BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

THE VERY ACT OF STRIVING FROM THE ERROR OF A SINFUL LIFE WILL STRENGTHEN US IN OUR WAY. James 5:20: He which converteth a sinner . . . Shall cover a multitude of sins.

Bombed City (From Spirit)

Dark writing is the rubble underneath the lacerated sky, the poetry of devastation; mankind's destiny is written in these ragged lines of death that lie where stood the lyrics of the young, and where the laughter like a sonnet flowed. Black line on line the death-wings parted their code. These are the verses of the raging strong, the bitter hieroglyphics from the pen dipped in stupidity and greed, hard-written for the unblinded eye to read. But read the ruins and mark the fate of men, however strong, who build for self alone. The truth is written to the scattered stone.

LON WOODRUM.

Emperor Hirohito is quoted as saying, "The present crisis is unprecedented in scope in our national history." He don't know nothing yet.

We see where a little more time is in prospect for civilians. In fact, we may soon reach the point where we may be allowed to sniff a piece of roast beef.

We think this tennis tournament is a swell idea for the "old folks," but we were just wondering where they were going to play until they get some tennis courts built.

If ships and planes keep up the constant pounding of Japan, pretty soon there will not be much left to surrender unconditionally.—St. Augustine Record. Or any other way.

The Stock Market has been going into a tailspin lately probably on account of peace rumors respecting Japan. But every million dollars lost on the market may mean a better chance of saving a thousand American lives.

Orlando is conducting a courtesy contest among employees of its popular stores with the winners to be awarded a $25 war bond each. Such a contest might do some good here. Certainly a little more courtesy among clerks waiting on the public would not hurt the reputation of any city.

After a restaurant scuffle with a South Florida senator a North Florida member said he didn't know how he got a cut over his eye. Something he ate, maybe.—Fort Myers News Press. What is a "restaurant scuffle," something in which the participants throw ration books at each other?

Speaking of the delay in paying fruit fly damage claims of Florida growers, the Orlando Sentinel says, "Florida gets neglected by Democrats because we are too completely Democratic and by Republicans because we are too hopelessly non-Republican." That's just what we've been trying to tell 'em, during ground session here.

Any laughter widely points to the need of new highways to meet the demands of greatly increased automobile driving once the war is over. And by this time new highways cost money like the hot iron. It's not that there is so much money for the job as that all the money that the automobile pay would cost for the highway program would be used to pay for the highway program. It's just that we've got to pay for the things which develop.

The Jap Spirit

American relations with Japan just now are an interesting combination of war and poker. The air is filled with peace rumors that may or may not have factual basis, but Uncle Sam stands pat on his original demand of unconditional surrender. And every passing day strengthens the American position, as Tokyo smokes and melts away in fire and smoke, under the terrific bombardment of American air forces.

But there are other factors, of such an unusual nature that they suggest medieval mystery rather than modern reality. The Japanese people are bound, in traditional loyalty and reverence, to a king-emperor regarded as divine. It is easy to ridicule such a personality or institution, but it may play a more important part than practical Americans have expected. Its principles and practices are very old, and are revered accordingly.

It may be that the Japanese nation and its leaders still have within themselves spiritual or patriotic resources to which our modern world has paid little attention. They might fight and die, by tens of thousands, regardless of losses, to maintain their racial pride. The outer world may gain a clearer view of that possibility as the war proceeds. It is a factor which cannot win the war, but may cause unprecedented difficulties.

Post-War Trek

It is a well known fact that wars have usually been followed by waves of migration, wherever such outlets were possible. Our own wars have been notable examples of the westward trek which is natural procedure in this country. Most Americans, perhaps, have assumed that this tendency has now become weak and unimportant, but they may be wrong about it. The East is still somewhat overpopulated, in comparison with most other national areas, and there are still large areas for settlement in the West and South.

One expert who has been studying this situation, Dr. Frank E. August of Cleveland, serving as city commissioner of veterans' assistance, gives some surprising figures on the present migratory pressure, indicated by a recent army survey. It indicates that 39 per cent of enlisted men from the northern states expect to migrate after demobilization.

And why should they do so? He explains the matter rather simply, as largely a matter of housing. Most of our cities at present are growing overcrowded. If men who ordinarily would expect to return where they came from, at the start of the war, find on their return home that their cities have failed to provide adequate housing and other facilities, they may go elsewhere to new frontiers.

Puppet Mutineers

For years Chinese troops have been fighting the Japanese on the borders of Indo-China. At first it was a losing battle, but now the tide has turned. They have helped re-open the Burma supply routes, and in turn are receiving more supplies with which to advance against the enemy. Now that enemy is helping in the job.

It is reported that Chinese have occupied Moncay, important seaport on the Japanese life-line to south-east Asia, with the aid of Japanese puppet troops. The puppets rebelled against their conquerors and surrendered to the attacking Chinese, laden with arms and information.

These mutineers, it is hoped and believed, will be only the first of many thousands, who are rapidly being convinced that Japanese "co-prosperity" means slavery for their own people. If so, the work of all the Allies—Chinese, British, Dutch and Americans alike—will be that much easier. Certainly, such surrenders are to be encouraged, for every puppet who mutines against the Japs means the saving of at least one allied life which might otherwise be lost in battle.

"TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY"

By RUSSELL KAY

My good friend, Justus Cramer, president of the California Press Association and publisher of the Orange (Calif.) Daily News, in a recent editorial asks "Where Does the Ex-Serviceman Go From Here?"

Because I feel that the subject is both timely and vital, I present the thought-provoking editorial as my column for this week.

