While there are no test scores or contest winnings to back up the claims, Jim Elliott, the district's coordinator of social studies said that he believes the Seminole County students have a "good, working knowledge of geography" by the time they have graduated from high school.

"We start in kindergarten with the geography of their school, their neighborhood and their city," Elliott said.

Students study and produce local maps and learn about the economy and environment of what is around them and then move on to larger and larger areas.

The study of geography is a required part of the social studies curriculum for all Seminole County students through grade five and it is required study at a more advanced level in the seventh and eleventh

Traffic congestion

Lake Mary-SCC discussions come to standstill

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - Last night's question in Lake Mary was how to deal with city streets jammed with traffic going to SCC. There was no immediate answwer.

The Lake Mary City Commission met with the Seminole Community College Board of Trustees last night. Mayor Randy Morris said, "The commissioners and the trustees got along well, but both sides are pretty firm in what is wanted."

Lake Mary had been considering the possibility of closing off Broadmoor Drive, the most used western access to the college. "The Commission was considering the closure for a short time to see what would develop," the mayor said. "but we're going to hold off on any decision for the time being." Morrissaid he believed the trustees would consider legal action against the city if the roadway were closed. One possible solution to the traffic congestion problem was again brought up for diesussion last night. The area is called Hospital Road, although it is actually a right-of-way for power lines. It runs north from the college to Lake Mary Boulevard in the eastern part of the city. It has been discussed at a number of Lake Mary city commission meetings as a logical solution to the problem, but one that would not immediately be available.

Lake Mary City Planner Matt West said. "The college's Board of Trustees indicated they are making the Hospital Road proposal one of their number one items in the college's 1991-92 fiscal year budget.

The meeting held in the Lake Mary City Hall last night was a work session, and no decisions were made beyond having discussions continue. West said, We'll be holding another meeting later this week, as soon as we can arrange for it. At that time, we hope to come upwith some possible solutions we can give to both the city and the

Included in the meeting will be staff members from the City of Lake Mary, the Seminole Community College Staff members, representatives from the Sanford City Commission, Seminole County Commission, and the Department of Transportation. "Sanford, the County and the DOT each has some connection with the overall situation," West said, "and we want everyone to be involved in whatever suggestions we will be making.

Costly study: Mercury in wildlife

Staff and Wire Report

CLEARWATER - Environmentalists predict it'll take six years and cost $10.6 million to determine how and why Florida's fish and wildlife are being contaminated with mercury.

The scientists, all specialists in mercury research, said the bulk of the money should be spent on a detailed study of the Everglades, where the highest levels of mercury have been found.

Freshwater lakes should be the second research priority. followed by rivers and then estuaries and other marine environments, they said Monday in a meeting in Clearwater.

State health officials say mercury levels above 0.5 parts per million pose a myriad of health risks. Largemouth base in the Everglades had levels three to four times higher than that.

State health officials issued a warning in 1989 that young children and pregnant women should not eat more than one bass per month caught in the St. Johns River upstream from Lake Monroe because of unsafe levels of mercury found in river fish. The warning remains in effect. Healthy adults should not eat more than one bass per week.

The panel, which was convened to help a state task force deal with the problem which surfaced in late 1988 and has led to warnings against cating fish caught in many Florida waters. recommended that $2.8 million be spent in the first year.

That is nearly five times what the state is spending on mercury research.

State officials concede the problem is serious - one-half to two-thirds of the state's lakes and rivers might be involved. said Tom Swihart, coordinator of mercury research efforts for the state Department of Environmental Regulation (DER).

But George Henderson of the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) says the $10 million figure is "totally unrealistic given the financial mishmash we're in now."

Despite the price tag. the experts defended the program as the most scientifically sound way to tackle the problem.

Rainfall, water table up in area

SANFORD - The 6.01 Inches of rainfall reported by the Central Florida Research and Education Center in Sanford for the week of July 10-16 is probably a record, National Weather Service meteorologist Don Martin said this morning.

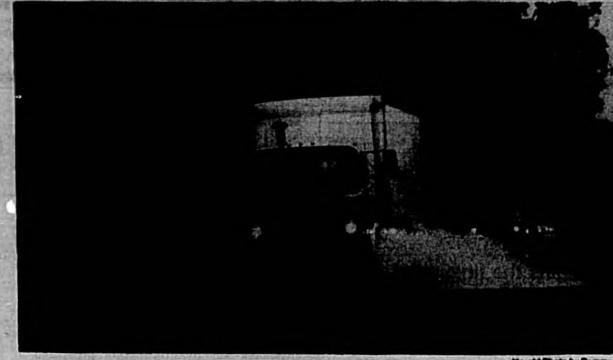

"Average for the area is 7.78 per month. That's got to be a record or certainly approaching one," Martin said.

Dr. James White, University of Florida amociate professor stationed at the Sanford research center, said the rain was needed in the area, but may have an adverse effect on agriculture.

"If it continues to rain, it will delay fall planting, which will affect economic sales of squash, cucumbers and potatoes. Early sales bring better prices. But the rain will actually help us in the long run, by bringing the water tables up." White said.

Minor flooding has not affected current Seminole County crops, White said, because they were harvested two weeks ago.

Data compiled by the St. Johns River Water Management District show the rain is quenching a water supply parched for more than a decade. The 11.41 inches of rain recorded in Sanford in June was 5.02 inches above normal June rainfall as determined by the National TALLAHASSEE - People who have heart attacks, bypeas surgery or pacemaker implants get widely varying hospital bills depending on where they're treated, the Florida Health Care Cost Containment Board said.

VanDerworp declined to comment on the report from the Department of Community Affairs until county planning staff had completed their own review of the report. The report was "faxed" to the county at 10:30 Friday night, according to a county fax time stamp. The state was required to send the report to the county by Friday.

DCA reviewers said the county plan allows too much development in rural areas designated "suburban estates" and "general rural" land uses. The land-use the Markham Woods Road and Geneva areas of the county.

"Development at this density does not adequately protect ag-ricultural lands, wildlife habitat or natual resources and encourages the proliferation of urban sprawl," reviewers wrote.

