

22% Voter Turn Out Predicted For MTA Vote

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Supervisor of Elections Sandy Goard predicted today that 22 percent of Seminole County's 91,074 registered voters will turn out for Tuesday's MTA vote. Voters in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties will decide whether the Metropolitan Transportation Authority will be given taxing authority to undertake $688.782.000 in tri-county road projects.

The MTA proposes to build and repair 255 miles of roadway with a voter approved four cent per gallon gas tax increase and a $1 per $1,000 assessed value property tax. The resultant revenues would fund two 30 year MTA road project bonds.

Polling in Seminole County will be held from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Mrs. Goard said her turnout prediction is based primarily on voter response to previous special elections.

Mrs. Goard said special referendum results can go either way when voter turnout is in the range she has predicted for Tuesday's vote.

Twenty eight of Seminole County's 92 polling places have been changed since residents last voted in October, she said, and notices of the changes have been sent to voters in those precincts.

Anyone uncertain of where they should vote on Tuesday can contact her office, at 321-1130, Mrs. Goard said.

The cost to conduct Tuesday's special referendum has been estimated at $250,000 for the tri-county area. The MTA plan will be invalid if not approved by Orange County voters, regardless of whether Seminole and Osceola counties adopt it.

The roadway taxes would take effect this fall, MTA Chairman Walter Lowrie said today. Drivers would begin paying four cents more per gallon of gas in September, and October and November property tax notices would include the additional $1 per $1,000 assessed valuation charge, he said.

If the road plan is not adopted, the nine member MTA, "for all intents and purposes is out of business," and "Central Florida is in for a terrible catastrophe," Lowrie said.

MTA opponents do not dispute the need for road projects, although they say a local property tax is not the route to take, nor is a nine member taxing authority whose majority consists of five private citizens.

The MTA membership distribution gives Orange County a total of four representatives, Seminole County, three, and Osceola County, two.

Four of the MTA's members are automatic

AT&T Denies Pushing 'Givebacks'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co., denying it is pushing for contract "givebacks" from its largest union, insists a pact with a smaller union would prevent a nationwide strike from closing many of its manufacturing operations today.

But with pickets up at AT&T facilities since the Communications Workers of America walked out early Sunday, the non-striking International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers may honor CWA lines at sites where both are employed.

"We're a good union, and if our employees choose to honor a strike line, that's something we would encourage," IBEW officer Ari Perry said Sunday. But he conceded that, "AT&T may be able to open some plants, because all workers there are ours" — after separate talks with IBEW negotiators produced a tentative pact.

The strike began after CWA's three-year pact for 185,000 employees with the nation's largest long-distance operation expired at 11:59 p.m. Saturday, and negotiators were unable to reach a tentative agreement.

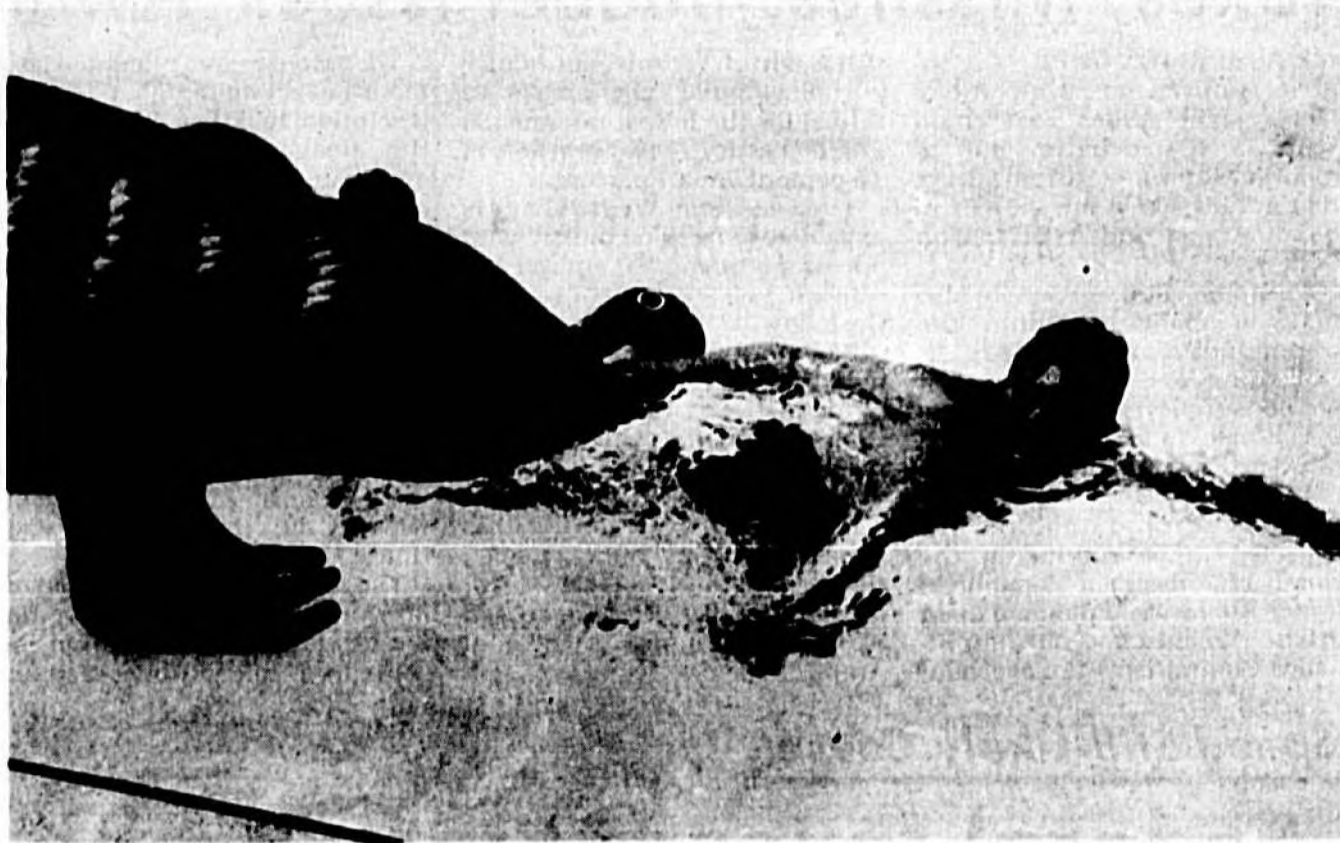

AT&T said it began drawing from a force of 115,000 managers and organizing 12-hour shifts six days a week to handle long-distance service.

AT&T spokesman Herb Linnen said informal talks resumed briefly Sunday, but the CWA rejected an offer — an 8 percent pay raise over three years — that was accepted for further action by IBEW negotiators in New Jersey on behalf of 40,900 workers.

The company offer was increased from proposals of 5 percent and 7 percent, and Linnen said pension benefits would rise by 4 percent in the first year of the contract and another 4 percent in 1988.

CWA President Morton Bahr, at a news conference Sunday, claimed IBEW leaders "have recommended rejection" of the package when it goes to a rank-and-file vote, but Perry said union officials would not act until local issues are settled by individual IBEW chapters.

"We can afford to stay out a lot longer than they can," Bahr said. "The business community, especially, will not wait for AT&T factories to begin manufacturing again. There's already a backlog of orders."

Selph May Face Hit And Run Charges In Minor Auto Wreck

From Staff and Wire Reports
TALLAHASSEE — In an alleged case of "mistaken identity," a minor automobile accident has become a hit-and-run nightmare for Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry.

Lobbyist Ken Powell, 32, of Winter Park is scheduled to appear in court July 3 on charges of drunken driving, leaving the scene of an accident, resisting arrest, refusing to sign traffic citations and obstructing an officer.

Powell admitted driving Selph's car at the time it struck a parked car — causing about $2,400 damage to the vehicles — but later recanted his story. Selph, 40, at first denied he was the driver then said he said he was, but he has not been charged. A cabbie who witnessed the accident told police he does not know who was driving at the time of the accident but he said he saw Powell drive away.

"I probably screwed up by not walking back out to the car and standing there no matter how long it took," Selph said. "You've got to think I'm an absolute idiot to take a simple traffic accident and turn it into a nightmare like this."

Leon County Assistant State Attorney Elizabeth Keeth was to meet with police today to discuss the case and possible charges against Selph. They were also to discuss possibly dropping of charges against Powell.

Powell pleaded innocent to the charges Thursday. His attorney, Murray Wadsworth, said the incident is a case of mistaken identity, according to Ms. Keeth.

Powell lobbies for businessman Bob Snow, owner of the Church Street Station tourist attraction in downtown Orlando. He is also a friend of Selph's, who is supporting a bill that would let Snow operate several bars on the same liquor license at the Church Street complex.

On May 13 a car belonging to Selph struck a car two blocks from the Capitol. Selph admitted he was driving the car, but police charged Powell based on the cab driver's account of the incident.

"There were no eyewitnesses that could put Selph behind the wheel except Selph," said police Sgt. Walter Beck.

Selph, an accountant and real estate agent who was elected to office in 1982, said he was on his way to a 2 a.m. meeting at the Tallahassee Hilton when the accident occurred. He refused to identify with whom he was meeting but said it involved a half-a-dozen or so lawmakers trying to reach a compromise bill involving the civil negligence tort system.

Selph said Powell appeared at the hotel and offered to "take care" of the accident so Selph could attend the meeting.

The cab driver, Steve Steel, told police Powell was driving and offered him $50 and then $100 to pose as Selph when police arrived.

Powell denied trying to bribe the cabbie.

Police and court records show Powell moved Selph's car into the hotel parking garage, where it was discovered by police. Powell told police he had been drinking and the car was struck by a cab while attempting a turn. Powell later denied he had been driving and said he was a passenger in the cab. He refused a blood-alcohol test. Damage to the parked car was $1,500 and $900 to Selph's car. Selph said, after he was told Powell was to be charged, that he was driving and reaching for his coat that had fallen to the floor when his

Blacks Try To Rule Jail Cell Block

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Black Seminole County jail inmates were "intimidating" whites in a effort to take control of a cell block Sunday. Jail administrator Capt. Jay Leman said today. Guards separated the 15 black and eight white inmates, effectively ending the confrontation, he said.

In an apparently unrelated incident, several hacksaw blades and saws were found hidden in a mattress in a cell.

In the racial incident, the blacks would allegedly confront the white prisoners, while some blacks served as lookouts for the two guards patrolling the area, Leman said. Guards, he said, became aware of the problem when a white inmate broke off a sprinkler head in the ceiling. That set off a fire alarm and sent water spraying down on the prisoners.

Leman also said that on Saturday jail guards had gotten word that the prisoners in B-3, that same cell block, were going to resist entering their cells for a routine 11 p.m. lock down, securing them in cells for the night.

Because of a recent policy change, the result of jail guards being pulled from their posts to calm prisoners, drawing security personnel from other points in the jail, Leman said, three Seminole County sheriff's deputies were called to the jail at about 11 p.m. Saturday to aid jail guards in locking the prisoners in for the night.

The beefed-up lockup went without incident, however, it preceded the Sunday racial disturbance. Following the Sunday incident all the inmates assigned to that cell block were given medical exams, and there were no apparent injuries, Leman said. The eight whites have been moved to other areas of the jail and the blacks remained locked in their cells today, he said.

Leman said, in another area of the jail from the racial problem, portions of an electric hacksaw including about 8-inches of blade section were found at about 1:30 p.m. Friday in a hair conditioner bottle hidden in the mattress of inmate Stormy Faddis, 24, of Cocoa.

About four weeks ago a hacksaw blade was found hidden under a television in a common area of the jail, which Faddis had access to. That blade wasn't directly linked to him, but the portions of the saw found Friday were in Faddis bunk, Leman said.

Faddis, a Brevard County jail escapee, who was recently convicted in the Seminole County kidnapping, rape and robbery of a topless dancer, was set to be sentenced today in connection with that crime. Robert Buroker, 38, of Colorado, who is Faddis' halfbrother, was also convicted in that case. Both face possible life sentences and are wanted in other Florida counties on similar charges, Leman said.

Search Continues For Woman

Seminole County sheriff's deputies continued today to search for an 84-year-old Oviedo woman who didn't return from her usual morning walk Sunday.

Ella Culver of 2218 Alafaya Trail, was reported missing by her daughter Joyce C. Rohn, 54, of Altamonte Springs, after Mrs. Culver's sister had checked on her Sunday and reported that she had apparently gone for a walk near her home, but had not returned, a sheriff's report said.

Proposed Land Use Switch Draws Protest

By Sarah Fischer
Herald Staff Writer

A proposal to change the land use of 362.3 acres in southeast Seminole County has raised the objections of a neighboring city as well as area homeowners.

Oviedo city officials have asked the county to deny the request by Mike Jones to change the land use classification from general rural to low density residential of property located on the north side of County Road 419 north of the Seminole Flying Ranch.

The request is one of 11 amendments to the county's comprehensive land use plan which will go before county commissioners for a final vote Tuesday. The public hearings begin at 7 p.m. in the county services building.

Some 50 residents spoke out against the requested change at a public hearing on May 13.

