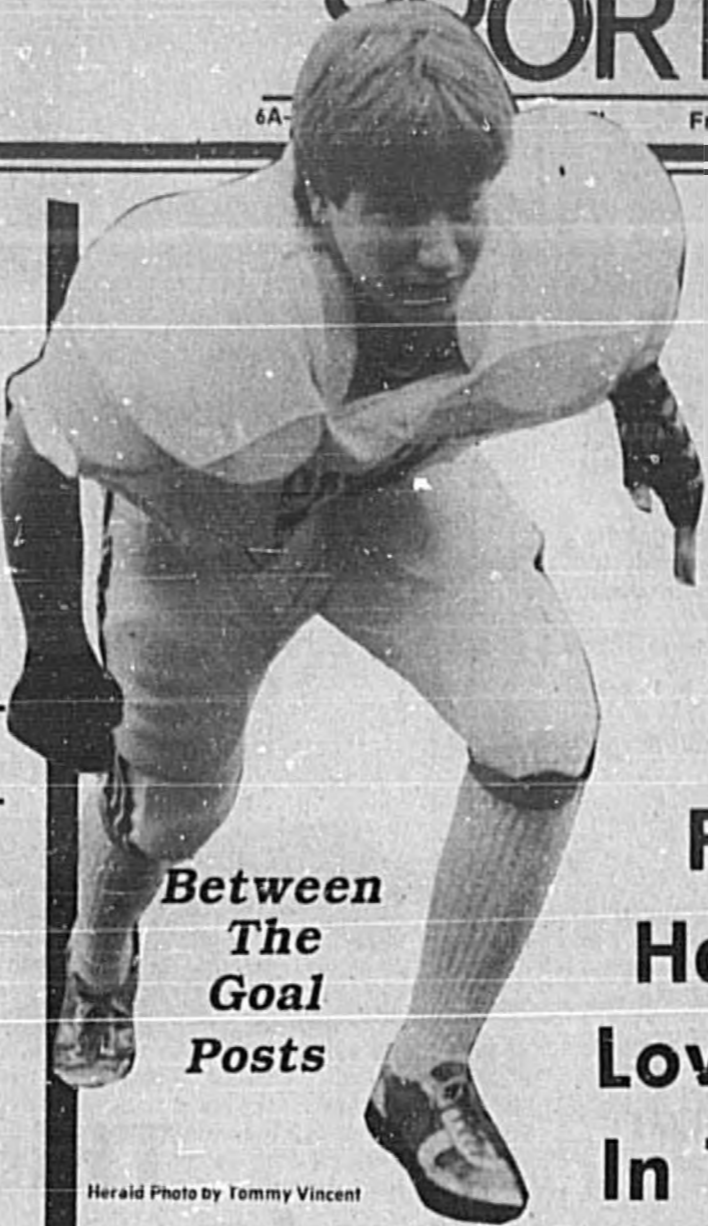

Rams' quarterback Ray Hartsfield also had his best game of the year last Friday as he completed 6 of 8 passes for 151 yards and two TD's. Hartsfield has completed 19 of 40 passes for 357 yards in four games. Lake Mary's first touchdown against Bishop Moore came on a flea-flicker play in which Hartsfield threw a pass to Grayson, who then lateraled to running back Neal Wellon who went 27 yards for the TD.

Lake Mary's rushing attack rolled up 267 yards as junior Charlie Lucarelli led the way with 90 yards on nine carries. Lucarelli now has 190 yards on 37 carries for the season. Wellon is the Rams' leading rusher with 199 yards on 34 carries while Scott Underwood has picked up 198 yards on 44 carries.

If the Rams' offense can continue to move, the defense will be the key. Lake Brantley managed to stifle Lake Howell's running game in a 23-0 victory a week ago. But, you can't hold fullback Jay Tobey back all the time. While Robey will probably get some good yardage tonight, Lake Mary would give up the five and six yard plays if it could stop the big play.

It was the big play that enabled both Lake Brantley and Lyman to beat the Rams. Lake Mary actually outplayed Lyman for half of the game, but three big plays enabled the Greyhounds to take control. It was a couple of long touchdowns that helped Lake Brantley take an early lead against the Rams, but the Patriots' defense was the key as Lake Mary couldn't get anything going offensively.

Between The Goal Posts

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Brian Hamman's football life is in the pits — and he wouldn't have it any other way.

The 6-1, 215-pound Lake Brantley offensive tackle spends his Friday nights in the trenches, bumping heads with opponents on the other side of the area called "No Man's Land." Every inch is a battle of muscle and finesse. This is the area where coaches find out who wants to play. They also find out if they're going to be a successful ball club. The line of scrimmage must be controlled for a team to win. Ask Don Shula and the Miami Dolphins or the Green Bay Packers. These championship teams thrived because of great offensive lines.

Hamman is a throwback to the Larry Little and the Jerry Kramers. He paves the way for running backs, sometimes a thankless job, but a job which has to be done. Without the holes of Hamman and the rest of the Brantley line, there will be no first downs and touchdowns.

Patriot Hamman Loves Life In The Pits

He receives no rave reviews. Not much recognition. And until today — no headlines. That's the life of an offensive lineman — the unsung player of the gridiron. They don't make the highlight films. They don't attend the press conferences. They just do their job and earn the praise of their offensive line coach, usually a former unsung player himself.

"You want to do a story on me?" he asked incredulously when contacted Thursday night. "I've never read a story on an offensive lineman."

The fact that Hamman, a senior, is even in a position to have a story written about him astounds some medical minds. Usually about this time during the season, Brian spends more time with doctors and nurses than football players.

For the past two years, injuries have curtailed the playing time of the mainstay on Brantley's offensive interior. "My freshman year went pretty well," remembers Hamman, who lived in Illinois until he moved to Altamonte Springs prior to his

Apopka Snaps Tribe Win Streak; Beams, Brantley Secures 6th

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

The Seminole junior varsity's three-game winning streak was snapped Thursday night as Apopka's JV Blue Darters claimed a 20-18 overtime victory over the JV Tribe at Seminole High.

Seminole now stands at 3-1 for the season and its next game is against DeLand next Wednesday at Seminole High.

"We got the early lead, but our guys just let up and Apopka came back strong," Seminole coach Mike Ferrell said. "Apopka dominated both ends in the second half. They held us to minus three yards rushing and 11 yards passing. Their offensive line blew away our defensive line."

Seminole took an early 6-0 lead as Alvin Jones returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown. Melvin Brinson then ran in the two-point conversion, but an illegal block penalty nullified the play and the 'Noles couldn't make it on the second try. That turned out to be a key play in the outcome of the game.

The JV Tribe increased its lead to 12-0 in the second quarter as quarterback Daryl Taylor unloaded a 45-yard scoring pass to Robert Hill. The conversion kick failed.

Apopka came back to score its first touchdown before the half ended. Fullback Charles Dowdell, a workhorse for the Blue Darters, scored the TD from four yards out and the two-point conversion failed.

Things got worse for Seminole just before the half ended as Taylor was injured and sidelined for the rest of the game.

Seminole's 12-6 lead held up until the fourth quarter. Apopka tied it at 12-12 as Dowdell plowed in from five yards out. But, the two-point run failed and the score ended up 12-12 at the end of regulation.

In overtime, each team gets four plays from the 10-yard line. Apopka got the ball first and they scored on third down as Dowdell went in from three yards out. Danny Daniels then ran in the two-point conversion for a 20-12 Apopka lead.

Seminole scored on its second play in overtime as backup quarterback Hal Posey hit David Rape for a four-yard TD. Posey's two-point pass was just off the fingertips of Hill and Apopka came out the victor.

Lake Brantley 22, Lyman 21
Mike Beams ran for 227 yards on 20 carries and scored two touchdowns as Lake Brantley won its sixth straight game while Lyman lost its second straight. Beams, a 6-1 150-pound tailback, now has a total of 845 yards rushing in six games.

Beams got the JV Patriots on the board in the first quarter with a nine-yard TD run and Dave DeLiacono's kick made it 7-0. Lyman came back to tie it at 7-7 by the end of the quarter.

Lake Brantley took a 9-7 lead as linebacker John Polak and Peter Phelps tackled running back Peter Phelps in the end zone for a safety. Lyman came back to take a 14-9 lead and held it until halftime.

Lake Brantley took a 15-14 lead early in the third quarter as

J.V. Football

Beams broke off an 86-yard touchdown run. DeLiacono's kick never got off the ground because of a fumbled snap, but he came back later to more than make up for it.

Lyman came back to take a 21-15 lead in the third quarter and it had the ball one more time in the quarter with a chance to add to the lead. The turning point came at that moment as Lyman fumbled and Mike Morris picked it up and returned it 10 yards. With 4:33 left in the third quarter, quarterback John Gowen hooked up with fullback Will Freeman on a 16-yard scoring strike to tie the game at 21-21. DeLiacono then added the extra point for a 22-21 Lake Brantley lead and what turned out to be the winning point.

Behind Beams' outstanding performance, Derrick Guinyard picked up 33 yards on four carries and Gowen completed 5 of 14 passes for 94 yards. Aaron Kindel caught two passes for 59 yards while Joel Miller caught two for 19 yards.

Polak led the defense with 11 solo tackles and one assist while safety Ed Garrison added eight solos and three assists and cornerback Chris Derdan added seven solos and three assists.

Lake Howell 7, Lake Mary 0
Lake Howell scored on its first possession of the game and went on to defeat the error-plagued Lake Mary JV Thursday night at Lake Howell High. The loss dropped the Rams to 2-2 for the season.

Tony Gaines led the offensive attack with 50 yards rushing on 10 carries. Quarterback Mike Schmit completed 8 of 19 passes for 57 yards and he threw two interceptions. Willie Meadows caught five of those passes for 35 yards.

Tony Palumbo led the defense with 13 solo tackles and one assist.

Lake Mary is back in action next Thursday at Oviedo.

Oviedo 8, Jones 6
Oviedo improved its record to 3-2 for the season with a victory over Jones in an afternoon game played in a downpour at Jones High.

Oviedo broke a 0-0 tie with a 65-yard scoring drive early in the third quarter. Quarterback Cory Batoon scored the touchdown from one yard out and Steve Turner ran in the extra point for a 8-0 Oviedo lead.

Cornell Green led the Lions rushing attack with 91 yards on 18 carries.