Urban sprawl is the creeping expansion of suburbs into rural areas followed by more and more urban-type development. Altamonte Springs is the local example most often cited by planners. Prevention of urban sprawl is one of the main focuses of the 1985 Growth Management upland areas, in one almost amusing comment, reviewers stated the county didn't provide justification for the Seminole County Expressway, about to be under construction in October. The study also noted there was no written justification for the proposed Western Beltway extending west from 1-4.

Licensing increases discussed

LONGWOOD - The Longwood City Commission held a first reading of an ordinance dealing with licensing, last night. Before the matter was approved, it drew considerable pro and con discussion. The ordinance, dealing with occupational licenses, would increase the amount of money required for initial applications and re-Presented by City Administrator Don Terry, the Issue would call for an additional charge of $15 for administrative functions, to persons first applying for an occupational license in the city of Longwood. The present charge for first time applicants is $50 for the average size business. Some applications are at a higher rate, depending on the number of employees.

The second change would be a charge of $10, on annual license renewal fees. At the present time, there is no charge for occupational license renewals.

Terry said, "Both charges are to help compensate for the various tasks that have to be performed on licensing matters." He especially noted the various on site inspections that have to be accomplished prior to ness." the granting of initial applications. They included those done by Planning and Zoning, the Fire Marshal and others.

Commissioner Paul Lovestrand commented that increasing the charge for occupational licenses has been prohibited since 1980. Terry however, explained that the increase was for the initial filing of applications and renewals, not the actual cost of the license.

LONGWOOD - Members of the Longwood City Commission made a number of appointments to various boards Monday night. Several additional nominations are still forthcoming.

Commissioner Adrienne Perry, who was to make one of the nominations for the city's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, said she was unable to do so at this time. "We need more people to fill out forms for consideration to the various boards," she said. "I would like to see more of Longwood's people become involved in the various

"I want to urge the people of this city who may be interested in a particular area of the city's functions, to let the city know of this interest so we can consider them for possible nomination to our various boards."

Most of the remaining board vacancies are expected to be filled during the next Longwood City Commission meeting, scheduled for Aug. 5.

Commissioner Adrienne Perry said. "I don't think ten dollars for a license renewal is going to make a big difference." She suggested that the city investigate the renewal charges made by other municipalities in the area so a comparison could be made. Terry said he would

Home ownership

Little good was expected to come from the $160 billion savings and loan flaco, but at least Congress made it possible under the thrift reconstruction act for working poor Americans to acquire low-cost housing. Now, it turns out, even that aspect of the taxpayer-flananced S&L bailout has gone sour.

Under the 1969 law, there is supposed to be a three-month period for low-income buyers and non-profit organizations to have an exclusive chance to purchase properties acquired by the Resolution Trust Corp., the federal agency that administers the assets of failed thrifts. The properties made available under this program must be valued at less that $67,500. If there are no satisfactory bids, the houses or condominiums may be sold on the open market.

But there have been several major problems with the program's implementation.

One is that the RTC's borrowing standards for buyers leave little opportunity for low-income families to qualify. To be eligible for the program under the RTC's gyidelines, a family must carn 80 percent of the median family income in a particular area.

In addition, the RTC overestimated the market value of many of its properties. This resulted in many houses being appraised above $67,500 that really should have been made available through the affordable housing program. Since the RTC could not reduce prices for six months under its original sales rules, the three-month exclusive bidding for low-income buyers expired before the agency corrected its high appraisals.

These problems might have been avoided if the RTC had tried aggressively to put poor families into houses. In reality, the agency has not made the low-cost housing program a high priority.

At the end of April, the RTC's affordable housing portfolio included 17,372 houses and 489 apartment complexes, with a total of 65,097 individual units. Yet the agency had sold only 2,500 houses and 13 apartment buildings.

Then, under pressure from critics in Congress, the RTC made a mad dash to sell off 80 percent of its housing stock by June 30. Not surprisingly, the process was anything but orderly. Many aspiring low-income home buyers were shut out by th rush, prompting lawsuits in several states.

The idea of helping working poor Americans realize the dream of home ownership from the ruins of the savings and loan disaster was enightened. But the RTC has done a decidedly poor job of implementing the program. The White House and Congress should insist that the agency redouble its efforts to help poor families become homeowners.

Crush Chinese tyrants

I'd like to crush the current crop of aging Chinese tyrants with their own tanks. Human rights is a laugh to those Marxist bureaucrats in Beijing.

American foreign policy must pressure China to adopt more honorable trade and arms peddling policies, and more humane treatment toward its own people.

However, we must not gamble with China's most favored nation trade status. MFN is the pillar of Sino-American relations.

Revoking MFN would hurt the wrong Chinese—throwing the baby out with the bath water. U.S. isolation of China will not hurt the Communist hardliners in Beijing one bit, but it will erode the fragile gains made by elements trying to bring China out of the dark ages, especially those related to the quasi-private market-oriented industries of southern China.

China' retaliation to our revolding or conditioning MFN renewal would scuttle 10 years of American investment, leaving China's 1.2 billion people to our Japanese and European competitors.

The President may be dumb on taxes but he knows China. Let's find other means to show our displeasure with China's thuggishness. Congress should support the President on China's MFN status.

Radio Free China real fine chance

Consider an idea whose time may be here: Radio Free China. It could play a key role in finishing up the great unfinished business of our Legislation has been introduced. Senate cosponsors include, imagine this, liberal Joe Riden and conservative Jesse Helms. One commission is already studying the idea, a second is likely. The concept has been kicking around for is already studying the idea, a second is likely.

The concept has been kicking around for decades, it involves "surrogate radio."

America does two kinds of international radio broadcasting. Our national service, Voice of America; broadcasts globally in 44 languages. VOA has been an authentic, often excellent, "voice of America." Its editorials express government views. Its professional journalists do objective news and interesting features, usually keyed to American and global situations. In a complex way, VOA is part of the State Department.