The citizens said the area near Chuluota lacks urban services such as central sewage and water which would be needed to support residential development.

In a letter to County Commission Chairman Bob Sturm, Oviedo City Council Chairman Jane Dees and Mayor Robert M. Whittier said the city is directly impacted by the land use change in the surrounding area. They urged more study of urban and rural services there before an amendment is approved.

Oviedo City Planner Randy Cohen voiced concern over the proposal's impacts on water resources and transportation in the area. He also said it is inconsistent with county development plans in a letter to Sturm and County Planning Director Tony Vanderworp.

In his comments, which were also forwarded to the Florida Department of Community Affairs and the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council, Cohen charged the county has not adequately addressed the issue of services, such as roads, water, sewer, fire and police, in its study of the proposed amendment.

Both county staff and the local planning agency have recommended the change be approved.

County planners said the requested amendment is inconsistent with the county's comprehensive plan policy to encourage rural development in the area.

However, they said the site, with low density residential land use, could act as a buffer between existing industrial zoning and high density development to the west.

While water and sewer service are not provided, on-site facilities could be constructed, county staff said. Roadway impacts would be minimal if the land use change is limited to the proposed site, they said, adding, however, that roads serving the area are "deficient in width, site distance and shoulder width."

Water service in the area is under study and may be provided in the near future, however no public sewer service is planned for the area, the county said.

Developers would be required to dedicate any utility system they construct to the county and tie it in to a future area-wide system.

The county, though, has said the quality of potable water in the area is "very poor".

Oviedo's planner said the city was told by the St. Johns River Water Management District that any well sites requested east of the Alafaya Woods well site would "most likely be denied on the basis of saltwater intrusion."

The requested amendment site, Cohen said, is located east of Alafaya Woods.

He also said transportation impact is a

NATION IN BRIEF

Church Calls High Court Justice A 'Baby Killer'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A fundamentalist church protesting a commencement address by Supreme Court Justice William Brennan hired a plane to tow a banner calling the jurist a "baby killer" and exhorting followers to pray for his death.

Brennan, one of the seven justices who supported the 1973 decision legalizing abortions, gave an outdoor commencement speech Sunday at Loyola Marymount law school, apparently unfazed by the plane circling overhead and trailing a banner reading, "Pray for Death: Baby-killer Brennan."

Brennan ignored the plane, which flew off shortly after he began his speech urging law students at the Roman Catholic university not to forget the poor and devote some of their personal time to public law.

Aluminum Workers Picket ALCOA

ATLANTA (UPI) — More than 15,000 aluminum workers walked off their jobs at Aluminum Company of America plants in nine states in a strike over ALCOA's proposed cutbacks in employee benefits.

Contract talks reached a stalemate in Atlanta Saturday night and officials of the United Steelworkers and the Aluminum, Brick and Glass Workers unions called the strike after the old contract expired at midnight.

"We have no contract," ALCOA spokesman Alfred Post said Sunday. "There are no plans now to reopen negotiations."

The unions were negotiating a new contract with ALCOA and Reynolds Metals but decided to call the strike only against ALCOA, which employs 15,000 union workers.

Search On For Flood Victims

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — National Guardsmen used bulldozers to search for people feared missing in floods that killed at least eight, while residents cleaning up homes caked in mud were urged to boil their water and get tetanus shots.

Gov. Dick Thornburgh asked President Reagan Sunday to declare a disaster in eight communities where floods from rain-swollen creeks Friday damaged more than 800 homes and businesses, swept away cars and triggered mud slides.

There was no response from the White House. The declaration would make the areas eligible for federal grants and loans to pay for the cleanup.

State officials said it could take days to accurately calculate damages.

Buddhist Ceremony For Astronaut

KEALAKEKUA, Hawaii (UPI) — Astronaut Ellison Onizuka, killed in the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger, was honored in a solemn pre-burial Buddhist ceremony as a "truly human, truly humble" son of the hill country of Hawaii.

"This is a homecoming for Ellison," the Rev. Arthur Marutani told some 300 family members, neighbors and NASA representatives Sunday during the half-hour rites at the Kona Hongwanji Mission.

The congregation, which included the astronaut's widow and two daughters, listened to the tolling of a temple bell and the chanting of Buddhist prayers. The mission sits on a hill in the Kona coffee-growing country where Onizuka was raised and where his mother still operates a small general store.

Computers Fail To Find Thefts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Outdated computers aboard ships are unable to keep track of inventories, resulting in discrepancies of more than $500 million in lost or stolen equipment, a Navy investigation has found.

In one case, silverware worth $3,000 and belonging to the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk was found stashed in a cubbyhole near the front of the ship, but the ship's computer showed no record of the goods, said the 1,800-page report to the Navy's top officer.

Ships also have paid exorbitant prices to private companies for spare parts, equipment and furniture because antiquated Navy computers on shore could not respond promptly to ships' requests for items in stock, investigators found.

Investigators were told that chaplains aboard the Kitty Hawk had ordered $358 office chairs and $248 conference tables from private companies in 1985 because of expected year-long delays in obtaining the furniture from the Navy.

U.S. Dismisses Soviet Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has shrugged off Soviet threats of an escalating arms race if President Reagan does not reverse his decision to no longer be bound by the constraints of the SALT 2 arms limitation treaty.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, charging Moscow has breached the treaty "many, many times," said Sunday that Reagan renounced the "artificial limits" of SALT 2 last week to overcome a Soviet "head start" in modern nuclear forces.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported Saturday that the Kremlin leadership "will consider itself free from the relevant commitments under the treaty," if the United States exceeds the limits imposed by SALT 2.

But Weinberger argued that the Soviets, "by simply ignoring the treaty and violating it every day," have been expanding and improving their nuclear forces during the years the United States has practiced unilateral restraint.

Live From Washington: The Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate goes live on nationwide television today in a historic and, some say, irrevocable change that will bring "the world's greatest deliberative body" to the home screen.

C-SPAN, the network that already televises House proceedings, planned to make gavel-to-gavel Senate coverage available at today's opening session to 25 million American households — one quarter of all those with TV sets. Other networks will be able to select coverage for use on newscasts.

The Senate will be called to order before the cameras by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., president pro tempore of the chamber, who will introduce the Rev. Bernard Hawley, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Salina, Kan.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas selected Hawley to deliver the opening prayer at the start of the first publicly televised session.

"The United States Senate is said to be the world's greatest deliberative body," Dole said, "and the inspiration we receive from the daily prayer helps us to be just that."

Despite dire warnings from critics of "grandstanding" and of erosion of time-honored Senate rules protecting extended debate, the Senate agreed Feb. 27 to permit, on a test basis, television and radio broadcasts of its floor debates.

After a month of closed-circuit, in-house testing, Senate TV goes nationwide for a six-week live test before a July 29 vote on whether to make broadcasting permanent, or extend test coverage another 30 days before a final vote. Senate radio coverage has been live and publicly available since May 1.

The Senate test period came seven years after the House first permitted public television and radio broadcasts of its proceedings.

Even critics of Senate TV concede that it is unlikely they can muster the votes to remove the cameras from the chamber, which in its earliest days barred citizens even from watching in person.

In agreeing to television, the Senate rejected sweeping rules changes that had been proposed to quicken the pace of its proceedings for viewers at home.

In the end, only one significant change survived — a reduction to 30 hours, from 100, in the time allowed for debate. Procedural moves and roll calls after the Senate has voted "cloture" to end a filibuster.

After 11 days of debate over permitting television coverage, both sides agreed the cameras would change proceedings in the Senate, which initially — to the consternation of President George Washington — did not allow citizens even to watch from the gallery above the chamber.

C-SPAN said some of its affiliates do not have enough capacity for its new channel carrying Senate coverage, but they can receive it over the one carrying House coverage if the House is not in session.

Because the House does not convene until Tuesday, C-SPAN said all of its viewers will be able to see the Senate's first day on nationwide television.

The bipartisan proposal for Senate TV was sponsored by both Dole and Minority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.

Taxes, Missiles, Budget Issues Await Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress returns to work today facing some issues that could spark a few debates, not to mention fireworks: a radical tax reform measure, a missile sale to Saudi Arabia and a $1 trillion budget.

The often-cautious Senate also takes a giant leap into the communications age today — expanding a closed-circuit test period for television and joining the House in making sessions available for broadcast to the public.

Today and Tuesday are expected to be routine in the stately chamber, but Republican leader Robert Dole plans to open debate Wednesday on the Finance Committee's tax overhaul bill, which would radically curtail popular tax breaks in return for the lowest tax rates in a half century — two brackets of 15 percent and 27 percent.

The session Wednesday is expected to be filled mostly with opening statements, and no significant votes are planned until the following week.

The wrangling over major and minor issues could make the fight last for weeks, perhaps even beyond the Fourth of July recess, which starts at the end of June.

But a major vote on another subject is set for Thursday when the Senate decides the fate of President Reagan's plan to sell $265 million in missiles to Saudi Arabia.

The House and Senate last month overwhelmingly passed a resolution to kill a bigger sale. But Reagan, maneuvering to avoid an embarrassing political defeat, agreed to scale back the package and then, when he believed he had gathered enough support to survive an override attempt, vetoed the resolution.

Overriding a veto requires a two-third majority in each chamber.

If Reagan wins the Senate vote, the sale will go through. If he loses, he has no real chance of winning in the Democrat-led House and the sale will die.

The House is free of the kind of pressing matters facing the Senate, but some heat could be generated in a House-Senate conference committee trying to hammer out a compromise version of the nearly $1 trillion budget plans passed by both chambers.

The biggest issue dividing the negotiators, who get down to business Tuesday, is how much to spend on the military. The Senate budget provides $301 billion, but the House version has just $285 billion. Neither figure is acceptable to Reagan, who wanted $320 billion for the Pentagon.

Congressional aides met during the recess to try to reach agreements on more minor issues, where the two chambers are not very far apart. The staff proposals are to be presented to the conferees Tuesday.

Speed Still Likely Cause

Federal Investigators Probe Scene Of Fatal Bus Wreck

BRIDGEPORT, Calif. (UPI) — Federal investigators probed the wreckage and scene of a bus crash that killed 18 elderly tourists and left one passenger missing "so we can help prevent something similar from happening."

Mike Benson, a spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, Sunday night declined to discuss reports that the bus was speeding. He said a six-member team of NTSB experts would spend a week inspecting the bus and accident site and interviewing passengers and witnesses before returning to Washington to prepare their reports.

"We want to see what we can learn of national importance in terms of public safety," Benson said.

One passenger remained missing early today and Sgt. Scott Pollock of the Mono County Sheriff's Department said it was "extremely unlikely" the unidentified person, "most likely a female," survived. He said the chances were "extremely slim" one could have survived a plunge into the 40-degree, river that was rushing hard at near-flood stage, muddy and full of brush and logs.

The Starline Sightseeing Tours coach, carrying 40 elderly passengers, was returning to the Christian Towers residence for senior citizens in Santa Monica, Calif., Friday after a gambling trip to Reno, Nev.

The bus skidded on winding, two-lane Highway 395 in the Sierras, rolled over and plunged 30 feet into the runoff-swollen Walker River some 40 miles east of Yosemite National Park.

Eight bodies were recovered from the battered bus, 10 more were pulled from the surging river — three of them 15 miles downstream.

Driver Ernest Klimeck, 48, and 21 other passengers were injured. They were treated at six hospitals in California and Nevada.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that Klimeck was fired last year by Lounge Car Tours Inc. of Culver City when state troopers pulled his bus over on U.S. 395 near Independence for warrants and speeding.

Klimeck was taken into custody, leaving his busload of skiers temporarily stranded on their return trip from Mammoth, the Times said. Lounge Car Tours spokeswoman Debra Mintz said having outstanding warrants was "automatically grounds for termination."

"Any driver who goes out with warrants on his license, he knows he could be taken into custody and he's jeopardizing the charter," Mintz told the newspaper.

Starline spokesman Michael Neustadt said, "At this time we do not have the information and reports necessary to make a full evaluation."

The patrol's area commander, Lt. Tad Engstrom, said, "We're heavily looking into the mechanical parts of the bus and the situation of a moving violation having occurred."

"So far we feel speed was the cause," State Trooper Mike Slappey said of the accident.

"It would be hard to keep control the way he was going," passenger Cecil Dryer, 77, told investigators at Washoe Medical Center in Reno, Nev. He said he thought the bus was "over the speed limit" of 40 mph when it crashed.

Judy Sobel of Van Nuys, who was fixing her motorcycle on the side of the road when the bus went past, estimated the speed at 10 to 15 mph over the posted signs. "The bus was going too fast," she said.

"That stretch of roadway is notorious. There have been a lot of accidents there but none as bad as this one. Truck drivers usually speed through trying to make up lost time. Car drivers who know the road also have been known to exceed the speed limit," John Daniels of the sheriff's department said. The Times said troopers also are investigating the possibility that two separate driver's licenses have been issued to Klimeck under slightly different names, but said it could be just a clerical error.