Wright led the defense with six solo tackles and 12 assists and he also recovered a fumble and blocked the extra point. Craig Duncan and Mike Bass added six solos and five assists apiece.

Oviedo Faces Powerful Jones

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

For the second week in a row, the Oviedo Lions are going up against one of the top 3A teams in the state. Last week, Oviedo played its best football of the year in a 25-13 loss to powerful Rockledge and the Lions have another tough one tonight against Orlando Jones at the Tangerine Bowl.

"It's going to be another tough game for us," Oviedo coach Jack Blanton said. "Jones is a lot bigger than we are. They average 210 pounds on the offensive line and 220 on the defensive line and they have three running backs over 200 pounds. We're going to have our hands full."

Oviedo, 1-4, is just looking to survive the rest of the season and hope it can win a few more games in the process. The Lions get a much-needed rest next week when they are idle.

Barry Williams took over the rushing lead in the county last week and he now has 469 yards on 68 carries in five games. Williams had over 800 yards last year and he would like to break the 1,000 yard barrier in '83. His running mate, J.W. Yarborough, has had his troubles this year. Yarborough is third in the county with 287 yards, but he is well off the pace he set last year. Yarborough is questionable for tonight's game as he has been ill the past week. Quarterback Kevin Thompson has also had a pretty good year as he has completed 22 of 67 passes for 402 yards and two touchdowns. Thompson's main target is wide receiver Howard Lingard, the county's leading pass receiver with 13 catches for 250 yards (a 19.4 yards per catch average). Charles "Pop" Bowers is the second-leading pass receiver with five for 107 yards (a 21.4 average).

Jones stands at 4-1 for the season after losing a heartbreaker, 7-6, to Orlando Evans a week ago. The three 200-pound running backs include fullback Darryl Perry (6-2, 210), halfback Leon Perry (6-1, 210) and halfback Marcus Washington (6-0, 200).

Two of the Tigers' defensive backs are currently being recruited by Nebraska. Cornerback Anwaar Suluk and free safety Avery McCree are considered among the best defensive backs in the state.

"We hope our quickness and willingness to play will help us out," said Blanton, who hopes defensive stalwarts Kevin Yentz and Ed Norton can help offset the Jones' size advantage.

Cheeseman, Yes — Politowicz, No

With just two football games tonight and one Saturday, cross country takes center stage today as the Seminole County Meet gets underway at Lyman High School.

The junior varsity girls race will be a 4 p.m. following by the varsity girls at 4:30 p.m. The varsity boys hit the track at 5 p.m. with the boys JV to follow at 5:30 p.m.

Although this is the county meet, it has come about at an inopportune time. The DeLand Invitational scheduled for Saturday, and it is considered a preview of the state meet since it draws the top schools. It is also the site of the state meet, which allows the runners to familiarize themselves with the course.

Lake Howell and its state champion miler Ken Cheeseman didn't decide until Thursday whether they would send a JV team or varsity team to the county meet. "We're going to run both," said Cheeseman Friday morning. "I've never done this before, but I've been staying home and resting the past two nights."

Adding to the clouded situation, Trinity Prep's sophomore sensation Adrienne Politowicz, who has the best time in the county, will not be run. She ran in a meet at Clewiston on Thursday.

Issac's Starting Spot Is Something To Write Home About; UCF Plays 0-15 Richmond

When you are a member of the Florida State defensive unit, it's not something you write home to mother about. This much-maligned 11 was held personally responsible for two of the three Florida State losses.

When a defensive gives up 46 points and wins, it doesn't celebrate — it goes into seclusion.

Nevertheless, Sanford's Issac Williams has probably been writing a few letters to mother this week. The sophomore defensive tackle showed enough in last week's narrow 17-16 loss to Pittsburgh to earn himself a starting spot on the FSU defense this Saturday against Cincinnati.

And as porous as it had been the first four weeks of the season (giving up 142 points), a starting position is a starting position, whether it be Florida State or the Lakeview Junior Midget Dolphins.

Williams, a strong 6-1 and 250 pounds, has made great strides in just two years at Tallahassee. After playing offensive tackle during his prep career at Seminole High, the former first-team all-stater has moved ahead of senior David Ponder at the right tackle slot for the Seminoles. He had been playing behind talented Alphonso Carreker at the left tackle spot.

A strong effort against Pitt, though, turned coach Bobby Bowden's head. "Issac really got after some people," said Bowden about his no. 45. "He's going to be some kind of football player before he's through."

Bowden would like him to be "some kind of football player" Saturday when the Seminoles try to snap a three-game losing streak. It's homecoming for FSU and Bowden has lost three straight heartbreakers (Tulane, Auburn and Pitt). He has never lost four in a row at Florida State and has lost just four in a row just twice in his 21 years of coaching.

"This is beginning to look like one of those years," said the colorful coach. "I think maybe winning all those games on the road (the past few years) is finally catching up with us. Boy, when you get in those close games it really helps to be at home. Every one of our games (losses) has been right down to the wire and that home crowd just give 'em that little push at the end."

Saturday, Bowden hopes the push will come from his home crowd. Cincinnati used to be looked upon as a breather, but after what the Bearcats did to Penn State (14-3 victory), Bowden is not taking anything for granted.

"Cincinnati is a very well-coached football team," he said. "You could see the kind of team they are by the way they manhandled Penn State. Everybody thought that was a joke until they saw what Penn State did to Alabama last week (34-28 win)."

"Yeah, Cincinnati ain't bad, let me tell you."

Sam Cook
Sports Editor

And a loss would severely hamper FSU's chances for a post-season bowl bid — something which has become almost part of the schedule since Bowden took over.

"Right now we've just got to re-establish some goals for ourselves. We are very disappointed — all of us are," said Bowden. "This is one of those years you can't put your finger on the exact problem."

The defense was definitely a problem during the first four ball games, but after the improved showing against Pitt, Bowden said he hopes it is coming around.

And wouldn't it be something if a Sanford switch at tackle may be the lift a sagging defense needed?

Keep those cards and letters coming, Issac. And those tackles, too.

SPIDERS OPEN WEB FOR UCF — It's doubtful that the University of Central Florida Knights are looking forward to playing Richmond as the Spiders are looking forward to playing UCF.

At last count, Richmond hadn't won a football game in a year and one-half. The Spiders were 0-10 last year and have managed to lose all five this year. Some of the UCF returnees are familiar with 0-10 records, having lost all of their games last fall.

Richmond is looking at Saturday's 1:30 p.m. game at home as possibly its only chance to win a game this season. UCF is the only Division II school on the Spiders' schedule, so it might be Saturday or never for them to end the long losing skid.

The offense has produced no touchdowns for the Spiders on the ground. Quarterback Bobby Bleier, a cousin to Rocky, has completed 46 of 97 passes for 489 yards and three TDs. But, he has also thrown six interceptions. Jarvis Jennings is the leading rusher with 313 yards on 61 carries. Brendan Tolben is a quality place kicker with seven field goals in eight tries, including a 52-yarder against Southern Mississippi.

UCF, meanwhile, will be looking for its first victory over a Division I-AA opponent. The Knights are 6-7 against the upper crust. Saturday's game, however, could change all that, considering the quality of the opposition. There can't be too many 1-AA team sporting 15-game losing streaks, so you better beat them when you have the opportunity.

"They're struggling, no doubt about it," said UCF coach Lou Saban. "They're not as bad as their record. When you're struggling like they are, it seems every break goes against you."

One break the Spiders did make was away from their wishbone attack. "They broke the bone. When I saw them (on film), they were using an I-formation," continued Saban.

Saban and his Knights will be looking for those holes Saturday. "We just want to play," said Lou alluding to last Saturday's washout at the Tangerine Bowl against Bethune-Cookman College. Torrential downpours and lightning moved into the T-Bowl a half an hour before the kickoff and after waiting 15 minutes, the athletic directors and the presidents cancelled the game.

GUESSES — With Seminole and Lyman idle this week, the attention turns toward the Lake Mary-Lake Howell and Oviedo-Jones matchups tonight along with the Lake Brantley-Mainland game Saturday. This weekend: Lake Howell by 9 over Lake Mary, Jones by 13 over Oviedo, Lake Brantley by 8 over Mainland, Richmond 3 over UCF, FSU by 20 over Cincinnati, Miami by 14 over Mississippi State, Nebraska by 21 over Missouri, Bucs by 4 over Cardinals, Jets by 8 over Dolphins and Redskins by 7 over Packers.

...Rams

Linebackers Bill Caughell and Jeff Hopkins, defensive end Don Meyer and defensive back Tim Curtin have been the Rams' leaders in the first four games. Caughell leads with 26 solo tackles and 14 assists and he also has two interceptions, both against Bishop Moore. Curtin is second in tackles with 20 solos and 11 assists and he also has a pair of interceptions, both against DeLand. David Hornyak is next with 12 solos and 18 assists. Meyer has 20 solos and seven assists and is second in the county in quarterback sacks with five. Hopkins, the only senior of the group, has 16 solos and 11 assists. Hopkins is also the Rams' punter while Curtin handles the place-kicking.

"Lake Mary has a fine team," Lake Howell coach Mike Biscaglia said. "I was impressed with the way they played against Lyman. Except for three big plays, Lake Mary outplayed Lyman."

This is could turn out to be an important game for Lake Howell's Silver Hawks as they were one of the preseason favorites in the Five Star Conference, because they still have an outside chance. The Hawks now stand at 3-2 overall and 2-2 in the conference after being blanked by Lake Brantley a week ago. Lake Howell's can keep its chances at the title alive with a victory tonight. The Hawks have yet to play conference leaders Lyman and Apopka.