Surrogate radio is different, it was designed to broadcast to certain "denied" populations. These are peoples whose governments tried to keep them in the dark, especially about what is going on in their own tortured countries. America's principal surrogate services are Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, started in the early 1950s. The government funds "The Radios," but through an independent board of citizen directors. (I was a member of that board; I am now a member of the extant study commission.)

RFE is beamed to

RFE is beamed to Rastern Europe in nine languages. RL broadcasts to the Soviet Union in 13 languages. (A newer nurrogate, Radio Marti, broadcasts to Cuba.)

The Radios tried to produce what freedom of expression would yield if a repressed nation had free expression. As they evolved, the stations served as local newspapers, town meetings, journals of opinion, religious mentors, chroniclers of culture and global news magazines. In tough places and tough times, oppressed peoples listened, at their peril, through jamming, and learned the flame was alive, and that America cared.

MAmerica does

two kinds of international radio broadcasting. Surrogate radio is not cheap. It takes intensive research to dig out news from a closed society. (RPE's Romanian service employs somewhat more staff than VOA's China service!) Because many programmers are emigres who believe passionately in national freedom, costly oversight is needed to insure that broadcasts are informational rather than inflammatory, factual rather than factional.

The Radios have been remarkably successful.

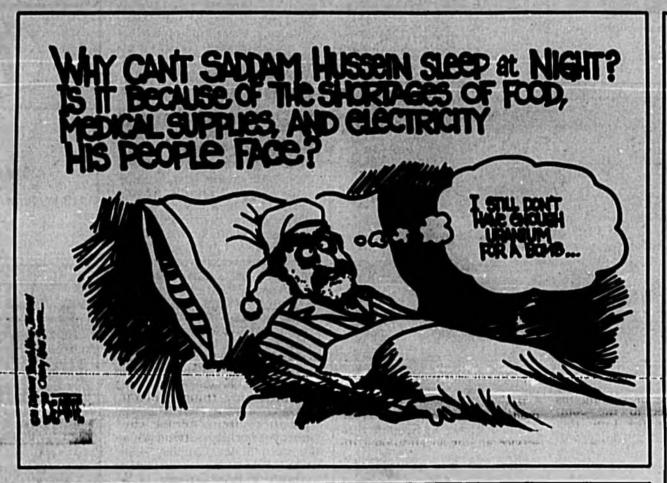

Ask Poland's Lech Waless and Czechoslovakia's Vaclav Havel. The Radios have now been nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize — by the foreign minister of Estonia.

Victory in the Cold War may be seen this way: American power contained communism. Thus constrained, communism was undermined by Western ideas. The ideas came through many channels, but radio was critical. RFE/RL deserves a prize not just for peace, but for freedom.

Now China. It is the last important redoubt of oppression. If China becomes free, that's the ballgame. The world will be free.

Surrogate programming to China has posed a problem. China's aged dictators fear the contagion of liberty. During the Cold War it was American policy not to irritate the old men lest they team up with the Soviets.

Religion still touchy subject

BOSTON — If you thought that racial politics was a heady enough brew to serve up for one Supreme Court nomination, beware. There's a heaping cup of religion added to the recipe.

When Clarence Thomas stood on the President's lawn and thanked his grandparents, his mother, and the nuns, a small warning sound, a tiny little uh-oh, went off in the minds of many who favor abortion rights. You don't have to be paranoid — although it helps — to assume that Bush was delivering a message to the pro-life wing of his party when he recited Thomas' Catholic schooling.

A few days later a very different alarm bell went off when Virginia's Gov. Douglas Wilder suggested that Thomas should be questioned as a Catholic: "the question is, 'How much allegiance is there to the Pope?" You don't have to be Catholic — although it helps — to hear an echo of the old bigotry against "papists" in power.

Now Wilder has given the standard nonapology apology: "If I have offended anybody, I'm sorry." And conservatives of the stripe who did not vote for Jack Kennedy or Al Smith are childing liberals for raising the specter of religious bigotry.

As somebody raised in Kennedy's hometown, an article of my secular faith says that religion should never be a test for holding public office. As somebody who was ably represented by a Jesuit priest in Congress, Robert Drinan, until the Church gave him the hook, I nevertheless think we have the wrong culprit.

It isn't liberals and it certainly isn't Douglas Wilder who have reopened the can of worms marked religion. It's the Catholic hierarchy.

American Catholics have often lived with tension between their national character — a feisty don't tell-me-what-to-think independence — and a religious hierarchy that struggles to contain a set of shared rules and beliefs. The potential conflict was usually lightened by leaving a whole lot of room for freedom of conscience. Especially for Catholic politicians.

By 1960, the issue seemed to have been settled. JFK told a Baptist convention in Houston: "I do not speak for the church on public matters, and the church does not speak for me." Case closed.

But now the church, in an increasingly authoritarian period, has changed the rules of the game. The bishops now consistently tell Catholic officeholders how to vote on one issue: abortion. The National Conference of Catholic Bishops has said that you can't be a good Catholic and pro-choice.

Last month, Cardinal Bernard Law told a group of Massachusetts legislators that there was "no way" to justify a pro-choice vote. A year before that, Cardinal John O'Connor, who has carried on a vendetta against Mario Cuomo, threatened pro-choice Catholic officeholders with excommunication. And Cardinal Joseph Bernardin has said that "all Catholics are bound by the moral principle prohibiting"

As Frances Kissling of Catholics for a Free Choice says flatly. "The Bishops have created the problem for the nominee. They are not the

It must be said quickly, that Catholic officials aren't especially bound to the church's preaching. The 19 Catholic senators and 119 Catholic representatives are about evenly divided on abortion. On the bench, retired Justice Brennan voted for Roc vs. Wade, while Scalia and Kennedy appear to be part of the anti-Roe bloc.

aggrieved victim."

Wade, while Scalia and Kennedy appear to be part of the anti-Roe bloc.