Two newspapers reported that Klimeck was cited four times in the last three years for speeding, three times while driving a bus. The San Francisco Chronicle also said Klimeck was convicted last year for driving with a suspended license.

Earlier, Starline official Shoehch Sapir said Klimeck, who has been with the company for slightly more than a year, had no previous accidents or driving citations.

WEATHER

Thunderstorms and rain "scattered all over" today soaked nearly half the nation, triggering flooding in Texas where five deaths were linked to the downpour. An advancing Canadian cold front prompted freeze warnings in the upper Great Lakes, while temperatures across the desert Southwest were expected to climb to the above the 100-degree mark, said Harry Gordon, National Weather Service meteorologist. "The rain is scattered all over," he said. "The two main areas of thunder-shower activity are in the New England and eastern New York area and from Texas into Kansas and southern Colorado." The storms reached into the southern Atlantic states, the Ohio Valley, the Gulf states, the southern Plains and parts of the Rockies, Gordon said. In Texas, the body of a woman was recovered in the surging San Antonio River Sunday after 4 to 5 inches of rain fell on the area. Flash flooding trapped drivers in 2 to 3 feet of water, police said. A flash flood watch was posted for much of north Texas, including the Dallas area, where heavy rains caused street flooding, numerous traffic jams and two fatal accidents Sunday. Three people were killed and two injured in a head-on collision Saturday on Texas 380 in Collin County, north of Dallas. In the suburb of Garland, police said the driver of a car stalled in heavy rain on Interstate 635 was killed when a van struck his vehicle, throwing him 164 feet.

Magazine Honors 100 'Unsung Heroes'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pauline Waldrop, who raised 726 foster children over 50 years, and Father Floyd, who feeds 2,400 hungry people each day in San Francisco, are two of the 100 "unsung heroes" honored by Newsweek magazine.

The magazine released the list Sunday with the inspiring stories of the 100 men and women, young and old. The collector's edition paying homage to the "Sweet Land of Liberty" features a picture of the Statue of Liberty on the cover.

The magazine described the people as "unsung heroes" because their good deeds have gone, for the most part, without wide notice.

"We looked for people who have done something that required either great physical courage, or who have faced and conquered a personal adversity or who, with some self-sacrifice, have done good deeds for others," Newsweek Senior Editor Peter Goldman said.

"We also wanted the widest possible representation of the American people and reached into tiny towns and Indian reservations. We wanted a good sample of the melting pot," he said.

Among those profiled is Waldrop, 79, of Houston, who raised 726 foster children between 1933 and her retirement in 1984. She told the magazine, "It's a blessing to be a mother and have a child," but said she originally hadn't intended to care for hundreds of kids.

"Time passes," Waldrop said, "I just got started and couldn't stop."

Hero Renny Jackson, a ranger in the Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming, braved 80-mph winds to climb the mountain's black face in the middle of the night and lead stranded hikers to safety.

Activists Georgette Watson and Bruce Wall of Boston launched the "drop-a-dime" program in the Dorchester section which asks residents who see drug deals to spend 10 cents to report the crime to police.

"I love these people — I really do," the Franciscan priest known as Father Floyd told the magazine. His St. Anthony's Dining Hall feeds 2,400 hungry people a day.

In Perth Amboy, N.J., Ruth Hardwick, 70, won notice for her Main Street cafe called the Charity Restaurant which serves all-American fare.

"This ain't no soup kitchen," she said of the restaurant that lets people pay the amount they can afford.

General Telephone Found Negligent In Boy's Death

BARTOW (UPI) — General Telephone Co. of Florida must pay nearly $600,000 to the mother of a boy whose skull was crushed by a rotten telephone pole that fell on him during a backyard birthday party, a jury has ruled.

The Polk County jury verdict also said Suddath Van Lines of Jacksonville must pay $3,001 for negligence in the April 1965 death of 9-year-old Zachariah Weinhold. A Suddath van snagged a telephone wire near Lake Wales and pulled the pole down on the boy.

Car Wash Escapee Recaptured

RAIFORD (UPI) — A brief day of freedom for an inmate who escaped in a car left at the prison car wash ended when Gainesville police found him "socializing" the next day, a police spokesman said.

Arthur Gilbert, 31, whose ingenious escape from maximum security Union Correctional Institution Friday put police on the alert in Florida, Georgia, and Tennessee, was returned to UCI Saturday and confined to a one-man cell, or "segregated," prison spokesman Sgt. James Yonn said.

Not A Moon Over Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — A rocket body used in the Soviet Union's manned space program smashed into the Earth's atmosphere in the skies just north of Miami late Sunday, erupting into a fireball and prompting hundreds of calls to planetariums, police and the Kennedy Space Center, officials said today.

The rocket body apparently was destroyed when it impacted with the dense atmosphere, but the fireball it caused was seen for hundreds of miles from Florida's Panhandle in the north to the Keys in the south and from the Atlantic Coast to the Gulf Coast.

U.S. Navy Lt. Commander Doug Schamp of the U.S. Space Command's public affairs office in Colorado Springs, Colo., said the rocket body hit the Earth's atmosphere at 9:59 p.m. EDT Sunday, just north of Miami.

U.S.-Backed Contras Kill 15 Peasants, Wound 20 People

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — U.S.-backed guerrillas killed 15 peasants and wounded 18 civilians and two security men in attacks on three farming cooperatives in central Nicaragua, the Defense Ministry said.

A Contra rebel "task force," using rifles and mortars, attacked the La Tronca, El Castillo and Santa Lucrecia cooperatives, located in central Matagalpa province some 130 miles north of Managua, the ministry said Sunday.

The Contras also burned nine homes at one of the cooperatives, according to the report.

There was no immediate reaction from the U.S.-backed guerrillas, who have been fighting for five years to overthrow Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

Hijacker Killings Probe Reopened

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel's newly appointed attorney general will direct an investigation into the 1984 killings of two captured Palestinian bus hijackers and an alleged cover-up by the nation's internal security agency.

Cabinet Secretary Yossi Beilin told reporters Sunday there would either be a judicial or police investigation into the case, which involves allegations against the agency, known as the Shin Bet.

Davar, the Labor Party newspaper, said Yosef Harish, the attorney general appointed Sunday, intended to reinvestigate personally the entire case and Harish said in a television interview he wanted the investigation kept secret.

Police Fight With Demonstrators

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Police, using tear gas grenades and truncheons, dispersed a crowd of demonstrators protesting the arrest of Poland's most wanted dissident leader — captured after nearly five years on the run, a dissident source said.

The clash between police and demonstrators Sunday in Wroclaw, in southwest Poland, was the most serious incident during a day of protests in at least four other Polish cities.

U.N. Adopts African Aid Plan

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The General Assembly adopted a $128.1 billion recovery program, more than a third of the total pledged by the West, to help African economies ravaged by drought, civil wars and financial mismanagement.

The commitment from Western industrialized nations of $45.6 billion leaves African nations with $82.5 billion to finance over the five years of the recovery plan, which was adopted by consensus Sunday.

Surgeon To Visit Chernobyl Area

MOSCOW (UPI) — U.S. bone marrow surgeon Dr. Robert Gale said Soviet authorities have given him permission to travel to the Chernobyl nuclear disaster area for an on-site inspection today and to assist Soviet medical teams treating radiation victims.

Gale said the planned five-day trip would also allow him to set up with Soviet health authorities a lifetime-long monitoring system of those people who were exposed to even small radiation doses after the accident.

An estimated 92,000 people have been evacuated from a 19-mile radius around the plant.

"vital concern to the city of Oviedo."

"It is virtually impossible to weigh the exact impact on the transportation system as the zoning issue has not been addressed," Cohen said.

Oviedo is also asking that DCA determine whether or not the request will require a development of regional impact study.

According to regional planning council requirements, a 1,000-unit residential development in Seminole County constitutes a DRI, Cohen said.

Development at four units per acre, which is the maximum permitted, would allow for 1,449 units on the site, he said.

Cohen also stated that the county's short range development plan does not target low density residential as a transitional land use category.

Robert F. Kessler, DCA local resource planning bureau chief, told the county that the proposal, if approved, would have "a far greater impact on public facilities than is described" in the county's study of the requested plan amendment.

"If planned for the upper range of four dwelling units per acre, the (site) would exceed the DRI dwelling unit threshold for appointees due to their elected positions. They are Orlando Mayor Bill Fredrick, Orange County Commission Chairman Tom Dorman, Seminole County Commission Chairman Bob Sturm and Osceola County Commission Chairman Bill Beck.

The additional five members are private citizens appointed by Gov. Bob Graham from lists each county commission submitted when the MTA was formed last winter.

Appointed from Seminole County was Sue Lewis, chairman of the county's Planning and Zoning Board and operator of a real estate firm; and Tom Stevenson, of the Heathrow land development corporation.

Lowrie, the retired president of Martin Marietta Aerospace, and AT&T officer Bill Tyndall are the MTA citizen appointees from Orange County. Homebuilder Tom Tompkins is Osceola's MTA citizen delegate.

According to Lowrie, the MTA plan will enable maintenance of present levels of service on tri-county state and federal roads. It will also save lives and money in the long run, he said.

There will be "a minimum" one-billion dollar shortfall during the next 20 years for state and federal road projects and without the MTA. "It will be at least several years before we get any funding programs for these systems through the legislature," Lowrie said.

In the meantime, "Our roads will continue to deteriorate with no relief in sight," he said.

Under the MTA plan, 52 miles of state and federal roadway will be built and rehabilitated in Seminole County. The plan provides $136,793,000 for these projects.

However, a two-third MTA vote can shift road project funding from one county to another. As a means of preventing this, a pending amendment before the legislature would require the two-third MTA vote to include a majority of the representatives whose county would be giving up project funds.

Both Sturm and Lowrie said adoption of the amendment will ensure that each county retains all project funding as called for in the plan.

However, in commenting on the amendment, Seminole County Commissioner Bill Kirchoff said, "The key word is 'adoption.'"

Voters will address "definite language," on June 3, Kirchoff said. "And this language does not include a required majority vote from the county that would lose its (MTA project) funds. We have no guarantee the MTA won't turn around on June 4 and pull the proposed amendment."

In Seminole County, direct benefits of the MTA plan have been questioned. The road work does not extend into Sanford, and opponents say the plan does not provide funding for the overly congested county and city roads that would feed into the rehabilitated MTA systems.

According to Sturm, the MTA plan would produce "smoother and safer" traffic flow throughout the county. Opponents, however, fear bottlenecks along the city and county feeder roads.

The MTA plan's benefits for Sanford, as well as the entire county, "are questionable," according to Sanford City Commissioner Dave Farr. "I can see our county and city roads impacted (by the MTA plan), but I don't see where they (the MTA) have considered this."

The Sanford City Commission has not taken a formal position on the plan, although Farr and Sanford Commissioner John Mercer have stated their opposition to it.

Both commissioners said they disagree with the MTA's private citizen majority and its use of local property taxes to fund state and federal road projects.

Sanford Engineering and Planning Director Bill Simmons said the MTA plan has no direct benefits for northern Seminole County, although "indirectly I would hope we'd all benefit from improved traffic flow on MTA roads."

County-wide, proponents and opponents do agree that the state has demonstrated an inability to address area road needs.

In Seminole County, the MTA plan calls for the widening of portions of U.S. Highway 17-92, Interstate-4 and State Roads 436, 434, and 424.

The MTA plan also contains $20 million in right-of-way acquisition funds for Seminole County's portion of the Eastern Bypass Expressway.

Without the MTA plan "We'll be back at square one trying to get funding for our roads," Sturm said.

A revenue formula based on gas, sales and license tax increases are possibilities, he said, although "none in any manner of combination will generate enough funding for our needs."

Our Teachers Our Future

We do not believe the educational system needs repairing; we believe it must be rebuilt to match the drastic change needed in our economy if we are to prepare our children for productive lives in the 21st century. — from "A Nation Prepared: Teachers for the 21st Century."

It can be done, the Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy asserts, and "A Nation Prepared," the report of the Forum's task force on teaching as a profession, offers a provocative blueprint. The report is the culmination of a long-awaited study by a panel that includes the heads of two major teachers' unions, business people, elected officials and educators. It offers a specific plan for attracting and holding more of the highly qualified people who these days either shun teaching or abandon it.

- The recommendations include:
  - Creating a National Board of Teaching Standards to test and certify teachers.
  - Restructuring the school environment so teachers are liberated from all their piddling non-instructional duties.
  - Arranging for a category of "lead teachers" in the schools with the proven ability to help redesign the schools and to assist their colleagues in upholding high standards of teaching and learning.
  - Requiring a bachelor's degree in the arts and sciences, not in education, as a prerequisite for the professional study of teaching.
  - Developing a new professional curriculum in graduate schools of education leading to a master in teaching degree.
  - Creating a multifaceted plan to prepare more black, Hispanic and Native American young people for teaching careers.
  - Tying teacher promotion and other incentives more closely to competence and student productivity rather than seniority. Teachers who get results in other words, would be rewarded.
  - Making teachers' salaries and career opportunities competitive with those in other professions.

The suggested reforms are expensive. On the matter of teacher salaries, for example, the task force recommends a system of teaching levels with salaries ranging as high as $65,000 a year.