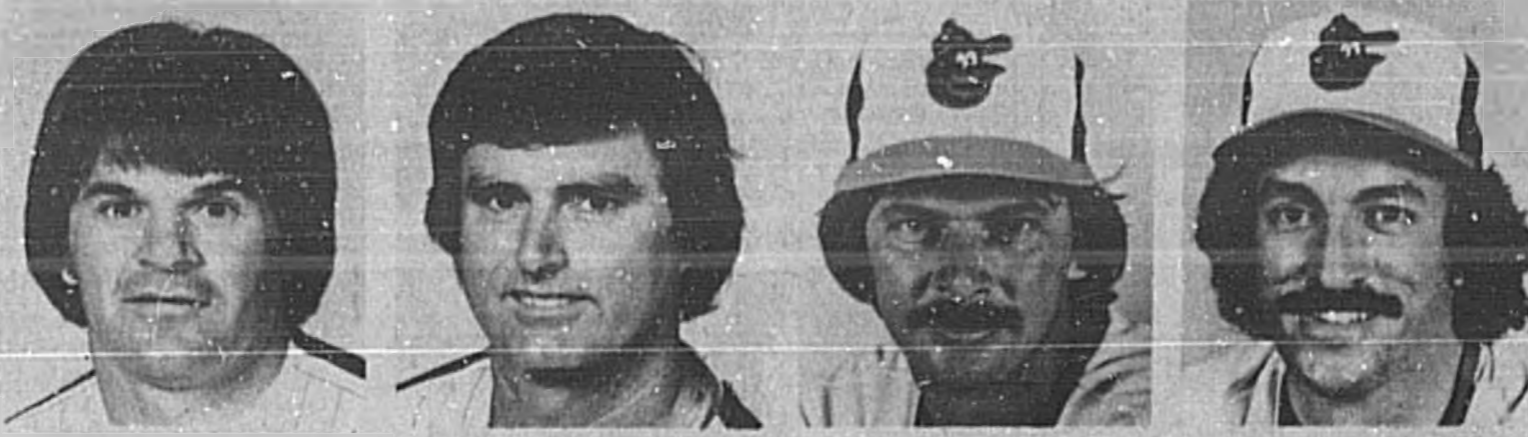

Biscaglia, however, is not optimistic about his chances in the conference. "The conference title is not in our picture," he said. "With two losses, I don't think it's within our reach. We're playing for pride tonight."

Although Robey was held to just 18 yards rushing last week, he still has 440 yards for the season and is second in the county. Lake Howell's second-leading rusher is Jeff Solomon who has picked up 172 yards on 29 carries.

Lake Howell also has the most potent passing game in the county. Quarterback Darin Slack has completed 26 of 71 passes for 573 yards and four touchdowns and he has been intercepted five times. Slack's main target is wide out Jeron Evans who has caught nine passes for 294 yards and two touchdowns. His 32.6 yards per catch average is tops in the county. Jim Daniel has caught five passes for 56 yards while John "No Relation" McKay, who returned to action after missing two games last week, has four catches for 92 yards in three games.

The defensive leaders include defensive backs Bill Lang and Troy Quackenbush, linebacker Steve Cina and lineman Rick Pugh. Lang has 29 solo tackles and 13 assists with three interceptions. Cina has 29 solos and 10 assists while Pugh has 23 solos, nine assists and four sacks. Quackenbush, who made the switch from quarterback to defensive back, has performed well in his new position with 23 solos and 11 assists.

"We didn't get our rhythm down on offense last week (against Lake Brantley)," Biscaglia said. "We had some major breakdowns on our offensive line and didn't perform well at all. I hope we can regain our poise and confidence and play the way we are capable of."

Hitters Hope To Clear Fog As Carlton Duels Flanagan

World Series

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Though the skies will clear for Game 3 of the World Series, it remains to be seen whether the hitters emerge from their fog.

The Philadelphia Phillies and Baltimore Orioles forged their current 1-1 tie with the expected strong pitching and good defense, so the outcome of the 80th Fall Classic may hinge on which team begins scoring runs.

Problem is, Baltimore's Mike Flanagan and the Phil's Steve Carlton oppose each other tonight (8:20 p.m. EDT) in clear and cool weather and veteran left-handers of their calibre make every day a rainy one for hitters.

"Good pitching stops good hitting but good hitting stops good pitching just as well," said Baltimore right fielder Dan Ford, who shows no ill effects from the fifth-inning beating he took from Willie Hernandez in Game 2 and who hopes to help supply the necessary hitting to turn around the pitching.

"I think there will be games where we score some runs," added Philadelphia second baseman Joe Morgan.

They may stop scoring cheese steaks in Philadelphia someday, too. Until then, here's a glance at some of the offensive statistics compiled so far in the Series.

The top five spots in the Philadelphia order have a combined 6-for-36, including 0-for-8 from Mike Schmidt, 1-for-8 from Pete Rose and only one RBI from the cleanup spot. Philadelphia is hitting .133 and has collected only two extra-base hits, both homers that helped win Game 1.

Baltimore's average is .219, with cleanup hitter Eddie Murray 1-for-8 and Rich Dauer, Todd Cruz and Rick Dempsey combining for a 3-for-19. All three hits, though, came in the fifth inning of Game 2 and helped the Orioles square the series with a 4-1 victory behind Mike Boddicker.

"I'm getting blue in the face talking about Boddicker," said Schmidt. "Hopefully, come Monday morning he'll be talking about me."

Philadelphia manager Paul Owens. "The extra-base hits, especially the triples and the inside-the-park home run add to the overall excitement."

Right now the biggest excitement is for members of the pitching fraternity everywhere. A continuation of the low-scoring games that have been played so far would have the clubs threatening the World Series record for fewest runs scored in a five, six or seven-game set of 18, 19 and 29 runs, respectively.

And no relief is in sight. John Denny is scheduled to return from his stellar performance in Game 1 to oppose 21-year-old right-hander Storm Davis in Game 4 on Saturday. Davis, referred to as Jim Palmer's clone, went six scoreless innings in the playoffs.

The relentless succession of Cy Young performances has the attention of the hitters as well as the rest of the audience. John Lowenstein, despite batting .571 in the Series, will sit tonight in favor of platoon partner Roenicke. He doesn't seem a bit upset.

"Are you kidding?" he said. "I don't want to bat against Steve Carlton."

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Phillies reliever Al Holland just smiles and shakes his head when he hears other pitchers talking about the pre-game butterflies the World Series has been giving them.

The left-handed fas but I just don't feel pressured," Holland said Thursday, an off day before the Phillies and Baltimore Orioles resume play tonight in Game 3 of the 1-1 series. "I've been more nervous in regular season games than I have been now. I've been more relaxed in these games than I've ever been."

Holland, 31, made his first series appearance in Game 1 Tuesday night, retiring the last four Oriole batters on three fly outs and a strikeout to save the 2-1 victory for John Denny.

freshman year. "Then, the problems began during my sophomore year. I was brought up to the varsity and started one game. I was going to start the next one, too, but I dislocated my left elbow in a scrimmage. That was it for that year."

The dislocation came during the Patriots' preparation for Spruce Creek. Coincidentally, when Spruce Creek came around again his junior year — so did the disabled list. This time, Hamman attempted to block a linebacker, and "something popped in my knee."

"It was the same week as the previous year and against the same team," said Hamman. "At least we play Spruce Creek later in the year this year."

Hamman came up as a guard, a position he played the first three years for the Patriots, along with a little bit of linebacker. This year, coach Dave Tullis moved his talented senior to left tackle.

"It's more head-on head blocking," the Lake Brantley senior who is a B-C student. "I think that has helped me stay healthy."

And a healthy Hamman has meant at healthy year for the Patriots in the win column. Lake Brantley has won three of its four games and stands 2-1 in the Five Star Conference, quite a turnaround from last season's 2-8 record.

"Last year, we were really inexperienced," said Hamman. "Now, most of those guys are back. We have a lot of closeness on this team. We have team meetings and everybody says what they think. The closeness is one of the big reasons that we're winning."

Hamman and his teammates would also like to close in on the Five Star and district titles. To do so, they will probably have to win their remaining district games. "We can do it," said Hamman. "If we keep our mental attitude at the right level and get up for the Apopka game (Oct. 21), there's no reason we can't win it."

Today and tomorrow, Hamman and the Patriots will be "getting up" for the Mainland Bucs. Lake Brantley hopes to stay on the heels of Apopka (3-0) and Lyman (3-0) with a victory Saturday at Daytona Beach. Kickoff is 2 p.m. at Welch Memorial Stadium.

And after this year, what does the future hold for the 17-year-old Patriot? "I'd like to play college football," said Hamman who has received feelers from Memphis State, Eastern Kentucky, Southeastern Louisiana and the University of Central Florida. "And, I'd like to stay in the trenches."

Spoken like a true offensive line man, a player who loves "Life In The Pits."

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Oklahoma running back Marcus Dupree remained in hiding Thursday and a "disgusted" Sooners coach Barry Switzer said he would have the final word on whether Dupree will remain on the team.

Oldtimers, Faculty Play Saturday

Sanford's Tommy Barks hauls in a pass while warming up for Saturday's "Oldtimers vs. Faculty" football game at Seminole High School. Carli, along with some former Seminole greats like Tim Raines, Mike Good and Frank Whigham, will return to the gridiron for a touch football game with the Tribe faculty, which includes Jerry Posey, Mike Ferrell, Bobby Lundquist and Emory Blake. Tickets are $1 in advance and $1.50 at the gate. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Wilson, Aikens Plead Guilty To Misdemeanor Drug Charge

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI) — Two members of the Kansas City Royals pleaded guilty to federal drug charges four days before a grand jury was scheduled to convene to investigate additional cocaine dealings.

Willie Wilson, the American League's batting champion in 1982, and Willie Aikens, a hero in a losing cause during the 1980 World Series, both pleaded guilty Thursday to misdemeanor drug charges.

Both men were released on $5,000 personal recognition bonds pending pre-sentencing investigations. Sentencing was set for Nov. 17. The charges carry a maximum sentence of one year in jail and a $5,000 fine.

The guilty pleas before U.S. Magistrate J. Milton Sullivant came four days before a federal grand jury was scheduled to convene in Kansas City, Kan. In a prepared statement from his office, U.S. Attorney for Kansas James Marquez "declined further comment on these cases in view of the on-going investigation into related matters and the convening of the federal grand jury of the district of Kansas on Oct. 17 in Kansas City, Kan."

The charges stem from an investigation by the FBI, Kansas Bureau of Investigation, the Kansas Attorney General's Office and the Johnson County District Attorney's office in connection with a June raid of a Johnson County home.

The Daily News of Johnson County (Kan.) rted on Aug. 9 that Wilson and Aikens were among "less than 10" baseball players being interviewed for alleged cocaine abuse in Johnson County.

According to the plea agreement, no other charges will be filed against Wilson and Aikens in the Assistant U.S. Attorney Amanda Meers said.

Ms. Meers said the plea agreements "were the result of lengthy discussions with counsel for these defendants." She said that the charges filed Thursday were the first stem from the investigation.