Nor does the Catholic population as a whole feel they have to obey the bishops. Only between seven and 18 percent of Catholics agree that abortion should be illegal "in all circumstances." The one way they differ from other religions is in actually seeking abortions. According to the Guttmacher Institute, the rate of abortion is 30 percent higher among Catholic women than Protestants and

What does this say about Clarence Thomas? Raised and educated Catholic, he is divorced, remarried, and attends an Episcopal Church. He appears passionately, even rebelliously, independent.

There are hints that his religious education has left its imprints in pro-life sentiment and an apparent belief in the primacy of "natural law." This is the principle that the Catholic church used to underpin its opposition to contraception as well as abortion. It's legitimate to plumb Thomas' religious upbringing for a full understanding of his perspective — without the flat-footed implication that he is a puppet of the pope.

But as this current flare-up suggests, religion in America is still a touchy subject. We are a diverse people, generally careful to defuse religious strife by separating church and state. If the line is traversed, don't blame Doug Wilder or Clarence Thomas. It's the bishops who have shown the way.

Congress' staff getting bigger

WASHINGTON — The late Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., was fond of saying that he wished he could pass a law renaming the U.S. Capitol as the Empire State Building, because it housed a huge empire — thousands of sides waiting on only 535 lawmakers.

It now costs $2.3 billion a year to support Congress and its ancillary agencies populated with worker bees who hum around the lawmakers responding to their every command. In 1960, the legislative budget was $130 million. Today it is roughly 20 times bigger. In 1960, there were 6,791 employees serving Congress. Today there are about 20,000.

Some agencies that support Congress have so many people, they don't know what to do with them. This year, the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, took on 172 extra staffers and loaned them to congressional committees. There are so many people working in the Capitol Building that their desks spill out into waiting areas and cubbyholes.

Newcomers to Congress might have to scrape and beg for enough staffers to run their offices, but the established members accumulate bigger staffs — big enough to do personal errands. As one staffer put it, "You do what you're asked to do. If that means walking the dogs, dropping off laundry or driving to the airport, then you do it." Many of the more menial jobs are foisted off on interns, just one step up from the congressional pages at the bottom of the ladder.

You do what to do.

you're asked

Down in the parking garage, there is a small army of attendants to guide members every morning to the same parking spaces they have occupied for years. All that help doesn't come cheap. The budget for staffing the parking garage will be $1.6 million next year.

"It's a joke." one Capitol Hill staffer told our associate Melinda Maas. "They have nothing to do. When I drive in in the morning there are three guys just sitting around twiddling their fingers." Some pass the time reading newspapers or playing cards.

In addition to the parking attendants, uniformed officers from the Capitol Police force stand in the garages checking identification cards before turning the cars over to parking lot attendants. It is one of the many mental tasks performed by well-paid cops.

Few will argue against the need for a police force on Capitol Hill. But a close look at how the Capitol Police spend their time raises questions. Why should the taxpayers pay to train and arm a uniformed police officer so he or she can spend hours every day checking ID cards at a congressional cafeteria, or writing parking tickets around the building?

Three decades ago, there were 216 Capitol Police officers. Now there are six times that many — two cops for every member of Congress — with an annual budget of more than $60 million. Even the police themselves want many of the jobs to be assumed by civilians so the cops can devote themselves to serious police work. The Capitol Police estimate that as much as $4.3 million could be saved over the next five years if 100 positions were turned over to non-uniformed civilians who cost less to train and keep.

Silvio Conte once wore a "Miss Piggy" mask on the House floor to denounce the rampant, selfish spending habits of Congress. Today, when there are 35 million Americans without health insurance and 12.6 million hungry children in the country, we wish Conte had left the mask to someone in his will.

Housing authority awarded grant

The 1991-92 facal year budget shows little increase in spending for the upcoming school year.

The largest increase will be in the area of teacher salaries and benefits, to which, Hughes said a major portion of the district's operating budget has been dedicated.

Of the $206.1 million in the proposed operating budget. $111.914.237 will be spent on teachers compensation.

According to Hughes, the most difficult challenge facing the financial staff which put the budget together was the decrease in the state allocations and the method of distribution of money which will be used in the coming year.

The state will be giving the district only 65 percent of their money in the upcoming year. Tuesday, July 23, during the 7 down from 68 percent during the current year.

And, instead of giving the district 25 percent of their allocation each quarter, 23 percent per quarter will be disbursed during the first three quarters and, if money is available the remaining 31 percent will be sent to the district.

Riegle bill is more cautious than administration's plan

ByDAVESKIDMORE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The Bush administration is getting only part of what it wants in bankingoverhaul legislation proposed by the chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

After weeks of behind-the-scenes negotiations with members of the panel. Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., offered a plan Tuesday that takes a far more cautious approach than advocated by the president.

In line with the administration's thinking. Riegle would lift most barriers to interstate banking and repeal the 58-year-old law separating the banking and securities industries. However, his bill would not take the additional step, as the administration would, of allowing commercial corporations, such as automobile

Senate nears easing ban on abortion-counseling

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Senate is nearing adoption of legislation freeing federally financed family-planning centers to dispense advice on abortion, pushing Congress closer to a veto showdown with President Bush.

But as senators debated the measure Tuesday. they flashed contradictory signals about their attitude toward whether pregnant girls must notify their parents before undergoing an abortion.

The Senate, which traditionally leans toward abortion rights, showed its distaste for regulations barring taxpaver-paid abortion advice by rejecting a conservative attempt to preserve some of the rules. The vote was 64-35.

"The Senate has sent an extraordinarily powerful message," Sen. Edward Kennedy. D-Mass., a sponsor of the effort to void the regulations, said after the vote. "Doctors ought to be able to practice medicine, and Congress shouldn't dictate policy."

The overall bill is aimed at voiding rules issued by the Department of Health and Human Services in 1988 forbidding federally assisted clinics from offering advice on abortion, even if a woman requested such information.

Lawsuits against the regulations were filed immediately and the rules were not implemented manufacturers and retail chains, to own banks. Riegle told reporters that mixing banking and commerce could lead to conflicts of interest in lending and tempt troubled commercial firms to raid the federally insured deposits of their banking affiliates.