Other reforms also involve a great deal of money. But task force chairman Lewis M. Branscomb, vice president and chief scientist for the IBM Corporation, insists that the reforms are affordable. "Indeed, if the investment is made over a 10-year period," he writes, "we need only ensure that our public schools receive no less a share of the Gross National Product than they now enjoy."

Two of the recommendations, those pertaining to baccalaureate and master's level degrees, may not be best in many cases, such as prospective teachers in K through 6 or administration.

However, most people interested in public education will be impressed, we suspect, by the basic good sense of the report (and by its readability), even if they don't agree with all its recommendations. We hope these discussions will be the prototype for similar discussions nationwide.

The report offers a compelling reason for such discussions: "It is no exaggeration to suggest that America must now provide to the many the same quality of education presently reserved for the fortunate few. The cost of not doing so will be a steady erosion in the American standard of living."

There's another compelling reason, as the report points out. It has to do with "equal opportunity for all our children and preservation of an informed population capable of self-government — a citizenry with a shared sense of democracy and a vision of our potential as a nation."

Thoughts That Flow Like A River—Downhill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Until I recently suggested a desk-top footrest as a Father's Day gift for "the man who has nothing," I never suspected there were so many of us.

From Delafield, Wis., came a reminder that Children's Day also is coming up this month, or next fall, depending on when you celebrate.

And while Janet Strombeck of Sun Designs did not exactly specify that the plans shown "Making Timeless Toys in Wood" were intended for kids who have nothing, in my case it certainly works out that way.

If any children I know are depending on me to handcraft "timeless toys" out of wood as presents, they surely will get plenty of nothing.

Meanwhile, from East Windsor, N. J., came word from William Skocpol that as long ago as 1930 his great-grandmother, Dr. Olga Stastny of Omaha, Neb., was advocating the desk top as an ideal resting place for women's feet.

In 1930, I might add, Stastny was president-elect of the Medical Women's National Association and health director of America's organized business and professional women. So she must have known whereof she spoke.

Although the good doctor did not flat out say that people think better when the feet are elevated, she did recommend that women "loaf like a man."

"Women will be abler executives when they tilt back their swivel chairs and place their feet on the desk during their in-between-conference moments," Stastny wrote.

That was before the women's liberation movement came into full flower. I know not how modern feminine leaders might regard Stastny's advice.

I would never suggest that the mother of my children is a woman who has nothing. At least, not on Mother's Day.

There is no doubt, however, that putting one's feet on one's desk can create more career opportunities for business persons of both sexes.

Medically speaking, it may be as much an aid to circulation as it is a celebration.

Stastny assured women that the "upward stretch" helps promote "less thick ankles" as well as working wonders for the cardiovascular system. She neglected to mention, however, that many of us men, both in and out of business, think with our feet.

She merely noted that "women will never achieve emancipation until they can relax with their feet higher than their heads."

She might also have pointed out that human thoughts tend to follow the path of least resistance — in this case, downward.

How many bright ideas are passed along from the pedal extremities to the brain in this fashion, only your friendly, neighborhood inventor knows for sure.

I can tell you that the "timeless toys" created by Sun Designs include no blueprints for desk-top footrests. That is why I am unwilling to pay $9.95 for a catalog, plus the cost of building materials, which in my case would amount to a considerable sum.

Kids might have more fun with old-fashioned wooden hobbyhorses, trains, strollers, fire engines or stoves, but such toys don't teach them to think for themselves.

Bishops' Letter Bombs

So now it is the turn of the American Methodist Bishops to don the pointed hat and sit on stools in the corner. They have issued a pastoral letter which condemns even the threat to use nuclear weapons — and therefore condemns the strategy of deterrence — and, further zanyness, condemns the Strategic Defense Initiative as taking money away from all these gorgeous social programs.

It is presumably the intention of the Methodist bishops to be taken seriously, on the assumption that their words have at least a minimum of internal coherence and external reference. But their several positions, if made into policy, would leave the U.S. no way whatsoever of deterring nuclear threats or responding to nuclear blackmail, would leave Europe, Japan and North America helpless before Soviet rocketry, and would — in wild contradiction — forbid us to create the defense against nuclear rockets which technology is making feasible.

This is all so mindless that it disarms comment as well. There was a time, not long distant, when Christianity appeared to be an important part of Western civilization, and indeed, part of civilization's moral defenses against barbarism. But large sections of Christianity have recently been swinging over to the side of barbarism. Insofar as their pronouncements have any practical effect at all, the American Catholic bishops, unlike their European counterparts, seem to have lost the capacity to think at all about the world we actually live in; we have the spectacle of the "liberation" theologian, busy decanting Marxist content into the older Christian bottles; and now we have the blithering bishops of Methodism.

Recent studies have analyzed the loss of nerve that took place in many Christian demonstrations during the 19th century. Faced with the enormous prestige of 19th-century science, they forgot their own distinctive view of the world and sought to become as progressive and scientific as possible. As a result, they experienced an enormous lesion of authority and many virtually went out of business. Today, similarly, many of the churches seem to be moving sharply to the left — an intellectual comedy, if only because the left is far from being a source of borrowable cultural authority. Its economic doctrines are thoroughly discredited.

OUR READERS WRITE

Editorial Disputed

I would like to take exception to the editorial of May 20 entitled "Bishops Lose Halo with Latest Letter."

I believe this editorial was very misleading and a poor summary of the content of the document prepared by the Council of Bishops of the United Methodist Church entitled "In Defense of Creation: The Nuclear Crisis and a Just Peace."

The document, not simply a letter, was prepared over a span of two years. It is a very well written and thought-out statement which encourages group study, reflection, prayer and discussion in the church.

Its focus is on "peacemaking" rather than war. The editorial stated that "What the Methodist bishops advocate is unilateral disarmament." That simply is not true. The bishops' statement does question the ethical value of nuclear deterrence but does not advocate unilateral disarmament.

Instead, the bishops call for a comprehensive test ban treaty, bans on all space weapons and "a multilateral and mutually verifiable dismantling of all nuclear armaments." It also calls for reconstruction of relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

In a pastoral letter to all United Methodists which accompanies the document, the bishops acknowledge the fact that it is not given to the church with any feeling that it should be the final word on this issue or with the hope that it will silence all contrary opinions; but rather, "we are sending this statement to the church seeking the fullest and fairest possible discussion of our understanding and convictions, together with an honest consideration of different and critical opinions."

The letter closes with a strong emphasis on peacemaking as a sacred call of Jesus ... asking the church to receive God's gracious gift of peace; to become evangelists of shalom, making the ways of Jesus the model of discipleship; to become defenders of God's good creation, and to pray without ceasing for peace in our time.

In response to your May 20 editorial concerning the United Methodist Bishops' Pastoral Letter on the Nuclear Crisis, I must say you were in error. You stated the Bishops were calling for Unilateral Disarmament. In the foundation document the bishops state: "there can be no unilateral security in the nuclear age. Security requires ... global cooperation." They also call for a new "ethic of reciprocity as nuclear-weapon states act together, in agreed stages, to eliminate their nuclear weapons, thereby escalating mutual trust rather than mutual terror."

Further, they support the following transitional measures, among others, toward a nuclear free world:

1. A Comprehensive Test Ban as a first step toward a mutual and verifiable freeze on the testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons;

2. Consolidation of existing bilateral treaties, calling on all nuclear-weapon states to agree to parallel arms reduction with the eventual dismantling of all nuclear weapons in a mutual and verifiable manner.

The bishops are unrealistic as they state "the USSR remains an authoritarian state obsessed with secrecy, repressive of most forms of public protest, overbearing and sometimes brutal in its attempts to dominate the state along its borders ..." They also realize their limitations: "We cannot as bishops claim the expertise to assess all the technologies involved." They do call upon members of the United Methodist Church to study the issues, make their voices heard in the public arena and remember that "Peacemaking is a sacred calling of the Gospel."

From what I read in the documents, this is not a call for unilateral disarmament but a call to "study war no more."

Tax Bill Will Slow Economy

In its espousal of the populism of the Packwood "tax reform" plan adopted by the Senate Finance Committee, The Wall Street Journal has advanced a theory that must be making Alexander Hamilton, the nation's first Secretary of the Treasury, spin in his grave.

The neo-populists who are in charge at the editorial page of the Journal these days rejoice at the tax plan, despite the fact that it is a disinvestment plan for America, imposing $100 billion on new taxes on business by 1991. The net result of the plan, if enacted into law, undoubtedly will be to slow investment and economic growth and cause unemployment.

The Journal isn't concerned about that, however. In its populist ideological fervor, it says that the newly-ascendant theory of taxation in the U.S. holds that "a country is more likely to benefit in terms of the crucially important levels of income and employment if decisions about economic allocation are made primarily by individual citizens, rather than by their governments."

That's populism verging on libertarianism. It smacks of the "participatory democracy" notions of the Kennedys in the 1960s.

The Journal seems to forget that the U.S. has a system of representative government wherein decisions as to public policy, including tax policy, are made by elected representatives, not individual citizens. Alexander Hamilton set down guidelines for policy during his time as Secretary of the Treasury under President Washington. He determined that it was in the national interest to favor American manufacturers.

The Journal would have the U.S. government simply serve as a kind of tax refund bureau, with most decision-making done by individuals. Certainly, individuals want to make decisions, but they also expect the elected government to establish national economic policy. Otherwise, why have economic advisers to Congress and the President?

Unless the government is pro-savings and investment policy, public policy will be almost wholly geared to the promotion of consumer spending. In that atmosphere, how many citizens will save their money in order to invest in industries of strategic importance to the nation — industries such as the most sophisticated electronics and machine tools?

Risky Overseas Service Has Benefits

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta
WASHINGTON — There has never been a time in the history of the republic when American diplomats overseas have been in greater personal danger. In the last three years, 21 members of the U.S. Foreign Service have been killed in line of duty. Others have been shot at, bombed, kidnapped and otherwise terrorized while serving their government.

But this is also a time of fiscal restraint, when Congress is looking for any means to cut the budgets of federal agencies. So Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., asked the General Accounting Office to compile a comprehensive list of the "benefits and allowances" that Foreign Service personnel are entitled to. Zorinsky, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, wanted to know if some of the inducements authorized by Congress over the years were a waste of money.

The GAO auditors sifted through legislation, State Department regulations and other documents for months, and have finally completed an 86-page "fact sheet" for the senator. Our associate Lucette Lagnado got an advance look at the report.

Although the auditors scrupulously avoided judgments, one way or the other, on the various benefits and allowances, they presented a "legislative history" of most of them that explained when and why Congresses dating back to 1901 had seen fit to provide the various perquisites. Here is a sampling of the more than 100 allowances, which the GAO broke down into 65 categories:

— Danger pay. This is granted to "employees serving at a post where civil insurrection, civil war or warlike conditions exist" and may not exceed 25 percent of the employee's base pay. At present, danger pay is being given to Foreign Service personnel in only five countries: Afghanistan (where the American ambassador was killed in 1979), Colombia, El Salvador, Lebanon and Uganda.

The GAO notes that in 1983, Congress broadened the scope of danger pay by stating that "the presence of non-essential personnel or dependents shall not preclude payment." This was done, Congress explained, "in recognition of the current epidemic of worldwide terrorist activity and the courage and sacrifice of employees of United States agencies overseas, civilian as well as military."

Government housing. Foreign Service personnel stationed abroad "may be furnished without cost" quarters in U.S.-owned or rented buildings. Furniture, equipment and maintenance are provided. When government quarters aren't available, the employees receive a housing allowance.

According to the GAO's legislative history, this practice began in 1901, in a deliberate attempt to make Foreign Service careers possible to "men of merit who were not wealthy." It recounted congressional visitors who were dismayed to find American diplomats living in "dingy rooms" or "in places where an American visitor would be humiliated to find his country's representative."

— Layette shipment. When a Foreign Service employee has a baby overseas, "shipment of a newborn's clothing, equipment and furniture may be authorized in an amount not to exceed 250 pounds ... If American or other suitable layettes are unavailable at the post assigned," Lacking specific congressional authorization for this allowance, the State Department "believes such shipments may be made under its general authority to ship household effects," the GAO report notes.

Sanford Races Remain Tight Fights

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Writer

Things remain tight going down to the wire in both the Sanford Little National and Sanford Little American League.

Going into this week's action, Sunniland holds a half-game lead of First Federal in the National League while Cardinal Industries leads the American League by one game over Adcock Roofing.

The Sanford Junior League and Pee Wee League are being dominated by one powerhouse team in each league. Moose leads its closest competition by five and a half games in the Junior League while Rich Plan owns an unbeaten record and two-game cushion in the Pee Wee League.

In the Sanford Recreation softball leagues, Medco Pharmacy has a slim half-game lead over Kiwanis in the Junior League while Rotary Breakfast leads the Lassie League by one game over Kiwanis.

SUNNILAND VS. FEDERAL

Sunniland, which has a 10-2 record, puts its half-game lead in the Little National League on the line Tuesday night when it takes on First Federal, 9-2, at 5 p.m. at Westside Field.