Heart Flutters May Not Be Too Serious

DEAR DR. LAMB— Do you have any Health Letter explaining atrial fibrillation or flutter? I am a very healthy 48-year-old man, 6-foot-1 and weigh 170 pounds. I have had no previous illnesses of any kind other than the usual childhood diseases.

Six months ago I noted that my heartbeat was irregular. After trying drugs (Digoxin and others through my veins), I began electro-conversion treatment.

I was back to a normal rhythm for less than a month and then I started to have erratic beats again. I've been on Digoxin since conversion. But for the past several weeks my heartbeat has again been almost constantly erratic.

I suffer no noticeable effects. For the past three weeks I have been on Digoxin, Quinaglut and Coumadin. An echogram showed nothing and there were no chemical imbalances.

How many electro-conversions are prudent? What about long term usage of the medicines I'm on? Does this make me a candidate for other cardiac ailments?

DEAR READER— There are people who have atrial fibrillation and do not have any underlying heart disease. In other instances atrial fibrillation can be from a number of different heart diseases.

Atrial fibrillation means the top of the heart (the atria) is beating at a rate of around 500 times per minute. Only a few of these impulses trigger the bottom part of the heart (ventricles) that pump blood to your body. When the ventricle rate remains slow you may not notice that you are fibrillating.

Recurrent attacks of atrial fibrillation can occur and are sometimes associated with specific habits. I would recommend that you avoid alcohol, coffee or other drinks containing caffeine and do not smoke.

There are many things that can affect the blood clotting mechanism or promote hemorrhages. That includes liver disease or any disease that affects the blood platelets. Platelets are the tiny cells in your blood that are involved in starting the clotting process. Your doctors will have to know the results of your tests to know what you have before deciding what should be done about the petechiae.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I am a 28-year-old woman and have recently been diagnosed as having petechiae. I'm currently waiting for the results on blood work that was done.

I would like to know more about the condition, the causes and treatment.

DEAR READER— Petechiae are small hemorrhages. They cause purplish-red spots in the skin or in the mouth. They are commonly within the skin or subcutaneous area. They occur because of some abnormality in blood clotting mechanism, unless they are associated with mechanical factors.

If East had had to play the diamond queen at trick one there would have been two diamond tricks, but East's 10 forced South's king.

South led his deuce of clubs at trick two. West played low and dummy's jack held the trick. Many players would have led a club back toward the king next, but South wanted to guard against the actual club situation so he came back to his hand with the 10 of spades in order to lead his six clubs.

West had to use his ace to capture the card instead of the king and now South was sure of three clubs, four spades, the diamond taken at trick one, his ace of hearts and approbation from his partner.

Protective Action Avoids Cold Damage To Plants

At a time when summer weather seems reluctant to leave it may be somewhat difficult to start thinking about protecting outdoor plants from cold injury. However with fall already here and winter lurking in the wings it is not too early to start getting prepared. Garden hobbyists should anticipate the increasing hazard of cold damage to tender ornamentals and take necessary precautions. Cold damage is a perennial, but not necessarily disastrous problem if you are prepared to take protective action whenever frost or freeze warnings are issued.

You may have heard about many ways to protect ornamentals from

Frank J. Jasa
County Extension Director
323-2500
Ext. 182

protect home plantings from freezing temperatures is to heat them with an ordinary light bulb, under a sheet, plastic or some similar covering.

Even if you don't use a light bulb or other heat source, you can reduce the amount of cold injury your plants will suffer by covering them. Coverings will help keep plants from cooling off as fast as they would otherwise. And, if the coverings reach the ground they can help make better use of ground heat. Surprising as it may seem, covering a plant may also help prevent cold damage by providing shade during the day. If a plant has frozen, it will thaw out more slowly if it is under shade. This results in less cold injury.

However, in spite of these benefits, covering a plant without additional heat is primarily a method of providing protection against frost, rather than hard freezes. Also, it is important to remove the coverings when the weather warms up, even if it is only a day or two, otherwise the plants may suffer burning.

The use of mulch is one cold protection measure which causes a lot of confusion. If the temperature drops below freezing for just a few hours, a good layer of mulch often will lead to increased cold damage to the tops of your plants. This top injury results from the mulch keeping ground heat in the ground, away from leaves and branches. So, if a brief overnight freeze is forecast, you may want to pull back the mulch from your plants. But longer periods of very cold weather are a different matter. If you expect it to get so cold the tops of the plants may be killed regardless of what you do, leave the mulch in place. It may hold enough ground heat to keep the base of the plant and its roots from being frozen. A plant may come back from considerable cold damage to foliage and branches, but if the roots or trunk at ground level are frozen, you may lose the entire plant.

Proper cultural practices can go a long way toward protecting plants from cold. It is important to have plants in good condition but not pushed for vegetative growth. Early October should be the cut-off date for fertilizing all but most hardy plants. Adequate moisture during cold weather will also help plants survive the lower temperatures.

Camp Souvenirs Startle Precocious Teen's Mom

DEAR ABBY: While my 12-year-old daughter was visiting her cousin in another state, I cleaned out the gear she brought back from camp. In her backpack I found 24 large color photos of teen-aged boys, naked and in a state of arousal. I also found a box of a dozen condoms; one had been removed from its inner foil wrap. Her father and I have always talked openly with her about sex ever since she was old enough to ask questions. When she was 4, she expressed curiosity about the male anatomy, so I showed her a picture of Michelangelo's David.

We've had long talks about menstruation, dating, petting, intercourse, birth control, morals, etc., with no embarrassment on either side.

I have concluded that she was probably given or sold the pornography by a college-age girl camp counselor who was discharged mid-season with no explanation. I don't know where she got the condoms.

She's a well-adjusted, normal 12-year-old girl who appears to be no more boy-crazy than any of her girlfriends. I don't know whether I should be outraged, amused or even proud of her precocious interest in erections. I've heard of girls 12 and even younger having sex, but she is such a baby, I can't imagine her in such a situation.

I haven't the foggiest idea of what to say when she returns, but I know I must talk to her about this. Perhaps I've told her too much already, or somehow failed in preparing her for this phase of her life. What do I do now, Abby?

Dear Abby

I am not deaf, and I hear most everything that's said, but I wish people would not speak with their heads turned in another direction from the person they are speaking to. This is so important. Heart Flutters May Not Be Too Serious

Dr. Lamb
 DEAR DR. LAMB— Do you have any Health Letter explaining atrial fibrillation or flutter? I am a very healthy 48-year-old man, 6-foot-1 and weigh 170 pounds. I have had no previous illnesses of any kind other than the usual childhood diseases.
 Six months ago I noted that my heartbeat was irregular. After trying drugs (Digoxin and others through my veins), I began electro-conversion treatment.
 I was back to a normal rhythm for less than a month and then I started to have erratic beats again. I've been on Digoxin since conversion. But for the past several weeks my heartbeat has again been almost constantly erratic.
 I suffer no noticeable effects. For the past three weeks I have been on Digoxin, Quinaglute and Coumadin. An echogram showed nothing and there were no chemical imbalances.
 How many electro-conversions are prudent? What about long term usage of the medicines I'm on? Does this make me a candidate for other cardiac ailments?
 DEAR READER— There are people who have atrial fibrillation and do not have any underlying heart disease. In other instances atrial fibrillation can be from a number of different heart diseases.
 Atrial fibrillation means the top of the heart (the atria) is beating at a rate of around 500 times per minute. Only a few of these impulses trigger the bottom part of the heart (ventricles) that pump blood to your body. When the ventricle rate remains slow you may not notice that you are fibrillating.
 Recurrent attacks of atrial fibrillation can occur and are sometimes associated with specific habits. I would recommend that you avoid alcohol, coffee or other drinks containing caffeine and do not smoke.
 Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Campaign '84

Reagan Re-Election Committee Opens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's re-election committee opens for business next week, but Reagan is still delaying his formal announcement because he does not want to hurt his credibility, the head of the committee said.

Armed with long-awaited consent from Reagan, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., announced to reporters Thursday that the panel will begin work next week under the banner of "Reagan-Bush '84."

"I have no doubt in my mind that Ronald Reagan is going to be a candidate to re-election," Laxalt said with a new sense of confidence. "In football terms," he mused, "this campaign is on the six-inch line."

The announcement followed a 20-minute Oval Office meeting in which Reagan, who has taken delight in keeping alive the guessing game concerning his political future, agreed to become a legal candidate for re-election as of Monday.

But Reagan still intends to differentiate between his status as a legal candidate and that of a formal, announced candidate. Despite his nod of approval to Laxalt, he still may not declare his candidacy until mid-December.

"He feels that the formal announcement — a final blessing of candidacy — would impair his credibility," Laxalt said. "I tend to agree with him. It's a subtle thing."

Laxalt, a conservative chosen by Reagan last year to become general chairman of the Republican National Committee, said the president is "leaving himself running room" by putting off a formal announcement.

While the press may speculate that certain actions or statements are politically motivated, Reagan becomes vulnerable to this contention with regard to everything he says and does once he declares, Laxalt said.

"I don't think it's a subterfuge at all," he said. "It's a perfectly honest approach."

Laxalt, a Reagan confidant who will serve as chairman of the campaign committee, said the president will wait for a number of weeks — probably until after Congress wraps up its work — to declare his candidacy for a second term.

Laxalt said Reagan would sign a letter authorizing the formation of a campaign committee in papers to be filed with the Federal Election Commission.

The committee will operate from offices in a building near the Capitol that houses the National Association of Counties and could be in operation Monday or Tuesday, with Laxalt as chairman and White House political adviser Edward Rollins as campaign director.

The date for creation of the committee had been in place for some time, Laxalt, however, was reluctant to press ahead without a tangible sign of consent from Reagan.

Laxalt said he walked into the Oval Office and told Reagan, "the time has come" for a positive sign that the campaign should move forward. He said he told Reagan he wanted the authorization "in writing."

Male Bias Removed From Bible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Council of Churches today made public its controversial "inclusive language" lectionary — the Bible readings used in public worship — recast in non-sexist language.

And two of the council's 31 members, the Lutheran Church in America and the Eastern Orthodox Church, immediately disassociated themselves from the project.

Dr. Claire Randall, general secretary of the church council, said the new lectionary "is not an official lectionary" but "a result of requests from many local churches who were struggling with the question of gender bias in the language of worship, and who had neither the expertise or the time to recast the Scripture in inclusive language."