Report: Quayle's program biased

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Women and blacks face serious inequities in a $4.6 billion job training program that was a cornersione of Dan Quayle's vice presidential campaign, congressional investigators concludes.

The General Accounting Office, in a report being released today, found that women in the program were more likely than men to receive training for lower-paid jobs.

And whites were more likely to receive classroom and on-the-job training — while blacks had a greater chance of only obtaining job search assistance, said the GAO, an investigative arm of Congress.

A Labor Department official disputed some of the findings.

Lawrence H. Thompson, of the GAO's Human Resources Division, presented the findings in testimony prepared for a hearing of the House Government Operations subcommittee on employment and housing.

"Unfortunately, one of the vice president's biggest resume items is apparently becoming a quagmire of prejudice and injustice," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., who ordered the study as chairman of the full Government Operations Com-

The Job Training Partnership Act that established the program was sponsored in 1982 by Quayle, then a Republican senator from Indiana, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

During the vice presidential campaign, Quayle often efted accomplishments of the partnership, which was approved during the high unemployment rate of the 1982 recession.

When George Bush picked Quayle as his running mate, he cited Quayle's co-sponsorship of the law as a major achievement.

The program is a partnership because the federal government finances the assistance - spending $4.6 billion this fiscal year - but does not run it.

The money is given to governors, who in turn disperse the funds around their states.

City cops see tight fiscal year

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Sanford Police Department has received approval of almost $4.4 million for the fiscal year 1991-92 budget. The figure is only $81,000 higher than the amount budgeted for this year.

"It's going to be a tight year, with no new programs." said Police Chief Steve Harriett, "but we were charged to hold the line on our budget requests, and that's what we

Harriett said that even though crime is increasing. 'We will be finding ways to strive for a continuation of service, even though we have to operate under a status-quo budget.'

There are some increases in the Police Department's individual budget requirements from the present year to the next year. Most of them however, are minor, and have been brought about because of the economic situation in the country. These include the cost of operating motor vehicles in both the administrative and uniform divisions, much of which is an increase in gasoline prices. "In some of these areas," Harriett sald, "increases by one department are offset because we've managed to decrease the need in another department"

Additional increased costs for indivudial items are also being handled through decreases in other areas including a reduction in the amount of computer hardward requested for the coming year.

No additional staffing is contemplated for the Police Department during this coming year. Harriett said. "We'll just have to increase the operation of our department without having to increase the number of people or the working hours involved." The Chief said he does not anticipate taking on any additional personnel, "except in the case of replacements for normal turnover of our staff." No new patrol cars are requested for this coming year. "We just received six replacements recently," Harriett sald, "and we don't anticipate we'll need any new ones for next year." The total budgeted amount approved for the operation of the department during the 1989-90 fiscal year was $4,170,901. This year's amount is $4,305,591. The total approved for the 1991-92 fiscal year is $4,386,271. Approval and public hearings on the total City of Sanford budget for the upcoming year is expected during September, with the first reading scheduled for the September 9 meeting. and the second reading on September 23. The fiscal year begins on October 1.

Judge lets go land tax break in 2 counties

Associated Press

SANFORD — The purchase of a second residence led Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. to improperly receive property tax exemptions on homes in Seminole and Volusta counties, the judge says.

Mize, who said his permanent residence is in Sanford, in Seminole County, said he did not know he had been given the tax break on a home in Volusia County for two years.

"I did not mean for that to happen." Mize said. "I would not claim in both places."

The judge on Monday cancelled his exemptions in both counties and said he would return about $1,100 he saved in taxes in Volusia County while he was receiving an exemption in Seminole. The law exempts homeowners from paying taxes on the first $25,000 of assessed value for their primary residence. It is a first-degree misdemeanor to claim the exemption on more than one residence at a time.

Mize purchased a $102,485 four-bedroom home in Osteen. across from Sanford on the Volusia County side of Lake Monroe, in September 1988.

FISHING

Local angler nets big one

PONCE INLET - Robert Rutherford, a 17-year Winter Springs resident, caught the biggest fish of his life recently when he caught a 44-inch long, 92-pound Black Belly Grouper.

Fishing in 125-foot water in the reefs 25 miles off the coast of Ponce Inlet, the former Sanfordite hooked the big fish using regular poles. He had to hand feed the line in to land the monster.

Mother Nature sweeps

Rain forces cancellations

By DEAN SMITH Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD - Once again. Mother Nature has taken control of the the Sanford Recreation Department softball leagues.

Heavy afternoon rains on both Monday and Tuesday added to already saturated conditions at both Chase and Pinehurst parks, making field preparations impossible and forcing the cancellation of all games.

Lost due to the wet conditions were Monday night's men's league at Pinchurst, Tuesday's men's league at Chase and Tuesday's women's league at Pinehurst.

Monday night's schedule was to have had the Tim Raines Connection taking on the Orlando Softball Club at 6:30 p.m.; league-leading Calico Jacks playing the Boomtown Boys at 7:30 p.m.; and the Boomtown Boys facing the Lambert Erectors at 8:30 p.m.

Calico Jack's 11-1 record gives it a huge four-game lead over TRC and the Lambert Erectors, who are tied for second with 9-5 records. Trailing the lead pack are the Boomtown Boys (2-10) and the Orlando Softball Club (0-12).

Next week, the Orlando Softball Club is scheduled to play the doubleheader, against the Lambert Erectors at 6:30 p.m. and Calico Jacks at 7:30 p.m. The 8:30 p.m. game will have TRC taking on the Boomtown Boys.

Tuesday's rain put on hold the heated battle in the Tuesday men's Chase battle between State Market Restaurant and Beer:30. State Market was set to play Kinco at 7:30 p.m. and Beer:30 was to have faced the Regulators at 8:30 p.m. The opening game of the evening had Monroe Harbour Marina taking on the Kokomo Recyclers.

Rain, rain, go away

Or fall earlier in the day so that the fields have a chance to dry out in time for evening league action. Both of Sanford's Tuesday leagues were rained out last night. At Pinehurst, Denise Burton (No. 3, left) and fourth-place Intergalactic were to take Greenleaf Landscaping, one of the three teams tied for first. At Chase, Mic West (right) and league-leading State Market Restaurant were scheduled to play Kinco.