Sunniland, managed by Skip Mitchell, is led by one of the most overpowering pitchers in the league in big righthander David Dunn. Dunn is also one of the team's top hitters along with Quinn Byrd and Don Hunt.

Baseball

First Federal, managed by James Reynolds, is the defending league champion and looks for leadership from Mike Dillon, first baseman on last year's Little National League All-Stars. Dillon is also one of the league's top pitchers and hitters along with Tony Davis.

Poppa Jay's, managed by Mike Turner, was in contention for the league title up until it hit a slump about two weeks ago and has since lost four straight and dropped to 6-6.

D.A.V., managed by Chuck Brooks, has made up some ground recently and stands in fourth place but a poor start put the team out of the pennant race. Phillip King, Bernard Sparrow and Brian Brooks have been hot at the plate in recent games.

Rinker Materials, managed by Rhonda Bennett, and the Railroaders, managed by Bob Kelly, are looking to stay out of the cellar. Rinker has a 3-9 record while Railroaders are 2-8.

2-WAY RACE IN AMERICAN

Cardinal Industries and Adcock Roofing are headed for a showdown on Wednesday night at 7 at Fort Mellon Park. Cardinal, 12-1, will look to stay in first place tonight when it takes on Sun Bank at Bay Avenue Field. Adcock Roofing, 11-2, faces Seminole Ford today at 5 at Fort Mellon and needs to win to have a shot at tying for first on Wednesday.

Cardinal Industries, managed by Otis Raines, was in the National League a year ago but moved to the American this season. It's top player is Anthony "Redman" Roberts who led the National League All-Stars in hitting last summer. This season, Roberts has been one of the league's premier pitchers and hitters.

Adcock Roofing, managed by Mike Watson, has an excellent pitching staff as is evident by three no-hitters this season, two in succession. Mike Maples is the ace of the staff and has two no-hitters to his credit this year.

Atlantic Bank, 7-6, was in the race for a while but couldn't survive against the two league

Was 'Reach Streak' A Baseball Record? Monique's Not Sure

Monique Giroux, the French-speaking publicist for the Montreal Expos, asked for the question to be repeated. Monique does not have trouble translating. The question, however, was a new one for her.

Tim Raines had been on base in all 42 Expos' games before his streak was stopped by LaMarr Hoyt and a stomach ailment Tuesday night. Raines was 0 for 3 against Hoyt before leaving the game midway through.

The caller wanted to know if Raines' "Reach Streak" of 42 was some kind of record. And, if it wasn't some kind of record, then, what is the record?

"I don't think they keep records on that," she said. "I'll have to check and get back with you."

Record or not, Timothy "No Middle Name" Raines is off to quite a start. Through Thursday's games, Raines had 54 hits in 172 bats for a .314 average. He is second in the league in runs with 32 and is tied with San Francisco's Bob Brenly for walks with 30. Raines is third in hits with 54 and stolen bases with 18. Raines' totals in doubles (12), triples (4) and on base percentage (.420) are among the top three. Included is a major-league high 17-game hitting streak.

"This is my best start since my rookie year," Raines said earlier this week. "That year I had 50 steals in 50 games, but the strike cut the season short."

Raines won't have that problem this year. No strikes are on the horizon. Always a strong finisher, the Montreal left fielder is in great shape for his finest year ever. And, if the Expos just happen to find away around the Mets, Raines and shortstop Hubie Brooks would be likely MVP choices.

Raines said the Expos can catch the Mets, if... They trail by 6 games. "If our pitching would be a little more consistent, we have the bats," he said. "The pitching is going to have to win a few games here and there. We can't always rely on the bats."

Brooks has 12 homers and 40 runs batted in to lead the league. "And he's the best clutch hitter I've ever seen," Raines noted. "Every time there's two outs, it seemed like he gets a hit to drive in the runs. If he continues to play like this, he'll win the MVP going away."

Getting back to Raines' streak, he said it surprised him. Raines had gotten a walk here and there to keep it going, but he has been very consistent, too. In the 42 games, he had been on base 84 times.

"The hits just started falling," Raines, who started the season horribly, said. "I was hitting the ball when I was in a slump. Now, I'm hitting the ball in the gaps and on the line."

"They don't know how to play me. They're still playing me deep but they don't know whether to play straight away or to pull the ball."

Mike Schmit, the most dominant baseball player in Seminole County the past four years, beat his almost namesake (Mike Schmidt) to one honor recently.

Schmit, Lake Mary's all-state, first-team pitcher, had his uniform (No. 20 just like the Phillies' third baseman) retired by the high school.

"Mike has been a tremendous part of our baseball program," Lake Mary Principal Don Reynolds said.

Senior Schmit finished with a 15-0 record this spring and a .371 batting average. He finished the year with eight homers. Schmit will continue his playing days with Florida State University.

The rumor mill has it that Terry Abbott, Orlando Boone High School's successful coach, has resigned.

A source close to the Boone program, which requested to remain anonymous, said Abbott was bothered by overzealous parents.

"Now that's refreshing to hear," one Seminole County coach said. "I'm glad there are others who have to put up with that."

Abbott was not available for comment Saturday.

Leconte France's Last Hope

PARIS (UPI) — Henri Leconte is the remaining hope for hometown fans at the $2.6 million French Open Tennis Championship.

National hero Yannick Noah — who skipped town three years ago to avoid the pressure after becoming the first Frenchman to win this Grand Slam event in almost four decades — withdrew Sunday because of an ankle injury.

And Casablanca-born Guy Forget, 21, was knocked out in a match lasting more than four hours by Argentina's patient, 33-year-old Guillermo Vilas, the winner here in 1977.

Leconte, the eighth seed, is on the rise after shrugging off mononucleosis over the winter.

He moved out to the quarterfinals two weeks ago in Rome, his best outing after poor showings earlier this spring in Brussels and Rotterdam.

On Monday, he's paired against baseline-bound Horacio De La Pena, an Argentine player who is content to stay out there all day.

Other matches today featured No. 2 seed Chris Evert Lloyd, going for a record seventh title here, against 13th-ranked Carling Bassett of Canada.

The No. 3 men's and women's seeds — West Germans Boris Becker and Steffi Graf and Boris Becker — will face Emilio Sanchez of Spain and No. 5 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia respectively.

Noah's pullout left Gallic mouths agape at the Roland Garros tennis complex on the western end of the city.

"I have a second-degree burn on the ankle," Noah said. "The outer layer of skin has fallen off and the second is about to fall. The tendon itself is close to infection."

The burn came as result of laser treatment last month at the Italian Open in Rome for a tendon injury which was aggravated when a suitcase fell on his left foot.

"The doctor said that if the laser got too hot, to tell him. But I didn't realize it until too late," Noah said.

Top-ranked powers Ivan Lendl and Martina Navratilova both easily dispatched their fourth-round opposition.

Lendl carved up West German Damir Keretic 6-1, 6-2, 6-4, while Navratilova did the same to Laura Garrone of Italy, 6-1, 6-2.

American Mary Joe Fernandez, the 14-year-old wonder, made it into the quarterfinals, defeating No. 4 seeded Claudia Kohde-Kilsch.

"I've played the younger ones before," the 22-year-old Kohde-Kilsch. "In the women's game, it doesn't matter if you are 15 or 18 now."

American seventh-seed Kathy Rinaldi advanced after Swedish opponent Catarina Lindqvist retired with food poisoning.

Rockets Rebound, Tip Celtics, 106-104

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Rockets clawed their way back into the NBA Championship series.

Houston erased an 8-point deficit in the final 3:19 Sunday to pull out a 106-104 victory. Boston leads the best-of-seven series 2-1 with Game 4 set for Tuesday at the Summit in Houston.

"We had to scratch and fight," said Rockets forward Ralph Sampson, who spearheaded the victory with 24 points and 22 rebounds. "We didn't play the game well. They are still up. But this is one we had to win."

The Rockets are 8-0 at home in the playoffs while Boston's streak of seven-straight playoff victories was snapped.

"We really had a lousy start," said Rockets coach Bill Fitch. "Everything was so bad that we had to change everything to get started. We had to get out of the spot we were in. We played a good second half. We can still improve."

"I thought we had it won before it started," said Boston star Larry Bird. "We had out-shot them, out-rebounded them and had more assists. They got lucky, awfully lucky to beat us."

The Rockets were indeed fortunate. They got a timely tip-in from Mitchell Wiggins, clutch free throws from Akeem Olajuwon, an inadvertent whistle that led to a jump ball controlled by Houston, and a Boston miscue on a last-shot attempt.

But all that mattered for Houston was the victory.

"We have confidence again," said Robert Reid. "We've got too much pride to let them walk in here and win it away from us. We want to be the champions. We want the ring and the banner."

Houston led for most of the first half, holding a 62-59 edge at halftime. But Boston ran off 11 straight points to start the third quarter and kept turning the Rockets away. The Celtics upped its advantage to 76-65 at 5:44 of the third period.

Kevin McHale, who led Boston with 28 points, hit a follow with 3:19 left to give the Celtics a 102-94 lead. The Rockets battled back, scoring 103 straight points to take a 103-102 advantage with 1:07 to go.

Danny Ainge gave the lead back to Boston with an 18-footer, but Wiggins tapped in a missed effort by Olajuwon to put the Rockets ahead 105-104 with 30 seconds left.

Boston's Robert Parish missed an inside shot and in the battle for the rebound, an inadvertent whistle resulted in a jump ball. The 7-foot-4 Sampson out-jumped the 7-0 Parish. Olajuwon was fouled and gave the Rockets a 106-104 cushion with five seconds left.

Boston muffed its final chance from the field when Parish caught Dennis Johnson's in-bounds pass, but stepped out of bounds.

"When you lose a nine- or 10-point lead on two occasions in the second half, then we have not done a job of taking care of business," said Boston coach K.C. Jones. "We took bad shots and made bad turnovers to let Houston come back. We did not handle the ball very well."

Houston's game was anchored by Reid, who scored 20 points and shut down Bird in the second half.

Bird scored 19 points in the first half and finished with 25 after Reid took over for Rodney McCray midway through the third period. Bird still finished with a triple-double — 25 points, 15 rebounds and 11 assists.

"Robert takes a lot of pride in this type of assignment," said Fitch of Reid, an eight-year veteran, who guarded Bird in the 1981 championship series between the two teams.

"When you take this type of assignment, you don't have to worry about anything else," said Fitch.

Olajuwon finished the game with 24 points.

"I don't think we played well," said Parish. "We had too many turnovers and not enough rebounds. We didn't shoot well. We have to do a much better job with their inside game."

"I don't think this game shifts any pressure from one team to another. I don't know how you could have any more pressure in this series."

Hawks Exterminate Tampa Foes

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Writer

The Seminole Hawks had about the same effect on the opposition this past weekend as a no-pest strip has on insects. Anything that came up against the Hawks got zapped into oblivion.

The Hawks, Seminole Softball Club's 12 and under all-star team, outscored their opponents, 124-11, in rolling to six straight victories and the Tampa Magic Invitational title.

Seminole has now won three consecutive tournaments and 14 straight games. The Hawks return to tournament play this weekend at the Rockledge Tournament.

"It was one of those super tournaments where we could do nothing wrong," Hawks' manager Larry Risse said. "Besides playing their normal excellent defense, the team really got the bats rolling. We hit .491 as a team for the tournament."

The Hawks opened the tournament by squashing the St. Petersburg Seminole Spirits, 41-1. And the Hawks scored those 41 runs in just four innings.

Seminole then ripped Brandenton, 28-6, and followed with a 9-1 thumping of host Tampa Magic and a 22-1 rout of Temple Terrace to finish 4-0 in the round robin portion of the tourney.

In single elimination play, the Hawks exterminated Bradenton, 20-1, then downed Tampa Magic, 6-1, in the final.

As you would expect after a team scored 124 runs in six games, the Hawks had some impressive batting averages for the tournament. The top mark belonged to Kat Foldeak who had 10 hits in 14 at bats for a .714 average and she also added a home run and nine RBIs.

Mishelle Davis, an outstanding young shortstop, hit .700 (14-20) with a home run and 11 RBIs while Christa Schroeffel (7-10) also hit .700 and drove in five runs. April Manning carried a big stick as she hit for a .590 clip (13-22) and drove in a team-high 15 runs. Renee Sanville had 10 hits in 17 trips for a .588 average and Nicole Gorzka hit .562 (9-16) with a homer and eight RBIs.

Christine Risse turned in a strong tournament on the mound as she was the winning pitcher in all six games with only two walks, one intentional.

"We're really developing a good all-around team," Risse said. "We're improving our hitting and even the non-starters contributed greatly in this tournament."

Morrison's 'Scam' Slam Leads Pirates

United Press International
 Jim Morrison's grand slam, which broke the game open for the Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday, was a scam argued Los Angeles Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda.

Morrison drove in seven runs with three hits, including a sixth-inning grand slam. In Pittsburgh's 12-3 rout of the Dodgers, Lasorda argued unsuccessfully with umpire Lee Weyer that in his home-run trot, Morrison had bypassed teammate Tony Pena near the first-base bag.