The new lectionary, using the readings from the Bible put together by the 10-church Consultation on Church Union, recasts the "male bias" of the Bible in its major English translation, the Revised Standard Version, in its references to people and changes some language about God and Jesus Christ.

It argues, for example, that many Biblical passages that use the Greek word "anthropos," which can be translated either as "human being" or, sometimes, "male human being," is regularly rendered as "male," "man," or "men."

For example, the RSV version, in a familiar passage, translates the words of Jesus as "Let your light so shine before men" that they may see your good works and glorify your Father who is in heaven."

In this instance, it is argued, the use of the Greek "anthropos" does not mean "males but not females" and said it could be translated as well to read "Let your light so shine among others."

In another example, the committee rendered Ezek. 33.2, which speaks of "watchmen," as "watcher," it said, "even though the Hebrew word clearly refers to a male sentry who protected the city or town from surprise attack."

"In this lectionary," the committee said, "women can hear themselves as those who are called to watch for the deeds of God."

Three years in the making, the lectionary project has been bitterly attacked by conservative and Religious Right groups as an effort to pervert the Bible.

In recent years, Christian feminists have complained that the male bias in both the original Biblical texts and in their English translations tend to exclude them from the life of the church.

Study Says No Nerve Gas Weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress should reject a Pentagon request for $151.6 million to produce two new nerve gas weapons because production plans are uncertain, a congressional study concludes.

A 46-page report by the General Accounting Office analyzed the Pentagon's $4.6 billion request for ammunition procurement in 1984 and recommended reducing the amount by $433.6 million.

The report by Congress's investigative arm was prepared for the House Appropriations Committee.

The committee is expected to consider legislation next week that would fund more than $200 billion worth of weapons programs and other defense-related activities.

The study is expected to bolster arguments of those who oppose the administration's plans to resume of nerve gas for the first time since 1969. The House rejected the program earlier this year and the Senate approved it only when Vice President George Bush broke a 49-49 tie; the program then survived a House-Senate conference to reconcile the two military bills.

The study recommends that Congress reject $18.1 million for production of 155-millimeter binary nerve gas shells and $43.2 million for production of the troubled "Bigeye" nerve gas bomb. It also suggests eliminating $90.3 million for the production and assembly facilities that would be used for making the bomb.

In binary chemical ammunition, two non-lethal chemicals are separated until they are mixed in an artillery shell or bomb, producing a lethal gas. They are considered safer than older single-chambered weapons which may leak.

An appropriations subcommittee already has cut the administration request by more than half, to $61.6 million. In addition, the Defense Department, citing development delays, withdrew its request for Bigeye production funds earlier this year.

"Until the Army chooses the locations of these projects, funding them in fiscal year 1984 is premature since the costs will vary according to location," said the report, dated Sept. 28. "Further, the developmental Bigeye bomb has technical problems and has undergone only limited testing."

Test evaluations last spring by the Defense Department found the bomb reached unacceptably high temperature levels when the mixing process was begun aboard the aircraft. The Pentagon ordered the mixing process to be delayed until after the bomb is released, and said it is satisfied with the results.

School To Perform Dyslexia Screening

What do Olympian Bruce Jenner, atomic scientist Albert Einstein, artist Pablo Picasso, and politician Nelson Rockefeller have in common? The disability of dyslexia...an inability to read...that neurological scrambling that afflicts an estimated 25 million Americans.

The DePaul School of Central Florida will offer a screening program Wednesday and Thursday to help parents determine if this common disability is the reason behind their child's school problems. Very often, dyslexia is the root cause of behavioral problems, slowness in completing tasks or organizational and communication problems.

Revelal of letter perception and difficulty in reading are not the only problems the dyslexic child has. And, the dyslexic child grows up to be a dyslexic adult. There is not a cure...but there is a way to teach the dyslexic individual (at any age) to cope in a world that very often appears backward to them.

The DePaul School is a non-profit, non-denominational school that is run by the parents of its students. Located at 4710 Adanson St., Orlando, in the St. Paul's Methodist Church education building, the school has programs for people aged 6 to 80.

The screening process itself is a personalized, one-on-one process that takes 2½ hours.

The cost of the testing is $100 and the results will be available almost immediately, with an explanatory workshop for parents following on October 22 and 23.

FBI Seizes Computer Equipment

United Press International

FBI agents on a nationwide hunt for equipment used to crack military and business computer systems raided the homes of teenage electronics whizzes in six states, reportedly turning up software gangs led by youths known as "The Cracker" and "The Wizard."

FBI agents launched raids from New York to California this week and seized thousands of dollars of equipment. Sources said the investigation focuses on offenses including illegal use of electronic message services, tapping of defense information and destruction of stored data.

The Detroit Free Press quoted a source close to the investigation who said damage caused by a Detroit group of computer enthusiasts was estimated "between $500,000 and $1 million" and "dozens and dozens of systems were involved. Systems were damaged everywhere, coast to coast."

"It's a matter of deliberate, calculated sabotage," the source said. "The main slant of the investigation is anything defense-related."

In Irvine, Calif., agents seized equipment Tuesday at the homes of David Hill, 17; Wayne Correlia, 17; Gary Knutson, 15; and his brother, Gregg, 14.

"We never would or never did try to harm any kind of system or steal any kind of information," a shaken Hill said at a Thursday news conference. "We were just playing around in there."

The Irvine youths blamed a mysterious teen whiz called "The Cracker" for teaching them how to tap a commercial network that charges users.

Correlia said seven agents raided his home, with one FBI man breaking through his second-story bedroom window, flashing his badge and saying, "Hold it right there, that computer is mine."

Detroit newspapers and TV news stations reported the FBI raided at least 12 homes in six states. The raids were reportedly conducted in Irvine, Detroit, Tucson, Ariz., Oklahoma City, Okla., New York and Virginia.

In Alexandria, Va., the FBI released a statement that said General Telephone and Electronics Telnet Communications Corp. of Vienna, Va., "became aware that unidentified intruders had gained access to its Telnet electronic mail system."

None of the youths was charged.

Peering Into TV's Future

Print and video are combined with increasing frequency in today's television market. Here a young woman reads a teleframe of printed information delivered to her home via satellite and cable. This is just one of the many innovations forseen for the future of TV. Details about what you can expect on page 2.

Television

What Can Viewers Expect In The Years To Come?

By Micheal Beha
Herald Staff Writer

A soon-to-come innovation in the cable television industry will be a boon to cable firms and may threaten the very foundation of commercial television by drawing sports, movies and other programming from the commercial networks.

That innovation is pay per view television which allows cable TV subscribers to pick and choose from offerings by all of the available cable programming companies.

The device that makes pay per view TV possible is the addressable converter. With the addressable converter, a cable company can give a subscribers premium programming like Home Box Office, Cinemax or special events simply by pressing a few buttons. It eliminates the need for the company to send a technician to your home.

According to Steven McMahon of American Television and Communication (ATC) Corp. in Orlando, the parent company of Orange-Seminole Cablevision, addressable converters will be introduced to Central Florida within a few years.

Sports programming in cities like Philadelphia and Chicago is already on a pay per view basis, McMahon said. Professional teams in those cities have joined together to form their own cable channels, offering the games to subscribers. "It's less expensive than going to games and more people are watching it."

The cost of pay-per-view TV may be relatively high for the next few years. (McMahon said a fee of $5 to $10 would be charged for a big sporting event like the recent Alexis Arguello-Aaron Pryor boxing match).

McMahon predicted, however, pay per view television will ultimately be successful despite early indications "that it only makes money when it's a blockbuster event."

Eventually, he said, major sporting events, like the World Series, college basketball's playoff tournament and the Super Bowl will be dislodged from network television in favor of the cable channels.

Cable firms have already bought up the rights to show many of Hollywood's classic films, leaving fans of late night movies on commercial stations in the lurch.

"America has an appetite for movies. There are not enough movies to fill up all the pay services. They're growing dependent on old films and foreign films," McMahon said.

Many films which weren't successful commercially have become hits on cable, he said. "People who won't go downtown to the movies will watch on television."

Music television, or MTV, has also been a smash success, combining videos, live and taped concerts and interviews with music stars.

While movies and music are big hits on the cable networks, much of the other programming has not been. Several cable programming services, like CBS Cable have already gone out of business. CBS Cable and the Entertainment Channel appealed to limited viewing audiences, which in turn brought about their demise.

McMahon believes the new technology will be a gold mine for cable firms. "There is very little pay per view costs. The cost is in the technology." The addressable converter will give new dimension to the cable industry, he said.

Two-way cable, teletext, even home security are on the horizon.

Interactive cable has been tested in Columbus, Ohio but the service, which allows the viewer to "talk back" to the television, is not yet financially feasible, McMahon said. When two-way TV becomes economically possible, cable subscribers will be able to bank and shop through their television. "But you can't look forward to that real quickly," he said.

Down the line, subscribers will be able to connect their home security systems to cable, so if a home is burglarized an alarm will sound at the police station, McMahon said his firm is already working to develop that technology.

In the near future, local cable subscribers can expect to see videotext, screens of written, newspaper-type information which run on a regular cycle 24 hours a day. Passive systems like that are available on many cable systems now.

Another, more active feature is currently being developed by ATC, McMahon said. About 200 Orange-Seminole subscribers are participating in a system that allows them to retrieve the information they want to see from a computer. It uses newspaper-style stories as well but the viewer can choose what he wants to watch rather than going through the entire cycle.

Graphics are also available through the two systems, he said.

Television viewers won't have to depend totally on cable for their kicks.

According to corporate spokesmen for Zenith and General Electric, the two firms will likely begin selling digital televisions early in 1984 even though local dealers said they have no idea of when the sets may be available.

The firms boast that the sets will provide clearer pictures with richer color and truer sound.

The TVs, which operate on semiconductor chips, will offer novelty features such as split-screen, freeze-frame and zoom. The split-screen will even allow viewers to watch more than one program.

A spokesman for Zenith said the sets should sell for about the same price as the company's current top-of-the-line models.

Polish Export Enjoys Life In U.S.

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — The company that just returned from many months in Helsinki and Stockholm shooting Gorky Park is full of ecstatic reports about Joanna Pacula, who won the plum role of Irina.

I am pleased to report the arrival of a new star. The plum role went to a peach. Miss Pacula is a slender reed, and she may be the first person from Tomaszow Lubelski to make it in Hollywood.