The rest of the league has the Regulators in third place with a 6-4 mark: Monroe Harbour Marina and Kinco tied for fourth with 3.7 records and the Kokomo Recyclers bringing up the rear with a 1.9 record.

Next week's schedule has the Kokomo Recyclers playing State Market Restaurant at 6:30 p.m.: State Market Restaurant leads the Kinco facing the Regulators at 7:30 league with a 9-1 record while p.m.; and Monroe Harbour Marina --Beer:30 is just a game back at 8-2. challenging Beer:30 at 8:30 p.m.

Also lost to Tuesday's rain was the women's league at Pinchurst. which has turned out to the best battle in the city as four of the six teams are within one game of the league lead with three games left.

Three teams - Harcar, Fred's Lawn Service and Greenleaf Landscaping — are tied at the top with 8-4 records while Intergalactic is just a game back at 7.5. The remainder of the league has Beer:30 - Harcar at 8:30 p.ma-and Beer:30 at 3.9 and Bikini Beach at 2-10.

Last night, the best game figured to be the 7:30 p.m. contest between Intergalactic and Greenleaf Landscaping. In the other games Fred's Lawn Service was supposed to play Bikini Beach at 6:30 p.m. and Harcar was set to play Beer:30 at 8:30 p.m.

Next week, Bikini Beach is scheduled to play Intergalactic at 6:30 p.m.: Greenleaf Landscaping faces takes on Fred's Lawn Service.

Only rain stands in way of tourneys' completion

Great.

According to district administrator George Knai, there should be no problem getting in the District 14 Little League All-Star tournaments by Saturday. No problem, that is, as long as the weather cooperates.

"We're at least a day behind, probably a little more" said Knai Tuesday night. "We should be able to finish on time provided the the weather permits us to. We have to have favorable weather between now and Sunday to establish our district champions.

"We're not panicking at this time. But we're getting awfully close."

Sunday is the magic day because the sectional tournaments, the next step in Little League's All-Star ladder, are scheduled to begin Monday. For the Little (11 and 12) and Senior (14 and 15) divisions, this year's sectional tournaments are in Niceville, Luckily, both the Little and Senior Leagues began their district finals Tuesday.

The Juniors (13) will play their sectional tournament at Oviedo.

According to Knal, the Little League bracket began its district finals on Tuesday with Apopka-West Seminole playing Northwest Volusia at Southwest Volusia and the Deltona Nationals facing Clermont at Clermont.

Because the Junior League champion gets to stay "home" for the sectional tournament, Knal said that they could wrap up that district tournament as late as Sunday, if necessary. For obvious reasons, he would prefer to have the district champ crowned before then.

The only problem was that only two of the four Bee All-Stars, Page 3B

New district administrator oversees nearly 8,000 players in 26 leagues

By TOMY Decoman Herald Sports Editor

At 63, you'd think that George Knat would have better things to do than worry about a kid's

Then again, maybe not.

Now in his 25th year associated with Little League Baseball, Kinai now has the dubious honor of serving as the administrator over District 14. which includes about 7,800 boys playing in 26 leagues over four counties, including Seminole.

Those numbers will climb to over 8,000 in 27 leagues when Sanford formally aligns its 10, 11 and 12-year-old program with Little League Baseball next year.

"You know, if I hadn't spent so much time at the ball field. I might have amounted to something by now," jokes Knei (pronounced "nigh") during a too-brief pause of juggling games and fields in an endless shellgame of trying to get games in around Central Florida's

But those involved with any form of youth athletics know better. Knat and those like him are the people that youth leagues need to survive.

At first, Knai was like any other parent, enrolling his sons in the local Little League program. That was followed by a 14-year stint as District 14's umpire-in-chief.

"I never intended to really do anything in Little League," said Knai. "But I just stayed. And I stayed. After my sons were out, I figured that Little League had some some good for my boys, so I decided to stay in it a little while to sort of pay them back for what they did for my sons."

Knal soon settled in as the district's head umpire, a position with its own special group of headaches. Often, he would serve as the final arbiter in a dispute over a judgement call or rules interpretation. But just as often, Knai says the decision was thrown back to Little League headquarters in Williamsport, Penn.

You have the rulebook, but there are things that happen in a game that are so unique," said Knai, who has umpired in the Senior League (14) and 15) All-Star World Series in Kissimmee. "Sometimes you need a committee to make a

"If that doesn't work, you go to Williamsport and they can get on it. They know the intent of the rules and how to apply them fairly."

As easy as Knal makes that process sound, it's complicated severely by the reality that emotions invariably are running high in such instances. But he understands that and doesn't begrudge anyone their right to diangree.

"I enjoy it," said Knai. "I enjoy the people I meet. I enjoy the youngsters. I enjoy everything about Little League. I don't know when I plan to

What I really love is listening to the kids when I'm on the field. They say some great things. There was this one team that was really struggling. The other team, which had loaded the bases, had just cleared the bases. And the shortstop, who was really frustrated, looked at the empty bases, then looked at his teammates and said. 'Well, let's see if we can turn two.' "

And despite the implications made in a recent story in another daily newspaper. Knal says that by and large, he rarely has problems with the adults with whom he comes in contact.

"They say that it's the adults that are ruining the game for the kids," said Knai. "I'm not convinced of that. We have about 7,800 boys playing Little League Baseball in our district, so we probably have between 3 and 4,000 adults involved in some capacity. You can't pick on that kind of involvement.

"I don't care what kind of organization you're in, when you have that many people involved, there are going to be problems that erupt."

brackets had been decided by Monday night. On Tuesday. Oviedo wrapped up the Area 3 title by beating Eustis (see related story). In the remaining area bracket, undefeated Dr. Phillips was to play South Orange on Tuesday. Knai said that the Junior League district finals would start contest turned out.