"Everybody saw it, except for the guys who were supposed to see it," Lasorda griped.

Not everyone, claims Morrison.

"I thought I went up the first-base line, not around the base so far as to be said I passed it (and Pena)," he said. "It's a judgment call, and I'd have to see it again to see what I did. I really wasn't thinking about it at the time."

Morrison also hit a triple and double, and had two chances to get a single and completing the cycle, but he struck out both times.

"I chased at least three bad pitches my last two times up," Morrison said. "The first three times up, I was just purely relaxed, swinging and trying to make contact with the ball. I got a little overanxious the last two times."

Morrison tripled in the second to knock in the game's first run. In the fourth, he hit a two-run double to break a 1-1 deadlock. He then keyed a six-run sixth with his first career grand slam, off Dodgers reliever Tom

Rick Rhoden benefitted from the offensive surge to improve to 4-3. He gave up solo homers to Greg Brock and Franklin Stubbs among the seven hits he surrendered. Rhoden added to the offense with two hits and an RBI groundout.

Phillies 10, Padres 5
 At Philadelphia, Juan Samuel drove in four runs with a double and a homer, and Glenn Wilson and Darren Daulton added three-run homers, helping the Philadelphia Phillies stretch their winning streak to six games. Steve Carlton improved his record to 4-6. Andy Hawkins, 3-4, took the loss.

Cardinals 2, Reds 1
 At Cincinnati, Danny Cox earned his first victory of the season and singled home the game-winning run to lead the Cardinals. Cox, 1-4, yielded one run and six hits over five innings. Todd Worrell pitched the final 1-3 innings for his seventh save. Chris Welsh, 0-1, lost in his Reds debut.

Cubs 7, Braves 3
 At Chicago, Gary Matthews' wind-blown, two-run triple highlighted a three-run first inning that sparked the Cubs, who received a complete-game eight-hitter from rookie Guy Hoffman. Hoffman, 2-1, struck out a season-high seven and walked one. Zane Smith fell to 4-5.

Astros 6, Expos 4
 At Houston, Mike Davis knocked in four runs and Jose Cruz added a pair of RBIs to help Bob Knepper to his ninth victory. Knepper, 9-2, became the National League's first nine-game winner. Joe Hesketh, 3-4, suffered the loss. Andre Dawson had two home runs for the Expos.

Giants 7, Mets 3
 At New York, Mike Krukow scattered seven hits over 7 1/3 innings and the San Francisco Giants took advantage of five New York errors. Krukow, 7-3, walked one and struck out two before giving way to Jeff Robinson. Loser Ron Darling, 6-1, gave up six hits and five runs in five innings.

Rookie Allanson Delivers Key Hit In Tribe Victory

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Rookie Andy Allanson tripled home two runs in the seventh inning Sunday, lifting the Cleveland Indians to a 9-7 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

After the Brewers tied the score 6-6 with three runs in the seventh, Pat Tabler got the Indians started in the seventh by singling with one out off reliever Bob McClure, 2-1. With two out, Tony Bernazard singled and Allanson lined a triple to the fence in right field for his first game-winning hit of the season.

Joe Carter's RBI single in the eighth off McClure accounted for the Indians' final run.

Scott Bailes, 6-4, was the winner in relief and Ernie Camacho notched his seventh save by getting the final two outs.

The Brewers went ahead 2-0 in the first off Tom Candiotti on an RBI double by Jim Gantner and an RBI single by Ben Givole.

Doubles by Bill Schroeder and Paul Householder made it 3-0 in the third before Cleveland got a run off starter Jamie Coanower in the third. Brook Jacoby walked, took third on Bernazard's single and scored on Allanson's groundout.

Jacoby singled home a run in the fourth and the Indians chased Coanower in a four-run fifth inning to take a 6-3 lead.

Mel Hall reaches up to take a home run away from Milwaukee. Cleveland won Sunday, 9-7.

 The draft will be conducted in two phases — regular and secondary. ## IN BRIEF

Norman Captures Kemper Open Title After Marathon Playoff

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — A pair of water traps helped one of golf's big fish capture the Kemper Open in the PGA Tour's longest playoff in three years.

Greg Norman, Australia's "Great White Shark," won the Kemper Sunday with a two-foot putt for par on the sixth playoff hole after watching Larry Mize drop his ball into two different ponds.

Mize sent an approach shot bouncing off the green, over a bunker and into the water, took a penalty stroke and then skidded the ball back over the green and into a pond on the other side.

Mize's misfortune on Congressional Country Club's No. 18 hole wasn't limited to the playoff finale. He bogeyed the 18th in regulation to force the playoff and missed a 12-foot putt on the 18th that would have won the tournament on the third playoff hole.

Norman, who won $90,000 with the triumph, is now No. 1 on the PGA's money list with $447,109. He recorded pars on each of the six playoff holes after he fired a 6-under-par 66 to finish regulation at 11-under 277. Norman posted his second Kemper title in three years.

Mize, who entered the fourth round three strokes ahead of Norman, wasted a five-stroke final round lead last year and finished in a second place tie with Corey Pavin, one stroke behind Bill Glasson.

"It's second place again here," said Mize, who shot a 3-under 69 in regulation. "It's once again very disappointing. I feel like I played a pretty good round, but not good enough."

Norman failed to convert putts for birdie on four of the six playoff holes, while Mize missed close putts for birdie on three sudden death holes.

"Neither of us could seem to get a putt in for birdie," Mize said, who earned $54,000.

Bradley Wins Fourth Major

MASON, Ohio (UPI) — In her most rewarding year on the LPGA Tour, Pat Bradley achieved another milestone Sunday.

Last month Bradley became the first woman golfer ever to top $2 million in career earnings. On Sunday she became the first person to win all four major LPGA tournaments.

Bradley sank a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to beat Patty Sheehan by one stroke. She fired a 4-under-par 68 Sunday and finished the tournament with an 11-under 277. Sheehan shot a 67 on Sunday to take second with a 10-under 278.

"I've dreamed of winning this tournament with a birdie on the last hole and my dream came true today," said Bradley.

Bradley has won three tournaments in the last seven weeks and her $271,149 in earnings so far this year is twice as much as anyone else on the LPGA tour. Bradley pocketed $45,000 for winning the LPGA Championship.

Before this year, Bradley had won two majors, the U.S. Women's Open and the Dinah Shore tournament, and then became the first person to complete the quartet Sunday with the LPGA Championship.

"It's thrilling to be a part of history with the $2 million and the four majors," said the 35-year-old veteran of 13 LPGA seasons. "It's nice to be setting a little history on the LPGA tour."

Florida Women Win NCAA Golf

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The state of Florida might hold the NCAA women's Golf Championship for a long time.

The University of Florida won its second title in a row Saturday on Ohio State University's Scarlet Course, edging the University of Miami, which had captured the 1984 event, and both squads are loaded with young talent.

Both teams have only one senior and promising newcomers waiting in the wings.

Junior Page Dunlap led Florida to victory, taking the individual championship by one shot over Arizona State's Michelle Estill and Caroline Keggi of New Mexico. Dunlap had a final round of 76 for a 72-hole score of 291, one under par on the 6,100-yard, par-73 course. Estill had a closing round of 72 and Keggi a 71, tying Florida freshman Lisa Nedoba for the low round of the day.

Sophomore Karen Davies was at 296, Nedoba and Cheryl Morley, out of Oviedo, another freshman, at 297 and 302, respectively, and senior Lisa Stanley at 304.

Florida led by five shots when the final round began, but trailed by two when the two teams, playing head-to-head, made the turn. Davies and Dunlap combined were 7-over par after three holes.

"My thoughts after nine holes were much better than after three," Florida coach Mimi Ryan said. "The first three holes, we played golf by Braille."

Powers Struggle At World Cup

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Canada, the street urchin of the World Cup, suddenly has a touch of class.

Playing no less a team than the European champion in its first World Cup game in history, Canada held France without a goal for 78 minutes Sunday before losing 1-0 in Leon.

"We didn't think they would play here in Mexico as well as they play in Canada," French midfielder Alain Giresse said. "They had us scared for a while when we couldn't score."

Said Canada coach Tony Waiters: "What we have proved is that Canada has the quality of going against the very best nations in the world ... and the Canadians have proved that they belong in the World Cup."

In the day's other game at Guadalajara, another power struggled. Brazil, seeking a record fourth title, delivered little on attack in the first half in posting a 1-0 victory over Spain.

Today, it's Argentina vs. South Korea in Mexico City, the Soviet Union vs. Hungary in Irapuato and Poland vs. Morocco in Monterrey.

Waltrip Captures Budweiser 400

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Darrell Waltrip lives in Franklin, Tenn., but over the last seven months he's been making himself at home at Riverside International Raceway.

Waltrip, whose last race on the 2.62-mile road course resulted in the 1985 Winston Cup championship, returned to capture the Budweiser 400 Sunday under a caution flag caused by Terry Labonte's spectacular crash with one lap remaining.

Waltrip, winless since last October, was running second to Tim Richmond as the caution light came on, but raced to the start-finish line to nip Richmond by about three feet.

"Tim was trying to get some distance on me," said Waltrip. "I wasn't sure if I had enough to catch him but I knew if I kept myself in his mirror I had a chance."

"I had caught Tim on the outside before, so I was going to stay close. Going into Turn 9 I got outside on him and his car started pushing and I got underneath him."

Rahal Relishes Indy Win

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Now that Bobby Rahal has won the Indianapolis 500, he is beginning to understand what it means to be king of Gasoline Alley.

"This is still new to me, but winning Indy makes you ask a lot of questions about yourself," he said after piloting his Budweiser-Trueports March-Cosworth to a 1.4-second victory over Kevin Cogan Saturday in the 70th running of auto racing's crown jewel. "The answers, I'm told, just make you hungrier."

"Winning one Indy is hard. Winning two has got to be harder because the competition, the cars and the speeds become more intense each year."

And so does the disappointment that visited the seven former Indy winners that took the green flag.

Two-time winner Rick Mears finished third behind Rahal and Kevin Cogan as his Pennzoil Z-7 March-Cosworth began handling poorly in traffic. Three-time champion Johnny Rutherford placed eighth.

"But you can't make excuses," says Mears, who set single- and four-lap records in winning the pole. "Only losers make alibis. Still, you do get an empty feeling that's so bad, you don't ever want to feel that way again."

Defending champion Danny Sullivan shared teammate Mears' handling problems en route to ninth place. Former winner Al Unser Sr. experienced vibration problems in his Hertz Penske-Chevrolet and retired after 149 laps. A.J. Foyt, the only four-time Indy 500 winner, embarrassingly locked his rear breaks and backed into his own pit wall after 135 laps. Mario Andretti, the 1969 champion, had steering problems.

Perhaps the unluckiest, though, was Tom Sneva. The 1983 Indy champion hit the turn 2 wall during the parade lap and was forced to the sidelines ever before the green flag dropped.

"Your first thought is 'We worked hard all month long for nothing,'" said Sneva. "But that's a selfish thought. You already know the only thing to do is keep hustling or the world will pass you by."

"Bobby Rahal drove a great race. He's a worthy winner. He's broken lots of times and let off lots of steam. But he came back to drink champagne."

Rahal, who started from the inside of the second row, made his move as a late caution period ended and sped by Cogan at the start of the next-to-last lap.

"They call the six-day delay of the start (twice postponed by rain) unprecedented, right? Maybe that's why I won. That's unprecedented too," said Rahal. "After Arte Luyendyk spun (at the top of pit row), that log-jammed everybody. I felt pretty sure I'd get an opening and I was lucky. I just got by Kevin."

Following the top three finishers, Roberto Guerrero of Colombia was fourth, Al Unser Jr. fifth and Michael Andretti, who had led 47 laps, sixth.

Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil was seventh and, following Rutherford and Sullivan, rookie Randy Lanier placed 10th.

"I'm disappointed, and I don't know how long this will last," said Cogan, who took the lead from Rahal on the 188th lap but whose advantage quickly vanished as Luyendyk spun on the 192nd lap.

"I still feel I did the best I could've. My car (a 7-Eleven March-Cosworth) ran very well, though. No complaints in that area. I had problems with my pop-off device (which helps control the methanol-air mixture of combustion), and didn't have enough boost when I needed it."

Rahal, who set a race record of 170.722 mph that easily eclipsed the 163.612 mph effort set by Mears in 1984, also won the first full Indy 500 completed in less than three hours.

Kathy Rinaldi, a Gainesville resident, strains to make a two handed return shot. Rinaldi was victorious in her fourth round French Open match Sunday when Catarina Lindqvist defaulted because of food poisoning.

BEAT THE JAM!

The Traffic Jam is Public Problem #1 in Central Florida!

Traffic is getting worse. The Jam is rapidly bringing Central Florida to a choking standstill. A recent survey places our traffic problem as the biggest threat to our quality of life. Ahead of crime, education or any other issue!

The Great Price of Doing Nothing.

Can you even imagine what a jam we'll be in if we don't respond to this terrible problem? Our population will double in the next 20 years. That's twice as many cars, buses and trucks on our highways. Traffic is as light right now as it will ever be. The Jam involves more than the inconvenience to you and your family. It directly affects the economic and commercial trends of our three-county metropolitan area. If we do nothing about The Jam we're in, life as we've known will stagnate.