"The prospects of returning veterans for re-employment have been the subject of a good deal of conversation. We Americans are a queer people, indeed. When these boys were called from our midst, to defend the honor and integrity of our country on foreign soil, we made all kinds of promises. We swore by the eternal that when they returned, they should, as a matter of course, have their old jobs back, if they wanted them.

"Well, these men are coming back today by the thousands. What is being done to provide them with jobs? Most employees with a high sense of gratitude and duty, are placing veterans in their old positions. In some instances, unfortunately, the service men are getting nothing more substantial than promises. "A case in point recently brought to our attention is that of a returning California veteran who also served in World War I. He was told that he might have his old job back—but in the company's plant in an Eastern city. Since this veteran has been a resident of California for seventeen years with a home and family in this state, he might as well have been told he could have his job back in Timbuctoo.

"In industry let us have a look at the automotive business in its attitude toward this problem. Over 200,000 veterans are classified as coming from this industry alone. The automotive companies accept the interpretation of Major General Shersey, that the Selective Service Act morally guarantees old jobs back to the veterans.

"This industry was hopeful of offering veterans many more than 200,000 jobs they previously held but the AFL and CIO challenge that suggestion. They insist that priority be given to employees now on the job. This means that the 1,400,000 people working for the industry during the war—many as war workers—will have legal claims to the 1,100,000 jobs expected to be available. Only veterans who worked in the industry before the war will have much of a chance for the jobs. That doesn't strike us as being exactly an honorable way of discharging our obligations to the young men who risked their lives so that this nation might endure.

"The automotive workers (CIO), realizing that about 80% of all veterans will have no legal claim to these jobs after the war, presented its challenge to the War Production Board. The answer was a 10-page confidential memo declaring that the plan of the industry to hire veterans might tend to increase labor turnover, undermine the seniority system and otherwise disturb labor relations.

"Obviously management is not responsible for this situation. In fact, one of the largest of these companies has proposed that veterans, not previously employed in an automotive plant, may be hired regardless of the seniority of other employees hired after May 1, 1940, the effective date of the re-employment rights provided by the Selective Service Law.

"As a direct result of WPB policy we find that for the week ending April 28 nearly 29,000 veterans who were able to work, and who had applied for jobs, were receiving unemployment doles under the G.I. Bill of Rights. Since V-E day that number has no doubt increased very materially.

"The nation owes an unmeasurable debt of gratitude to its service men and women. This cannot be repaid by idle platitudes and the dodging of responsibility. If Congress meant what it said in passing the Selective Service Act, it should set itself the task of seeing that the letter and the spirit of the Act are carried out. If this is not done, there remains but one avenue open to returning service men, and that lies in organization of a strong militant force that will aggressively demand its inalienable right—THE RIGHT TO WORK."

U. S. milk production in 1944 was up 14 per cent over the 1935-39 average.

The average U. S. consume ate five pounds less butter during 1944 than he did during 1935-39.

About 125,000 farms were contacted in line with the rural electrification program in 1944.
The forested area of Canada is exceeded in size only by the forests of the U. S. S. R. and Brazil.
The U. S. Coast Guard has served in every war since 1790.
Each rider in the Pony Express had to ride 75 to 100 miles a day.

Governor Millard F. Caldwell, duly elected by the Board of Directors of the National War Fund, Florida Division, as State Chairman, made the following statement in a letter to the organization: "Florida's citizens have thought of the annual United War Fund campaign not as a duty but as an opportunity. We welcome the chance to make our contributions to the organization that are doing so much for our men and women in the services and for friends and allies of our sister democracies who have suffered from the impact of war. It is a great convenience to be able to make these contributions at one time.

No Evidence Seen Of Polio Epidemic In Florida Soon

JACKSONVILLE, July 25. (Special)—There is no evidence of a pending polio epidemic in Florida, according to the State Board of Health. Dr. E. F. Hoffman, Bureau of Epidemiology director, said that although a 50 percent increase in polio has been reported nationally this year, Florida has been fortunate in holding her own against the disease. "It is true that up to July 14, 1945, we had 29 cases of infantile paralysis reported as compared with 26 for the same time last year. But most of these occurred back in early spring long before the usual 'polio season,'" Dr. Hoffman said. "For the week ending July 14, 1945, we had just one case reported, while during the corresponding week of 1944 seven new cases were on tap. "Usually, June through September are the months when we urge people to be alert to polio symptoms. But this supposed season has not run true to form in Florida this year. Cases reported by the month so far are: January, three; February, four; March, none; April, seven; May, nine; June, five; and for the first part of July, one. "Ten of the 16 cases reported during April and May were in the vicinity of West Palm Beach. Because these cases were recognized and treated early, none of the individuals developed paralysis. "Because very little is known about polio we are unable to warn against definite dangers such as milk and water, for instance, where typhoid fever is concerned. Therefore, in an effort to 'lock the stable before the horse is stolen," we list, from time to time, the usual precautions which we trust will enable every community to guard more thoroughly against polio outbreaks. The following warning is listed by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis: "Avoid overeating and extreme fatigue from strenuous exercise. Avoid sudden chilling such as would come from a plunge into extremely cold water on a very hot day. "Pay careful attention to personal cleanliness, such as thorough handwashing before eating. Hygiene habits should always be observed. "If possible avoid tonsil and adenoid operations during epidemic. Careful study has shown that such operations, when done during an epidemic, tend to increase the danger of contracting infantile paralysis in its most serious form. "Use the purest milk and water you can. Keep flies away from food. While the exact means of spread of the disease is not known, contaminated water and milk are always dangerous and flies have repeatedly been known to carry the polio virus. "Do not swim in polluted water. Maintain community sanitation at a high level at all times. "Avoid all unnecessary contact with persons with any illness suspicious of infantile paralysis. The Yale and Man is 30 by 12 miles in size.