A Dr. Phillips victory Tuesday would send Dr. Phillips against Southwest Volusia tonight. A South Orange win would mean that Oviedo would face Southwest Volusia while Dr. Phillips and South Orange played again for the right to take on Apopka-West Seminole on Thursday. Like the Little League, the on Wednesday regardless of how Senior League was able to begin the Dr. Phillips-South Orange its district finals Tuesday as the Altamonte Springs Americans defeated DeLand at Southwest Volunta (see related story).

Tonight at 7 p.m. in Ococe, the Altamonte Springs Americans face Oviedo in a showdown of the only remaining undefeated teams. Meanwhile, DeLand plays the winner of Tuesday night's Area 1 final between Winter Garden and Southwest Orlando in an elimination contest.

"We have to get the district tournaments done by Sunday so that the district champions have a break and, in the case of the Little League and Senior League, the teams have some time to travel," Knal said. "We can resort to doubleheaders if we have to, but that would be less than destrable."

To keep from doing that, Knai and staff are doing everything physically possible to keep ames from being rained out. That occasionally means moving a game at the last minute from its originally scheduled site, where it may be raining or conditions are unplayable, to another complex that somehow stayed dry that day.

For example, Tuesday night's Junior League game between Oviedo and Eustis was to have been played at Eastmonte Park in Altamonte Springs. But at game time, Eastmonte was still under water. Oviedo's field, on the other hand, was dry. So all the players, umpires, adminstrators, family and fans made the trip east.

If for no other reason than the safety of everyone involved, Knai wants to keep last-minute switches like that to a minimum.

As long as the weather cooperates, that won't be a problem.

"We've played very well so far," said Dunemann. "We haven't had to go to the bullpen and no one had to pitch twice. But we're just trying to keep up with the Seniors. They outscored their opponents 73-3. We've only won by a combined 58-9, so we need to pick it up a

"Russell (Americans starting pitcher Haney) had pitched well up until then (the fifth)." said Wiesen. "But we dropped two pop ups in the infield and made a couple of outfield bobbies and he got frustrated and started looking at the coaches in the dugout as if to ask 'What's going on out here?' and just took himself out of the game."

Mitchell wants spot as Marino's back-up

After work, she heads for kitchen

By JOAN KING Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Several people taught Sanford resident Sue

Ferguson to cook. Both Ferguson's parents worked so they all cooperated to make it easier for everyone to help.

"Dad was the real cook in the family and my sister was the chief cook and bottle washer when he wasn't home. Mostly, I got stuck with the dishes." Ferguson said. "My father worked nights and would leave the uncooked meating in the refrigerator, covered. When we children would come home from high school, we would place the mention in the oven and dinner would be ready in a short time."

Ferguson started cooking about 10th grade when she attended Mainland High School in Daytona Beach, where she was born and lived before moving to Sanford. She had some

"I'm kind of an idiot-type cook. I touch hot pans without a potholder and things like that," she admitted. "One type of sucident I had was a grease fire when I walked out of the kitchen while frying. The pan got too hot and burst into flames. I put it out immediately by pouring salt on it. Then I had to clean up the whole mean before anyone got home and found out what I did."

Ferguson worked a stint at a fast food restaurant, where her kitchen expertise actually came in handy.

"When I was working at Kentucky Fried Chicken, the knowledge helped as we had some grease fires when the inexperienced kids who worked there become careless." she explained.

Ferguson is now employed at Al's Army, Navy Store where she is manager.
She still cooks every night after work but makes it as simple as she can with easy, quick meals.

She offers a recipe for people who don't like emplant and explains. "My mother had us cracker meal to take up kids fooled with it. We had no idea that the casserole had egaplant in it. We just didn't like vegetables and thought it was stuffing. When my mother gave me the recipe, I didn't know I loved eggplant so much."

Shrimp

Little waste with little shellfish high in protein, low in fat

So often we hear "We eat more chicken and fish or seafood and have cut back on the amount of red meat in our dieta." Part of the reason for this is a health concern and in part for economic reasons. Chicken is less costly per pound and fish/seafood has little if any waste. These high protein foodstuffs can go a long way when used with vegetables and grains. One-and-a-half pounds of shrimp can service 4-6 persons when combined with vegetables and served on rice. This reduces the cost per serving considerably.

Creole cooking has found its way to many of our tables. This wonderful and easy version of a shrimp specialty can be prepared in the microwave oven. SHRIMP CREOLE

11/2 lbs. medium shrimp, peeled and develned

2 large onions, finely chopped 2 medium green peppers, finely chopped 5 pieces bacon

Reserved drippings from cooking bacon

1 15 oz. can whole tomatoes

1 16 oz. can tomato paste 1 15 oz. can tomato sauce

2 cloves garlic, minced

1/2 tsp. salt

14 tsp. pepper

3 bay leaves

Place bacon on rack in shallow pan and microwave on 100% power for 5 minutes or until crisp. Allow bacon to cool and crumble. Reserve drippings. In a 4 qt. casserole, place bacon drippings, onlons, green pepper and garlic. Microwave on 100% power 5 minutes, stirring at least once. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, tomato sauce, salt, pepper, and bay leaves. Cover with lid after mixing all ingredients well. Microwave on 50% power 30-40 minutes, stirring

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful husband. "George" and I have been married for 16 years. Last summer George was going through a mid-life crisis and began shutting me out and spending most of his time at work. A young woman — 10 years his junior, married and temporarily separated from her husband began buying George lunch, complaining that she was unhappy at home, her husband was a poor lover, etc. She started praising my husband and feeding his ego.

Then one day she told him that her car was in the shop and she needed a ride home, so he drove her home and she invited him in "to talk." She asked George to kiss her. He did, and before he knew it, they were in bed. In the middle of the act. George said he realized that he was in the of bed, took a shower and came home to me. (This was his version.) He confessed, begged for my forgiveness and we prayed together. He said it was the worst sexual experience he ever had he didn't even complete the act.

George went to confession and told the priest everything. The priest said that technically George did not commit adultery because he did not complete the physical act. Is this true? I want to believe him.