How to Make a Difference and Beat the Jam:

There is a special referendum election on June 3. Citizens of Orange, Osceola and Seminole Counties will vote on a proposal to raise funds to improve 99 miles of existing roads and build 45 miles of new ones. The program will be administered by the Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA), a special agency created specifically to solve our traffic problem. Vote YES on June 3 and help raise the some $551 million needed to enact this program.

The cost to the voters averages out to be about 20 cents a day for an average family. The funds will be raised two ways:

1. a 4¢ per gallon tax on gasoline, and
2. a 1-mil property tax ($1 per $1,000 of taxable value after $25,000 homestead exemption).

Vote Yes June 3.

No more talk and complaining. There are no other alternatives from existing revenue sources. Only we can solve our problem. We must BEAT THE JAM. If we don't, it will surely beat us.

Modern Lovers Can Still Get Their Stars Crossed

DEAR ABBY: Our ninth-grade English class is currently working on this project. Will you please read the letter below, written by Romeo, and answer it in your column as you would if you had received it today? We have already submitted our replies to our teacher and are curious to see if any of our solutions match yours.

Dear Abby

anything. Is there a solution? Please help me. Desperately yours.

NAME WITHHELD BY REQUEST

DEAR VERONA ADVISER: Recently I met this girl at a party and immediately fell in love with her. The problem is that our families don't get along very well. Our parents would never have considered letting us marry each other. The only solution was to get secretly married.

But to complicate my problem, the other day in a street fight I killed her cousin. Now I have been banished from the city. My wife is still staying with her parents inside the city. Thus, I don't know if I'll get to see her very much. I'm going to sneak over to see her tonight, but that isn't enough. I've got to do something in a hurry. I am lonely and desperate.

What should I do? I'm afraid what might happen if either of our parents ever found out we were married. I've got to be with her. I am willing to try almost subject.

My future with boys depends on your decision. Please help me.

TORMENTED

DEAR TORMENTED: Regardless of how mature you think you are, you are a minor, and your mother is responsible for your future until you are no longer a minor. She makes the rules and you must act accordingly.

I presume your mother thinks you spend too much time thinking about boys, and she has made rules about your interaction with them, right? Don't fight her. If you want to prove how mature you are, respect her rules without whining or complaining. That's one way of showing you are mature.

DEAR ABBY: Recently a friend's husband passed away. The obituary notice read, "No calling hours."

Should I have called? I did not, but I have since learned that other friends did. Please clear this up for me.

PUZZLED IN NEW YORK

DEAR PUZZLED: The obituary notice was confusing. It should have read, "No specific calling hours," which would indicate that those who wished to call could do so at the convenience. "No calling hours" could be interpreted to mean "No callers at any hour."

Agency On Aging Asks For Input From Area Seniors On Title III

The East Central Florida Regional Planning Council, Area Agency on Aging, District VII, responsible for responding to the service needs of persons age 60 and over in Brevard, Orange, Osceola and Seminole counties, will hold public meetings June 3-6 in each county for the 220,975 senior population to voice their concerns and needs.

The area agency supervises funds under the Federal Older Americans Act. The senior population is 18.1% of the total district population and includes persons age 75 and over and the frail elderly who number 61,183 persons. There are 24,876 persons age 60 and over who are below poverty level.

The agency asks for public input from seniors on the proposed plan of action for 1987 to provide Title III services defined by the Older Americans Act which include home delivered meals, home-maker services, home health services, congregate meals, transportation, adult day care, legal services and employment services. Judith G. Hitchcock is director of the Planning Council Area Agency on Aging.

For further information, call 305-645-3339.

League Of Women Voters Marks 20th Anniversary

The League of Women Voters of Seminole County's annual June luncheon will be held on Saturday, June 7. It will be an extra special day celebrating the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Seminole County League. Past presidents will be the guests of honor.

The speaker will be Carol Gramstrom, Central Florida TV personality. Her topic will be

"Women in Politics in Central Florida". The luncheon will be held at the Matson et Jardin, Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs. Social hour will begin at 11:30, lunch at noon. Cost is $12. Your check will be your reservation. Make it to League of Women Voters, Seminole County, P.O. Box 1004, Altamonte Springs. The public is invited.

2 In Concert Tonight

The Fine Arts Department of Seminole Community college announces that Katherine Denise DeShazo, flautist and Jeffrey Henry, pianist, will present a sophomore recital at 8 p.m. today in the concert hall of the Fine Arts Building on campus.

The public is invited to the free concert.

Miss DeShazo is a student of Linda K. Threutte; Henry studies with Nancy W. Hartman. The recital will include selections by Bach, Don Jon, Beethoven, Gluck, Godard, and Brahms. Featured as the closing selection on the program will be a composition for flute and piano, "La Mer de Glace," written by Mr. Henry.

Hair Will Return In Fullness Of Time

DEAR DR. GOTT — Last summer my 15-year-old daughter shaved her pubic hair so she could wear her swimsuit. It's been more than a year, but it still hasn't grown back. Is there anything that will help? She's very embarrassed about this problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had three bypasses four months ago, am 67, walk nine holes of golf five days a week and am on anti-plaque pills. The problem is that my left leg (which has an incision from groin to knee) swells daily to almost twice the size of my right leg. I wear support hose during the day but remove them before dinner. Can you give me any suggestions that might help decrease or eliminate the swelling?

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 11 years old, 5 feet 2 and weigh 110. I want to lose 20 pounds, since all the girls in my class weigh 90 or less. How do I go about losing weight safely?

DEAR DR. GOTT — As a general rule, you can lose weight safely by cutting down on fat and eliminating sugar from your diet. This approach is both practical and effective.

Because of your age, you'd best check with your pediatrician before losing weight, especially as much as 20 pounds. That's almost 20 percent of your body weight. A loss of that magnitude may be unhealthy for an 11-year old. Judging from your present weight, I think you would be unwise to lose more.

Your doctor may be able to reassure you that you needn't match your classmates. As all of you grow, you will tend to grow in different directions — up, out and around. I suggest you pay less attention to your weight of 110, make sure that you are eating a well-balanced diet and wait to see how your body develops in your teens.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

East had a miserable opening bid, but his prime cards (A-K and a second king) plus two five-card suits tempted him to open. South's two-spade bid was intermediate, showing a hand of opening-bid strength with at least a six-card suit. Because East was not vulnerable, he sacrificed against four spades, but he did so by bidding five clubs, his second suit, on the theory that he might find partner with better support for clubs than he had for hearts. The unfortunate result of all this was that declarer South, who bid five spades, suddenly had a blueprint for the best way to play the hand.

South won the opening lead of the jack of clubs with dummy's ace and came right back with the club queen, covered by East's king as declarer ruffed.

(Note the fall of West's club eight.) Next came three rounds of spades, ending in the South hand. Declarer, of course, intended to cross to dummy's diamond queen to punch the club seven through East. Then back to dummy's diamond ace to ditch a losing heart on the good six of clubs. However, East had followed suit on three rounds of spades, had opened the bidding with one heart and had bid five clubs. Shouldn't he be void in the diamond suit? Declarer thought so.

He played the four of diamonds out of his hand. West unthinkingly followed with a small card and declarer called for the diamond five from dummy. When that won the trick, East showing out, declarer not only made his contract but scored an overtrick to boot.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY JUNE 3, 1986

In the year ahead, stay on the best of terms with friends who have clout in the business world. Your contacts will supply you with confidential tips that will prove profitable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless you have a proper understanding with co-workers today, you may end up with all the unpleasant tasks they don't wish to handle. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Circumstances today could force you to socialize with a person you've been trying to ignore. To please your mate, make the best of it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A goal you'll set for yourself today is not as difficult to achieve as you're leading yourself to believe. Don't let negative thoughts hamper you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you hope to promote a personal interest today, you'll have to use the soft sell. Others will resent it if you try to force them to consent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Modify your material desires today. Don't just look for what you'll accumulate, make it a point to give the other guy a fair shake as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to overreact today if a close companion does something that displeases you. A display of anger will only make the matter worse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your workload could be a bit heavier than usual today. Most of the things you'll be saddled with will be the responsibilities of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An associate who is constantly in conflict with others can be converted with compassion today. Serve as the instrument to make him a better person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Competitive career situations could be even more so today, so if you can't stand the heat, you'd better stay out of the kitchen.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Winning an argument could lose you a friend today. If you have a disagreement with a pal, be smart and let this person think he or she has won.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) When shopping today, it's imperative that you are both quality-conscious and price-conscious. You won't be content with merchandise that lacks one of these elements.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It may prove extremely difficult to please someone who you will have to deal with on a one-to-one basis today. Try anyway.

Policeman Buried Alive

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A black man burned to death when rioters torched a gasoline-filled car tire around his shoulders, pushing the weekend death toll in nationwide black violence to at least four, police said today.

Police said in a statement released in Pretoria the man was buried to death Sunday in a radical attack at Lamontville, a ghetto near the port of Durban.

Others killed in violence between moderate and radical blacks differing on how to confront the white government's policy of apartheid included a policeman who was buried alive on Saturday.

Police said the black officer was attacked by youths wielding shovels while he attended the funeral of a friend in Witbank, northeast of Johannesburg.

He was buried alive in an open grave and was dead by the time police arrived an hour later to open the grave, a spokesman said.

Two other men were killed by radicals using the burning-car-tire method known as "the necklace," police said. One was killed in Tembisa, near Johannesburg, on Saturday and the other was found burned to death Sunday in Kwanabele, a black tribal homeland northeast of Johannesburg.

On Sunday 76 U.S. firms doing business in South Africa placed ads in two mass circulation newspapers calling for a swift end to apartheid because "time is ticking away."

The firms, under the umbrella of the American Chamber of Commerce in South Africa, urged the government in the ads to release political prisoners, allow outlawed groups to operate freely, negotiate toward power-sharing and scrap apartheid laws of racial separation.

"Apartheid is, by definition, the opposite of getting it all together," the advertisements said. "So let's get apartheid off the statute book once and for all."

"Time is ticking away," the ads added. "Expectations are mounting. The reality of what is said seldom matches what is done. Now is the time to focus on action."

Police said political and interracial violence continued across the country over the weekend, but the death toll was lower than on the previous two weekends, during each of which more than 20 blacks were killed.

In Johannesburg, opposition Progressive Federal Party spokesman Douglas Gibson today condemned police action at the city's liberal white University of the Witwatersrand.

Referring to clashes Friday, when 43 students and five lecturers were arrested after officers used tear gas and whips to break up a demonstration, he warned that "police are using excessive force and are badly overreacting to student actions."

"It must be understood that in any democratic country students have the right to participate in political affairs and any curtailment of that right must be viewed with utmost reserve," he said.

More than 1,600 people — the overwhelming majority of them black — have been killed since a wave of violence over the white-minority government's policies of racial separation, known as apartheid, erupted in September 1984.

Lily Tomlin has had her hands full ever since she opened on Broadway in the non-stop comedy "The Search for Signs of Intelligent Life in the Universe." Now Lily has won a Tony Award as the Best Actress in a Play. The 40th Annual Tony Awards were presented Sunday evening over CBS.

'I'm Not Rappaport' Wins Best Play Tony

By Frederick M. Winship
UPI Senior Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — "I'm Not Rappaport" beat out "The House of Blue Leaves" for the Tony Award as best play of the 1985-86 Broadway season, and "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" won the Tony for best musical as expected.

"I'm Not Rappaport," a comedy about the problems of the aged in New York by Herb Gardner, had stiff competition Sunday from John Guare's "The House of Blue Leaves," which was nominated for eight Tonys and won four. "Rappaport" received three awards.

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood," a Victorian whodunit by Broadway newcomer Rupert Holmes, had been the favorite in the musical category with 11 nominations. It won five awards.

A revival of the 1966 musical, "Sweet Charity" won the Tony for the best reproduction of a play or musical and three other awards, a tribute to veteran choreographer-director Bob Fosse.

Judd Hirsch of "Rappaport" won the best actor award and called his co-star, Cleavon Little, to the stage to share his triumph at the nationally televised (CBS) ceremony. Little had not received a nomination and Hirsch's insistence on his co-star's appearance on stage was unprecedented in Tony Award history.

"I really can't do this without the other guy," Hirsch explained as he hugged Little in the most emotional moment of the 40th annual Antoinette Perry Awards sponsored by the American Theater Wing.

Lily Tomlin won the best actress in a play award for her one-woman show, "The Search for Signs of Intelligent Life in the Universe." Awards for best actor and actress in a musical went to George Rose of "Edwin Drood" and Bernadette Peters for "Song and Dance."

It provided a tasteful climax to a so-so theatrical season that barely had enough outstanding shows to provide four nominations in each of 19 award categories. The highlights of the ceremony program were scenes from the four musicals nominated for awards.

A special Tony, accompanied by a $15,000 grant from the American Express Co., was given to the American Repertory Theater Company of Cambridge, Mass., for excellence in the area of regional theater. It was accepted by Robert Brustein, founder of the company.