"You've never heard of Tomaszow Lubelski?" she asks. Then she explains it is a rather famous resort town in Poland "where people go for healthy living and enjoying the country."

Her father works in construction there and her mother is a pharmacist. She has two sisters and a brother, and there came a time when she had enough of the healthy living and enjoying the country so she decided to be an actress.

That isn't as easy in Poland as here. You have to go to a drama school in Warsaw before you can work in movies or in the theater, and everybody wants to go to that school. She says in her year there were 400 applicants for 22 available spots.

"But I was lucky," she says. "In my first year, the Polish movie people took me to make a film and from then on I made more films. So I was able to pay my bills, and to eat and to sleep."

By the time she finished her drama school training, she was a star in Polish cinema. But she immediately quit film for the stage, which is more prestigious in Poland. And she also did well on the Warsaw stage.

In December, 1981, she was on vacation in Paris when the Polish government declared martial law. That effectively closed down both the Polish theater and film industries, so she simply stayed in Paris.

She did some modeling and TV commercials in Paris, and made enough money so she decided to travel. She went to Belgium and then Spain and then came to the United States.

"On one of my first days in New York," she says, "my bag was stolen, and my passport was in it. I could not get another passport because of the political situation at home in Poland, so I had to stay in the U.S."

She was in New York when producers Gene Kirkwood and Howard Koch Jr., and director Michael Apted were looking for a star for Gorky Park. They heard about the Polish actress who, they were told, was in Paris. They went to Paris to find her, only to learn she was in New York.

Miss Pacula has decided to settle in the United States, and has applied for her green card. She and co-producer Koch have become a romantic item, which naturally influenced that decision.

"I have learned to swim," she says, "and I have learned to drive and I have learned to play tennis, so I think that makes me practically an American."

Soft Soap

Wedding bells ring on the daytime drama Search for Tomorrow. But when Steve (Phil Brown) and Stephanie (Marie Cheatham) exchange vows will Suzi (Elizabeth Swackhamer), left, and Lloyd (Peter Haskell), right, hold their peace? Tune in the week of Oct. 17 and find out if there really is wedded bliss.

Travanti's Ring Has Its Own Story

DEAR DICK: On my favorite program, Hill Street Blues, Daniel J. Travanti wears a ring with a large stone. It looks like a fiery opal. Is it his? A prop? What is his reason for wearing it? — K.E., Mobile, Ala.

It's his, originally a gift from "an admirer," as he puts it, and he's been wearing it for 11 years. He says he believes it is more than 100 years old. It's hand-wrought gold with a stone — a chalcedony, not a fiery opal — and he was told it came from Greece. But Travanti had it appraised and was told that it's Russian. You can't see it at home, obviously, but it has a design — a boat and two birds holding a rope with the symbol of infinity — and the inscription, in French: "The further apart, the stronger the bond."

DEAR DICK: My friend and I have been arguing about the name of the robot on the old TV show Lost In Space. Could you please settle this for us? — O.J., Indiana, Pa.

I called my friend, Jonathan Harris, who played Dr. Smith, and the answer will probably disappoint both of you. The robot never had a name. Harris says he wanted to call it Claude, but the producers said no, and it was always called simply the robot.

DEAR DICK: The person who plays Shorofsky on Fame looks familiar. I think I saw him, without his beard, in the movie The Caine Mutiny. Am I right? — M.B.N., Roosevelt, N.J.

Sorry to burst your memory bubble but, no, you're wrong. Albert Hague plays the part and Fame is his first acting job. Previously he had been involved in the Broadway theater, but primarily as a writer. He wrote Plain and Fancy, for example.

DEAR DICK: My husband and I like Throp's Company. We are curious as to why Mrs. Roper always wears those long muumuu-like gowns. Is it because she feels she has a bad figure? Or

Ask Dick Kleiner

Is it just a gimmick for the show? We'd like to know. — A.S., Joplin, Mo.

It's more gimmick than camouflage. Audra Lindley plays Mrs. Roper and she feels that type of outfit is more in keeping with the off-the-wall personality of her character.

DEAR DICK: What Western series did Doug McClure star in? His character's name was Trampas. — B.B., Loraine, Ill.

McClure played Trampas on The Virginian.

DEAR DICK: We recently heard Tristan Rogers (Scorpio on General Hospital) give an interview in which he said General Hospital was going off TV for good. Is this so? — I.K., Saginaw, Mich.

Not likely. It's one of the top-rated shows on the air, and it makes millions for ABC, so it should be around quite a time. You must have misunderstood him.

DEAR DICK: Recently, I saw a rerun of an episode of the old Ironside series with Raymond Burr. This led to a discussion of what year that series was originally run on TV. I believe it was '68 or '69. Can you tell me? — L.A., Stevenson, Wash.

It was 1967 and it ran until 1975.

DEAR DICK: How old is Steve Bond, alias Jimmy Lee Holt of General Hospital? Where did he grow up? Is he married? Does he have any children? B.C.B., Cougar, Wash.

Bond is 27 and red hot. He was born in Haifa, Israel and came to New York at 11 and a year later went to Los Angeles, which he considers home. He married professional golfer Cindy Cox in December. No children yet.

DEAR DICK: I remember watching a show after school in the late '50s or early '60s called Ramar of the Jungle. It starred a white hunter with a native sidekick. Can you please tell me who were the stars and what years it was shown? — S.B., Republic, Mo.

Ramar of the Jungle starred Jon Hall as Dr. Thomas Reynolds, but I cannot find the name of his "native sidekick." It originally ran from '52 to '54, but it was syndicated in reruns for many years after that.

DEAR DICK: I read in a magazine that Tom Selleck was on The Young and the Restless soap opera. I was wondering when that was and what character he played? — D.S.W., Paw Paw, Mich.

Tom was a semi-regular, playing a character named Jed Andrews, in '72 and '73. He says they wanted him to sign on as a regular, but he turned them down.

DEAR DICK: A $1,000 bet is riding on this one: How old was Mary Tyler Moore when she began playing Laura Petry on The Dick Van Dyke Show? How old is she now? How old was Van Dyke? — T.L.S. and R.S.J., Kalamazoo, Mich.

I don't believe those stakes for a minute, but, nevertheless, Mary Tyler Moore was 25 and Dick Van Dyke was 36 when they started that show, back in 1961. I'll let you get out the old computer and figure their current ages from that data.

Joan Not As Bitchy As Alexis

By Vernon Scott

UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Poor Joan Collins.

The flashy, sexy brunette star of Dynasty has a reputation for being as bitchy offstage as Alexis Carrington, her tempestuous TV role.

She plays the vindictive Alexis with such verve and obvious relish it is assumed there must be a great deal of Collins in Carrington, the treacherous ex-wife of the show's patriarch, played by John Forsythe in the ABC-TV series.

It probably does not occur to millions of viewers and scandal sheet writers that Joan's brittle, often venomous, portrayal is purely and simply a finely drawn portrait of a classic female stereotype.

Joan has been around too long, seen too many ups and downs in her career, to be deeply rankled by the transference of Alexis' aserbic characteristics to herself. All the same, she isn't pleased about the manifestation.

Alexis, after all, has been something of a saving grace in Joan's career, not exactly at its height when she accepted the role and quickly made her part into the woman everyone loves to hate.

Joan and Alexis are lumped together as one and the same dark presence. In stark contrast to Linda Evans in the role of Krystle Carrington, the blonde snow goddess who replaced Alexis in Carrington's heart.

Linda and Krystle are all goodness and light.

Just as Alexis' bitchiness has rubbed off on Joan, so has Krystle's sweetness and virtue been applied to Linda.

"People don't say so to my face, but they talk and write about me being as big a bitch as Alexis," Joan said, a touch wearily. "John (Forsythe) and Linda have called some of the scandal sheets defending me.

"Actually, I think Linda is close in character to Krystle. But then most performers play people close to what they truly are, especially in situation comedy.

"I find it easy to play myself as a means of being as natural as possible on camera, but that doesn't mean Alexis and I are the same person. In a way I'm flattered people think I'm like Alexis. We do have some traits in common.

"We both have high energy and a strong interest in clothes and jewels. We are sensuous and we're good businesswomen. But she's more concerned with business matters than I am.

"I'm not very introspective, so in a real sense I know Alexis better than I do myself.