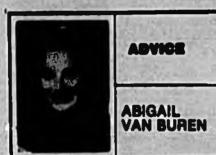

GEORGE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Adultery, in traditional Catholic theology, does not depend on the completion of the physical act. ("...anyone who looks at a woman lustfully has already committed adultery with her in his heart." Matthew 5:28.)

George's "mid-life crisis" is a cry for help, and his lapse of faithfulness is a symptom of an ailing marriage. But since he has been a faithful husband for 16 years, you should be less concerned about the biblical definition of adultery, and more concerned about the state of your marriage. You could both benefit from

Forgive him, unconditionally, and he will remain in the right place with the right woman. and your next 16 years should be even more wonderful than your first.

DEAR ABBY: After reading a couple of articles in your column about funny wedding nights and foldout couches I'd like to tell you about our homeymoon - more than 45 years ago. After World War II we were married in Connecticut and drove to California with our best man. Three on a honeymoon! We decided on this because my and. Dick, and his best friend, Walter (their real names), were both still stationed at Hamilton Air Force base in San Rafael, Calif.

We never had any reservations and rooms were hard to get, so we all slept in the same room every night, and they dragged in a cot for our best man. We got a lot of funny looks, but we knew everything was on the up and up, so we just Poor Walter sat through a lot of lousy double features in an effort to give the newlyweds some time alone together.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who was upset because her husband's friend didn't know how to use a fork properly reminded me of the following: Anton Chekhov, the great Russian writer, once said: "A well-mannered person is not one who knows which fork to use first, but one who doesn't notice when others use the wrong

SEMINOLE COUNTY BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS
NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEARING

The Board of County Commissioners of Seminole County, Florida, will hold a public hearing to consider the following:

Planned Unit Development Zone - Appeal against the Board of Adjustment in denying a variance to reduce width of parking spaces from 10 II. to 9 II. on Tax Parcel 12 in Section 33 20-29 and Tax Parcel

35 in Section 4-21-29; NWIy corner of Sabai Palm Place and Wekive

This public hearing will be held in Room W122 of the Seminole County Services Building, 1101 East First Street, Sentord, Florida on August 13, 1991, at 7:00 p.m. or as soon thereefter as possible.

Written comments filed with the Land Management Director will be considered. Persons appearing at the public hearing will be heard. Further details available by calling 321-1130, Ext. 7444.

Persons are advised that if they decide to appeal any decision made at this hearing, they will need to insure that a verbatim record of the proceedings is made, which record includes the festimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be based, per Section 264 0105.

HOU'VE GOT THAT BIG HANR LITTLE HANP STUFF POWN COLR PON'T YOU?

PO YOU REALIZE YOU SLEPT THE ENTIRE MORNING?

Diverticulitis may be controlled by surgery DEAR DR. GOTT: is there keloids common to the black anything that can be done for diverticulitie other than taking casion, surgery may be neces-sary to control bleeding from diverticulitie.

Diverticulitie refers to pockets of infection deep within little outpouchings that commonly arise in the intestinal lining. This infection causes severe abdominal pain, bowel paralysis and fever. The diagnosis is most easily made by CT scanning (computed tomography, a type of X-ray test) that often reveals the abacess. As you pointed out. antibiotics will usually cure the condition.

However, in some cases, portions of the infected intestine may bleed — and bleed pro-fusely. If this hemorrhage is not arrested by antibiotics, an operation to remove the abacess and the bleeding area is needed. In addition, repeated bouts of bleeding are another indication for surgery. Finally, the forma-tion of a large abscess with or without perioration of the intestine may require surgery.

I gather from your question that you are interested in nondrug therapy for diverticulities that is mild or moderate. To my knowledge, there is none. Experts usually recommend a diet free of small seeds (strawberries, raspberries and the like) for patients with diverticulosis, uninfected outpouchings that cause no symptoms.

The rationale for this preventive treatment is that these indigestible seeds may enter diverticular sacs and cause blockage leading to infection: put simply, they may turn harmless diverticulosis into more serious diverticulitis. However, once infection has set in. antibiotics (and surgery, for the reasons I mentioned) may be necessary.

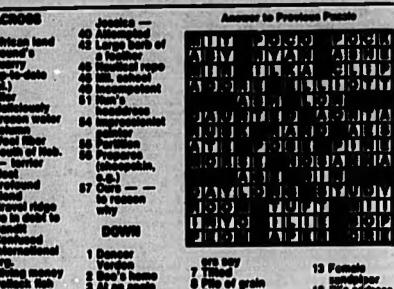

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss the causes of keloids. Is the tendency hereditary? Are population, and are there any new surgical removal procedures that will prevent their return?

DEAR READER: Keloids are exaggerated scars: After an injury, the scar tissue enlarges, forming a shiny, smooth over-growth, rather than a thin, lightly colored line. The cause of keloids is unknown; they are more common in blacks and tend to be inherited. Keloids. which do not affect health, can be removed by plastic surgery or laser treatment.

think of the right play, you will realize you have found the solution. And if you don't think of it, how can you possibly make the contract? How would you. South, play to bring home your six-heart contract against the lead of the diamond king?

This is a difficult slam to bid. North-South having minimum high-card values and a perfect fit. In the given auction, South's use of Blackwood appears aggressive, but he has a hand stronger than his point-count suggests. He has controls in both minor suits and extra trump length. Opposite a strong jump shift with a heart fit, he should have a play for slam.

You have two club losers; you must discard one of them on a To the casual observer, this spade winner, But it isn't easy to deal from Bill Root's "How to establish a long spade if the suit Play a Bridge Hand" looks easy is breaking 4-2, since the - but it isn't. However, if you diamond lead has removed a vital dummy entry.

The right play is to draw trumps with the heart ace and queen, and then to duck a spade.

The opponents probably will try to cash a diamond trick, but you ruff, play a spade to dummy's king, cash the spade ace, discarding a club, and ruff a spade. You cross to dummy with a trump to the king and then discard your last club loser on the spade seven.

This is an unusual application of the principle that if the opponents must get a trick in a suit, you should give it to them as quickly as possible. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER EN-TERPRISE ASSN.