Epcot Poll: Most Won't Vacation Abroad

LAKE BUENA VISTA (UPI) — Vacations abroad are not in the plans of Americans for this or next year, according to a poll of roughly 1,400 visitors to Walt Disney World. But a majority have such a trip in mind for later dates, the survey found.

Of 1,448 adults surveyed at Disney's

Epcot Center, only 8 percent thought they might take a vacation abroad this year. Twelve percent said they might do so next year.

A stalwart 26 percent plan never to take their breaks across the seas. Two percent were not sure or did not state an opinion.

Drug Testing Sparks Plant Dispute

By Joe Farham
WAYNESBORO, Ga. (UPI) — On the day quality control supervisor Leslie Price was told she had failed a drug test — and fired on the spot from her job at Georgia Power's Vogtle nuclear plant — she was furious.

Price said she tried to climb over a desk and snatch the laboratory report from the hands of the supervisor who fired her. The report said she had traces of THC, the active ingredient in marijuana, in her blood along with another suspect depressant.

Denying drug use, Price claimed she'd been fired for complaining to her superiors and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission about alleged construction problems at Plant Vogtle, the largest and most expensive single project in Georgia history, with an $8.4 billion price tag.

"I'm not much of a beer drinker," she said. "I'll hold one can for two hours or more, but on that day I bought a can and must have downed it in one gulp. I was just so mad you wouldn't believe it."

Drug testing of employees and job applicants is a national controversy, and Georgia Power was among the first companies to employ urinalysis on a wide basis.

The company began testing all job applicants in 1981 and began requiring the testing of current Vogtle contract workers in 1983.

The testing for drugs moves the nation's drug fight into the heart of the American labor force, into the plants and into the offices of many Fortune 500 companies.

Advocates see testing as a means of assuring a safe work environment. Opponents view drug testing as an invasion of privacy and a violation of Fourth Amendment protections against illegal searches.

Since her February 1985 firing, Price and four other fired workers at the plant who failed or refused to take urinalysis tests have challenged the utility company's testing program. They are seeking reinstatement and back pay.

Price is joined in the suit by Susan Register, another quality control inspector, and her husband, Britt, a former surveyor; Steve McNauley, an electrical inspector; and Billy Weatherford, a former chief in the survey section.

Weatherford and McNauley refused to take the test and were fired last year. Company officials told Register she did not provide enough of a sample to test. When she refused an order to produce another sample she was fired.

In a complaint filed with the U.S. Labor Department by the Georgia chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, the five say they were fired after reporting substandard construction practices at Vogtle. They believe they were actually fired for voicing their complaints.

The secretary of labor is expected to decide soon whether to allow the filing of the complaint, which came several weeks after the 30-day filing period required by the federal "Whistle Blowers Act." That law is aimed at protecting workers who report suspect activities on the job.

They initially were turned down in their suit by a administrative law judge who said they filed too late.

Lorrie Fowler, an Atlanta attorney for the five, said Georgia Power — which owns 45 percent of the plant and is its operator — was cited by the NRC in 1984 for failure to conspicuously post the act. She said the company also was told by the NRC to change to a new form for notifying workers of the act and the company failed to do so.

The NRC is investigating the fired workers' allegations about improper construction techniques. One claim is that one of the containment domes is riddled with air pockets that could render it ineffective in the event of an explosion in the reactor.

"We don't necessarily want to stop the drug testing program," said Fowler. "We want to make sure drug testing cannot be used to get rid of workers."

The utility denies any motive other than safety.

"When you're building a nuclear power plant your upmost concern is safety — safety of the workers and safety of the project," said Georgia Power spokesman Craig Lesser.

Howard Winkler, the utility's labor relations coordinator, said he is "extremely confident" the drug testing program is working and is supported overwhelmingly by Vogtle workers.

"You're looking at five employees in this complaint," said Winkler, "and we have roughly 10,000 people working at Vogtle."

"It is one of the best things this company has done and it has enhanced the safety at the site and the quality of the work," said Winkler.

Georgia Power began drug testing at Vogtle after supervisors suspected drugs were behind some of the accidents at the plant. Since the testing began, the number of accidents has dropped. Before the program, the company experienced 5.4 accidents per 2,000 manhours. The national average was 3.8 accidents. By last year, the accident ratio dropped to 0.48.

The drug testing can be initiated by a supervisor or through anonymous tips on a toll-free telephone hotline. That hotline has become controversial, with critics charging it is used to harass or to get rid of workers who claim shortcuts are taken in building the plant dominated by two looming 547-foot high containment domes rising above the surrounding forest.

The drug testing comes during a period of negative public attitudes, mostly because of the plant's $8.4 billion cost. When the company announced plans for the dual reactor facility in 1971 the cost was estimated at $660 million.

"Georgia Power has an image problem now," said Georgia Public Service Commission spokesman Jon Grant.

The five former employees in the complaint filed by the Georgia chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union with the Labor Department were given the "Emit" urinalysis test only once, said their attorney. "There was no background test, no gas chromatography test as a backup," she said.

Company spokesmen said the procedure for testing includes gas chromatography but they would not discuss the complaint filed by the five people nor would they say if a backup drug test was given them.

"I can't say for absolute fact what was the case with these people," said Winkler. "We just can't discuss it."

"We had a meeting with company people before we filed the suit," said Lorrie Fowler, "and they admitted that at that time there was no backup test."

In 1983, the Centers for Disease Control found a 4 percent "false-positive" ratio in the Emit test, developed by the Syva Company of Palo Alto, Calif. The company recommends that positive findings be confirmed by other tests, which can be expensive. A 1985 report by the CDC found a 6 percent false-positive ratio for cocaine and higher error rates for other drugs.

Georgia Power's drug testing procedure, refined since its initiation, involves splitting the urine samples and conducting a second test if the first shows traces of drugs.

"Say a sample shows positive for THC," said Winkler. "At that point, it is tested specifically for THC. If that test is negative, even though the initial screen was positive, then the sample is considered negative."

If it comes up positive then a third test is conducted, a gas chromatography mass spectrometry test, Winkler said if there are further questions about the results, testing of some of the sample left frozen with the company can be brought in for another look.

Lesser said there were approximately 8,000 people tested last year for drugs, both for pre-employment with the company and for those contracted to work on the Vogtle plant. He said of the 8,000, approximately 200 failed or refused to take the test. The company does not distinguish in its figures between those who fail the tests and those who refuse to take it.

"I don't know what was followed as a matter of absolute fact" in the cases of the five who are suing the company, said Winkler.

The labor relations director says other utility companies and other industries call regularly to inquire about Georgia Power's drug testing program.

"I tell them that a well-designed drug program should never detract from employee morale," he said. "Rather, it should build employee morale and should be fair and equitable and necessary. If it is resented by employees, if it is seen as an invasion of their rights, then you're going to have problems."

Six Nuns Killed In Convent Fire

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Six Roman Catholic nuns were killed in a fire that swept a downtown convent early today, but 15 others were rescued by passers-by who rushed to their aid from nearby hotels and discotheques, firemen said.

In London, another fire at the same time struck a block of apartments, killing at least two people and sending dozens of others leaping to safety from balconies. Firemen said the blaze may have been deliberately set.

The fire in Dublin tore through the Loretto Convent in St. Stephen's Green, where 21 nuns run what authorities said was an exclusive girls' school.

Flames and intense heat trapped six nuns at a dormitory in the rear of the four-story building, firemen said.

Fire officials said early morning passers-by, en route to hotels or home from late-closing discos, pitched in to help pull the other 15 nuns to safety.

Drug Possession, Wife Beating Land Area Men In Jail

Undercover agents arrested a man after watching him reportedly buy some marijuana and then a few hours later they arrested the suspected seller.

According to sheriff's reports, agents watched a drug transaction Friday in front of the Men's Club, North Street, Altamonte Springs. A man reportedly pulled something out from under his shirt and gave it to a man in a Toyota pickup.

According to the report, the agents didn't know who the seller was but they stopped the buyer after he left the area and arrested him. The incident occurred around 4:15 p.m.

At about 7:40 p.m., agents saw a man they described as one who sold the drug to the Toyota driver riding a bike on North Street near the Men's Club. A deputy was called and the man arrested.

Charged with the sale of marijuana is David Lester Barnes, 22, of 312 Teakwood, Altamonte Springs. He was being held on $1,000 bond. Charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and drug paraphernalia was John Russel III, 33, of 905 Crestwood Lane, Altamonte Springs. He was being held on $500 bond.

BATTERED WIVES
In separate cases, two men have been accused of striking their estranged wives after forcing their way into the women's homes. One man was arrested.

In the first case, an officer responding to a call Friday night involving a forcible entry into a home, met with a woman at a convenience store at 1020 Ballard St., in Altamonte Springs. She told him her estranged husband entered her home in that city, grabbed her by the throat and forced her to the floor.

Officers went to the home and arrested the suspect. While being booked, the officers also found marijuana on the man. Charged around 11 p.m. with battery and possession of marijuana was Paul Louis Mioducki, 35, of 127 E. Lake Mary Ave., Lake Mary.

In the second case, an 18-year-old Longwood woman told a deputy that her 20-year-old husband found out where she was living and forced his way into her home and hit her. The incident occurred Monday at 6 p.m.

She had a black eye, according to the report, and told the deputy she left her husband because of repeated physical abuse. She was given a referral notice for a protective injunction.

BAG MAN
A Sanford man was arrested on a charge of possession of marijuana after an officer reported seeing him drop a bag containing pot out a pool hall window.

According to a Sanford arrest report, the officer was in the area looking for gambling activity when a man dropped a tan paper sack out the window of Joe's Pool Hall, 1301 W. 13 St. The incident occurred at 4:45 a.m.

The officer said the bag held 14 small bags containing marijuana.

Charged with possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana was Patrick Gene Jones, 22, of 1712 W. Eighth St., Sanford.

WHEELIE
An Orlando man who accelerated his motorcycle onto one wheel while being followed by an officer has been arrested on charges of possession of marijuana and driving with a revoked license.

According to an Altamonte

Springs arrest report, the officer saw two men on a motorcycle on State Road 436 near the southbound ramp of Interstate 4. The driver was not wearing any eye protection then the officer noticed the motorcycle did not have a tag. As the driver accelerated towards I-4 with the officer following, the biker jacked the motorcycle up on one wheel then continued to accelerate even though the officer had his emergency lights on.

When the officer turned on his siren the man stopped quickly, got off the bike, turn from the officer and put his hand down the front of his pants, according to the report.

The officer, suspecting the man had a gun, grabbed the driver's wrist while putting his hand on his service revolver. The biker, however, told the officer he did not have a gun just marijuana.

Arrested was James Robert Harrison, 27, of Orlando.

DUI ARRESTS
The following person have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:
—Mark Edward Dyal, 30, of 164 Mosswood Circle, Winter Springs, arrested at 4:46 p.m. Friday after his vehicle pulled in front of another vehicle from a convenience store on Winter Park Drive in Casselberry.

—Randy Lane Sisler, 26, of 2713 Red Lion Square, south Seminole County, arrested at 10:54 p.m. Friday at U.S. Highway 17-92 and General Hutcheson Parkway after his vehicle was seen driving under the speed limit, following a police car, and waiting longer than usual to move at a green light.

—R. Andrew Mills, 22, of 256 E. Bay Ave., Longwood, arrested Friday at 11:30 a.m. on State Road 434 after an accident on Wagner's Curve near Winter Springs.

Lillie Belle Merthie To Be Honored By Grandmother's Club At Banquet

By Veronica Edwards

In honor of Lillie Belle Merthie's dedication and love for children, a banquet is being sponsored for her by the Grandmothers Club of Seminole County, an auxiliary of the Good Samaritan Home. The banquet will be held at the Sanford Civic Center on June 14 at 8 p.m.

The speaker for the occasion will be Tom Wilson III from Phoenix, Ariz., a former student of Mrs. Merthie.

Tickets for the banquet are $20 for adults and $10 for children. All donations are tax deductible. Checks should be made out to the Good Samaritan Home.

Mary Smith, president of the Grandmothers Club, said she respects people like Mrs. Merthie who take out the time to love and care for children.

"Mrs. Merthie has served in the area for over 40 years. It's time to say to her that she has done and is doing a good job."

The Grandmothers Club was organized in September, 1985 at the Good Samaritan Home as the result of a vision Mrs. Smith said she had one night. She saw the letters GMC and she heard a voice telling her to organize a group of 100 women. At the present, 49 women have joined the Grandmothers Club of Seminole County, and they are striving to reach the goal of 100 members.

Mrs. Smith said last December the club started a special program at the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center. Each month the members visit the center and celebrate the birthdays of the youths who have birthdays that month.

"Only at the party do they get sweets," she said.

She said that a grandmother in the club has to have a lot of love to share with the children.

"Mrs. Merthie has served in the area for almost 49 years," Smith said. "She has touched the lives of thousands of children.

"These people's lives were touched by Mrs. Merthie," Mrs. Smith said. "We want them to express their love for her at the dinner in anyway they want to."