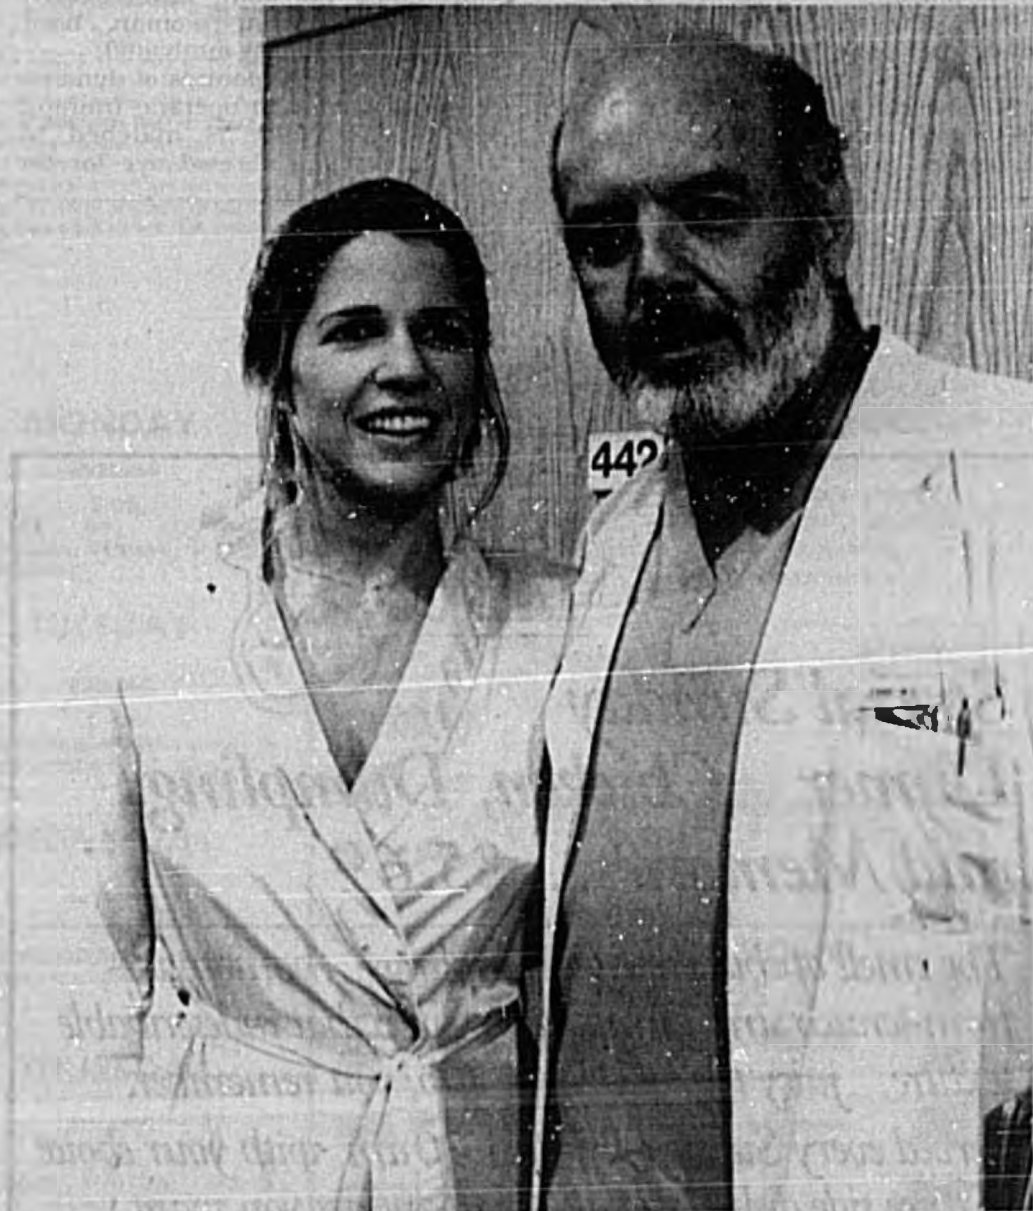

"I always know how Alexis will react to a given situation. She loves conflict, rows and confrontations. I hate them and will do anything I can to avoid personal confrontation and unpleasantness.

"Alexis is consumed by a vendetta against Blake Carrington. I can forgive and forget, but not Alexis.

"She is great fun to play. Originally, she was added to the cast for only eight or nine episodes. I was given the part only after Sophia Loren and Raquel Welch turned it down. So I'm grateful to both of them."

In person Joan is warm, voluble and witty. Her's is a dark, haunting beauty and obviously sexual. Men look at her with undisguised lust, a fact which does not escape the actress.

It would be difficult, if not impossible, for her to play the innocent.

Blacks Upset Over New 'Webster' Series

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Susan Clark and Alex Karras might have never known about the controversy, except that they have a black housekeeper who reads all the black newspapers. She told them how awful they were on TV.

Susan and Alex — who are real-life husband and wife — are starring in ABC's new Friday night series, "Webster." The premise of the series is that Alex is an ex-football star and Susan is his brand-new wife and a couple of weeks after their sudden marriage they have a kid dumped in their laps.

The kid is Webster, whose father was a teammate of Alex's. The kid's father died and left no survivors. Alex was the godfather. So here is Webster.

There are no problems with all that, but Webster just happens to be black.

"My housekeeper says all the black newspapers are upset about it," Karras says. "Even before the show went on the air, they were writing about us as another example of whites patronizing blacks. They say it is typical for Hollywood to visualize a white couple helping out a black boy, rather than vice versa."

The gist of the black community's complaint is that it's always a white helping a black. Why couldn't it have been a black couple taking in a white kid?

Susan says that because of the controversy their housekeeper brought to their attention they are doing an episode simply to answer those charges.

"It will deal with the friendship between George, the character Alex plays, and Webster's father," she says. "It will tell how they shared so much that Webster's father felt he would rather have George responsible for his son, if anything happens to him, than anybody else. They are similar in background and similar in outlook, and it doesn't matter that they are dissimilar in the color of their skin."

Both Susan and Alex are sorry that the controversy has erupted. But, they feel it has a positive side as well; it lifts the show out of the banal rut of most sitcoms. They also like that it points up that "Webster" can have its serious side.

Susan and Alex have their own production company. They did a TV movie, "Maid in America," which was a comedy but dealt with the semi-serious theme of male-female role reversals. They both feel that they got their point across better because it was a comedy. Instead of a heavy, pretentious drama.

"I've always been a bit of a rebel," says Karras.

"Or at least let's say I've been a bit offbeat. It comes from my childhood — my father was Greek and my mother was Scotch-Irish — so I was on the periphery of both groups, but really part of neither. I would go to the Greek Orthodox church, but not really belong. I can speak Greek to get by, that's all. And the same thing when I went to my mother's Episcopal church."

But why a series now, when his producing career and his wife's acting career are doing pretty well by themselves?

"I wanted to do a series because I want to be financially independent," Karras says. "My thing is that I want to do what I want to do when I want to do it. I figure if the series goes, in three years or so I will achieve that independence. Then I won't act any more, I'll do some producing and a lot of fishing."

"I'm primarily an actress," Susan explains, "but I find I do enjoy working with Alex on producing, too. It is conceivable that if this show lasts three to five years, I will have had my fill of acting, at least for a while. Maybe I might then do a play on Broadway — Alex teases me about that — and maybe a movie now and then, but do more producing than acting."

Pat Benatar Is Rock's First Video Baby

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Pat Benatar is a product of rock videos, the visual packages that keep teenagers glued to MTV, the cable TV music pipeline.

Pat's glitzy illustrated songs have made her one of rock's current queens.

So powerful is MTV's impact on the recording industry and teen consumerism, youngsters no longer tell

Pat they've heard her new single or album.

Instead they say, "Hey! I've SEEN your new song."

Pat, whose music and appearance sometimes are inexplicably confused with Linda Ronstadt, is an exceedingly bright young woman, hard-edged and singularly motivated.

At 30 she is 90 pounds of dynamic soprano steeped in operatic training. Her driving voice is matched by ambition and a shrewd eye for the marketplace.

On video tape in skin-tight outfits and with her short-cropped, dark hair tousled, Pat is a seething bundle of energy belting songs to the driving beat of her own compositions.

Pat's success is best reflected in her three Grammys, 1980-1982, for best rock vocal performance. Her hits include Little Too Late, I'll Do It, I Want Out, Silent Partner and Fight It Out.

A recent album, Get Nervous, was a triple platinum seller and her newest, Live From Earth, recorded from her U.S. and European tours, may well follow suit.

Pat was a pioneer in rock videos. Her 10th and most recent is a six-minute rendition of Love Is A Battlefield.

It amounts to a mini-movie and, for the first time, includes dialogue without music.

"It tells the story of a runaway New Jersey girl who ends up in the slums of New York City," Pat said. "I had to learn how to dance for this one."

The new video cost $100,000 and took two days to produce, following two days of rehearsal. Four years ago her first video cost only $25,000 and ran 3½ minutes.

Only her first album was released without a video. Her second, Crimes of Passion, was introduced on MTV with the single You Better Run.

"I was one of the first artists to do videos," she said. "I like what they accomplish with a song. The personal interpretation, with visual effects adds a whole new dimension to the songs I write."

"Videos got me quicker exposure than any other form of promotion and helped spread the word on my nine-month tour. Kids knew who I was and what I looked like in addition to how I sang."

"Right now MTV is the most powerful medium for rock music, even though radio is holding its own. But other cable channels will be opening up and specializing in country music, black artists and maybe even classical music."

'Scoundrel' Joan; Glenn And 'Ladies'

By Cindy Adams
NEW YORK — Bette Davis was expected on the set of "Hotel," her ABC series, this week, but she didn't make it. Recouping from surgery in Connecticut, there's still no confirmation on her return. The producers now hope Miss Davis will check into their "Hotel" next month... It must be serious between Mary Tyler Moore and her Mt. Sinai Hospital cardiologist, Dr. Robert Levine. Levine, who's Jewish, has attended services recently at New York's Temple Emanuel. Miss Moore, who's not went with him... After filming "Scoundrel" perfume commercials at Raleigh Studios in Hollywood, Joan Collins treated herself to a weeks' vacation in London.

"Sophisticated Ladies" opened at the Warner Theatre in Duke Ellington's hometown, Washington, D.C. First-nighters will be part of a John Glenn fund-raiser. Only $200 gets them Glenn in person, champagne with strawberries, and theater seats. And what will they eat? Well, for one thing, fried mozzarella with apricot horseradish. Ex-astronaut Glenn probably found the menu in outer space. Steven Spielberg, who counts his millions by the dozen, locked onto another $200 million in bookings and merchandise deals for his new movie "Indiana Jones." Forget about Blackglama mink coats. What becomes a legend most is big money.

Dining With Mexican Flair Adds Zest To Film Viewing At The Showtime Cantina

Like a breath of fresh air, a Mexican-themed restaurant, Taco Bravo, has settled in Sanford's recently restored Ritz Theatre, now known as Showtime Cantina.

Munch burritos or tortillas in the Taco Bravo restaurant from 11 a.m. until midnight, or sink into a plush seat and watch a first run film while dining. The film is extra, of course.

Many of the architectural appointments reminiscent of a past era have been retained mixing well with the Mexican pink tones for a charmingly eclectic setting. Tiled floors, wooden benches, greenery complete the picture.

In Taco Bravo, located in the enlarged lobby of the theatre, quesadillas are served piping hot to your table. A quesadilla is a soft flour tortilla stuffed with a blend of Monterey Jack and cheddar cheeses, sweet onions and a choice of mild, hot or extra hot sauce.

The bright, fun-filled menu offers a selection of salads, entrees and desserts with a unique twist.

Fresh spinach salad offers a wonderful conglomeration of fresh sliced mushrooms, hard cooked eggs and sweet onions on the bed of crisp spinach with tangy dressing.

Mexiburgers, sanchos, nacho cheese dip and a Mexican dinner plate are a few of the entrees and, last but not least, tacos.

Hot and cold running subs may be stacked with roast beef, ham and cheese, turkey and cheese or tuna with prices starting at $2.30.

Food is served all day and evening at Taco Bravo and take out orders are welcomed.

Accent will be on Margaritas during a grand opening gala introducing full service. Performing in concert for the mid-October opening will be "The Snooks," a rock band from Winter Park.

Liv Ullmann Is A Feminist Sex Symbol

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Norway's Liv Ullmann has accomplished an almost impossible feat in becoming a feminist sex symbol — a woman who exhorts females to liberation and captivates men in the process.

Liv is the actress, authoress, former mistress of Sweden's brilliant director, Ingemar Bergman (by whom she had a daughter), who has become an international symbol of the liberated woman.

Unlike many of her sisters in the struggle for female equality, she has continued to enhance her desirability and femininity.

Unlike them, too, Liv has not lost a vulnerable tendency to blush, flirt and giggle.

On a recent visit to Hollywood, where she has never quite attained stardom, she was honored by the international committee of Women in Film and the American Film Institute for her contributions to movies.

Homage was paid the Norwegian beauty, too, for her work with the women's movement, UNICEF and the International Rescue Committee.

In addition to two recent movies, The Wild Duck, made in Australia with Jeremy Irons, and Fools Gambit, a French movie with Leslie Caron, Liv has completed her second autobiographical book, Tides.

Her customarily pensive face broke into a soft smile when she explained her busy schedule.

"Basically, I am lazy," she said, her idiomatic English much improved. "I enjoy sitting around doing nothing and feel guilty about it. So I keep busy."

Liv Ullmann

"Anyway, I don't believe a woman can just be an actress. At least I cannot. I would hate to come to the end of my life and believe acting was all I had ever done."

"I would like to say I knew more things about life than acting. One thing I have never done is lead the quiet life. I've never allowed myself to tend the flowers. Maybe some day I will do that too."

Until then, Liv is hell bent on raising the consciousness of other women, especially in Europe and the United States, to fulfill themselves as individuals.

She asks women to break away from traditional molds, from the restrictions placed on them by men and themselves.

Liv leads her own life by those tenets without demeaning men and refusing to summon ancient accusative cudgels in the war between the sexes. She sets an example and suggests other women follow suit.

"I verbalize my right to live the way I do and recommend that to all women," she said.

"I live as honestly as I can without the pressures of having to conform. It is only recently I have spoken out because basically I am a polite and well brought-up Scandinavian girl."

"Maybe it is because I'm from a small country and don't know any better that some women are willing to listen to me."

"Women have more equality in Scandinavia, but there is still much resentment by men, though it is not expressed aloud."

There is, however, little resentment of Liv, perhaps because she maintains a womanly dignity, a benign determination for female liberation that loses no effectiveness because of her soft sell.

Clearly, she does not seek to erase the differences between the sexes but only to bring them into a parallel course.

She likes men. Indeed, she has been married and divorced and has lived with several men. She believes in love, romance and the traditional roles of courtship.

Much of what she believes can be found in her books. Her first, Changing, published eight years ago, was printed in 24 languages and became a best-seller in several countries.

My new book is the story of four years of my life," Liv said. "It is about the same woman but very different than Changing. It is a love story, about my profession and what happens outside my movies."

"I hope it is about compassion. Most of my films have been about a lack of compassion. I write about being a parent, the conflict between two women — mother and daughter."

'Just Our Luck' Up In Smoke

Put This Genie Back In His Bottle

By David Handler

If you're a fan of impossibly inept sitcoms, Just Our Luck is just your show. If you wax nostalgic over legendary clunkers like My Mother the Car., The Hathaways and The Pruitts of Southampton, this dud's for you.

This new ABC offering is by no means the worst sitcom ever made, but I'd certainly nominate it for the all-time top 10. Not only is it incoherent but it even manages to be so racially offensive that the NAACP has blasted it as "an insult to the black community."

And this is a show that's supposed to appeal to blacks. ABC has, after all, positioned it on Tuesdays up against The A-Team and the lovable Mr. T.

Now are you getting an idea of how bad it is? B-A-D. Bad.

Keith Barrow (Richard Gilliland) is a nerdy, uptight weatherman for TV station KPOX (the "funny" call letters should tip you off right away). Keith is a dud with his forecasts and with the ladies. Keith is the white guy.

"You just stick on the screen like old gum," sneers his curvy boss, Megan (Ellen Maxted). "You have no personality, no style, no sex appeal, no charisma — no offense."

Fear not. The decorative old bottle Keith buys when he's out jogging contains a surprise — Shabu (T.K. Carter). "I am your genie," Shabu, who is black, informs a disbelieving Keith. "I must serve you for 2,000 years or until your death, whichever comes first."

"I'm from Wisconsin," answers Keith. "People from Wisconsin don't have genies." But Shabu is not to be denied. "I am ready to serve you, master," he insists. (This is the sort of business that rankles the NAACP.) Shabu moves into Keith's closet, which becomes a magical doorway to a floating carpet piled with satin pillows.

Shabu is everything Keith isn't. He's a dapper, loopy-goosey, jive-talking hipster, quick-witted and a hit with the ladies.

He is everything that a roomful of white network executives and sitcom writers think will pull young black males away from Mr. T. He can even make money appear out of thin air and bring centerfolds to life.

He turns Keith into an off-the-wall, successful weatherman, who becomes a hit with Megan. She throws herself at the former (and still) nerd — bad news, since Megan is engaged to station manager Nelson (Rod McCrary).

Shabu can handle that, too. It's the genie's code. "You bring the elephant into the house," he advises, "you hose down the living room." He promptly turns himself into Megan's teen idol — Tab Hunter — and whisks her away.

It actually gets even more ridiculous. In another episode, Shabu learns that Don Cornelius of Soul Train is conducting a Great Soul Search talent contest at KPOX. The winning singing group gets a free trip to Monte Carlo.

Shabu decides he wants to win that trip (even though he can transport himself to Monte Carlo with a snap of the fingers) and enlists the services of his three other "selves" to form a group, the Shabelles.

There's Zeus (Carter dressed up like Mr. T), Sweet Tooth (Carter dressed up like Michael Jackson) and Virgil (Carter dressed up like a bookworm).

Megan convinces Cornelius into putting the Shabelles on his show. However, at the last minute, the temperamental Sweet Tooth refuses to go on because Shabu won't let him sing lead. So Shabu — who, remember, can do anything — is forced to enlist Keith, who he dresses up like a '50s rocker. This allows the audience to laugh at what a bad dancer Keith is and how little soul he has.

The Shabelles don't win. But that's OK because Shabu then creates a casino in his magic closet. Why did he want to win in the first place? Don't ask.

Just watch — if you prize such genuinely awful shows. This kind of incoherency, coupled with racial tastelessness, doesn't come along very often.

P.S.: T.K. Carter is not another Eddie Murphy.

Johnny Cash In 'Reed And Rite'

Johnny Cash will host a documentary on adult illiteracy, to air during the beginning of January, 1984.

Called "Capital Cities Special Report: Cant Reed, Cant Rite," the hour-long syndicated program is now in the final stages of production.

Although Cash is best known as a country singer, he gave an outstanding performance as an illiterate in the 1981 CBS movie "The Pride of Jesse Hallam."

"What sets adult illiteracy apart from so many of the problems dealt with in TV documentaries is its 'solva-bility,'" says Charles Keller, vice president and general manager of Capital Cities TV Productions.

"Adults can be taught to read. But many more volunteers are needed. We hope our documentary can be a catalyst."

Ann Jillian Outswims A Mid-Stream Crisis

By Dick Kleiner
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Ann Jillian is a silver-haired blonde who is halfway across the river.

At least, that's how she visualizes her career. She compares her career to a river that she has to cross to reach the successful other shore, and she figures she's about halfway to that goal.

Most of us would consider that Miss Jillian has already touched down on the other side, because she's doing pretty well right now.

She has a hefty supporting role in the current release "Mr. Mom," and she is starring in the upcoming TV movie "Death Race to Osaka."

And she is one of the stars of the new NBC series "Jennifer Slept Here." In that series, she plays a ghost, which is hardly typecasting, because she is a pretty earthy lady. Yet she doesn't consider herself a sexpot, even though her ultra-blondness gives that distinct impression.

"I like to think that I can portray a woman with sex appeal," she says, "without being a sexpot. The difference, to me, is that a sexpot has it all on the surface, while the woman with sex appeal has something underneath, too."

Miss Jillian admits that her blondness — like Loni Anderson's and Suzanne Somers' — is out of a bottle.

"For me," she says, "as soon as I went blonde, good things began happening for me. Lately, I've done things with other hair styles and other hair colors, but I figure that becoming blonde is what really helped to get me established in this town."

One of her biggest triumphs, so far, was when she played Mae West for the TV biography of that legend. The assignment worried her; she figured that no matter what she did, Miss West's fans would never be completely pleased.

"I read everything I could find about her," she says, "and I learned that she was interested in the psychic world. So I spoke to her. I said, 'Mae, I'll do my best not to disgrace you.' I heard no answer, but a few days later Roddy McDowall called me to say that Mae had come to him in a dream and told him to tell me that everything was fine with her."

So that's how it is with Ann Jillian, as she nears the half-way point in her swim across life's river. "When I get all the way across," she says, "maybe then I can stop and rest and maybe have kids and all that. But until then, it's swim, swim, swim."

ROBERT S. WOODS has discovered that being the best isn't everything it's cracked up to be. It has a disadvantage, too.

Woods won an Emmy last year as the top daytime actor. He plays on ABC's "One Life to Live." He is probably the top star among male soap opera figures. But he says that being the top can be a two-edged sword.

"Sure," he says, "when I have contract negotiations with the network, I can go in and plunk my Emmy on the desk and say, 'Pay me.' But the network can come back and say, 'What more do you want? You can't ask us to beef up your part — it's already good enough to win you an Emmy.'"

This talk of negotiations is not idle. Woods is in somewhat the same position as a baseball player who has become a free agent. His contract with ABC is up in the fall, and he's not sure what he's going to do.

"The network is sure to make me a good offer," he says. "Last time, they gave me a fat raise. So I'm in the catbird seat, but I'm really not sure what I want to do."

There are pros and cons. Pros: He's with a top-rated show; he has security; he has a leading part; he leads a comfortable life. Cons: He finds his character is

"rather dreary," and there's nowhere to go with it; he is a Californian forced to live in New York, and he'd rather be here; and he thinks he might like to do other things.

So he's debating what to do with his future. He came back home, on a brief vacation, to visit his family and his manager and talk to them and to others, seeking advice and suggestions about what he might do.

When you're at the top, you have these nagging decisions.
